A Neceſſary Advertiſement
TO THE READER.

TO prepare the Reader to receive the deſigned benefit of this Work, it will be firſt uſeful to preſent him with a Scheme, or brief Table of the ſeverals which here are offered to him, and will be reducible to three heads; the firſt concerning the Original Text, the ſecond concerning the Verſion or Tranſlation, the third concerning the Expoſition of it. In every of theſe, if all that hath formerly been obſerved and written by others had here been ſummarily repeated, it would have given a vaſt, but unneceſſary Bulk to this Volume: And therefore for thoſe things which have been already thus largely inſiſted on, (whether by the Ancients, S. Chryſoſtome, and the Greek Scholiaſts, or, among the many later Writers on this Subject, by the moſt judicious and learned Hugo Grotius, in his admirable Comments on the Goſpels, as alſo in the Poſthumous Annotations on the other parts of the New Teſtament, which for a great part bear his ſignature upon them) the care hath been to leave the Reader from their own hands to receive the account, and reap the benefit of their excellent Labours (which are every where to be met with,) and not to add one Volume more to the great number of thoſe which are already enriched with the Spoils, and ſwelled by the tranſcribing of others Obſervations.

In the firſt place, that concerning the Greek Text: Many learned Men, eſpecially Lucas Brugenſis, and Robertus Stephanus, have uſed great induſtry to obſerve the various Readings of the many Manuſcript Copies which had been diligently collected and compared. And theſe are already to be had by thoſe that pleaſe to conſult them. Yet becauſe this Kingdom of ours hath been enriched with ſome Monuments of Antiquity in this kind, which were probably deſigned by God for more honourable uſes then only to be laid up in Archives, as dead Bodies in Vaults and Charnel-houſes, to converſe with Duſt, and Worms, and Rottenneſs; ſome of theſe I have choſen to adviſe with, and from them to offer ſometimes a various Reading; yet not permitting this to ſupplant or turn out that which hath vulgarly been received, but ſetting it in the inner Margent, that thoſe that have Judgment may, as they ſee cauſe, make uſe of it.

The firſt MS. which I have my ſelf twice compared, I found in the place of my Education, in the Library of St. Mary Magdalen College, in Oxford, a fair and an ancient Copy.

The ſecond is that more known in the King's Library at St. James's, preſented to our late Sovereign by Cyril the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, written in Capital Letters by a very ancient hand, of Thecla, as it is thought, and now happily prepared for the Preſs by the great Pains and Judgment of Mr. Patrick Young, from whoſe hands the moſt Reverend Father in God, the Archbiſhop of Armagh, having long ſince received a Copy of the various Readings, was pleaſed to communicate them to me.

The third is the Greek and Latin MS. of the four Goſpels and the Acts, found ninety years ſince in a Monaſtery at Lions, in the time of the Civil War in France, and twenty years after preſented by Theodore Beza, as a Monument of Venerable Antiquity, to the Univerſity of Cambridge, the Variations of which from the Vulgar Printed Copies, I alſo acknowledge to have received from the favour of the moſt Reverend Archbiſhop of Armagh. What hath from any of theſe appeared uſeful to be propoſed, is in the inner Margent of this Book tranſlated, and ſet over againſt the Text, with an [or] in the front of it, as the Characteriſtick Note to diſtinguiſh it from the changes of the Engliſh Tranſlation, which, without that mark, are put in the ſame Margent.

In the next place concerning the Tranſlation: The firſt part of my Task was to prepare a new one out of the Original Greek, ſuch as ſeemed to me moſt agreeable, and on which my preſent underſtanding of the Text is founded; and to authorize or give confidence to ſuch an undertaking, I had in my proſpect not only the two Engliſh Tranſlations, the one in the Book of Liturgy, the other in the Bibles, but the Examples alſo of many learned Men, as well thoſe that live in the Obedience of the Biſhop of Rome, (whoſe great, I ſhall add, * juſt value of the Vulgar, is notwithſtanding ſufficiently known) as others of the Reformed Churches: Such of both ſorts are Cardinal Cajetan, Mr. Calvine, who tranſlate from the Original what they comment upon. So doth Oleaſter, and Mercer, and Forerius, and Eraſmus, and Malvenda, a late Spaniſh Frier, in his Seven Volumes of Comments on the Bible. I need not add Junius and Tremullius, and Beza, and Caſtellio, the Authors of the Spaniſh, the Italian, the French Tranſlations, and many more, who have all made uſe of that liberty. Yet conſidering my own great defects, the incompetency and diſproportionableneſs of my ſtrength, and few years conſideration to the length and weight of this work, and knowing that as oft and as far as I differed in my ſenſe from other men, ſo often and in the ſame diſtance did other men differ from me; and having before my eyes, from the fate of other mens attempts in this kind, (which I could not induce my ſelf to approve of) great reaſons to forecaſt and foreſee mine own hazards, (and tho' not to diſcern, yet) to fear and ſuſpect many miſadventures therein, and ſo to paſs that more early cenſure on my ſelf, which from others, which ſaw not with my partial eyes, I had cauſe to look for; Upon theſe, I ſay, and ſome ſtore of other conſiderations, I made choice of the courſe which now is taken, inſtead of obtruding a new, retaining the known Tranſlation of our Bibles, and (after the manner which was formerly uſed in our Bibles of the larger impreſſions, of noting ſome other rendrings in the Margents) annexing, where it ſeemed uſeful, another Tranſlation of ſome words or phraſes, with this * or †, or other like marks of reference to the words in our vulgar Text: And this is done alſo in the inner Margent. And where the matter is of any difficulty or weight, the reaſons of the change are more largely offered, and are to be found in the Annotations, referred to by ſome Letter of the Alphabet, a. b. c. &c. ſet over the top of the word in the Text. But when the matter is more perſpicuous, or leſs weighty, ſo that the bare affixing of the Greek words is a ſufficient reaſon for the rendring them, then that only courſe is taken, and the Greek being affix'd to the Engliſh in the margent, the Reader is left to judge of it, and to make that advantage of the change which he ſees cauſe for, without any prejudice to other rendrings.

3. Thirdly, For the Explication of thoſe difficulties in the phraſe, or ſenſe, which this Divine writing is ſtill capable of, two ways have been taken which appeared moſt profitable, firſt, by way of Paraphraſe, and ſecondly, of Annotation. The firſt in compliance with the wants and deſires of the moſt ignorant Reader, for whom it appeared expedient, whenſoever any part of the Text ſeemed capable of clearer words then thoſe wherein the Tranſlation had expreſſed them, ſo often to affix to thoſe obſcurer words a perſpicuous Paraphraſe, which is accordingly done in the outer larger margent of every verſe, and ſo much of the verſe as is explained is included in one, if it be from the beginning of the verſe, or, if not, in two brackets, after this manner [ ] ſo that the reſt of the Text, which is excluded by the brackets, may coherently be read with the Paraphraſe of that which is included, and the ſenſe continue undiſturbed by that means. This in the hiſtorical parts of this Book is contrived within the bounds of convenient brevity, and ſometimes being wholly omitted, is yet ſupplied by ſome note of reference to any parallel place where it had been before explained: But in the Epiſtles, where the Apoſtles reaſoning is cloſe, or the tranſitions not very diſcernible, and in the Revelations, where the obſcurities of the Prophetick ſtile require a greater circuit of words to explicate them, there the Paraphraſe is more enlarged; and ſo it is in like manner as oft as the length of that ſeemed ſufficient to remove the difficulty or obſcurity of the Text, without any farther trouble to the Reader. Beſides this, whenſoever any appearance of difficulty ſtill remained, which had not been cleared by the former Methods, the only reſerve hath been by way of Annotation, affix'd in Colums at the end of every Chapter, and referred by ſome letter to that part of the Text to which it belongs, and there anſwered by the ſame letter both in the Text and Margent. Theſe Annotations are generally deſigned for the ſatisfaction and uſe of thoſe who have ſome underſtanding of the Original Languages of the Bible, and therefore the ſeveral words or phraſes, ſo explicated, are in Greek ſet down in the Margent of the Annotations, and all of them collected into an Index at the end of the Book, (and for the uſe of the Engliſh Reader, the like Index of every word or phraſe ſo explained is annex'd in that Language alſo. And by comparing of thoſe Original Languages, the Hebrew words or phraſes with the Greek which are uſed to render them, by conſulting the Gloſſaries of the beſt Grammarians, Heſychius, and Phavorinus eſpecially (who have a peculiar title to this buſineſs of explaining words in the New Teſtament) and by taking notice of ſome cuſtoms among the Jews, and Grecians, and Romans, and by adding ſometimes the teſtimonies of the Ancients, when they appeared moſt uſeful, and when my ſlender Collections enabled me to annex them, and by ſome other means which the Reader will diſcern, (that eſpecially of weighing the Context, and comparing one Scripture with another) and by the bleſſed aſſiſtance and influence of God's grace and providence upon all, this whole work hath been made up, and the difficulties of theſe Divine Writings in ſome meaſure explain'd, with as much brevity as the matter ſeemed capable of, purpoſely abſtaining from all doctrinal concluſions and deductions and definitions on one ſide, and from all Poſtillary obſervations and accommodations, moral or myſtical anagogies, on the other ſide (both becauſe theſe latter are infinite, and becauſe every man is allowed (within the bounds of ſobriety) thus to apply Scripture for himſelf, as his ſeveral taſt and Genius ſhall ſuggeſt to him) and generally contenting my ſelf with the one primary and literal ſenſe of each place, unleſs when there appeared ſome uncertainty, and juſt reaſon of doubting betwixt two or more ſenſes which ſhould be preferred. One thing only it will be needful to add here, that the leſs curious Reader, which deſires only to underſtand and comprehend the plain ſenſe of the Scripture, and without any more ado to apply it to his ſouls health, ſhall not need to tire himſelf with the larger trouble of the Annotations, which of neceſſity contain many things above the underſtandings of the more ignorant. But for thoſe whoſe curioſity ſhall demand the reaſons of any leſs obvious interpretations, or ſuggeſt to them a willingneſs of any farther ſearch, it will be neceſſary that the Annotations be read, as oft as there are any; and if at any time they ſeem to be wanting (in which particular I am not ſecure, but that much more may be fitly added in the opinion of other men then to me ſeemed neceſſary) I ſhall deſire that reſort be made to the known Commentators, eſpecially to the moſt excellent Hugo Grotius, from whom, as oft as I had nothing to add, I purpoſely avoided to tranſcribe any thing.

It remains that as I am abundantly convinced of the defects and miſcarriages of this work, ſo I beſeech and importune the charity of thoſe who have greater abilities, to contribute every one his talent toward the diſcovery of all the receſſes of this Sacred writing; that at length (though not yet) this Repoſitory and Magazine of all ſaving knowledge and divine obſervation, being clearly underſtood, and reſcued from the many unſound reſolutions and poſitions which the gloſſes of men have obtruded on it, the reſult may be the compoſing of all diviſions and factions in the Church of Chriſt, the thinking and minding of the ſame things, the obliging and engaging of our ſouls to the purſuit of that One neceſſary, the performance of an early, chearful, uniform, ſincere, conſtant obedience, and practice of all that Chriſt came from heaven to propoſe to us.

The hope and intuition of which, as it was the main deſign projected in undertaking of this work, ſo it will be the Readers only juſtifiable aim in peruſing it, and the only qualification which will render him capable of reaping any fruit by the prayers and miniſtery of thoſe which attend on this very thing, among them, of

A POSTSCRIPT CONCERNING NEW LIGHT, OR, Divine Illumination.

§ 1. THAT which Jo. Beverovicius, a Phyſician of Dort, thought neceſſary to be ſtated by the Votes of the Learned of his Age, before he would hope his Profeſſion could find any conſiderable entertainment among Men, viz. whether there were a fatal Period of every Man's Life, beyond which it were not in the compaſs either of Art, or Sobriety, or good Managery to extend it, and as little in the power of Diſeaſe, or Intemperance, or even the Plague or Sword to ſhorten it; hath been matter of ſome conſideration to me in this Work. For as in the deſigning of his Time and Studies it was prudently foreſeen by him that one ſuch popular Error being imbibed, and improved as far as it would fairly yield, muſt needs be the defaming of his Medicaments, and the blaſting of his whole Profeſſion, as one great Impoſture; ſo after the Pains and Travail that this Work hath coſt from the time of the firſt Thought and Deſignation of it, (at the beginning of my entrance on the Study of Divinity) to this preſent day of the Nativity of it, I cannot look on it without ſome apprehenſion that it may run the ſame hazard which we read of the child in the Revelation, c. 12. to be devoured as ſoon as born, if one falſe pretenſion, which hath of late been ſomewhat proſperous in this Nation, and is utterly unreconcilable with the deſigned Benefit of this or any the like Work, be not timely diſcovered and removed.

§ 2. And the Pretenſion is this, That the underſtanding or interpreting the Word of God, or the knowing of his Will, is not imputable to the uſe of ordinary means (ſuch are the aſſiſtance of God's Spirit joyned with the uſe of learning, ſtudy, meditation, rational inference, collation of places, conſulting of the Original Languages, and ancient Copies and Expoſitions of the Fathers of the Church, analogy of received doctrine; together with unbiaſs'd affections, and ſincere deſire of finding out the truth, and conſtant prayer for God's ſpecial bleſſing on, and co-operation with theſe and the like means) but either to the extraordinary gift of the Spirit in Propheſying, Preaching, and Expounding, or to Illumination, not Prophetical or ſimply Extraordinary, but ſuch as is thought to be promiſed to a new life, the work of the Spirit of God in the heart of every Saint of his, which conſequently ſuperſedes the uſe of all external Ordinances to ſuch, even of the written Word of God it ſelf contained in the Canon of the Scripture.

§ 3. Had this Pretenſion Truth in it, I muſt confeſs my ſelf, who do not pretend to any ſuch extraordinary Gift or Inſpiration, obliged to acknowledge the great Impertinency of all this enſuing Work, the perfect Vanity of the whole Deſign, and every part of it, and therefore am concerned (as far as the hazard of having laboured in vain) to examine the Grounds, and manifeſt the Falſeneſs of this Pretenſion, and that in this Method, and by theſe Degrees.

§ 4. Firſt, by ſurveying the Scripture-Grounds or Proofs, which were producible in favour of it; Secondly, by ſetting down the form of ſound doctrine in this matter; Thirdly, by ſhewing the great neceſſity of oppoſing this, and adhering to the true Doctrine. And theſe are likely to enlarge this Poſtſcript beyond the Bounds that would regularly belong to it, but will carry their Apology along with them.

§ 5. The firſt Ground or Proof is fetch'd by the Pretenders from Joel 2. 28. cited and applied by S. Peter, Acts 2. to the Times of the Goſpel, It ſhall come to paſs afterward (or, * in the laſt days) ſaith God, that I will pour out my Spirit, (or, †of my Spirit) upon all fleſh: and your ſons and your daughters ſhall propheſy, your old men ſhall dream dreams, your young men ſhall ſee viſions: And alſo upon the ſervants and upon the hand-maids in thoſe days will I pour out my Spirit, (or, of my Spirit) and they ſhall propheſy. Whatſoever can be collected from this place to the Benefit of the Pretenders, will receive a ſhort and clear Anſwer by conſidering the Time to which this Prediction (and the Completion of it) belonged, and that is expreſly the laſt days, in the Notion wherein the Writers of the New Teſtament conſtantly uſe that Phraſe; not for theſe Days of ours ſo far advanced towards the end of the World (which yet no Man knows how far diſtant it ſtill is) but for the Time immediately preceding the Deſtruction of the Jewiſh Polity, their City and Temple. That this is it, appears not only by the mention of Sion, and the Deſtruction approaching it, in the beginning of that Chapter in Joel, which ſignifies it to belong to Jeruſalem that then was; but alſo by two farther undeceivable Evidences: 1. By the mention of the Wonders (immediately ſubjoined) in the heavens, and the Earth, &c. as forerunners of the great and terrible day of the Lord, the ſame that had been before deſcribed in Joel, v. 2, &c. and applyed by Chriſt, in the very words, to this Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, Mat. 24. 29, 30. 2*dly*, By the Occaſion for which S. Peter produceth it, Acts 2. 14. the effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, v. 2, 4. which, ſaith he, was no effect of drunkenneſs in them, but the very thing which was foretold by that place of Joel, before that great and notable day of the Lord, that was to fall upon that People to an utter Deſtruction. This being a Prediction of what ſhould come before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the Completion whereof was ſo viſible and remarkable in that Age, to which by the Prophet it was aſſigned (and this is a peculiar Character of thoſe times wherein the Goſpel was to be firſt propagated by this means, and to which it had a Propriety, as a laſt Act of God's miraculous and gracious OEconomy for the full Conviction of this People's Sin, before they were deſtroyed) it muſt needs be impertinently and fallaciouſly applied to any Men or Women, old or young, of this Age, ſo diſtant from that to which it belonged, and ſo well provided for by the ordinary means, the ſettled Office of Miniſtery in Chriſt's Church, as to have no ſuch need of extraordinary.

§ 6. A ſecond Proof is taken from 1 Cor. 12. 7. To every man is given the manifeſtation of the Spirit to profit withal, or, πρὸς τὸ συμφέρον, for the benefit and profit of the Church. But this is ſoon cleared by the Context, which begins to treat v. 1. περὶ πνευματικῶν, of, or concerning thoſe that have the Spirit; ſo πνευματικὸς the ſpiritual clearly ſignifies c. 14. 37. being joined with προφήτης prophet; and ſo it is expreſs'd to ſignifie here, v. 3. where ἐν πνεύματι λαλῶν, ſpeaking in, or by, the Spirit, is ſet as an inſtance of the πνευματικὸς, the ſpiritual (and 'tis but a miſtake to render it ſpiritual things, the Greek πνευματικῶν belonging as directly to perſons as things, being of the Maſculine as well as of the Neuter Gender.) Now for theſe πνευματικοὶ, ſpiritual men, or thoſe that have the Spirit, 'tis well known that they were thoſe which for the firſt planting of the Goſpel were by the deſcent of the Spirit endow'd with extraordinary gifts of miracles, of healing, of propheſying, of ſpeaking with ſtrange tongues, which they had never learn'd; all which and more are here mentioned, v. 8, 9, 10. and when theſe are exerciſed or made uſe of by any, this is called φανέρωσις πνεύματος, the manifeſtation of the Spirit, the Spirit of God manifeſting it ſelf hereby to be in ſuch a man after an extraordinary manner. And then I need only add, that the ἑκάστῳ, to every one, in the front of the Verſe, cannot in any reaſon be interpreted in the full extent of every Man, or every Chriſtian; for then the moſt wicked would have their part in it: nor yet of every Saint; for there is nothing in the Text which can ſo reſtrain it, but only of every ſuch Man as is ſpoken of in this Diſcourſe, that is, every πνευματικὸς, ſpiritual Man, every one that is thus endow'd with extraordinary Gifts of Tongues, &c. for of ſuch it is here peculiarly ſaid, that the manifeſtation of the Spirit, the exerciſe of thoſe Gifts, is given, or deſigned by God, for the benefit or advantage of the Church. And ſo this is of no force for the Enthuſiaſt, nor appliable to any but thoſe who were thus extraordinarily endow'd by the Spirits deſcending upon them, which was a Privilege of that Age, for the planting of the Church, and not to be hoped for (nor without Sacrilege pretended to) in any other.

§ 7. A third Proof is taken from Joh. 6. 45. out of Iſa. 54. 13. where it is foretold of the Chriſtians, that they ſhall be all taught of God. For the underſtanding of the full importance of this Text, two frequent known Idioms of the Sacred Style muſt be obſerved; 1. That Verbs of knowing or underſtanding (ſuch is learning or teaching) do ordinarily include the Will or Affections alſo, ſo as to know God, is to obey and ſerve him; 2*dly*, That Verbs Active (ſee Note on 1 Theſ. 3. a.) and Paſſive (ſee Note on Mat. 11. b) but eſpecially Adjectives Participial, do frequently include a real Paſſion, or an Effect wrought in the Subject of the Paſſion. And by the virtue of theſe two Obſervations (frequently exemplified in the Annotations) the Phraſe διδακτοὶ Θεοῦ, taught of God, will ſignifie thoſe that by the attractions of his prevenient Grace yielded to and made uſe of by them, are perſwaded to be his Followers or Diſciples, and ſo belongs not at all to the matter to which it is applied by the Advocates of New Light, (ſee Note on Mat. 15. d.) That this not only may be, (which is ſufficient to repel the force of the Argument drawn from hence) but certainly is the entire importance of this place, appears by the Context in the Evangeliſt. 1. By the Antecedents, No man, ſaith Chriſt, v. 44. can come to me, except the Father which hath ſent me draw him, and I will raiſe him up at the laſt day: where the Father's drawing, and in the ſame ſenſe, the Father's giving to Chriſt, v. 39. denotes this effect of the preventing Grace of God, received in the humble pliable Heart, and that as neceſſary to the undertaking the Faith of Chriſt, or Diſcipleſhip. And to this is this Teſtimony out of Iſaiah applied, It is written in the Prophets, They ſhall be all taught of God, that is, all that ſincerely come to Chriſt, that embrace the Chriſtian Religion, are ſuch as were formerly ſpoken of, drawn by God, given to Chriſt by God, taught of God, by his prevenient Grace ſo fitted and prepared that they follow Chriſt, become his Proſelytes and his Diſciples when he is propoſed to them. 2*dly*, By the Conſequents, Every one therefore that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me: where, as the coming unto me is all one with the coming unto me, that is, unto Chriſt, v. 44. ſo they had heard and learned of the Father, being all one with the taught of God, muſt needs be they on whom the effect of that hearing and Divine Doctrine was wrought, that is thoſe who were obedient to God's Grace, diſpoſing and fitting them with ſuch a Temper that they ſhould be ready and willing to be Chriſt's Diſciples (ſee Note on John 6. d.) 3*dly*, By the Importance of the Prophecy from whence 'tis cited, Iſa. 54. 13. where in a Prophecy of the Chriſtian Church, (the flouriſhing condition thereof deſcribed, v. 11. 12.) two things are affirmed of the Children, that is, Members thereof; 1. Their Obedience to God, they ſhall be taught of the Lord, they ſhall be Diſciples, Followers, Servants of God; and 2*dly*, their proſperous State, and great ſhall be their peace; and thoſe joined in one, v. 14. In righteouſneſs ſhalt thou be eſtabliſhed, where, as eſtabliſhment farther expreſs'd by ſecurity from Oppreſſion) is all one with their great peace, ſo in all reaſon is their righteouſneſs equipollent with their being taught of God. And ſo ſtill according to all the imaginable ways of judging, this which we have given is the importance of that Phraſe, and not that which is pretended from it. Nay, if the Text be again obſerved, it would be a foul Abſurdity that would be conſequent to that Interpretation of it, that God the Father ſhould be ſaid thus immediately to teach them, who upon being ſo taught are ſaid to come to Chriſt: For 'tis certain Chriſt was ſet forth by God as the Teacher of his Will, and that was the end of God's drawing any Man to Chriſt, that he might receive the full Knowledge of his Will from thence, which it were impertinent and even impoſſible for him to do, who were firſt taught by God in this ſenſe. (Of another Notion of the Word διδακτοὶ, a little varied from this, ſee 1 Theſſ. 4. c.)

διδακτοὶ Θεοῦ.

§ 8. A fourth Ground is fetcht from the Purport of the New Covenant, ſet down Heb. 8. 11. out of Jer. 31. 34. They ſhall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, ſaying, Know the Lord; for they ſhall all know me from the leaſt to the greateſt. But theſe Words can no way belong to this matter, as will appear if it be but conſidered that that which is here promiſed is ſomewhat wherein the ſtate of the Goſpel is oppoſed to that of the Law, which, if the not teaching be literally underſtood, it cannot be. For as in the Law Moſes taught God's Will unto the People, and after him thoſe that ſat in Moſes chair, ſo Chriſt alſo taught it under the Goſpel, and the Apoſtles after him; which could not be, unleſs others were taught and inſtructed by them. And therefore that cannot be the ſenſe of it. The Words indeed belong to a matter very diſtant: They are a deſcription of Chriſt's plain, eaſy, and gracious Yoke,

(*Mat.*11.30.) as that is ſet out by the oppoſition to the obſcure, imperfect, more burthenſom, and leſs agreeable Yoke of the Moſaical Performances, v. 8. To the bare plainneſs and perſpicuouſneſs of the Evangelical Precepts it is applied by S. Chryſoſtome, as alſo is that of being taught of God (ſee T. v. p. 244. l. 31.) and to that ſure it belongs, but withal to theſe other Excellencies thereof, over and above the Moſaical OEconomy. There were in that many πτωχὰ στοιχεῖα, beggerly elements for beginners, many things improveable and capable of being heightned, and changed to the better by Chriſt's Reformation; it was not ἄμεμπτος, faultleſs, v. 7. and therefore when God deſigns to reform it, he doth it μεμφόμενος, v. 8. complaining of the defects of it, and incompetency toward the end. And then this New Covenant, which was to be introduced inſtead of it, is ſet off and illuſtrated by the oppoſition to it, But this is the Covenant which I will make with the houſe of Iſrael after thoſe days, or in the latter days, that is, at the coming of the Meſſias, ſaith the Lord, &c. which as it is evidently a Notation of the Second Covenant betwixt God and the whole Chriſtian Church, and ſo ſufficiently removed from this of New Light, ſo can it not be applied to any peculiar Gift of Prophecy, of Preaching, &c. appropriated to ſome men, but muſt have ſuch a Notation as will be common to the whole houſe of Iſrael in the Antitype, that is, to all Chriſtian Profeſſors, not only the Saints of God; for with all ſuch is the Covenant made in this gracious manner (though many of them do not perform their Parts, the Condition of it) for otherwiſe they could not be ſaid to count the blood of it an unholy thing, Heb. 10. 29. The plain meaning of the Words is, that it is a moſt gracious Covenant that God now meant to make with Chriſtians; and the Graciouſneſs of it was to conſiſt not only in the abundant Mercy and Pardon for Sin, which there would be afforded, v. 12. above what the Moſaical Purgations and other Obſervances could pretend to, but eſpecially in the agreeableneſs of the Precepts to the Mind of Man, to the human rational Soul: there ſhould be no need of taking ſuch pains (as among the Jews was taken) to inſtruct Men in the multitude of Obſervances required of them, which yet under Moſes was abſolutely neceſſary, becauſe the things commanded were ſuch, as unleſs they had been known to be commanded by a Divine Law-giver, and to that end frequently inculcated to that People, no Man would have diſcerned himſelf obliged to perform; but the Duties now required by God of inward Purity (not of external Circumciſion and Purifications) were of their own Nature able to approve themſelves to a rational Creature, as moſt excellent and moſt eligible, written as it were in every Man's own Heart, if he would be patient to conſult them there. And then as this can no way be applied to New Light, ſave as that ſignifies the light which Chriſt brought with him when he came into the World to enlighten every Man, viz. the conſtant eſtabliſh'd Duties of Chriſtian life univerſally revealed by Chriſt's preaching and promulgating this Second Covenant; ſo it belongs not to any extraordinary way of revealing or expounding this Covenant, or any part or branch thereof (there being no need of that after Chriſt had ſo plainly revealed it, and commanded his Apoſtles to preach it over the World) but only to the agreeableneſs (to the human Soul) of that which was already revealed, the matter of this Covenant. The ſame alſo is the importance of the former Words, v. 10. I will give my Laws into their minds, and I will write them on their Hearts, that is, The Laws which ſhall now be given the Chriſtian Church, as God's Covenant with them, ſhall be Laws of ſpiritual internal Obedience for the regulating and ſubduing and mortifying of their Affections, impreſſed and inſcribed on their Hearts (which muſt now be kept pure, as the Fountain from which all Actions ſpring) whereas the former Moſaical Ordinances reached only to the Fleſh, or outward Members, and by that means did not conduce much, either to inward or outward Purity of the Heart or Actions.

§ 9. Another ſort of places there are which more immediately belong to the ſecond Branch of the Pretenſion (and that which is more frequently preſſed) the Privilege that the Saints have, by being ſuch, of underſtanding much more of the Will of God than any other can pretend to do. And a firſt Ground is that of John 7. 17. If any Man will do his, that is God's, Will, he ſhall know, &c. How little this Place doth favour the Pretenders of New Light, will preſently appear, 1. By conſidering what it is that here it is ſaid that the pious Man, or the doer of his Father's Will ſhall know, viz. whether the Doctrine which Chriſt preacheth be of God or no. This was not matter of New Revelation, but the Doctrine which Chriſt had already revealed and publiſhed to the World, and ſo could want no New Light to make it known; nay for the paſſing judgment of that Doctrine thus revealed by Chriſt, whether it were agreeable to the Will, and ſent by the Appointment of the Father, he had given them ſufficient means to proceed and conclude regularly, there was no need of any extaordinary diſcerning Spirit, the Miracles which he did in the preſence of all, and the Voice from heaven at his Baptiſm, gave full Authority to all that he ſaid, were matter of abundant conviction to all pious men, that it was the good pleaſure of God which he now taught, and there was nothing more wanting to beget Belief, but Hearts duly qualified with Piety and Humility, which was neceſſary to render them a ſubactum ſolum, a ſoil in which good Seed being skilfully ſown might take root and bring forth plentifully. And that is the importance of the former part of the Verſe, Ἐάν τις θέλῃ τὸ θέλημα μου ποιεῖν, if any man will, or take pleaſure, (ſee Mat. 27. Note g.) to do his will; the Character of the pious Man, of that Preparation of the Heart which was required of fit Men to a chearful entertainment of Chriſt's Doctrine, when it was already convincingly revealed to them. Which indeed is but proportionable to what * Hierocles and the Philoſophers were wont to ſay of the neceſſity of curing and purging the Eye, before it would be able to behold a bright or illuſtrious Object; meaning the depoſiting of prejudices, and prepoſſeſſions, and paſſions, and prides, but eſpecially of all habits of ſin, which, while they are upon the ſoul, are the blinding of it, permit not practical Truths, (eſpecially thoſe of an higher form, ſuch as thoſe of Chriſt's requiring the Purity of the Eye and Heart) to have any admiſſion with them; according to that of Ariſtotle, that as thoſe which are of raw and unruly Affections, when they are taught Moral Precepts, λέγουσιν, ἃ πεδύσι, ſay them by road, but believe not a word of them; ſo the habit and cuſtom of any vice is φθορικὴ ἀρχῶν, corruptive of principles, makes men begin to queſtion, or not to underſtand thoſe practical dictates which humane nature and common notions had furniſhed them with. This advantage indeed (very conſiderable) toward the underſtanding of Truths already revealed, Humility and Piety hath above Pride and Impiety: but as thoſe that take themſelves to be the only Saints of the earth, have but a weak claim to one of theſe, (and perhaps as weak to the other, which is never ſeated but in an humble Breaſt;) ſo if they had the beſt claim of any Men now in the world, it would not raiſe or entitle them to the gift of Revelation, any more than of Tongues and Miracles; of New Light, than of ſpeaking Arabick, removing mountains, or foretelling things to come.

* Pref. Com. in Carm. aur.

§ 10. Two other places there are in the next Chapter, John 8. which ſound as much for the intereſt of the Pretenders, and ſignifie as little, v. 31, 32. If ye continue in my word, &c. ye ſhall know the truth, and the truth ſhall make you free. But that muſt be expounded by another Idiome of the Sacred Dialect (taken notice of and exemplified Mat. 9. Note d.) when one thing only being deſigned to be ſaid, another is premiſed preparative to it. And ſo here to them that continue in Chriſt's word, that is, in conſtant Obedience to it, the promiſe is, that the truth ſhall make them free, that is, that the doctrine of Chriſt being thus continued in, ſhall procure them a moſt valuable freedom. To which continuing in Chriſt's word, the receiving the knowledge of the truth being preparative, it is accordingly ſet down before it, but not as part of the promiſe, being neceſſarily preſuppoſed in the condition; Chriſt's word, v. 31. and the truth being all one, and the knowing it pre-required to continuing in it. However nothing of New light can poſſibly be intimated by this knowing the truth; but only that which by Chriſt's preaching was made known unto them.

Γνῶσιν ἀλήθειας.

§ 11. The ſecond place in that Chapter is v. 43. What do you not underſtand my ſpeech? Even becauſe you cannot hear my word.. But that hath no more aſpect on this matter then the former had: 'Tis only the rendring an account of the reaſon, why Chriſt's expreſſions ſeemed ſtrange unto them, why they did not atquieſce in and believe all he ſaid unto them, but ſtill diſputed againſt it; viz. the diſagreeableneſs of his doctrine to their carnal humors and fancies, their impatience of ſuch ſevere precepts as he came to propoſe to them.

Διὰ τὴν ἀκοὴν τὴν ἐμὴν.

§ 12. Another ground is fetch'd from 1. Cor. 2. in many verſes thereof, (which are ſufficiently cleared and vindicated to their proper ſenſe by the ſeveral Paraphraſes upon them) but eſpecially v. 15. He that is ſpiritual judgeth all things, &c. But how little that belongs to the juſtifying this claim, will ſoon be diſcerned by inquiring who is the ὁ πνευματικὸς or ſpiritual there; without queſtion ſuch an one as is ſaid to have received the Spirit which is of God, v. 12. Such were the Apoſtles and others of that time, which by the deſcent of the holy Ghoſt were taught and inſtructed in all things which belonged to their office to reveal to the world, to whom they had Commiſſion to preach. And of ſuch an one there is no queſtion but that he ἀνακρίνει πάντα, diſcerneth all things, comes to the knowledge of all thoſe parts of God's will which have before been kept cloſe with God, as Myſteries which the Angels knew nothing of, but are now by Chriſt and his Spirit (which, ſaith he, ſhould teach them all things) convincingly made known to have been the ſubject of the ancient Prophecies. And the arguments that ſuch an one uſeth to convince others being not fetch'd from human reaſon, or the Artiſt's Topicks of probation, but only from proofs afforded by this Spirit of God, Miracles, Gifts of Tongues, Voices from Heaven, old Prophecies, &c. it therefore follows, that as he by theſe means comes to know theſe Myſteries, ſo no worldly wiſe man, Philoſopher or the like, called the ψυχικὸς, animal man, before, is qualified to argue or diſpute againſt him. And ſo this hath no propriety or peculiarity of aſpect on theſe future times, wherein as that which was revealed to thoſe Apoſtles is ſufficiently communicated to us by ordinary means, in the writings of the Scripture, ſo there can be no neceſſity or uſe of extraordinary.

Ἀνακρίνει πάντα.

Ψυχικὸς.

§ 13. Others are pleaſed to argue from 1 John 3. 24. Hereby know we that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us. But that will ſoon vaniſh, if we obſerve the notion of πνεῦμα Spirit, (enlarged on in Note on Luke 9. e.) in many places of the New Teſtament, for the temper abſolutely, or more ſtrictly a gracious, pious temper, or diſpoſition of mind; and ſo the Spirit which he hath given us may there very commodiouſly ſignifie that gracious charitable diſpoſition, which being ſo eminently in Chriſt, is by his example and his precepts recommended, and by our continuing in his diſcipleſhip communicated to us, and wrought in us. The underſtanding it ſo in that place is very agreeable to the former part of the verſe, he that keepeth his commandments, dwelleth in him, and he in him, that is, every obedient ſervant of his continueth in Chriſt, that is, adhereth to Chriſt, and Chriſt continueth in him, and ſo he receiveth all gracious influences from him, particularly that of charity or loving his Fellow-Chriſtians, as Chriſt gave us Commandment, v. 23. that ſpecial piece of Chriſtian temper, ſo largely exemplified, and ſo ſtrictly required by Chriſt of all his Diſciples. And ſo again we ſee the phraſe uſed, c. 4. 13. By this we know that we abide in him, and he in us, becauſe he hath given us of his Spirit. The ground of that ſpeech is laid v. 12. If we love one another, God abideth in us, and his love is perfected in us; that is, our charity to others is an evidence of our continuing to receive divine infuſions and influences from God (for love or charity is ſuch) and that a proof, that we have tranſcribed and imitated that love which he hath exemplified to us: for this is meant by his love being perfected in us as his ſufferings are filled up and perfected in us, when they are imitated by us, when we ſuffer for well-doing, as he did; the end of a copy or pattern being this, that we ſhould tranſcribe it, and ſo the taking it out, imitating it, as we ought to do, the only way of giving it its due perfection. And ſo that whole verſe is but a Paraphraſe on that ſpeech of Chriſt's, By this ſhall all men know that ye are my diſciples, if ye love one another, Chriſt bringing his ſcholars and followers up in the practice of this duty beyond all others. And upon this is built that which immediately follows, and ſo it muſt be interpreted by it, By this we know that we abide in him, and he in us, ὅτι becauſe, or that, he hath given us of his Spirit; that is, this is a ſure κριτήριον, by which we may conclude our living like diſciples of his, our not having forſaken him, as other uncharitable Gnoſtick Hereticks appear to have done, and ſo likewiſe his continuing to communicate his influences to us, as to diſciples he is wont, that we are like him in this ſpecial grace of charity, the quality that is ſo remarkable in him. And ſo this is very remote from the Enthuſiaſt's pretenſions.

Δέδωκεν ἡμῖν πνεῦμα ἐξ αὐτοῦ.

§ 14. One eſpecial reſerve there is ſtill behind from 1 John 2. 20. Ye have an unction from the holy One, and ye know all things, and v. 27. in words not much varied, and to the ſame ſenſe, The anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: But as the ſame anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, remain in him ſtill, or, as we read, ye ſhall abide in him. That the full meaning of the Unction's teaching, or having taught them all things, is their having been inſtructed by thoſe on whom the holy Ghoſt (which was to teach them all things) had deſcended, and confirmed by the gift of miracles, abiding at that time in their Churches, hath been ſhewed at large, Note on Act. 10. d. and that takes away all the Pretenders title from this place. But beſide this, it is evident by the Context, what it was that this Unction was ſaid to teach them, viz. that Jeſus was the Chriſt, contrary to the Gnoſtick Hereticks, v. 18. which denied it, and are therefore called Ἀντίχριστοι Antichriſts: They, ſaith he, v. 19. went out from us, theſe Hereticks that denied Jeſus to be Chriſt; But ye have an unction, &c. and ye know all things (the all things here being, according to the ordinary Scripture-ſtile, to be interpreted only of all thoſe things which are there ſpoken of.) Ye have certain and infallible evidences that Jeſus is the Chriſt. From whence he immediately concludes again, that they that have denied this are lyars and Antichriſts, v. 22. and puts them in mind of that which had firſt been taught them, and ſufficiently evidenced unto them from the beginning of the Goſpels being preached unto them, v. 24. in oppoſition to theſe falſe Doctrines which had ſince been infuſed amongſt them, v. 26. to whom again he oppoſeth the unction, v. 27. And ſo ſtill here is nothing in the leaſt degree favourable to the pretenſions of the Enthuſiaſt.

§ 15. Some other places I find to be mention'd, which are yet farther removed from this matter, for which they are pretended, as Gal. 3. 14. that we might receive the promiſe of the Spirit, through faith. What is meant there by the promiſe of the Spirit, that is, the Spirit promiſed his Diſciples by Chriſt at his parting from the world, appears at the beginning of that Chap. v. 2, 3. viz. the powers of working Miracles, &c. and ſo 'tis interpreted v. 5. He therefore that miniſtreth to you the Spirit, and worketh Miracles among you. And this may fitly be ſaid to be received through Faith, both as that is oppoſed to the Moſaical œconomy, under which there were not then thoſe powers in the Church of the Jews, as it is ſaid v. 2. Received ye the Spirit by the works of the Law, or by the hearing of Faith? And according to Chriſt's Promiſe to Believers, Theſe ſigns ſhall follow them that believe; in my name they ſhall caſt out devils, &c. *Mar.*16,17. And ſo this place belonging to thoſe miraculous Operations of the Spirit in thoſe times uſeful for the erecting of a Church, can no more be applicable to Believers in theſe times, then the ſpeaking of Tongues, and gifts of Healing, &c. which are not imagined by theſe Pretenders to belong to them by force of this place. Ἐπαγγελία τῦ πνεύματος. διὰ πίστεως.

§ 16. Somewhat different from this is that other of Eph. 1. 17. (and parallel to that Col. 1. 9) that the Father of glory would give you the ſpirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him, the eyes of your underſtanding being enlightned, &c. In this place there is little of difficulty, ſave that ἐν ἐπιγνώσει ἀυτῦ is not rightly interpreted in the knowledge of him, whereas it ſhould be, to the acknowledgment of him, as the end of the wiſdom and revelation, not the matter of it. That it is ſo, appears by the following words, The eyes of your underſtanding being enlightned, that ye may know——Whereas the enlightning of their underſtandings is anſwerable to the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation, ſo the phraſe, that ye may know, is anſwerable to ἐν ἐπιγνώσει, and ſo renders ἐν (as it is ordinarily uſed for εἰς) to, not in the knowing, or acknowledging of him. Which being premiſed, the plain meaning of the word is, that the Apoſtle having heard of the Epheſians proficiency in the Faith of Chriſt, prays that they may come to farther growth yet, even to all abundance of all ſorts of Chriſtian knowledge, underſtanding the higheſt ſpiritual truths, called wiſdom, and interpreting of Prophecies of the Old Teſtament, called Revelation, and both theſe as extraordinary χαρίσματα) gifts at that time, and ſo called the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation; and this for this end, that Chriſt might be fully diſcern'd, and the truth of his Doctrine acknowledged, by this means; in the ſame manner as ch. 4. 11. it is ſaid of Chriſt, that he gave ſome Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, ſome Evangeliſts, ſome Paſtors and Teachers, (each of theſe furniſhed with extraordinary gifts, ſuch as here are named) for the building of the body of Chriſt (that is, his Church) until we come to the unity of the faith and acknowledgment of the Son of God——that ye be no more toſt, &c. All which ſhews the high, extraordinary ways that were then afforded by God, by the deſcent of the Spirit, (for the building of a Church, and confirming the Faith of Weaklings againſt the invaſion of Hereticks, which fell off, and denied Chriſt) and were here by the Apoſtle pray'd for to the Church of the Epheſians, but cannot be extended as a Promiſe to the Enthuſiaſt now, that ſuch gifts ſhall be, or are afforded him. πνεῦμα Σοφίας. πνεῦμα Ἀποκαλύψεως.

§ 17. Beſide theſe of the New Teſtament, other places are produced out of the Old, as from Pſal. 25. 9. The meek will he teach his way; and v. 12. What man is he that feareth the Lord? Him ſhall he teach in the way that he ſhall chuſe; and v. 14. The ſecret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will ſhew them his covenant. But all theſe belong to a matter very diſtant from what the Enthuſiaſt pretends, viz. the benefit and advantage that accrues to all thoſe that ſincerely and diligently obſerve the Laws of God. The meek, v. 9. are certainly the obedient, and ſo the man that feareth the Lord, v. 12, 14. and for the Promiſes that belong to ſuch, they are all to the ſame purpoſe, under ſeveral expreſſions, God will teach them his way, and teach them in the way that he ſhall chuſe; that is, direct and aſſiſt them in doing that which ſhall be acceptable in his ſight (not make known his Laws of Life by way of Revelation to them, for they were certainly made known to them already, and ſo here 'tis ſuppoſed, for otherwiſe how can they be ſaid to keep them, v. 10?) and then ſhew them his covenant, and communicate his ſecret to them, that is, afford them (in the practice of piety and vertue) thoſe taſts of the ſweetneſs of it beyond all other courſes, that they ſhall by experience find how excellent and (for it ſelf, abſtracted from the eternal reward) how deſirable a thing it is to follow Gods ways, and not our own corrupt appetites. This muſt needs be the meaning of ſhewing them his covenant, that covenant whereby he promiſeth all good things to them upon their obedience; which covenant was already made known to them, and could no otherwiſe now be ſhewed them, but by their diſcerning the graciouſneſs of it. And for the ſecret of the Lord, that is this ſweetneſs which reſults from the obeying his precepts, like that of Manna from heaven (called hidden Manna) agreeable to every man's taſt, ſavoury to every rational ſoul. That this is the full meaning of it, appears by v. 10. where all the paths of the Lord (thoſe wherein he is ſaid to guide and teach the meek, v. 9.) are ſaid to be mercy and truth, that is made up of goodneſs in the higheſt degree (ſo ſaith Kimchi of חסד mercy, that it is רחמים הטובה the abundance, or excellence, of goodneſs) and of agreeableneſs to the underſtanding or upper Soul of a man (to the common impreſſions that are in him) to ſuch as keep his Covenant and his Teſtimonies, that is, obſerve and practiſe them, and thereby have that excellency experimented to them, which wicked men, which never come to practiſe and try what it is to do as God directs, never apprehend to be in it. To this purpoſe there are infinite Teſtimonies in this Book of the Pſalms, Pſal. 19. 9, 10. The judgments of the Lord are more to be deſired then gold, yea then much fine gold, ſweeter alſo then honey and the honey-comb: moreover by them is thy ſervant taught, and in keeping of them there is great reward. Where 'tis manifeſt what the judgments are, the commands and rules of life, ſuch as are to be kept or obſerved; and all benefits and pleaſures and advantages, preſent and future, are the conſtant reſult and reward of that obſervance. So again v. 7. The law of the Lord is perfect (hath all kind of goodneſs in it, ſo the Hebrew ſignifies, and the Greek ἄμωμος) converting or reſtoring the Soul, bringing the man to himſelf again, from that degenerous condition of the ſinner (ſo unworthy of the rational creature, that it renders him a very fool and unreaſonable) to that honourable ſtate of piety and vertue, and ſo making wiſe the ſimple, changing the Sinner fool into the Scripture wiſe, that is, pious, vertuous man. To which purpoſe ſee the 13th part of Pſal. 119. And to the confirming this interpretation of this and the like places, I ſhall uſe one Argument taken ab abſurdo, from the abſurdity which would follow from making them inſtrumental to the Enthuſiaſts claims: For it is well known that God revealed his Will in thoſe days by Prophets particularly called, and deſigned, and commiſſionated to that purpoſe; and if any thing was to be done which had not been ſufficiently declared by the ſtanding known Laws, or when thoſe had been remarkably deſpiſed and neglected, a man of God was choſen and ſent from heaven with ſuch new Revelations. Which was no way agreeable to, or reconcilable with this other method, of God's revealing all his ſecrets to every pious, obedient ſervant of his; for then there would have been no need of any other.

§ 18. Of the ſame nature with theſe are thoſe others that are produced out of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 111. 10. A good underſtanding have all they that do his commandments (where yet our Margent reads far otherwiſe, and ſo as takes away all appearance of force from it, Good ſucceſs have they, &c.) Pſal. 119. 18. Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law; and ſo Prov. 2. 7. God layeth up ſound wiſdom for the righteous, and ch. 3. 32. God's ſecret is with the righteous; all perfectly agreeable to the former Texts, and vindicated from the Enthuſiaſts miſprifions by the interpretations that have been affixed to them. As for that of Prov. 28. 5. They that ſeek the Lord underſtand all things, it muſt be explain'd by the Context, not to belong to all things indefinitely, but, as hath been ſaid, and as it is ordinary in the Scripture-ſtile (ſee 1 Cor. 13. 7.) to all the things that are here ſpoken of, that is, the Judgments of God in the former part of the verſe, his wiſe and juſt proceedings againſt the wicked, and his rewarding of piety, ſo that no man ſhall have any reaſon (to call the proud happy) to praiſe the wicked, v. 4. And ſo the plain meaning of the place is, that whatever the Atheiſtical Sinner thinks of God's neglecting the Government of the World, from whence he takes courage and confidence to ſin, yet the truly pious man is able to contend with, v. 4. and confute him, he finds experimentally the reward of the righteous, and knows that which the Atheiſt will not acknowledge, that there is a God that judgeth the earth: and ſo that is nothing to the purpoſe to which it is produced by the Pretenders.

§ 19. And as little that of the Prophet, Iſa. 35. 8. of the high way, the way of holineſs, and the wayfaring men, though fools, ſhall not err therein. For (beſides that that Prophecy might have a completion in Iſrael, and muſt not needs be extended any farther then to what it primarily belonged) this meaning of it, as figuratively it is applicable to the Chriſtian Church, is moſt obvious, that the Duties by God required of us are ſo plain and evident, that he that ſets himſelf to the practice of them, be he of never ſo ſlow an underſtanding, cannot chuſe but know them: Or elſe that the condition of the Covenant now required of us under Chriſt, is not ſuch, as that any man through weakneſs, or ignorance, or involuntary error, ſhould ever miſcarry, or loſe his part of the Promiſe of that Covenant; only deliberate Sins againſt Grace and againſt Knowledge are imputed to any man to his ruine.

§ 20. So for the promiſe of putting a new Spirit in them, Ezech. 11. 19. that is interpreted evidently by the latter end of the verſe, I will give them an heart of fleſh, that is, give them that meaſure of my Grace which ſhall work a reformation in them, that they walk in my ſtatutes, and keep my ordinances, as it follows, v. 20.

§ 21. Laſtly, for that of Hag. 2. 5. My Spirit remaineth with you, 'tis evident that God's power, and mighty work of deliverance, ſuch as had been ſhewn in reſcuing the Iſraelites out of Ægypt, is the thing there meant by my Spirit; for thus the words are introduced (being ſpoken of the re-edifying of the Temple), According to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Ægypt, ſo my Spirit remaineth among you: and therefore as an effect of confidence in that power, it follows, Fear ye not; which can no way pertain to the pretenſions of the Enthuſiaſt.

§ 22. Having taken this view of the chiefeſt of thoſe places which have been deemed favourable to the pretenders of New light, and diſcovered the miſtakes of them, I proceed to the ſecond branch of my method, the ſetting down the form of ſound doctrine in this matter, and that will be moſt fitly done by theſe ſteps and degrees.

§ 23. 1. That all knowledge of God's will is confeſſedly (as every good gift) from God, communicated by thoſe means and degrees which God hath been pleaſed to chuſe, the Light of Nature, the Revelations, and Oracles and Voices from Heaven to the Fathers, and at laſt by his own Son Jeſus Chriſt, and his Apoſtles commiſſionated by him; which being the laſt method or way of Revelation which we have reaſon to expect, our whole duty is hereby reſolved to be contained and ſet down in thoſe Laws of the Old, but eſpecially of the New Teſtament, which make up the Chriſtian Canon or Rule.

§ 24. 2*dly*, That any farther light, then that which is thus afforded us, cannot in any reaſon be pretended to by any, or ſo as may ſatisfie himſelf or others, unleſs it may appear by means ſufficient to convince a rational man, 1. In general, that it is agreeable to the œconomy under the Goſpel, that any one, after Chriſt and his Apoſtles, and others of that firſt age extraordinarily endowed, ſhould to the end of the world be called to the Office of a Prophet, as that ſignifies one that is ſent to make known de novo, to publiſh God's truth or will unto men. And 2. That he particularly is ſuch a Prophet, and ſo ſent, and by authentick teſtification of divine miracles, or of mighty works, which neither man nor devil can work without the aſſiſtance of an omnipotent power, demonſtrated and evidenced to be ſo.

§ 25. 3*dly*, That if it ſhould now be affirmed, that any man is, or ſince the Apoſtles age hath been, thus endowed, it would be under a very ſtrong prejudice from the contrary opinion of the whole Church of God for fifteen Centuries, who having received the Books of the Old and New Teſtament for the one conſtant durable Canon of Faith, muſt be ſuppoſed to reſolve, that nothing elſe ſhall ever be added to that Canon, that is, no new Revelations ſhall ever be made, (for if they ſhould, our Faith muſt be regulated by them as well as by any part of God's word already received:) and therefore in all reaſon this affirmation muſt be teſtified by arguments or proofs fit to out-ballance ſo great an authority, which cannot be by any one mans affirmation of himſelf, whoſe teſtimony in this matter is of no validity, and yet 'tis evident that there are no other.

§ 26. 4*thly*, That the underſtanding the word of God contain'd in the Scripture, is no work of extraordinary Illumination, but muſt be attained by the ſame means, or the like, by which other writings of men are expounded, and no otherwiſe. In other writings ſome things are ſo plain, that by the ſtrength of common reaſon any man that is maſter of that, and underſtands the Language wherein they are written, may underſtand them; others have ſuch difficulties in them, ariſing either from the conciſeneſs or length of ſtile, or ſublimity of the matter of the diſcourſe, or intermixture of old forgotten cuſtoms, &c. that there will be need of proper helps in each of theſe to overcome the ſeveral difficulties. And ſo it is in the underſtanding of Scripture; thoſe places that are plain want no farther illuminating either of the medium or of the eye, to diſcern or underſtand the meaning of them: and for the ſearching to the bottom of the greater depths, 'tis as certain that the uſe of humane means doth ordinarily aſſiſt and conduct us ſucceſsfully (as obſervation of the uſage of the word or phraſe in other places, conſidering the cuſtoms of the people, the ſcope of the writer, and many the like,) and when it doth not ſo, 'tis viſible that it is from any want of ſuch aſſiſtances, which when I after come to meet with, I get through the difficulty, and by growth in knowledge and obſervation do come as perfectly to underſtand the more abſtruſe paſſage to-day, as I did the more perſpicuous yeſterday. And indeed if extraordinary illumination were required to underſtand the more difficult places of Scripture, it could not be denied to be neceſſary to all the reſt alſo. It being evident that the plaineſt precept in the original Language, which alone is the Word of God, is is as inexplicable by him that understands not Greek or Hebrew, as the closest subtilest arguings in S. Paul's Epistles) and so no man should be acknowledged to understand any part of God's will, but the Saint that knows all of it: a supposition most evidently contrary to those many Texts of Scripture, which suppose men to know the will of God, which they do not practise.

§ 27. 5thly, It is most true that there is need of the concurrence of God's assistance and blessing, his grace and his providence to the use of all ordinary means, to render them successful to us, and so there is need of God's illuminating Spirit to assist our weak eyes, our dark faculties. But then this Illumination is but that which is annexed to the use of the means, and not that which works without them; and this act of his providence is a suggesting of means which had not otherwise been thought of, had not God by his good hand directed to them, which he doth not by any inspiration, but by offering of occasions, which humane industry is left to improve, and if it do not, receives no benefit by them. And so still this is the old light which hath commonly been afforded the diligent, no new illumination for the Enthusiast. And of this sort of illumination three things are observable; 1. That it is not discernible to be such in the principle, but only in the fruits of it: 'tis not (nor can it without miracle be) known by any, that it is divine illumination, nor consequently that it is true (the suggestions of my own fancy, nay of the devil, may be mistaken for it;) but only by the agreeableness of it with those truths which are already revealed from God, and that are by other evidences then that of the private Spirit known to be so revealed: nay that agreeableness with Divine is not always sufficient to define it an Illumination; for my fancy may, and sometimes doth suggest truth, and the devil that knows much truth may, when 'tis not his interest to lie, help men to the knowledge of truth, and so in the Oracle he often did. However that truth is again to be examined by humane rational means, not by the Spirit; for if it were, that second sentence or judgment of the Spirit would again want other means to discern whether that were a true Spirit or no. 2*dly*, That those Illuminations come not so irresistibly, but that they may be opposed by humane interpositions, prejudices, prepossessions, pride, opinionating, &c. and so still it will be at every turn uncertain, whether they be thus resisted or no, and till that be revealed by some new light also, it will still be unevident which is the truth of God, to which the Illumination or the Providence assists or directs any. And 3*dly*, That the Illuminations ordinarily afforded by God are proportioned not to his all-seeing knowledge, but to our capacities, and our real wants, and so, as his sanctifying grace is not given in such a degree, or manner, as to preserve us impeccable, so neither his Illuminations, as to render us inerrable or infallible. But it being certain in both, that God is not wanting to us in necessaries, (as he doth not bind himself to abound to us in superfluities) the only conclusion from thence will be, that where God affords not his grace, he requires not of us those performances to which that grace was necessary, and so that he will supply by his pardon what was wanting in our strength (and sure he will pardon errors of weakness, as well as sins of weakness, human nesciencies, as well as human frailties;) and not that he will give all light, when, by not exacting all knowledge, that light was rendred unnecessary for us.

§ 28. 6thly, That God's Illuminations being proportion'd to our wants, and not to our ambitions or wantonnesses, it will be sufficient that they be afforded to those who are by him regularly called and sent to some office in his Church of instructing and teaching others, those others being left to such more moderate degrees, which are agreeable to their more private condition, and the supplies which are allow'd them from the Pastor, whose lips are to preserve knowledge, and they to seek the law at his mouth. And as this advantage belongs not to the Ahimaz, who runs, or assumes authority to himself, when he is not so sent but only to him that can shew the regularity of his Mission; so neither to him unlimitedly, but only so far as may competently fit him for the discharging his office, which is, the calling sinners to repentance, and directing and confirming them in Christian practice (and a moderate proportion of Knowledge may be as competent for that as a greater measure of Illumination: he that hears not plain duty from Moses and the Prophets, neither will he repent though one were sent from the dead) nor to him without use of the ordinary means, study, &c. nor to him without possibility of error, through his human weakness; nor of Heresie, and even Apostasie, through the vicious habits in his own heart, which this light doth not dissolve or dispel, but leaves to be mortified by other means.

§ 29. 7thly, The sanctifying Spirit of God being received and employed effectually to the mortifying of carnal sins, and all filthiness of the spirit also, pride, obstinacy, faction, singularity, ambition, vain glory, sluggishness, and all irregular passions and interests, &c. is an excellent preparative to the receiving benefit from God's Illuminations, and the truly humble pious man is, cæteris paribus, more likely to be led into all profitable or practical truths, then he who hath all or any of those clouds of darkness in him: But this again not so that the pious man shall be able to acquire knowledge without humane means, to understand the Bible in the original without many years studying of those Languages wherein it was written, or to divine the meaning of Scripture without the assistance of those that have searched into the depth of it, nor so as to be infallible in what he doth use means to search, when those means are perhaps imperfect (and will always be so till he comes to the state of Vision) and so incompetent to find out the truth, or else his parts incompetent for the judging or fathoming of it, it being evident in the most pious man, what S. Paul personates in himself, 1 Cor. 13. that we now see as in a glass darkly, and know but in part, v. 12.

§ 30. 8*thly*, That after all this the common illuminations of God's Spirit are imparted, as God's sun and rain, to the unthankful and unjust and wicked, as well as to the Saints and holy ones (we know the Devils Science acquired by natural means, is great beyond any mans, and could not be so, unless either those natural means were able to carry him as far as common illuminations do others, or else the illuminations afforded one be also communicated to the other.) The chief differences are 1. In the use of their knowledge: The one useth it to the benefit of himself and others; the other useth it not at all to his own advantage, but abuseth it to the destruction of others. 2*dly*, The one through humility, and many other vertues, is kept from assuming knowledge where he hath none, or of boasting it where he hath, and so is preserved from many errors and foul misadventures, which the arrogance of another betrays him to; but still these differences and others arise from the qualifications of the recipient, not from the degrees of the illuminations. If illuminations of themselves were competent to purge the heart, and prepare them for that holiness without which no man shall see the Lord, it might then be reasonable to extend God's promise of more grace to the Humble, by way of reward for their humility, to the more illuminated. But the use of illuminations being to fit some men to instruct others (and that being reconcilable with the eternal perishing of the instructers, 1 Cor. 9. 27.) there appears not any reason of extending that promise from sanctifying grace to that which is so distant from it, the increase of light and knowledge being so frequently, what the Apostle affirms in his time, the betraying and ruining of humility, 1 Cor. 8. 2. that it cannot regularly be looked on as the reward of it.

§ 31. It now remains, that in the last place I proceed in few words to demonstrate the great necessity of opposing and rejecting the Enthusiasts pretensions, and adhering to the true doctrine. And that will be done by considering the dangers consequent to those pretensions.

§ 32. First, that of diminishing or increasing the Scripture or Canon of the written word, whensoever the Enthusiast (who by trusting on a broken reed is of all men the most likely to fall often) shall mistake in interpreting any part of it. For the new light, if it be from heaven, being as certain to discover truth, as it is certain that God cannot lie, whatsoever is taught by it must necessarily be as true as that holy Scripture it self; and if it be the interpretation of any particular parcel of Scripture, and yet vary from the true sense of it, it must consequently (to every one that believes it) take out so much of God's word out of the Canon as that parcel did truly contain, and add as much to it also as that false interpretation amounts to: which being as often iterable as there be places of Scripture explicable, or mistakable by the Enthusiast, these substractions and additions may also be infinite, and as many different new Canons of Scripture every year made, as there be, or may be, assuming pretenders to interpretation, and those are infinite also. And this is one competent danger.

§ 33. A second danger is, that by the possessing of mens minds with this opinion of new light, or the Voice of God's Spirit within them, the authority of the whole written Word of God in effect is superseded and evacuated. This we see already to be the fruit of this pretension in many, who calling the Scripture the Letter, and the Voice within them the Spirit, apply to these two that place of 2 Cor. 3. 6. the Letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life; the conclusion from whence is naturally and inevitably this, that the Scripture, when it differs from the Enthusiasts Fancy, is pernicious and mortiferous, and no antidote sufficient against it, but the following the dictates, be they never so corrupt and carnal, (as when they are contrary to God's written word it must be expected they should be) of a mans own heart. And then, as when there was no King in Israel, it was an easie deduction, that every one should do what was right in his own, not in God's, eyes; so it is to be expected that when this Theocracy (God's governing Mens Lives by the written word) is cast off, all villanies and abominations should straight possess those hearts which have betaken themselves to this riotous liberty. And so we find it affirmed of the Gnosticks by S. Peter and S. Jude, (as the general observation of the Apostles) that they scoffed and derided the revealed promises of God, walking after their own ungodly lusts, every man following his own inordinate appetite; and these very men, when they did all this, calling themselves the spiritual, and the knowing, (so πνευματικοὶ signified, and that γνῶσις knowledge, was the interpreting the mysteries in the Scripture after their own Fancy, miscalled the Spirit, directly the New Light which now we speak of.) A consequent whereof it was, that they separated from all the Orthodox Christians, and joyned with the Jewes to persecute them.

§ 34. A third danger, most immediately consequent to this pretension, is the making God opposite and contrary to himself, as he must be, if he be thought to own all the Gleams of New Light that shine in their several hearts that pretend to it; for these are most frequently different, and often contrary the one to the other, (as appears by the multitude of opinions and contrariety of practices which this one fruitful mother of monsters hath brought forth, all equally pretending to the wisdom that cometh from above) and that not only in several men, but in the same men, at several times seeing and unseeing the same things; which how injurious it is to God, who can no more change than lie, need not be here manifested.

§ 35. A fourth danger is confusion among men, continual disturbances of Kingdoms or States; the Governors whereof having no other authority then what is founded on, or agreeable to the word and will of God, it will still be in the power of each pretender to deliver oracles out of his own breast, as immediate dictates of God, quite contrary to the safety and interest of that Government, whatsoever it is, which is at any time any where established. And so the peace of kingdoms must be as uncertain and mutable as the fancies of Men, and the Laws as ambulatory as Testaments while the Testator lives; every illuminate Breast pretending to come, like Moses from God in Sinai, with new Tables of Divine Commandments, which in all reason must supersede the old, be they never so firmly established.

§ 36. The sum of this matter is, that it being evidently consequent to this pretension, that the voice of the Devil may be mistaken for the dictate of the Spirit of God, there is nothing so vile or monstrous, earthy, sensual, devilish, but may pass for Divinely inspired by these means; and if it be regular to worship him as God, whom we own as such, it may by immediate consequence bring in among the Christians the same worship of Devils, which had long possession of the heathen Temples, those being by the worshippers believed and adored as the true God, because they gave Responses out of the Cave, delivered Oracles, &c. unto them.

§ 37. How far the sober attempt and endeavour of interpreting obscure places of Scripture, by the assistance of God's Spirit co-operating with humane means, is removed from all these dangers, I shall not need to shew in more words than these, that what is here offered to the Reader in this ensuing Volume, pretends no otherwise to challenge his belief, then it shall satisfie his understanding, that it probably is what it pretends to be; and then if he receive damage by us in any thing, it is by his own rashness and over-great easiness of belief, which he must endeavour to put off, in exchange for some prudence and diligence of search, before he enter into this temptation.

a * or Covenant.

ANNOTATION.

THE Title of this whole Book [ἡ καινὴ Διαθήκη, the New Teſtament, or Covenant] which is prefix'd in ſome Copies, (in others with this addition (of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt] in others with ſome variation of the form, [Τῆς καινῆς Διαθήκης ἅπαντα, All the Books of the New Covenant]) by whomſoever it was affixed to theſe books or writings following, doth refer to the conſent of the Catholick Church of God, and that Tradition which giveth teſtimony to theſe Books, as thoſe, and thoſe only, which complete and make up the new Canon; And the word Ἅπαντα] ſignifies, as in the Titles of other Authors, ἅπαντα τὰ βιβλία, all the Books or Writings, that have been written, and by God's providence derived to the Church, ſo as by it to be received in canonem, i. e. into the number of thoſe writings, which are unqueſtionably acknowledg'd to be the writings of the Apoſtles and Diſciples of Chriſt; All others as Apocryphal (of dubious and uncertain Authority) being excluded out of this Catalogue. Now for the word [Διαθήκη] here, how it is to be rendred, and what is the peculiar notion of it, is a matter of ſome difficulty. Two things eſpecially it ſignifies in this Book, a Covenant, and a Will, or Teſtament; a Covenant, Mat. 26. 28. Mar. 14. 24. Luke 22. 20. as may appear by the adjunct [καινὴ new,] which notes the oppoſition of this to the Old, and ſo that this is, what the Old was, i. e. not a Teſtament, but a Pact or Covenant; Not a Teſtament (to which Death is ſuppoſed neceſſary, Heb. 9. 16. but could there have no proper place) but a ſtipulation betwixt God, and his people the Jewes, promiſing mercies, and requiring duties of them. And ſo the Hebrew ברית which is rendred by Διαθήκη, ſignifies a Covenant, but never a Teſtament. So again 2 Cor. 3. 6. καινὴ διαθήκη, is oppoſed to παλαιᾶ, v. 14. which Old was written in Tables of Stone, v. 3. and ſo appears to be the Law given to the Jews, and that was clearly a Covenant, not a Will, or Teſtament. So again Jer. 31. 31. (from whence the Writers of the Goſpel, and S. Paul ſeem to have derived the word) there is mention of a New Covenant, καινὴ Διαθήκη; That muſt be a New Covenant, becauſe it is oppoſed to a former, v. 32. which former, being that of God the Father with the Jewes, is a Covenant ſtill, and not a Teſtament, for the reaſon forementioned, and ſo is there deſcribed to be a kind of Marriage Covenant, as between an Husband and Spouſe, not a Teſtament between a Teſtator and Executor. And the truth is clear, that Baptiſm, and the Lord's Supper, being the Sacraments of this καινὴ Διαθήκη, this New Covenant, as Circumciſion was of the παλαιὰ, the old or former, theſe are Fœderal Rites, or Ceremonies, Stipulations, and Promiſes, which again refer to a Covenant, and not to a Will or Teſtament. So Gal. 4. 24. Δύο Διαθῆκαι, I conceive, are two Covenants (though the relation which the Apoſtles diſcourſe there hath to the κληρονόμια inheritance, v. 7. and 30. may ſeem to look toward a Teſtament) for the main drift of that place is, to repreſent to us the Law and the Goſpel, the Law as a Codex of Servile Tasks, the Goſpel of Gracious Promiſes, the latter out-dating the former, but yet ἀντίτυπον, and anſwerable to it: And conſequently the Law being a Covenant, not a Teſtament, ſuch alſo muſt be the notion of the Goſpel in that place, and the very Inheritance it ſelf being part of the Promiſe made to Abraham, is agreeable enough to the word under the notion of a Covenant, and not of a Teſtament, part of the Evangelical Covenant being God's Promiſe in Chriſt to receive us by Adoption as Sons, and (if Sons, then Heirs) to beſtow the inheritance upon us. One place indeed there is in theſe Books, where Διαθήκη infallibly ſignifies a Will or Teſtament, Heb. 9. 16, 17. as appears by the Death of the Teſtator mentioned v. 16. But of thoſe two Verſes it is obſervable, that the notion of [Teſtament] is there taken in way of Accommodation, as a ſecond ſenſe of the word, ſuperadded to the former of a [Covenant] in which it is uſed v. 15, 18, 20. it being ſaid of Chriſt, v. 15. that he is the μεσίτης Mediator, or Sponſor of this καινὴ Διαθήκη new Covenant, not Teſtament, that of Mediator being far from this of a Teſtator. And beſides, that καινὴ Διαθήκη, the New] there, is oppoſite to the [πρώτη, firſt] in the end of the verſe, and ſo muſt be in the notion of a Covenant ſtill, becauſe the πρώτη, firſt] was onely a Covenant, and not a Teſtament, the Author of it there being clearly God the Father,

a. Διαθήκη.

Father, in whom Death, the ratification of Teſtaments, could have no place. This again further appears by what is ſaid of it v. 18, & 19. For there the διαθήκη, which was ſaid to be conſecrated with blood, was the Tables of the Law, the Commandments, v. 19. and will fitly be rendred there [Covenant] not [Teſtament] v. 20. It being the conſtant cuſtom and practice of the Eaſtern Nations to uſe Blood in the ſtriking of any Pact or Covenant, but not in making every Will or Teſtament, and to that the expreſs teſtimony of Exod. 24. 6. which is there cited, doth belong, the ſprinkling of blood being the ceremony following Moſes's rehearſing the Commandments to the people, Exod. 20, & 21, & 22, & 23. as the ſanction of a Covenant. So that although it be evident, that διαθήκη v. 16, 17. does ſignifie Teſtament yet it is as clear, that, as in all the other foremention'd Texts, ſo alſo in the verſes antecedent, and conſequent to theſe, it ſignifies Covenant alſo, and even in theſe not Teſtament, excluſively to Covenant, but Covenant and Teſtament ſuperadded to it; Covenant in the other verſes, and then, by extending the uſe of the word to its full latitude, Covenant and Teſtament both. Upon this conſideration, and in reverence to the uſage of the Latine and Weſtern Churches, who generally have uſed Teſtamentum in this place, (though ſome have uſed Inſtrumentum to contain both, and others Fœdus, Covenant onely) and that by retaining the word Teſtament, I may be ſure alſo to retain that comfortable intimation, viz. that in the Goſpel unſpeakable Gifts are given or delegated to us antecedently to all Conditions required of us, (ſuch are Chriſt's giving himſelf for us, calling us, and giving us ſufficient grace to come unto him.) Upon theſe grounds, I ſay, it is not amiſs to take in both the words in the rendring of this Title, that of Covenant as being moſt agreeable to the uſe of the words in the Sacred Dialect, and moſt agreeable to the nature of the Goſpel, which is, (as all Covenants made with inferiors are Laws) νόμος Χριστοῦ, the Law of Chriſt, νόμος πίστεως, the Law of Faith, a New Law, requiring a condition of Faith and Obedience in us, without which the Goſpel is not the ſavour of life, a Goſpel of mercy to any; and withal that of Teſtament alſo wherein the Chriſtian's Inheritance is ſeal'd to him as to a Son and Heir of God's, and wherein the death of Chriſt as of a Teſtator, (Heb. 9. 16, 17.) is ſet down at large by way of ſtory, and as it is appliable to our benefit.

According to

St. [b] MATTHEW.

ANNOTATIONS.

THE Goſpel] What the word Εὐαγγέλιον in Greek, (which we render Goſpel) ſignifies among Authors, is ordinarily known, viz. from εὖ and ἀγγέλλω, good news or good tidings. Thus the Angel ſpeaks of the Birth of Chriſt, in relation to all that ſhould follow after it, Luke 2. 10. Εὐαγγελίζομαι ὑμῖν χαρὰν μεγάλην, I bring you good tidings of great joy, i. e. very joyful good tidings. Only in this ſacred uſe of it, there ſeems to be a Metonymie, or figure very ordinary, whereby the word that ſignifies good news, is ſet to denote the hiſtory of that good news, the birth and life, and reſurrection of Chriſt, which all put together is that joyful good news or tidings. As for our Engliſh word Goſpel, which the Saxon read Godſpel, that is compounded of God, and ſpel, the word God among the Saxons ſignifying good as well as God, and no difference being diſcernible in the writing of thoſe two words among them, unleſs that when 'tis taken for God it hath an e after it. So in the Treatiſe De veteri Teſtamento Godeyr eall God, ⁊ ælc God cumð of him, God is all good, and all good cometh of him. According to the notion of moſt Nations, the Heathens calling God, Optimus, the beſt, and Chriſt according to the Jewiſh notion telling the young man, that there was none good, ſave God only. As for the other part of it [ſpel] it ſeems to ſignifie [word] among the Saxons, as when bigſpel, Deut. 28. 37. & Pſal. 79. 14. ſignifies a by-word or Proverb, or as it is ſtill uſed in the North by-ſpell. So in the Treatiſe De Vet. Teſt. Among Solomon's writings, an yrpanabole ꝥ yr bigſpel boc, One is Proverbs, i. e. by ſpell book, and again, ꝥredomer bigſpel, by-ſpell of wiſdom. Some remains of the uſe of this word are ſtill among us, as when a charm, carmen, ſwas, indifferently a verſe or a word, one or more lines of Scripture or otherwiſe, either ſpoken or written, and hung about ones neck, on deſign to drive away a diſeaſe (according to the ſuperſtitious belief, and practiſe of our Anceſtors) is ſtill among us called a Spell, from the ancient uſe of it, as in the Poet,

Sunt verba & voces, quibus hunc lenire dolorem
Poſſis—— Words ſignifie Charms. And ſo this word Godſpel, or by euphony, Goſpel, in Wicleifs tranſlation, and ever ſince, notes theſe good tidings delivered, as firſt by an Angel, and after by the Apoſtles by word of mouth, ſo here in writing by way of Hiſtory alſo; and in brief ſignifies that bleſſed ſtory of the birth, life, actions, precepts, and promiſes, death, and reſurrection of Chriſt, which of all other ſtories in the world we Chriſtians ought to look on with moſt joy, as an Εὐαγγέλιον, or good word, i. e. a Goſpel. a.

According to Matthew] Κατὰ Ματθαῖον, is no more than this; That ſtory of Chriſt, which Matthew, one of Chriſt's Diſciples, and Apoſtles, (who had aſſociated himſelf to Chriſt, as a Diſciple of his, ever ſince he began to reveal himſelf, or to preach) compiled, and ſet down. This he is ſaid to have written eight years after the reſurrection of Chriſt, and that in the Hebrew tongue. Τὸ κατὰ Ματθαῖον ἅγιον εὐαγγέλιον ἐφθὲς τοὺς ἐξ Ἰουδαίων ἐξεδόθη ὢν· αὐτὸς ἐν Ἱερουσαλὴμ διὰ γραμμάτων Ἑβραϊκῶν· διὰ τοῦτο γάρ, ὅτε Ἑβραίοις γράφων ἐδίδου πλέον ἐζήτησε δεῖξαι ἢ ὅτι ἀπὸ Ἀβραὰμ καὶ Δαυὶδ ὢν ὁ Χριστὸς· ἐξεδόθη δὲ κατὰ χρόνους ὀκτὼ μετὰ τὴν τοῦ Χριστοῦ ἀνάληψιν, ſaith an ancient MS. The holy Goſpel according to Matthew was ſet down by him for thoſe of the Jews at Jeruſalem in Hebrew, and therefore as writing to the Hebrews, he proceeds no farther in the Genealogy of Chriſt, then that he was from Abraham and David: Now this was ſet out by him eight years after the aſſumption of Chriſt. So another ancient MS. ἐξεδόθη εἰς Ἱερουσαλὴμ φωνῇ Ἑβραΐδι, It was ſet out at, or delivered and ſent to Jeruſalem in the Hebrew Language. And though that which we now have be only in Greek, yet being tranſlated into that Language either by himſelf, or ſome Apoſtolical perſon (that it might be of farther uſe, then only to thoſe of Jeruſalem, the Jews, for whom it was firſt deſigned) and, as ſuch, univerſally without all contradiction or queſtion received into the Canon of the New Teſtament by the whole Primitive Church, it is with the ſame reverence to be received by us, as if it had been firſt written in Greek, or as if we had the Hebrew ſtill remaining to us. b. Κατὰ Ματθαῖον, Having ſaid this of the firſt, it will not be amiſs in this place, by the way, briefly to conſider, Who were the Authors of all the four Goſpels, and What is generally obſervable of each of their Writings. For the firſt it much tends to the advancing the Authority of theſe Books, to conſider, that two of them, the firſt and the laſt, were compiled by two Diſciples, and Apoſtles of Chriſt, who were perpetually preſent with him, and ſaw, and heard all the particular words and actions, which they relate, viz. Matthew and John. And for the other two, Mark and Luke, though they were not ſuch Diſciples, and Apoſtles, immediately retaining to Christ, and continually attending on him, yet they were familiar and constant attendants, the former of Peter, one of these Apostles also, (who wrote his μετὰ χεῖρας i. saith that ancient MS. ten years after the ascension of Christ) the latter of Paul, who being call'd by Christ miraculously from heaven, was at that time by Christ put into a course of coming to an exact knowledge of the truth of this whole matter, (as appears by the story of the Acts) and long after, when he was at Rome, say the Ancients, Luke being by him instructed, wrote this Gospel, which therefore, saith the MS. Ἰταλικῷ χαρακτῆρι ἐπράχθη, hath the Italick Character, or manner of writing discernable in it. To this may be added what the Ecclesiastick Historians say of Mark, that Peter did deliver, and, as it were, dictate this Gospel to him, Ἴσμεν ὅτι τὸ κατὰ Μάρκον Εὐαγγέλιον ἐπραγματεύθη ἐν Ῥώμῃ ὑπὸ Πέτρου, saith an ancient MS. It is to be observed, that the Gospel according to Mark was dictated by Peter at Rome, according to those Verses anciently written on his Gospel.

Πέτρου μυηθεὶς τοῖς ἀπορρήτου λόγοις
Τολμᾷ τὸ θεῖον πλοῦτον εἰς βραχὺν φέρειν,
Ἐν ᾧ τὸ πιστὸν οὐ διαφθορᾶς φύσει,
Ταύτῃ κεκράξας ζωοποιὸν πανσόφως
Ὁ δεύτερον Μάρκος ἐν θεογενέσει.

Mark being instructed by S. Peter's preaching in the doctrine of the examination, or descent of Christ to our humane nature, wherein he was two fold, God-man by nature, set this down accordingly, and now hath the second place in the writings of holy Scripture, i. e. of the New Testament. And of this there be some Characters discernible in the writing it self, as that setting down the story of Peter's denying of Christ, with the same enumeration of circumstances, and aggravations of the fault, that Matthew doth, when he comes to mention his repentance, and tears consequent to it, he doth it (as became the true Penitent) more coldly than Matthew had done, only ἔκλαυσε he wept, whereas Matthew hath ἔκλαυσεν πικρῶς, he wept bitterly. And for Luke, his profession is, that he had made diligent enquiry, c. 1. 3. and received his advertisements not only from S. Paul, but also from those who were both eye-witnesses of what he writes, and ὑπηρέται officers, instruments imployed by Christ in the particulars of the story, and therefore is as creditable a witness as their authority, from whom he had his instructions, can render him.

That which is generally observable of these four writings is this, that the three first of them write the whole story from the Birth of Christ till after his Resurrection, but two of them more largely, Matthew and Luke, the third (Mark) more succinctly, setting down the series of the actions rather than the sermons, and passages delivered by him. And again, though none of them agree throughout in observing the Order and Succession of the actions by them related (see Note on Mar. 5. a.) yet two of them do agree in it one with the other, much more constantly, than the third with either of them, viz. Matthew an Apostle, and eye-witness, and Mark, from Peter, who was such also, but the third, Luke, which wrote his story out of collections, which he had from others, and compiled it himself, hath not so exactly observed the order, wherein the things were done, but only set down the things themselves; and when, beside that of the order, he hath sometimes varied from the others in some words, or circumstances (as, when others say 'twas a Maid that spake to Peter, and occasioned his second denying of Christ, Mat. 26. 71. Mar. 14. 69. he reads ἕτερος in the masculine, Luke 22. 57. and some other the like) these are generally so inconsiderable, and of so no importance to the main matters of Faith, the doctrines of the Gospel, that they are rather arguments to demonstrate that these writings were not contrived by any compact, or agreement of one with the other, but each of them apart, without consulting, or knowing, what the other had done, which is a circumstance that was necessary to make their testimonies several, and so to give them the greater authority from the number of them. As for the fourth, John, his writing seems to have been designed to these two ends. 1. To demonstrate, and declare the Divinity of Christ (ὑπηρέτης ἦν τοῦ λόγου ἀναμφιλόγως ἐκ θεότητος Χριστὸν ἀνδρὸς, saith an ancient MS. copy, he describes the first and glorious age, or generation of Christ with the Father) as the other three had set down his Humanity, and cleared the matter of his Conception, and Birth, of the Virgin. And 2*dly*, To add out of his own knowledge some remarkable things (especially those which most tended to the former design) which had been omitted by the other three, to which purpose he saw it necessary to set down the story of Christ's Passion, and Resurrection, as the rest had done, that so he might affix those other circumstances, which he design'd to add unto them. This is all that I think necessary to premise in this place of this matter.

St MATTHEW.

CHAP. I.

Paraphraſe.

THE book of the [a] generation of Jeſus Chriſt, the ſon of [b] David, the ſon of Abraham,]

1. An Hiſtory of what concern'd, or narration of the paſſages of the birth, life, death and reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, who according to the Prophecies foregoing of the Meſſias, ſprang from the line of David and Abraham, to both whom he was particularly promiſed. a. b.

2 Abraham begat Iſaac, and Iſaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat Judas and his brethren.

3 And Judas begat Pharez and Zara of Thamar, and Pharez begat Eſrom, and Eſrom begat Aram,

4. And Aram begat Aminidab, and Aminidab begat Naaſſon, and Naaſſon begat Salmon,

5. And Salmon begat Booz of [c] Rachab and Booz begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jeſſe, c.

6. And Jeſſe begat David the King, and David the King begat Solomon [of her that had been the wife of Urias.]

6 Of her that had been defiled by David while ſhe was the wife of Uriah, but was now after Uriah's death taken to be David's wife, and of her in that Matrimony Solomon was born.

7. And Solomon begat Roboam, and Roboam begat Abia, and Abia begat Aſa,

8. And Aſa begat Joſaphat, and Joſaphat begat Joram, [and Joram begat Ozias.]

8. And Jehoram begat Ahaziah, Ahaziah begat Joas, Joas begat Amaziah, Amaziah begat Ozias, called alſo Azarias. See 1 Chron. 3. 11.

9. And Ozias begat Joatham, and Joatham begat Achas, and Achas begat Ezekias,

10. And Ezekias begat Manaſſes, and Manaſſes begat Amon, and Amon begat Joſias,

11. And Joſias begat Jechonias and his brethren, [* about the time they were carried away into Babylon,]

11. Immediately before the time (ſee note on Mark 2. b.) that Jechoniah king of Judah, Jer. 24. 1. and the Jews with him, were, at divers times, carried Captive by the king of Babylon to his country.

* Near upon the tranſportation, or removal to Babylon, ἐπὶ τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος.

12. And after they were brought to Babylon] Jechonias [d] begat Salathiel, and Salathiel begat Zorobabel.

12. And after the time of their being carried or removed thither. d.

13. And Zorobabel begat Abiud, and Abiud begat Eliakim, and Eliakim begat [e] Azor, e.

14. And Azor begat Sadoc, and Sadoc begat Achim, and Achim begat Eliud,

15. And Eliud begat Eleazar, and Eleazar begat Matthan, and Matthan begat Jacob,

16. And Jacob begat Joſeph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jeſus, who is called Chriſt.

17. So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen Generations, and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations, and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Chriſt, are fourteen generations.]

17. So that the Genealogy here ſet down (not by enumeration of all the ſeverals which ſucceeded one another from Abraham to Chriſt, ſee v. 8. but) in that manner as is ſufficient to deduce his Pedigree from Abraham, and David, may, for memory ſake, be divided into three Fourteens, one of thoſe from Abraham to David, before they were kings; a ſecond from David to the captivity, whilſt they enjoyed the Regal power intire; the third from the Captivity to Chriſt, when there were only ſome weak remainders of the Regal power among the Jews.

18. Now the birth of Jeſus Chriſt was on this wiſe: [* When as his mother Mary was eſpouſed to Joſeph, (before they [f] came together) ſhe was found with child of the Holy Ghoſt.

18. His mother Mary had been betrothed to Joſeph, but was not yet married to him, and in this ſpace he diſcerned her to be with child, but knew not by whom it was, it being indeed conceived in her by a wonderful miraculous manner, by the operation of the holy Spirit of God. f.

* For Mary his mother having been betrothed to Joſeph, μνηστευθεισης, &c. before they came together, ſhe was found to be with child from or by the holy Ghoſt, ἐν γαστρὶ ἐχ. † righteous. ‡ by dream. κατ' ὄναρ. * to take Mary to wife, παραλαβεῖν Μαριὰμ τὴν γυναῖκα σου (ſee note f.)

19. Then her husband Joſeph being [g] a juſt man, and not willing [h] to make her a publick example, was minded [i] to put her away privily.]

19. Then her husband Joſeph being a merciful pious man, and not willing to expoſe or ſubject her to that publick and ſhameful puniſhment, which belonged among the Jews to thoſe women, whom the husbands when they firſt came in to them, found not to be virgins, was willing ſecretly to diſmiſs her, that being not known to be betrothed to him, ſhe might only be liable to the puniſhment of fornication, viz. infamy, not death. g. h. i.

20 But while he thought on theſe things, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeared unto him † in a dream, ſaying, Joſeph, thou ſon of David, fear not * to take unto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is conceived of her [is in the Holy Ghoſt.]

20. Proceeds from the powerful work of the Holy Ghoſt over-ſhadowing her, Luke 1. 35. and omnipotently working in her this Conception.

21. And ſhe ſhall bring forth a ſon, and [thou ſhalt call his name Jeſus, for he ſhall ſave his people from their ſins.]

21. Whether by thee, (as here) or by Mary, Luke 1. 31. or by both together, (by the common right of Parents) his name ſhall be called Jeſus, i. e. Saviour, the title of leaders or generals, and governours among the Jews, Obad. 21. to denote his ſpiritual kingdom, and conduct of all that believe and obey him, againſt their ghoſtly enemies, ſin, &c.

22. (Now all this was done [k] that it might be fulfilled, which was ſpoken of the Lord by the Prophet, ſaying,]

22. And hereby that prophecy, Iſa. 7. 14. had a notable completion, when the prophet ſaid to Ahaz. k.

23. Behold a Virgin ſhall be with child, and ſhall bring forth a ſon, [and [l] * they ſhall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted, is God with us.)]

23. And as there the child in the prophet was called Emmanuel, to ſignifie the preſence and protection of God to Ahaz, ſo ſhall the birth of this child be the coming of God among us.) l.

* or, thou ſhalt, for the ancient Gr. and Lat. MS. reads καλέσεις. † when he was riſen, διεγερθεὶς, * took her to him to wife, ſee verſ. 20. † or ſhe, for ἐκάλεσεν bears either, ſee note l.

24. Then Joſeph † being raiſed from ſleep, did as the Angel of the Lord had bidden him, and * took unto him his wife.

25. And knew her not, till ſhe had brought forth her firſt-born ſon, and † he called his name Jeſus.]

25. And ſhe brought forth this Jeſus, her firſt-born (and in all probability, her only) ſon, (the word [till] being of no force to the contrary, as may appear, 1 Sam. 15. 35.) without ever being known by her husband, either before or after the conception of him, (and, as 'tis piouſly believ'd, though not affirm'd in Scripture, remained a Virgin all her life after) and on the eighth day, the day of circumcition, and of impoſition of names, his name was called Jeſus by the appointment of his parents, according to the Angels direction.

Annotations on CHAP. I.

a. γένεσις The word γένεσις doth not here ſignifie peculiarly or preciſely the birth of Chriſt, for that is expreſs'd by another word differing ſomewhat from this, v. 18. ἡ γέννησις, from γεννάω to beget (ſo uſed v. 2. and ſo on in every verſe after) whereas γένεσις is from γίνεσθαι, which ſignifies in a wider ſenſe, not only to be born, but alſo to be done, or come to paſs. It is here anſwerable to the Hebrew תולדה, which though it come from ילד ſignifying to beget, (and ſo often ſignifies that peculiarly) yet the Verb ſignifying alſo any inanimate production, any event, that time brings forth (as Prov. 27. 1.) thou knoweſt not what a day ילד will bring forth, and Eccleſ. 4. 14. and even in his kingdom נולד רש he is made, or becometh poor, (not as we render it, he that is born in his Kingdom, and Job 11. 12. and man יולד ſhall become a wild Aſſes Colt) proportionably the Noun תולדה ſignifies event, accident, any thing that is done, or come to paſs, and ſo likewiſe any ſuch event, or paſſage ſet down or related, the hiſtory or relation of it. So Gen. 2. 4. Theſe are the תולדות the things that come to paſs, the ſtory, relation of the heavens and the earth, &c. i. e. not only the Creation of them, but other paſſages following it. So Gen. 5. 1. the Book of the תולדות βίβλος γενέσεως, the the Book of the ſtory of Adam, his Creation, and following life, as here βίβλος γενέσεως of the birth and life of the ſecond Adam. So Gen. 37. 2. Theſe are the תולדות the ſtory of Jacob, where 'tis clear, that his own birth or the procreation of his children is not the peculiar matter in hand at that time, that being paſt, c. 35. and Eſau's genealogy ſet after it, c. 36. but v. 1. his dwelling in Canaan, v. 2, 3. his love to Joſeph, and the paſſages conſequent to that. And accordingly Aben Ezra there obſerves, that the word noteth any event, any thing that befel Jacob; and ſo ſaith that excellent P. Fagius, Non ſtatuit hic texere genealogiam ſtirpis Jacob, ſed potiùs miſerabiles caſus, & eventa, quæ ipſi acciderunt; He meant not to ſet down Jacob's Genealogy, but the ſad events that befel him. So Numb. 3. 1. Theſe are the תולדות, the ſtory of the paſſages of Aaron and Moſes, &c. and ſo here not only the birth of Chriſt (for that is but a very ſmall part of this Book) nor yet only the genealogy of Chriſt; for though that here follow immediately, yet makes it not up any conſiderable part of this whole book, but the book of the ſtory of the birth, life, death, and reſurrection of Chriſt; of all the events that belong to that matter recorded by that Evangeliſt, as Πράξεις Ἀποστόλων is all that befel the Apoſtles after.

b. Ἀβραὰμ The reaſon of the ſpecial mention of David and Abraham here, without any between, is the ſpecial Promiſes which had been made to thoſe two; to the one of continuing the Kingdom to his Poſterity; to the other of a numerous ſeed.

c. Ῥαχάβ That Rahab was the wife of Salmon and mother of Booz, is not ſet down in the Old Teſtament, nor mention'd in the genealogy in St. Luke, but recited by this Evangeliſt either out of the Cabala or Tradition, or elſe from ſome other written Authors of ſufficient credit among the Jews; as the names of Jannes and Jambres, 2 Tim. 3. 8. appear to have been, and ſome others, which ſhall be noted in their place.

d. Ἰωσείας Of Jechoniah 'tis pronounced, Write this man childleſs, Jer. 22. 30. which ſeems to infer, that Salathiel was not his ſon, but his heir only. And thus hath the learned Grotius ſet it, Luke 3. 23. that Joſias begat Jechoniah, i. e. Jehoiakim, Jehoiakim another Jechonias that died childleſs, Zedekias (his Uncle) ſucceeding him, and Aſſir ſucceeding Zedekias, and then Salathiel the ſon of Neri was Aſſir's Heir, and ſo is here ſaid to be begotten by Jechoniah. For that of leaving one heir or ſucceſſor, is a kind of civil begetting, and which the Hebrew ילד will bear, as God is ſaid to have begotten ſons, whom he hath only adopted. And therefore when Jer. 22. 28. there is mention of Jechoniah's ſeed caſt into a land, &c. i. e. carried captive with him, and 1 Chron. 3. 17. when in his Genealogy we read, the ſons of Jechoniah, Aſſir, and Salathiel his ſon, this may be the meaning of it, that theſe were his heirs or ſucceſſors. Although others interpret it otherwiſe, either that his children ſhould be cut off, or at leaſt that none of his ſeed ſhould ſit upon the throne of David, which is there render'd as the reaſon of Jeremy's ſpeech, For no man of his ſeed ſhall proſper, v. 30.

e. Ἀβιοὺδ In a very ancient Hebrew copy of this Goſpel, this verſe is ſomewhat varied, thus, And Eliakim begat Abner, and Abner begat Azor, &c. by which interpoſition of Abner, the fourteen generations are compleated, in which otherwiſe there will ſeem to be defect, Salathiel probably being the firſt of this third fourteen, and not Jechoniah, (as Solomon was the firſt of the ſecond, and not David) from whom to Chriſt there will then be but thirteen, if Abner be not thus added to ſupply. Another way there is of making up the fourteens, by putting in Jachim, v. 11. (as Rob. Steph. finds and ſets down in his Var. Lect.) Ἰωσίας ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰακείμ, Ἰακείμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰεχονίαν, Joſias begat Jachim, and Jachim begat Jechoniah; and to this the Genealogy agrees, 1 Chron. 3. 15. and if this be taken, then Jechoniah muſt be firſt of the laſt fourteen, ſo that ἀπὸ τῆς v. 17. ſhall ſignify from the beginning of, or from the [ἐπὶ τῆς] v. 11. from that time, about or before the tranſportation: Of theſe and other the like Queſtions both in the Genealogy here and in St. Luke, and eſpecially for the according and reconciling them with one another, I ſhall purpoſely abſtain to ſpeak more largely, both becauſe, altho' they have great difficulties in them, yet the profit conſequent to the reſolving of them is not proportionably great, and eſpecially becauſe this is a ſubject wherein very many learned men have already taken very excellent pains, (to whom I refer the Reader) eſpecially the moſt excellent Hugo Grotius, in his Annotations on the Goſpels.

f. Συνελθεῖν What is meant here by the [συνελθεῖν, or coming together] of Joſeph and Mary, may be beſt determin'd by conſideration of ſeveral paſſages of the Context, all which ſeem to fix it on his actual marrying of her, which is called συνδυασμὸς, conjunction of two together, and ἀνδρὸς καὶ γυναικὸς συνάφεια, the joining of man and woman, and συγκλήρωσις τῶν βίων παντὸς, a joining of all that belongs to them, their whole eſtate, &c. and not relate to the conjunction of bed, as the ſound of the word might import. For firſt it ſeems to be that which was next in order of time to betrothing, (μνηστευθείσης, πρὶν ἢ συνελθεῖν having been betrothed before they came together.) This of her being with child, falling out in that ſpace, which was betwixt the betrothing and συνελθεῖν. Now after betrothing, marriage was the next, and therefore betrothing is called by Iſidore, primæ nuptiæ, the firſt marriage; and by St. Baſil ἀρχὴ τοῦ γάμου, the beginnings of marriage, being (according to the definition of μνηστεία) μνήμη καὶ ἐπαγγελία τῶν μελλόντων γάμων, a wooing and promiſe of the future marriage (in the notion of μνημὴ from μνάομαι, ambio, procor, to woo) and that marriage was to intervene, before the uſe of the bed was imaginable. And betwixt betrothing and marriage there was wont to be a ſet ſpace, Deut. 20. 7. in which that which is here related, might well fall out, her being or appearing to be with Child. Secondly, that which is meant by [παραλαβεῖν Μαριὰμ τὴν γυναῖκά σου, taking to thee Mary to wife] v. 20. ſeems to be the importance of συνελθεῖν for thus the ſtory lies, ſhe is with child between the betrothing, and the [συνελθεῖν] thereupon he is afraid, παραλαβεῖν, to take her to him, till the Angel appears and diſpels that fear. Now παραλαβεῖν, to take to him, eſpecially as 'tis here παραλαβεῖν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, to take her to him to wife, v. 20. & 24. ſignifies to marry, and is relative to δοῦναι to give, which belongs to the father of the ſpouſe, Tob. 7. 11, 13. (after the example of God in Paradiſe, Gen. 2. 22.) becauſe he delivers her into the Bridegrooms hand, who was therefore called Petitor, (deſpondet puellam qui petit, ſpondet petitoris Pater, ſaith Donatus in Andr. Terent.) the ſuiter, and ſo λαβὼν τὸ γῆμας, he that takes her, in Strabo, is uſed for the husband, and ſo [to take a wife] ſignifies Deut. 20.

20. [7.] and simply to take, Tob. 7. 12. Take her and lead her away to her Father; This, upon the Angels warning, he presently doth, being only betrothed before, and though he be called ἀνὴρ, her husband, v. 19. yet that implies no more, than betrothing a wife, Deut. 20. 7. and so 'tis here used immediately after mention of the betrothing, v. 18. One other possible notion there is of the [συνελθεῖν] his taking her into family with him; so in the Gospel for the Sunday after Christmas it is rendred [before they came to dwell together] this is νομίζεσθαι εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, among the Greeks, to bring home the bride, which being joined so closely with marriage, (*Tob.*7.12.) Ducere uxorem (which denotes that) doth among the Latines, signify marriage also. As for that of the bed, not so much as a thought of that is meddled with, yea or no, till the order of things require it, i. e. till after the marriage compleated; and then under the phrase, so usual in Scripture, of knowing, 'tis denied, *v.*25. He knew her not, &c.

g. Δικαιοσ. The word δικαιοσ. answerable to the Hebrew צדיק, signifies ordinarily works of mercy, charity; of which when Maimonides sets down seven sorts or degrees, the seventh is distinctly צדקה righteousness: so Deut. 24. 13. צדקה both according to the context, and the Septuagint's rendring, is ἐλεημοσύνη, mercy. So when the † Akiba, c. 4. † Rabbines say, there are two thrones, one of judgment, לדין, the other of mercy, לצדקה, the latter is so stiled by the Author to the Hebrews, c. 4. 16. the throne of mercy: so *Ps.*112.9. He hath given to the poor, and his righteousness, &c. that is, his bounty to the poor, precedent. So Prov. 11. 18. where He that soweth righteousness] appears to signify the merciful, who soweth, i.e. scattereth, v. 24. and disperseth abroad his alms, and, as the sower, receives this back again with the greatest usury: τῇ ὄψει σκορπίζει, τῇ δ' ἀληθείᾳ συνάγει, saith St. Chrysostome, he seems to scatter, but really he gathers together, ὥσπερ ὁ σπείρων τῇ γῇ δανείζει, as the sower lends his seed to the earth upon interest, and accordingly there it follows, to him shall be a sure reward. So *Isa.*58.7,8. & *Mat.*6. 1. where we now read ἐλεημοσωλω, 'tis apparent, (by the vulgar reading Justitiam) that δικαιοσώλω was an ancient reading, and that for alms in that place. Thus even in Heathen Authors. As when Jarchas, the Indian, and chief of the Brachmans in * Philostratus, doth scoff at Apollonius Tyanæus, and the Grecians, that they apply the word δικαιοσώη righteousness, to any who do not wrong others, when (saith he) among the chief offices of righteousness, and importances of that word, χρηστότης and ἀγαθότης, goodness and bounty are to be reckoned, and φιλανθρωπία, humanity. Proportionably to these acceptions of the word, the righteousness of Joseph here shall signify not legal justice, but peculiarly goodness and clemency, of which this was an eminent expression in Joseph, which here follows.

* De vit. Apod. l. 3. c. 7.

h. Παραδειγματίσαι The Greek παραδειγματίσαι signifies literally to defame or disgrace, to publicate or shew openly, as an example or spectacle, and by consequence (in Polybius, and other good Authors) to inflict the punishment of death on any, because those that are so punished, do as Christ saith John 12.32. (tho' accommodating it to a diviner sense) draw all men unto them, i. e. attract the eyes of all spectators to behold them, by which phrase he there notes, that he was to die a condemned person, according to that of *Isa.*53.8. (see note on Acts 8. h.) according to this double notion of the word we find the process, *Deut.*22. against a Damosel taken to wife, and suspected by him to be defloured before his coming in to her. For in this case he is first said, to give occasions of speech against her, and to bring an evil-name upon her, i. e. to accuse and publicate her, to make a publick business of it, and that before the Elders of the city in the gate, i.e. the Judges, v.15. saying plainly, *v.*14. I found her not a maid; and if this prove true, she is then to be stoned, *v.*21. Both these together make up the full importance of παραδειγματίσαι here, and so here it must belong to the capital punishment of such a one, who being taken to wife, appears to be no virgin, before the husbands accompanying with her, which sure was Joseph's opinion of Mary at this time, till the Angel had told him otherwise, v. 20.

i. Ἀπολῦσαι. 'Απολῦσαι, To put away.] here must be taken, not as an act of divorce, but so as without taking notice of the betrothing, which being ordinarily performed at home, might be kept from publick knowledge, and so her being with child, needed not bring the punishment of one found by the husband to be no maid (Deut. 22. 21.) upon her, but only that which belonged to the unmarried.

k. Ἵνα It must be here noted once for all, that the particle [ἵνα, that] doth frequently denote the consequent, or event only, and not the end. This is a difference of some weight, and very often worthy, and necessary to be observed. For example, Rom. 5.20. The Law came in betwixt (i. e. between Adam and Christ) ἵνα πλεονάσῃ τὸ παράπτωμα, that sin might encrease, not that that was the end for which the Law was designed to be given, but because this was the consequent or event, of giving the Law, that mens offences being now committed against a promulgate Law, received aggravation thereby. To the same sense is [εἰς τὸ εἶναι] to be taken in many places, as *Rom.*1,20. the invisible power and Godhead is discerned [εἰς τὸ εἶναι αὐτοὺς ἀναπολογήτους] not [that they may be] as if that were the designed end, but [so that they are] (by way of effect or consequent) become without excuse. And so here in this place, if it denoted the end, then the sense of it would be, that all those actions of God, and dispositions of infinite mercy in the birth of Christ, &c. were all designed by God to this end, that what was by one of his Prophets foretold, might be fulfilled; whereas indeed the great end designed by God in these actions, was the benefit and salvation of mankind, and so this is the principal effect wrought by it. But because by the way, a prophecy was fulfilled, which being delivered upon another occasion, had yet covertly foretold this glorious work of mercy, therefore 'tis also consequent to this (though not the aim and design, unless very remote and secundary) that this prophecy was fulfilled, and this is all that is meant by the phrase [Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken, &c.] i.e. by the doing of all this, (not yet to recite those grand signs, and many gracious effects of it, after to be declared) it fell out, that an ancient prophecy was eminently fulfilled; and this indeed in a high improved sense, over and above that other vulgar sense, which belonged to those words, when they were delivered to Ahaz by God, and wherein they had then been performed to him (viz. as a sign, that within the space of time, wherein a virgin might marry and conceive, and bring forth, and the child come to the age of distinguishing good and evil, Isa. 7. 14,15,16. that is, within very few years; Rezin and Pekah his two great enemies should be brought low.) This observation of the importance of [ἵνα] will often be made use of in the ensuing Paraphrase, without farther troubling the Reader with the account of the reason of it, having here once done it. This the Grammarians have expressed by [ἵνα] ἀιτιολικὸν, and ἐκβατικὸν, [That] causal and [That] consequential, the latter many times best rendred by [so that] though here the precedent words permit it not: See note on c.4. 14. d.

L Emmanuel These words in Isaiah had there a literal sense (whether really to be then performed, or only in vision, it is not certain) which is thus to be interpreted, that the child given for a sign to Ahaz, was to have this name imposed upon him, Emmanuel, which signifies God with us; not that that child then born in Isaiah's time should be God, but (as *Gen.*22.14. the place where God provided the Ram instead of Isaac, is called Jehovah jireh, God will see or provide, which concludes not that the place was God, or that the place should see, but only that that was to be a memorative of God's seeing and providing; so here) that the imposition of this name upon the child should signify (as a sign given Ahaz to that purpose) that God would afford him his peculiar presence and assistance against his enemies. And so all is plain in the place of Isaiah (as for the accommodation καλέσει. of it to this of the birth of Christ, see note k.) Only it must be added, that if [καλέσουσι] be the right reading of the place, then there is a scheme of the sacred dialect discernible in it, whereby [they shall call is but a phrase, for [he shall be called] as, Thou fool, this night shall they require thy soul, i.e. thy soul shall be required; and as of making friends of mammon, 'tis added, that when ye fail, they may receive you, i.e. that you may be received into everlasting habitations. And accordingly, v. 21. for καλέσεις thou shalt call, spoken to Joseph, some Copies have, καλέσουσι, they shall call, i.e. he shall be called. But the ancient Copy which Beza sent to the University of Cambridge, reads [καλέσεις thou shalt call] in both places, and so in Isaiah, from whence this place is taken, it is certainly [thou shalt call] whereupon, though our Bibles read, a virgin shall conceive, and shall call, yet in the margent 'twas thought necessary to set it, thou, O Virgin, shalt call. And so in the Epistle appointed by the Church for the Annunciation of Mary, 'tis rendred, And thou his mother shalt call. And in the Gospel for the Sunday after Christmas, the 25 v. of this Chap. which stands ambiguously in the Greek, is there determined to the mother, [till she had brought forth her first begotten son, and called his name Jesus.]

Paraphrase.

CHAP. II.

1. The birth of Christ, and the circumstances belonging to that, being set down in the former Chapter, here now succeed in this, some passages pertaining to his childhood, and the first passage is, That after some time, not immediately after his birth, but whilst Mary and her Son remained yet at Bethleem, certainly after the time of Maries Purification at Jerusalem (mentioned by St. Luke) and return to Bethleem again, the Chaldeans or Arabian Astronomers came to Jerusalem.

1 NOW when Jesus was born in Bethleem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold there came * a wise men from the east to Jerusalem,] a.

* Learned Men or Magi, μάγοι.

2. When we were in our country we saw a strange extraordinary star rise in the heavens, which we never saw before, and discerning that it signified the birth of the Messias of the Jews, (and of all other true sons of Abraham) foretold by Jewish Prophets that he should be born (and that all kings should worship him, Ps. 72.11.) we are come to bring presents to him, and worship him, and therefore we desire to be informed, where is the place of his birth, and where is he.

† The king of the Jews which is born, ὁ τεχθεὶς βασιλεὺς, &c.

2. Saying, [Where is † he that is born b king of the Jews? for we have seen his c star in the east, and are come to worship him.] b. c. d.

3. When Herod the king had heard these things he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

4. And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where * Christ should be born.]

* the Christ is, or, must be born, ὁ Χριστὸς γεννᾶται.

4. And calling the Rulers of the Sanhedrin (see note on Mat. 5.22. a.) he proposed this question to them, What place do your Books assign for the birth of your expected Messias? see note on Acts 15. c.

5. Prophet Micah, c. 5, 2.

5. And they said unto him, in Bethleem of Judea, for thus it is written by the [Prophet.]

† The territory of Judah.

6. And thou Bethleem, which art part of the portion of land assigned to the tribe of Judah in the division, known by the name of Ephrata for its affinity to Ephrath, Gen. 35. 16. though thou wert in precinct and worldly account one of the least cities of Judah, yet art thou not now by any means the vilest, but the most honourable; for from thee shall proceed, or, in thee shall be born a Ruler, who shall govern my people Israel.

6. And thou Bethleem † in the e land of Judah, art f not the least among the g princes of Judah, for out of thee shall come a Governour that shall Rule my People Israel.] e. f. g.

* Learnt from them exactly.

7. Then Herod when he had privily called the wise men h, * enquired of them diligently what time the star appeared. h.

8. And he sent them to Bethleem, and said, Go, and search diligently for the young child, and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

* Had seen ἐθεώρουν. † led them along, προῆγεν αὐτούς.

9. Moved before them in the heavens as a guide to lead them to the place where the child was, and when it came to the point of the Heavens, which was just over the House, it stood still.

9. When they had heard the king, they departed, and lo the star which they * saw in the east [† went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.]

10. And discerning that the star which they had not seen so long, appeared again to them, in an horizon so far distant from that, where they first saw it, and that it conducted them, and at last stood still, and pointed out the house to them, they rejoyced very exceedingly.

10. When they saw the star, they rejoyced with exceeding great joy.

11. Gold as an acknowledgment of a king: which also fell out opportunely, to fit the parents for the charge of their journey into Egypt, v. 13.

11. And when they were come into the House, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and worshipped him, and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts, [i gold] and frankincense, and myrrh. i.

* By dream, κατ' ὄναρ.

12. They went home a nearer and more private way (not that way which they came, through Jerusalem, which was about) and so were out of Herod's reach before he miss'd them.

12. And being warned of God * in a Dream, that they should not return to Herod, [they departed into their own country another way.]

13. And when they were departed, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a Dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there, until I bring thee word, for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

14. And upon the Angels warning, after the departure of the Magi, or Astronomers,

14. And when he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt.] immediately he took the child and his mother in the night time, and went a private way into Egypt.

15. And so that speech of Hos. 11.1. which had one

15. And was there until the death of Herod, [that it might be fulfilled that was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.] accomplishment in the people of Israel's being carried into, and fetcht out of Egypt, was now again fulfilled in this true promised seed of Abraham, i. in Christ (of whom Israel, called God's first born, was a Type) and in him, now that he was a Child, as it was said in Hosea.

16. According to the time of Christs birth, or according to the age which he had by conference with the Magi, calculated Christ to be of, viz. not two years old.

* learned, ἠκρίβωσε, see Note h.

16. Then Herod when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men was exceeding wrath, and sent forth and slew all the children that were in Bethleem, and all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, [according to the time which he had * diligently enquired of the wise men.]

17. Then had that prophecy of Jeremy, c. 31. 15. eminent completion.

17. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet,] saying, (which was deliver'd first to express the captivity of Babylon, and slaughter of Jerusalem) another more

18. In Ramah there was a voice heard, lamentation and weeping, and great mourning, k Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not. k.

19 But.

19. But when Herod was dead, behold an Angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joſeph in Egypt.

20. Saying, Ariſe, and take the young child, and his mother, and go into the land of Iſrael, for they are dead which ſought the young child's life.

21. And he aroſe and took the young child, and his mother, and came into the land of Iſrael.

22. But when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judah, in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither, notwithſtanding being warned of God in a dream, he [turned aſide into the parts of Galilee:]

22. Went into Galilee, where another of Herod's ſons, Herodes Antipas that contended with Archelaus for the whole kingdom, had ſeated himſelf, having gotten that from him. He probably would not be inquiſitive or jealous againſt any, that ſhould be likely to dethrone Archelaus, and ſo there was not from him any apprehenſion of danger. Beſides he was not ſuch a Tyrant as Archelaus had diſcovered himſelf to be.

23. And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth, [that it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the prophets, He ſhall be called a [1] Nazarene.]

1. 23. And ſo by reſiding and dwelling in Nazareth, he was made capable of that title which is uſed of the Meſſias in the Prophets, that he ſhould be Natſer, the branch of the root of Jeſſe, (or, as the word may bear, a Saviour) ſo often promiſed to that people.

Annotations on Chap. II.

a. Μάγοι.

V.1. Wiſe men.] The Greek μάγοι ſignifies not only thoſe which in our ordinary dialect we call Magicians, i.e. Sorcerers, but alſo φιλόσοφοι, θεολόγοι, in Heſychius, generally learned men, Students and Profeſſors of liberal ſciences, eſpecially of Aſtronomy without any ill character upon them. Theſe were then famous among the * Perſians, and were both their Kings and their Prieſts, and ſo among other Nations alſo, but eſpecially the Eaſtern, and were at that time honoured and known for the ſtudy of good learning, and ſo the [ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν, of, or from the Eaſt] is perhaps to be joined with μάγοι the wiſe, or learned men of, or from the Eaſt, (as οἱ ἀπὸ Θεσσαλονίκης Ἰουδαῖοι, the Jews of, or from Theſſalonica, Acts 17.13.) not to the word [came] as if they came from the eaſt of Jeruſalem thither. Theſe are by an antient Commentator on Plato, mentioned under the name of * Chaldeans, thoſe ſo much famed for skill in Aſtronomy. Now the time of their coming to Bethleem when it was, is not diſtinctly known, but may be concluded not to be the twelfth day from his birth, not only by the diſtance of Bethleem from their homes, but eſpecially by one circumſtance which is recorded. 'Tis here ſaid, that immediately after theſe wiſe mens departure, the Angel appeared to Joſeph, v. 13. and diſpatched them into Egypt, which could not be before the time of Mary's Purification, for then ſaith St. Luke, they went up to Jeruſalem, Luke 2.22. which cannot be ſuppoſed to be after their going into Egypt, nor betwixt the departure of the Magi, and their going thither, for that had been to throw themſelves into Herod's hands at Jeruſalem, which they were commanded to avoid, by going into Egypt. From Jeruſalem it ſeems they returned to Bethleem, and there dwelt in an hired houſe, till after the cõming and departure of the Magi, and therefore the tradition which makes the Epiphany, the twelfth day from the day of the Nativity, may mean it of that time twelve month (according to which it is, that upon exact enquiring the time of the ſtars appearing, Herod, v, 16. appoints the killing of all children from two years old and under, which probably he would not have done, if they had told him that the ſtar appeared but few days ſince.) Or elſe ſecondly, the word ἐπιφάνεια ſignifying appearance, may denote the time of the firſt appearing of the ſtar to them in their countries, v.2. differing from that other appearance, v.9. and that might well come to be exactly known by the Church, from the intelligence that was given by the Magi, v.7. and that might be the very twelfth day after Chriſt's Nativity. But then thirdly, the Greek ἐπιφάνεια is the word to ſignify Chriſt's appearance in the world, the Nativity, which is among the Ancients, commonly ſo ſtiled, ἐπιφάνεια, and ἀναφάνεια, the appearing ſimply, or the appearing of God; and the feaſt of the Nativity being celebrated twelve days, of which the firſt and the laſt, according to the cuſtom of the Jews in their feaſts were high, or chief days of ſolemnity, each of theſe might fitly be called ἐπιφάνεια, Epiphany, in that ſenſe, and not only referring to the ſtar, tho' not excluding but containing it alſo, as a ſpecial circumſtance belonging to the Nativity.

* Μάγοι παρὰ Πέρσαις οἱ φιλόσοφοι, καὶ φιλόθεοι, ὧν ἦρχε Ζαραάστης. Phavorin.

* See note c

V.2. King of the Jews] Whether the Angel of God had appeared to thoſe Magi, and told them that ſuch a perſon was born, who was, or, ſhould be king of the Jews (and that in an extraordinary manner, the Meſſias whom that Nation did, according to Prophecies, fully expect about this time) is utterly uncertain, being neither here, nor any where elſe diſtinctly affirmed. Yet ſome way of revelation may probably be conjectured, or ſuppoſed, by their calling him the King of the Jews, which they could not read in the ſtar, unleſs either the Prophecy of Balaam, or ſome other of Daniel, &c. had directed them thus to apprehend, or unleſs the Angel had appeared to them, as he did to the Shepherds, Luke 2.11. ſaying, There is born to you this day a Saviour, which is the anointed Lord (i.e. Prince, or, King here) in the City of David, i.e. (in another phraſe, the ſame with this here) the King of the Jews, with an emphaſis on [the] The expected King, or, Meſſias. Theſe Magi then having ſome way apprehended and believed thus much already, that this ſo honourable perſon, the deſire of all Nations, the expectation of the very Gentiles, was born, came to Jeruſalem, and enquired for him, ποῦ ἐστι; where is this King, which is born?

b. ὁ τεχθεὶς βασιλεὺς Ἰουδ.

Ib. His ſtar] His ſtar ſignifies an extraordinary ſtar appearing in the heaven, obſerved by thoſe Magi in the field to differ from the ordinary ſtars of Heaven, and ſome way interpreted to them to be the Index or finger to point out this miraculous Birth, the δαδοῦχος to light him into the world. Concerning this it is obſervable which we find in Chalcidius in his Comment upon Plato's Timæus, who relating ſome portentous ſignificancies of ſtars, adds, *Eſt quoque alia venerabilior & ſanctior hiſtoria, quæ perhibet ortu ſtellæ cujuſdam inſolitæ non morbos, * moreſque prænunciatos, ſed deſcenſum Dei venerabilis ad humanæ ſervationis rerúmque mortalium gratiam, quam à Chaldeis obſervatam fuiſſe teſtantur, qui Deum nuper natum muneribus venerati ſunt. There is alſo a more venerable and ſacred hiſtory*, (the Goſpel, no doubt) which mentions the riſing of one extraordinary Star, by which was foretold, not the diſeaſes and (tempers, or) * manners of men but the deſcent of a venerable God (or of a God who is to be reverenced) in favour to the preſervation of men (or ſalvation, as it ſeems he collected out of the word σωτῆρος in St. Luke 2.7.) and the benefit of mortals here below, which ſtar they teſtify (the Goſpel again) to have been obſerved by the Chaldeans, (the Magi, v. 1.) who came to this God which was newly born, and worſhipped and preſented him.

c. Ἀστὴρ αὐτοῦ.

* perhaps deaths.

Ib. In the Eaſt] Theſe obſervers, learned in Aſtronomy, and curious in their daily beholding the riſing and ſetting of the ſtars, ſaw at this time a Star riſe, which they had never ſeen before, and were amazed at it, as at a new prodigious ſight, which did certainly preſage ſomething of great conſideration. This riſing of the ſtar may poſſibly be ſignified by ἀνατολὴ here, and [ἐν ἀνατολῇ] be rendered not [in the Eaſt] either here, or v.9. but [at the riſing of it] or [when it aroſe] and that it ſhould be ſo rendered, may be gueſſed by the

the ortu ſtellæ, &c. in Chalcidius, out of the ſanctior hiſtoria, i.e. out of this Goſpel, and 'tis obſervable to this purpoſe, that among the Greek Aſtronomers, the riſing of ſtars is called ἀνατολαὶ and ἔῤῥολαὶ, (as ἀνατολαὶ ἡλίου, the riſing of the Sun, Apoc. 7.2.) and the ſetting of them δύσεις, but the Eaſt is commonly expreſs'd in the plural number ἀνατολαὶ, as 'tis here diſtinctly v.1. and the Weſt δυσμαὶ, and ſo they are uſed, Mat. 8.11. they ſhall come ἀπ' ἀνατολῶν καὶ δυσμῶν, and ſo Luke 13.29. and Mat. 24.27. All this put together would make that of [ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, at the riſing of the ſtar] both here and v. 9. a probable rendring, but becauſe ἀνατολὴ in the ſingular doth once ſignify the Eaſt, Rev. 21. 13. and becauſe the 9th verſe ſeems to ſet down the ſeveral places of the Stars appearance, now juſt vertical to the houſe where Chriſt was, as before, ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, which ſeems to denote the place, where they firſt ſaw it, and whence they came, it may therefore be rendred [in the Eaſt] in both places.

e. Γῇ Ζαβουλών

V.6. In the Land] The word γῆ is the nominative caſe, and here ſignifies that portion (i. e. a part of it) which belonged to the Regal tribe, (as c. 4. 15. γῆ Ζαβουλὼν καὶ γῆ Νεφθαλείμ, is the portion of Zabulon and Nephthalim) and though it were a town or city, yet it is capable enough of that appellation, as the city of the Sodomites, and of thoſe of Gomorrha, is called by the ſame word γῆ Σοδόμων, &c. c.10.15. and is vulgarly rendred the land, clearly the city of Sodom.

f. Ὀλαμῶς ἐλαχίστη

Ib. Not the leaſt] Some doubt hath been of the agreement of this phraſe [ὀλαμῶς ἐλαχίστη εἶ, thou art by no means the leaſt] with the Hebrew, Micah 5.2. צָעִיר which the Septuagint render ἐλαχιστὸς εἶ, and the Vulgar, Parvulus es, Thou art little. But Mr. Edward Pocock, a great Maſter of the Oriental Languages, hath evidenced out of many learned Grammarians, that this word צָעִיר, little, ſignifies alſo the quite contrary, and is uſed for Primaria, Judex, Princeps, Magiſtratus, all great ones, So Jer. 48.4. Rabbi Tanchum renders צְעִירֶיהָ his Princes and Governours; and ſo the Chaldee Paraphraſt there, סלטנהא his Sultans or Rulers: ſo Eben Jannahium, a learned Grammarian, affirms of צָעִיר that it is one of the words that ſignify contraries, and cities, Zach. 13.7. where הַצְּעִירִים, ſaith he, ſignifies Nobles and Princes. And ſo the Author of the Hebrew-Arabick Gloſſary ſets סוּלטָאן, Sultan, Ruler, or Prince, for one of the ſignifications of צָעִיר, and ſo in that place of Zachary, the Septuagint render it ποιμένας Paſtors, and the Syriack עלנא Superiors, and the Arabick Paſtors or Rulers. Many words of that ſort, which have ſuch contrary ſignifications, Mr. P. hath collected, to confirm this interpretation.

g. Ἡγεμόνες

Ib. Princes] Inſtead of the Hebr. word in Mic. 5.2. rendred [the thouſands] the Evangeliſt hath here ſet ἡγεμόνες Rulers: The meaning of it will not be diſcerned, but by remembring a cuſtom of the Jews, among whom the people was diſtributed by chiliads or thouſands, ſo many in a town or city, not that that number was ſo to continue, and not to exceed, but (as we ſee in our hundreds or wapentakes, which as by the original of the view of Frank-pledge appears, was firſt an Hundred families preciſely, but ſince hath much varied) only in relation to the firſt diſtribution. Hence it is that ſuch a diviſion, or town, or city, is in the Old Teſtament phraſe called a chiliad or thouſand, as in Micah it is, and Jud. 6.15. where the ordinary tranſlation reads [My family is poor in Manaſſeh] but the Hebrew rendred in the Margin is [my thouſand is the meaneſt, &c.) Of every ſuch Diviſion there was ſome Lord or Chief, under whom the whole Multitude were, as under a Patriarch, or head of a Family, and ſuch was Gideon, Judg. 6. 15. when he ſaith [my thouſand] and as it is ordinary for a King in any nation in Authors, to ſignify not only the perſon of the King, but the whole people under him alſo; ſo here the ἡγεμόνες Rulers, in the Evangeliſt are the very ſame with the thouſands in the Prophets, and each of them ſignify the towns or cities of Judah, ſuch as Bethleem was, which is here ſpoken of, as the place where the Meſſias was to be born, according to that in Micah aforeſaid. Unto which alſo agrees that known Oracle, that ex Judæa profecti rerum potirentur, Rulers ſhould come out of Judea, which is mentioned both by Tacitus and Suetonius (and by them falſly applied to Veſpatian) and alſo by Cicero in l. 2. De Divinat. by Virgil. in Ecl. 4. by Suidas in Αυγῦστος. Whereas the [rerum potiri] is the direct rendring of the Hebrew מֹשֵׁל in Micah, and ποιμαίνειν here (in the ſenſe wherein not only Homer calls Agamemnon, ποιμένα λαῶν, and Xenophon alſo defines, πανταπάσιν ἔργα δεῖ νομέως ἀγαθοῦ, καὶ βασιλέως ἀγαθοῦ, the two offices of a Paſtor and a King are near, and anſwerable one to another; but wherein Ezekiel alſo deſcribes the Regal power, by that of Shepherds, c. 34.23,27,24.) ſo the [ex Judea profecti] is the very literal rendring of the ἐκ σοῦ ἐξελεύσεται] here.

h. Ἀκριβῶω

V.7. Enquired of them diligently] Ἀκριβολογοῦμαι is to enquire diligently, ἀκριβῶς ἐξετάζειν, v.8. but ἀκριβόω, with an accuſative of the thing, as ἀκριβῶ τέχνην, or ἀκριβῶ χρόνον here ſignifies to learn exactly by enquiry, ἀκριβῶς ἐπίσταμαι, to know exactly, ſaith Phavorinus, and ἀκρίβεια, ἡ ἀκριβὴς κατάληψις, the accurate knowledge of anything ſaith Heſychius.

i. Χρυσὸς, λίβανον, σμύρνα

V. 11. Gold, &c.] Among the Gifts that Abraham gave to the ſons of Chetura, there were (ſay the Traditions of the Jews) Gold, Frankincenſe and Myrrh, which he had received from the Kings of Sodom and Gomorrha, as Epiphanius cites it out of them in the Expoſit. of the Cathol. Faith, and therefore (ſaith he) their poſterity in Magodia, a region of Arabia, preſented the ſame gifts to Chriſt at his Nativity.

k. Ῥαχὴλ κλαίουσα

V. 18. Rachel weeping] That which is here cited out of Jer. 31. 15. was there a prophetick and figurative ſpeech ſpoken of the captivity of Babylon, and the ſlaughter at Hieruſalem (a city of the tribe of Benjamin the ſon of Rachel) long after Rachel's death, who therefore did not really weep, but is ſet to expreſs a lamentable ſlaughter, and ſo alſo it hath here a ſecond completion in this killing of the Infants in Bethleem; the People of the Jews being by an ordinary Synecdoche capable of the title of Benjamin, becauſe in the breach of the Kingdom, the two tribes of Judah and Benjamin make up that people, and therefore Rachel, Benjamin's mother, is alſo here figuratively brought in, lamenting this ſlaughter as of her children, and that the more properly becauſe ſhe was buried in Bethleem, Gen. 35. 19.

l. Ναζωραῖος

V.23. A Nazarene] That he ſhould be called a Nazarene, as that ſignifies an Inhabitant of (or one that ſprang from) the city of Nazareth, is no where found to be affirmed in the Prophets of the Old Teſtament. That which is here obſervable, is, 1. That there is an Hebraiſm ordinarily to be diſcerned in the word [κληθήσεται, he ſhall be called] The Hebrew word דבר ſignifies promiſcuouſly a word and a thing, and is rendred, ῥῆμα, or λόγος word, when it denotes a matter or thing. So Exod. 8.12. צַל דבר, τοῦ λόγου βατράχων, about the word, i.e. the buſineſs of the Frogs. So 1 Kings 14.19. the reſt of the acts of Jeroboam, are in the Hebrew ויתר דברי τοῦ λοιποῦ ῥῆμα, and v. 29. λοιπὰ λόγων, the reſt of the words, So Tob. 1.1. βίβλος λόγων, the book of the words, i. e. a Commentary or ſtory of the actions. And ſo 1 Kings 11.41. So Luke 2.15. ῥῆμα τοῦτο γεγονὸς, this word, i.e. thing, which is done. So Acts 8.21. Mark 1.45. Luke 1.37. By the ſame analogy and proportion the two words καλεῖσθαι and εἶναι [to be called] and [to be] are all one, (as names and perſons, Acts 1.15. and Luke 6.22. Rev. 3. 4. & 11.13.) So Iſa. 56.7. & Mark 11.17. My houſe ſhall be called, i.e. ſhall be to all people an houſe of prayer. i.e. there ſhall be a Court or Atrium in it for the Gentiles, as well as for the Jews; and ſo St. Luke reads it οἶκος εὐχῆς ἔσται, it is an houſe of prayer. So Iſa. 9. 6. his name ſhall be called wonderful, i. e. he ſhall be a wonderful perſon, ſo Luke 1.32. he ſhall be called, i. e. he ſhall be the Son of the higheſt, and v. 36. καλουμένη στείρα, ſhe that is called, i.e. that is barren, and Apoc. 19.13. his name is called, i.e. he is the word of God, and Mat. 5.19. he ſhall be called, i.e. he ſhall really be the leaſt, &c. So Gen. 21.12. In Iſaac ſhall thy Seed be called, i. e. the ſeed to which the bleſſing belongs ſhall be from Iſaac. And accordingly here here [he ſhall be called] is no more than [he ſhall be.] Secondly, it muſt be obſerved, that the Evangeliſt accommodates unto this matter (of his dwelling in Nazareth) a title by the Prophet oft applied to the Meſſias, that of נצר ſurculus, a branch, and ſo (by that Hebraiſm) the meaning of theſe words [κληθήσεται Ναζωραῖος, he ſhall be called a Nazarean] will be no more than this [He ſhall be that Netſer in the Prophets] paraphraſed in the Targum by משיחא Meſſiah, but by the Greek rendred ἄνθος, a flower, *Iſa.*11.1. perhaps by a miſtake of נצר for נץ flos, leaving out the ר, or elſe in a wider acception of ἄνθος, for any branch or plant. From whence, no queſtion, it is that Phavorinus ſpeaking of this word Ναζωραῖος, beſides the ordinary accepta-tions of it, adds ἢ καλά τινας ἄνθος, ſome uſe the word for a flower, referring to the Greek rendring of נצר in Iſaiah, but applying it to Ναζωραῖος in the Evangeliſt, which no doubt ſignifies that learned Grammarian's opinion, that נצר and Ναζωραῖος are all one. But beſide this acception of the word for a branch or plant, it may alſo be obſerved that the radix נצר ſignifying ſervavit, and God being called by a name coming from that radix, Job 7.20. *Prov.*24.12. it may alſo poſſibly intimate the title of Saviour, which is ſo often given him in the Prophets, and which is the importance of נוצר and the Arabick Nazir a defender or protector, according to which 'tis clear that Iſa. 60. where the Hebrew reads נצר a branch, and the Targum נצבא a plant, the Greek reads φυλάσων keeper, taking it for נצר without points. But the former notation of the word, as it refers to the branch of the root of Jeſſe, is that which is to be preferred in this place, and the meaning of the [ἵνα πληρωθῇ] that by his dwelling in Nazareth he came to be ſtiled הנצרי or Nazaren, i. e. that true branch, of which the Prophets, *Iſa.*11.1. Jer. 23.5. & 33.14. *Zach.*6.12. and 3.8. *Iſa.*4.2. had ſo often ſpoken. This I conceive to be the trueſt notion of the word Ναζωραῖος, both becauſe the Jews call Chriſt הנצרי with צ, from the Hebrew נצר with צ, and becauſe this only can be ſaid to have been foretold διὰ τῶν Προφητῶν, by the Prophets. Others indeed think it not improbable that it ſhould refer to the word נזר with ז, which ſignifies ſeparavit. For thus alſo the Greek ζ in Ναζωραῖος and Ναζαρηνὸς (which are indifferently uſed in the Goſpels) would bear; and to this purpoſe it is obſerved, that when Gen. 49. 26. & Deut. 33.16. Joſeph is called נזיר אחיו one ſeparated from his brethren, the Latin reads Nazoræus fratrum ſuorum: and it may be conſidered to this purpoſe, how fitly Joſeph was a type of Chriſt, as he is repreſented to us in this chapter. As Joſeph was by his brethren ſold into Egypt, ſo is Chriſt by the perſecution of Herod driven thither. As Joſeph was ſeparated from his brethren, and caſt out from among them, ſo was Chriſt for fear of Archelaus ſeparated from his own tribe of Judah, and conſtrained to dwell in Nazareth of Galilee, whoſe name may denote that flight or ſeparation: and laſtly, as נזור in *Zach.*7.3. is uſed for an afflicted humbled perſon, one ſeparate from the comforts of Life, his daily bread, ſo is this appliable to Chriſt's being brought up in Nazareth, a vile place (Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?) & ſo a ſpecial part of Chriſt's humiliation to live there. This other account of the word I cannot farther commend to the reader; yet thought it not amiſs to mention it, as it is. The former of the [Branch] is moſt commodious and ſatisfactory; All the difficulty is, how this dwelling in Nazareth ſhould be ſaid to be deſigned to the fulfilling of that prophecy, which refers not at all to his dwelling there. In anſwer to which it is firſt to be remembred (what was ſaid on c. 1. note k.) that the word [ἵνα that] is here ἐκβατικὸν not αἰτιολογικὸν, and notes no more than this, that by this paſſage of ſtory, thoſe paſſages of the Prophets received a completion; and ſecondly, that Prophecies are ſometimes ſaid to be compleated or fulfilled, when ſtrictly and properly, (or in the primitive ſenſe of the words of the Prophet) they are not fulfilled, but only in a large acception of them, ſo as by way of accommodation they may be appliable to what is come to paſs, or that the thing done may reflect or refer to ſuch words in the Prophets, or bring them to the minds of men. Thus doth the Author to the Hebrews from the interpretation of Salem, of which Melchiſedek (the Type of Chriſt) was King, conclude Chriſt to be the prince of peace, *Iſa.*9. And then why may not the Evangeliſt here from his dwelling in Nazareth (and ſo being capable of the title הנצרי) conclude as properly that the appellation נצר that Iſaiah foretold of him, did now appear to belong to him (though not in that ſenſe in which it was firſt affirmed of him, yet) by way of accommodation? which it will do more diſcernably, if it be conſidered, that as Cinnereth in Joſhua (retained by the Hieruſalem Targum, Numb. 34. 15.) was after changed into Genneſareth the valley of branches, (and therefore Chriſt's abode and converſation was ſo much about that lake, by which he ſhewed himſelf to be truly that branch ſo oft propheſied of) ſo in all probability that city in the tribe of Nephthali which is called En Haſor, Joſ. 19. 37. was after contracted and lightly changed into Nazor and Nazareth to ſignify the city of the branch, or where the Meſſiah [the branch] ſhould be brought up, and accordingly this becomes Chriſt's vulgar title, Ναζωραῖος, Mat. 26. 71. *Mar.*10.47. Luke 13.87. 24.19. John 18.5,7. & 19. 19. and ſeven times in the Acts, and Ναζαρηνὸς (in the ſame notion) ſometimes, Mar. 1. 24. 14. 67. 16. 6. & Luke 4.34.

CHAP. III.

Paraphraſe.

1 IN thoſe days came John the a Baptiſt, preaching in the Wilderneſs of Judea,]

1. Now before Chriſt's entring upon the firſt part of his Office, that of preaching the Will of God, called his prophetick Office (in which he continued till his Crucifixion) it was neceſſary to ſet down the Office of John Baptiſt, who proclaimed his coming before-hand as his harbinger or fore-runner, and at whoſe baptizing of Chriſt, the Holy Ghoſt viſibly deſcended on him, and conſecrated him to this prophetick office. And thus it was, while Jeſus continued at Nazareth, though many years after his firſt coming thither, John the Baptiſt preached in the Deſart, called the Deſart of Judea (differing from other Deſarts mentioned in the Scripture, under the Name of Maon, Engaddi, Ziph, the Deſart of Idumea, &c.) by a River-ſide near Enon and Salim. a.

2. And ſaying b Repent ye, for the c kingdom of Heaven is at hand.]

2. Not giving them any new precepts of life, but charging them with their breaches againſt the Rule or Law which they had already, and accordingly ſaying to all that people, Reform and mend your lives, for the kingdom of the Meſſias, ſo long look'd for, is now approaching, and ſo the time that God ſhall come to execute moſt viſible Judgments on this Land (even to an utter Deſtruction, if ye repent not at this preaching of John and Chriſt) and withal beſtow moſt eminent and remarkable preſervations upon all penitent Believers. b. c.

3. For this is he that was ſpoken of by the Prophet Eſaias, ſaying, the voice of one crying in the wilderneſs, Prepare ye the word of the Lord, make his paths ſtraight.]

3. And this according to that which Iſaiah, c. 40. ſaith, He ſhall preach in the wilderneſs of Judea, and the ſum of his preaching ſhall be, The approach of the Lord's coming to receive his kingdom, and upon his being rejected, coming with his hoſts againſt the obdurate and rebellious, to deſtroy them that would not let him reign over them. See Note c.

4. And the ſame John [had his d raiment of camels hair, and a leathern girdle about his loyns, and his meat was locuſts, and * e wild honey.

4. Wore a rough Garment, made of Camel's hair (ſuch as Elias had, 2 Kings 1.8. and was thence called an hairy man) or of ſackcloth, Rev. 11. 3. agreeable to his being in the Wilderneſs, and nothing to gird it to him, but (as Elias again) a piece of Leather made of ſome beaſts skin, and he eat nothing but either either a larger ſort of Graſhoppers called locuſts, Rev. 11.22. (or elſe, as ſome think, green herbs) and field Honey, i.e. neither bread nor Wine, Mat. 11. 18. Luke 7.33. but only ſuch as the wilderneſs, or as the wood brought forth.

5. Then went out to him Jeruſalem and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan.

5,6. And upon this fearful denouncing of his againſt the Jews, a great multitude of Jews of all parts went out to him, and confeſſed their ſins, which might juſtly bring down theſe judgments on them, each acknowledging his own particular guilts, and promiſing reformation. And he received them by Baptiſm, or immerſion in the waters of Jordan, promiſing them pardon, upon the ſincerity of their Converſion, and amendment, or reformation of their Lives.

6. And were baptized of him in Jordan, confeſſing their ſins]

7. But when he ſaw many of the Phariſees and Sadducees come to his Baptiſm, he ſaid unto them, [O generation of Vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?]

7. O ye, that are more like to broods of venemous creatures, than the progeny of Abraham, who hath admoniſhed you to make uſe of this means to eſcape this deſtruction approaching?

8. Bring forth therefore * fruits meet for Repentance.]

8. See that your reformation be ſincere, producing fruits worthy of the ſtock from which you glory to ſpring, (i.e. of Abraham, v.9. who is your Father indeed, but from whom you are ſo far degenerated, that you are become broods of vipers, v.7.) or abſolutely (as Acts 26.20.) meet, fit, ſeaſonable fruits, ſuch as may avert or prevent thoſe Judgments.

* Worthy, or meet fruits of repentance, καρπὸς ἀξίος τῆς μετανοίας.

9. And † f think not to ſay within your ſelves, We have Abraham to our father; for I ſay unto you, that God is able of theſe ſtones to raiſe up Children unto Abraham.]

f. 9. And ſay not, or do not pleaſe & ſatisfy your ſelves in ſaying or thinking, that you have the priviledge of being children of Abraham, which will be able to ſecure you; for God hath not ſuch need of children of Abraham, that he may not deſtroy them; he can, without breach of promiſe to him, deſtroy them all, and then out of the obdurate Gentile world (or, if he pleaſe, out of the ſtones in the ſtreets) produce and raiſe up a people to himſelf, followers of the faith of Abraham, and ſo as precious to God, and to whom the promiſes made to Abraham as truly belong, as to the proudeſt Jew among you.

10. * And now alſo the axe is laid to the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down, and caſt into the fire.]

10. But now are God's judgments come home to this people, and ready to ſeize upon the whole Nation, and ſhall actually fall upon every unreformed Sinner among you. See note on Acts 15.c. (In this how every ſort of people is concerned, ſee Luke 3. 10, &c.)

* But the axe is even already, ἤδη δὲ καὶ ἡ ἀξίνη

11. I indeed g baptize you with water unto Repentance, but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whoſe ſhoes I am not worthy to *h bear, he ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt, and with fire.]

g. h. 11. But this is not all I have to ſay to you; beſide this warning you to repent, I am alſo ſent to tell you, that the Meſſias is now at hand, ready to enter on his Office. And indeed all that I do is to preach repentance, and to receive proſelytes after the Jewiſh manner, with water, the only Ceremony that I uſe; but Chriſt, who, though he comes after me, is much ſuperiour to me, and whoſe diſciple or ſervant I am not worthy to be (he being that great Prophet foretold by Moſes, that all muſt hear under pain of utter exciſion, and accordingly reforming and heightning Moſes's Law, which I have not meddled with, ſave to call you to repent of the breach of it) he ſhall come in greater pomp, ſhall firſt ſend the Holy Ghoſt to come down viſibly on ſome of you his choſen Diſciples, who ſhall believe in him, and to whom he ſhall intruſt all power in his Church after him, thereby not only to aſſure them of the truth of his Doctrine, but alſo to conſecrate them to his ſervice (ſee note on Acts 1. 2.) to preach his Doctrine to the whole World, (but firſt to all the Cities of Jury.) And this ſhall be another manner of initiating of Diſciples, mine with water, but his with fire, which will purge thoſe things which water will not, and this fire perhaps an Emblem of ſomething elſe; for immediately after that, by that time they have preached thorough all the Cities of Jury he ſhall alſo come down with fire, or flaming judgments, on the obdurate unbelievers, v. 12. (ſee Acts 2, 17, 19, &c.) and at the end of the World, reward every man according to his Works.

* remove, or carry

12. Whoſe * i fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather the wheat into his Garner, but will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire.]

i. 12. He comes like an huſbandman to threſh and winnow with ſuch inſtruments in his hands which will ſever the wheat from the chaff, the good from the bad; the good he will preſerve, but the refuſe he will deliver up to the wind and fire, to be utterly deſtroyed.

13. Then cometh Jeſus] from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him.]

13. While John was thus a preaching and baptizing, and had gathered good ſtore of Diſciples, Jeſus cometh.

14. But John forbad him,] ſaying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comeſt thou to me?

14. And John beſought him it might be otherwiſe.

15. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto him, Suffer it to be ſo now, for thus it becometh us [to fulfil all righteouſneſs. Then he ſuffered him.]

15. To do all thoſe things which are by God required of all under this ſtate of John's Miniſtry (ſee note on Rom. 1.6.) and by ſo doing, i.e. by my receiving baptiſm from thee, God hath determined to inaugurate me to my office of preaching the Goſpel, by ſending down his Spirit upon me at that time, and giving me Teſtimony from Heaven; upon this John permitted him, and baptized him, and accordingly it came to paſs.

16. And Jeſus, when he was baptized, went up ſtraightway out of the water, and lo the heavens were opened unto him, and he ſaw the Spirit of God deſcending * k like a dove, and lighting upon him.]

k. 16. For Jeſus, as ſoon as he was baptized, went out of the water before John, and as ſoon as ever he came out of the water, he fell down on his knees, in Prayer to his Father, Luke 3. 21. and whilſt he was praying, behold the Heavens (ſee Acts 7.56.) either really, or after ſome remarkable manner of appearance, parted aſunder viſibly before Chriſt, and the Spirit of God deſcended upon him, as a Dove deſcends upon any thing, viſibly hovering, and lighting upon him, (ſo Mark 1.10.) and John Baptiſt ſaw and diſcerned what was done, John 1.32.

* as it were

17. And lo, a voice from Heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved ſon, in whom I am well pleaſed.]

l. 17. And as the Heavens parted aſunder, a thunder came out, and (joined with it) a voice delivering theſe words, This is, &c. This is my ſon whom I have ſent on purpoſe to reveal my will by him, and whatſoever he teaches comes from me, and is perfectly my will or law.

Annotations on Chap. III.

a. Baptiſm

V. 1. The Baptiſt] That we may underſtand the meaning of the title Baptiſt, we muſt firſt know what was meant by the waſhings among the Jews. Their frequent every day waſhings I now ſpeak not of, but refer them to their proper place, Mark 7. 3. Thoſe which we now ſpeak of were thoſe of the whole body, of which ſort were firſt the Waſhings of the Prieſts, when they went into the Temple to miniſter or officiate, for that they never did after the building of the Temple, but they firſt waſhed their whole body. At the going into the Tabernacle, waſhing the hands and feet was ſufficient, Exod. 30. 20. but not ſo after the building of the Temple, ſee *Cod. Joma, c.*3. They bring the Prieſt to the houſe of waſhing, לבית הטבילה, which was without the Temple over the water-gate. There, (as it follows, Sect. 3.) the Prieſt waſhes, and though he be under no legal uncleanneſs, yet he never enters, but he waſhes firſt, (and Sect. 4.) he puts off his cloaths and goes down, and waſhes. The waſhing of his hands and feet, which was oft repeated (ten times in a day, Sect. 3.) was done in the Temple, over the houſe of Happarvah, as 'tis there called; but this firſt waſhing of the whole Body, was conſtantly uſed before the entrance into the Temple (four times more in the Temple on the day of Expiation) for it was not lawful to come in thither without waſhing firſt, an imitation of which are the waſhings and luſtrations among the Gentiles. A ſecond cond ſort was the waſhing of the Proſelytes, who were to be received into the Church or Temple of the Jews, and ſo to be waſhed at their entrance, as the Prieſts at their going into the Temple. Thoſe Proſelites I mean, which being not born of Jewiſh but Heathen Parents, became Proſelites of Juſtice, i. e. received the Jewiſh Religion, and ſubmitted to their whole Law, were circumciſed, &c. Theſe men were admitted by the Jews, not only by Circumciſion, and (while the Temple ſtood) by Sacrifice, but alſo with this ceremony or ſolemnity of Waſhing, i. e. ablution of the whole body, done ſolemnly in a river, or other ſuch great place or receptacle of waters; ſo ſaith the Talmud of Jethro, Moſes father-in-law, בהגיור במילה ובמבילה במים He was made a Proſelyte by circumciſion, and immerſion in water, Tr Repudii: and the manner of this Immerſion is ſaid to be, that they ſhould ſit in water up to the neck, and in the while learn ſome of the precepts of the Law, both hard and eaſy. This ceremony of their initiation was never upon any occaſion re iterated, ſay the Jewiſh writers (ſee note on Joh. 13. 6.) and belonged not only to thoſe which being of years came over from Heatheniſm to the Jews Religion, but alſo to their children-infants, if their parents, and the conſeſſus under which they were, did in behalf of their children deſire it, and on condition, that the children when they came to age ſhould not renounce the Jews Religion. Nay, the native Jews themſelves were thus baptized; ſo ſaith the Talmud, Tr Repud. ישראל לא באו לברית אלא בשלשה דברים במילה ובטבילה ובהרצויות הקרבן אף הגרים כיוצא בהם The Iſraelites do not enter into Covenant but by theſe three things, Circumciſion, and Baptiſm, and Peace-offering, and the Proſelytes likewiſe. Now theſe that were thus initiated, did put off all their former relations, not only their former worſhips and manners, but their relations of kindred, &c. & came forth, as if they had been new born, of a new mother, as the Talmud oft expreſſes it. So that he which was kin to him before, ſhall from thenceforth ceaſe to be ſo, i.e. to be ſo accounted by him. To which I ſuppoſe our Saviour refers, when he ſpeaks of leaving father, and mother, and wife, and children, &c. Mar. 10. 29. Luke. 18. 29. and when he talks of being born again of water, &c. To this no queſtion belongs that of Tacitus Hiſt. l. 5. ſpeaking of thoſe that went over to the Jews Religion, nec quicquam priùs imbuuntur, quàm conteminere Deos, exuere patriam, parentes, liberos, fratres vilia habere, they are taught by their firſt admiſſion to deſpiſe, i. e. to forſake their fathers and mothers, children and brethren, &c. And the Jews have a ſaying, That he that hath married a wife too near of kin to him, if he turn Proſelyte to the Jews, and receive their Baptiſm, he is no longer near of kin to the woman, and ſo may now lawfully live with her. Of this cuſtom of baptizing Proſelytes among the Jews, we have a clear teſtimony in Arrian the Stoick Philoſopher in his Epictetus, l. 2. c. 9. where the proſelyte Jew is by him ſtiled βεβαμμένος, dipt or baptized, and he that is not really converted to their Religion, but only λόγῳ in word, or outward profeſſion and ſhew, is by him called παραβαπτιστὴς, a counterfeit baptized perſon. Having ſaid thus much of the cuſtom among the Jews, 'tis now moſt eaſy to apply it to the practice of John, and after of Chriſt, who certainly took this ceremony from them. Hence was John's baptiſm, as theirs, in a River, in Jordan, Mar. 1. 5. in a confluence of much waters, as in Ænon, Joh. 3. 23. becauſe, as it is added, there was much water there, and therefore as the Jews writing in Greek call thoſe Lakes wherein they waſh themſelves κολυμβήθρας, ſo in the Chriſtian Church the βαπτιστήριον, or veſſel which contained the baptiſmal water, is oft called κολυμβήθρα a ſwimming, or diving place, with ſome reference alſo to that ὑπὸ τῇ περιστερᾷ, Joh. 5. 2. where the cures were wrought on them that went down into it. The other parts of the parallel will eaſily apply themſelves; all that is proper to this place is only this, that John preaching repentance to the Jews in the deſart, received all that came unto him as new Proſelytes, forſaking their old relations, i.e. their ſins, and in token of their reſolved change put them into the water, dipped them all over, and ſo took them out again, and upon the ſincerity of their change promiſed them remiſſion of their ſins, and told them of the Meſſias, which was ſuddenly to appear among them, and warned them to believe on him.

V. 2. Repent ye] This μετάνοια is not only ſorrow for ſin, or wiſhing it undone, but a change of mind, μετάθεσις τοῦ νοῦ, converſion, Mal. 4. 6. and reformation, μετάνοια ἀπὸ πονηρῶν ἔργων, Heb. 6. 1. Repentance not only for, but from dead or ſinful works. Both very neceſſary. b. Μετάνοια

Ib. Kingdom of heaven] The phraſe βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν, or τοῦ Θεοῦ, the kingdom of heaven, and of God, ſignifies in the New Teſtament the kingdom of the Meſſias, or that ſtate or condition, which is a moſt lively image of that which we believe to be in heaven, and therefore called by that Name. For as God's regal power exerciſed in Heaven conſiſts in aſſiſting, defending, and rewarding all his faithful Subjects, and in warning, puniſhing, and deſtroying his obdurate enemies, ſo this kingdom of the Meſſias is an exact image or reſemblance of it; and being, as 'tis elſewhere affirmed, not of this world, a ſecular kingdom, but conſiſting eſpecially in ſubduing the world to his dominion. That is done firſt by the deſcent of the Spirit, and preaching the Goſpel, by his word powerfully working in ſome, and bringing them unto the Faith, and then by his iron rod executing vengeance on others, viz. the contumacious and obdurate (to this purpoſe that parable delivered by Chriſt, Luke 19. 12. on occaſion of their thinking that the kingdom of God ſhould preſently appear, v. 11. is very conſiderable: ſee the place) and particularly thoſe of the Nation of the Jews after the crucifixion of Chriſt. And accordingly this kingdom of God will generally ſignify theſe two together, not only the firſt alone, but in conjunction with it, that other more tragical part of it alſo. That 'tis uſed ſo here may be diſcerned, firſt by that which is ſaid in Malachy, by way of Prophecy of John's preaching, c. 4. 5. that he ſhould come before the great and terrible day of the Lord, (ſee note on c. 17. a.) i.e. before the fatal deſtruction of this people, and alſo in Iſaiah, that when he cryed in the wilderneſs, this was part of his crying [Prepare ye the way of the Lord:] noting him an anteambulo, or fore-runner of Chriſt's coming, (which what it ſignifies will be explained, Mat. 24. b.) and again, Every valley ſhall be exalted, and every hill brought low, which though it were literally ſpoken by the Prophet, of the reducing the people from Captivity to their own country (expreſſing it by the former deliverance and paſſage out of Egypt, through uneven craggy ways in the deſart, which yet by God's conduct were made paſſable to them, and they brought at laſt to a Canaan) and myſtically of the removing all obſtacles in our way to felicity and bliſs, yet may farther be applied to this of the Roman Armies coming againſt Jeruſalem, and perhaps be explained by that paſſage in Joſeph. de Bel. Jud. l. 6. c. 12. that the high and low places were made plain for the coming of the Roman Army, and engines againſt Jeruſalem, in like manner as when *Strabo ſaith of the Romans, ἔτρωσαν ἢ κῆ τὰς κατὰ τὴ χώραν ὁδὸς προοδεύσαντες ἐκκοπάς τε λόφων, κῆ ἐγχώσεις κοιλάδων, they plained the ways thro' the region, cutting down the hills, and filling up the hollow places. And ſo the verſes of Sibylla Erythræa (ſet down by †S. Auguſtine and ‖ Proſper) beginning with Judicii ſignum, the ſign of Judgment, and E cælo Rex adveniet, the coming of the king from heaven, and that in carnem, into the fleſh, præſens ut judicet orbem, that being preſent he may judge the world, there follows,

Dejiciet colles, valles extollet ab imo,
Non erit in rebus hominum ſublime vel altum,
Jam æquantur campis montes ———

He ſhall caſt down the hills, and advance the vallies, There ſhall be among men nothing lofty or high, The mountains are now levelled to Campagnia. And then ſoon follows, the deſtruction of the earth or land, i. e. (in the ſacred Dialect) of Judea.

———Tellus confracta peribit,

the axe is laid to the root of the tree, every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down and cast into the fire] and again *v.*7. by the ὀργὴ μέλλουσα [the wrath ready to come upon them] which is proportionable, or parallel to the approaching kingdom of heaven, as the exhortation, v. 8. of bringing forth meet fruits of Repentance, is to μετανοεῖτε, repent, and so directly in that Prophecy of Malachy's concerning the coming and preaching of John Baptist, Mal 4.5,6. the summ of his Preaching is expressed by the effect of it, He shall turn the heart of the fathers to (or, with) the children, and the heart of the children to (or, with) their fathers, i. e. shall convert all sort of Jews, young and old, fathers and children, preach conversion and repentance to them, lest I, (i.e. God) come and smite the earth (or, land) with a curse; whereas God's coming is interpreted by his smiting Judea (curses and inflictions on that land) so is this Denunciation of those Judgments, part of that Baptists sermon, and the repentance or conversion by him preached, the only means to avert them. And so likewise in Is. 40. the revealing the glory of the Lord, &c. *v.*5. may be 1. the preaching of the Gospel, and then the visibleness of God's judgments on all the Jews in Judea, and the 6th, 7th and 8th verses very fitly refer to the sudden destruction of that People as the withering of grass, or fading of flowers upon God's blowing upon them, whereby his displeasure is expressed. To which yet his preservation of the remnant (as here his gathering the wheat into his garner, *v.*12.) his protecting of the few believers (so that not an hair of their heads shall fall, *Luk.*21.18.) is immediately annexed, v. 9,10,11. And accordingly [the kingdom of God] here is not so to be restrained to the punitive part, but that it also contain under it that other piece of Regality, which consists in protecting of subjects, & rewarding them which do well also, which should be most visible at the time of his punishments on the obstinate, his burning the chaff with unquenchable fire. To this purpose the words of St. *Luk.c.*21.v. 18,31. are most remarkable, where setting down distinctly the signs and forerunners of the destruction of the Temple and that People, and among those prognosticks, the great persecutions which the Disciples should find from the Jews, he bids them them cheerfully look up, *v.*28. for their ἀπολύτρωσις redemption, deliverance from these hazards and pressures, draweth near, and, with a short parable interposed to express it, he adds, *v.*31. know that the kingdom of God is at hand, this kingdom surely here, which now approached, but should then be more near, wherein the judgment of God should be most visible in judging betwixt the wheat and the straw, burning up the refuse, destroying the impenitent unbelieving Jews, but protecting and setting safe on the shore all the Disciples and Believers, and that by the very destruction of these their brethren, who were their chiefest Persecutors, *v.*16. This sense will be the more unquestioned, if it be observed, that when Christ himself begins to preach he used the same words, *c.*4. 17. by which it is clear, that Christs Preaching the Gospel was not the only thing meant by this kingdom (as 'tis generally supposed) because that was then actually present, when Christ saith only ἤγγικε, it is nigh approaching.] And if it be said, that ἤγγικε in the preter Tense, expressed by the Latin, appropinquavit, may signify that it hath been near, but now is present; then first I answer, that that Grammatical nicety will not be appliable to many other places of Scripture, where that tense is used. 2. That even the full Grammatical importance of it will be made up by rendring it [it hath for some time been approaching] that Peoples sins long calling for it. 3. Luke 21.13. (which was long after this, and withal a Prediction of a time then future) 'tis then but ἐγγύς ἐστι, the kingdom of God is nigh. And as by Christ, so when the Apostles are sent out by him, the same stile is still prescribed them, *Mat.*10.7. As you go, preach, saying, the kingdom of heaven is at hand. And it is to the same sense affirmed by Christ, that he came to send a sword, ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν, i. e. a slaughter on the land of Judea, *Mat.*10.34. so when this commission of the Apostles is set down by St. Luke 10.11. to those that receive them not, they are appointed to use a direful ceremony, shaking off the dust from their feet against them, and telling them the importance of it, that the kingdom of God is nigh upon them, ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, v. 11. and upon the back of that, *v.*12. Verily I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for Sodom in that day, (i.e not in the day of judgment to come, for that belongs to each particular person, not whole cities together, but) in that day of the Kingdom of God, than for that refractory city. God's dealing with Sodom in the day of their destruction with fire and brimstone, shall be acknowledged to have been more supportable, than his dealing with such contumacious impenitent cities of Judea. So Mat. 16. 28. The Son of man coming in his kingdom] belongs not to the Transfiguration, as 'tis by many mistaken, but to a coming in the glory of his father to reward and punish, *v.*27. (and is called the kingdom of God coming with power, Mark 9. 1.) and that belongs clearly to the scope of the place, viz. to arm his followers that they should not be terrified with the malice of the Jews, *v.*25. or tempted to deny Christ, Luke 9.29. So Luke 19.11. when 'tis said, they thought the kingdom of God should presently appear, Christ's Parable concluding with the bringing forth, and slaying the enemies before him, applies it directly to this purpose, v. 27. and so what he adds, *v.*43. at his entrance into Jerusalem. So Luke 17.20. when he answers that the kingdom of God comes not with observation, i. e. in a Pompous remarkable manner, so as kings are wont to come with their court and train attending; which all men come out to look after, and cry, Lo here, (i.e. it is come, &c. it is clear by the consequents, that it belongs to this matter, 1. the Preaching of the Gospel among them, then already begun, *v.*21. and then the destroying of unbelievers, *v.*22,24, &c. The way by which this Phrase comes thus to signify, is this, because there be several offices of a King, the exercise of the power of the sword, as well as of making Laws, of punishing and rewarding, as well as of reigning, he is ἔκδικος εἰς ὀργὴν, *Rom.*13.4. an avenger to inflict Punishment, and so he is expressed at his ἐκδίκησις, Luke 18.7. speaking of this matter. In this respect it is, that the Governours of the Jews were called Judges; inflicting of Punishments or Judgments (which is one part) giving denomination to the whole Regal office; and so Luke 10. these three Phrases [the kingdom of God] *v.*11. and [that day] i.e. the time of his exercising that Regal Power, v.12. (or as St. Mark reads it ἡμέρα κρίσεως, Mar. 6.11. the day of executing Judgment) and in the same matter [κρίσις, v. 14. judgment simply] are all Phrases of the same significancy to note the destruction here threatned, with which there was also mercy mingled, and Preservation to some. See Luke 17.34. & 21.28. The same thing is expressed by other Phrases, the coming of Christ, the end, the end of all things, the conclusion of this age, &c. which in their due places shall be observed.

Ὀργὴμέλλουσα

V.4. Of Camels hair] This garment of Camels hair used by John the Baptist, seems to be no more than a garment of Hair cloth, made of Hair rude and raw, not of hair softned and dressed, or spun into a Thread. The difference betwixt these two is the same that betwixt flax rude or unprepared, & the same dressed or spun, one having much more of courseness & asperity then the other; or between that which we now call Haircloth, which is made of rude, undressed hair, and chamlet or grogoram, that is made of it, when 'tis softned, and spun, and prepared. That the former is that which is here mention'd, may appear, 1. by the design of it, used by John, as here set down by the Evangelist, to signify the austerity of his habit, as well as that which follows, is of his diet; (and so interpreted by all the Ancients) which it would not be, had it been thus dressed and softned. 2. It is to be considered, that as he was Elias, that was foretold should come, so his habit & his diet, and the wilderness (as well as the matter of his Prophecy, fire from heaven, judgments on the impenitent) were to represent Elias. Now of Elias we read his habit thus described, 2 Kings 1.8. He is an hairy man, and girt with a girdle of leather about his loyns, where the hair being joined with the leathern girdle, or zone may most probably, probably be interpreted (both of them) to the ſame matter of his habit or manner of attire, inquired of, *v.*7. (and ſo 'twill be a compleat deſcription of that, this hair-cloth, and leathern zone being all the cloaths that he had viſible about him, as it was of the Baptiſt here) and not of the form, or manner, or conſtitution of his body, that he was like Eſau, a man with much hair growing upon him, for that alone would have been but a very imperfect deſcription of him, nothing elſe of his body being mentioned, and on the other ſide, only a leathern girdle about his loyns, which as it cannot be applied to the form or faſhion of his body, but muſt neceſſarily denote his attire, ſo it would be a very imperfect deſcription of that, if nothing elſe of that kind were joined with it. 3. This was the mourning habit, Sackcloth and Haircloth (if among them they differ'd at all) differing but little, both of them garments of the greateſt courſneſs and auſterity. And then, as in the Chriſtian Church, from the Jewiſh, he that Excommunicated, or pronounced ſentence of Anathema againſt any, is ſaid to mourn or bewail him, 2*Cor.* 12.12. ſo the Prophets that came to foretel judgments upon a Nation, did put on ſuch mourning habits to denote the ſad errands they came about. That was Elias's errand then, and John Baptiſt's now, of the axe laid to the root of the tree, &c. and thus the two witneſſes in the Rev. c. 11. (that are deſcribed like Elias, v.5. the fire cometh out of their mouth and devoureth their enemies, relating to his calling for fire from heaven: and again, v. 6. they have power to ſhut heaven that it ſhall not rain, as Elias had) are ſaid to propheſy cloathed in ſackcloth, v.3. which Σάκκος ſackcloth, *Rev.*6.12. hath the Epithet of τρίχινος hairy, beſtowed upon it, expreſſing the materials of it to be of hair, which they uſed for their mourning habit. To this clearly refers that of the falſe Prophets, that they wore rough garments to deceive, *Zach.*13. 14. The rough garments, the token of the Prophet, as the deceiving is all one with the falſe. As for their conceit who think John's garment here to have been a skin of a Camel with the hair on, ſuch as the Sheep-skins and goat-skins *Heb.*11. it is ſufficiently confuted by the Evangeliſt, who makes the cloathing and the girdle of different matters, uſing different forms of ſpeech to expreſs them by, which there is no reaſon to think would have been done, if they had been both of the ſame.

c. Μέλι ἄγριον Ib. Wild honey.] The μελὶ ἄγριον, or field-honey, is a kind of extemporary dyet (as water out of the ſpring, ſuch as was to be found in woods, running out of trees where bees were, ſo 1 *Sam.*14.25. there is δρυμὸς μελισσῶνος κατὰ πρόσωπον τῆς ἀγρᾶς, where our Engliſh out of the Hebrew, read [they came to a wood, and there was honey upon the ground] and v.26. εἰσῆλθεν ὁ λαὸς εἰς τὸν μελισσῶνα, καὶ ἰδοὺ διαπορεύετο μέλι, when they came into the wood behold the honey dropt, and v.27. Jonathan dipt his rod, εἰς τὸ κηρίον τῆς μέλιτος, in a comb of honey. In which place, that which is δρυμὸς μελισσῶνος, a wood of Honey in the Greek, is by an Hypallage, mel ſylveſtre, wood honey, the very thing that is here, μέλι ἄγριον, field-honey, or wood-honey, [agri and ſylvæ being oft promiſcuouſly uſed for any places remoter from towns) open and uninclоſed, though they be not wood-lands. So in Virgil, ſylvis egreſſus, *Æn.*1. and ſylveſtrem muſam, Eclog. 1. in relation to the mountains or downs, where they fed their flocks) which ſenſe of the μέλι ἄγριον makes it alſo not improbable, that ἀκρίδες, which here are joined Ἀκρίδες with it, as the Baptiſts only food, may ſignify ἀκρόδρυα or ἀκρέμονες, i. e. πάντες οἱ τῶν δένδρων καρποὶ, or καρποὶ δενδρικοὶ, all fruits of trees in Phavorinus, i.e. fruits of the wilder trees, and indeed herbs or leaves. To which purpoſe I ſhall refer the reader to *Steph. Forner. rer. quotid.*l. 6. c.27. Thus doth Iſidore Peluſiote interpret it with great earneſtneſs againſt the other rendring of it, Αἱ ἀκρίδες ἃ ζῶά εἰσι, ἃς τινες φάγοιτο ἀμαθῶς, μὴ γνόντες, ἀλλ' ἀκρέμονες βοτανῶν καὶ φυτῶν, *Ep.*5. The word, which we render locuſts, ſignifies not living creatures as ſome have ignorantly conceived, no by no means, but the tops of herbs and plants. And to this purpoſe is it, that Burchardus (p. 330.) in his deſcription of the Holy Land, ſaith, that he hath found in the Monaſteries of Paleſtine, near Jordan, a food which the Monks there uſe, of a ſort of Herbs called locuſtæ, the ſame, ſay they, which the Baptiſt fed on. Though the truth is, Origen, Clemens, Ambroſe, and Hilary interpret ἀκρίδες locuſts, as a ſort of graſhoppers; and it appears by Leviticus, c.11.22. that they were uſed for food, being reckoned among the clean Creatures, and by Pliny, *Nat. Hiſt.*l.11. and Athenæus, l.4. that the Æthiopians and ſome others fed on Graſſhoppers, but thoſe ſalted and dried, ſaith Pliny, which cannot well be ſuppoſed of the Baptiſt here, whilſt he continued in the wilderneſs. 'Tis more probable, that as the Sarmani or Σαμοναῖοι in Clem. Alex. l.1. or Germanæ in Strabo called ὑλοβιοι (thoſe that lived in the woods (not as 'tis falſly rendred ἀλλοβιοι) and neither inhabited cities, nor had houſes) ἀκρόδρυα σιτοῦνται, καὶ ὕδωρ ἐκ χειρὸς πίνουσι, eat herbs, and drink water in their hands, ſo the Baptiſt here abſtained from wine, fed on this victus parabilis, food that wanted no dreſſing, (ὅπερ οἱ νῦν ἐγκρατηταὶ, ſaith he, Encratites of this time) which Strabo out of Megaſthenis Indica, expreſſed by ὑλοβιοι ζῶντες ἐκ τῶν ὕλεως ἀπὸ φύλλων καὶ καρπῶν ἀγρίων, they that lived in woods upon leaves and wild fruits.

f. Δοκεῖν V.9. Think.] The phraſe [μὴ δόξητε λέγειν,] is no more than μὴ λέγητε, ſay not, or, as St. Luke reads, c.3.8. μὴ ἄρξησθε λέγειν, begin not to ſay; for ſo δοκεῖ and videtur is oft an Expletive. So 1 Cor. 10.12. ὁ δοκῶν ἑστάναι, He that truly ſtands, (not only ſeems or thinks himſelf to ſtand) for none elſe are capable of falling: ſo 1 Cor. 11.16. If any man δοκεῖ φιλόνεικος εἶναι (not ſeem to be but really) be contentious; and c. 12. 22. where δοκοῦντα μέλη ἀσθενέστερα ὑπάρχειν, the members which ſeem to be more weak, are all one with ὑπάρχοντα, thoſe that are the weaker; ſo *Heb.*4 7. let us fear, μή τις δοκῇ τις ὑστερηκέναι, leſt any man (not ſeemingly but really) come ſhort: ſo Luke 8.18. the [ὃ δοκεῖ ἔχειν, that which he ſeems to have] being compared with *Mat.*13.12. καὶ ὃ ἔχει, even what he hath, and *Mat.*25.29. and Mark 4.25. appears to ſignify [that which really he hath] (though he make not the right uſe of it) otherwiſe it could not be taken from him. So *Mar.*10.42 οἱ δοκοῦντες ἄρχειν, they that think or ſeem to rule, is rendred by St. Matthew 20. 25. οἱ ἄρχοντες the Rulers. So in the ſtory of Suſanna, v.5. οἱ δοκοῦντα κυβερνᾶν, not they which ſeemed but that really did govern. So in Procopius on 1 Kings, οἱ δόξαντες εὐτυχεῖν is applied to the pious Kings, Aſa, Jehoſaphat, &c. So Optatus, *l.*1. ſpeaking of the fleſh of Chriſt, quæ nullam videbatur admiſiſſe peccatum, which ſeemed to have committed no ſin, his meaning muſt ſure be, that really he had not ſinned. Thus in humane Authors [δοκεῖ] is the form of affirming any thing. If there be any farther force in this word, than only as an expletive, then (according to another notion of δοκεῖ) it will beſt be rendred do not pleaſe, or, ſatisfy your ſelves in ſaying, as δοκοῦντα is explained by ἀρέσκοντα, Phavor. See note on *Mar.*2.a. and Note on Acts 16. a.

g. Βαπτίζειν ὕδατι 11. Baptize you with water.] John's Baptiſm by water previous and preparatory to Chriſt's baptiſm by the Holy Ghoſt and fire, ſeems to be imitated by the Devil and his worſhippers, the Indians in Philoſtratus, who had, ſaith he, a well, whoſe water they eſteemed ſacred, and endued with ſecret virtue, Ὅσιον δὲ νομίζουσι τὸ ὕδωρ Ἰνδικὴ πᾶσι, which was counted ſacramental to all the Indians, nigh unto which, ſaith he, there was a veſſel of fire, in which the Indians were purged from their involuntary ſins, whereupon their wiſe men call the well, The well of conviction, or reproof, and the fire, The fire of pardon, or expiation. And ſo the Brachmans, before they ſacrificed, uſed to anoint themſelves πλειστῃ φαρμάκῳ, which ſo heated their bodies, that they ſent out fume and ſweat in great abundance, as if they had, ſaith he, been * waſhed with fire.

Ib. To bear.] That which is here βαστάσαι, is not, as in other places βαστάζειν βάρος, the bearing of a burden or weight (the Labourers or Porters office) but as a Miniſterial office, either 1. to remove things that are not of preſent uſe, out of the way (the ſame that in other places is expreſſed by αἴρειν, as αἴρειν κλίνην, to take away, or put aſide the bed, as being no longer uſeful) and by this means it will here be all one with λῦσαι

h. Βαστάζειν ὑμᾶς

ἡ ἱμάντα τῦ ὑποδήματος, to loſe the latchet of the ſhoe, *Mar.*1.7. and *Joh.*1.27. that looſing, being in order to taking it off; or elſe 2. as Luke 10.4. βαστάζειν ὑποδήματα to carry ſhoes was ordinary in journies, ſo might it fitly be the Diſciples office to do ſo, and ſo either way the meaning of the Baptiſt's ſpeech is, that he was unworthy to be Chriſt's Diſciple, for the Diſciples of any Prophet among the Jews were to ſerve him as his Miniſters, to perform to him his ordinary neceſſary ſervices; ſo Joſhuah was unto Moſes, *Ex.*24.13. and in *Joſeph.*1. So Eliſha miniſtred unto Elias, 1 Kings 19.2. and poured water on Elias hands, (this being ſet down as the Diſciples office among their Conſtitutions) and ſo when Chriſt ſaith, he was among them as he that miniſters, Luke 22.27. that of miniſtring refers to the office of a Diſciple. And ſo when they are called the ſons of the prophets, it is in the Hebrew notion, wherein παῖδες and ὑπηρέται, ſons and ſervants, or miniſters are all one.

i. Πτύον

V.12. Fan.] Πτύον ſignifies a winnowing inſtrument, ξύλον ἐν ᾧ διαχωρίζυσι τὸ σῖτον ἀπὸ τῦ ἀχύρυ, a piece of wood, by which they ſeparate the wheat from the chaff, ſaith Heſychius, the Hebrew reads מורה ventilabrum, from זרה diſperſit, ventilavit, referring in general to winnowing or holding up to the wind, but not peculiarly to the manner of doing it. The Syriack hath רפשא raphſho, and ſo the Arabick alſo. In which Languages the word is ſaid to have two ſignifications, 1. to note a ſhovel, or ſuch like inſtrument, with a broad head, as a paddle, &c. wherewith the ſurface of the earth is plained or pared. So 'tis in the Arabick proverb, Men al rapſh el al arſh, from the ſhovel to the throne, from the meaneſt profeſſion to the greateſt Dignity; 2. (as * Jeſu Bar Ali defines it) an inſtrument with a broad head, wherewith Corn is moved or winnowed, or ſtirred up, to cleanſe it. Accordingly the Greek πτύον Heſychius expreſſes firſt by τρίαιναξ, and then τρίαναξ ſaith he, is ὄργανον ὀδοντικὸν, an inſtrument with teeth, and again he explains it by τρίαινα, and τρίαινα he defines to be δόρυ τρεῖς ἔχον ἄκμας, a ſpear or pike, having three teeth, or ſharps, a three-tooth'd-pitchfork, uſed to ſtir, or throw up corn, when they make up their floors; and in another place he makes it all one with τριόδοντος, which being by the Grammarians ſaid to be τριόδους, i.e. τρία ἔχων βέλη, that which hath three darts, quod tres cuſpides habet, it appears to be directly all one with τρίαινα. The reſult of all this Grammatical Diſcourſe is this, that the word πτύον here is ſet to denote that γεωργικὸν ὄργανον ὀδοντικὸν, that inſtrument with teeth, ſomewhat like our pitchfork, with which they managed the buſineſs of winnowing their Corn, ſtirring it up, that the chaff, when the corn is out of it, having no weight in it, may be driven away with the wind, if there be any, and if there be none, they had an inſtrument, as we have now ſails to make a wind, and then that blows away the chaff without any other helps, than of ſtirring it up, that the wind may have force on it. Thus *Iſa.*40.24. the corn is ſaid to be winnowed ברחה (which, ſaith Kimchi, ſignifies Pala, quâ grana, per ſpatium longiuſculum in ventum illata, à ventilatore purgantur, (as Mr. Fuller renders him) and accordingly we render it a ſhovel) ובמזרה and (with the fan, we read, i.e.) with that inſtrument here ſpoken of, that ſtirs up the corn for the wind, that that may drive all the duſt and chaff away; the word that the Hebrew here uſeth. This is diſtinctly and properly the manner of the διαχωρίζειν τὴν ἅλωνα, the throughly cleanſing of the threſhing floor, which here follows. For ſo at this day in thoſe parts under the Turks dominion (and alſo in Spain, where, by the inhabiting of the Moors, who are baſtard-Jews, many Jewiſh cuſtoms are retained) the Threſhing-floor is in an eminent place in the open field, large enough to be compared with that of Araunah, 2 *Sam.*24. where David built an Altar. Thither, after gathering their corn, they bring it, then have they a pair of wheels of Iron, joined with an axle tree, and dented, or toothed, like a ſaw, and ſometimes an heavy board or plank, about the bigneſs of an ordinary door, driven on the lower ſide, full of ſharp ſtones, or pieces of flints, (the מורג & חרוץ, Iſa. 41. 15. which the Greek renders πρόχυς ἀμάξης ἀλοωνίδας, and *Iſa.*28.27. חרוץ, and אופן, the threſhing inſtrument, and the cart wheel,) and one of theſe the oxen draw over it, ſo at once with their feet treading out the corn, and with theſe breaking the ſtraw into ſmall parts, which is the ordinary food for their cattle all the year. This they take away and put up in bags. As for the chaff the wind drives that away, as 'tis *Pſ.*1.4. and Job 21.18. and *Iſa.*41.16. λικμήσεις, καὶ ἄνεμος λήψεται αὐτὰς, thou ſhalt * winnow them, and the wind ſhall take them. Only in caſe of the winds turning, when they fear that it will bring all the chaff back again upon the floor, they put fire to it at the wind-ſide, and that creeps on, and never gives over till it hath conſumed all the chaff, and ſo is a kind of ἄσβεστον πῦρ here, a fire never quenchable, till it have done its work. To this deſcription of their practice many places in the Old Teſtament agree. The threſhing the mountains, Iſa. 41. 15. refers to the cuſtom of Treſhing-floors in ſuch eminent places, and ſo ſetting the hills as chaff, winnowing or diſperſing them as chaff, upon a hill, and the wind carrying them away, v.16. So *Jer.*4 11. a dry wind of the high places in the wilderneſs, not to winnow, nor to cleanſe, even a full wind from thoſe places, &c. a full wind, inſtead of winnowing or cleanſing the wheat from the chaff, carrying all away. So *Prov.*20. 21. 'tis ſaid of the wiſe King, that he ſcattereth the wicked, and bringeth the wheel over them, ſcatters them as he that winnows, and that he may do ſo, brings firſt upon them the wheel or threſhing inſtrument. The ſame אופן wheel, that we had even now in *Iſa.*28.27. joined with the threſhing inſtrument. And Pſ. 83. 13. O my God, make them like a wheel, and as the ſtubble before the wind, both parts refer to this cuſtom alſo; make them as a threſhing wheel is wont to make the corn, driving one part from another, and then the wind comes, and drives away the ſtubble and chaff, and then follows, as the flames conſume the mountains (that is, ſet the chaff on the mountains on fire, and burn it, lick it quite up) perſecute them ſo with thy tempeſt, &c. ſo *Iſa.*5 44. as the fire conſumeth the ſtubble, and the flame devoureth the chaff. According to this notion of winnowing, and burning the chaff, this verſe accords with the general matter of John Baptiſt's preaching, viz. Chriſt's rich promiſes of all merciful reception, and preſervation to thoſe that ſhall repent and receive the Goſpel, and threatning of all judgments upon the impenitent Jews, formerly expreſſed by the kingdom of God approaching, and again by the axe laid to the root of the tree, ready to hew it down, and that attended with caſting into the fire, as here the chaff is with burning with fire unquenchable. And ſo it was fulfilled on the Jews even in this Life (as it was oft foretold) the godly true penitents that received Chriſt, through theſe tribulations, were preſerved, when the reſt that could not bear or hold out the tryal, all that the wind of temptation, falſe doctrine, &c. carried away, were generally deſtroyed, the corn laid up in a garner, and the chaff devoured with the fire.

* Syro. Arab. Lex.

* or perhaps threſh them, (ſee note on c. 21.g.)

k. ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν

V.16. Like a Dove.] That the Spirit came upon Chriſt in the body or ſhape of a Dove, cannot, I think, be concluded from this place, nor from the parallel Mar. 1. 10. but only that the Spirit deſcended, and came, or lighted on him, as a dove uſes to do on any thing, firſt hovering and over-ſhadowing it. And whereas 'tis added by St. Luke, σωματικῷ εἴδει, that will be beſt rendred in, or, with a bodily appearance, and joined with καταβῆναι, i.e. the Spirit deſcended ſo, as might be (and was really) ſeen (εἶδε in Matthew and Mark, he ſaw him deſcend), ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν as it were a dove, i. e. as a dove viſibly deſcends, and lights on any thing, or, in a manner ſomewhat reſembling a dove, (ſo ὡσεὶ ſignifies, as Acts 2.3. the divided tongues ὡσεὶ πυρὸς, as it were of fire, doth not denote them to be of fire, at leaſt to have the effects of fire, burning, &c. but either in the colour, or form like that of fire) not defining any ſhape, wherein the Holy Ghoſt appeared. That the H.G. both here and in other places did viſibly appear, there is no doubt; doubt; that he did in the caſe of Mary, at the time of her conception of Chriſt, ἐπέρχεσθαι come upon her, and ἐπισκιάζειν overſhadow her, is affirmed Luke 1. 35. and that is perfectly agreeable here to this of deſcending, ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν, as a dove uſes to do, when it comes down and viſibly lights on any thing. Nay other glorious appearances of God are expreſſed in other places, in the ſame manner, as when the bright cloud (i e. an appearance of ſhining light, as broad as a cloud) ἐπεσκίασεν αὐτοὺς, Mat. 17. 5. thus hovered over or over-ſhadowed them. So again *Mar.*9.7. Luke 9.34. and accordingly in the Tabernacle where the Cherubims of glory, thoſe officers or miniſters of this appearance of God, over-ſhadowing or hovering over the propitiatory, or covering of the Ark, *Heb.*9.5. and ſo 2 *Pet.*1.17. This voice at this time delivered [this is my beloved ſon, &c.] is ſaid to have come from the magnificent glory (gloria majeſtaticæ præſentiæ, the glory of the majeſtatick preſence, ſo frequent in the Targum) i. e. from this cloud where the Angels were, and wherein Elias and Moſes appeared, and ſo in the third verſe of that chapter δόξα glory, ſeems to denote the appearing of the Holy Ghoſt, as ἀρετὴν vertue or power, Chriſt's after-miracles; in the like manner, as we find πνεῦμα ſpirit, and δύναμις power in other places, and as learned men in rendring the Jewiſh writers, interpret שכינה God's inhabiting or appearing among us (ordinarily rendred glory) by Spiritus Sanctus the Holy Ghoſt. But by all this there is no more expreſſed, but only the manner of this appearance, or how he viſibly was ſeen, or appeared to deſcend; but for the ſhape wherein the Holy Ghoſt appeared here is yet nothing expreſſed. That which ſeemeth moſt probable is this, That the Holy Ghoſt took not on him here any bodily ſhape, but yet appeared to be preſent (as God is ſaid to be preſent in any place in the Old Teſtament, i.e.) by the appearance of Angels, which being the Courtiers of heaven, where they appear, there God is ſaid peculiarly to be preſent. Hence it is, that the well Labairoi, where the Angel appeared to Hagar, *Gen.*16. 7.14. is by the Hieruſalem Targum, Gen, 24. 62. ſtiled Beer (the well) ubi manifeſtata illi fuit preſentia Domini majeſtatica, where the majeſtatick preſence of the Lord, or the preſence of God in majeſty, was manifeſted to her. And ſo the Sanctuary, where, by the Cherubims God exhibited himſelf, is called by the ſame phraſe, Gloria majeſtaticæ præſentiæ Domini, The glory of the majeſtick preſence of the Lord, Gen. 40. 34. So in the delivering of the Law, which, the Author to the Hebr. c.2.2. ſaith, was ſpoken by Angels, God ſaith, Ex. 19. 11. the Lord will come down in the ſight of all the people, and I have talked with you, c. 20.22. Now how thoſe Angels, the good Angels, the courtiers of God, appeared, may be collected in general from their title, Ἄγγελοι φωτὸς, Angels of light, in reference to a lucid, ſhining, flaming appearance (as the Philoſopher ſaith, that if God would take upon him a Body, it would certainly be light) but more diſtinctly from the ſtory of it, *Mat.*28.3. His appearance was as lightning, and his garment white as ſnow (as Luke 9. 29. 'tis ſaid of Chriſt on mount Tabor, his cloathing was λευκὸς ἐξαστράπτων, white and flaſhing as lightning doth) i. e. a bright ſhining cloud (ſuch as in Exodus is called a cloud by day, but fire by night, a pillar of cloud, *Deut.*31. 15.) or fiery appearance in the midſt of a white cloud, as of a garment, i.e. cloathed or encompaſſed with it, which is directly νεφέλη φωτεινὴ, the light ſom cloud, even now mentioned: and ſo generally the Scechinah, by which the Hebrews uſe to expreſs God's preſence on earth, is rendred δόξα glory, from *Ex.*24.16. the glory of the Lord abode, &c. (ſee note on Rom. 1. f. & c. 9.c and Jo. 1. c) and that glory generally expreſſed by Painters by the rays or beams of the Sun, or light, becauſe that is the livelieſt reſemblance of it, as 'tis ſet down, Luke 2.9. δόξα περιέλαμψεν, the glory of the Lord ſhone about them, which is added to the mention of the Angel's coming to them. And ſo God's promiſe of coming to the people on Sinai the third day, c.19.11. is thus performed, v.16. there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount. And agreeable to this it is, that in that other viſible deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, Acts 2. 3. ὤφθησαν αὐτοῖς διαμεριζόμεναι γλῶσσαι ὡσεὶ πυρὸς, ἐκάθισέ τε ἐφ' ἕνα ἕκαστον αὐτῶν, there were ſeen by them tongues parted or divided, as of fire, and, i. e. the fire (or that ſo like fire) ſate or reſted on every of them. That which appeared was cloven, or divided tongues as of fire, ſeveral flaſhes or beams as of fire, in the ſhape of tongues divided, as it is eaſy to conceive by a flame cleft aſunder in many places, according to the natural motion of flames, of which every part, as it extends it ſelf in longitude, grows more pyramidal, and ſo divides from the part next to it, and one of theſe diviſions did, as it were lambere, lick, and ſo reſt upon the head of every of the Apoſtles, according to the Hebrews phraſe or idiom, who for flame of fire, uſe לשון אש the tongue of fire, *Iſa.*5.24. becauſe a flame is of that form, ſay they. Somewhat like this hath the appearing of Angels generally been in the Scripture, ſee Ex. 19.18. where God deſcends on the mount in fire, gloria præſentiæ divinæ in flamma ignis, ſaith the Jeruſalem Targum, the glory of the divine preſence in a flame of fire, which is but the explication, and rendred as the reaſon of what was ſaid before, *v.*16. of the lightning and thick cloud, or thick cloud, or darkneſs, where God was, Gen. 20.21. and therefore *Pſ.*104,4. His miniſters (i. e. Angels miniſtring to him) are ſaid to be a flaming fire. Thus in the firſt mention of it, *Gen.*3.24. the Jeruſalem Targum reads, gloriam divinæ præſentiæ ſupra duos Cherubinos collocavit, he placed the glory of the divine preſence upon two Cherubims, where in the Hebrew we find the two Cherubims, להט החרב (a flaming ſword we read it, but it may perhaps be better rendred) a flame of ſword, i.e. of ſeparation, diviſion, φλὸξ διαμερισμοῦ, for ſo the Hebrew חרב which is rendred ſword, ſignifies diviſion, as is exemplified by *Mat.*10.34. compared with Luke 12.51. where inſtead of μάχαιραν ſword in one, is διαμερισμὸς diviſion in the other, and then that φλὸξ διαμερισμοῦ, flame of diviſion, or partition there (ſignifying that appearance to be a bright ſhining as of fire, and that parted one from another in many places, to turn every way, ſaith the Text) will be ſomewhat anſwerable to the word διαμεριζόμεναι divided, in the Acts, in reſpect of the diviſion of the fire (that appeared) in ſeveral branches, but certainly in reſpect of the fire. By all that hath been ſaid, the meaning of the words in this place may be conceived to be this, the heavens were opened to Chriſt, and the Spirit of God (himſelf inviſible, and taking no bodily form or ſhape upon him) was by John ſeen to deſcend upon him as a dove deſcendeth and lighteth on any thing, or as it were a dove, that which appeared ſome way reſembling a dove, with the wings ſpread abroad, and hovering over one, viz. Angels, the token of God's or the Holy Ghoſt's preſence, appeared in a bright ſhining cloud, or a flaſh of lightning in a cloud, and this ſtooped down upon him, and with that lightning thunder, and with that thunder a voice, *v.*17. (ſee note on Acts 19.b.) And this as the ſolemnity of his Conſecration, Impoſition of hands, as it were from Heaven, by which he received his commiſſion to his Prophetick office, which he after communicated to his Apoſtles, in a manner ſomewhat like Acts 2.2.

V.17. Beloved ſon.] Thoſe words of the Father from heaven, both here, and at the Transfiguration, *c.*17. [οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ υἱός μου ἀγαπητὸς ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα, this is my beloved ſon, in whom I am well pleaſed] were by him delivered with an intention, that they ſhould be underſtood to relate to that Prediction, before delivered concerning the Meſſias, *Iſa.*42.1. This will not ſo eaſily and ſo clearly appear by comparing theſe words with that Prophecy, either in the Hebrew, or the Greek, (becauſe for [beloved] here, and *c.*17. 'tis [choſen] there, for [ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα in whom I am well pleaſed] here, and c. 17. the Septuagint there have [προσεδέξατο αὐτὸν ἡ ψυχή μου, my ſoul hath accepted him] for [ὁ υἱός μου, my ſon] here, and *c.*17. 'tis there in the Hebrew [עובדי my ſervant,] and in the Septuagint, ὁ παῖς μου, agreeable to that, though capable of being rendred my ſon alſo) as by comparing that of Iſaiah with Mat. 12. 18. for in that place of Matthew,

1. Ἀγαπητὸς ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα

Παῖς Matthew, where thoſe words of that Prophet are purpoſely recited, we find all theſe words [ἰδὲ ὁ παῖς μου ἀγαπητὸς εἰς ὃν εὐδόκησεν ἡ ψυχή μου, behold my ſon or ſervant, beloved--in whom my ſoul (i.e. my ſelf) is well pleaſed] which differ very little from thoſe voices from heaven in this, and that other place, ſave that the [ἰδὲ, behold] of Emphatical promiſe in the Prophet, is here changed into [οὗτός ἐστι this is] as fitter to point him out now preſent; and παῖς an equivocal word for a ſon, or ſervant, is changed into υἱὸς which is a ſon only. To this may be added that one part of theſe words in Iſaiah [δέδωκα πνεῦμα ἐπ' αὐτὸν, I have given my Spirit upon him] was here really ſupplied at this time, the Holy Ghoſt coming viſibly upon him, and in like manner [κρίσιν ἀπαγγελεῖ, he ſhall declare judgment] in the cloſe of that verſe, Iſa. 42.1. is equivalently ſupplied, Mat. 17.5. in [αὐτοῦ ἀκούετε, hear him] he having then begun that office of declaring or preaching, which conſequently was then to be heard by them.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. IV.

1. And immediately after his baptiſm, and before he entred on his prophetick office, that Chriſt might give an evidence of his Piety and truſt in God, and of his conſtancy, it was thought fit that ſome tryal ſhould be made of him; and to that end, by incitation or impulſion of the Spirit of God (of which he was full Luke 4.1.) he went up from Jordan farther in the deſart, not voluntarily putting himſelf upon Temptation, but doing it according to God's appointment.

1. THen was Jeſus led up of the Spirit into the wilderneſs, to be tempted of the a Devil.

2. And being there he was enabled by the miraculous power of God to continue forty days and nights without eating or drinking any thing, as Moſes and Elias, the two great Prophets had done, and after that, that he might be the fitter for the enſuing tryal of his truſt in God, made on him by Satan, he was as ſharply aſſaulted with hunger, as any man at any time is, for want of meat.

2. And when he had faſted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungred.

3. And the Devil laying hold, and taking advantage of that opportunity, came and ſaid unto him, If thou art the Son of God, make uſe now of that power to thy own relief, and turn theſe ſtones into bread.

3. And when the tempter came to him, he ſaid, If thou be the ſon of God, command that theſe ſtones be made bread.]

4. Bread or ordinary means of ſuſtaining men, is not of neceſſity to the Life of man, God can feed and uphold him by other means, whatſoever he pleaſe to make uſe of to that purpoſe, his bare word and nothing elſe, Deut. 8.3.

4. But he anſwered and ſaid, It is written, [man ſhall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.]

5, 6. Then Satan, as 'tis moſt probable, carried him in the air, without doing him any hurt, unto Jeruſalem, being permitted by God to do ſo, and ſet him on the battlement of the Temple; and urging a verſe of the Pſalm to him, Pſ. 91. 11. he perſwaded him to caſt himſelf down from thence, by that means to teſtify that he was the Son of God; for if he were ſo, this he might do ſecurely.

5. Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city, and ſetteth him on * a b pinacle of the Temple,

6. And ſaith unto him, If thou be the ſon of God caſt thy ſelf down; for it is written, He ſhall give his Angels charge concerning thee, and † in their hands they ſhall * bear thee up, leſt at any time thou daſh thy foot againſt a ſtone.]

* the battlement.
* carry thee, ἀροῦσί σε

7. It is ſufficiently manifeſt to me, that I am the Son of God, and cared for by him. I ſhall not require any more ſigns to prove it, nor expreſs any doubt of his power and goodneſs toward me, as the Iſraelites did, Ex. 17.7. ſaying, is the Lord among us or no? To which the prohibition of tempting God refers, Deut. 6.16. (which is the Text quoted in this place, a prohibition not of too much, but too little confidence, of doubting of God's preſence among them.)

7. Jeſus ſaid unto him, [It is written again, Thou ſhalt not c tempt the Lord thy God.]

8. And from thence gives him a view of all that was to be ſeen from thence, and adds a repreſentation of many of the other kingdoms of the world, in as ſplendid and inviting manner as he could, and all this in a moment of time, Luke 4. 5. not one after another, that ſo they might amaze and affect him the more with their ſplendour, and on a ſudden prevail upon him, which otherwiſe would not be ſo likely to do it.

8. Again the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, [and ſheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them.]

9. And ſaith unto him, All theſe things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worſhip me.

10. Then ſaid Jeſus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan, for it is written, Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him only ſhalt thou ſerve.

11. Then for a while, Luke 4.13. Satan left tempting him (afterwards ſetting himſelf more induſtriouſly on all ſtratagems to take away his life) and as the Devil left him, the good Angels came and waited on him, miniſtring to his hunger, or bringing him meat, as to Elias was done.

11. Then the devil † leaveth him, and behold Angels came and miniſtred unto him.]

† diſmiſſeth, ἀφίησιν

12. After this, not immediately, but having gone once into Galilee, and done many things there (ſet down John 2. &c.) and having before that entertained ſome Diſciples, or conſtant followers, John 2.2. by name Philip, John 1.43. (for this and much more was done before John's being caſt into priſon, John 3.24. ſee note on John 1.e.) when he heard of the impriſonment of John, he went a ſecond time into Galilee.

12. Now when Jeſus heard that John was * caſt into priſon, he departed into Galilee.]

* delivered up, παρεδόθη

13. And leaving Nazareth, he came and dwelt in Capernaum, which is upon the ſea-coaſt in the borders of Zabulon and Nepthali:

17. Now began Jeſus to enter on his prophetick office (conſiſting of three things, preaching or making known the will of God, entertaining Diſciples, doing of Miracles: the firſt here and more largely, Mat. 5. 6,7. and in his many parables: the ſecond, v. 18. &c. the third, as neceſſary to confirm his doctrine, on all occaſions from time to time, till his death and departure hence) and the ſumm of that office was to bring ſinners to Repentance, by giving them warnings from God, promiſes to allure, and threatnings to fright them to it.

17. From that time Jeſus began to preach, and to ſay, Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.]

18, 19, 20, 21, 22. And as Jeſus was walking by the lake of Geneſareth (ſee note on Luk. 8.c.) he ſaw two brethren that were fiſhers, Simon who was afterwards ſirnamed Peter, & Andrew his brother, a waſhing their

18. And Jeſus walking by the ſea of Galilee ſaw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, caſting a net into the Sea (for they were fiſhers.)

19. And he ſaith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fiſhers of men.

20. And they ſtraightway left their nets and followed him.

21. And going on from thence, he ſaw other two brethren, James the ſon of Zebedee and John his brother in a ſhip, with Zebedee their father mending their nets, and he called them.

net upon the Shore Luke 5. 2. and having ſpent ſome time in diſcourſe with them, or preaching to them, he went a little farther, and ſaw two other brethren, James and John with their father Zebedee, all of the ſame trade, and they were in their boats mending their nets, having newly waſhed them on the ſhore alſo, Luke 5.2. and now returned to their boats again. And ſoon after this, having done a great miracle, ſet down diſtinctly, Luke 5.3. &c. (ſee note a. on that chap.) he called all the four, commanding them to follow him, promiſing to make them fiſhers of men, or to inſtate them in a calling (and endue them with powers) of gaining and converting of men, and they all forſook their boats and trades, obeyed and followed him.

23. And Jeſus went about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Goſpel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of ſickneſs, and all manner of diſeaſe among the people.

24. And his fame went throughout all Syria, and they brought unto him all ſick people, that were taken with divers diſeaſes and torments, and thoſe which were poſſeſſed with devils, and thoſe which were [lunatick,] and thoſe that had the palſie, and he healed them.

24. Affected with any diſeaſe, on which the changes of the Moon had influence, whether madneſs, or falling ſickneſs, ſee note on c.17.c

25. And there followed him great multitudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jeruſalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan.

Annotations on Chap. IV.

a. Διάβολος

V. 1. The Devil.] the Hebrew שטן, an adverſary, may be taken either in the general, or elſe as it contains under it two ſpecial notions, one of an adverſary in foro, an accuſer, and eſpecially a falſe accuſer, the other of a treacherous perſon, that conſults and ſtudies to miſchief others. In the general it is often met with, and applied to the Devil, our Enemy indefinitely. In reference to the ſpecifical notions, it is accordingly rendred by the Septuagint, ſometimes Διάβολος, accuſer, ſometimes ἐπίβουλος, betrayer, and in 1 Mac. 1.36. the word Διάβολος, accuſer, is uſed, where the ſenſe and the mention of the ſore ſnare, *v.*35. enforceth and requireth ἐπίβουλος, treacherous perſon, and yet our Engliſh renders it in the general (according to the more comprehenſive nature of the Hebrew, to which it is anſwerable) an adverſary. Thus in the New Teſtament doth the word Διάβολος prevail, and is commonly uſed to ſignify not in the ſpecial, either a calumniator or inſidiator (though it ſometimes ſignifies one of them, perhaps the latter, John 6. 70. One of you, Διάβολός ἐστι, means to betray me, and the former, *Eph.*4.27. Let not the ſun go down upon your wrath, neither give place τῷ διαβόλῳ, to the Calumniator, who is then wont to interpoſe and widen the breach, and ſo certainly 1 *Tim.*3. 11. μὴ διαβόλους, not Calumniators, and 2 *Tim.*3.3. and *Tit.*2. 3.) nor yet the Devil under that one peculiar notion, as a lyar or calumniator, but ſo as the Greek, be of the ſame latitude with the general comprehenſive Hebrew word שטן, and as 'tis all one with, ἐχθρὸς enemy, and ἀντίδικος adverſary, or plaintiff, and ἀντικείμενος oppoſer, in other places, and ſo it may beſt be rendred Satan (retaining the Hebrew in the tranſlation, as the Septuagint oft do) i.e. that evil ſpirit, which ſets himſelf as an Adverſary againſt all good men, and endeavours to do all miſchief that he can.

b. Πτερύγιον

V. 5. A pinacle] Πτερύγιον ſignifies literally a little wing, doth here note the exterior circuit of the top of the houſe, which compaſſeth it in (and is thence called στέφανη, Deut. 22.8.) to keep men from danger of falling from the roof, and is therefore in the Law preſcribed in their buildings, that thou bring not blood upon thy houſe. It is by the Grammarians explained by ἀκροβήλιον, and that defined to be τὸ ἐπάνω τῶν ναῶν ἀναπεφυκὸς ζῶδιον, a kind of girdle on the top of the temple to incompaſs it, which is clearly the battlement, not the pinacle, ſee note on c.10. i.

c. Πειράζειν θεὸν

V. 7. Not tempt the Lord] That the phraſe of tempting God ſignifies not too much, but too little confidence, a diffidence and incredulity may appear by the ſeveral places wherein the phraſe is uſed. Thus the Iſraelites tempting of God in Exodus and Deuteronomy, is generally doubting of God's care, and providence, and power, and wiſdom, of which they had had ſo many arguments and aſſurances, and promiſes from him. And ſo *Num.*14. the tempting God ten times, v. 12. is all one with not believing him in all his ſigns, which he did in the midſt of them, v. 11. and what that unbelief was, appears by their words v. 2. Would we had dyed in Egypt, and, Wherefore hath God brought us into this land? thinking (it ſeems) that God would not go along with them, but permit them to be devoured by the People of the land (ſee v.9.) ſo *Pſ.*78. their provoking and tempting of God, v. 18, 19. is firſt their doubting whether God could, and would prepare them a table, v.20. give them bread, provide them fleſh in the wilderneſs, v. 21. when by their own confeſſion he had evidenced his power and will ſufficiently in giving them ſtreams of water out of the rock, and v.42. they tempted God, &c. which is explained, *v.*43. by [they thought not of his hand, and of the day when he delivered them, ——how he had wrought his Miracles in Egypt] *v.*44. i.e. by their forgetting, or not conſidering the arguments they had had for the believing, and depending on him; and ſo again, after he had caſt out the the nations, &c. done all for them imaginable, yet v. 57. they tempted the moſt high God, &c. ſo *Iſa.*7. when Ahaz ſaith, he will not tempt the Lord, the words ſignify, that he needed no farther arguments to aſcertain him of the truth of what there was promiſed. Where yet Ahaz ſeems to have ſpoken Ironically, he will ask no more ſigns, believing the thing impoſſible, and therefore is reprehended by the Prophet for incredulity and wearying of God, and making it neceſſary for him to give a ſign, *v.*13,14. And thus clearly the phraſe is uſed in this place, where the Devil perſwading Chriſt, by caſting himſelf down from the Battlement, to make tryal, whether God would deal with him as a Son, i.e. preſerve him, or no, Chriſt that needed no ſuch evidences of his being the Son of God, Mat. 3. 17. replies, that this is that tempting God, which is forbidden in Deut. So Mat. 16.1. and Luke 11. 16. the Phariſees asking a ſign from heaven, to demonſtrate that he was the Meſſias, are ſaid πειράζειν, to tempt Chriſt; a note of their infidelity, and ſo cenſured by Chriſt, an evil and adulterous generation, ſeeketh after a ſign, *Mat.*16. 4. and beyond the miracles which he had already done among them, he will now ſhow thoſe Phariſees no more, but only that great convincing one of his Reſurrection from the dead, *v.*5. ſometimes this phraſe is uſed in a notion a little different from this, not in relation to any promiſes of God, but of any other part of his will revealed, and notes any act of infidelity, any contrariety to the revealed will of God, whether in point of Doctrine or Practice: of Doctrine, ſo Acts 15. 10. When Peter had given them convincing evidences and arguments (from the example of God toward Cornelius) that God required not the Chriſtian Gentiles to be circumciſed, he adds, Now therefore why do you tempt God to lay a yoke, &c. i. e. your continuing to deſire to lay that yoke on the Gentile Chriſtians, after ſuch evidences of God's will to the contrary, is an act of infidelity, and a kind of tempting of God. So alſo of Practice, 1 *Cor.*10.9. Neither let us tempt Chriſt, i.e. let us not by our provoking ſins dare God, try his patience, whether he will make good upon us his threats againſt ſin, ſo *Mal.*3.15. they that tempt God, are all one with the proud ſinners, contumacious offenders, which are alſo ſaid to weary him, c.2. 17. Acts 5. 9. Why have ye agreed to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? i. e. to commit a ſin, which is in effect a trying, or experimenting whether whether the Apoſtles Peter, &c. had the Spirit of diſcerning their fraud or no, and conſequently of puniſhing.

d. 'Οδὸν θαλάσσης

V. 15. By the way] That which is here ὁδὸν θαλάσσης, is in the Greek, Iſa. 9. 1. (whence this verſe is cited) οἱ λοιποὶ οἱ ἐν περαίᾳ, the reſt that dwell by the Sea-ſide. Now for this whole place that is here cited out of the Prophet, and ſaid to be fulfilled by that which here happened, it muſt firſt be remembred, what hath been ſaid, note on c. 1. k. That Prophecies, beſides the literal ſenſe of them, have ſometimes another affixed to them, to which when they are accommodated, they are ſaid πληρῶσθαι to be fulfilled, i.e. to have a more eminent accompliſhment. And ſo here; for theſe words had in Iſaiah, c. 9. 1. a clear literal ſenſe, belonging to that time, viz. that God having threatned by his Prophet a ſore calamity to Judah and Jeruſalem from Sennacherib King of Aſſyria, begins in theſe words a little to ſoften it, thus, Neverthleſs the dimneſs (or miſt, or twilight) ſhall not be to her, to whom the vexation ſhall be, (i. e. to Jeruſalem which ſhall be thus afflicted) according to the firſt time, wherein he lightly afflicted the land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthali, and the latter time, wherein he more grievouſly afflicted the way of the Sea beyond Jordan, Galilee of the nations, i.e. this that ſhall befal upon Judah, though ſharp, ſhall not be comparable to either of thoſe two other; the firſt, the more tolerable of the two, when Zabulon and Nephthali, were carried into Captivity by Tiglath Phalaſſar King of Aſſyria, 2 Kings 15. 29. the ſecond, not then come, which ſhould be much more heavy, when the reſt of the tribes ſhould be carried away by Salmanaſſar into Aſſyria, 2 Kings 17. The people that walk in darkneſs, i. e. Judah and Jeruſalem, waſted and beſieged by Sennacherib, have ſeen, i. e. ſhould ſee, a great light, i. e. have an illuſtrious remarkable deliverance, the ſiege being raiſed by an Angel, and Sennacherib's Army deſtroyed, and to them that were in the ſhadow of death, i.e. expected verily to be deſtroyed, hath the light appeared, i. e. this deliverance is befall'n. This whole Paſſage belonging to that matter, is here by the Evangeliſt applied to Chriſts Preaching in the borders of Zebulon and Nephthali, only by way of accommodation. This Preaching of his being the great light, and the ſtate of ignorance, that before they were in, the ſhadow of death, and the darkneſs. All the difficulty is, to give any account, how this ſhould here be applied to Zabulon, &c. when in Iſaiah they were not to have this deliverance, but only Judah; and they were only mentioned to comfort Judah, that they were, and ſhould be more terribly afflicted than Judah, and had none of the light or comfort. But the account muſt be, that ſuch Prophecies as theſe, thus accommodated to Chriſt, are accompliſhed in an higher ſenſe, than that wherein they were literally ſpoken, and here this light, i.e. the Preaching of Chriſt came and ſhone on theſe, as well as on Jeruſalem, nay in the firſt place, before he went thither, and conſequently in the application here, the great light is applied to them, (though in the letter of the Prophecy it belonged not to them.) Which being perfectly true, is all that is ſaid by the Evangeliſt, only the words of the Prophet, not in the literal, but an higher ſenſe, applied to them, by way of accommodation, which differs from the citation of a teſtimony. To which this may alſo be farther added, that now that land of Zabulon and Nephthali was not inhabited by Iſrael, for they were carried captive, never to return again, 2 Kings 17, 20, 23. and none left but the tribe of Judah only, 18. and ſo that Prophecy that ſpake of the light ſhining to Judah, did here literally belong to them, i. e. to thoſe of Judah, which after their return from Babylon inhabited theſe parts, which before belonged to Iſrael.

e. Γαλιλαία τῶν ἐθνῶν

Ib. Galilee of the Gentiles] That which is here Γαλιλαία τῶν ἐθνῶν, is in Iſaiah 9. 1. גליל הגוים the circumference of the nations, or that part of Paleſtine which is fartheſt from Jeruſalem, and hath the Nations round about it, from גלל volvit, circumduxit, and ſo by the Targum 'tis rendred תחום confinium, the confines of the Gentiles, becauſe round about that part of Paleſtine, the Egyptians, Arabians, Phenicians, inhabited near the ſea-ſide, in reſpect of trafick. Thus we find, Gen. 14. 1. βασιλεὺς ἐθνῶν, the King of the Nations, which will be confeſſed to belong to the Nations adjoyning to that region, if you compare it with Joſ. 12. 23. where, though our Engliſh, out of ſome Hebrew copies, reads, the King of the Nations of Gilgal, yet the Septuagint reading [βασιλέα τῆς Γαλιλαίας] ſhew that they read מלך גוים לגליל the King of the Nation of the confines, ſuch were the Tyrians, Sidonians, and other Gentiles, and accordingly we read, that King Solomon gave twenty cities in that part to Hiram, the King of the Tyrians, בארץ הגליל in the land of the confines, 1 Kings 19. 11. Thus Joſ. 13. 2. we read גלילות of the Philiſtines, where the Targum reads תחומי the confines again, the Septuagint ὅρια borders, and Joel 4. 4. Tyre and Sidon, and all the גלילות circumambient regions of the Gentiles, where though the Greek reads, as here Γαλιλαίᾳ ἀλλοφύλων, Galilee of the Gentiles, yet the Targum more exactly תחומי the confines, or that part of Paleſtine, which bordereth on the Nations. And ſo when the Evangeliſt St. Luke had ſaid, that Jeſus returned into Galilee, c. 4. 14. he adds, and the fame went out, καθ' ὅλης τῆς περιχώρου, through all the ambient region, ſo again, v. 37. there went a noiſe of him, εἰς πάντα τόπον τῆς περιχώρου, i.e. into all that circumambience of the Gentiles: and ſo ſaith * Joſephus of the Gali- * ἀλώσ. l. 5. c. 4. leans τοσούτοις ἔθνεσιν ἀλλοφύλοις κεκυκλωμένοι, they are encompaſſed with ſo many other ſtrange (or heathen) Nations. Theſe ambient Nations are meant by ὁδὸν ἐθνῶν, the way of the Nations, c. 10. 5. i.e. thoſe ambient Nations next to Galilee Tyre, &c. in oppoſition to Judæa there expreſſed by [the houſe of Iſrael.]

a. 1, 2. Chriſt now in a more eminent manner ſets upon his prophetick office, and there being a great multitude preſent, he went up into a Mountain, as a place of advantage to ſpeak moſt audibly, and there ſeating himſelf as a Prophet or Teacher, a Company of his conſtant followers, all that received and obeyed his Doctrine (not only the twelve, which were afterward choſen to be his Apoſtles) came cloſe up and communed with him, and to them he addreſſed his Speech, ſaying (for the explication of this whole Sermon: See Pract. Catech. l. 2. &c.)

1 AND ſeeing the multitudes he went up into a mountain: and when he was ſet, his [a] diſciples came unto him,

2. And he opened his mouth and taught them, ſaying,]

3. Bleſſed are all they that how high ſoever their condition is in this world, are yet in mind, affection and converſation, humble and lowly, and they which, when they are in worldly poverty, bear it willingly, not only of neceſſity, for to theſe belong the Riches and thoſe the greateſt, even of a kingdom, and that of Heaven (ſee Luke 6. 21. Yours is the kingdom of heaven.)

3. Bleſſed are the poor in Spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven]

4. For they are of a fit temper and capacity to receive that comfort, which Chriſt and the Spirit offer to all that are capable of it, and accordingly their preſent ſadneſs ſhall be repaired here, and moreover rewarded with future joys, Luke 16. 25. whereas thoſe that have moſt of the carnal jollities of this world, that have enjoyed all their good things here, have a ſad arrear of mourning which expects them in another world.

4. Bleſſed are they that mourn: [for they ſhall be comforted.]

b. 5. The quiet-ſpirited perſons and they that live in obedience to government, for they ordinarily ſhall live quietly, and receive the protection and benefit of government, and invading no mans goods or life, ſhall generally enjoy long life and tranquility in the earth. Or when the exerciſes of

of this vertue in ſome ſingular conjunctures of time bring loſſes or death upon them, they ſhall be richly rewarded in another world, and be made amends abundantly there for all that the practice of this virtue hath brought upon them.

6. Bleſſed are they [which do hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs: for they ſhall be filled.] 6. Whoſe appetites are removed from the meaner inferiour objects of our thirſts (which may raiſe, but never ſatisfy our appetites) from the worldlings importunate deſires, ambitions and covetings, to the eager and impatient purſuit of the favour of God, and of piety of the higheſt kind, that way of ſalvation now propoſed to men by Chriſt (ſee note on Rom. 1.b.) For theſe ſhall be ſure to obtain what they purſue, and to be fully ſatisfied in the acquiſition.

7. Bleſſed are [the merciful: for they ſhall obtain mercy.] 7. They that are compaſſionate and pitifully affected to the wants of other men, whether of their ſouls or bodies, apt to relieve and to pardon, to give and to forgive; for as they ſhall deal with others, God ſhall deal with them, in their time of want, and requeſts, they ſhall have pity ſhewn to them abundantly, Luke 6. 38.

8. Bleſſed are [the pure in heart: for they ſhall c ſee God.] 8. They whoſe eye of their ſoul is not defiled by looking after fleſhly or worldly luſts, nor polluted with other foul mixtures, for by this purity they are fitted for that viſion of God, which none elſe can attain unto, Heb. 12. 14. c.

9. Bleſſed are [the d peace-makers: for they ſhall be called the children of God] 9. Peaceable that love and labour for peace, for they are like to God, as children to parents, and like the only begotten ſon of God, that Great peace-maker, and ſhall have the priviledges that belong to ſuch, the childrens portion, that of grace in this life, and of the inheritance in another. d.

10. Bleſſed are they [which are perſecuted for righteouſneſs ſake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.] 10. That ſuffer for the diſcharge of a good conſcience, for the conſtancy of their obedience to any of God's commandments; for their ſufferings here ſhall be hereafter rewarded with a kingdom, though they are oppoſed and perſecuted by men, they ſhall be owned, and crowned by God, as his Martyrs or Confeſſors.

11. Bleſſed are ye [when e men ſhall revile you, and perſecute you, and ſhall ſay all manner of evil againſt you *falſly for my ſake.] 11. When ye ſhall be reviled and perſecuted; and have all kind of evil reports calumniouſly raiſed againſt you, becauſe you are Profeſſors of the faith of Chriſt (this was the condition of Martyrs and Confeſſors in the Chriſtian Church, when Chriſtianity it ſelf was Perſecuted, as v. 10. of all that conſtantly adhere to any part of Chriſtian Duty, and are not by any temptations of perſecution, &c. moved out of it.) e.

* or for righteouſneſs ſake, for inſtead of ψευδόμενοι ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ, the Greek and Latine MS. reads ἕνεκεν δικαιοσύνης propter juſtitiam.

12. Rejoyce ye and [be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven; for ſo perſecuted they the Prophets which were before you.] 12. Exult or leap for joy; for God will reward upon you not only your integrity and your patience, but their multiplied revilings and ſlanders, with a multiply'd recompence in another world. For thus were the Prophets before you dealt with, thoſe that came with commiſſions immediately from God, with whom, if ye communicate in doing well, and ſuffering patiently, ye ſhall proportionably partake of reward with them.

13. Ye are the ſalt of the earth; but if the ſalt † f have loſt its ſavour, wherewith ſhall it be ſalted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be caſt out, and trodden under foot of men.] 13. You diſciples, all ſorts of true Chriſtians (ſee note a.) are the men that by your doctrine, and exemplary piety and charity are to keep the whole land, the whole world from putrifying. But if your lives grow unſavoury or noiſome, what means is there imaginable to repair or recover you? None certainly. And then are ye unſavoury Chriſtians) the moſt unprofitable refuſe Creatures in the World, and ſo ſhall be accounted of, (Mark 9.50. Luke 14.34.) and dealt with accordingly. f.

14. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is ſet on a hill cannot be hid. 14. As a city ſet upon high illuſtrious place, is ſeen by all that travel near it, and by them enquired after what it is, ſo the Chriſtian Church which is a moſt conſpicuous ſociety, in reſpect of the difference of their lives from other men) cannot chuſe but be taken notice of by the reſt of the World, and either attract them by their good, or diſcourage and deter them by their evil Examples, Iſa. 60. 11. Phil. 2. 15.

15. Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a buſhel, but on a candleſtick, and it giveth light unto all that are in the houſe.] 15. It is my deſign in you, (in the doctrine which ye are to preach, and the exemplary lives which you are to live) to ſet up a torch or eminent luminary, like the ſun in the firmament, for all the world to be enlightned by it, and directed in the actions of their lives. Now ye know, 'tis not mens meaning when they light a candle, to put it under that which will cover, and ſhut up the light of it, but to ſet it up at the beſt advantage, ſo that it may diſpenſe its light moſt freely to all that are within reach of it. And ſo muſt ye diffuſe your doctrine and examples to all the heathen World, whoſe ignorance and ſins render them anſwerable to the dark parts of the houſe, which yet the candle when it comes to them, doth illuminate.

16. Let your light ſo ſhine before men, that they may ſee your [good works,] and glorify your father which is in heaven. 16. Honeſt, honourable, commendable actions, ſuch as are not practiſed by other men.

17. Think not that I am come [to * deſtroy the g law and the Prophets, I am not come to deſtroy but h to † fulfil. 17. To take any thing from the Law and the Prophets, i.e. the rule of duties, toward God and man, in force among the Jews, to looſe mankind from the obligations that formerly lay upon them (v. 18, 19. and note f.) to permit, much leſs to cauſe any one moral command to be evacuated, but to repair and make up whatſoever is any way wanting, to reſtore whatſoever hath been taken from it by falſe interpretations of thoſe which have ſtriven to evacuate ſome parts of it, to require more explicitly, what was obſcure before, and where there is any need, to encreaſe and add unto the Law. g. h.

By his practice and doctrine evacuate any one of the leaſt commands of the Law, or which I ſhall now deliver to you, he ſhall be the leaſt (ſee note on c. 8. k.) i.e. be deſpiſed and neglected by God in the day of Judgment (which is called God's Kingdom, 2 Tim. 4.1. Mat. 25.1.) or he ſhall be caſt out of the Church, be thought unworthy of having his name retained in the Catalogue of Chriſtians here, or Saints hereafter (as among the Jews he that did teach, and do contrary to the determination of the Conſiſtory, i. e. who, being a Doctor of the Law, did teach any thing to be lawful, which the determination of the Conſiſtory made to be unlawful, he was look'd upon as a rebellious Elder, and was by Law to be put to death) But whoſoever ſhall himſelf practice, and teach others to practice all, not neglecting the very leaſt of them, ſhall be rewarded in an eminent manner here, and at the day of Judgment; ſhall be a principal Chriſtian here, and Saint hereafter, advanced to the dignity of judging others, and to the glory attending it in heaven.

But he that permits his paſſion to break out into virulent railing, ſhall be liable to that degree of puniſhment in another world, which is anſwerable to the burning in the valley of Hinnom, which was a puniſhment far greater than the other two, and ſo notes a very great degree of eternal Torments. For in that place 'twas the cuſtom to put their children into hollow brazen veſſels over the fire, and therein to ſcald them to death, crying out lamentably, very many together.

40. And if by suit at law any one endeavour to rob thee of thy meaner or inner garment, do thou, rather than oppose violence to his injustice, venture the losing of thy upper better garment also. r.

41. And whosoever shall † compel thee to f go a mile, go with him twain.]

41. And whosoever shall make thee go and carry his burthens a little way, do thou again rather than permit thy passions to oppose violence to this injury or light invasion of thy liberty, venture to suffer as much more. f.

42. Give to him that asketh of thee, and from him that would borrow of thee, [turn not thou away.]

42. Do not thou disdainfully or lothingly turn away.

43. Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine Enemy.]

43. 'Tis true indeed that the precept of Moses concerning the kind-dealing of the Jews with other men, extended not universally to all, but peculiarly to their country-men, or fellow-Jews (called, the sons of thy people.) To others who were aliens, and also enemies to them, they were not bound to be kind; but against some; viz. the seven Nations, they were commanded to proceed hostilely.

44. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you.]

44. Let your kindness be extended, as the blessings of heaven, even to enemies, and injurious provokers, in the same manner and measure as they do ill to you, do ye good to them, blessing, obliging, praying for them, and making them no other returns for all their virulencies, hatreds, and contumelious malicious behaviour toward you.

45. That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the t evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and unjust.]

45. That so by imitating God, you may approve your selves to be like him, as children to a parent, it being evident in him, that he confines not his mercies to friends and good men, but extends them to injurious provokers, and gross offenders, as well as the pious lovers of him. t.

46. For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? Do not even the Publicans the same?]

46. For if ye have ordinary charity to them which have so to you, do you deserve or have reason to expect any reward from God for so doing? why? the worst sort of men in the World will do so.

* embrace, ἀσπάσησθε † what extraordinary thing do ye?

47. And if ye * salute your brethren only, † what do u you more than others?] Do not even the Publicans so?

47. And if ye abound in affection to Jews only, what do you more than all the most vulgar men of the heathen world think themselves obliged to? who kiss and embrace those that are nearest and dearest to them. u.

48. Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.]

48. Therefore of you Christians, I require that you exercise your charity, whether of the lowest or highest sort, and extend it as far as the mercy of God is extended, viz. to enemies as well as friends, Luke 6.63.]

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. V.

a. Μαθηταὶ

V. 1. Disciples.] The word μαθητὴς signifies a scholar, or learner, that hath entred into any school of knowledge, the relative to a master or teacher; and though the twelve, which were afterwards Apostles, be ordinarily known by this title of οἱ μαθηταὶ, the disciples, by way of excellence, yet doth it not from thence follow, that those Twelve were the only Auditors of this Sermon (or if they had been, that the doctrine here preached belongs only to Apostles and their successors in the Church, because those very Twelve were as yet but μαθηταὶ learners, not Apostles, till they were sent out to preach, Mat. 10. 1. and after to govern and rule the Church in Christ's stead) but rather the contrary, *c.*7.28. where at the conclusion of this Sermon, 'tis said, ἐξεπλήσσοντο οἱ ὄχλοι, the multitudes, (of his Disciples or Learners, those that now heard, and received his doctrine, though perhaps not absolutely the ὄχλοι, *c.*5.1. the promiscuous multitude, the ὄχλοι πολλοὶ, c. 4. 25. the many troops that followed him, but, I say, the multitudes of Disciples that believed on him) were astonished at his doctrine, ἦν γὰρ διδάσκων αὐτοὺς, for he taught them; thus Luke 6. 17. it is set down distinctly ὄχλου μαθητῶν, a multitude of Disciples, (out of which, 'tis said, he chose twelve, *v.*13. signifying that there were more Disciples than those 12) in opposition to the πλῆθος πολὺ τοῦ λαοῦ, &c. the great multitude of people from all Judea, &c. that came to hear, and to be healed of him; so oft in other places, the word [μαθητὴς disciple] is applied to all that entered into his school, as well as to the twelve. So *c.*8.21. 'twas a Disciple which said, Lord, suffer me first to bury my father, but sure none of the Twelve, and so in many other places. From all which 'tis clear, to whom the doctrine and precepts of this Sermon belong, as also, who are the [ὑμεῖς ye] who are said to be the salt of the earth, &c. v.13. not the Apostles peculiarly (for as yet there were none such) but all Christians, which were then in the world, and so in like manner all that should succeed them in that title, all that enter Christs School, that profess his doctrine, and so follow him as obedient Disciples.

V. 5. The earth] Ἡ γῆ very often hath a peculiar critical, signification in the Gospels, and refers to the land of Judea, and here by being promis'd to the meek and obedient, looks distinctly on the fifth Commandment, and in it on the Land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee, i.e. a fruitful prosperous being here on earth: which is here said to belong by promise of God peculiarly to the meek; and though sometimes it proves not so, when in time of civil dissentions, the Supreme Governours are resisted and perhaps overcome (for then the meek or obedient conscientious Subjects are commonly involv'd in the worst (because in the Princes) condition, are depriv'd of their part in this promise, turn'd out of their κληρονομία, inheritance or portion) yet because this is an irregular and extraordinary case (in respect of which this general rule is capable of exception) and because this is a particular tryal, fit to befal a righteous man, to see whether his Estate will tempt him out of his duty, and because the Godly man's ταῦτα πάντα temporal felicity, that is promised to him, is always with this reservation, unless it be fitter for his turn, that God make some experiments by afflicting of him, (which, if he be found faithful in such tryals, will encrease his glory, and abundantly recompense the loss of this earth here, by the Land of the Living hereafter) and because the hundred-fold promised in this life, i. e. the most fruitful Canaan harvest, the κληρονομία τ̃ γῆς, the inheriting of this plentiful Land, is dispensed μετὰ διωγμῶν, with an allay or mixture of persecutions, therefore, I say the truth of this promise still remains good, that the meek shall possess the earth, that obedience to superiours hath generally (though with the exceptions premised) the promise of this Life, and on the other side the [κραυγὴ] or cry, which, saith Procopius on *Isa. c.*5.7. is the direct contrary to this murmuring, disobedience, sedition, &c. is there, saith he, the peculiar cause of desolation, even of temporal infelicities. h. Γῆ

V. 8. See God.] The seeing God here may perhaps not look so far off, as the Beatifical vision in another world, but be first fulfill'd in the work of Grace, in opening c. Ὀφθήσεται Θεὸν opening our eyes to behold the wonderful things of God's law, for this belongs peculiarly to the purity of heart, as that excludes both hypocriſy and uncleanneſs, filthineſs of the fleſh and ſpirit. Thus, ſaith Origen, did God exhibit himſelf to be ſeen of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, not to the eyes of their Bodies, ἀλλὰ καθαρᾷ καρδίᾳ, to the pure heart, contra Celſ. l. 1. p. 285. Many excellent Diſcourſes toward this purpoſe we have from the light of Nature among the Pythagorean Philoſophers, Porphyry, Iamblichus, Plotinus, Marinus, when they ſpeak of their καθαρτικὴ, particularly in Hierocles his Pref. on the Golden Verſes.

d. Ποιεῖν

V. 9. The peace-makers] The word ποιεῖν to do, or work, in ſacred dialect, doth oft ſignify the habit or bent of the mind, with the conſequent actions; ſo [ἁμαρτίαν ποιεῖν] to commit, or live indulgently in ſin, and [ποιεῖν δικαιοσύνην] to have a ſincere inclination or reſolution of mind (which is never ſine effectu, utterly uneffectual) toward righteouſneſs, as that ſignifies the practice of Chriſtian virtues. Thus εἰρήνην ποιοῦντες, Jam. 3.18. they that work peace, are peaceable minded men, and ſo proportionably the compound [εἰρηνοποιοὶ] peace-makers, is uſed in this place in the ſame ſignification. As for the κληθήσονται υἱοὶ, (which follows) they ſhall be called ſons, that muſt be rendred according to the importance of the word καλεῖσθαι to be called, i. e. to be, mention'd on Mat. 2. k. (And ſo 'tis uſed, 1 John 3. 1.) and υἱοὶ Θεοῦ, ſons of God, both here and v. 45. are they which partake of (and reſemble him in) ſome ſpecial divine excellencies (as ſons of God are imitators of him, Eph. 5. 1.) ſuch as peaceable mindedneſs here; juſt as υἱοὶ Ἄρεως ſons of Mars, are good ſoldiers, and ſons of Neptune, men of a ſavage and tyrannous diſpoſition. And ſo 'tis obſervable, that John 8. 39. the ποιεῖν ἔργα, to do the works, and θέλειν ποιεῖν, being willing, or delighting to do them, v. 44. are evidences of ſons.

e. Ὀνειδίσωσιν

V. 11. Shall revile you] As [καλέσουσιν ὄνομα, they ſhall call his name,] c. 1. 23. ſignifies his name ſhall be called, (and ſo in other places there noted) ſo here ὅταν ὀνειδίσωσιν] when they ſhall perſecute, and revile you, ſignifies when ye ſhall be perſecuted, &c. and v. 12. [οὕτω γὰρ ἐδίωξαν τοὺς Προφήτας, for ſo they perſecuted the Prophets, (without any intimation who the Perſecutors were) is, ſo were the Prophets before you perſecuted. See Note on Luke 16. 9.

f. Μωρανθῇ

V. 13. Have loſt its ſavour] The Hebrew word תפל ſignifies two things, firſt ἄναλον, inſipidum, unſavoury, and then, by a Metaphor, μωρὸν fooliſh; and here one of thoſe is taken for the other, and ſo [μωρανθῇ] uſed for being ſaltleſs, inſipid, unſavoury, ἄναλον γένηται having loſt all its ſaltneſs, all of that quality that belongs to that creature.

g. Νόμος

V. 17. Law] The uſe of the word νόμος law] in the New Teſtament is very obſervable, and the ſeveral notions of it may perhaps be reducible to two heads: for firſt it ſignifies in one general notion the whole way of œconomy among the Jews under the Old Teſtament (taken preciſely by it ſelf, without oppoſition to the reformation wrought after by Chriſt) that way that men were then put into, in order to their eternal weal. Thus in this chap. v. 17. I came not to diſſolve the law, &c. but πληρῶσαι to perfect it, i.e. not to deſtroy or pull aſunder that former fabrick under the Old Teſtament, but to reform and improve it in ſome things wherein it may be better; and ſo, v. 18. when he ſaith, One Iota or tittle ſhall not paſs from the law, till all be done, i.e. till the end of the world (and again, v. 19. when of him that loſeth any of the leaſt of theſe commandments, he ſaith, that he ſhall be the leaſt in the kingdom of heaven) 'tis clear, that the Law there ſignifies the Old Teſtament courſe, the religion of the former age, which indeed Chriſt came to review, and reform, to bring ſubſtance inſtead of ſhadows, to make clearer revelations, clearer or higher promiſes and precepts, (which he calls πλη-ρῶσαι, to fill up) but not λῦσαι to pull aſunder, or diſſolve it; this Juſtin Martyr excellently ſets down in his diſcourſe with Tryphon the Jew. Some things there were, ſaith he, (not only permitted, as that of divorce, &c. but) διαταχθέντα ordained and appointed you, διὰ τὴν σκληροκαρδίαν τοῦ λαοῦ, becauſe of the hard-heartedneſs of that people, as Circumciſion, and other ſuch outward obſervances, to interpoſe ſome checks or ſtops in their courſe of carnality and impiety, that they were ſo bent to, that they would not mind the τὰς αἰωνίους καὶ φύσει δικαιοπραξίας καὶ εὐσεβείας, thoſe eternal and natural rules of juſtice and piety. Now theſe things being thus required of them by the Law of Moſes, they again abuſed contrary to God's deſign, placed all Piety in thoſe external performances, and neglected the natural juſtice and piety ſignified, and meant by God to be ſecured, and not betrayed by them. This therefore Chriſt comes to reform, to require the ſubſtantial Duties inſtead of the ſhadows that darkly ſignified them, and all the changes wrought by Chriſt were of this nature, Reformations; and ſo, we know, pulling out weak or broken Timber in a building, and putting in better and ſtronger, is not pulling down of a houſe, but only repairing it; ſo far was Chriſt's deſign from deſtroying of it. And it is very obſervable that in that place of v. 17. the Prophets are added to the Law, and ſo both in that, and many other places, the Law and the Prophets together ſignify the religion of the former age, ſimply taken, as that differs from Chriſtianity, which was the altering ſome things in it to the better, reforming and mending of it, ſo Mat. 7. 12. This is the law and the prophets, i.e. this is a prime part of the Jewiſh religion or doctrine, and c. 11. 13. the Prophets and the Law propheſied till John, i. e. the Jewiſh religion continued in every part till John the Baptiſt, and Luke 16. 16. the ſame is again repeated, and Mat. 22. 40. all the law and the prophets,] i.e. the whole doctrine of that Religion. Thus Mat. 12. 5. & 22. 36. & 23. 23. Luke 2. 22, 23, 24. 39. Luke 10. 26. & 16. 17. & 24. 44. and ſo generally throughout all the Goſpels, and moſt places in the Acts it ſignifies, viz. the Religion of the Jews, only with this difference, that ſometimes the context pointeth to one part of it, ſometimes to another, but to any of theſe parts ſtill, as they are in conjunction with the other parts, and ſo with the whole body of their religion. In the Epiſtles, (and perhaps in ſome of the places of the Acts, as when there is mention of ζηλωταὶ τοῦ νόμου, Zelots of the Law, and the like) ſome variation may be obſerved, and that will give us the ſecond notion of the word, as 'tis ſet oppoſite to the Goſpel. For though Chriſt had told them, and that moſt truly, that he came not to deſtroy the law, but only to reform and perfect it in all reſpects, yet ſuch was the blindneſs and obſtinacy of the Jews, and their zeal for every ceremony in the Law, and their pride in diſcriminating themſelves from all other men, by that priviledge of having and obſerving the Law, juſt as 'twas given to Moſes, (i. e. the Jewiſh Religion in every tittle) that when Chriſt would make Reformations, telling them the true ſignifications of their types, and giving them ſubſtance for ſhadows, they look'd upon Chriſt and his Diſciples after him as enemies of the Religion of the Jews, and ſet up their more imperfect legal obſervances (which were only burthens to exerciſe, and employ them in time of their minority, and had nothing of real good in them, and might well be left off, eſpecially when God in Chriſt declared his will that they ſhould, and gave excellent, moral, ſubſtantial precepts inſtead of them) againſt all Chriſt's ſcheme, or form of Reformation. Which dealing of theirs was the ſame in effect, as if that God, that firſt deſign'd the frame of the Temple, ſhould after appoint ſome little things to be alter'd in it (very much to the better, from that which was leſs to that which were more uſeful and agreeable) and to that end, to pull out ſome little pins, to take down ſome partitions, and the like; to take off wood, and put Gold inſtead of it; and the people that firſt received that Temple from God, (and obſerv'd, and valued it only for his ſake) ſhould now oppoſe the ſo uſeful alterations and reformations as deſtructive to this Temple of God's erecting, and be zealous for the punctual retaining of that old form againſt God himſelf in this new deſignation. This was the the practice of the Jews generally in Christ's time, nay even of a great number of those that had received and believed on Christ, for though they rejected not what he taught, but followed him, became his Disciples, took him for (and clave to him as) the Messias, yet many of them, (especially those that had any thing of the Pharisee in them before their conversion) would have all the Mosaical Rites observ'd by all Christians, Acts 15. 2. Which was in effect, as if they should accept of a Reformation, and embrace all the new things which Christ brought in, but withal require to keep all the old ones too, those which he took out to put those in the stead; Or as if he, that had his burthen made easier by God, should call for his harder heavier burthen again, and oppose God and all his faithful servants, nay persecute them (as the zealous Judaizing Christians and Gnosticks after did) because they would not agree with them to impose these heavier tasks on all men. How unreasonable this was is easily discern'd; but however by this means it came to pass, that a great contention did in the infancy of the Church arise, betwixt the Judaizing zelots, and the orthodox meek disciples of Christ. The former were for the observation and continuance of every ceremony of the Judaical law, obliging all the very Gentiles, as many as accepted of the faith of Christ, to undertake the observance of it, to be circumcis'd, &c. The latter asserted the liberty of the Gentiles, who were never under that Jewish yoke, and for the Jewish converts, insisted on Christ's reformation, and consequently the abolition, and non-obligation of those shadows, which he had changed for that which was so much more excellent, *Rom.*7.4. The Judaizers yet farther press'd the great prerogative that the Jews had beyond all others, in having that Law of Moses, meaning by it that exact form, as it was given by him, and as that was oppos'd to Christ's reformation, or the same now review'd and reform'd by Christ. Nay because the promises made to Abraham were by them suppos'd to belong to all the Jews, which stuck close to that old Mosaical form, and to none else, and to help them to justification, to the favour of God, and pardon of sins, *Mat.*3.8,9. (tho' they lived in many sins unreform'd, and those such, as were of far greater moment, Mat. 23. 23. than the omitting the ceremonies of the Law could ever be deemed, which they so vehemently stood for) therefore they more and more enhaunsed and pressed the necessity of retaining every pin in the Temple, every ceremony of the Mosaical Law, as it was before Christ's reformation; and with them the Gnosticks soon complied, and generally inflam'd the unbelieving Jews against all the Orthodox Christians, that did not: And against these Hereticks, and those boasters of this law, as a prerogative beyond all others, (these assertors of Moses's old form against Christ's review and reformation) the Apostles wrote the greatest part of most of their Epistles: And so in them, tho' the word be very oft used in the former notion for the Jewish Religion, not as 'tis opposed to, but as 'tis perfected by the Gospel, (and that so often, that 'twere tedious to name them) yet doth the word νόμος the law, and ἔργα νόμου, the works of the law, many times signify (that which I now set down for the second notion of the word) this old form of the Jewish Religion (as it was, before it was reform'd by Christ in those particulars fore-mentioned) and that in opposition to the new form, as it now stands reform'd and heightned, alter'd and improv'd by Christ; Thus *Rom.*2.17. ἀναπαύῃ τῷ νόμῳ, (speaking to and of the growing sect of the Gnosticks, or Judaizers) He rests in, depends on, and boasts of the law, discriminates himself from all others, not only Gentiles but Christians, which Judaize not, and tho' he commit gross sins against the very law, v.21,22. yet he thinks to be justified by being a punctual assertor of the external observances of the law, against all things else, even against God's own reformations. So *Rom.*3.20. By the works of the law no flesh shall be justified before him, i.e. by observation of the form prescribed by Moses, as it differs from Christ's reformation, or by bare observing the outward ceremonial without the inward substantial part of it, the circumcision without the purity, *Rom.*2. 28,29. For, as it follows, by that is ἐπίγνωσις, the discerning or acknowledging of sin, the law of circumcision shews a man his obligation to inward purity, and his being circumcised is an accusation of him for every impurity he commits, far from justifying him in the commission of it. So again, v.21. χωρὶς νόμου (as v.28. χωρὶς ἔργων νόμου) without the law, or without the works of the law, i.e. without that punctual observation of the Mosaical form, the righteousness of God (or God's way of justifying men) is manifested. Where 'tis observable, that this way of justifying χωρὶς νόμου, without the law, taken in this second sense, is said to be testified by the [νόμου καὶ προφῆται] the law and the prophets, in the first sense; it being often intimated by them, that not the outward ceremony, but inward purity was that which is acceptable to God. So again, v.27. νόμου ἔργων, the law of works] opposed to νόμου πίστεως, the law of faith, the outward to the inward law, where yet, v.31. having oppos'd them in that second notion, he makes them friends again in the first notion of the law, in which, saith he, Christ did not abolish, but only perfect, and so establish the Law, heighten the former duties, and require more elevated performance of them, than was before believed to be under precept; and for the ceremonial, change them from the external to the internal performance of them; and so likewise for the Judicial, requiring the equity of them, i.e. that which among us is proportionable to that which appeared to be God's will among them, as far as the variation of circumstances makes prudent, or reasonable for us. So again, *Rom.*4.13. οὐ διὰ νόμου ἡ ἐπαγγελία τῷ Ἀβραάμ, the promise to Abraham was not by the Law; the Law there signifies the command of circumcision, Gen. 17. 10. which being after the giving the promises to him, *Gen.*12.2,7. and 13,14. and 15.1, 4,6. and 17.2. it could not be said, that that was the foundation of the promises made to Abraham; so Gal. 3.17,18,21. and so Rom. 4. 14,15,16. So again, Rom. 6. 14,15. where [ὑπὸ νόμον, under the law] under the Mosaical yoke of legal performances, such as Christ reform'd, and alter'd, is oppos'd to [ὑπὸ χάριν, under grace] that state under Christ's reformation. So *Rom.*7.4. you are dead to the law, or, the law to you, you are no more bound to it, and v. 6. we are freed from the Law, i.e. from those parts of it, wherein Christ's reformation hath made a change. So *Rom.*8.3. τὸ ἀδύνατον τοῦ νόμου, the inability and weakness of the law] points to that second notion of the law, before 'twas perfected by Christ. So Gal. 2.16. three times, ἔργα νόμου, the works of the law] in the same sense, as was explained, Rom. 3. 20. So again, c 3. 2,5,10,11, 12. and in many more places in that chapter, (only with this light change, the Law without the mercy, or pardon of sin brought in by the Gospel, the Law taken alone, as exclusive of the other, for by that, Cursed is every one that continueth not in all, &c. And in this sense is v. 13. the curse of the law, that punishment, that the law brings on every sinner, and none but the Gospel frees us from.) So *c.*4.21. and *c.*5.4.18. So νόμου τῶν ἐντολῶν, the law of commandments] Eph. 2. 15. (though νόμου ἐντολῆς σαρκικῆς, the law of a fleshly commandment, *Heb.*7. 16. belong to another matter, speaking of Melchisedek and Christ, typified by him, and denotes a law making provision for the mortality of Priests, appointing them in succession) that Codex or body of Commandments under Moses, before Christ's reformation. So *Phil.*3. 6,9. Heb. 7. 19. And because this Law of Moses was written and set down in the Scripture of the Old Testament, and so opposed in that respect to the Law of Nature in the hearts of the Gentiles, and all men (called ἄγραφος νόμος, the unwritten law) therefore as the word νόμος or law is used, so in the same notions the word [γράμμα writing] is used also. Sometimes in the first notion of νόμος, for the law or religion of the Jews. So *Rom.*2.27. σὺ ὁ διὰ γράμματος καὶ περιτομῆς, thee that hast literally observed the law of Moses, and art circumcised, and v.29. (with a little change) ἐν πνεύματι καὶ γράμματι, the circumcision in the, the ſpirit, not in the letter, or writing, i.e. the ſpiritual circumciſion, purity of the heart, and not that outward commanded by Moſes's Law. So Rom. 7. 6. we ſerve in the newneſs of the ſpirit, i.e. according to this new reformed law, which looks moſt to inward purity, and not ἐν παλαιότητι γράμματος, in the oldneſs of the letter or writing, which required external circumciſion, &c. So 2 Cor. 3. 6. God hath fitted and prepared us to be miniſters of the New Teſtament, οὐ γράμματος, ἀλλὰ πνεύματος, not of the writing, but of the ſpirit, i. e. not of the Law, as it ſignifies the external body of the Moſaical conſtitutions unreformed, but of the Spiritual or Evangelical law, the law of faith, or, the law, as Chriſt hath reformed it, or the Covenant of mercy and pardon of ſin under the Goſpel: For, as it follows, γράμμα ἀποκτείνει, that law, as it is in Moſes, unreformed by Chriſt, brings death, but no life; Condemnation, but no juſtification, or pardon unto the world; but the Spirit, i. e. this new reformed law, ζωοποιεῖ, gives life, enables to gain life, to come to juſtification or ſalvation. And ſo again, v. 7. Διακονία θανάτου ἐν γράμμασιν, the miniſtration of death in the writing, i. e. in the Moſaical or written law, as it ſtands there unreform'd by Chriſt, and oppoſite to the διακονία πνεύματος, v. 8. the adminiſtration of the Spirit, i.e. this new, reform'd, evangelical law; which either firſt, becauſe it comes nearer to the ſoul, and requires purity there, whereas the Moſaical law deals moſt in external purifications, or 2*dly* becauſe the H. Ghoſt came down firſt on Chriſt, then on the Diſciples, to confirm this new Evangelical courſe under Chriſt, in oppoſition to the former under Moſes; or 3*dly*, becauſe in this Evangelical adminiſtration there is Grace given to enable us to perform what is now required (and that Grace is a gift of God's Spirit) for one, or all theſe reaſons, I ſay, it is called πνεῦμα, the Spirit. Thus much in this place of the word [νόμος law] and (by occaſion of that) of γράμμα and πνεῦμα, letter and ſpirit, which may help to the underſtanding of many places, and will not need to be repeated again, when we come to them.

h. Πληρῶσαι

Ib. To fulfil] The Greek word [πληρῶσαι] is anſwerable to the Hebrew מלא, which ſignifies not only τελέω, to perform, but τελειόω, to perfect, to fill up, as well as to fulfil; and ſo is rendred ſometimes by one, ſometimes by t'other. And the Greek it ſelf is ſo uſed in like manner; when it refers to a Word, or a Prophecy, then it is to perform, to fulfil, 2 Chron. 36. 22. 1 Mac. 2. 55. In other caſes it is to fill up, to compleat, to perfect, Eccluſ. 33. 16. & 39. 12. 2 Chron. 24. 10. & Mat. 23. 32. This the ancient Greek Fathers expreſs by the ſimilitude of a veſſel, that had ſome water in it before, but now is filled up to the brim, and again of a Picture, that is firſt drawn rudely, the limbs only and lineaments, with a cole or pen, but when the Painter comes to draw it to the life, to add the ζωγράφησις to the σκιαγραφία, then it is ſaid to be fill'd up. This may farther appear by what Chriſt here adds, Except your righteouſneſs, i. e. Chriſtian actions, and performances, exceed the righteouſneſs of the Scribes and Phariſees, i.e. go higher than that ſtricteſt ſect of the Jews, and the Doctors among them thought themſelves obliged to, or taught others that they were obliged, they ſhall not enter into the kingdom of God, paſs for Chriſtians here, or prove Saints hereafter. This ſame truth is at large exemplified in the remainder of this Chap. by induction of ſeveral particulars of the Law, firſt barely ſet down by Chriſt, and then with Chriſt's improvement added to them, in this form of ſpeech, But I ſay unto you.] Thus when Rom. 8. 3. it is ſaid that God condemn'd ſin in the fleſh, i.e. ſhew'd a great example of his wrath againſt ſin, by what Chriſt ſuffer'd on the Croſs for our ſins, the reaſon of God's doing ſo, is rendred v. 4. that the δικαίωμα τοῦ νόμου, Ordinance of the Law, Circumciſion, &c. πληρωθῇ ἐν ἡμῖν, might be perfectly perform'd in us, i.e. in a higher degree than by the Jews it was thought to oblige; And that it is the general interpretation of the ancient Church-writers, (eſpecially the Greeks) down to St. Auguſt. may appear by theſe few of a multitude of teſtimonies; Irenæus, l. 4. c. 27. Dominus naturalia legis non diſſolvit, ſed extendit, ſed & implevit. Again, ſed plenitudinem & extenſionem, again, ſuperextendi decreta, & augeri ſubjectionem, and again ſpeaking of Chriſt, adimplentis, extendentis, dilatantis, which are all the ſenſe of πληρῶσαι here. So S. Baſil on Pſ. 15. calls Chriſt τελειότερον νομοθέτην. See the Author of the Conſtitutions, l. 6. c. 23. So in Chryſoſtome, Tom. 3. p. 93. Ἐν καινῇ νόμοι μυεῖσι καὶ σὺν πολλῶν μείζοσιν. And that Chriſt's giving of Laws was πλήρωσις καὶ ἐπίτασις, and that Chriſt did not here recite all the Commandments of the Decalogue, becauſe he meant not πάντας αὐξῆσαι. So that it was then μειζόνων ἐλλογῶν καιρὸς, & ἐπὶ τὰ αὐτὰ κεῖται παλαιοῖς καὶ ἡμῖν σκάμματα. So Theophylact, that Chriſt came not καθαιρεῖν σκιαγραφίαν, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ἀναπληροῦν. [a] And ἐλθόντος τοῦ Χριστοῦ παλαίσματα, εὐκολώτερα γέγονε, διὸ καὶ μείζω ἀγωνίσματα, ὡς μείζονος βοηθείας δεδομένης ἡμῖν, When Chriſt was come, our contentions became eaſier, wherefore we had alſo greater tasks, as having greater aſſiſtance afforded us. And [b] παλαιοτέρου νόμου ὑψηλότερον νόμον ἔχων τοῦ Χριστοῦ, having a Law more ſublime than the old Law, viz. the Law of Chriſt. And [c] οὐχ ἵνα περισσεύσωμεν τοῦ τοῦ νόμου, διὰ τοῦτο ἐλευθεριάζομεν, ἀλλ' ἵνα ὑπερβαίνωμεν καὶ τὸν νόμον, We are not therefore free, that we may tranſgreſs the Law, but that we may tranſcend or exceed the law; where inſtead of Chriſt's πληρῶσαι, to fill up] he ſets ὑπερβαίνειν to exceed and go beyond. And [d] νόμον ἐκβάλλει ὡς ἐλάττονα τῆς παρὰ τοῦ πνεύματος διδομένης φιλοσοφίας, He caſts out the law as inferiour, and leſs than the Philoſophy, or rule of living, given by the Spirit.

And Ampliandæ, adimplendæque legi adjutricem Chriſtus præfecit patientiam, l. de Pat. And, Chriſtus Dei creatoris præcepta ſupplendo & conſervavit & auxit, l. 4. cont. Marc. And, legem ſiſtimus. Scilicet in iis quæ & nunc Novo Teſtamento introducta, etiam cumulatiore præcepto prohibentur, pro non mæchaberis, qui viderit, &c. So S. Aug. ſerm. in mont. l. 1. Chriſtus implevit addendo quod minus habet, & ſic perficiendo confirmavit, & dum fiunt quæ adduntur, multò magis fiunt, quæ permiſſa ſunt ad inchoationem. And, quæ à me adduntur, qui non veni ſolvere ſed adimplere. And, non ſecundum illa minima, ſed ſecundum ea quæ dicturus ſum. Quæ ſunt autem iſta? ut abundet juſtitia, &c.

V. 18. Jot] Κεραία] is thought by ſome to refer to the Hebrew Chirec, by others to ſome corners of the Hebrew letters, from whence their Criticks were wont to deduce great myſteries. But the word muſt be reſolved to be of a Greek origination, and there it ſignifieth ἀρχὴ γράμματος, (for ſo ſure we muſt read in Heſychius, not κερία, ἀρχὴ γράμματα, but κεραία, ἀρχὴ γράμματος) the beginning of a letter, which is leſs than the leaſt letter Iota, which went before; thus (ſaith Plutarch, l. 2. adverſus Col.) did Epicurus contend with Democrates, περὶ συλλαβῶν καὶ κεραιῶν, about ſyllables and theſe, where moſt probably they ſignify pieces of letters, as ſyllables are pieces of words. Thus is the word uſed in Heſychius for any the leaſt part of any thing; thus he renders κάρφος (mention'd here, c. 7. 3.) κεραία ξύλου λεπτή, a thin minute piece of wood, of ſome, but very little length. The Hebrew reads יוד, which the Rabbines frequently uſe for the little ſtalk or tail of any fruit. The Syriac hath ſerto, which Ferrarius interprets minima linea, and ſo the Arabick, chatta linea or lineola, the leaſt ſtroke or part of a letter. And accordingly it is here ſet to denote any the ſmalleſt inconſiderable parts, any minutiæ in the Law. The word is here joined with ἰῶτα, the name of a Greek Letter, which cannot be tranſlated into Engliſh any otherwiſe than that it is a Greek [ι] and therefore I have retain'd it in the margent, as Alpha and Omega two Greek letters are retain'd in the rendring of the Apocalypſe.

i. Κεραία

V. 21. Heard] There were three ways among the Hebrews of interpreting Scriptures, firſt שמיעה, hearing, ἀκρόασις, when any fact is recited, or Hiſtorical ſenſe explicated, which to have heard is ſufficient without out any more. 2ly, אגדא mystical exposition. 3ly, מתלי parabolical exposition. The first of these belongs to those passages of Scripture, which were plain matters of fact, as here plain commands of the Decalogue, without any other expositions on them, than the bare reciting them out of the book; and to shew that this and that of adultery v. 22. and that of perjury v. 33. were commands of the Decalogue, and that that of the lex talionis, law of retaliation, v. 38. and loving friends, and hating enemies v. 43, (which two, though they agree with the rest in the [ἐκούσατε, ye have heard,] yet differ in the τοῖς ἀρχαίοις, to them of old) were doctrines of Moses law, though not of the Decalogue (as that of Divorce having neither the [ἠκούσατε, ye have heard] nor the [τοῖς ἀρχαίοις] to them of old time, is neither) to shew this, I say, it is that Christ's form here still begins with ἐκούσατε, ye have heard, in reference to the שמעתא hearing, formention'd, which belong'd to such; or in reference to [Hear O Israel!] the form with which the Law began, in Moses's reciting it, Deut. 5. 1. and so, in like manner, his form of addition [ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, but I say to you] is an intimation of the Rabbins form, when having set down another's doctrine, they make observation upon it, ואני אומר And, or, But I say.

1. Ραχὰ

V. 22. Racha] The word Ραχὰ is an Hebrew word, and signifies vain, or empty, and being applied to any man, is a word of Contumely, calling him empty, despicable, witless fellow, this is here forbidden by Christ, and (as an unsupportable wound to another's reputation, which is generally prized next to life, often preferr'd before it) is by him thought fit to be superadded to the old command of not killing. And that this is an elevation of Christ's doctrine above the Heathen Theology, may appear by a known passage in Homer Iliad. α. where Minerva forbids Achilles striking Agamemnon,

Ἀλλ' ἄγε λῆγ' ἔριδος, μηδὲ ξίφος ἕλκεο χειρί,

Leave off contending, and draw not thy sword, yet gives leave to reproach him, and counsels to contumelious words——Ἀλλ' ἤτοι ἔπεσιν μὲν ὀνείδισον, &c.
which is here most strictly prohibited by Christ.

m. Καλλαλάτησθαι Διαλλάτησθαι

V. 24. Reconciled] The words καλλαλάτησθαι, and διαλλάτησθαι] in the Passive voice have a peculiar sense in the New Testament; In ordinary Greek Authors they signifie to be pacified, reconciled, but contrariwise in these (according to the notation of the reciprocal conjugation, Hithpael, among the Hebrews) to reconcile himself to another, i. e. to appease, get the favour of that other. So 1 Cor. 7. 11. ἀνδρὶ καλλαγήτω let her appease, reconcile her self to her husband. So Rom. 5. 10. If we being enemies καλλαγημεν τῷ Θεῷ, were reconciled to God, i. e. restored to his favour (God pacified toward us) So 2 Cor. 5. 20. καλλαγητε τῷ Θεῷ, take care that God be reconciled unto you, and so here διαλλάγηθι τῷ ἀδελφῷ, take care that he be reconciled to thee, pacifie him, reconcile thy self to him, for that which goes before is, not that he hath done thee injury, but thou him [when thy brother hath somewhat against thee.] In which sense also that other phrase v. 25. [ἴσθι εὐνοῶν,] literally [be well minded] is to be taken, not that thou think well of thy injur'd brother (for that is not the business of that place) but that thou seek his favour and forgiveness, his accord and agreement with thee, that he may think well of thee, and be reconcil'd to thee. See Note on Mark 14. 54. f. So in like manner the Active καλαλλάτειν is not, as in other Authors it signifies to appease, but) to restore any man to another's favour, 2 Cor. 5. 19. All this is to be made up by observing the importance of the Hebrew רצה in the several Conjugations.

Καταλλάτειν

n. Ὑπηρέτης

V. 25. Officer.] The word ὑπηρέτης Officer, or Sergeant, which is here used, and so in like manner Job. 18. 3. is also used Luke 4. 20. in another sense, by which compared together, it appears that the same men which in the Consistory, or Court of Judgment among the Jews, were Apparitors, or Sergeants, were also in the Synagogues imployed (as Deacons) to minister, to bring and take away the book, &c. So the very word Διάκονος that we ordinarily render Deacon, doth Mat. 22. 13. signifie the Officers that take and carry men to prison, and (as it was the Lictor's office) bind men hand and foot, &c. Instead of ὑπηρέτης here, is πεζίλως Luke 12. Πεζίλως 58. i. e. the Sergeant or Lictor that executes the sentence, to which any man is adjudg'd by the Court of Justice.

Διάκονος

V. 28. Looketh] Βλέπειν here signifies not to see, but to behold, consider, look upon with some intention, or earnestness, or voluptuous design. Proportionably to what we find of this word, when 'tis applied to other matters, as Ephes. 5. 15. Βλέπετε, see, i. e. take heed very diligently, πῶς ἀκριβῶς, &c. that he walk accurately. And very frequently in that sense for taking heed. St. Chrysost. here reads, ὁ ἐμβλέπων he that looks upon, and as Theophylact renders it by standeth and looketh earnestly, so he by maketh it a business to do so, hunts after, feeds his eyes with the spectacle, nails them to handsome faces, and again, looks that he may desire. An example of this there is in the two Elders, Sus. v. 32. who being denied the farther enjoying of their lusts, command to uncover her face, that they may be filled with her beauty. And so 1 Esdr. 4. 19. they gape, and even with open mouth fix their eyes fast on her: And Eccluс. 9. 5. & 8. μὴ καλαμάνθανε, gaze not, look not on a maid, as if thou wert a learning her, filling thy fancy with her beauty, lest thou be insnared by her complexion, colour, or beauty in her cheeks: for so I suppose the right reading (ψευδίοις not ἐπιλιμίοις) imports. So Ecclus. 41. 21. καταγόπως contemplating anothers man wife, and περιεργία (not, as 'tis rendred, being overbusie, but) a curious earnest beholding his maid, as the word is used 1 Tim. 5. 13. and Ecclus. 42. 12. Look not earnestly on any man for beauty, and so the Fathers generally use περιεργία, to this matter. And so in human Authors. Ἐρωτικοῖς ὀφθαλμοῖς εἶδε, καὶ τὸ κάλλος περιεργάσατο, Niceph. Basilac. Narr. β. Look'd with amorous eyes, and earnestly beheld his beauty, and so ἔνδον ψυχῆς ἐνθαλαμεύσας ἔρωτα, bedded her love in her heart, it being dangerous to let it out, the very thing call'd here, committing adultery in the heart. The thing then here forbidden by Christ is the delight or pleasure of looking on carnal objects, which pious men of the Old Testament have abstain'd from, as Job 31. 1. but is now most strictly prohibited by Christ. Thus (saith * Athenagoras) τὸ ἡδέως ἰδεῖν, μοιχείαν, to behold with pleasure is adultery to a Christian, μὴ τὰς ὄψεις τῶν παρθένων περιεργάζεσθαι, 'tis not lawful to behold curiously the beauty of virgins, * Cat. in Job, and so ἐμβλέπειν περιεργότερον ὀφθείς ὀλισθεῖς in † Clem. Alex. and ὁρᾶν ἀκολάστως, the incontinence of the eye is forbidden the Christian, saith S. Chrysostom. And even among the Heathens, the answer of Pericles to Sophocles, shewing him a beautiful woman, is considerable, † σώφρονα στρατηγὸν οὐ μόνον τὰς χεῖρας, ἀλλὰ καὶ † ὄψιν ἔχειν παρ' ἑαυτῷ δεῖ, A sober General must keep at home, or in his power, his eyes as well as hands. Strob. Serm. 17.

p. Ἐρρέθη

V. 31. It hath been said] The form of the Preface here, being no more than [ἐρρέθη it hath been said] without either the ἠκούσατε, ye have heard, or [ἀρχαίοις, to them of old] doth note that the matter here recited was no Precept, given either by Moses in the Law, or by any other after him, to that antient people, but that it was only a permission, by allowing impunity in the דבר ערות the case of nakedness, or turpitude, Deut. 24. 1. to this the Pharisees distinctly refer, c. 19. 7. and Mark 10. 7. Why then did Moses command, &c. where yet all that Moses did command is only this, that he that doth put away his wife (in the case, which for the hardness of their hearts he permits v. 8. but allows not, much less commands) shall do it formally, and legally, giving her a bill of Divorce, that by that means the divorced Woman may marry again, and bring forth children by some other man. 'Tis true indeed there were some licentious doctrines brought after into the Schools by some of their Doctors or latter Interpreters of Moses. One sort of them which acknowledged it to be allowed in no other case but that of nakedness, or turpitude, did yet extend the word turpitude to almost every matter of dislike; another sort extended the liberty or allowance (without any reflexion on that of turpitude) to כל דבר שום κατὰ πᾶσαν αἰτίαν, Mat. 19. 3. for, or upon every cause. But the Context here seems not to refer to these

Doctors,

Doctors, but peculiarly to the Permiſſion afforded by Moſes (and the command of giving the Bill of Divorce) *Deut.*24.which indulgence or impunity,is here, and Mat. 19. retrenched by Chriſt, and ſtrict command given, both that no cauſe but that of Fornication ſhall be competent for Divorce,and that no Chriſtian Society ſhall grant that toleration, which only for the hardneſs of their hearts was then afforded the Jews.

q. ἀντιστῆναι

V. 39. Reſiſt] The word ἀντιστῆναι may here ſignifie (in a notion,wherein ἀντὶ,in Compoſition, imports vicem referre) repayment of injury, violence, &c. as in the word ἀντιμισθίαν, ἀντιποδίδοναι, to ſuffer by way of retaliation, and give by way of recompence, &c. and ἀντικαλεῖν to invite him again who had invited thee, Luke 14. 12. So doth Tertullian ſeem to render it,Læſi vicem referre prohibentur, *Apol.c.*37.when we are injured we are forbidden to make returns, the ſame that Rom. 12. 17. is called κακὸν ἀντὶ κακοῦ ἀποδιδόναι, to repay evil for evil, which is there the interpretation of ἐκδικεῖν ἑαυτούς, v.19. avenging themſelves. And 'tis obſervable that the word is applied in the Old Teſtament to impleading, or proſecuting at law, as *Jer.*49.19. where the Hebrew reads עיוד diem dicere, to implead,the Greek have τίς ἀνθίστησεταί μοι; who ſhall reſiſt me? So *Jer.*50.44. and ſo the word עמד when 'tis rendred ἀνθιστῶαι, to reſiſt, Iſa. 5.8. it ſignifies impleading in judgment, and *Obad.*11. to uſe violence againſt any. So ענה which ſignifies any kind of return to another in word or action (and is ordinarily rendred ἀποκρίνομαι or ἀντιποκρίνομαι to anſwer) is rendred ἀνθιστῶαι to reſiſt, as *Deut.*19.18. *Iſa.*3.9. & 59. 12. *Jer.*14.7. by which (as 'tis here ſet in oppoſition to the lex talionis,law of retaliation,the eye for eye,v.38.)it will appear that in caſes of this nature (a light Contumely, &c.) not only private revenge is interdicted Chriſtians, but alſo the exacting of legal revenge before the Magiſtrate. But beſide this [ἀνθιστῶαι] ſignifies ordinarily violent and armed reſiſtance, *Rom.*13.2. and ſo in Heſychius [ἀνθιστάμενον] and [ἀνθιστρατευόμενον] reſiſting, and waging war, are all one; and ἀνθιστάτης, is ἀντίπαλος ἐν τῇ μάχῃ, in the Old Gloſſary, ἀνθίσταμαι, obſto, obſiſto, reſiſto,and ſo in Homer, and 'tis not certain that it ſignifies any otherwiſe here: and then the matter of Precept will be,that in injuries (of this nature again) we may not,for the ſecuring our ſelves from more, fly to any violent reſiſtance; Patience at the preſent, and depending on God's Providence for the futute, doth much better become a Chriſtian. And the Philoſopher hath ſtated it excellently, τὸ δ' οἴεσθαι εὐκαταφρονήτους τοῖς ἄλλοις εἶναι, ἐὰν μὴ τοὺς πρώτους ἐχθροὺς παντὶ τρόπῳ βλάψωμεν, σφόδρα ἀγεννῶν καὶ ἀνοήτων ἀνθρώπων, It is the part of degenerous and fooliſh men to think they ſhall be contemn'd by others, if they do not by all means avenge their firſt enemies, Φαμὲν γὰρ τὸν ἀκαταφρόνητον ποιεῖσθαι μὲν, καὶ κατὰ τὸ δυνατὸν εἶναι βλάπτειν, ἀλλὰ πολὺ μᾶλλον ποιεῖται κατὰ τὸ δυνατὸν εἶναι ὠφελεῖν, For as we ſay that a man will be deemed free from contempt by his being able to hurt, ſo much more will he be deemed by his being able to help. An example of this doctrine we have *Jam.*5.6. where the Juſt Man is impleaded (even capitally) condemn'd and executed, which is the higheſt that can befal, and yet οὐκ ἀνθίσταται ὑμῖν, (in a word equivalent with this notation of this) he makes no violent reſiſtance, prepares not to oppoſe your violence with the like,and then all bloody and violent means to avert and repay injuries (eſpecially ſuch ſlight injuries as are here mention'd) are here utterly forbidden. And as for the τῷ πονηρῷ, that is plainly the Greek of לרשע which *Exod.*2.13. is rendred diſtinctly [ἀδικοῦντι] to the injurious,as κακοπαθοῦντι the Paſſive,as he that receives injury, Acts 7. 24. See Note t.

r. Χιτῶνα

V. 40. Coat] Some difficulty there is, what is here meant by χιτὼν, which is rendred a coat, but more properly a ſhirt or ſark, and ἱμάτιον the upper garment; perhaps it may be cleared by finding the notation of the former, χιτὼν, for then the latter, ἱμάτιον, being a more general word for any kind of garment,will be here regulated by Analogy with that: For the original of [χιτὼν]there is little doubt,but it is Hebrew,differing ſo little from their כתונת; the Hebrew word notes it to be linnen, and it is the name of the Prieſt's inner garment among them,and ſo χιτὼν τὸ ἐνδότερον,ſaith Moſchopulus on Heſiod p. 70. it ſignifies the inner garment. Oxon. So in Ariſtophanes, Σὺ μόρτοι ἀπολεῖς κἠ χιτῶν ἔχεις· where χιτὼν ſignifies, and is by the Interpreter rendred interula, the inner garment. So in [b] Euſtathius ἐπέχει δὲ καὶ τὸ φᾶρος, it ſignifies the inner garment, and giving it an Etymology (ſomewhat remote) from χύω, he ſaith it is ſo called, ὡς ἀμέσως αὐτῷ σῶμα χυμένῳ τῷ σώματι, becauſe it is immediately next the body.And a phraſe in S. Jude v.23. [ἀπὸ τῆς σαρκὸς ἐσπιλωμένον χιτῶνα] ſignifies it to be next unto the Fleſh,the ſame which the Latines call camaſia,and the Greeks ſometimes σαπκάμισον, and Heſiod hath given it the Epithet of τερμιόεσσα, ἕλκων ποδήρη, i.e. a long garment,ſaith Moſchopulus. Thus in Hom. Iliad.

[b] In Iliad. β. Baſil.Edit. p.128.l.43

the outer and inner garment,both which cover the ſhame. So in Iſidore Peleuſiota, χιτὼν τῆς ἀσθενοῦς, is the ſhirt which covers the nakedneſs, which, ſaith he, was it,which Joſeph's Miſtreſs rent for him, and brought to her Huſband, for an evidence of his attempting to defile her. The ſame Hebrew כתונת is, by tranſpoſition of letters, the Latine tunica (by which 'tis often rendred) as the writers of the Origination of words have obſerved,and that, though it be ſometimes otherwiſe applied, agrees in the uſe of it alſo with the Greek and Hebrew; Tunica ſignifying principally the inner linnen garment, next the body, as when 'tis proverbially ſaid, Tunica propior eſt pallio, and when 'tis in the Poets uſed for a ſhirt or ſmock, as when Propertius ſaith of the Goddeſſes,

——quas Paſtor viderat olim
Idæis tunicam ponere verticibus.

This being the meaning of χιτὼν the inner linnen garment next the body; (Tunica ποδήρης ex lino (ſaith S.Hierom ad Fabiol.) uſque ad crura deſcendens,ſuch,ſaith he, as the ſoldiers Camiſia, cloſe to their body, that they may run or fight, or do any ſervice the more expeditely; and agreeably to that, the Roman Soldiers are ſaid to be μονοχίτωνες to have no other garment on when they fought, there will now be little doubt but that ἱμάτιον will ſignifie the upper exterior garment, the Hebrew מעיל or Latin pallium, which was the covering of the כתונת or χιτὼν or tunica, and therefore in Plautus in Aulul. when they are a ſearching one for ſomewhat loſt, 'tis firſt, agedum,excute dum pallium,then when that is done (when the upper garment is taken off,and yet the thing not found) it follows,nè inter tunicas habeas,ſignifying pallium to be the upper, tunica to be the under garment. So Acts 9.39. we find together χιτῶνας,and ἱμάτια, all that belonged to the clothing of the poor Widows there, the under, and the upper garments. So in the enumeration of the High-Prieſts garments, *Cod. Jom.c.*7.§ 5.there be four garments mentioned of the Prieſt, and כתונת χιτὼν, the firſt of them and then,ſaith he,the High-Prieſt adds four more to theſe, which are all upper garments, worn over the other, and מעיל is one of thoſe,as here ἱμάτιον is added to χιτὼν. And in Heſiod, χλαῖνα ἥδυν χλαμύδα, ſaith the Scholiaſt,τὸ ἐκτὸς καὶ παχύτερον, the outward garment thicker and warmer than the other, and it is to be obſerved that this latter was both more uſeful and prizable (μαλακὴν ſaith the Poet) than the former, being (as Joſephus ſaith of the High-Prieſt's Pall, and ſo *Rev.*1.13.) a long garment down to the ground, and as Maimonides adds,כרבר בגדי הגדולים as the garments of noble men. And ſo *Mat.*11.8. ſpeaking of theſe, under the title of μαλακὰ ἱμάτια, ἰδοῦ, ſaith he, οἱ τὰ μαλακὰ φοροῦντες ἐν τοῖς οἴκοις τῶν βασιλέων εἰσὶ, the faſhion was for Courtiers to wear them, and ſo they go generally for garments of Peace,and ἐν ἱματίῳ εἶναι in Plutarch,and ἐν ἱματίοις βίος in Theophraſtus, ſignifies ſuch a life.So * Alexander Aphrodiſæus ſpeaking of the unfitneſs of uſing clothes to ſoften or effeminate the body, (which ſhould rather be deſigned as Arms to fortifie and make it courſer, and ſo ſtronger) ſaith,that it is much fitter to uſe ἐπὶ χιτῶνι, one inner garment than two (which they that took care for ſoftneſs and ſmoothneſs did) and yet better to uſe none at all ἀλλ' ἱματίῳ μόνον, but the outer garment only; where the Interpreter

Interpreter of Stobæus (in whom this paſſage is ſet down p. 18.) moſt abſurdly renders ἱμάτιον interula, quite contrary to the deſign of the place, where it muſt needs ſignifie the outer (which is generally the leſs ſmooth or ſoft) garment, not the ſhirt or inner garment, which in Homer hath that Epithet, Ιλ. β.

Μαλακὸν φ' ἑανὸν χλαῖναν, ὃς ἀντιδιαζωλωῖ τὸ φᾶρος, d Oſ. β. Baſil. Ed. p.8.l.36. to contra-diſtinguiſh it from φᾶρος, ſaith d Euſtathius, which φᾶρος he e elſewhere expreſſeth to be ἱμάτιον, and here to be the upper garment, ἐπικεῖ τὸ φᾶρος. The whole matter is put out of queſtion by the words of Plutarch in his Nuptial Precepts, ſpeaking of the wind and the Sun contending, which ſhould force the man out of his clothes, ὁ ἄνθρωπος τῷ ἀνέμῳ διαζομένῳ τὸ ἱμάτιον ἀφελέσθαι, μᾶλλον ἔσφιγγε, καὶ συνεῖχε καὶ περιεβάλλετο, τῷ δ' ἡλίῳ θερμῷ γιγνομένῳ καὶ παιμαλιζομένῳ, ἔπι καιμαλιζόμενος, καὶ τὴν χλαῖναν τῷ ἱματίῳ ἀπεδύσατο; where ἱμάτιον being the outer garment, that which only the Wind had force on, and that which in the Sun-ſhine was firſt put off, χλαῖν muſt needs be the inner garment. And then that is the gradation here, If any man ſue thee, and take away thy lower or inner garment, let him take away thy upper garment alſo, rather than thou, by oppoſing violence, or revenging thy ſelf on him, think to ſecure thy ſelf from farther greater damage. The truth is, if Chriſt's diſcourſe were of his forcible taking away the garment from thee, it would be more reaſonable that the upper garment ſhould be firſt named, and the inner garment after it, becauſe that is the order of pulling off, and accordingly St. Luke ſetting it down with ſome change, and ſpeaking of the caſe of forcible taking away, he inverts the order and ſets ἱμάτιον firſt, and then χλαῖνα, Luke 6. 29. but our Saviour here ſpeaks of civil violence, uſing a ſuit at law, as the engine to rob thee, and then 'twas fitteſt to name that firſt, which was leaſt precious or conſiderable, and afterward that which was more valuable, that ſo the duty of this Text might be enforced, which was, that in caſe of any leſſer inconſiderable injury done to us, we ſhould not meditate revenge, or fly to force, though by that pacifick means we incur the danger of a far greater loſs.

f. Ἀγγαρεύειν

V. 41. Go a mile] Ἀγγαρεύειν is a Perſian word (and cuſtom) to take up men, as we take up Poſt-horſes, to carry our burthens from ſtage to ſtage (and ſo the word is uſed c. 27. 31.) which when one hath performed, another is taken up in his ſtead for the next Poſt. Theſe ſtages are each of them a Paraſange, called ἀναπαυλαι ſaith * Agathias, becauſe when men came to the end of them, they did refreſh themſelves and return home. Now the μίλιον or mile, which is here mention'd for the ſuppoſed ſtage, is but the fourth part of a Paraſange (or thereabout) the Paraſange being, ſaith he, thirty ſtadia, and the μίλιον, but ſeven or eight, to ſignifie (as in the former the ῥάπισμα was a light ſupportable injury, or rather a Contumely only, and the taking away the Cloak, a robbery again ſupportable to him that hath the Coat left, and perhaps a great Eſtate alſo, ſo) here the oppreſſion or invaſion of liberty ſpoken of, to be but a petty damage, going but a quarter of an ordinary Poſt (and no burthen mention'd neither) and they that are ſo impatient of ſuch tolerable injuries, as to oppoſe force or meditate revenge for them (which ordinarily brings greater ſufferings upon them, and ſo is far from gainful to them that uſe it) eſpecially to break into open violence upon ſuch light grounds, are directly contrary to this practice of Patience here commanded, and preſcribed to all Chriſtians.

(or as when ἀγαθοεργία, Jam. 3.1. and good works in our ordinary phraſe, ſignifies works of charity, or mercy) ſuch an one as Heſychius explains by χάρις (a word taken into the Greek language from the Hebrew חסיד or the Syriack חסי, only with the addition of the Greek termination) and ſo in like manner the word τέλειος perfect, (anſwerable to the Hebrew word תם verſ. 48.) ſignifies the ſame charity or benignity of nature, and is all one with οἰκτίρμων in the parallel place. Luke 6. 36.

20. But [lay up for your ſelves treaſures] in heaven, whether neither moth nor ruſt doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through, nor ſteal.

21. For as long as your treaſures are thoſe of this world, your hearts will be faſtened upon this world, your only way of elevating your deſires, and ſetting them on heaven, is to lay out that which God gives you, on his ſervice.

21. For where your treaſure is, there will your heart be alſo.]

l. 22, 23. As the eye is the candle of the body, lightens and directs it, ſo hath liberality of mind a moſt obſervable influence upon the whole Chriſtian's life, and actions, ſerving them with light and directions, toward the making them all very Chriſtian; But where, inſtead thereof, covetouſneſs is gotten in, there is commonly nothing but darkneſs, i. e. a life alien from Chriſt, from the temper which he requires; If then that moſt eminent leading vertue in Chriſtianity, thy charity, or liberality be extinct, and turn'd into the contrary, that of covetouſneſs, what a deep darkneſs ſhalt thou walk in, though the light of the Goſpel ſhine round about thee?

22. * The * light of the body is the eye, If therefore thine eye be † l ſingle, thy whole body ſhall be full of light.

23. But if thine eye be ‖ evil, thy whole body ſhall be full of darkneſs. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkneſs, how great is that darkneſs?]

m. 24. He will perform faithful ſervice to the one whom he loves, but for the other, whom he hates, or undervalues, if he be engaged in his ſervice, he will deſpiſe his commands, and not care to pleaſe him; even ſo the tending and obſerving of wealth, doing nothing but what may in the eye of the world tend to the increaſe of riches, is not reconcilable with the ſerving of God, doing what Chriſt requires of us.

24. No man can ſerve two maſters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other, or elſe [he will m hold to the one, and deſpiſe the other; Ye cannot ſerve God and Mammon.]

n. 25. Be not fearful or anxious for the future, nor doubtful of God's Providence in allowing you the neceſſities of life, food and raiment; for 'tis ſo much more eaſie to give food than life, and raiment than a body, that ſure God, who was ſo able, and ſo kind to do the one, will not be unable, or backward to do the other to all that depend upon him faithfully.

25. Therefore I ſay unto you [* take no thought for your life, what ye ſhall eat, or what ye ſhall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye ſhall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?]

26. Behold the fowls of the air, for they ſow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into * barns, yet your heavenly Father feedeth them, are ye not much better than they?

o. 28. They neither labour in husbandry, for the ſowing thoſe things, from whence in the time to come garments are made, hemp, flax, &c. nor do they ſpin them, when they are grown; i. e. they contribute nothing toward this matter of providing themſelves cloathing for the future.

27. But which of you by taking thought can add n one cubit unto his † ſtature?

28. And why take ye thought for raiment? Conſider the lilies of the field, how they grow, [they o toil not, neither do they ſpin:]

29. The natural bravery of the lily, eſpecially of the white lily, is beyond all the glory of apparel, that art and coſt could bring in to Solomon (though 'twere his glory ever to go in white) that being but accidental and adventitious to him, this coming from the lilies own fruitful bowels, and ſo more genuine and natural, and truly glorious.

29. And yet I ſay unto you, that even [Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of theſe.]

p. 30. And if God have made ſo rich and glorious a proviſion of attire for thoſe ſhort-liv'd flowers, then certainly for us (that have ſuch inſtances of his Providence) to doubt of God's power, or will to provide us ſufficient raiment, is a piece of weakneſs, or want of faith, which will not be excuſed in us, God having promiſed that he doth and will care for us, which promiſe cannot be doubted of without infidelity.

30. Wherefore if God ſo cloath the p graſs of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is caſt into the oven, ſhall he not much more cloath you, O ye of little faith?]

31. Be not before-hand ſo troubled with apprehenſion of future wants of food and raiment.

31. Therefore [take no thought, ſaying, What ſhall we eat, or what ſhall we drink, or wherewithal ſhall we be cloathed?]

32. (For

32. (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

32. (The things that heathen men are so sollicitous for; they that worship false Idol gods, or that acknowledge nothing of a Divine Providence) for the Gospel tells us (not that we have no need of them, but) that God knows we have need of them, and will in his Providence take care for our wants, help us to the necessaries of life in due time, as long as he affords us life.

33. But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.

33. But let your principal and first care be to approve your selves the obedient servants of God, performing all those things with all diligence and exactness, which are required to render you acceptable in his sight, and then for the necessaries of this Life (tho' ye now, which follow me, have no way to lay in for your selves) I promise you that they shall not be wanting to you, I will take care they shall be brought in unto you.

34. Take therefore no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things of it self; sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

34. Be not therefore beforehand importunately doubtful, or sollicitous concerning your future subsistence, be not sollicitous for that to day, which may be soon enough cared for to morrow, only labour and pray for that which is sufficient for the present time; and when the future comes, then take care and pray for that, let that have the proportion of care and prayer, which is due to it, laid, or charged upon it, and let not the present have the charge, and burthen of the future also, having enough of its own trouble and turmoyle belonging to it; (thus is this whole Discourse directly design'd by Christ to prohibit all anxiety for the future in a Christian, though not absolutely all care or provision for the present necessities of life, or the prudent managing of store and possessions, when God gives such; Every day, as it comes, requiring that duty from us, to preserve that life in our selves (and those that belong unto us) which God hath bestowed on us.)

V. 1. Take heed] προσέχειν] with an Accusative case, is ἐπιμελῶς τηρεῖν, to watch, or observe carefully, saith Phavorinus; and may possibly here be so, there being no necessity, that the construction should run thus προσέχετε μὴ ποιεῖν, take heed that you do not, but as probably προσέχετε ἡ ἐλεημοσύνὴν, look to your alms, μὴ ποιεῖν not to do it, or, that thou do it not, &c. But yet because the phrases used in these books are not always to be judged by the use in other Authors, and because Saint Matthew useth [προσέχετε] in all other places, a little diversly from the rest of the writers of the New Testament, those generally joyning unto it a Dative Case, but St. Matthew leaving it out, and understanding it, therefore 'tis possible it may be so here also; and so the reading will be neither [προσέχετε ἐλεημοσύνὴν, look to your alms] nor [προσέχετε μὴ ποιεῖν, look that you do not] but understanding [ἑαυτοῖς] look to your selves, that you do not, &c. So when S. Matthew reads προσέχετε ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης, *c.*16. 6. & 11. 12. Take heed of the Leaven, St. Luke reads, προσέχετε ἑαυτοῖς ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης, Take heed to your selves of the leaven, &c. As for the word ἐλεημοσύνη, from whence our English word [Alms] is form'd, that is, any act of Pity or Mercy, especially of liberality to them which want, for which some copies read δικαιοσύνη righteousness, which as it is all one with ἐλεημοσύνη, and in the Translation of the Old Testament, used promiscuously for it (according to the the notion of the Hebrew צדקה fore-mentioned, Note on *c.*1. g.) so doth it signify this Charity, to be an act of duty and righteousness required of all Jews and Christians, and not to be omitted (by them which are able) without sin.

b. Θεαθῆναι

Ib. Be seen] The word [θεαθῶσι] imports such a beholding or looking on, as is on a stage or Theatre, for men that acts parts, or strive for masteries, whose reward consists only in the θεαθῶσι and δοξασθῶσι, v. 2. the applause, and praises, and approbation of the Spectators, (which appears to be the meaning of the word here,) by the concurrence of all the circumstances, 1. By the μισθὸς reward, twice used immediately, v. 1. 3. By being thus lookt on, they have their reward, as in those spectacula or prizes 'tis wont to be where the conquerour hath no other acquisition or βραβεῖον, but the reputation of the victory, with a crown of leaves, of no kind of value, to express and testify it. Then 2*ly*, to this, I suppose, refers the mention of the σαλπίζειν, v. 2. the sounding of the trumpet before him, a solemnity with which the stage-players, and gladiators were brought into the Theatre, and by which the company were called together, χρῶνται σάλπιγγι καλοῦντες τὸν ὄχλον δι' αὐτῆς, they use the trumpet calling the multitudes with it, saith Phavorinus, and this use of it among the Jews, to call the people together, is oft mentioned by Moses. This might yet 3*ly*, be farther probable by the mention of [οἱ ὑποκριταὶ] (the very word that signifies those Actors or stage-players primarily, and is only by a figure brought to that signification, which now ordinarily belongs to the word hypocrites in English) but that this word in the New Test. is in ordinary use for hypocrites, as we now speak, and not for personators, or actors. But then 4*ly*, these were wont to have their trumpet sound in the market place, and places of concourse (which is the meaning of συναγωγαὶ here, not sacred assemblies, or Synagogues) and ἐν ῥύμαις in the streets, places where men are wont ordinarily to pass, and where to meet (as Hesychius renders ῥύμη all one with ἀγορὰ) where the sounding of the trumpet may most probably be a means of calling together all men, that dwell in that place or neighbourhood.

Ὑποκριτὴς

Συναγωγαὶ

Ῥύμη

c. Ἑστῶτες

V. 5. Standing] The word [ἑστῶτες] may possibly refer to that particular posture of standing, which was usual in prayer, as among the ancient Christians, so among the Jews before them; whence it is that עמידה statio, is reckon'd by them as one of the seven names of Prayer. So Manahem speaks of Abraham's standing, i.e. (saith he) praying before the Lord, and thence is the proverbial speech of Rabbi Judah in Musarim, without עמידה station, the world could not subsist. And besides, the posture of standing might be more convenient for their turn of being more and farther seen by men. But the truth is, both the Greek ἑστῶτες, and the Hebrew belong promiscuously (not to standing only, but) to every or any posture of the body. So *Mat.*16.20. some of those that stand (i.e. that are) here, as עמד signifies esse, to be, or adesse, to be present; and so *Jo.*12.19. ὄχλος ὁ ἑστὼς, the people that stood (i. e. were present) (in like manner as καθίζειν to sit, is used for any posture or without relation to any, no more than simply to be, as Luke 24.49. καθίσατε ἐν τῇ πόλει, tarry in the city) and so in this very matter, Mar. 11. 25. ὅταν στήκητε προσευχόμενοι, when you stand praying, that is, when you pray. So in Hesychius, ἕστηκα or ἵστημι, κεῖται ἱσταμένη, ἵστασι, to stand, that is to be placed, situate, to be, yea and ἔστη, ἐστάθη, he stood, that is, he sat, to take it quite off from the notation of standing. So saith S. Chrysostome of the Sea, ἵστως ἀσφαλῶς ἕστηκεν, ἀσάλευτον ἐστήριξεν, * Cat. in Job, it stood as firmly as if it were bound, which the learned translator renders rightly, firmiter & in tuto situm est, it was placed firmly; and so the Latine, sto, as well as existo, is often used as a Verb substantive only, to sustain a Participle, without reference to any posture.

d. Συναγωγαὶ

Ib. Synagogues] That the word συναγωγαὶ signifies not what we call in English Synagogues (by them meaning places set apart for divine service) but any place of publick concourse, will be very probable in these places following; besides the two in this place, *v.*2. & 5. (where 'tis joined with ῥύμαι streets, and πλατεῖαι, angles of the streets) see c. 10. 17. *c.*23. 6. & 34. Mar. 12. 39. c. 13. 9. Luke 8. 41. *c.*11. 43. *c.*12. 11. c. 20. 46. c. 21. 12. Acts 9. 2. c. 22. 19. c. 24. 12. c. 26. 11. Jam. 2. 2. and therefore Munster's Hebrew of Matthew having מקהלות here is literally rendred [in frequentiis] to note, as the Hebrew doth primarily, any place where the people are met together: for though עדה signify some special congregated assembly, and be therefore the word used by the Syriack for ἐκκλησία, the church, c. 16. 18. yet קהל signifies every kind of meeting, either civil for Judicature, (*Mat.*10.17. and 23. 34. Luke 12. 11. Acts 9.2. *Jam.*2.2. and in some other of those places, where this word συναγωγὴ is to be rendred Consistory) or even for ordinary affairs of trading, &c. (as συνάγεσθαι and συναθροίζεσθαι are all one) and so it is most commodious to render it in this place. See Note on James 2. b.

e. Βαττολογέω

V. 7. Vain repetitions] The Greek [Βαττολογέω] is literally, to do as Battus did, which what it is, is described by Suidas in these words, Βαττολογία ἡ πολυλογία, Battologie is multiplying of words (just agreeable to this verse which sets these words as Synonymous) ἀπὸ Βάττου τινὸς μακρὰς καὶ πολυστίχους ὕμνους ποιήσαντος, ταυτολογίας ἔχοντας. The word is taken from one Battus who made long hymns, consisting of many lines, full of Tautologies. Whence Hesychius, βαττολογία (it should be βαττολογία) ἀργολογία, ἀκαιρολογία, empty, idle, unseasonable discourse. 'Tis sure enough, that Christ spake not Greek in this Sermon, and so referr'd not to the name or stile of Battus, but the Evangelist, or his Translator thus rendred his Syriack expression, by this proverbial Greek word. Munster's Hebrew reads it לא תרבו את רבריכם do not multiply words, (viz.) above that which is fit and seasonable. The peculiar notation of this phrase in this place, will be best discerned by the practice of the Heathens, which is here referr'd to, ὥσπερ οἱ ἐθνικοὶ, as the heathens do] and that practice is best represented in their Tragedians, as in Æschylus, who hath near a hundred verses at a time, made of nothing but Tautologies, ἴω, ἴω, and φεῦ, φεῦ, and ἔ, ἔ, ἔ, ἔ, in their crying unto their Gods, so 1 Kings 18.27. the idolatrous worshippers cried in the same words from morning till noon, O Baal hear us. And Acts 19.34. for two hours space, the Great Diana of the Ephesians. Of this kind generally were their Charms and Incantations, and therefore Polybius calls the using of such repetitions, πρὸς τὰς θεὰς μαγγανεύειν, to set upon their Gods to charm them. This those Heathens did to two ends, 1. to make their Gods hear them, not knowing how far off they might be, which Elias refers to, 1 Kings 18.27. Cry aloud, for perhaps your God is asleep, &c. and they look not on it as an Irony, but follow his advice, *v.*28. 2*dly*, That they may understand and remember their petitions the better, both which Christ mentions here, v.7. & 8. So that the things here forbidden in prayer (and especially in private prayer, ἐν ταμιείῳ and ἐν κρυπτῷ, in the closet, and in secret, v. 6.) are first ἀργολογία, a cold unseasonable lengthning out of time with tautologies, when it is not any effect of zeal; 2*dly*, the care of verbal, not real eloquence in prayers, for that will come under πολυλογία, much speaking. But still not all repetition, or length, or eloquence, for of all these we have approved examples in the Scripture, and they are each of use for the quickning and enflaming devotion, especially in publick prayers. And even in Poetry it is observable, that what was unskilfully done by Battus, and so became ridiculous in him, being yet done dextrously by others, is a great ornament of verse, that of Repetition.

f. Ἐπιούσιος

V. 11. Daily] The word ἐπιούσιος, is capable of a double Origination, either from the word ἐπιοῦσα, the day approaching, whether that be the now-instant day, or else the morrow, that is, (in the Scripture sense of the Hebrew מחר) the future, the remainder of our lives, how long, or how short soever. Thus in Phavorinus, ἐπιοῦσα is explain'd by ἐπερχομένη approaching, or coming on, and ἐπιοῦσα νὺξ notes the future events, as opposed to παροῦσα the present in Niceph. Basilac. Hist. 11. If the word be derived from hence, then the ἄρτος ἐπιούσιος will denote as much as shall be sufficient, or proportionable for the future, or the remainder of our lives, which we pray that we may receive this day, that is, as St. Luke interprets it, τὸ καθ' ἡμέραν, day by day. Another way there is of deducing this word from ἐπὶ ἡ οὐσίαν, that which is agreeable for my being, or subsistence, or condition in the world, ἐπιούσιος ἄρτος ὁ τῇ οὐσίᾳ μου ἁρμόζων, saith Phavorinus, that which Solomon calls food convenient for him; and so in either sense (but the first is more according to analogy of Derivations) that which is sufficient, and agreeable for the remainder of our lives, the daily sustenance, and necessaries of our bodies, and especially of our souls.

g. Εἰσέρχεσθαι εἰς πειρασμὸν Εἰσφέρειν

V. 13. Into temptation] בא בנסיון εἰσέρχεσθαι εἰς πειρασμὸν to enter into temptation] signifies to be so involved in straits or difficulties as that one cannot extricate himself, *c.*26. 41. and proportionably here εἰσφέρειν εἰς πειρασμὸν] is to bring men, or suffer them to be brought into such an estate; contrary to which is God's promise, 1 *Cor.*10.13. of [ποιεῖν σὺν τῷ πειρασμῷ καὶ τὴν ἔκβασιν] giving a way of escaping, or getting out, together with the temptation, and that is it which we here pray for, in assurance of God's fidelity in performance.

h. Ἀφανίζειν

V. 16. Disfigure] What ἀφανίζειν here signifies will be somewhat uncertain, because in this very Chapter, *v.*19. it is used again in a sense, which will hardly be accommodated to this place, howsoever we should render it. A probable way to hit upon the right in both places, will be to consider the diversity of the matter, and accordingly to apply the word in the divers significations of it. In that other place 'tis clear that it must signify some kind of taking away, spoiling, or consuming, (for that is proper to the Moth, and the βρῶσις, whatever that signifies) and so Hesychius renders it προνομεῦσαι, either as that is feeding upon, προνομία προσβόσκησις, feeding, saith he, or as 'tis preying upon, snatching, carrying away, προνομεύει, ἁρπάζει, καθαιρεῖ, and so ἀφανισμὸς is used for any kind of consuming, whether by death or otherwise, as γηράσκον ἐγγὺς ἀφανισμοῦ, that which is old is near dying, *Heb.*8.13. and in the Psalm, Before I go hence and be no more seen, or be taken away, and so φδης, the state of the soul separate from the Body, or, the state of death, is expres'd by ἀφανισμὸς, as a word of the same origination and notion with it, one being deduced from the privative particle, and ἴδω, video, to see, and the other from the same particle, and φαίνω, appareo, to appear, and so both signify Death, the vanishing of the soul into soft air, as the Atheist (which believed no future life) calls death, Wisd. 2. 3. or in the Christian's notion the departure from the body. And thus the word is used not only for total destruction, but for being lost, or out of the way for a while. So saith Thomas Magister, ἀφανίζεται λέγεται τὸ ἀφανὲς ἐπὶ καιρὸν γίνεσθαι, φθείρεσθαι δὲ ἐν ταῖς Ἐκλείψεσιν, οὐχ ὡς ἀπόλλυσθαι, ἀλλ' ὡς ἀφανισθῆναι εἰς μίαν ἡμέραν, not that they are destroyed or gone, but that they disappear for one day. But this notion of the word cannot at all belong to this place, where the Hypocritical fasters, that desire their devotions should φανῆναι, be seen and commended by men, are said to be σκυθρωποὶ, of a sad countenance, and ἀφανίζειν πρόσωπα, which is not surely by any outward applications to consume, or destroy, or spoil their faces, but denotes only so much as shall make good the opposition betwixt them, and those immediately after mentioned, which anointed their heads, and washed their faces, (which signifies an absence of all mourning at least.) The most then that the matter of the place will direct us to, toward this enquiry, will be only this, that this ἀφανίζειν πρόσωπα, as it is elegantly joined with [ἵνα φανῶσι νηστεύοντες, being discerned so fast] being used as a means to make others believe that they are in a condition of sadness and fasting, and of sadness, as that may be an evidence, and reporter of their fasting, so it may possibly signify only negatively, they do not anoint, and set out themselves, as men ordinarily do, when no sad occasion forbids it: and that this is it, and no more but this, one probability the Context affords, for that which is *v.*17. prescribed, is the way of avoiding that Hypocritical practice, is, to anoint the head, and wash the face, which makes it probable, that their Hypocrisy consisted in not doing so, or neglecting to do so. But beyond this perhaps it may denote something positive. And to this purpose it first may be observed, that Hesychius renders it ἀφανίσαι, σκεπάσαι, to hide, or cover. So

'tis well known that that of hiding, or veiling, or covering the face, was cuſtomary among the Jews, and hath been ſo among other nations in time of mourning, and ſo ſtill among us the uſe of hoods in cloſe mourning is obſerved, and veils are generally the garments of mourners. Thus not only in Horace —— Sat. 2.

Reſus tecto capite, ut ſi filius immaturus obiſſet, he covered his head, as if his ſon were come to an untimely death; but particularly in the Scripture, The king covered his face, and cryed, &c. the deſcription of David's lamentation for Abſalom, 2 *Sam.*19.4. and ſo Haman, *Eſt.*6.12. mourning, and having his head covered. So Ezek. 24. 7. make no mourning, cover not thy lips, and ſo *v.*22. and ſo *Mick.*3.7. it being the cuſtom of mourners, caput, faciem, os, labra tegere, to cover the head, the face, the mouth, and the lips. And then why may not this be the meaning of [ἀφανίζειν πρόσωπα] here? which literally ſignifies, to hide or cover, ſo that it do not appear. So ſaith Phavorinus [ἀφανίζεσθαι] is not only τὸ φθείρεσθαι ὅλως, totally periſhed, but alſo τὸ κρύπτεσθαι, καὶ μὴ φαίνεσθαι, when a thing is hidden, and appears not, and ἀφανίσαι, τὸ ἀφανὲς ποιῆσαι, to make inviſible, and ſo 'twill be proper to affirm, by its contrariety to ἐμφανίζειν, to make manifeſt. And this may ſeem to be a proper, and firſt notion of the word, which comes to ſignify other things by deduction from this. And this will be very proper to the turn, by hiding, or covering, or veiling the face, to ſignify mourning, or ſadneſs, or humiliation, and by that to publiſh their faſting, which they ſhould keep ſecret. Another ſecond notion of the word ἀφανίζειν is ordinarily pretended for disfiguring, or diſcolouring their faces, for ἀχρότης, paleneſs, but this, as it will hardly be exemplified either in ſacred or profane Writers (nay on the contrary, 'tis uſed for painting to advantage, i. e. beautifying, in * Nicoſtratus, ζωγεφῶν τὸ, καὶ ἀφανίζον τὰς ὄψεις,) ſo will it not be found that the Jewiſh hypocrites uſed any ſuch arts either in time of mourning or faſting; neither is it eaſily defined or explained what particular way of disfiguring, or diſcolouring, or cauſing palledneſs it is which is meant by it. The moſt that I can diſcern toward this ſenſe, is this, There is a diſeaſe which is called Ἀλωπεκία, defined by Phavorinus, to be πάθος φιλοσικὸν τῶν τριχῶν καὶ τῶν φυλλων, a diſeaſe that fetcheth off the hair from the head and beard, makes it very thin, a ſcurf that grows upon the head or face, ſo called from Ἀλώπηξ a Fox, becauſe as the urine of a Fox ἐν τόπον ἄκαρπον ποιεῖ, makes the place where it falls fruitleſs, the graſs will not grow after it; ſo this deals with the head or face: Now the countenance which is thus affected, is uſually called ἀφανὲς πρόσωπον, as being ſo diſmally diſcoloured by it, as the ground is, when by the urine of the Fox it hath loſt its verdure, and is dried up. And to that I ſuppoſe belongs the place in Heſychius, tho' corrupt in the ordinary copies, where to ἀλωπὸς and ἀλωπεκώδης, he adds, οἱ δὲ ἀφανὴς κατὰ χρόαν, ſome ſay it ſignifies one of a macerated, diſcoloured, or (as ἀφανὴς is rendred by σκυθρωπὸς) of a dark countenance. And then this agrees with Phavorinus's notion of σκυθρωπὸς, which is here uſed in the ſame ſenſe, ὁ ἀφανὲς πρόσωπον κεκλιμβρόν, one that hath ſuch a dark, diſcoloured, macerated countenance. And ſo that may poſſibly be conceived the meaning of ἀφανίζειν τὰ πρόσωπα, to macerate and diſcolour their countenances: So the Lexicon Greco-Latinum, ἀφανίζω extermino, diſperdo, deformo, depravo, not only to deſtroy, but to deform and deprave. So Antiochus, *Hom.*LV. ſaith of Envy, τὸ πρόσωπον ἐξαφανίζει, it cauſeth a pale countenance; ſo * Proſper ſeems to render the phraſe here, Jejunant, ſaith he, ut vultûs ſui pallorem perniciosis laudibus vendant, they faſt that they may ſell the paleneſs of their countenance for hurtful praiſes, ἵνα φανῶσι νηστεύοντες, that they may by their looks be taken for auſtere aſcetick perſons, men that faſt very often, having thus macerated themſelves with that exerciſe. And then, proportionably with that, σκυθρωποὶ in the beginning of the verſe muſt be more than ſad: Heſychius renders it χαλεποὶ and ἀμὲς, of a fierce, and horrid, ghaſtly countenance, ſuch as men have when they are well nigh ſtarved. But paſſing by this, there is yet a third rendring of the phraſe, which ſeems more commodious to the place, by interpreting πρόσωπα, the looks, and not the faces, and then it may fitly be rendred, they ſpoil their looks, endeavour to look as ill as they can; and for this it is to be obſerved that foul or ſordid apparel will contribute much toward it: So in Euſtathius on * Odyſſ. ζ. σῶμα λύσσοις σμιλυσμένον κάλλιον γίνεσθαι, καὶ ἱματίων λαμπρῶν ἀμείβεσθαι, ὥσπερ αὖ πάλιν αὐχμῷ πιαζόμενα τὸ λαμπρὸν φθορᾷ ἀφανίζουσι, The body carefully waſhed becomes fairer, and ſo alſo by putting on whites clothes; as on the other ſide ſordidneſs and ill-tattered clothes στεγειν τὸ καλὸν ἱμάτιον καὶ τὸ ῥακῶδες, it ſhould be read in Heſychius) darken a bright countenance: where the word is uſed of that illneſs of looks which ſordid cloths do cauſe. To this I may yet farther add, that חמרו which Hab. 1. 5. is rendred ἀφανισθῆτε, ſignifies ſuch a confuſion of countenance as attends aſtoniſhment or vehement trouble; (ſee note on Acts 13.k.) and ſo may here in that ſence be fitly joined with σκυθρωποὶ forming, and putting on ſuch a ſad, troubled, confounded countenance, which cannot but be taken notice of by any. But this ſtill not by any outward means of diſcolouring it, but by an affected ſadneſs or change of looks, or by foul and ſordid garments, and the like.

Σκυθρωπὸς

V. 9. Anoint] The interdict of Unction and Lotion among the Jews belongs only to days of mourning and humiliation. Thus the *Miſchna Cod. Joma c.7. ſect.*1. On the day of Expiation, that great day of humbling the ſoul, אסור באכילה ובשתיה וברחיצה ובסיכה they are interdicted meat and drink, and waſhing and anointing, and ſo in like manner, בחשמש המטה the companying of husband and wife, to which agrees that of St. Paul, 1 Cor. 7. 5. that the husband and wife are not to deprive one another, but for a ſeaſon upon conſent, that they may σχολάζειν τῇ νηστείᾳ καὶ τῇ προσευχῇ, be at leiſure for faſting and prayer, (and accordingly the Greek and Latine Church have made Canons to that purpoſe. See *Balſamon ad Can.*3. Dionyſ. Alex. and Gratian Decret. par. 2. cauſe 33. quæſt. 4.) by which it appears, that this Anointing and Waſhing are not feſtival rites, but uſual at all times, ſave only of faſting. So Dan. 10.3. deſcribing his faſt [neither did I anoint my ſelf at all] is joined to his [I eat no pleaſant bread, neither came any fleſh or wine into my mouth] and ſo of David, 2 *Sam.*12.20. when he made an end of mourning for the child, 'tis ſaid, he aroſe from the earth, and waſhed, and anointed himſelf, and eat bread, to ſignify that the omiſſion of thoſe was a ceremony of his mourning and faſting, and ſo 2 Sam. 14.2. the widow of Tekoa, that is to feign her ſelf a mourner, is bid to put on mourning apparel, and not anoint her ſelf with Oyl. By this and many other teſtimonies appeareth the daily uſe of anointing and waſhing, and not that they were uſed only on feſtival days, though then they were uſed moſt liberally, (ſee Note on *c.*26. a.) And conſequently that which Chriſt here commands under the phraſe [anoint and waſh] is no more than this, that in thoſe private Faſts of theirs, they ſhould appear in their ordinary guiſe, and not ſeem to men to faſt, (not that they ſhould appear to feaſt at that time.)

i. Ἀλείφεσθαι

V. 19. Ruſt] The word βρῶσις is directly Greek, for the Hebrew חסיל, from חסל conſumpſit, comedit, to conſume or eat, for which the Septuagint read, καλιφθῆναι, *Deut.*28. Hence is the noun uſed for the locuſts, or whatſoever it is that ſtrikes and devours the corn, Joel 1.4. 1 *King.*8.37. *Pſ.*77.57. and is rendred ἐρυσίβη, and ἀχρὶς, and ἐρυσίβη, and in Latine rubigo, ruſt, not that which iron is ſubject to, but that which ſpoils corn, and is called ſmut among us. And ſo this will be a proper ſenſe for the word βρῶσις here, yet ſo that in a greater latitude it may belong to all other vermine, which devour corn in the barn or garner, yea and the Caterpillars that eat up plants and all other fruits alſo. And then all the three ſorts of earthly riches, which humane providence is wont to ſtore up, are here noted, 1. Garments, 2. Corn and Fruits of the earth, earth, 3. Gold, and Silver, and Jewels, all ſubject to three ſorts of ſuch great uncertainties, as make them unfit to be kept or treaſured up, only fit for the preſent uſe of themſelves and others; the poor man's ſtomach, or back, or purſe, being the ſafeſt ſtore-houſe wherein we can lay them up, and that by Malachy called God's ſtore-houſe; and our liberality to them, the laying up our riches, or treaſures in heaven, here, *v.*20. 'Tis true the word [ruſt] doth ſeem to refer to Metals, which are ſubject to it, and if we took it in that ſenſe, it would be agreeable to the ſound of θησαυρίζετε θησαυρὸς, laying up treaſures, forbidden at the beginning of the verſe, Garments and metals being the chief treaſures, and ſo reckoned, *Jam.*5.3. where after ἱμάτια and χρυσὸς, and ἄργυρος, garments, gold, and Silver, follows θησαυρίζετε, treaſure up. So Achan of the treaſure of Jericho, purloin'd (to add to his own treaſure) a wedge of gold, and a Babyloniſh garment; and agreeably to this, the uſual preſents that Subjects gave to their Kings, and the ξενία which great perſonages gave to their gueſts, as teſſeras amicitiæ & hoſpitalitatis, tokens of friendſhip and hoſpitality, at their departing, were either apparel or metals. So Naaman, 2 Kings 5. offered Elizeus talents of Gold, and changes of raiment. And Alcinous and other Phœnician Princes gave to * Ulyſſes, at his departure, each a talent of Gold, and a rich veſtment.

* Homer Odyſſ. θ'. 440.
Ἐδῶπια χρυσόηλα, τά οἱ Φαίηκες ἔδωκαν,
† Odyſſ. ν. 130. and —— † ἔδοσαν δ' οἱ ἄριστα δύω,
Χαλκόν τε χρυσόν τε ἄλις, ἐδῶπια δ' ὑφαντά,
* Odyſſ. ν. 217. and —— * τρίποδας τε λέβητας ἐυκαλλέας, ἠδὲ λέβητας Ἠρίθμει, ἠδὲ χρυσὸν, ὑφαλέα τε ἵματα καλά.

and ſo in Iſocr. ad Nicoc. in the beginning. And for garments and cloaths it was wont to be a great treaſure in this kingdom, till the vanity of changing faſhions made it otherwiſe. So in Records and ancient Wills among us, the bequeathing of garments took up a great part. And accordingly the offices about the Wardrobe were of eminence in the King's court, as thoſe other about the Treaſury or Exchequer alſo. Notwithſtanding all this, the former ſenſe of [ruſt] (as it belongs to corn, and fruits of the earth, and the many accidents that thoſe are ſubject to) ſeems to be the thing here moſt pertinent and proper. For firſt the notion of βρῶσις in the Bible belongs only to this rubigo not ærugo; and ſo ſecondly, the notion of θησαυρίζειν, to treaſure up, and θησαυροὶ, treaſures, here doth not refer to the preciouſneſs of commodities (tho' the fruits of the earth alſo be called τίμιος, precious, Jam. 5.7.) but to the ſolicitude, or μέριμνα in making proviſion for the time to come, which is the literal notation of θησαυρίζειν, τιθέναι εἰς αὔριον, laying up for to morrow, and the particular thing here looked to in Chriſt's prohibition; and 3*dly*, the fear of ruſt to their gold and ſilver would not be very conſiderable, in reſpect of the damage, nor conſequently ſo great an argument to deter them from hoarding it, as ruſt to their corn would be, and thieves to their money; 4*ly*, the ruſt of their money is rather threatned as a witneſs againſt them to condemn them (as coveting the poſſeſſion, but not making uſe of it in liberality to them that want it) Jam. 5.3. than for marring their metal; and laſtly the word there uſed by St. James for the ruſt of their money, is ἰὸς, not βρῶσις.

V. 22. Single] Ἁπλότης ſimplicity in the New Teſtament, generally ſignifies liberality, Rom. 12.8. 2 Cor. 8. 2. c.9.11, & 13. as ἁπλότης alſo, Acts 2.46. (by the ſame analogy, that τέλειος perfect, Mat.5.48. is all one with ἐλεήμων, Luke 6.36. from the latitude of the Hebr. * תם: for that ἁπλοῦς and τέλειος are ſynonimous, appears by Heſychius, who renders it καθαρὸς ὁλόκληρος, pure and perfect) ſo in Phavorinus not only ἁπλοῦς ſingle is rendred ἐλεύθερος free or liberal, but ἐλευθεριότης liberality, back again rendred χρημάτων ἁπλῆ δόσις, or ἕξις ἐπὶ ψυχῆς ἐυδιανεμητικὸν τοῦ τε καλοῦ, a liberal beſtowing of money, or giving of wealth, or the virtue of the mind, conſiſting in a diſcreet laying out of what a man hath, upon good and proper objects; clearing this matter, that ἁπλότης ſignifies liberality. Then for the applying this Epithet to the eye here, 'tis firſt, that the ſimilitude may go on in the ἀντιθέσει or ſecond part of it; 2. becauſe the eye is that part of the body, which hath moſt to do with wealth, as appears by *Eccl.*5.11. What good is there to the owners of riches, ſave the beholding them with their eyes? and therefore coveteouſneſs is called the luſt of the eye, 1 John 2. 16. 3. becauſe the phraſe is moſt agreeable to the dialect of Scripture. Deut. 5. 9. Prov. 23.6. & 28. 22. *Eccluſ.*14. 8,9,10. wherein πονηρὸς ὀφθαλμὸς the evil eye, ſignifies Envy, as that is the contrary to all liberal diſpoſition, in the ſenſe, wherein ἀφθονέστερος χεὶρ, in Ariſtophanes, he who hath little of envy in his hand, and ἄφθονος he that hath no envy, ſo frequent by a title of Gods in Damaſcen (the Father of the Greek ſchool) ſignifies bounty and liberality. And accordingly in Theophylact, on 2 *Cor.*8.2. Ἁπλότης ἄφθονος γνώμη καὶ ἀνυστάκτος, it ſignifies a mind void of envy or parſimony, apt to communicate. And in that ſenſe, I ſuppoſe, πονηρὸς is taken, *c.*7.11. for niggardly, covetous, or illiberal, the contrary to ἁπλοῦς liberal here, in the notion wherein רשע evil is uſed in Hebrew, when 'tis ſet oppoſite to צדיק and חסד the righteous and merciful, and is proverbially ſaid to ſay, That which is thine is mine, and that which is mine is mine own. So on the contrary, טוב עין, the good eye, is by us rendred bountiful, and by the Greek ἐλεῶν ἢ πλουτῶν, pitying the poor, *Prov.*2.9. and ſo ἀγαθὸς good, *Mat.*20.15 If this ſenſe be embraced, then theſe two verſes will perfectly connect with antecedents and conſequents all to the ſame matter of liberality, otherwiſe they will cauſe a direct chaſm, or hiatus in the Context.

I. Ἁπλότης

* See note on Mat. 5. 45.

V. 24. Hold to] Ἀντέχομαι here uſed, is by Phavorinus rendred ἀντιλαμβάνομαι to help, and ſo by Heſychius; and ἀνθέξεται, ἀντιλήψεται, who alſo adds προνοήσειν μαι to care for. The former of theſe notions may be accommodated to this place of a ſervant toward a Maſter, whoſe office is to aſſiſt his Maſter in all his buſineſs, and accordingly it is applyed to ſervants, 1 Tim. 6.2. δουλευέτωσαν ἀντιλαμβανόμενοι τῆς εὐεργεσίας, Let them ſerve them, aſſiſting them in well-doing: but being ſet oppoſite to deſpiſing, perhaps that of caring for may be the fitter notion of it.

m. Ἀντέχομαι

V. 27. One cubit unto his ſtature] Ἡλικία ſignifies μέγεθος σώματος, and μέτρον, the quantity or ſtature of the body, and again, the habit of body, and conſequent to that, the verdure of age and beauty, as when ἡλικίαν διαφθείρειν, in Heraclitus περὶ ἀπιστ. δ. ſignifies to deſtroy their beauty or youthful colour, but eſpecially ſtature, as in Niceph. Baſilac. ιγ, p. 167. ἡλικίαν ὑψηρεφῆ of a ſtature reaching to the clouds. So εὐήλιξ tall being ſpoken of Pyrrhus, p. 310. μέγας τῇ ἡλικίᾳ, of Neſtor, p. 307. ἡλικίαν τετράγωνος, four-ſquare, as broad as high, of Diomedes, *p.*307. ἡλικίαν σύμμετρος, a proportionable ſtature, in *Iſ. Porphyrogen. p.*206. And ſo alſo doth it ordinarily ſignify age (and ſo doth קומתא Kaumto, which the Syriack here uſes, ſtatura, item annus ætatis, ſtature, as alſo the year of ones age, ſaith Ferrarius) and may poſſibly do ſo here; 1. becauſe the Dehortation, which this is brought to enforce, was particularly that concerning ſolicitude for the life, and to that this will be very proper, of our not being able to add, by all our ſolicitude, the leaſt proportion to our age, to enlarge the period of life, πῆχυν ἕνα, one cubit, that is, one ſmalleſt meaſure or proportion, beyond what God hath ſet us. 2. It will be obſervable, that one cubit being here ſet down as a very ſmall meaſure, (ſo as in Mimnermus [πηχύιον δὴ χρόνον, for a time proportionable to a cubit] ſignifies a very ſhort ſpace, ſuch as leaves and the tranſitory frail things enjoy; and accordingly here the Hebrew readeth [even one cubit] would yet be a very great proportion being applied to the ſtature of the body. Nay ſuch as are come to their full growth (as the far greateſt part of Chriſt's auditors were) could not thus hope to add one thouſandth part of a cubit to their ſtature: but on the other ſide a cubit will ſeem but a ſmall part of the many years of a long life, and he that is of the fulleſt growth, may yet hope to enlarge the period of his life, and to that generally mens ſolicitude

Πῆχυς is applied, by diet, phyſick, &c. to acquire long life, not to increaſe their ſtature. 3. The word πῆχυς cubit is ordinarily a meaſure of the longitude of any ſpace, * in Il. 2. Jo. 21. 8. Joſ. 3. 4. and ſo ſaith * Euſtathius, πλέθρον μέτρον γῆς πηχέων ξτ'. and generally the ſame is ſaid of other meaſures of the ground, &c. and particularly of a Race (to which mans life is compared, Job 9. 25. and 2 Tim. 4. 7.) in the Scholiaſt on Pindar, Ὀλυμπ. ος'. 13. Στάδιον, ſaith he, ὁ τόπος ἐν ᾧ ἔτρεχον· ἦν δὲ πηχέων τριακοσίων διάστημα, &c. The race, as it ſignifies, the place wherein they run, was the ſpace of 300 cubits, and ſo in Mimnermus πηχύος χρόνος even now cited proportionable to that of David, Thou haſt made my days as it were a ſpan long, a meaſure much leſs than a cubit, applied to our days or ſpace of life.

V. 28. Toil] The word κοπᾶν doth properly belong to husbandry-labour, plowing, ſowing, &c. So 2 Tim. 2. 6. κοπιῶντα γεωργὸν, the husbandman labouring, and Joh. 4. 38. θερίζειν ὃ οὐχ ὑμεῖς κεκοπιάκατε, to reap what you have not laboured, that is, plowed and ſowed, &c. and ſo here of Flax, which is firſt ſowed, and plucked, &c. before it comes to ſpinning.

V. 30. Graſs] χόρτος ſignifies any thing that grows in the field or garden; here the generical word is reſtrained by the Context, and referring to the lilies of the field, v. 28. doth ſignifie a flower (ſee Note on c. 7. e.) one day glorious and beautiful in the field, and the next day, or ſoon after, cut down, and uſed for the heating of ovens, or furnaces.

CHAP. VII.

Paraphraſe.

1. Judge not that ye be not judged.

1. The ſin of judging is very rife among the Jews, (ſee Note on Rom. 2. 8.) againſt this therefore you are to be forewarned. Obſerve not other mens words or actions ſeverely, or without mercy, leſt thou ſuffer the ſame from others which you do to them, and will be moſt unwilling to ſuffer from them, nay feel the like ſeverity from God when he comes to judgment, Jam. 2. 12.

2. For with what judgment ye judge, ye ſhall be judged: and] with what meaſure ye mete, it ſhall be meaſured to you again.

2. For you have reaſon to expect to be dealt with, both by God and man, as you your ſelves deal with others in this particular; and this generally is ſo obſervable, that it is become a proverb among you, (ſee Note on ch. 10. h. that with, &c.)

3. And why beholdeſt thou the *[a] mote that is in thy brothers eye, but conſidereſt not the beam that is in thine own eye?]

*[a] ſmall thin ſhiver of wood,

3. How ſtrange a thing is it, that thou ſhouldſt look ſo ſeverely on the light faults of others, who haſt for the moſt part ſo much vaſter crimes, particularly this of judging others, to be cenſured and reformed in thy ſelf? This makes thy cenſuring others very unreaſonable in thee.

4. Or how wilt thou ſay to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye, and behold a beam is in thine own eye?]

4. Which way in reaſon ſhalt thou ever be fit ſo much as to reprehend, or direct another to amend any the leaſt fault, much leſs to judge him, when thou art thus guilty of greater faults thy ſelf? Thy continuing ſtill guilty of ſuch greater ſins (ſuch is this of judging others) argues either no need of having his leſſer faults reformed, or thy no skill to aſſiſt him therein.

5. Thou hypocrite, firſt caſt out the beam out of thine own eye, and then ſhalt thou ſee clearly to caſt out the mote out of thy brothers eye.]

5. The beginning with other men, judging of them and neglecting the reforming of thy ſelf, is a piece of hypocriſie. Take care to reform thy ſelf firſt, then wilt thou be better able to work a reformation of any even the ſmalleſt ſin in another.

6. Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither caſt ye your pearls before ſwine, leſt they [b] trample them under their feet, and turn again and rent you.]

6. And for this matter of reprehending others, (all holy advices and admonitions out of Gods word) becauſe they are a very precious deed of charity, (and ſo in like manner for all other holy things, the word, and prayer, and the uſe of the ſacraments, &c. by way of analogy with that of reprehenſion, here particularly ſpoken of, v. 4.) take care that they be not caſt away upon thoſe that be incorrigible, and will but return thee reproaches and contempt for them, as ſwine tread under feet the moſt precious jewels, that are offered them, and as dogs often tear them that give them what is moſt precious.

7. Aſk, and it ſhall be given you: ſeek, and ye ſhall find: knock, and it ſhall be opened unto you.]

7. And that your ſelves may be blameleſs, free from the greater and leſſer guilts, (and ſo for all other things you want) apply your ſelves to God in prayer, and that will be a means of obtaining it, Luke 11. 9, 13. Jam. 5. 6.

8. For every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that ſeeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it ſhall be opened.]

8. For Prayer, if joyned with conſtancy, and importunity, never miſſeth to obtain that which is moſt for his benefit to receive, and therefore ſhall not fail to obtain grace.

9. Or what man is there of you, whom if his ſon aſk bread, [c] will give him a ſtone?

10. Or if he aſk a fiſh, will he give him a ſerpent?

9, 10. Any father will give his ſon which aſks him profitable things, thoſe things for which he asks, at leaſt will give him other things as good or better, but by no means worſe or hurtful (nay if he ask ſuch, he will not give him.)

*envious, niggardly; ſee Note on c. 6. 1.

11. If ye then being *evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more ſhall your Father which is in heaven, give good things to them that aſk him?]

11. If you therefore which are not always willing to give and do not always know what is good for your children, do yet not make ſuch ill returns to your childrens requeſts, as to give them ſerpents for fiſhes; how much more ſhall God be ſure to give you thoſe things that are beſt for you? (though not always in kind what you aſk for, becauſe that is not always ſuch, yet) grace which is always ſo.

12. Therefore all things whatſoever you would that men ſhould do to you, do ye even ſo to them: for this is the law and the prophets.]

12. Another branch of prime Chriſtian duty required of you is this, that whatſoever you would eſteem reaſonable that other men ſhould do to you, if you were in their, and they in your condition, the ſame you muſt now think your ſelves obliged to do to them, for this equity is taught you by your own law, and Scriptures in force among the Jews: See note on Mat. 5. g.

13. Enter ye in at the ſtrait gate; for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to deſtruction, and many there be which go in thereat.]

13. Let all your care be to ſet your ſelves upon the Chriſtian courſe, be it never ſo ſtrict (for 'tis eaſie to enter on a vicious courſe, and go through with it, and there are multitudes good ſtore, which paſs that way to eternal deſtruction and damnation.)

14. Becauſe ſtrait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.]

14. And there will be all need of your care, becauſe the entrance, and whole courſe of a Chriſtian's life is made up of perfect ſtrictneſs, in oppoſition to the looſneſs of the world, and that makes ſo few to chuſe it.

15. Beware of falſe prophets which come to you in ſheeps clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.]

15. Take heed of falſe teachers, that, when they come to infuſe their doctrines into you, wear ſheep-skins, as the Prophets oft uſed to do, thereby pretending the greateſt innocency and meekneſs that can be, but deſign and intend the direct contrary, devouring and rapacity. See Acts 20. 29.

16. Ye ſhall know them by their fruits:] Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thiſtles?

16. Ye ſhall certainly know them and diſcern them, if you take notice of and weigh the doctrines which, when they have gotten ſome authority with you, they will preſently endeavour endeavour to infuſe into you. They that make no other uſe of their being counted prophets, but to infuſe higher degrees of all kind of piety and charity into you, ye may reſolve they are ſent from God, for the Devil would never help men to credit and reputation in the world, who ſhould make uſe of it only to the advancement of piety. But if their deſign be to infuſe into their followers any ſeeds of impiety, injuſtice, uncleanneſs, uncharitableneſs, ſedition, rebellion, &c. let their pretences and behaviour be never ſo fair, be ſure they are falſe prophets.

17. Even ſo every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.

18. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

19. Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewen down, and caſt into the fire.

20. Wherefore by their fruits ye ſhall know them.

21. Not every one that ſaith unto me, Lord, Lord,] ſhall enter into the kingdom of Heaven, but he that doth the will of my father which is in heaven.

21. And though in words they take upon them to be the only ſervants, ſons, and ſaints of God, as Hereticks and Schiſmaticks ordinarily do, yet theſe words of theirs and their confident calling on God, are not ſuch fruits, by which you can judge well of them; for 'tis not every one which believeth on me, which acknowledgeth me, which looketh for ſalvation from me, that

22. Many will ſay to me [in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not propheſied * in thy name? and in thy name have caſt out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?] * by τῷ ὀνόμ.

22. At the day of judgment, Lord, we are the men which thou by thy power haſt enabled to foretel things to come, and by the ſame, to exorciſe Devils, and do all kind of miracles.

23. And then will I profeſs unto them, [d I never knew you;] depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

d. 23. Saying, I never knew you.

24. Therefore whoſoever [heareth theſe ſayings of mine and doth them, I will liken him to a wiſe man, which built his houſe upon a rock.]

24. Believeth and entertaineth all theſe commands here contained in this Sermon, (beginning c. 5. 1.) and practiſeth them, he is like a prudent builder, that laid the foundations of his houſe upon a rock (ſee Note on c. 10. b.)

e. 25. And the rain deſcended, and [the e floods] came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that houſe and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock.

25. Land-floods that proceeded from that ſudden rain.

26. And every one that heareth theſe ſayings of mine, and doth them not, [ſhall be likened] unto a fooliſh man, which built his houſe upon the ſand.

26. Shall be like, and by all men known and reputed, to be like.

27. And the rain deſcended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that houſe, and great was the fall of it.

28. And it came to paſs when Jeſus had ended theſe ſayings, the people were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine.

29. For he taught them, as one having authority, and not as the Scribes.]

29. For all this Sermon of his, whether ſpoken continuedly, or with pauſes between, was delivered by him as by one which had extraordinary power and miſſion, prophetick at leaſt, which ſince Ezra's time had been intermitted (as the Jews confeſs) and not as the Doctors of Law among the Jews.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. VII.

V. 3. Mote] What κάρφος here ſignifies, will appear by two ways of judging, firſt by the judgment of the Greek Grammarians. Heſychius renders κάρφη, ξύλα λεπτὰ καὶ ξηρά, thin, dry pieces of wood, and then taking it in that notion of a thin piece of wood, the leaſt ſplinter or ſhiver imaginable, of very little, yet of ſome length, 'twill be here very fitled uſed, and ſet oppoſite to the δοκὸς the beam, the biggeſt and longeſt piece of wood which is uſed. The ſecond way is by comparing the next verſe (which is the varying the phraſe a little) with a Proverbial ſpeech among the Jews, in and before Chriſt's time (ſet down afterward with ſome variation in the Talmud, thus) They which ſay to others טול חיסם מבין שניך take out the ſmall piece of wood out of thy teeth, are anſwered טול קורה מבין עיניך take out the beam out of thine eyes. To check the importunity of thoſe who are always cenſuring and condemning others for ſmall matters, reprehending for trifles, when they are themſelves guilty of thoſe things which are much more to be reprehended.

h. V. 6 They trample] There is in theſe words obſervable an ἐπάνοδος or ὑπέρθεσις a going back, ſpeaking firſt to the ſecond of the two things propoſed, and then after to the firſt. As it is very frequent with the Prophets in the Old Teſtament, and not ſeldom uſed in the Writers of the New. So Mat. 12. 22. the blind and the dumb both ſpake and ſaw, i. e. the blind ſaw, and the dumb ſpake; and c. 18. Chriſt having mentioned the three degrees of Admonition, by one alone, by two or three, and by the Rulers in the preſence of the Aſſembly, v. 15, 16, 17. he then reſumes to ſpeak ſomewhat farther of each of theſe, and begins firſt with the laſt, what in caſe of ſuch refractorineſs, the Rulers of the Church are to do, Verily I ſay unto you, Whatſoever ye ſhall bind on earth, &c. v. 18. And then v. 19. (in reference to the ſecond thing mentioned, the admonition in the preſence of one or two v. 16.) Again, Verily I ſay unto you, That if two of you ſhall agree upon the earth, &c. it ſhall be done unto them of my Father; From which, before he proceeds back again in the firſt place to the firſt, of the private admonition, Peter asks a queſtion, which introduces the diſcourſe, which was proper to have been delivered on that ſubject. So c. 23. 16. Chriſt having mentioned ſwearing by the Temple firſt, and then by the Altar v. 18. he after reſuming them both again, v. 20. begins firſt with that of the Altar, and then that of the Temple after it. So in that c. 23. 25. having mentioned firſt the outſide of the cup and platter, and then the inſide v. 26. he returns firſt to the cleanſing of the inſide, then the outſide of it. So Rom. 2. 12. S. Paul having affirmed two things, the firſt of the Gentiles that had not the Law, that they ſhould periſh without it, the ſecond of the Jews that had the Law, that they ſhould be judged by it, he v. 13. ſpeaks firſt of the ſecond, for the hearers of the Law, &c. and then v. 14. of the firſt, For when the Nations, &c. So Rom. 14. having ſet down two heads of diſcourſe, that the ſtrong ſhould not ſet at naught the weak; nor ſecondly, the weak judge or condemn the ſtrong, v. 3. he reſumes the latter firſt v. 4. who art thou that judgeſt, and then v. 10. returns to the former, and thou, why doſt thou ſet at nought thy brother? So 1 Cor. 6. 11. after the general of waſhing, which contains the two ſubſequent, ſanctifying and juſtifying, the mention of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is firſt named, belongs to the latter, that of Juſtification, and the Spirit of our God, to the former, that of Sanctifying. So 2 Cor. 2. 15. having mentioned the σωζομένοις firſt, them that are ſaved, and then ἀπολλυμένοις them that periſh, he goes back v. 16. firſt to the latter, to thoſe a ſavour of death unto death, and then to the former, to thoſe a ſavor of life unto life. So Philem. 5. hearing of thy love and faith, which thou haſt toward the Lord Jeſus, and toward all Saints, 'tis apparent that the Saints are the object of the love, and the Lord Jeſus of the Faith. So Heb. 5. where in the four firſt verſes there are three things propounded of an High-Prieſt, 1. that he offer for ſin, 2. be compaſſionate to ſinners, and to that end he himſelf infirm, and offer for himſelf, as well as the people, 3 that he be called to this office by God himſelf: To theſe three, all applied ed to Chriſt, the Apoſtle ſpeaks particularly, and to the laſt firſt, So likewiſe Chriſt glorified not himſelf to be an High-Prieſt, &c. v. 5, 6. Then to the ſecond v. 7. and 8. who in the days of his fleſh offered up prayers, &c. and then to the firſt laſt, v. 9. being made perfect he became the Author of eternal ſalvation, &c. So Heb. 9. 1. having named two things, the ordinances of worſhip, and the worldly ſanctuary, he dilates firſt on the laſt of them, v. 2, 3, 4, 5. For there was a tabernacle made, &c. and then after comes back to the former, v. 6. Now when theſe things were thus ordained, the Prieſt went always, &c. So Heb. 10. 33. have mentioned two acts of ſuffering in them, the firſt perſonal in themſelves by reproaches and afflictions, the ſecond by way of ſympathy with the Apoſtles, in the next verſe he reſumes both, but firſt the latter for he had compaſſion on me in my bands, and then the former, took joyfully the ſpoiling of your goods. So 2 Pet. 3. where the Atheiſts objection conſiſts of two parts, 1. that God hath not made good his promiſe concerning his coming, v. 4. 2. as a proof of that, that there had been no ſenſible mutation ſince the beginning of the world, in the latter part of the verſe; The Apoſtle makes anſwer firſt to the latter, v. 5, 6, 7. and then comes back, and ſatisfies the former alſo, v. 8. &c. And, to inſtance no more, two examples of this there are moſt clearly here in this place; The firſt in the 6th and 7th verſes, for having mentioned two things, v. 5. pulling out the beam in thine own eye, that is, reforming a man's own ſins; ſecondly, caſting out the mote out of thy brother's eye, that is, reprehending faults in other men, he ſpeaks firſt to the latter of theſe, the matter of reprehenſion, v. 6. and then v. 7. returns to the former, the means that muſt be uſed for the reforming our ſelves, prayer for grace, which ſhall ſo ſurely bring it. The ſecond here in the 6th verſe, where having mention'd the dogs and the ſwine, he firſt ſpeaks of the ſwine, and after of the dogs; for certainly the treading belongs to the ſwine, and the rending to the dogs; for the ſwine do not uſe to turn, and rend, but the dogs do; (and therefore Munſter's Hebrew reads it, וישובו הכלבים and the dogs returning, &c. and dogs do not tread under their feet what is caſt to them, as ſwine do. Theſe are both proverbially ſpoken, to expreſs how ſure good charitable reprehenſions are to be caſt away upon incorrigible ſinners, according to that of the Satyriſt, ——vitia ultima fictos 2d Sat of Juv.

Contemnunt Scauros, & caſtigata remordent. V. 35.
Enormous vices, if they be chaſtiſed, or reprehended, will contemn and bite again.

V. 9. Will he give] Μὴ ὀπιδώσει, is here no more than will he give? The Greek μὴ being often all one with the Hebrew מי nunquid? as in the * Gemara מי כתיב nunquid ſcriptum eſt? is it written? c. Μὴ. * tr. Sanhed. ſect. 10.

V. 23. Ὅτι here and in ſome other places, hath a peculiar notion, nearer an expletive than a cauſal, and is beſt rendred by the Latine ſcilicet, the Engliſh Thus, or the like, as a form only of introducing the ſpeech that comes after, He ſhall ſay unto them, what ſhall he ſay? Why, or thus he ſhall ſay, I know you not, &c. So c. 10. 7. and ſo c. 26. 72. He denied with an oath, ὅτι οὐκ οἶδα, which will be beſt rendred, ſaying, I know him not, ſo v. 74, 75. In all which places, if it ſhall be rendred that, the words will not be coherent; but if it be rendred ſaying, or elſe quite omitted, as an Expletive, and not rendred at all, the ſenſe will be perſpicuous. Thus I conceive is ὅτι to be taken Rom. 3. 8. καὶ μὴ (καθὼς βλασφημούμεθα, καὶ καθώς φασί τινες ἡμᾶς λέγειν) ὅτι ποιήσωμεν, &c. and why ſhould we not ſay, (as they ſay we do) to wit, Let us do evil, &c. d. Ὅτι

V. 25. The floods] The word ποταμοὶ doth not peculiarly ſignifie rivers, that is, ſtreams and chanels, either beginning from ſprings, or proceeding from the Sea, but in a general word, of which, as thoſe rivers are one ſpecies, ſo are land-floods, or torrents, that ariſe from any tempeſtuous, ſudden rain, another, and the latter of theſe is here meant, being joyned to the deſcending of the rain, and accompanied with the blowing of the winds. Thus in Homer, Ιλ. ν'.

Ὡς δ' ὅτε χειμάρροι ποταμοὶ κατ' ὄρεσφι ῥέοντες.

As when the torrent rivers running down from the mountains——Where, ſaith Euſtathius, the word ποταμοὶ is a generical word, χειμάρροι, ſpecifical, ποταμὸς being of two ſorts, 1. ἀέναος, a continual river that flows from a ſpring, and 2. χειμάρρους that comes in a torrent from a tempeſtuous rain, (ὄμβειμον ὕδωρ, rain water there in Homer, and therefore he concludes, τὸ δὲ ποταμὸς χειμάρρους ἐπιθετικώτερόν ἐστι τοῦ λίνῳ τὸ λεπτός, ὁμοίως τοῦ βοῦς ταῦρος, The word ποταμὸς hath the adjective χειμάρρους added to it, the ſpecifical word to the generical, as if to βοῦς the word ταῦρος were added. And ſo as βοῦς is ſometimes taken peculiarly for a bull, though it be a more general comprehenſive word, and ſignifies an oxe alſo, ſo doth ποταμὸς here ſignifie a land-flood or torrent; though in its own amplitude it ſignifies a river alſo, juſt as χόρτος the generical word for graſs and flowers, &c. is yet by the context reſtrained to ſignifie flowers peculiarly, c. 6. 30. c. Ποταμοὶ

CHAP. VIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. WHen he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.]
1. After the finiſhing of this Sermon of his, there was great reſort unto him, not only for his Doctrine, but his miracles of cures, &c.

2. And behold there came a leper and [* a worſhipped him, ſaying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canſt make me clean.]
* fell down before him
2. Fell down and beſought him that he would pleaſe to make uſe of his power, whereby he was confident that he was able to cure his leproſie.

3. And Jeſus put forth his hand and touched him, ſaying, I will, be thou clean. And immediately his leproſie was cleanſed.]
3. He was cleanſed or cured from his leproſie.

4. And Jeſus ſaith unto him, [b See thou tell no man, but go thy way, c ſhew thy ſelf to the Prieſt, and offer the gift that Moſes commanded, d for a teſtimony unto them.]
4. Be ſure thou divulge not this to others, but according to the Law ſhew thy ſelf to the Prieſt, and offer the offering required of all ſuch, as are thus cleanſed from leproſie; This Jeſus ſaid to him on deſign, that it might by this means be a teſtimony to aſſure them, 1. that he was the Meſſias, 2. that he oppoſed not the Law given by Moſes.
b. c. d.

5. And when Jeſus was entred into Capernaum, there came unto him a [Centurion,] beſeeching him,
5. A Captain or Commander of an hundred ſoldiers.

6. And ſaying, Lord, my ſervant lyeth at home ſick of the palſie, grievouſly * e tormented.

7. And Jeſus ſaith unto him, I will come and heal him.

8. The Centurion anſwered and ſaid, Lord, I am not worthy that thou ſhouldſt come under my roof, [but ſpeak the word only, and my ſervant ſhall be healed.]
8. But of this I am aſſured, that one word of thine will as eaſily cure him, as if thou ſhouldſt thy ſelf come perſonally.

9. For I am a man under authority, having ſouldiers under me. And I ſay to this man, Go, and he goeth, and to another, Come, and he cometh, and to my ſervant, Do this, and he doth it].
9. For I am a man, who though I am under other mens authority, that of the chief Commander, and of the Emperour, yet have under me ſouldiers for my military commands, and ſervants for my domeſtick, and whatſoever I command them, is done by them as ſurely, as if I did it my ſelf, how much more canſt thou with thy word command health (who art the word, which healeth all things, Wiſd. 16. 12.) without troubling thy ſelf to come down to my houſe?

10. When Jeſus heard it, [he marvelled and ſaid unto them that followed, Verily I ſay unto you I have not found ſo great f faith, no not in Iſrael.]

f. 10. At this ſaying of the Centurion, Jeſus expreſſed much wonderment, and calling to his Diſciples, ſaid with ſome earneſtneſs of aſſeveration, I have not found any Jew ſo fully perſwaded of my power, or that behaves himſelf ſo much like a believer, as this Gentile.

11. And I ſay unto you, that many ſhall come from the eaſt and weſt, and ſhall g ſit down with Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven:

g. 11. But this which is now ſo very admirable, will within a while be frequently exemplified: For the old Prophets have oft foretold it (and now the time of the completion approacheth) that many multitudes from all parts of the world will come in, and believe on Chriſt, partake of his ſpiritual feaſt, and be made to ſit down with Abraham the father of the faithful, and the reſt of the Patriarchs of the Jewiſh Nation.

12. But the children of the kingdom ſhall be caſt out into utter darkneſs,] there ſhall be h weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.

h. 12. And the Jews themſelves to whom this Meſſias was primarily ſent, will disbelieve, and be puniſhed accordingly, ſhut out of the ſpiritual feaſt, out of the Church here, and Heaven hereafter, deprived of the light and chearful heat, that is wont to be in houſes of feaſting, and left to utter darkneſs (the cold of the night, and winter, without) ſtupid blindneſs here, and eternal darkneſs hereafter.

13. And Jeſus ſaid unto the Centurion, Go thy way, and as thou haſt believed, ſo be it done unto thee: And his ſervant was healed in the ſelf ſame hour.

14. And when Jeſus came into Peters houſe, he [ſaw his wifes mother laid, and ſick of a feaver:]

14. Found his wife's mother ſick of a feaver, and laid to bed under it.

15. And he touched her hand, and the feaver left her, and ſhe aroſe and [miniſtred unto them.]

15. Provided for them what was neceſſary for their entertainment.

16. When the even was come,] they brought unto him many that were poſſeſſed with devils, and he caſt out the ſpirits with his word, and healed all that were ſick:

16. When by the approach of the evening-cool it was more convenient.

17. That it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by Eſaias the prophet, ſaying, [Himſelf i took our infirmities, and bare our ſickneſſes.]

i. 17. He was ſo affected with all the miſeries that befel us, that out of compaſſion to us, he made uſe of his divine power to heal even our bodies of the diſeaſes that were on them.

18. Now when Jeſus ſaw great multitudes about him, he gave commandment to depart unto the other ſide;

19. And a certain Scribe came and ſaid unto him, Maſter, I will follow thee whitherſoever thou goeſt;

20. And Jeſus ſaith unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have neſts; but the ſon of man hath [not where to lay his head].

20. No place or dwelling of his own to reſt in, or entertain any follower.

21. And another of his diſciples ſaith unto him, [Lord, ſuffer me firſt to go and bury my father.]

21. Lord I deſire, and firmly purpoſe to be a conſtant follower of thine; but for a time I beſeech thy leave, that I may abide at my fathers houſe, to perform the laſt rites of funeral obſequies unto him.

22. But Jeſus ſaid unto him, Follow me, and [let the k dead bury their dead.]

k. 22. Leave that office to be performed by others, who are not imbarked in this more holy and divine imployment: For as in the Law the Nazarites and the Prieſts might not meddle with the interments even of their parents, but others might lawfully do it, others that were not Nazarites or Prieſts might bury one another: So thou that art a conſecrated perſon, the departing to bury a deceaſed friend, though it be a Father, or to receive an inheritance or legacy from him, is an imployment unfit for thee.

23. And when he was entred into a ſhip, [his diſciples] followed him.

23. His Diſciples and none elſe.

24. And behold there aroſe a great tempeſt in [the ſea,] inſomuch that the ſhip was covered with the waves; but he was aſleep.

24. The lake, ſee note on Luke 8.c.

25. And his Diſciples came unto him, and awoke him, ſaying, Lord ſave us, we periſh.

26. And he ſaith unto them, Why are ye fearful [O ye of little faith?] Then he aroſe and rebuked the winds and the ſea, and there was a great calm.

26. Ye that in the due ſeaſon make not uſe of that promiſe in the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 107. 23, 28. and apprehend not the fulfilling of it in and by Chriſt, ye that have ſo poor an opinion, either of my power, or care of you, as to doubt of my preſence to ſecure you.

27. But the men marvelled] ſaying, What manner of man is this, that even the winds, and the ſea obey him?

27. And at this they were wonderfully amaz'd, and terrified, Mark 4.41. Luke 8.25.

28. And when he was come to the other ſide, into [the country of the Gergeſenes,] there met him two poſſeſſed with devils coming out of the l tombs exceeding fierce, ſo that no man might paſs by that way.

l. 28. That Country where Gergeſa and Gadara (Mark 5.1.) lie near together; ſee Mark 8.10.

29. And behold they cryed out, ſaying, [What have we to do with thee, Jeſus thou ſon of God? Art thou come hither to torment us before the time?

29. Be quiet, let us alone, we deſire not to have any thing to do with thee, thou Son of God and Saviour of Mankind! Our time is not yet come of being remanded to our priſons, do not thou haſten and precipitate it.

30. And there was a good way off from them an herd of many m ſwine feeding.

31. So the devils beſought him,] ſaying, if thou caſt us out, ſuffer us to go away into the herd of ſwine.

31. And thereupon the Devils knowing that Chriſt would caſt them out, and by that miracle ſo far ſhew forth his power, that it would probably bring all the country to believe on him, deſired to prevent this, and thereupon fell on this project, which might incenſe the country-men againſt him (as it proved in the event, v. 34.) and in order to it beſought Chriſt.

32. And he ſaid unto them, Go: and when they were come out, they went into the herd of ſwine, and behold the whole herd of ſwine ran violently down a ſteep place into the ſea, and periſhed in the waters.

32. See Mark 5.13. Luke 8.32.

33. And they that kept them, fled, and went their ways into the city, and [told every thing, and what was befaln to the poſſeſſed of the devil.]

33. Gave them notice of the loſs of their ſwine, and telling the occaſion of it, let them know how as their ſwine were loſt on one ſide, ſo two men poſſeſſed with Devils were recovered, and that Chriſt had done this ſince his coming thither.

34. And behold the whole city came out to meet Jeſus: and when they ſaw him, they beſought him] that he would depart out of their coaſts.

34. Hereupon the whole city, as being very much concerned in that which had happened, came out to meet and ſee Jeſus, which did ſuch miracles, and inſtead of being wrought on by his cure on the men, to deſire his continuance among them, the conſideration of the loſs of their ſwine made them deſire, and beſeech him, &c.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. VIII.

V. 2. Worſhipped] Προσκυνεῖ προσπίπτει, ſaith Heſychius and Phavorinus, it ſignifies to fall down, as ſuppliants do to any.

V. 4. See thou tell no man] What was the reaſon why Chriſt ſo oft commanded the concealing of his Miracles, and of his being the Meſſias, will beſt be conjectured by conſidering the ſeveral places where this is mentioned. Firſt here to the leper cur'd by him, ſee thou tell no body, v. 4. then Mat. 9. to the blind reſtored to ſight, be charged them, ſaying, See ye tell no man, v. 30. And as yet there is no reaſon diſcernable in the Contexts, unleſs perhaps in this latter, when they obeying not his command, but his fame ſpreading, the Demoniacs coming to him, he cures them, which the Phariſees hearing of, ſay, He caſts out Devils thrō the prince of Devils, v. 34. For 'tis poſſible that Chriſt foreſeeing the Phariſees perverſneſs, and blaſphemy, and that they would proceed to the crucifying of him, him, instead of being convinced by his Miracles, did in mercy to them, and to leave them the excuse of ignorance, Luke 23.34. Acts 3.17. forbid the divulging them, lest they should come to the ears of those that would make so ill use of them. Next, *v.*12.16. He charged them that they should not make him known. Whom did he charge? Mar. 3.12. the words are set immediately upon the mention of the Devil's falling down to him, and saying, Thou art the Son of God. But that being but a passage which comes in incidentally, upon the mention of his casting out Devils, among his other cures, which he wrought on many, v. 10, 11. 'tis not necessary that the αὐτοῖς them, must belong to the Devils immediately precedent, but may belong to the πολλοὶ, many or multitude, that were cured by him; or if to the unclean Spirits, then still those must signify the men that were possessed with them, or else how could they fall *down before him? v.*11. and so 'tis positively said, *v.*12. that he charged them, that is, either the ὄχλοι πολλοὶ many multitudes, or αὐτοὶ πάντες, all they that were cured by him. In this one place two circumstances there are, which seem to give some light to the matter in hand, concerning the reason of his charge to be concealed. For first, *v.*14. upon his former miracle on the withered hand, wrought on the Sabbath-day, The Pharisees went out and consulted against him, how they might kill him, or bring a capital charge against him, and when Jesus knew this, he withdrew himself, v.15. this not for fear of death, ὡ διὰ φόβον θανάτε, saith Origen against Celsus, but because (his coming into the World being for the benefit of men) he would not die, ἕως ὅτε ἦ ὁ ἀποτόκου καιρός, till the convenient season were come of dying, more for man's advantage, than he had hitherto lived. (To the same purpose is Christ's telling his mother, *Joh.*2.4. My hour is not yet come, see *Joh.*2. a.) It follows therefore, *v.*15. that as great multitudes followed him, so he healed them all, that is, he did not so withdraw himself as to omit doing any good, but for the present, so as to avoid opposition and disputing (which he had met with, *v.*2.& 10.) yea and death it self, of which there was now danger, unless he would either thus before-hand, or at the instant of danger, by miracle withdraw, or unless he would make use of his omnipotence to preserve himself, which he would not do, being come not to resist, but to lay down his life, which yet he deferred to do, his time being not yet come. And upon this it follows distinctly, *v.*16. and he charged them that they should not make him known, which notes that to be the reason of his prohibition in this place, because he would decline and fairly avoid (perhaps the dispute with perverse and treacherous Pharisees, assuredly) the death; which they were providing for him: and so saith Origen in that place, ὐκ ἀγῶνες ὄτι τὸ μετ' οἰκονομίας ἀπεὶσθμὸν τὸς κινδώνες, μὴ ὁμόσε αὐτοῖς χωρεῖν, 'Tis no degenerous thing in Christ to avoid dangers by providence, and not to go among them. The second circumstance in this place, which may help to give light to it, is the prophecy which is cited just on the back of these words, *v.*16. That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the Prophet, 42.1. The sum of the words of Isaiah is, that the Messias should, when he came, in the discharging of his office behave himself very quietly and stilly, never set himself out magnificently (as other Princes do) against all opposers, never use any secular force to defend himself, but manage it so as was most agreeable to that Gospel which he came to proclaim, meekly and mercifully dealing with sinners and weaklings and never giving over till he had so rooted the Gospel on earth, that it should never be gotten out again, but extend to the Gentiles, and be believed on, and embraced by them. Which Prophecy being here fulfilled; not all of it in this one interdict of his, but in the whole passage last rehearsed, doth yet so far reflect on this particular, that that part of the Prophecy (of his preaching, and making known the will of God to as many as were likely to receive benefit from it, his not resisting, not contending with others, his meekness, and not contesting with the Pharisees) may be fulfilled in it; and so that may pass for one part of the reason of his prohibition; which being added to the former circumstance, makes up this entire reason of his doing it, viz. Christ would not have his miracles divulged, because, when they were so, the Pharisees still came and disturbed him, opposed him (and he had not a mind to contest with them, and it was a great mercy to them that he would not, being likely to do no good upon them) and would probably have proceeded to cut him off, (if he did not thus withdraw, or defend himself) before he had done what he was sent for, that is, preached the Gospel to all the Jews & made it known (as it appears he did at this time, by that withdrawing, Mar. 3.8.) to the Gentiles also. But besides these, another passage there is, which must be taken in, being of special consideration to this purpose, and that is *Luk.*9.21. parallel to *Mat.*16.20. & *Mar.*8.30. The matter in hand in two of those places, is, Christ's asking his Disciples what the opinion of the world was concerning him; and at last, what was their own opinion, whereupon Peter answers, that he was the Christ of God, *v.*20. on which it immediately follows, that he straitly charged them, and commanded them to tell no man that thing, v.21. Why he gave now so severe an interdict of this promulgation (when his miracles, and all that he did & taught, had hitherto tended to the evidencing of this) the reason was certainly this, lest the Disciples witnessing or proclaiming, it might be taken for a thing compacted between them. And those that were not wrought upon & convinced by his miracles, would be more likely to be alienated by this. And besides Christ knew that he was to be rejected, and to suffer death, (and so it follows in all the 3 Gospels) and consequently not to be believed on by the chief of the Jews. And so the proclaiming of his Divinity, till they had that great addition of his Resurrection, to add to their own testimony, was not yet so seasonable. This was the occasion of the like speech, *Mar.*9.30. where passing thro' Galilee (where formerly he had freely preached and done miracles) he now was not pleased that any man should know it: For, as it follows, v.31. he said to his Disciples, The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, &c. And this very thing Christ in effect tells the Pharisees themselves, for when they desire a sign from him, that he was the Messias, he tells them, that they shall have no other sign but that of the Prophet Jonah, *Mat.*12.39. which referring clearly to that of his rising from the Grave the third day, signifies that he would use no more means now to convince them, till by his Resurrection from the Dead, his divine power, and the completion of the types and prophecies in him, should be most convincingly made known to them, and this I conceive to be the reason of his then prohibiting them to tell that he was the Messias, because having been thus long rejected by the Rulers, &c. (and the Prophecies of his dying, containing a prediction that they should still reject, and at length put him to death) it was in all respects most fit, that the most convincing evidences of his being the Messias, (of which the Apostles had store, particularly, and above others, Peter, and James, and John had that of the voice from heaven, at the Transfiguration, and would in all reason add them to evidence that truth, and not content themselves with the bare affirmations that he was so) should be reserved & not yet published, till after his death and resurrection, that so his rising from the dead being added to his former miracles, and to his infinite meekness and charity, demonstrated by his death, might be able to convince the most pertinacious, obdurate heart, which certainly would not now (having so oft resisted the like) be perswaded by his miracles or preaching, much less by the testimony of his own Disciples, but might afterwards possibly be wrought upon, (as indeed some of them were, A great multitude of the priests, Acts 6. 7.) by the evidence of his resurrection, and they that were not, are left utterly unexcusable. And thus in the Parable, *Lu.*19. the king takes possession of his kingdom, that is, Christ goes to heaven before he proceeds to execution against his enemies that would not have him reign over them, *v.*15.27. According to this it is, that at the Transfiguration, *c.*17. when thoſe three Apoſtles had received that clear teſtimony by a voice from heaven, This is my beloved Son, &c. he commands them to tell it no man (not abſolutely, but with this particular reſtraint, which implies the cauſe of it) till the Son of man be riſen from the dead, telling them withal, as here, that it was propheſied of him, that he muſt ſuffer, &c. ſo Mar. 9.12. In which paſſage the three Diſciples being taken up alone into the Mount with him, and commanded to tell it no man, the phraſe No man, will moſt probably be interpreted in the greateſt latitude, [no not to the reſt of the Diſciples] and the reaſon of that ſtrict prohibition will be this, that the deſigned uſe of this viſion being the work of faith in the obdurate, and the ſeaſon of making that uſe of it being not yet come, till after the Reſurrection, it was uſeleſs to be revealed to the whole number of the twelve, who believed it already, and ſo needed it not for themſelves, and were not to be permitted to preach it to others, if they had known it.

c. Ib. Shew thy ſelf to the Prieſt] The Leper continued without the camp or city: on the day of his cleanſing he was led to the outſide of the camp, and in the latter ages, to the gate of Jeruſalem, and the Prieſt went out to meet him, and performing ſome rites for him, afterwards received him into the city or camp, and by degrees into the Sanctuary. This was the form or manner of ſhewing himſelf to the Prieſt (who, as the πασοφόροι among the Egyptians was, exerciſed in all kind of knowledge, particularly in that of being able to judge of diſeaſes in the body) and this ſhewing was neceſſary to every one that had been leprous, tho' never ſo perfectly cured, *Lev.*14.2. and therefore Chriſt in obedience to the Law, here requires it of him.

d. Ib. For a Teſtimony] The phraſe εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς, for a teſtimony to them, may poſſibly connect with λέγει ὁ Ἰησοῦς. Jeſus ſaith, in the beginning of the verſe, and λέγῃ αὐτῷ, he ſaith unto him, *Mar.*1.44. not with προσέταξε Μωσῆς, Moſes commanded next before it. Or which is more probable, it may ſtand alone by it ſelf after all; and that not only the comma after Μωσῆς, but alſo the ſenſe makes probable, viz. that this whole action of Chriſt in curing the Leper, and ſending him to the Prieſt, &c. was for a teſtimony unto them, that is, to the multitudes there, *v.*1. (and ſuppoſed Mar. 1.39. tho' not expreſſed) that he was the Son of God. For the Jews themſelves confeſs that Leproſy is the finger of God, a diſeaſe peculiarly of his ſending and removing, and that 'tis not lawful for the Phyſician (or any but the Prieſt by God appointed and directed in his courſe) ſo much as to attempt the cure of it. Thus ſaith R. Menachim, in *Lev.*13. And therefore in the Anſwer to John Baptiſt's queſtion, whether Chriſt were the Meſſias, or no, one part of it is, that the lepers are cleanſed, that being as peculiar an act of Gods, as that the dead are raiſed, in the following words, Mat. 11.5. So 2 Kings 5.7. the King of Iſrael being ſent to by the K. of Syria to recover Naaman of his Leproſy. He rent his cloaths, and ſaid, Am I a God to kill and make alive, that this man ſends to me, to recover one of his Leproſy? But if the comma after Μωσῆς be conceived not to belong to that place, either in Matthew or Mark, then no queſtion it muſt refer to Moſes's order to the Leper, of ſhewing himſelf to the prieſt, and offering a gift, for that was by the Law deſigned as a clear μαρτύριον or teſtimony, that the cure of Leproſy was a peculiar work of God's. 'Tis true indeed there is another ſenſe, of which the words are thought capable, that his ſhewing himſelf to the Prieſt, and being by him examined and pronounced clean, might be a ſufficient teſtimony to the man, that the cure was perfectly wrought, and no impoſture in it; or again a teſtimony to the Prieſt, either of Chriſt's being the Meſſias, who had wrought that cure, or of his not oppoſing the Law, by ſending his patient to ſubmit to thoſe Ordinances which the Law in that caſe provided. But the former interpretation ſeems rather to be the importance of the place becauſe of the αὐτοῖς in the Plural, the multitude, to whom the teſtimony was deſigned, and not in the ſingular to him, either the Prieſt or Leper. And for the laſt, that of the Prieſt, it ſeems alſo to be reſiſted by the former part of the verſe, where the command to tell no man will not be obey'd, if he ſo tell the prieſt, that it be by him taken notice of that the cure was wrought by Chriſt, which it muſt be, if it were a teſtimony to him and the reſt, and would probably have brought that danger, that Chriſt ſeemed willing to avoid. See Note b.

e. V.6. Tormented] βασανίζεσθαι doth not always ſignify torment or ſharp pain; for here the Palſy is not ſuch, but any great diſaffection or diſeaſe of body, or commonly any puniſhment; as *v.*29. and ſo *c.*18.34. βασανισταὶ lictors, gaolers, according to that of the old Gloſſary, βασανίζω, not only crucio, torqueo, to torment, but coerceo too, agreeable to that of impriſoning.

f. V.10. Faith] There are five acceptions of the word πίστις Faith in the New Teſtament: First, the Faith, or believing that Chriſt was able to cure diſeaſes, &c. So here, and c. 9. 22. Acts 14.9. and under this head the Faith of the Diſciples, by which they believed Chriſt ſo far, as that by his delegated power they were able to do the like miracles, *Mat.*17.20. & 21. 22. *Mar.*11. 24. 1 Cor. 13. 2. and perhaps *c.*12.9. where faith as a χάρισμα, or gift of the Spirit, is joined with the gift of healing.

Πίστις

Secondly, the belief of all that is revealed by God, and that is in effect the true Religion, either before Chriſt's birth (and then 'tis the faith of God) *Heb.*11. 3,30,31. and referred to v,6. or after, and then 'tis the faith of Chriſt, *Rev.*14.12. or belief of the truth, that is, that truth now revealed by Chriſt, 2 Theſ. 2. 13. and when this is not ſo complete as it ſhould be, for want of light, then 'tis weak faith, or weakneſs in faith, Rom. 14.1. To this many places belong, 1 *Theſ.*3.2,5. 2 Theſ. 1,3. *Jam.*2.1. Jude 3. *Rom.*1.5. Acts 6.7. & 14.22. So Luke 18.8. where by reaſon of the perſecution of that faith, Chriſt foretels that there ſhall be (at his coming to act vengeance on his enemies) very little Faith upon the earth, that is, in the land of Judea and Samaria. So Luke 22.32. And as this Chriſtian faith contains in it doctrines in oppoſition to the Moſaical Law, ſo 'tis uſed Rom. 3. 27,28. *c.*4.15. As it comprehends Chriſt's precepts, ſo 'tis uſed *Rom.*16.16. and as promiſes, ſo 'tis uſed, *Gal.*3.14. 1 *Cor.*15.14. *Heb.*11.1. And this laſt branch of it comprehendeth Hope alſo, whoſe object are thoſe Promiſes, and ſuppoſes and includes a ſincere care of performing the condition now required under the Goſpel, without which as the Promiſes belong not to any, ſo the Faith is but an imperfect and falſe Faith, which will never avail any.

Thirdly, the dictates of conſcience, rightly perſwaded or aſſured of the lawfulneſs of what a man doth, and that either to one particular action, *Rom.*14.22,23. or univerſally to the general current of the Life, Heb. 10.22.

Fourthly, in a more limited ſenſe 'tis a confidence in prayer, that what we ask as we ought to do, we ſhall receive (Jam. 5. 15.) and as an aſſociate of that, depending on God's proviſion for things of this life, the want of which is called ὀλιγοπιστία littleneſs of faith, Mat. 6.30. this being one promiſe of the Goſpel, that they who ask ſhall receive, and that all theſe things (the neceſſaries of life) ſhall be added to them, that firſt ſeek the righteouſneſs of God's kingdom, or of the Goſpel.

Fifthly, Fidelity, and that either in God's making good his promiſe to us, *Rom.*3. 3. 1 *Cor.*1.9. & 10. 13. 1 *Theſ.*5.24. Or in man toward other men, Gal. 5. 22. ſervants toward maſters, *Tit.*2.10. ſo πιστὸς the faithful ſteward, *Mat.*25.21. Luke 14.17. 1 Cor. 4.7. Or of men toward God, 2 *Tim.*4 8. where keeping the faith, after fighting and finiſhing the courſe, muſt needs be conſtancy and fidelity, (ſee Note on Jam. 1.a.) from whence the word πιστὸς moſt commonly draws its ſignification, being frequently taken not for believing but faithful: ſee *Heb.*2.17. & 3.2. 1 *Tim.*1.12. Rev 2.10. and ſo ἄπιστος is ordinarily unfaithful, Luke 12.46. all one with hypocrites, *Mat.*24.51. In this acception it is that it notes to ſincerity ſincerity of reſolution of Chriſtian life, which God, that ſees, accepts, tho' for want of occaſion, or tryal, as yet it be not expreſſed in action, and ſo approved to men: So 1 *Pet.*1.7. and *Phil.*1.29. and thus when Abraham's Faith was tryed, firſt by a hard command of going out of his country, then by an incredible promiſe of a child from barren old Sarah, then again by a hard command of ſacrificing his Son, theſe three being but tryals of his faith, upon which it was approved to be ſincere (and ſo he juſtified) it is now apparent, that before theſe tryals he had faith, which then, before it was tryed, was nothing but this reſolution of obedience, &c. or a ſincere giving himſelf up to God in præparatione animi, in purpoſe of mind, or reſolution; and if it had failed in any of thoſe tryals, would then have loſt its acceptance with God, but failing not, was approved. This, I conceive, is the faith which in S. James muſt, when opportunity ſerves, be ſhewed or demonſtrated by works, *Jam.*3. 18. and if in that caſe it do not, is a dead faith, *v.*20. but ſuppoſing it ſincere, tho' yet not tried, then it is that which I now ſpeak of, and is then oppoſed to works, not as thoſe note 1. the ceremonies of the Moſaical Law, or 2. perfect, unſinning obedience, but as they ſignify actual performance. To this there is a place of a venerable ancient writer, Cyril of Jeruſalem, which is very appliable, who having ſaid of the Thief on the Croſs, θέλει δικαιοπραγῆσαι ὁ λῃςὴς, ἀλλὰ πεφθαμμένει, ὁ θάνατος, he was willing to do well, but death prevented him, anſwers him preſently in the perſon of Chriſt, ἃ τὸ ἔργον πεπλήρωκε μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ πίςιν ἀποδέδεκται. The work is not the only thing which I expect, (or which I ſo require, that nothing elſe will ſerve the turn) But I have accepted thy faith. By which it appears, that Faith in his acception is that faithful reſolution then begun, though through want of Life no works followed it. Thus when Faith denotes profeſſion of faith (or of ſome duty to be performed by a Chriſtian, as 1 *Tim.*5.11.) this is either ſincere, and then accepted, as in that Thief (and is then oppoſed to Works, only as a leſs to a greater, or imperfectius magis perfecto, the more imperfect to the more perfect, *Jam.*2.22.) or unſincere and hypocritical, and is then oppoſed to Works, as falſum vero, falſe to true, and ſo * faith and life are ordinarily oppoſed in the Fathers.

* πίςις καὶ βίος

Beſides theſe five, the word is alſo ſometimes uſed in a looſer ſenſe, for believing the doctrine of God and Chriſt, howſoever acquired; whether from ſenſible experience, Jam. 2. 19. or from ocular demonſtration, *Joh.*20.25. or from relation, as when 'tis ſaid to come by hearing.

g. Ἀνάκλισις

V.11. Sit down] The cuſtom ἀνάκλισις, accubitus, lying along at meat, ſo uſual among the Grecians and the Romans, though it be not mention'd in the Old Teſtament (but on the other ſide Tables were in uſe, at which they ſate, ἐκάθισαν, *Eccl.*31.13 and ſo ſaith Philo * diſtinctly of Joſeph's Brethren, ἐκάθισαν, they ſate, μήτω τῶν ἀνθρώπων ἐν τῷ συμποσίῳ συνεδρίας καταλύσει χρωμένων, The cuſtom of lying along at meat, being not then come in among men) yet under the time of the New Teſtament, (and before) it was come in among the Jews alſo; Many places there are in the New Teſtament, where this uſe appears, and that both within doors, on beds, and abroad (in the fields, and in * Gardens) on the ground, ἐπὶ χόρτῳ χλωρῷ, Mar. 6. 39. upon the green graſs, which is, *v.*40. deſcribed by ἀνάπαυσιν πρασιαὶ, they lay along rank by rank in ſeveral areolæ or beds. For ſo are πρασιαὶ φυτῶν ὀρθίους τετραγώνους (ſaith the Scholiaſt on * Homer, upon ἔνθα δ' ἀκοσμίαι πρασιαὶ) ſquare diviſions, which from thence we vulgarly call Beds in gardens, becauſe they were ſo uſed, as the κλῖναι beds in the houſes (ſee Note on *Mar.6.*40.) The manner of this lying at meat is deſcribed by many, and ſhall no farther be recited here, than as will be uſeful to explain ſome paſſages in the Evangeliſts. The chief perſon lay at the head of the bed, (which the Evangeliſts call πρωτοκλισία, lying firſt, the chief or firſt place of dignity, with his feet behind the back of the next to him, (by which advantage it was that the woman came behind and waſhed and kiſſed Chriſt's feet) ſo that the hinder part of the head of the ſecond lay in the boſom, or touched the breaſt of the firſt. Thence we read of John, John, 13. 23. ἦν ἀνακείμενος ἐν τῷ κόλπῳ Ἰησοῦ ὁ ἐπιτεσὼν τῇ τῆθος τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, *v.*25. he lay in the boſom, and leaned on the breaſt of Jeſus, (viz. at ſupper-time, *Joh.*21. 20. compared with v. 1. and 4. and 12.) that is, lay next to him. An argument both of John's dignity (which I ſuppoſe the reaſon that he mentions not his name when he ſpeaks of it himſelf, *v.*23.) as when Lazarus is ſaid to be in Abraham's boſom, that is, at that ſupper of the Lamb next (in dignity and hight of glory) to the Father of the faithful, Luke 16. and 2*ly* of Chriſt's ſpecial love to him, as the cuſtom was for the moſt tenderly beloved, the Wife, &c. in ſinu virorum diſcumbere, to lye at meat in the boſom of the husband, ſaith * Cicero and Zonaras of Heliogabalus, ἐν κόλποις αὐτοῦ ὡς ἐρωμένῃ ἐδείπνησε, ſhe ſupt lying in his boſom as his beloved, and in * Juvenal, and in Catullus, intus accubans, and therefore 'tis there added, ὃν ἠγάπα ὁ Ἰησοῦς, whom Jeſus loved. And ſo *Joh.*1.18. when the only, that is, beloved ſon of God is deſcribed, 'tis with this mark upon him, ὁ ὢν εἰς τὸν κόλπον τοῦ πατρὸς, He that is in the boſom of the father, that is, in reference to this cuſtom, he that is next unto him, and ſo knows moſt of his mind, as is intimated John 13. 24. By all this 'tis clear what is meant by ἀνακλιθήσονται μετ' Ἀβραὰμ, &c. in this place, (which Euthymius expreſſes by ἀνακλιθήσονται ἐν τοῖς κόλποις τοῦ Ἀβραὰμ, &c. lying in the boſom of Abraham, &c.) viz. The Gentiles coming in to partake of that ſpiritual feaſt of the Patriarchs (who were the firſt to whom this Meſſias was promiſed, and to whoſe poſterity he was accordingly firſt raiſed up, Acts 3.26.) when the ſons of this kingdom, that is, the Jews themſelves, to whom theſe priviledges were deſigned and promiſed, are caſt out into an eſtate of obduration and deſtruction, as it there follows.

Κλῖνα.

V.12. Weeping] That κλαυθμὸς is deduced from κλαίω clamo, to cry, there is no doubt, and that both of them ſignify (more than weeping or ſhedding of tears) crying out, and ejaculation, ſee Numb. 11. 10. (where 'twas that which was heard by Moſes) *Joh.*30.13. the voice of them that wail, or cry out, in lamentations, Ezr. 3.13. the noiſe of the weeping, or wailing of the people, and ſo *Iſa.*65.19. *Jer.*31.16. As for βρυγμὸς which follows, tho' by that which Heſychius ſaith of βρύχω (οἱονεὶ πιέζοντα ζέφυρον ἐπιέλειν, ὡς ἐν ῥίγει συμβαίνει) it might be thought to ſignify chattering of teeth, proper to a ſtate of cold, and agreeable to the ſecond notion of Hell, by ſome mentioned from Job 24.19 Gehenna nivis, the hell of ſnow, as the other is Gehenna ignis, the hell of fire; yet the notion of βρύχω, Acts 7.54. for anger or rage, which is proper to that of gnaſhing the teeth, and the mention of fire joined with it, *Mat.*13. 4. & 50. which cannot agree with chattering, do ſufficiently juſtify the ordinary rendring gnaſhing, or grinding of teeth, as in pain or rage is uſual.

V.17. Took our infirmities.] This place of Scripture cited here by the Evangeliſt out of Iſa. 53. 4.) is principally fulfilled in the ſufferings of Chriſt on the Croſs, where he bare our ſins in his own body, that is, ſuffered the puniſhment of them; and 'tis ſo applied, 1 Pet. 2. 24. Yet here 'tis applied alſo to Chriſt healing the ſick, and with a kind of Sympathy bearing their corporal Infirmities, and removing them from the patient (and both theſe kinds of bearing our diſeaſes, were requiſite in our perfect High prieſt, *Heb.*5.1. & 4. 15.) by which 'tis apparent, that the ſame prophetick Scripture may truly and fitly belong to two or more events, and beſides the firſt literal, have a double remarkable πλήρωσιν, or eminent completion.

V.22. Dead.] There is a figure in Rhetorick called ἀνταναάκλασις, whereby it hath been uſual in all ſorts of Authors

k. Ἀνταναάκλασις

Πεδιαὶ.

* So Cic. de off. l.3. in the ſtory of Canius, the Eques Romanus, that bought the Garden of Pythius: that he might make invitations and feaſts in it.

* Il. ϕ.

Authors to affect to uſe the ſame word twice in the ſame place, tho' it be oft-times in a different ſenſe. In the holy Writers there are frequent examples of this, Pſ. 18. 26. With the froward thou wilt ſhew thy ſelf froward, where frowardneſs or peeviſhneſs, being a fault, and piece of ſtubborn, ill-nature, cannot properly be affirmed of God, to whom yet thoſe words belong (as appears by the next words, And the afflicted people thou wilt ſave, v.27.) The only meaning is, That thoſe that deal frowardly or ſtubbornly with God, ſhall be puniſhed by him, and that there expreſſed (by this figure now mentioned) [thou ſhalt ſhew thy ſelf froward] only by reaſon of the word froward preceding. So in the Prophet, If ye walk contrary to me, I will alſo walk contrary to you, where walking contrary in the firſt place is their obſtinacy, or frowardneſs againſt God; in the ſecond, God's puniſhing, ſending judgments on them, thus expreſſed by this figure. So Jer. 33.17. upon the mention of the word liberty, follows Liberty to the ſword, &c. that is, deſtroying, quite contrary to the liberty before ſpoken of. So Mat. 5. 19. Whoſoever ſhall break one of theſe leaſt commandments (the iota or tittle mentioned before) &c. he ſhall be leaſt in the kingdom of God, that is, indeed ſhall not be admitted at all, which by this figure is thus expreſſed, in relation to what went before, He ſhall be the leaſt, as, he breaks the leaſt; without which, that would not have been the ſtile in all likelihood. Thus *Iſa.*65.11. Ye are they that furniſh the drink-offering to that number, Therefore will I number you to the ſword, &c. Thus *Mat.*12.50. upon mention of his mother and brethren ſeeking him, which was literally true of Mary, &c. Chriſt's reply is in another, not a literal ſenſe, Whoſoever doth the Will of my father, the ſame is my brother, and ſiſter, and mother. So 1 *Cor.*8.2. ſpeaking of the knowing of God, in the vulgar ordinary ſenſe of knowing, he adds, v.3. but if any man love God, he is known of God, in another notion of knowledge for approbation & in the ſame kind again, *Gal.*4.9. now after ye have known God, or rather are known of God, & *Rom.*14.13. Let us no longer judge one another, i.e. cenſure, ſeparate from communion, but rather judge this, quite in another ſenſe, as judging ſignifies thinking fit and reſolving, & *Rev.*22.18. ἐάν τις ἐπιθῇ, If any man ſhall add to theſe things, ἐπιθήσει ὁ Θεὸς, God ſhall add to him the plagues; &c. and ſo ἐάν τις ἀφαιρεθῇ, If any man ſhall take away, God ſhall take away his part out of the book of life. Agreeable to theſe is this phraſe here, on mention of the dead father preceding, Let the dead bury the dead, but follow thou me, that is, (not, let the dead, but) let others do that office, interr the dead, but thou that art a conſecrated perſon, muſt do that to which thou art conſecrated, which in all probability, if it were not a proverbial ſpeech known among them, was yet the imitation of ſome other proverb, as Like to like, the Living to the living, the dead to the dead, &c. which are not always to be required to the literal ſound of the words, wherein they are expreſſed.

V.28. Tombs.] 'Twas uſual for the Devils to abide in tombs to confirm in men that vain perſwaſion of the ſouls of men (after death) being turned into Devils, (ſee Hieron. Magius miſcellan. l 4.c.12.) and for divers other ends, for which the ſolitude of ſuch places was advantageous to them, none uſing to come thither, but to bury their dead. l. Δαιμονιζόμενοι, ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις

V. 30. Swine.] That there were Swine among the Gadarens, contrary to the Jewiſh cuſtoms, will not be ſtrange, when 'tis remembred that Gadara is by Joſephus numbred among the ἑλληνίδας πόλεις, Grecian Cities, which Pompey took away from the Jews, (ſee Iſ. Caſaub. ad Baron. p. 219.) and that the greateſt part of the Inhabitants were Syrians, not Jews, by the affirmation of the ſame Joſephus, l. 2. de Bello Judaic. c. 33. CHAP. IX.

1. Capernaum, where he now dwelt, Mar. 1. 21, 45. and c.2.1. and to which he removed from Nazareth, Mat. 4.13.

1. AND he entred into a ſhip, and paſſed over, and came into [his own city.]

2. By this extraordinary courſe of bringing the ſick man, diſcerning the great vigour of their faith.

2. And behold they brought to him a man ſick of the Palſy, lying upon a bed: and Jeſus [ſeeing their faith] ſaid unto the ſick of the palſy, Son, be of good cheer, thy ſins be forgiven thee.

a. 3. Either in their hearts or in private diſcourſe one with another, not heard by him, or his diſciples.

3. And behold, certain of the Scribes ſaid [a within themſelves] This man Blaſphemeth.

4. And Jeſus by his divine power, as ſearcher of hearts, diſcerning whether their thought or words whiſpered among themſelves, and not ſpoken audibly, ſaid unto them, Why do you paſs ſuch malicious cauſleſs cenſures?

4. And Jeſus knowing their thoughts, ſaid, wherefore think ye evil in your hearts?]

5. Be cured of thy palſy, and walk about.

5. For whether is eaſier to ſay, Thy ſins be forgiven thee: or to ſay, [Ariſe, and walk?]

6. That Chriſt in this ſtate of exinanition, hath authority to forgive ſins here, to men that lye under puniſhment of them, and conſequently to deliver from their bond thoſe that were delivered up to Satan, and ſo tormented by him (This power given to Chriſt on earth in the commiſſion received from his Father, v.8. to be from this time continued on the earth, and accordingly committed by Chriſt, at his departure, to the Apoſtles, Joh.20. (and in them to their ſucceſſors) that what they forgive on earth, ſhould be forgiven in heaven, and the bonds looſed.)

6. But that you may know [that the ſon of man hath power on earth to forgive ſins] (Then ſaith he to the ſick of the palſy) Ariſe, take up thy bed, and go unto thy houſe.

7. And he aroſe, and departed to his houſe.

8. Were amazed to ſee it, and acknowledged it an incomprehenſible mercy of God, to ſend a Prophet to them with ſuch a Commiſſion, power of pardoning ſin, and that teſtified by doing an abſolute miracle, v.6.

8. But when the multitude ſaw it, they [marvelled, and glorified God, which had given ſuch power unto men.]

9. A Tole-gatherer, or Publican by trade, buſy about his work, and upon Chriſts firſt word of command, or call, he left his trade, and attended him as his conſtant diſciple.

10. And this new diſciple of his made him a feaſt, Mar. 2.14. and that a great one, Luke 5. 27. (tho' Matthew being the writer of this Goſpel affirm it not of himſelf,) And as Jeſus was at that feaſt in Matthews houſe, many other publicans, ſuch as Matthew had been, who were looked upon by the Jews as the vileſt ſort of men, that no Jew was to eat, or drink, on converſe with familiarly.

c. 10. And it came to paſs, as Jeſus * ſate at meat in the houſe, behold many c publicans and ſinners] came, and † ſate down with him, and his diſciples.

11. Why do your maſter and you, Luke 5. 30. a thing which is ſo unlawful, eat.

11. And when the Phariſees ſaw it, they ſaid to his diſciples, [Why eateth your maſter] with publicans and ſinners?

12. He raiſed his voice and directed it to the Phariſees, that ſtood thus cavilling by, and ſaid, 12. But when Jeſus heard that [he ſaid unto them] They that be * whole need not a Phyſician, but they that be ſick.

13. But

13. But go ye and learn [what that meaneth, I will have mercy and not ſacrifice,] for I am not come to call the righteous but ſinners to repentance.

13. What is the meaning of that ſpeech Hoſ. 6. 6. I prefer acts of mercy and charity, eſpecially ſpiritual, belonging to the reſcuing and ſaving of ſouls, before ceremonies even of the worſhip of God, ſuch ritual laws as theſe, of not accompanying with a heathen, or unclean perſon.

14. Then came to him the diſciples of John, ſaying, [d Why do we and the Phariſees faſt oft, but thy diſciples faſt not?]

14. Our maſter John obſerveth ſtrict rules of abſtinence, and appointeth us to do what the Phariſees, the ſtricteſt Sect among the Jews do, viz. to faſt twice every week, Luke 18.12. whereas thou and thy diſciples uſe no ſuch abſtinences, what is the reaſon of that? d.

15. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, [Can the e children of the bride chamber * mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them? but the days will come when the bridegroom ſhall be taken from them, and then ſhall they faſt.]

15. Can the ſpecial gueſts of a marriage feaſt faſt, or retain any thing of ſadneſs, as long as the marriage-ſolemnites laſt? This duty of faſting will be more ſeaſonable after my death, and then ſhall it be practiſed by my followers. e.

20. And as Jeſus was a going to the Rulers houſe to cure his daughter, 21. For ſhe ſaid within her ſelf, if I may but touch his garment, I ſhall be whole.

22. But Jeſus turned him about, and when he ſaw her, he ſaid, Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour.

23. And when Jeſus came into the rulers houſe, [and ſaw the h minſtrels, and the * people making a noiſe,]

26. And the fame hereof went abroad into all that land.

27. And when Jeſus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and ſaying, [Thou ſon of David,] have mercy on us.

28. And when he was come into the houſe, the blind men came to him. And Jeſus ſaith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They ſaid unto him, Yea, Lord.

29. Then touched he their eyes, ſaying, According unto your faith, be it unto you.

30. And their eyes were opened, and Jeſus ſtraitly [k charged them, ſaying, See that no man know it.]

There are great ſtore of thoſe that are willing to receive inſtruction, but few to give it them aright; and therefore it is the duty of all Chriſtians that have any care of the ſouls of their brethren, to pray (according as the four Ember-weeks have ſince been appointed in the Church) that God will ſend (ſee Note i.) orthodox and ſkilful labourers, for the uſe of his Church, to convert and inſtruct thoſe that are ready for it. a. Ἐν. V. 3. Within] The particle ἐν (and ἐνδὸς) is oft uſed in the ſacred writings, not for within but amongſt, ſo c. 16.7. where their διαλογισμὸς, or diſpute was not mental but verbal, for 'tis added λέγοντες ſaying, and many the like. One eminent place there is Exod. 17. 7. εἰ Θεὸς ἐν ἡμῖν; is the Lord among us? and from thence 2 Cor. 13. 5. Do you not diſcern your ſelves, that Jeſus Chriſt ἐν ὑμῖν ἔστι; is amongſt you? Do not the many miracles of Chriſt done before you, give aſſurance, that Chriſt is among you? But yet here it may be in the other ſenſe, ſo as εἶπον ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, ſaying within themſelves, be all one with ἐνθυμήσει their thoughts, and thinking in their hearts, v. 4. ſo v. 21. ἔλεγε ἐν ἑαυτῇ is, without doubt, ſpeaking within her ſelf.

b. Τελώνιον. V. 9. Receit of cuſtom] Τελώνιον ſignifies a Publicans ſtall, and the Syriack read בית מכסא the houſe of the Publican, litterally a tole-booth, the Engliſh tole coming from the Greek τέλος, and booth being the Hebrew בית very little varied.

c. Τελῶναι. V. 10. Publicans] Τελῶναι Publicans were infamous perſons among the Jews, not only becauſe they dealt, and (by neceſſity of their trade) converſed with the Gentiles (whence perhaps the ἁμαρτωλοὶ ſinners, joyned with them, note heathens, called ſinners of the Gentiles, Gal. 2.15. and as Publicans and Sinners here, ſo we read Publicans and Heathens, c. 18.17.) but alſo in reſpect of their calling, that of hiring the tributes at a price, and raiſing gain to themſelves by exaction, τελώνου ἐργασία ἀ-χάριτος, the Publicans trade is filthy and ſordid, ſaith * Artemidorus, joyning with them κέρκωπας, λῃστὰς, ζυγοκρε-ται̃ς, πανδοκευτὰς, thieves, cheats, &c. and Theophraſtus putteth together πορνοβοσκῆσαι καὶ τελωνῆσαι, keeping Whores and being Publicans: and ſo that of the Poet,

d. Ἴδιωμα λόγου. V. 14. Why] Among the Idioms or peculiar forms of writing obſervable in the ſacred writers this may be one, That when one thing only appears by the context to be deſigned and meant, another thing is yet delivered, as preparative to that, that by it, either by way of Compariſon or Oppoſition, &c. the one principal thing deſigned may be more ſet out. Thus Exod. 20.9,10. in the fourth Commandment, in which the Sabbatick reſt is the only thing deſigned, that is introduced with a ſix days ſhalt thou labour, and do all thou haſt to do, which being not the matter of that Commandment, is there ſet only to prepare for the enſuing reſt, but the ſeventh day is the Sabbath, &c. and muſt not be extended any farther, and is beſt interpreted by way of Compariſon, thus, As thou haſt ſix days allowed thee to labour, &c. ſo the ſeventh muſt be looked on as a reſt to that God, which hath been ſo liberal to thee. So here the Diſciples of John deſigning to ask one queſtion, why Chriſt and his Diſciples faſt not, what is the reaſon of that, 'tis not to be thought, that they would ask concerning their own faſting, being well enough ſatisfied of the reaſon of that, viz. the practice of all pious Jews for a long time, and yet is this other queſtion firſt asked, and ſet as preparatory to the other [why do we and the Phariſees faſt oft, and thy diſciples faſt not?] which cannot therefore be better interpreted than thus by way of Compariſon, Why do not thy Diſciples faſt as well as we? So Mark 12. 10. If a Woman ſhall put away her husband, and marry another, ſhe commits adultery, where it is not to be thought in the power of a Wife to put away her Husband, but only of the Huſband to put away the Wife, as being ſuperior, and having authority over her; but becauſe it is poſſible for a woman, the wife of one, to yield her ſelf to be married to another, and in what caſe ſoever ſhe doth ſo, ſhe committeth adultery, that being the thing there in hand, deſigned to be ſpoken of by Chriſt; the former of putting away the Husband is mentioned without any weight ſet on it, to prepare for the latter important part, and is only ſet to continue the Oppoſition with that which had preceded, the husbands putting away his wife, v.11. So Eph. 4.26. Be angry and ſin not, let not the ſun go down on thy wrath, where 'tis not the Apoſtles meaning ſo much as to permit anger, but that is only ſet down, as a preparative to the conſequent [not ſinning] that is, moderating that paſſion, and not letting it dwell upon us, which is the only thing in that place deſigned to be commanded us. So Jam. 1.9. Let the brother of low degree rejoyce, or boaſt, that he is exalted, and, or but, the rich that he is brought low, where the matter of the diſcourſe, from *v.*2. being exhortation to rejoice in afflictions, inforced by the advantages of them, *v.*3,4. and back'd with directions how to practiſe it, by praying to God for wiſdom, v.5. and perſeverance in the faith, required to the obtaining anſwer to his prayers, v. 6,7,8. (and ſo ſtill kept to the ſame matter of rejoicing in afflictions) it follows v. 9. Let the brother, that is, the Chriſtian, of low degree rejoice, that he is exalted, which is not at all to the point in hand, but only as it prepares for that which follows (by way of oppoſition to it) but let the rich rejoice, or boaſt, in his being made low, which cannot be better interpreted according to the ſence than thus, As glad as a poor man would be of being made rich, ſo glad let the rich be of his being brought low. So Rom. 6.17. where giving God thanks that they had received, and obeyed the Chriſtian Faith, he prepares for it with that which would not probably have been matter of his thankſgiving [God be thanked that ye were the ſervants of ſin] were it not to introduce the only deſigned matter, that follows [but ye have obeyed from the heart the form of doctrine delivered to you.]

e. V. 15. Children of the bride-chamber] Thoſe which were the ſpecial gueſts of a marriage-feaſt, where by cuſtom to go and fetch the Bridegroom, and wait on him to the marriage-feaſt, as we ſee the practice of it 1 Mac. 9. 37. ſo Mat. 25. 1. the ten Virgins took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom, and thoſe that were ready at his coming, *v.*10. went in with him εἰς γάμους, that is, to the marriage-feaſt: (for ſo the word γάμος and γάμοι, which we render marriage, ſignifies, γάμος Mat. 22.3. Joh. 2.1. not a marriage, but a marriage-feaſt in Canah of Galilee. So there were in Homer three ſorts of feaſts, of which γάμος was one,

Εἰλαπίν', ἠὲ γάμος ἐπεὶ ἐκ ἔσαν ταύγε δ' ὄξύ.

Odyſſ. δ 224. and

Ἦ γάμῳ, ἢ ἑστίῃ, ἢ εἰλαπίνῃ τεθαλυίᾳ,

Odyſſ. λ'. 415. whereupon ſaith Euſtathius, ἢ ὃ εἰλαπίνη, καὶ ὁ γάμος, καὶ ὁ ἑστίασις ἐδόκει εἶναι τὰ δαιτὸς, Theſe three are ſeveral ſpecies of feaſts. So γάμους ποιεῖν in * Philo, ſo nuptias celebrare in the Civil Law, the marriage-feſtivity,) theſe ſpecial gueſts which attended theſe Nuptial Solemnities, are called παράνυμφοι, and πάρεδροι in * Phavorinus, and here the ſons or children the νυμφῶν, that is, (τόπος ἐν ᾧ οἱ νυμφίοι) the place, in which the Bridegroom and Bride are; theſe I ſuppoſe are the φίλοι νυμφίου, Joh. 3.29. the friends of the bridegroom, which, ſaith Phavorinus, τοῖς ἁρμάτοις ἅμα τῇ νύμφῃ καὶ τοῦ νυμφίου ὀχοῦνται, are carried in the ſame chariot with the bride and bridegroom, or elſe go with them πεζῇ on foot, and of theſe ſome perform'd ſome nuptial offices to the bridegroom, (as to be the King's friend, 1 Kings 4.5. is a ſpecial office of nearneſs about the King. So we find in * Julius Pollux, καλεῖται τις τῶν τῷ νυμφίῳ φίλων θυρωρὸς, &c. One of the bridegrooms friends is call'd the Door-keeper. Of theſe it is here ſaid, that as long as the bridegroom is with them, that is, as long as the marriage-feaſt is celebrating (parallel to which is the time of Chriſt's abode on this earth, earth, marrying himself to his Spouse, this Church of his) it is not imaginable that they should mourn, or fast, but when this marriage-feast was turned into a funeral obsequy, then should they fast in those days. See more in Note on John 3. 29. b.

* de ſpec. lege c.6,7.

f. Ἀσκὸς — V. 17. Bottles] The use of ἀσκοὶ skins for the keeping or carrying of wines, is ordinary in Authors, Ἀσκῷ ἐν αἰγείῳ in Homer, in a goats skin, Odyss. ζ'. 78. see Casaubon on Athenæus. So in Spain the wine is carried in boracboes, bags made of hogs skins, and the whole skin of a hog made up close to put wine in.

g. Ἄρχων — V. 18. Ruler] There was among the Jews, the lesser, or the greater Sanhedrim or Consistory, Mat. 5. 22. The former consisting of 23 Judges in every City, the latter of 72 in Jerusalem. The greater Sanhedrim was made up of the Chief Priests and Elders or Presbyters of the People (call'd oft the Elders of Israel) and the Scribes of the People, Jud. 5. 11. (or in the Chaldee Paraphrase, the Scribes of Israel) they of the lesser Consistory were call'd Rulers, as here. See Note on Mark 5. c.

g. Αὐλησαὶ — V. 23. Minstrels] This custom of having Musical Instruments in Funerals came to the latter Jews from the Rites and manner of the Gentiles. For though in the * Misni, Rabbi Jehuda saith, that at the funeral of the Wife there should be Instruments at least, besides the person which began the lamentation; yet this testimony of his is but of the latter times, such as this in this verse. And in the Old Testament there is no mention of any such custom. They were wont indeed to mourn for the dead, Ecclus. 22. 10. and to commend them, thereby to excite the living to the imitation of their virtues, or that they may lay it to heart, Eccl. 7. 2. (And so 'twas at the death of Tabitha, where the widows wailed and shewed the coats and garments, which her liberality had provided for the poor in her life-time) and many other ceremonies they used, as you may find Ezech. 24. 17. and Jer. 16. 6, 7. As first, Tearing their flesh; Secondly, Shaving their heads bald; Thirdly, the Neighbours sending in good chear, which is in Ezechiel, Eating the bread of men, or (as אנשים would be better rendred) of mourners, and in Jeremy (not tearing, but) * breaking bread to the mourner, to comfort him, and, as it follows, giving the cup of consolation to drink, so saith * Josephus of Archelaus, πενθήσας ἡμέρας ἑπτὰ τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὸν ἐπιτάφιον ἑστίασιν πολυτελῆ τῷ πλήθει παρασχών, he mourned seven days for his father, and made a sumptuous funeral feast for the multitude, and he adds, that this custom among the Jews was the impoverishing of many, and that upon a kind of necessity; for if any man omitted it, he was accounted no pious man. So the meat of mourners, Hos. 9. 4. and εἰλαπίνην νεκρῶν, the funeral feast, in the Epistle of Jeremy, v, 32. and to that perhaps belong the δόματα βρωμάτων παρακείμενα τάφῳ, messes of meat set on the sepulchre, Ecclus. 30. 18. But all this while no mention of Instruments of Musick in Funerals, among the ancient Jews of the Old Testament: But on the other side, the use of Musick in lamentation is mentioned among the ἄκαιρα, unseasonable things, Ecclus. 22. 6. Songs of lamentation they had, Jer. 9. 17. Amos 6. 15. Jer. 34. 5. Jer. 22. 18. but these were perform'd only by the Voice, not by Instruments, saith * Schickard. The custom of Instruments in Funerals was heathen, and came in but late among the Jews, among the Heathen there is frequent mention of it, both among the Romans, under the stile of † Sicinnium, and in Apuleius, monumentarii choraulæ, and among the Grecians under that of πυμαύλοι, and in Arist. l. 5. de gen. Anim. αἰάζοντες, and in Lucian εἰς τὸ μέλος ἐπαιάζοντες, and in Artemidorus l. 1. c. 58. αὐλεῖν πυθικοῖς αὐλοῖς πένθος σημαίνει. As for (that which here follows the mention of minstrels) the company keeping a stir, that belongs to the γόοι and ὀδυρμοὶ the wailing of the rest of the company, and may be explained by an expression in Homer, where after θρηνῶν ἐξάρχους, the beginners of lamentations, follows.

——κλαίων ἀμφίσταδ' ὅμιλος, and again,
——ὅθι οἱ τινάσσετο γυναῖκες,

the women; or the company stood about wailing. The * Musicians beginning, and all that were present following in the θρηνωδίᾳ, which † Lucian calls ὁ τῶν κώμων καὶ αὐλῶν στρόφιγξ, the beating of their breasts to the musical instrument. And that this was the custom about Christ's time is clear by * Josephus, who speaking of the taking of Joppe by Vespasian, saith that the Jews mourned for it thirty days, and adds πλείστους μισθῶσαι τοὺς αὐλητὰς οἳ θρήνων ἐξῆρχον αὐτοῖς, they hired Musicians, who began the lamentation to them. This following in the lamentation (which was done by the Voice only) is express'd by ἔκλαιον καὶ ἐκόπτοντο, Luke 8. 52. crying and wailing, and by that you will understand the meaning of that proverbial speech, Mat. 11. 18. ἐθρηνήσαμεν καὶ οὐκ ἐκόψασθε, we have begun the lamentation to you, and you have not followed it by wailing, but so as referr'd not to the heathen or latter Jewish custom, where there was use of Instruments, but to the pure ancient Jewish custom, where, as was fore-mention'd, the lamentation was not begun with musical Instruments, but only Voices of old women, which in a * sad modulation strove to extort lamentation from those that were present. Which custom, it seems, the children in the streets were wont to act or imitate. Thus much for the use of this custom in the New Testament.

* ἐθρηνήσαμεν.

i. Ἐκβάλλειν — V. 25. Put forth] The word ἐκβάλλειν, which in ordinary Greek Authors, and many times in the New Testament signifies to cast out by violence, doth several times also, in the New Testament, signifie in a softer sense, only to send or bring out. So not only in this verse, and the places parallel to it, in the other Gospels, but in this Chap. v. 38. ὅπως ἐκβάλλῃ ἐργάτας, that is, ἐκπέμπῃ not cast, but send forth labourers, so c. 12. 20. ἕως ἂν ἐκβάλῃ τὴν κρίσιν, until he send forth judgment, and v. 35. ἐκβάλλει ἀγαθὰ καὶ πονηρὰ, sends or brings forth good and evil things, and c. 13. 52. ὅστις ἐκβάλλει ἐκ τοῦ θησαυροῦ, whosoever brings forth out of his treasure. So Luke 10. 35. ἐκβαλὼν δύο δηνάρια, he took out two pence, and John 10. 4. ὅταν τὰ ἴδια πρόβατα ἐκβάλῃ, when he brings out his sheep, for it is added immediately, he goes before them. Thus נפק signifies in Syriack, both to go out, and to be cast out, and Mat. 8. 12. where the Greek reads [ἐκβληθήσονται], shall be cast out] the Syriack hath נפקון which is ordinarily rendred exibunt, shall go out, and agreeably to this promiscuous use of those words, we may observe, Rev. 14. that πέμπειν to send v. 15. is βάλλειν to cast v. 16. in the same matter. See chap. 12. 20.

k. Ἐμβριμᾶσθαι — V. 30. Charged them] The word ἐνεβριμήσατο that is here used, is rendred by Phavorinus ἐπιτιμῆσαι, κελεῦσαι, προστάξαι μετ' ἐξουσίας, to charge, to command, to appoint with authority, and Ἐμβριμώμενος· μετ' αὐστηρότητος ἐπιτάττων, καὶ ἐπιτιμῶν, ἢ μετ' ὀργῆς κελεύων, commanding with austerity, threatning, speaking angrily, and Hesychius, μετ' ἀπειλῆς ἐπιτελλόμενος, commanding, or charging with a threat. Thus again in Phavorinus, Ἐμβριμησις τῆς ψυχῆς λογικῆς τοῦ θυμικοῦ μέρους ἐνέργεια, 'tis an act of the irascible part of the reasonable soul, that is, a rational earnestness, or vehemence, not a passionate, and so 'tis Mark 1. 43.

l. Διδάσκειν — V. 35. Teaching] It was the manner among the Jews for divers men to contribute their talents to the exposition of the lesson which was read. This ordinarily belong to the sons of the Prophets, who were brought up in learning the Law, and at thirty years old might be made Doctors (at which time, being then of Doctors standing, saith Irenæus, Christ began to preach, and not before; and proportionably Presbyters were not made in the ancient Church, till that age) and continued in that notion, or the other of Scribes, till they obtain'd the Spirit of Prophecy at God's hands, till which time they did ordinarily expound Scriptures, though not by Revelation. Answerable to which was that custom or practice among Christians mention'd 1 Cor. 14. 29. And thus might Christ, without pretension to any extraordinary power or authority, expounded in their Synagogues, which being the Doctors work, is here call'd Κηρύσσειν Teaching, and differs (in the Christian use of the word in the New Testament) from κηρύσσειν preaching (which follows) and εὐαγγελίζεσθαι, publishing, or preaching the Gospel, and μαθητεύειν parallel with it (as appears by comparing *Mat.*28.19. with Mark 16.15.) gathering of Disciples in other places. All these being the publishing somewhat to those, to whom 'twas News (as here the Gospel of the Kingdom, that is, the Doctrine of Christianity) the other (διδάσκειν) instructing Congregations, that already profess'd that Doctrine, which is therefore by the Doctor only farther explain'd to them. And so Εὐαγγελίζεσθαι Acts 5.42. where you have διδάσκοντες and εὐαγγελιζόμενοι, teaching and preaching, the first refers to the ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ in the Temple, the second to the κατ' οἶκον in somewhat more private places, (see Note on Acts 1.c.) the first to those that were instructed in the Doctrine of Christianity already; the second to those that had not already received it, and so Acts 15.35. In proportion to which was that difference in the Christian Church betwixt the Evangelist and Doctor, or Teacher, the first telling them the good news, and planting the Gospel, the other watering or instructing them farther in it, and so the Word and Doctrine are different, 1 Tim. 5.17. the first without the Church to unbelievers, 2 Cor. 5.19. *Mat.*13.19. Mark 4.14. *c.*2.2. Acts 4.4. and 6.2. 1 Pet. 2.8. the second in it, or to those that were already converted to the Faith.

m. V. 36. Fainted] The Greek Copies do vary in this place, some reading it ἐσκυλμένοι, so the ancient Greek and Latine MS. and that in Magdalen Colledge in Oxford, and so both Chrysostom, and many very ancient Copies have it, and then it would be rendred [toss'd.] So the Σκύλλομαι Ῥίπτεσθαι old Glossary σκύλλομαι jactor, or else [wearied] σκύλλω fatigo, saith the same, and so the Greek and Latine MS. fatigati: so from Herodian H.Stephanus concludes in his Preface to Herodian. And so 'tis surely used in that Author l.4. σὺν ἱππεῦσιν ὀλίγοις (ἵνα μὴ πᾶσα ἡ στρατὸν σκύλῃ) ἠ ὁδοιπορίαν ἐποιεῖτο, he took his voyage with a few Horsmen, that he might not tire the whole Army and lib.7. σκύλας ἢ κἀκώσας, and he had tired them with long journeys, and abused them. And so [a] St.Chrysostom, οὐκ ἂν ἔσκυλά σε ἠ ἐνόχλησα, I would not have wearied you with so long a voyage. So [b] σκυλῶσαι ἕως ἡμῶν, to take so wearisome a journey as it must cost thee to come to us: in all which it denotes the lassitude that comes from travel. Or again, troubled, vexed, molested, as it is Mark 5.35. why troublest or molestest thou the master? Thus in [*] St.Chrysostom πολύσκυλος is πολύπονος, πολυμέριμνος, full of labour and care: And in the ‖ Epistle of the Church of Symrna ἀσκύλως is used for ἀπόνως, ἀκόπως, ῥᾳδίως, easily, without trouble or labour. And then ἐῤῥιμμένοι joyned with it, will agree with it very well, for that signifies jactati, tost; and so ῥιπασμοὶ among the Physicians, are the tossings of the sick, and tumblings on their beds. But our ordinary reading is ἐκλελυμένοι, which signifies loosed one from another, dissolved, not keeping together in companies; so saith Hesychius, ἐκλελυμένον, and after ἐκλελισμένος, (it should be ἐκλελυμένος in each place) ἐξεστραμμένος, turn'd out of the way, gone astray, which is the thing here proper to sheep wanting a shepherd, and is the notation of διασπορὰν dispersion or disbanding, Acts 5.36. 'Tis true the word doth sometimes note a dissolution of spirits, (whether through fasting or going too much) a fainting, (as when 'tis joyned with κάμνειν *Hebr.*12.3. and *Gal.*6.9.) 2 Sam. 17.29. ὁ λαὸς πεινῶν καὶ ἐκλελυμένος, &c. The people is hungry and weary, or faint and thirsty in the wilderness. And so it may signifie *c.*15.32. I will not send them away fasting, μήποτε ἐκλυθῶσιν, lest they faint by the way. But the similitude of the sheep without a shepherd, inclines to the former notion of ἐκλύεσθαι, dissolved, straying one from another, if that be the right reading of it.

Paraphrase.

CHAP. X.

1. And selecting twelve of his followers, who should continually be with him, and whom he might send out on any message of preaching, &c. Mark 3.15. (and who should after his death undertake the whole work of preaching, &c.) he now ordains them to that office, and to that end.

1. AND w'en he had called unto him his twelve disciples,] he gave them power against unclean spirits to cast them out a, and to heal all manner of sickness, a and all manner of disease.

2. The name of the first was formerly Simon, or Simeon, which signifies hearkening or obedient (a name aptly noting his readiness to follow Christ and become his disciple) but by Christ he is now called Cephas (see John 1.43.) in Syriack, which signifies a stone, such as might be fit in a building to be superstructed upon Christ the corner-stone, and that in the Greek is Petros, in English turn'd into the appellative Peter, and with him Andrew his brother, and James, and John, two sons of Zebedee, after called Boanerges.

2. Now the names of the twelve Apostles are these, [the first Simon, who is called b Peter, and Andrew his brother, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother.]

3. Thomas Didymus, and Matthew or Levi, who had been a publican, James the son of Alphæus, and Lebbæus, or Judas, the brother of James, Luke 6.16. who also was surnamed Thaddæus.

3. Philip, and Bartholomew, [Thomas, and Matthew the publican, James the son of Alphæus, and Lebbæus surnamed Thaddæus.]

4. Simon the * c Canaanite and Judas d Iscariot, who also † betrayed him.

5,6. These twelve Jesus furnish'd them with a commission which they should use at present; as on occasion he should send them out to any city, and after his death, by going and preaching the Gopel over all the cities of Judæa, against which time he now gave them command, saying, (when you go about that work,) Preach the Gospel first to the Jews strictly taken, the cities of the seed of Abraham through all Judæa, and till you have first preached through all their region (see Acts 13.46.) go not to any of the cities that border upon Galilee, nor to Samaria, nor to any other city from them. See note on c. 4. c.

5. These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not.

6. But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.]

7. A remarkable visitation from heaven approaching, as of notable punishments upon the unreformed, so of deliverance and protection to the penitent among you that shall timely receive the Faith of Christ.

7. And as ye go, preach, saying, [The kingdom of heaven is at hand.]

8. And where-ever you come, make use of the power which I now give you, with the same frankness and liberality that is used toward you, work all manner of healing merciful miracles where-ever ye come, to all that beg them from you.

8. Heale the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give.]

9. Make no provision of money, much or little.

9. Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your e purses.]

10. Nor of victuals, nor cloaths to carry with you, nor of any thing for your defence by the way. For taking so much pains for the benefit of others, ye may reasonably expect to be entertained for all necessaries by them who profit by you.

10. Nor scrip for your journey, nor two coats, neither shooes, nor yet * staves, (for the workman is worthy of his meat.)]

11. Whensoever therefore you come into a town or village, inquire what pious person there is dwelling there, and there fasten your station, and eat and drink what they set before you, Luke 10.7. and go not from that house to any other while you stay in the town.

11. And into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, enquire who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye go thence.]

12. And when ye come into an houſe [ſalute it.]

12. Say Peace, (that is, all kind of proſperity) be to this houſe.

13. And if the houſe be worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.]

13. And if thoſe of the houſe be qualified to receive it, your bleſſing ſhall reſt upon it; but if not, your bleſſing ſhall return upon you, and they ſhall receive no advantage (but the contrary) by your coming among them on a deſign of ſo much charity.

14. And whoſoever ſhall not receive you, nor hear your words, [when ye depart out of that houſe or city, ſhake off the duſt of your feet.]

14. Depart from them, and uſe that expreſſion of ſhaking off the duſt from your feet, as a teſtimony to them, that in their rejecting, or not receiving of you, they have rejected the only remaining means of their Salvation, and as a teſtimony againſt them, that will one day be brought to give in a ſad evidence, the duſt ſhaken off from your feet (as it ſignifies that you have been there, and thus been fain to depart from them) will fall very heavy upon them.

15. Verily I ſay unto you, that it ſhall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.]

15. I aſſure you, the puniſhment or deſtruction that will light upon that city ſhall be ſuch, that the deſtruction of Sodom ſhall appear to have been more tolerable than that. See note on c. 3 c.

16. Behold I ſend you forth, as ſheep in the midſt of wolves; [f be ye therefore wiſe as ſerpents, g and ‖ harmleſs as doves.]

And this carrying you from the Jewiſh to the Heathen, from one Tribunal to another, will be a means to proclaim and teſtify the Goſpel to Gentiles, as well as Jews.

19. But when they deliver you up, [take no thought how or what ye ſhall ſpeak, for it ſhall be given you in that ſame hour what ye ſhall ſpeak,

20. For it is not ye that ſpeak, but the ſpirit of your father that ſpeaketh in you.]

19, 20. Make no proviſion beforehand what anſwers ye ſhall give, ye ſhall at the time be directed what anſwers to make. And how ſuſpicious ſoever ye may be of your own abilities, yet this need not trouble you, for God will enable you to ſpeak that which is moſt fit and proper to be ſpoken by you, and ſure they that have God to enable and direct them, need not fear they ſhall want anſwers.

21. And the brother ſhall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child, and the children ſhall riſe up againſt their parents, and cauſe them to be put to death.]

21. And one Chriſtian (at leaſt ſuch as pretend to be ſo) ſhall accuſe and deliver up another to the perſecutors, and forgetting all natural affection, the neareſt kindred ſhall miſchief one another, and cauſe them to be put to death. See c. 24. 9, 10. and 2 Tim. 3. 3, 4.

22. And ye ſhall be hated of all men for my names ſake; but he that h endureth to the end ſhall * be ſaved.]

* eſcape.

22. And the Jews, whereſoever you come, ſhall perſecute you for preaching of Chriſt; but there is a fatal day approaching for theſe Jews, and they that in deſpight of all theſe perſecutions, verſe 18, 19, 20, 21, 22. ſhall ſtick faſt to your Chriſtian profeſſion, they ſhall, beſide their crown in another world, have a remarkable deliverance here out of that deſtruction, which univerſally lighteth upon all others. h.

23. But [when they perſecute you in this city, flee ye into another: For verily I ſay unto you, You ſhall not have gone over the cities of Iſrael, till the ſon of man be come.]

23. When they thus perſecute you in one city, you may flee to another, and be aſſured from me, that by that time you have gone through all the cities of the Jews, v. 6. this fatal day ſhall come upon your perſecutors. See note on h.

24. The diſciple is i not above his maſter, nor the ſervant above his Lord.]

24. How reaſonable it is for you to expect this ill uſage among men, ye may judge by what you ſee already, and ſhall more largely hereafter diſcern to befal me, the diſciple cannot in reaſon expect to be better uſed than his Maſter, nor the ſervant than his Lord. i.

25. It is enough for the diſciple that he be as his maſter, and the ſervant as his Lord: If they have called the maſter of the houſe Belzebub, how much more ſhall they call them of his houſhold.]

25. The moſt that a diſciple or ſervant can aſpire to, is to come to his maſter's perfection, Luke 6. 40. And if they have called me Belzebub, how much reaſon have you to expect, that they ſhall deal with you, as with the wickedſt Apoſtates in the world, revile you proportionably, in your places and orders?

26. Fear them not therefore; for there is nothing covered that ſhall not be revealed, and hidden that ſhall not be known.]

26. Be ye therefore courageous, not terrified by any thing that can befal you, this fear or fore-ſight of the danger muſt not make you conceal any thing that I have taught you. See Mark 4. 22.

27. What I tell you in darkneſs, that ſpeak ye in light; and what ye hear in the k ear, that preach ye upon the houſe tops.]

27. And therefore what I ſay now in parables to you, do ye courageouſly publiſh to all, and what I more privately impart to you as my Diſciples, and not to the multitude, c. 5. 1. do you ſtand on the top of the houſes, and proclaim from the Battlements to the people in the ſtreets, as publickly as ye can. k.

28. And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the ſoul; but rather fear him which is able to deſtroy both ſoul and body in hell.]

28. And never be afraid of any man, armed with the moſt power or malice, for the utmoſt he can do, is to kill your Bodies, but your ſouls he cannot touch. And what an improvidence would it be in you, if to eſcape thoſe terrours, ye ſhould neglect your Duty, and ſo incur that far greater danger from God, who hath employed you, whoſe puniſhments are far more terrible, caſting unprofitable ſervants, bodies and Souls into eternal miſery and torments.

29. Are not two ſparrows ſold for a l farthing? and one of them ſhall not fall to the ground without your Father.]

29. Beſides conſider, that all the power of men, whom ye can fear, is reſtrained and bounded by God, on whoſe meſſages you go, if he ſee it moſt for his glory and your good, to permit them to kill you, what reaſon can you have to be afraid of death, and if he ſee it not fit thus to permit, be confident they ſhall never be able to touch you. 'Tis not all the malice of Men that can extend farther than God's providence ſees fit to permit and order, even in the leaſt matters. l.

30. But the very hairs of your head are all numbred.]

30. God hath the knowledge, and care, and over-ruling all the leaſt things that belong to you, or ſhall befal you.

31. Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many Sparrows.]

31. This is full ground of all confidence and courage to you, your lives are dearly valued by God, and will not by him be negligently or prodigally waſted.

32. Shall couragiously preach my doctrine, when the preaching of it is perſecuted, and when any particular Duty taught by me, and required by me to be performed by all Chriſtians is ſo oppoſed by the World, that the practiſing it then may bring the utmoſt hazard upon him, ſhall then conſtantly adhere to that precept, and ſo confeſs and honour me, how dear ſoever it coſt him, I will be ſure to own, and honour, and ſtick to him, declare thoſe performances of his to his honour, before my Father in heaven, from whom he ſhall have the acclamation and reward of a good ſervant.

32. Whoſoever therefore [ſhall confeſs me before men, him will I confeſs alſo] before my father which is in heaven.

33. Renounce the faith of Chriſt, or obedience to him in time of danger, he muſt expect to be renounced by me.

33. But whoſoever [ſhall deny me before men, him will I alſo deny] before my father which is in heaven.

34. Do not deceive your ſelves with an imagination, as if the effect or deſign of my coming into the world, were to ſecure unto the Chriſtian profeſſion a perpetual enjoyment of worldly quiet and proſperity upon earth, when all the malice of wicked men and devils are ſet againſt it, but rather reckon before-hand of perſecution as your portion, and expect that your perſeverance and conſtancy in this profeſſion may and very often will bring great outward calamities upon you for a ſeaſon, even unto the killing of ſome of you.

34. Think not that I am come to ſend peace on earth; I came not to ſend peace but a ſword.]

35. The far more general effect of my doctrine, will be; (or upon the publiſhing my doctrine will enſue) all manner of contention, quarrels and variance betwixt the deareſt and neareſt friends, either about acknowledging the truth of it, or adhering to it in time of danger.

35. For I am come to ſet a man at variance againſt his father, and the daughter againſt her mother, and the daughter-in-law againſt her mother-in-law.]

36. And the nearer men are to others in kindred, &c. the more bitter will their hatred be againſt them (as againſt blaſphemers, &c.) upon their receiving my doctrine, eſpecially when it comes to be perſecuted.

36. And a mans foes ſhall be they of his own houſhold.]

37. And he that prefers the advantages which he can and is like to receive from his parents, or any that are deareſt to him, before thoſe he expects from me, or that values their kindneſs or good opinion more than mine, is no fit perſon for my ſervice, no way qualified to be a diſciple for me, for it is certain all ſuch worldly intereſts will ever be ſoliciting againſt me.

37. He that loveth father or mother more than me, is not worthy of me, and he that loveth ſon or daughter more than me, is not worthy of me.]

38. Nay I muſt plainly tell you, that he that doth not provide for the utmoſt that can come, that is not content to ſuffer death it ſelf (and therein to do what I do before him) rather than do any thing contrary to Chriſtian Duty, is not competently qualified to be a Diſciple of mine.

38. And he that taketh not his croſs and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.]

39. This comfort mean while ye have, that as he that uſeth any way of compliance with the perſecutors, and ſo eſcapes their malice, and ſaves his life, ſhall gain little by this, but be involved in the deſtruction which awaits them; ſo on the other ſide, he that ſhall hazard the utmoſt, that he may ſtick cloſe to me, ſhall be likely to fare beſt even in this world. For thus I foretel you it will be, ſome to comply with the perſecuting Jews, and to eſcape their perſecutions will renounce Chriſtianity, and feign themſelves zealous Jews, and ſo when the deſtruction falls upon the Jews, as it certainly ſhall moſt heavily, they ſhall be involv'd in that deſtruction, and that is all they ſhall get by that compliance, and puſillanimity: Whereas at the ſame time they that comply not, and ſo venture all that the Jews malice can do againſt them, ſhall by the deſtruction of their perſecutors be reſcued from that danger, and live to ſee a peaceable profeſſion of Chriſtianity, or if they do not, have the loſs of a ſhort temporary life rewarded with an eternal.

39. He that findeth his life ſhall loſe it, and he that loſeth his life for my ſake ſhall find it.

40. And therefore both to arm you againſt this great errour, and to ſatisfy one objection more which will be apt to riſe in your hearts (viz. that if Chriſtian doctrine will be ſo perſecuted, you have reaſon to expect that it will be look'd on ſtrangely by all others, and that no body will dare to receive you into their houſes) I now tell you, that how great ſoever your perſecutions are, and how dangerous a thing ſoever to profeſs to be a follower of Chriſt, yet ſhall no man have reaſon to fear the entertaining of you, for the ſame protection that waits over you, v. 39. and the ſame reward that attends you, verſ. 32. ſhall alſo await thoſe that are thus kind, as to receive you, it ſhall be as if they had entertained not only Angels but Chriſt, and God himſelf, they ſhall be far the ſafer, not in more danger for ſuch gueſts, according to that ſaying ſo ordinary among the Jews, that every man's Apoſtle is as himſelf. (See Note on John 20. b.) what is done to ones proxy, is interpreted as done unto himſelf.

40. He that receiveth you, receiveth me, and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that ſent me.]

41. He that entertaineth (ſee Note on 1 Tim. 1. c.) a Prophet in the name of him that ſent him (one prophet coming in the name of another Prophet, as Elizeus in the name of Elias, and the Apoſtles in the name of Chriſt) or in that one conſideration becauſe he is a Prophet, or he that doth ſupport and enable a Prophet to do his work that ſent him, he ſhall receive the ſame reward that he ſhould, if himſelf had been ſent to prophecy (gain thereby an intereſt in his work, and ſo in the reward due to it) yea the ſame that he ſhould have had, if he had received him that ſent him, even Chriſt, and God which ſent Chriſt. See v. 40. And ſo likewiſe he that entertains any holy man, ſent by another to plant holineſs among men, ſhall receive the benediction, Gen. 30. 27. that attends the having a righteous man in ones houſe, or that of Lots entertaining the Angels, the meſſengers of God, or of Rahab's receiving the Spies, that is, ſhall himſelf be delivered by that means when others are deſtroyed.

41. He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet, ſhall receive a prophets reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, ſhall receive a righteous mans reward.]

42. In this notion, becauſe he is a diſciple of Chriſt, (as Mark 9. 41. in my name, becauſe you are Chriſt's.)

42. And whoſoever ſhall give to drink to one of theſe little ones, a cup of cold water only [in the name of a Diſciple] verily I ſay unto you, he ſhall in no wiſe loſe his reward.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. X.

a. Ἐκβάλλειν πνεύματα, θεραπεύειν νόσους

V. 1. Caſt them out.] The Devils poſſeſſing men in thoſe days, which was much more ordinary before the coming of Chriſt, and about that time, than it hath been ſince (Chriſt having much retrenched and reſtrained Satans power) had generally corporeal diſcernible effects attending it, diſeaſes of all kinds, Epilepſies, &c. And agreeably thereto, the Apoſtles delivering men up to Satan, is ſaid to be εἰς ὄλεθρον σαρκὸς, to the deſtruction of the fleſh. And therefore before any ſuch diſeaſe could be cured, the Devil muſt be caſt out. And accordingly here the ſame power is given to the Diſciples, to caſt out Devils, and to heal diſeaſes.

b. Πέτρα

V. 2. Peter.] His name was Simon, but is now, John 1. 43. alter'd by Chriſt into כֵּיפָא which in Syriack ſignifies (as it is rendred in Greek) πέτρα a ſtone. Πέτρα ſaxum, cautes, ſilex, ſaith the old Gloſſary, it ſignifies a ſtone, a rock, or flint, but in this place no more than a foundation-ſtone (for ſuch the Apoſtles were, Eph. 2. 20. Rev. 21. 14.) as that is laid upon the corner-ſtone, Jeſus Chriſt. And upon that and other the like (the reſt of the Apoſtles ſtiled twelve foundations, Rev. 21.) all believers, as living ſtones, are built, 1 Pet. 2. 5. This Greek word πέτρα in the Feminine is exactly all one with πέτρος in the Maſculine, as may appear not only by Mat. 16. 18. where that which is in the Greek, thou art, πέτρος, and upon this πέτρα, &c. is in the Syriack, thou art Kipha, and upon this Kipha, &c. but alſo by other good Authors in the Attick Dialect, particularly Homer, who four times uſeth πέτρος for a ſtone, or petra. Ἰλ. υ. 'tis taken for a great ſtone', μέγα ἔργον, ſuch a weight as two ordinary men could not have carried, and yet is taken up in Æneas's hand, (χερμαδίον) to throw at Achilles. In two other places, Ἰλ. ή. 'tis μυλοειδέϊ πέτρῳ not μυλίας a mill-ſtone, for it was

was such as one flung at another, but from the figure and weight of it (that it was στογγύλον) only a very great one; again, πολὺ μείζονα λᾶαν, not simply an huge stone, an immoveable rock, &c. but comparatively very big for that use of throwing. In the fourth place, Ἰλ. π'. it is a stone which he could, and did take in one hand, ἑπέρρι, saith he. So Rom. 9. 33. πέτρα and λίθον, rock and stone, are as perfectly all one as πρόσκομμα and σκάνδαλον, stumbling and offence, and both distinctly to be rendred not rock, but stone, such as men are apt to stumble at. And so more clearly, 1 Pet. 2. 7. where the stumbling-stone (πέτρα σκανδάλου) is made use of in the building, as a corner-stone. So Mat. 27. 51. the πέτραι which are rent in sunder are the stones of the Temple (the several parts of which are there enumerated, the veil, the ground, the stones, the timber, and the bodies of the interr'd.) And therefore for any conclusion from the Critical notation of the word πέτρα here, that it should signify a rock, and not a stone, I suppose no ground can be fetch'd from hence; πέτρα & πέτρος being in the Grammar notion absolutely the same, and both of them set sometimes to signify such a stone as is made use of in a building, and is joyned it self to the corner-stone, as here to Christ Jesus, thereby helping to support the superstructure, which is raised on it, as may appear both by the circumstances of the context, Mat. 16. (where in reference to this name of his, Christ saith he will build his Church ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ, upon this stone) and by Eph. 2. 20. where the Apostles are look'd on, as this foundation of the building, (the Church) and Rev. 21. 14. as twelve foundations of it. 'Tis true indeed that in some other places πέτρα doth signify a rock, as that notes a great immoveable mine of stones, as c. 27. 60. where the λατομεῖν hewing or cutting the tomb in (or as St. Mark reads, out of) the πέτρα notes it to signify a mine or rock of stone, in or out of which that tomb was cut out whole, or in one entire piece, and so πέτρα, Luke 8. 6. on which the seed fell, might possibly be an entire rock without any earth or moisture in it; but Matthew and Mark read ἐπὶ τὸ πετρῶδη, on earth, which is stony, on stony ground, not making it one entire stone, but which had store of stones in it. So Mat. 7. 25. the house founded, and v. 24. built ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν, upon a rock; Where it must be observed what place the πέτρα hath there in the building, and 'tis clear, that it is not there (as here) any part of the foundation, but as the ground whereon the whole building (foundation and all) is laid, as in the Antithesis, v. 26. the sand is the ground on which the other house is built. The house builded and founded upon a rock hath its corner-stone, and all the the rest of the foundation cemented to a rock, or natural mine of stone; and that made it so firm, that unless the cement should fail (which is not there supposed) or the rock move, that house could not move neither; but the other being built upon the sand, (and therefore said but to be built, whereas the former is said to be built and founded could have no foundation on so fluid a bottom as sand, to which nothing can be fastened, and that is the cause it fell so soon. In these three places, and perhaps 1 Cor. 10. 4. πέτρα may signify a rock, and accordingly the Glossary renders it cautes; as well as saxum. But in this and the other places (when Peter's title is concern'd in it) it cannot signify a rock, either as that is abstracted from building (for this here refers to building) or as that is such on which the whole building (foundation and all) is founded, as Mat. 7. for that must suppose Peter antecedent to Christ himself (as that rock is to the whole foundation, and so to the corner-stone it self, that house being not only built, but founded on the rock) which is too absurd to be asserted or confuted. Thus much of the word Πέτρος, which thus became that Simon's ordinary title, or agnomen, by which he was principally known and recorded to posterity, Simon or Simeon being, till his coming to Christ, his ordinary name.

c. Καναίτης V. 4. Canaanite] Many Greek copies have Κανανίτης, others Κανανεῖος, and Καναῖος. The word comes not from the name of a place, as a παλαιονυμικὸν, but from קנה and קנאה zeal, from whence is Κανναι (which with the Greek termination ος, is directly Καννᾶος) a Zelot. The Syriack hath קנניא Kenonoyo, which seems to be the version of Κανανεῖος. The matter is clear, that this Simon, Luke 6. 15. and Acts 1. 13. is called Ζηλωτὴς the Zelot, : And Καναίτης and Ζηλωτὴς are as perfectly the same, as Cephas and Πέτρος, Tabitha and Δόρκας, and the like. Of these Zelots so famous among the Jews, many mentions we have in sacred Writ. Phinees is looked on as the first to whom that name was competible, for his slaying the unclean pair in the very fact, which Mattathias in his dying speech calls his ζηλῶσαι ζῆλον, having zeal, 1 Mac. 2. 54. And after him Elias in his apprehending the Prophets of Baal, and slaying them, 1 Kings 18. 40. which again Mattathias calls ζηλῶσαι ζῆλον νόμου, having zeal for the law, v. 58. And such was this Mattathias, and his son Judas, &c. which without any external calling took upon them to destroy the profaners of the Temple, putting in their colours these words, מי כמוכא באליים יהוה that is, Who is like thee among the Gods, O Lord? or as others read it, באלוזי יהודה, Who is like thee among the Princes of Judah? From the initial letters whereof מכבי they seem to be stiled Maccabees, which tho' literally it do not, yet in effect denotes Zelots. But Ferrarius in his Nomenclat. Syr. translates the very word ζηλωτὴς æmulator, Maccabæus, writing it with Koph, which is not answerable to the Hebrew Caph, which others generally use in this word. In after-times from these beginnings, great distempers and flames broke out. A multitude of men under pretence of being zealous for the Law and honour of God, under the name of ζηλωταὶ Zelots, committing all the riots and bloodiness imaginable. See Josephus, ἁλώσ. l. 4. c. 11. where he saith of them, that they killed many of the chief men of the nation, and still when they did so, boasted of themselves, ὡς εὐεργέτας καὶ σωτῆρας τῆ πόλεως γεγονότας, that they were become the benefactors and Saviours of the people. Whose insolence meeting with the timidity and baseness of the peoples minds, advanced so far, ὡς ἐπ' αὐτοῖς εἶναι καὶ τὰς χειροτονίας τῶν ἀρχιερέων, that they took upon them to choose and ordain the high Priests, contemning the rules of birth by which those were to succeed, and constituting ignoble obscure men in those places, that by that means they might have abetters and partners of their villanies. These, saith he, c. 12. imposed this name of Zelot upon themselves, ὡς ἐπ' ἀγαθοῖς ἐπιτηδεύμασιν, as if their undertakings were good and honourable, and not (as indeed they were) ζηλώσαντες τὰ χείριστα τῶν ἔργων, καὶ ὑπερβαλλόμενοι, emulous of the worst deeds imaginable, and even out-stripping all. Of these (as a Sect having its original from Judas Gaulonita and Sadducus) Bonavent. Corn. Bertram, in the end of his Book, De Pol. Jud. thus speaketh, Zelotarum secta Judæis ipsis omnibus perniciosissima, ut quæ Judæorum omnium excidium, totiúsque reipublicæ Judaicæ prostrationem non modò accelerarit, sed & eam tam miseram & calamitosam effecerit. The sect of the Zelots was most sadly pernicious to the Jews themselves, and did not only accelerate the total destruction of them, and the prostration of the whole Jewish Common-wealth, but withal made it so miserable and calamitous when it came. Which story of the Zelots in Josephus agrees very well to this time, wherein Christ lived, and so there is little doubt, but that this Simon was himself one of this Sect, and so call'd by that title, Simon the Zelot.

d. Ἰσκαριώτης Ib. Iscariot] This title of his may either be taken from his country whence he came, a man of Carioth, (according to which it is that the ancient Greek and Latine MS. generally reads ἀπὸ Καρυώτου, à Cariota from Carioth,) or else from the Syriack, which calls a wallet or purse Secariat, and then סכריוטא Secariota or Iscariota may signify ὁ ἔχων τὸ γλωσσόκομον, him that hath the wallet, which was the office of this Judas.

e. Ζώνη V. 9. Purses.] The word ζώνη, that literally signifies a girdle, both in Greek and Latine Authors signifies also a purse, either because that was wont to be sowed or fastned to the girdle, or because the girdle being a loose thing like a Scarf, tied about the middle, they used sed to wrap up their money within it; and so the gold, and silver, and brass (for such were the Roman asses and quadrantes) in their zones, are three sorts of coins made of those three metals, the brass being coins of the least value for the least commodities, or for common uses and exchange, as gold and silver for higher purposes, and so under the prohibition of all these is forbidden all greater or lesser provision of money, to be carried out with them. These they are forbidden Κτήσασθαι κτήσασθαι to possess, i.e. to acquire, or any way to provide for themselves against this Journey; for so the word signifies, to get, to purchase, Acts 22.28. and not only to possess. Κτάομαι, acquiro, saith the old Glossary, Κτησάμενος adeptus, indeptus, and accordingly in Demosthenes 'tis set opposite to φυλάττειν, to keep, *Olynth.*2. So in Musonius, * Ὅσα κτήσασθαι δύσκολα, those things that are acquired with difficulty, are distinguished from φυλάξαι μὴ ῥᾴδια, such as are hard to keep. This making provision of money for their journey, as they that go on their own business are wont to do, is forbidden the Apostles, who going on Christ's errand are to expect and confide to be provided for by him, and so also for victuals, which sure is meant here by πήραν the scrip, which was usual for travellers, or any to carry victuals in. Thus 2 Kings 4. 42. that which we read ears of corn in the husk, the Greek reads παλάθας ἐν τῇ πήρᾳ αὐτοῦ, ears in his scrip or sachel, thus rendring the Hebrew צקל, which some taking for a vestment, rendred it there a husk, as the garment of the corn, but surely not rightly; for that was sufficiently said in the ears of corn precedent. The Hebrew צקל is directly our English, sachel, and as there the ears of corn were brought in the sachel, and the bread (the twenty barly loaves) besides some other way, so *Mar.*6.8. (the place parallel to this here) 'tis set distinctly, μὴ πήραν, μὴ ἄρτον, neither sachel, nor bread, neither other kind of victuals in the scrip, nor so much as bread. The word πήρα is only thrice more in the Old Testament, in the Apocryphal book of Judith, *c.*10. 5. πήραν ἐπλήρωσεν ἀλφίτων, she filled the scrip or bag with parched corn, and c.13.10. πήραν τῶν βρωμάτων, the sachel of victuals; and so again, *v.*17. And so in all the places it notes a portage for victuals carried out with them, not as some have conjectured πλωχῦ πήρα, the poor man's or beggar's scrip, (which, saith the Proverb, ἡ πήρα πίμπλαται, is never filled; and again, πλωχῶν ὐλάδες ἀεὶ κεναὶ, the poor man's sachels are always empty) for sure Judith with her maid went not, like beggars, with empty sachels, but as it appears, c. 10. 5. with rich provision along with them, and so the ἄρτον bread, added to πήραν, the sachel in St. Mark enforces, the bread being certainly carried out with them, and the scrip to the same purpose that the bread, that is, both of them for provision for the way. To that of asking or begging by the way, others have with more probability applied that ῥάβδον staff, that follows, making that the character of a poor man or beggar. So the Germans bættel stav, is their begging staff, saith * Stuckius, (the word bætten, saith he, coming from the Greek αἰτεῖν, to ask or beg) and his best testimony is that of Juvenal, A tegete & baculo, to signify from begging. As for that of Jacob's speech of himself, Gen. 32.2. with my staff I went over Jordan, that is, alone, without any companion) and Ulysses in Homer, returning to his country with his σκῆπτρον καὶ πήραν, his staff and scrip, these do not conclude for him, because Jacob doth not affirm that he begged, but that he travelled a single person, in opposition to the two bands, with which he returned: and so Ulysses is expressed by the Poet, not as a mendicant, but a solitary person, in opposition to the greatness in which he had formerly been. It is therefore more reasonable to resolve, that the staff is here look'd on (as our Saviour prohibits it) as an instrument of defence or offence, to secure them from assaults or dangers by the way, from which God is to be trusted to defend them, without any provision on their part. Thus in the story of Bell and the Dragon, *v.*26. Daniel undertakes to kill the Dragon, ἄνευ μαχαίρας καὶ ῥάβδου, without Sword or Staff, and *Ez.*21.21. the Greek uses ῥάβδον for חץ, an arrow, or sharp instrument ordinarily rendred βέλος a dart, and when they render מקל by it, it then goes oft for a weapon of defence, as against a dog, 1 *Sam.*17.43. And that it is to be taken here in this notion may probably appear by Luke 22. 36. where Christ referring to this direction of his for the Disciples journey, I sent you without purse, scrip, shoes, he saith, to express the distresses that are now like to befal them, But now he that hath a purse let him take it, and likewise his scrip, (now permitting what he had before prohibited) and he that hath no sword, let him buy one, in which words the sword seems to be set down in the place of the staff, which is there omitted, and so concludes the use of the staff here to be the same in general, as of the sword (viz. for defence from assaults; tho' the sword be more advantagious for that purpose. One thing only I shall have need to add, that the Staff was also among them as among us, the companion of the way, either as an help and sustainer of weak travellers (and accordingly, Ez. 21. 19. περιπλήσῃ ἔξω ὅτι ῥάβδῳ, walk abroad upon his staff, and Zach. 8. 4. where the Hebrew is, משען fulcrum, a staff to lean on) or universally for all, when מטה is rendred by it, and when 'tis ῥάβδος ἡ ἐν χειρὶ, the staff in the hand, oft-times in the Old Testament. In which respect perhaps it is that *Mar.*6.8. where this very commission is recited, they are commanded to carry nothing with them, εἰ μὴ ῥάβδον, but a staff; which places, tho' they appear contrary one to another, are yet thus reconcileable, that they were not like sollicitous persons to carry the former kind of staff, that for defence, but the walking staff they might, like ordinary travellers (and accordingly Luke 9.3. μήτε ῥάβδους, neither staffs, and so the Plantine Edition reads it here) in like manner as in Mark they are allowed to be shod with sandals (ὑποδεδεμένους σανδάλια) for the journey or travel, and yet in Matthew they are forbid κτήσασθαι ὑποδήματα, to possess shooes, (that is, provide, or carry along with them any other than those sandals, which they wore) which 'twere a piece of sollicitude to do. That all these were the ordinary viaticum for travellers (and accordingly are here forbidden by Christ, who means that they shall not need any such provision) will appear by Maimonides in Halacha Beth Habbechira, c.7. where speaking of them that came up to Jerusalem, and forbidding them to come into the Temple in their travelling guise, he expresseth it thus, No man may come into the mount of the Temple with a staff, or shooes, or with a wallet, or with money folded up in a wallet.

V.16. Be ye] One idiome of the Sacred Writers may be here taken notice of, who by words Imperative, having the form of precept, do oft-times mean no more than either Prediction of what will befal, or else Permission of what may lawfully be done by them. So here in the next, the 17*th.* verse, προσέχετε ἀπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, take heed of the men, is no command of caution or prudential behaviour toward the Jewish Sanhedrin, nor was it so understood by the Apostles, who many times did avowedly profess Christ before them, when it brought the utmost peril upon them; and that they should be so used by them, is here foretold in the latter part of the verse, they will deliver you up to the Councils, and they will scourge you in their Synagogues, that is, ye shall be deliver'd up, and scourged by them, and so that is all that is meant by προσέχετε ἀπὸ τῶν· a prediction that their greatest danger is from them. So Mat. 23.32. καὶ ὑμεῖς πληρώσατε, and do ye fill up the measure of your fathers, a Prediction what they would, no kind of Command, what they should do. So c. 24.16. Let them that are in Judea flee unto the mountains, let him that is on the house-top not descend, &c. and *v.*20. Pray ye, that your flight be not in the winter, all in form of precept, yet none but the first of 'em is so much as an admonition (& that only of counsel, prudentially what was best for 'em) all the rest are but so many forms of predictions, of the sudden and horrible dangers that shou'd overtake all that continued in Judea, when that day of vengeance came. So *Luk.*21.19. ἐν ὑπομονῇ κτήσασθε τὰς ψυχὰς ὑμῶν, In your patience or perseverance possess ye your souls, or lives. Pos-ſeſs ye, that is, there is no ſuch way to keep or preſerve your lives, as perſevering, faithful adherence to Chriſt. So v. 28. When theſe things begin, ἀνακύψατε καὶ ἐπάρατε τὰς κεφαλὰς, look up, and lift up your heads, that is, by thoſe ſigns ye may know, that the worſt of your danger is then over, and your redemption draweth nigh. So Luke 22.36. Let him that hath a purſe take it, and he that hath no ſword, let him ſell his garment and buy one; where ſure there is no command of arming themſelves, or buying ſwords, (if there had, it would have been neceſſary to have had as many ſwords as men, whereas 'tis plain v. 38. that two are ſaid by Chriſt to be ſufficient for the whole company: and after, when Peter drew and ſmote with one of them, he was ſharply reprehended for it,) but only a Prediction of the dangers they ſhould run, &c. So 1 *Cor.*7.23. μὴ γίνεσθε δοῦλοι ἀνθρώπων, be not ye made the ſervants of men, which is no Precept againſt a Chriſtians ſerving another man, but only a liberty, or permiſſion, that he may lawfully keep, or enjoy his freedom, if he have it by birth, or donation, but not a Precept impoſing a neceſſity on him that he muſt. By all which examples it may be conjectured, what weight muſt be laid upon the γίνεσθε φρόνιμοι ὡς ὄφεις, be ye wiſe, or prudent, as ſerpents, not that it is a Precept of the ſerpentine wiſdom, guarding and ſecuring themſelves, for ſure 'twas lawful for them in the preaching the Goſpel, voluntarily to run the utmoſt hazards, but either by way of Prediction, that the wolves among whom they came, would be very ravenous, and ſo their danger great, or elſe by way of Permiſſion that (provided they keep themſelves perfectly innocent) they might be as wary and prudent as they pleaſed.

g. Ἀκέραιος, κεραΐζειν, to butt, or ſtrike, or wound with the horns; from hence, ſaith a Euſtathius, comes ἀκέραιος, and conſequently (ſaith he) it ſignifies ἁπλοῦς καὶ πραΰθυμος, καὶ μή τινα κεραΐζων, ſimply and mildly diſpoſed, and not butting or uſing of horns againſt any body. So b again, τὸ κεραΐζεσθαι, φθορὰν ἁπλῶς καὶ βλάβην σημαῖ, παρὰ τὰ κέρατα, ὅθεν φασὶν, ὁ ἄθυμος καὶ ἀόρητος, ἀκέραιος λέγεται, ὥσπερ μηδένα κεραΐζων, ἢ τὸ βλάπτων, the word ſo derived ſignifies wrathleſs, angerleſs, as one that uſeth no horns, hurts no body: And this notion perfectly agrees with the nature of the Dove, which, ſay the Naturaliſts, hath no gall, is never angry, nor hurts any, and ſo in all reaſon is to be reſolved the meaning of it in this place. So c Cæſarius, μηδενὶ βροτῶν κακῶς ἀνταμειβόμενοι, not retributing evil to any man, φασὶ γὰρ ἄκακον τὴν περιστερὰν, καὶ μηδ' ἔχειν χολοδόχον ὄργανον, for the Dove hath no malice in it, hurts nothing, having not the Organ of choler in it.

h. Ὑπομένειν εἰς τέλος doth here clearly ſignifie a perſevering conſtant adherence to Chriſt, in deſpight of all the perſecutions that ſhall befal them for the name of Chriſt. And for an encouragement to that, is here added the promiſe, that this ſhall be the moſt probable courſe, in the event, to eſcape not only eternal wrath, but even preſent deſtruction here. This will appear by the context which runs thus, the Apoſtles are appointed to go preach firſt to the Jews peculiarly, and not to any others, till they have done with them, *v.*5. they are foretold what uſage they ſhall meet with among them, ſcourging and killing, v. 17. and as a means to eſcape the ſharpneſs of this ill uſage among them, is their flying from one city to another, v.23. which will ſave or deliver them for the time, and before they ſhall have gone over all the cities of Iſrael, that fatal deſtruction, or coming of the ſon of man, v.23. ſhall be, and ſo ſhall ſuperſede their farther cruelty upon them, and withal involve all thoſe, who, to ſave themſelves, ſhall deny and forſake Chriſt. See *v.*39. and Luke 9.24. That this is the meaning of σωθῇ here, as 'tis in many other places, will appear both by *Mat.*24.13. where the ſame words are again uſed in that very buſineſs, and by Mark 13.13. which is parallel to that place; and there theſe words, but he that endureth to the end, ſhall eſcape, are attended immediately with the mention of the abomination of deſolation, inſtead of which S. Luke ſets the encompaſſing of Jeruſalem with armies, (ſee Note on Mat. 24.3.) and the advice to them, which are in Judæa, to fly to the mountains, which is a character, by which we may diſcern to what the eſcaping doth belong; and that σωθήσῃ is not always to be interpreted of eternal ſalvation, but of temporal eſcaping (any more than σωτηρία doth, Acts 7.25. where 'tis clearly the deliverance of the Iſraelites out of Ægypt by Moſes) and is directly anſwerable to the Hebrew reciprocal מלט and נצל which *Gen.*19.19. and in other places we render eſcaping, will appear hereafter on occaſion of the phraſe [οἱ σῳζόμενοι] Acts 2.47. and Luke 13.23. and 1 *Pet.*1.5. and 2 *Pet.*1.3. And this verſe being thus underſtood, will be all one with that famous Prediction, of the Bird in the Capitol, ἔσται πάντα καλῶς (ſee Suetonius in Domit. c. 23.) ſpoken ſurely for the comfort of Chriſtians then, in reſpect of their Perſecutions, but wreſted to Trajan and Adrian, by the Hiſtorian.

Σωτηρία

V. 24. Not above] This is a Proverb, or known ſaying among the Hebrews; Aben Ezra on Hoſ. 1.2. ſets it down in Hebrew, thus, די לעבד להיות כרבו It is enough, or ſufficient, for the ſervant to be as his maſter, i. e. he hath no reaſon to expect any better portion, hath all reaſon to be content with that. Many other ſuch proverbial ſpeeches there are, falling from Chriſt, (as purpoſely making uſe of what was good among them, their cuſtoms, their proverbs, their forms of prayer and benediction) ſo that of *Mat.*7.2. In the meaſure you mete, it ſhall be meaſured to you again. For ſo in that part of the Gemara call'd Sanhedrim, we find במדה שאדם מדד בה מורדים לו In the meaſure a man meteth, they ſhall mete to him in that. See c.19. note b. and 2 Theſſ 3.b. and *Rom.*2.a.

i. Παροιμίαι Ἑβραικαὶ

k. Ἀκούειν εἰς τὸ οὖς

V. 27. Hear in the ear] This phraſe of hearing in the ear will be beſt explain'd by referring to the cuſtom of the Jews mention'd by the Rabbins, who affirm, that the Maſters among the Jews were wont to have their Interpreters, who (as the ὑποφῆται of the Oracles) did receive the Dictates of the Maſters, whiſper'd in the ear, and then publickly propoſe them to all; the Maſters dictating ſoftly, but the Interpreters delivering them aloud. Of this Elias Levita ſpeaks in his Thisbi, on the word תרגם, and ſaith that the Interpreter is mention'd *Exod.*4.16. he ſhall be to thee as a mouth (where the Targum reads לתורגמן, the word which is among the Chaldees the title of an Interpreter) and adds, that every Pſalm that is inſcribed משביל, was received from a Maſter, and dictated by an Interpreter. So 'twas an enſign of a Maſter, to have an Interpreter. In the Excerpta Gemaræ, tract. de Sanhed. c.1. § 7. Dixerunt Jehudæ interpreti Reſh Lachiſh, adſta illi in concione, adſtitit, & ſe inclinavit juxta illum, & iſte nihil ei dictavit; Judah the Interpreter of Reſh Lachiſh ſtood by him in the Aſſembly, and bow'd himſelf to him, and he dictated nothing to him. And in Baracboth, c.9. Rector Univerſitatis eris, ad ſtabitque tibi אמורא, thou ſhalt be ruler of the Univerſity, and ſhalt have by thee an Interpreter. This Chriſt applies to himſelf and the Diſciples, making himſelf the Maſter, dictating to them the words of life, the new Covenant, which they conſequently are bound κηρύσσειν to proclaim to others, as ſo many κήρυκες, aloud, publickly, on the houſe-top, and not, for fear, keep in any part of it. As for the phraſe on the houſe-top, that is taken from the cuſtom of their flat buildings, plain on the top, with battlements about them (ſee Note b. on c.4.) by which means it was both ordinary and very convenient, when any thing was to be proclaimed to the people, to do it from the top of the houſe, ſtanding on the battlements. So in Hegeſippus there is a remarkable place, cited by * Euſebius, When, ſaith he, by the preaching of James the brother of the Lord, and Biſhop of Jeruſalem, many of the Chief of the People believed on Chriſt, many of the Phariſees and other Sects which believed not, came to him and perſwaded him that he would ſeduce the people, and to that end, at the Paſſover, when all the people came up to Jeruſalem, they intreat him thus, στῆσον δή σοι τὸ πλῆθος τὸ περὶ Ἰησοῦν, ἵνα διὰ πάντων ἢ σαφηνὴς, καὶ ἡ εὐάκουστά σου τὰ ῥήματα παντὶ τῷ λαῷ, ſet thy thy self upon the battlement of the Temple, that from above (that is, by the advantage of place, as the Latine Interpreters reads it, de superiore loco) thou mayest be conspicuous (or, known, who thou art, because by the title of James the Just he was so reverenced by all the Nation, and known by them generally) and thy words easily heard by all the people. And accordingly, ἔστησαν ἐπὶ τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ, they set him upon a battlement of the temple, in the very same phrase that is used of the Devil to Christ, c. 4. 6. in order to the βάλε σεαυτὸν κάτω, casting himself down; to that the setting him on the top of the battlement (and not within, so as to lean over it) was sure most proper, and so 'tis certain, that is the meaning of it *c.*4. and by consequence (the phrase being to a letter the same) in the story of James in Hegesippus also, where accordingly it follows, ἀναβάντες καθέβαλον δίκαιον, they went up and cast him down (and so Eusebius cites it there out of Clemens, ἀπὸ τοῦ πτερυγίου βεβλῆσθαι, he was cast down from the battlement) though it seems κατενεχθεὶς οὐκ ἀπέθανε, he died not with the fall. From this circumstance of that story it is most probably concluded, to be the custom for those that proclaim'd any thing from the house-top, to stand on the top of the battlements (which accordingly were of a sufficient breadth to stand upon) and not so to stand within, as to speak over it.

V. 29. A farthing] For Ἀσσαρίου the Hebrew reads טבע קטון a little piece of money, the Syriack reads אסר Asor, the Greek word so changed by them. The Arabick have Phals, which they use to express the least piece of money that is, and accordingly for λεπτὰ δύο, Mark 12. 42. they read Phalsain the Dual from that. For the value of the coyn, according to the use of the word Asoro in the Syriack, * Jesu Bar Ali saith, that there are such diversities of opinions, that 'tis hard to determine any thing in it.

Paraphrase. CHAP. XI.

1. To give instructions, and teach the Gospel (see Note on c. 9. 1.) in the Cities whither he now removed.

1. AND it came to pass, when Jesus had made an end of commanding his twelve disciples, he departed thence [to teach and to preach in their cities.]

2, 3. Now John Baptist being put in prison, and in danger of being put to death and hearing of the miracles done by Christ, though

2. Now when John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples,

3. And said unto him, Art thou [a] he that should come, or look we for another?]

a.

(John 1. 34.) he had been sufficiently convinced that Christ was the Messias, and after the testimonies given by him (John 3. 32, 36.) cannot be imagined to lye open to any doubtings. Yet to satisfie and confirm his disciples, which were in danger to be thus assaulted, being tempted with their Master's imprisonment and danger, hereupon he sent two of his disciples to know of Christ if indeed he were the great Messias or no, that when he was cut off, his disciples might not be shaken in their belief of Christ, but adhere and cleave fast to him.

4, 5. To this Jesus answered by giving them the character of the Messias, as it lyes in the Prophets of the Old Testament, of opening the eyes of the blind, &c.

4. Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see.

5. The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor [b] * have the gospel preached to them.]

b. * receive.

(All which they now see verified in him) and to those other parts of curing diseases, and raising the dead, he added this farther branch, that the humblest and meanest persons, those of the lowest condition, have the glad tidings of the Gospel preach'd to them, as good a share in this blessed message as the best, and peculiarly they above others are affected and wrought on by the preaching of it.

6. And for that which concerns their doubting of what before they had believed, and that founded on John's present condition, Christ adds (over and above the words of the Prophets) Blessed is he who doth not forsake, or fall off from me in this time (or by occasion) of temptation, or affliction, (such as now John is in, and) such as shall oft befal Christians in this world, Christ's office being not to deliver all men in this world out of such, but to shew them the way to suffer patiently, and to conquer by sufferings.

6. And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be [c] * offended in me.]

c. * scandalized, at, or, about.

7. Jesus thought fit, upon this occasion, to give the people a right notion of John the Baptist, which consequently would give them a more perfect knowledge of himself, John's office being wholly subservient to the revealing of Christ. Thus therefore he began to them, What was it that so many of you went out into the wilderness to behold? was it a reed, such as the wind plays with there in the wilderness, any trifle of so little moment, and so ordinary to be seen there? Sure your going out to him was not on so childish an errand.

7. And as they departed, [Jesus began to say to the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? a reed shaken with the wind?]

8. Or was it any glorious gallant person in splendid array? sure such an one you would not have look't for in a Desart, but a Court, and you know 'twas quite contrary of him. You found him in an austere habit and diet, and therefore you cannot now imagine that he is troubled with the confinement or danger he is in, so that he should presently be cast into doubts, or be changed so soon to so much weakness of faith from so much strength. Certainly he that lived in a wilderness, and observed that habit and diet there, is not now troubled at all, that he is from Herod's court cast into prison.

8. But what went ye out for to see? A man cloathed in soft raiment? Behold, they that wear soft cloathing are in kings houses.]

9. No, 'tis certain you went out to him, as to a Prophet, and of him I must tell you, that he is a great Prophet, nay of a pitch beyond all the Prophets that ever went before him, a direct herald and harbinger of Christ.

9. But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and [d] more than a prophet.]

10. For himself was prophesied of by the other Prophets, that he should be the forerunner of the Messias, and when he came, he did accordingly, pointing at him, This is he, &c. John 1. 30.

10. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold I send my messenger before [e] thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.]

11. Of him I shall freely say, that among all the Prophets or special persons which since the beginning of the world have been by God sent to any Office in his Church, John Baptist is absolutely the greatest, honour'd with more signal revelations, than any of the old Prophets, John 1. 32. seeing the Holy Ghost come down upon me, &c. And yet let me tell you, that an Apostle of mine, the meanest and least of them, whether in respect of revelations (having to those of his, many others super added) and the power of miracles, which John had not, John 10. 41. and the Holy Ghost visibly descending on them, or whether in respect of Office, sent by Christ to testifie his resurrection, to convert first, and then to rule the Church after me, is to be look't on, as a far greater person, and more honourable officer, than John Baptist, who is no prophet himself, but only the forerunner, and so disciple, servant of a prophet.

11. Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women, there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist; notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdom of heaven, is greater than he].

12. And yet after all this, so acknowledgedly true of John, it is most sadly considerable, how after all John's preaching of me, and all Judæa's going out to him, c. 3. 5. (and even the Pharisees and Sadducees many of them, v. 7.) and their being baptized of him into the belief of the Messias (first preached, and then pointed out by him, and testified, this is he) yet from that time till this, all this while to this hour, scarce any, but the multitude, and meaner croud of the Jews, come into the Gospel, together with the Publicans, and Sinners, or Gentile men among you, who are looked on by the Jews, as those, which have no right to the Messias, and so as violent persons, invaders, intruders,

12. And from the days of John the Baptist * until now, the kingdom of heaven [f] suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.]

f. * as yet, hactenus

truders. The wiſe and learned among you, who could not but know him to be a Prophet, and conſequently in any reaſon ſhould have given the readieſt obedience to his Doctrine, and ſo according to his direction have believed in me (as finding him ſo diſtinctly forteold by the Prophets, as the forerunner of the Meſſias) do not receive either of us. They were the men, which received not the Baptiſt, c.21.24, 32. whereas all beſide them (as 'tis there ſaid v. 25.) the multitudes, Luke 3. 10. the publicans, v. 12. the ſoldiers, v. 14. were very obſervant diſciples of his; and in like manner ever ſince, the multitudes, and the publicans, from whom 'twas leaſt to be expected, they have believed on me, but the principal men, Phariſees and Doctors, &c. they oppoſe and blaſpheme, v. 18, 19. And thus, as when a houſe is broken up by thieves, thoſe of the family are deprived, and all is parted among invaders, ſo is it now, the eminent Jews are deprived of all their part in the Goſpel, and only the more ignorant multitude, and the publicans, &c. they divide it among them.

13. For all the prophets and the law propheſied until John.] 13. For the Law and Prophets all of them, that is, the Writers of the Old Teſtament, had a prophetical relation to the Meſſias, darkly and afar off, deſcribed Chriſt in types and predictions, and ſo continued to do, till John came, but he, beyond them all, by way of indication, pointed at him, as actually preſent, whom all others foretold as future, and at a diſtance.

* receive him this δέχεσθαι αὐτὸς

14. And if ye will * receive it, this is Elias, which was for to come. 14. And whether you will or will not receive him, take it how you will, This is that Elias propheſied of in Malachi, to uſher in a new ſtate, and the Meſſias the Prince of it.

15. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.] 15. And the embracing of his doctrine or meſſage, is a matter of huge concernment, and they that do not embrace it, will not excuſe themſelves from the crime and puniſhment of obſtinate wilful blindneſs.

16. But whereunto ſhall I liken [this generation? It is like unto g children ſitting in the markets, and calling unto their fellows,

17. And ſaying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced, we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.] 16,17. The chief men of this age among the Jews, the Phariſees, &c. Their dealing with John and Chriſt is juſt the ſame, that ye have ſeen boys, playing in the ſtreets, ſportingly complain of, telling their fellows, that they will do nothing as they ſhould, neither follow them in their mirth, nor their ſadneſs. For thus ſo theſe, whatſoever kind of meſſages God ſends to them, they reſpect and obey them not, nay ſome great exceptions ſtill they have to the meſſengers, to contrary ſorts of them, contrary exceptions, firſt one exception they have to John, and then another, quite contrary, to Chriſt. g.

18. For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they ſay he hath a devil]. 18. If John uſe a diet more auſtere than ordinary, then they that are the wiſe men among you, Phariſees, Doctors of the Law, look on him, as a mad man, a melancholy, hypochondriacal perſon. See John 7.6.

19. The ſon of man came eating and drinking, and they ſay, Behold a man glutton* and ʒ tonous, and a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and ſinners; * but wiſdom is juſtified h of her children.] 19. And if Chriſt come, uſing the ordinary diet of men, and eating promiſcuouſly with all company, they cenſure him as a looſe perſon, and a favourite of ſuch. And ſo Chriſt as his forerunner, the Baptiſt, and in them two, the wiſdom from above, divine knowledge, or the Goſpel of Chriſt, is by this means juſtified, teſtified, approved to be that, which the Goſpel of Chriſt was foretold to be v. 5. (contrary to the wiſdom of the world, embraced generally by none, but the meaneſt, and moſt deſpiſed, the publicans and people, and they generally receive it. h.

20. Then began he to upbraid [the cities wherein moſt of the mighty works were done, becauſe they repented not.] 20. The places of note, cities or towns, or regions, wherein he had done the greateſt miracles in moſt abundance, that after all this they did not amend their wicked lives, according to his doctrine.

21. Wo unto thee Chorazin, wo unto thee Bethſaida; for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in [Tyre and Sidon] they would have repented long ago in ſackcloth and aſhes.] 21. Heathen cities near you, whence they came out in troops, Mark 3. 8.

22. But I ſay unto you, [It ſhall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you.] 22. The judgment or puniſhment which befals meer heathen cities, ſhall be eaſier, or leſs, than that which expects you.

* or, go down, for the Gr. and Lat. MS. reads καταβήσῃ deſcend

23. And thou Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, ſhalt * be brought down to i hell for if the mighty works which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.] 23. And thou Capernaum the place of my abode, which haſt been ſo honour'd and favour'd by me, beyond all other places, and haſt received ſuch ſpiritual advantages, ſhalt be brought to deſtruction and deſolation ſuddenly, humbled as low as thou wert highly advanced; for if the miracles done in thee, on deſign to reform thee, had been done in Lot's time for the reforming of Sodom and Gomorrah, Sodom would certainly have reformed, and ſo ſhould not have been deſtroyed. i.

24. But I ſay unto you, that it ſhall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom, in the day of judgment, than for thee.] 24. And therefore you in all reaſon are to expect a ſadder deſtruction and vaſtation, than that which befel Sodom and Gomorrah.

25. At that time Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, becauſe thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them unto babes.] 25. About that time it was that Jeſus upon ſome occaſion taken, probably that of v. 19. founded on the cloſe of v. 5. (his being received by the meaner, and refuſed by the higher ſort) brake out into an affectionate expreſſion of thanks to God, that thoſe myſteries of the Goſpel, which the wiſe men of the world deſpiſed, (and were thereupon given up by God to their own wilful blindneſs) were yet by him revealed to the meaneſt and moſt ignorant, that is, that God had ſo diſpoſed the way to heaven, that the moſt ignorant, and moſt humble, not the moſt illuminated, and moſt proud were moſt ready to receive and embrace it.

26. Even ſo, Father, for ſo it ſeemed good in thy ſight.] 26. This is an act, ſaid he, of thy free and undeſerved mercy, O Lord, to ſome, and of thy juſt deſertion to others.

* none οὐδεὶς

27. k All things are delivered unto me of my Father, and * no man knoweth the ſon but the Father: neither knoweth any man the Father, ſave the Son, and he to whomſoever the Son will reveal him.] 27. All that come to me, and believe on me, are by my father (enlightning and ſtirring up their hearts, and uſing all powerful means to that end) brought and delivered unto me, and none acknowledgeth me but the Father, and thoſe, who by the miracles, &c. which my Father enableth me to do, are attracted to me. As on the other ſide, none acknowledgeth the Father in that manner, as he now requires to be acknowledged, but the Son, and he that believes his preaching of him. Wherefore k.

28. Come unto me all ye [that * labour, and are heavy laden, and I will give you † reſt.] 28. That are now engaged in a ſad drudging courſe of ſervice and ſlavery to Satan, and I will entertain you into a cheerful, pleaſant, not only ſupportable ſervice.

29. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, * for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye ſhall find † reſt unto your ſouls. 29. Put off your preſent ſervitude, and exchange it for my yoke, exemplified to you by my ſelf in mine own meekneſs and humility, and you will find a ſtrange exchange, refreſhment inſtead of wearineſs, which came from your former courſe.

30. For my yoke is * eaſie, and my burthen is light.] 30. For my ſervice is a good, deſirable, excellent ſervice, and the commands, or tasks, that I require you to perform, are very tolerable, and eaſie to be performed.

a. Ἐρχόμενος

V. 3. He ſhould come] The Prophecies of Chriſt as the Meſſias of the Jews, by them expected, (and alſo of the Gentiles, though by them not ſo diſcern'd,) were ſo plain in the Old Teſtament under the title of Shilo coming,&c. and yet the perſon or name of him ſo unknown, that he was by them wont to be expreſſed by ſome circumlocutions, particularly by this of ὁ ἐρχόμενος he that cometh, as it appears by the continuing that phraſe both here, and *Heb.*10.37. *Mat.*21.9. Luke 7.20. 13.35. *Joh.*12.13. and Luke 19. 38. by ἐρχόμενος βασιλεύς, the coming King, (and ſo the ſtate of Chriſtianity is βασιλεία ἐρχομένη, the coming Kingdom, *Mar.*11.10. and in Iſa. 9. 6. μέλλον αἰὼν the age to come, in the Septuagint's rendring) by which is directly meant the Meſſias entring on thoſe great offices, to which he was deſign'd and deſtin'd by God. So alſo οἰκουμένη μέλλουσα, *Heb.*2.5. the world to come, and δυνάμεις μέλλοντος αἰῶνος, *Heb.*6.5. the ſtate and power of Grace, or Chriſtianity. And of this the Baptiſt here asks the queſtion, by this means to help his Diſciples to a more explicite conviction and aſſurance of the truth of it, that whatſoever befals him they may cleave faſt to Chriſt.

Μέλλουσα οἰκουμένη, αἰών

b. Ἴδιωμα λόγου Μειωνυμία effectus

V.5.The poor, &c.] It is an idiome ordinary in theſe books of the Old and New Teſtament, that Paſſive verbs (by a Metonymie of the effect) comprehend and import the reality of the effect of the paſſion, or a willing reception of the impreſſion, that is, note the Patient not only to receive influxes from the Agent, but to be effectually chang'd by the paſſion. So Iſaiah 65.1.I am ſought of them that asked not for me. Where 'tis clear, that ſeeking and asking for are all one. Ask and ye ſhall have, ſeek and ye ſhall find, ſaith our Saviour, directly in the ſame ſenſe: And therefore it cannot be imagined how they that have not asked for God, he may yet be truly affirmed to be ſought by them. It remains therefore that to be ſought muſt here be underſtood cum effectu, ſo as to have the effect of finding attend it, and ſo 'tis diſtinctly interpreted by that which follows, I am found by them which ſought me not; where, as ſought me not is equivalent to asked not for me, ſo I am found is directly all one with I am ſought in the beginning of the verſe. And accordingly *Rom.*10. 20. where theſe words of the Prophet are cited, inſtead of I am ſought of them, the Apoſtle reads I was made manifeſt unto them. So ἐξίστασθαι turned out of the way, Tit.3.11. ſignifies not only the being perſwaded, and turned, and perverted by another, but the having really received the impreſſion, being effectually wrought on and corrupted by ſeducers. So πειράζεσθαι to be tempted, *Gal.*6.1. is to be wrought on by temptation, or elſe the poſſibility of it would not be uſed, as an argument to inforce ſo much Chriſtian care and meekneſs toward him, who is overtaken in a fault. So σκανδαλίζεσθαι to be ſcandaliz'd is to be wrought on (brought into ſin, actually diſcouraged in the ways of godlineſs) by the ſcandal laid in his way, (as in this very verſe) and ſo here Εὐαγγελίζεσθαι to be Evangeliz'd, is to be wrought on by the preaching of the Goſpel (not only to have it preach'd to them) which is peculiarly obſerv'd of the poor, humble minded man, of whom 'tis therefore ſaid, under the emblem of the little Children, that of ſuch is the kingdom of heaven; the Chriſtian Church is made up of ſuch (ſee Jam. 2.5.) whereas the proud reſiſt, and deſpiſe, and ſtand out againſt it. The vulgar Latin have rendred agreeably to this ſenſe, Evangelizantur pauperes, the poor are Evangeliz'd. Another ſenſe there is, whereof the words are capable, thus, that the promiſes of Chriſt, and all the good news and beatitudes of the Goſpel pertain to the poor, humble ſoul. So Heb. 4. 2. ἰσμὲν εὐαγγελισμένοι ſeems to ſignifie, The Promiſes of the Goſpel were offered to us. But this will be contain'd under the former ſenſe; for if they have the Goſpel preach'd to them, and are effectually wrought on by it, then ſure the Goſpel pertains to them. The true and compleat ſenſe of the phraſe will thus beſt be fetch'd out, theſe two verſes, fourth and fifth, are Chriſt's way of anſwering John, and aſſuring him that he is the Meſſias, by giving him the characteriſtical marks of the Meſſias in the Prophets, and ſhewing him how viſibly they belong to him. The places in the Prophets, on which he pitcheth, are chiefly theſe three; firſt Iſa. 29.18,19. where the Greek read ἀκούσονται ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἐκείνῃ οἱ κωφοὶ, in that day the deaf ſhall hear, καὶ ὀφθαλμοὶ τυφλῶν ὄψονται, καὶ ἀγαλλιάσονται οἱ πτωχοὶ διὰ κύριον ἐν εὐφροσύνῃ, and the eyes of the blind ſhall ſee (on occaſion of which he farther adds what was then frequently done of the ſame kind) the lepers are cleanſed, and the dead are raiſed, and the poor ſhall rejoyce becauſe of the Lord with mirth. The ſecond is Iſa. 21. 1. The Lord hath anointed me εὐαγγελίσασθαι πτωχοῖς — καὶ τυφλοῖς ἀνάβλεψιν, to proclaim glad tidings to the poor, and recovering of ſight to the blind. The third is *Iſa.*35.5,6. Then the eyes of the blind ſhall be open'd, and the ears of the deaf ſhall hear, the lame ſhall leap, and the tongue of the dumb ſhall ſing. By the two former the ſenſe of εὐαγγελίζονται will be gueſs'd at, one whereof makes it the mark of the Meſſias to preach to the poor, and ſo in the rendring of this place here this active Office of Chriſt muſt be taken notice of, and then the real paſſive ſenſe alſo, as it belongs to us, muſt be ſuperadded to it, proportionable to the poor's joyful receiving the Goſpel in Iſaiah. So Pſal. 68. 10, 11. God's providing for the poor, is expreſs'd by the Lord gave his word, great was the multitude of preachers, and that refers to the firſt part, the preaching to them. And to the ſecond, that of their receiving it, ſee *Zeph.*3.12,13. the afflicted poor people ſhall truſt in the name of the Lord, &c. ſee alſo Zach. 11.11. The Hebrew Edition both of Munſter and Mercer, reads עניים יאשרו the poor are made bleſſed: But 'tis probable that that is a miſ-reading for יבשרו they are Evangeliz'd, in either of the former ſenſes.

c. Σκάνδαλον

V. 6. Offended] The uſe of the word σκάνδαλον ſcandal in the ſacred (being ſeldom or never found in the ancient profane) Writers, is once for all to be obſerved. It is either Natural (as generally in the Old Teſtament) or Metaphorical, (as chiefly in the New). It Naturally ſignifies three things, 1. a trap, a gin, or ſnare to catch any thing: So in the Greek tranſlation of *Pſal.*69.22. the word is uſed (being joyned with two other words which ſignifie * ſnare and gin) and therefore in the place of Rom. 11.9. where the ſame words are cited out of the Septuagints tranſlation, and not out of the Hebrew Text of the Pſalm, it ſhould be rendred by Analogy, not ſtumbling-block, but gin, or ſome other word belonging to this ſignification. In this ſenſe it is uſed, 1 Mac. 5. 4. where it is all one with ſnare, and it is farther interpreted by, laying wait by the way to catch them treacherouſly. So again Wiſd. 14. 11. the word is uſed and explained by another word, ſignifying a trap or ſnare, the very ſame that is uſed in the Pſalms and to the Romans. Secondly, it ſignifies any obſtacle or hindrance laid in a mans way, by which the paſſenger is detained, or ſtopped, peculiarly a ſharp ſtake, ſuch as in time of war men were wont to put in the fields, where their enemy ſhould follow, to wound their feet or legs in the paſſage: againſt which being ſo ordinary in war, they anciently uſed greaves of braſs, to defend their feet, or legs, 1 Sam. 16. 6. Thus is the word σκάνδαλον uſed Judith 5.1. where we render it impediments, a word ſomewhat too general to ſignifie thoſe ſharp ſtakes, or other inſtruments to wound or gall the paſſengers, which are known by the name of gall-traps. Thirdly, the word ſignifies a ſtone or block in the way, at which men are apt (if they be not careful, or if they go in the dark) to ſtumble and fall: and thereupon in the Old Teſtament it is taken for a fall, and ſo ſometimes for ſin, the fall of the ſoul, as Judith 12.2. in which ſenſe I conceive, 'tis uſed Judg. 8.27. where 'tis rendred a ſnare, that is, a ſin enſnaring, or occaſioning ruine. Beſide theſe three ſignifications there is no other ſave one, Pſal. 50. 20. for ſlander, or calumny, or defamation.

* Παγὶς καὶ θήρα

Now

Now for the uſe of the word in the New Teſtament, the firſt place in which we find it is, *Mat.*13. 41. the Angels ſhall gather out all ſcandals, in a ſenſe borrowed from the ſecond ſignification of a ſharp ſtake, which he who hath once met with, and been galled by it, is wont to gather up, and caſt into the fire, as there it follows the Angels for our ſakes ſhould do, v. 24. (to which St. Paul alſo ſeems to allude, 2 Cor. 11.29. in putting ſcandalizing, and burning together) and denotes ſimply whatſoever may wound or gall us in our Chriſtian courſe, and by that means cauſe us to ſlacken or give over, or lie down in the ſervice of Chriſt. So *Mat.*17.27. Chriſt pays tribute, that he may not offend the Jews, that is, that they might not think him a contemner of the Temple, to which the Tribute was due, and ſo forſake, and not believe in him, that he might not diſcourage them from following him. So Mat. 15.12. The Phariſees hearing a doctrine that gall'd them particularly, ἐσκανδαλίζοντο, were offended, and forſook him, that doctrine drave them away from following him. So *Mat.*18.7. it muſt needs be that offences come, of Hereſies, and exemplary ſins. So Mat. 18.6. He that ſhall offend one of theſe little ones, that is, he that ſhall occaſion their falling off into any ſin, or by contemning them, diſcourage them from the ſtudy of piety. So Chriſt crucified is ſaid a ſcandal to the Jews, that is, they that followed him with the multitudes, when they ſaw him crucified, were quite diſcouraged, and fell away from him, reſolving that he was not the Meſſias: to which belongs this place here, and Luke 7.23. Bleſſed is he that ſhall not be offended in me, that is, ſhall not be gall'd, and diſcouraged, and ſo fall off by ſeeing the ſufferings that befal me, and await my diſciples or followers. So again, *Mat.*13.57. Mark 6.3. it is ſaid, that the conſideration of his known and mean birth occaſioned their being offended at him, i. e. their deſerting and not believing on him, when the miracles which he had done inclined them ſomewhat to a valuing of him. So John 6. 61. when Chriſt talks of eating the fleſh of the ſon of man, they were offended, that is, that ſpeech carnally underſtood, either that Chriſt was to die (which the eating his fleſh preſuppoſed, and they did not like to hear of, dreaming of a temporal glorious Meſſias) or that they were to turn Canibals, and eat mans fleſh, diſcouraged them from following him, at leaſt from taking him to be the Meſſias. So *Gal.*5. 11. perſecution is called the ſcandal of the Croſs, or that upon which ſo many are diſcouraged from profeſſing the crucified Saviour, according to that in the parable of the ſower, *Mat.*13.21. Mark 4.17. upon the coming of perſecution preſently he is offended, that is, gall'd, and falls off, and *Mat.*24.10. on the ſame occaſion, and in the ſame ſenſe. So *Mat.*26.31. Mark 14. 27. this night (to wit of my attachment) ye ſhall all be offended becauſe of me, that is fall back and forſake me: and ſo in St. Peter's Anſwer, v. 23. Altho' all men ſhould be offended, yet will I never be offended; upon which, that which Chriſt replies (before the cock crow, that is, before morning, thou ſhalt deny me thrice) is an interpretation of the word offended, and ſhews that to be offended is to deny Chriſt. And ſo John 16. 1. Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you, that ye ſhould not be offended, where Chriſt foretels the perſecutions that ſhould befal them, that they might be fore-warn'd too, and not fall off when they befal them. And thus Rom. 14. 13. where προσκομμα ἢ σκάνδαλον are joined, the firſt ſignifies the ſtumbling-block, the ſecond the gall-trap, the firſt apt to keep one from coming to Chriſtianity, the ſecond to drive one away, to diſcourage in the courſe, both which the Jewiſh Chriſtians then did by binding the Gentile Converts to the Moſaical Law, and the Gentile converts alſo by deſpiſing the ſcrupulous Jews. And the ſame is the importance of *v.*21. where ſtumbling and ſcandalized are put together. Other places there are which muſt be interpreted by bringing the Metaphor from the firſt of the three ſenſes, as it ſignifies a ſnare or gin. So *Mat.*16.23. Thou art an offence unto me, that is, by expreſſing thy deteſtation againſt my ſufferings, thou laboureſt to bring me into an horror, or fear of ſuffering, and ſo in effect tempteſt me to ſin. In the ſame ſenſe is that *Rev.*2. 14. of Balaam, who taught Balak, βαλεῖν σκάνδαλον, to lay a ſnare for the children of Iſrael to entice them by their daughters to Idolatry, and by Idolatry to intrap and deſtroy them. In this ſenſe ſcandal is ſo perfectly all one with temptation, that as a * learned man hath obſerved, the Æthiopick Interpreter of the New Teſtament, inſtead of ſcandal puts a word that ſignifies * temptation, and the ſame that in the Lord's Prayer is put for temptation: In this ſenſe is that of the eye and foot offending us, Mat. 5.29. 18.8. Mark 9.47. that is, when man's eye, or any other member of his body proves a ſnare to him, an inlet to temptation. A third ſort of places there are that refer to the third mentioned acception of the word as it ſignifies a ſtumbling block; ſo when the word ſtone is joined with it; or the Greek word which ſignifies ſtumbling. So *Rom.*9.33. Chriſt is called a ſtumbling block, a rock of offence, that is, an occaſion of fall, or ſin in many, and conſequently of encreaſing their condemnation, as he ſaith, if he had not come, &c. they had not had ſin, that is, had not been ſo great ſinners, had not been guilty of the great ſin unbelief, and crucifying of Chriſt. So 1 *Pet.*2.8. Chriſt is called a ſtone of ſtumbling, and rock of offence, at which to ſtumble is to be diſobedient to Chriſt: ſo again, 1 Cor. 8. 9. ſtumbling-block to the weak, and ſo, *v.*13. To this may belong that other place, 1 John 2.10. where that phraſe, there is no ſcandal in him, ſeems to ſignify, falls not into thoſe ſins, that ignorant men, or uncharitable (who are ſaid in the Antitheſis, *v.*11. to walk in the dark) are ſubject unto. By this brief view will appear the ſeveral acceptions and notions of this word in all the places of the New Teſtament. As for the bleſſedneſs, which is here attributed to thoſe which are not ſcandalized at Chriſt, diſcouraged or gall'd by the perſecutions, which befal Chriſt and his followers, this is here ſuperadded by him to the other part of the character given him in the Prophets, purpoſely in conſideration of John's preſent condition, now being in priſon, which might occaſion ſome doubts to his Diſciples, whether Chriſt, whoſe foretunner he was, were indeed the Meſſias, or no.

Σκανδαλίζεσθαι

* Lud de Dieu. מנסות from נסה

V.9. More than a Prophet.] There were, ſaith Maimonides, among the Jews eleven degrees of Prophecy, of which, (ſaith he) only nine were of true genuine Prophecy, or properly ſo called; the other two being ſublime tranſcendent ſorts, ſomewhat more excellent than ordinary Prophecy. One of theſe he there defines to be that, which comes on the man without dream, or extaſy, the ſpeaking by the H. Ghoſt. Of this ſort was John the Baptiſt, who was clearly told by the Father, (*Mat.*3.17. John 1.33. and by the deſcent of the Spirit of God) and accordingly proclaimed as clearly to others, that Chriſt was the Lamb of God, &c. ſo far that he is ſaid to ſpeak only as a witneſs, not as a Prophet, John 1.7. In this reſpect it is, that he is called by ſo many other ſtiles, The voice of one crying, Mark 1. 3. a proclaimer, a herald, *v.*4. a meſſenger of God, v. 2. μέγας a great, illuſtrious perſon, Luke 1.15. and one filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and by way of excellence, the Prophet of the moſt high, *v.*76. but never ſimply a Prophet, unleſs it be Luke 7.28. where yet the words may be beſt rendred thus, that no prophet born of a woman is greater than John the Baptiſt, where Baptiſt, not Prophet, is his only title (and therefore in the 11th verſe of this Ch. the word Prophet is left out of the expreſſion) only a compariſon made betwixt him and all the Prophets, and ſo Luke 16.16. where 'tis ſaid, that the Prophets continued till John, not including him in that number; but referring him to the higher claſſis of a forerunner of Chriſt, or a preacher of the Goſpel; for ſo it follows, From that time the kingdom of God, that is, Chriſtianity is preached, and to the ſame ſenſe it is, that here he is ſaid to be one, or ſomewhat περισσότερον προφήτου, ſuperiour to a prophet, viz. in reſpect of the clearneſs of God's ſhewing Chriſt to him, and his revealing him to others, pointing at him, ἰδὲ behold. But yet becauſe this office of forerunner was the office of Diſciples (ſee *Mat.*26.18.) and conſequently John was only only a Diſciple and meſſenger, employed by Chriſt, therefore being compared with the Apoſtles, who were to be rulers of the Church, it is here ſaid, that the leaſt of them is greater than he, deſigned to a more honourable imployment.

e. Πρόσωπόν σου

V.10. Before thy face] That which is here before thy face, is in Malachy, *c.*3.1. before my face, and ſo thereby it appears that Chriſt (here referred to in the thy) is there all one with God the Father; or yet farther, that the face of God, ſignifying often his coming, or his preſence (and ſending before his face, ſending an harbinger or forerunner in a journey, Luke 9.52.) this coming of Chriſt into the world, is the coming of God himſelf, this preſence of his on the earth, the preſence of God himſelf, and ſo the ἱλαστήριον or covering of the Ark, noting the preſence of God appears to have been meant as a type of Chriſt, Rom. 3.25.

f. Βιάζεται

V.12. Suffereth violence] Βιάζεσθαι notes a thing being taken by one that hath no legal acknowledged right to it, βιαίως κρατεῖται, ſaith Heſychius, it is taken and violently poſſeſſed (βία ſignifying ἡ ἐκ τῆς δυναστείας ἀδικία, ſaith Phavorinus, injuſtice by over-ruling power.) Thus when the people of Iſrael were forbidden to go up to Sinai, their going up thither is in the Greek expreſſed by βιάζεσθαι, *Ex.*19.24. Thus in the * Talmud, Two men had an inheritance equally divided betwixt them, and one of them carried his own part away, and his fellows too, therefore they called him בן הסצן the ſon of violence, a violent dealer, the very βιασὴς here. Thus the kingdom of Heaven, being as an Inheritance provided for all Jews and Gentiles, and the Jews being in a manner the elder Brother, the Goſpel being firſt by appointment preached to them, the chief cities thereof, Corazin, Bethſaida, and Capernaum, nay Jeruſalem it ſelf, have not been ſo careful to look after it, eſpecially the principal perſons among them, Doctors and High-Prieſts, &c. but continue to contradict and oppoſe it, and then the multitudes and meaner ſort of the Jews, the people, which, ſay the Doctors, know not the Law, and are accurſed, and thoſe that dwelt in Idumæa, Tyre, and Sidon, (ſee *c.*12.15. compared with *Mar.*3.8.) and of Galilee, ſo deſpiſed by the Phariſees, that they ſaid proverbially, no good thing comes out from thence, (and beſides them, the Publicans and Sinners) they carry all away, and proportionably are called here βιασταὶ, violent perſons; and the Goſpel, which primarily, and (as 'twas by them conceived) legally belonged not to them (and therefore 'tis one of the Phariſees arguments againſt Chriſt's being the Meſſias, Have any of the Rulers or Phariſees believed on him? but theſe people, &c. and another, that he eat with Publicans and Sinners) is now wholly incloſed and engroſſed by them. That this is the meaning of the verſe, will appear by what follows, where 'tis ſaid over again in other expreſſions. Parallel to v. 11. (where the office of John is extolled) is v. 13, 14. which diſcriminates him from the Law and the Prophets, that is, all that went before him, and points him out as the famous Ἠλίας ὁ μέλλων, Elias that was to come, and parallel to this twelfth verſe, (which, I ſay, contains the Doctors and Rulers contemning, and the multitudes, and publicans, and peoples receiving the Goſpel) is *v.*15,16,17, 18,19,20,21,22,23, 24. But that which will make this moſt manifeſt, is, that Luke 7. (where the ſtory of the Baptiſt's ſending to Chriſt, and Chriſt's teſtimony of him, and the parable here immediately following of piping and mourning is ſet down) in the very place of the words of this verſe (which are not there repeated by him) he ſets down theſe, καὶ πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ἀκούσας καὶ οἱ τελῶναι ἐδικαίωσαν τὸν Θεὸν, &c. And all the people, (that is, the common ſort) and the publicans juſtified God, having been (or in that they were) baptiſed with the baptiſm of John, but the Phariſees and the Lawyers, that is, the chief men, thoſe of the Sanhedrim or Conſiſtories, the Rulers, or men in authority among them, rejected the counſel of God toward themſelves, having not been (or, in that they were not) baptized of him. And if it be objected that many of the Phariſees and Sadduces came to his baptiſm, *Mat.*3.7. the anſwer is clear, that by Phariſees, &c. there are meant ſome of the people that were of thoſe ſects, and by the Baptiſts wondring, and asking who had forewarned them to flee, &c.'tis clear, that the reſt of them, the greateſt and moſt conſiderable for number or quality did not come; and as clear it is, that thoſe were the men that ſaid of the Baptiſt, he had a devil, v.18. of this chapter, becauſe thoſe were they, that called Chriſt glutton, and wine-drinker, a friend of publicans and ſinners; and therefore when S. Luke repeats the words of this verſe (out of the place) *c.*16.16. it is πᾶς βιάζεται, every one, that is, the meaneſt, not the chief of the Jews, and not only Jews, but Publicans, &c.) forceth into it, robs the Rulers and Doctors of it, and thoſe words are there ſaid to be uſed by Chriſt, directly in reply to the Phariſees, who mocked and rejected his doctrine, *v.*14.

g. Παιδάρια ἐναγόμενα.

V.16. Children] It was the cuſtom of children among the Jews in their ſports to imitate what they ſaw done by others upon greater occaſions; and particularly the cuſtoms in Feſtivities, wherein the Muſician beginning a tune on his inſtrument, the company danced to his pipe; and ſo likewiſe the cuſtoms in Funerals, wherein ſome old women beginning the mournful ſong (as the præficæ among the Latines) the reſt followed lamenting and beating the Breaſts, Alas my Brother! ah his glory! &c. (of this cuſtom in Funerals, ſee note on *c.*9. h.) Theſe did the children act and perſonate in the ſtreets in play, and when one had begun to act the Muſicians part, or another the old womans part, and the reſt did not follow him in theirs, then was the occaſion of this ſpeech which is here mentioned, We have piped, &c.

h. Δικαιωθῆναι

V.19. Juſtified] The Scripture notion of the word ἐδικαιώθη (as of the Hebrew צדקת and the Syriack אודרקת Ezdadkat, which are here uſed) is known and vulgar, juſtified, approved. And if that be here received, then the καὶ and δὲ the ordinary Copulatives, which are uſed both here, and Luke 7.35. muſt either be rendred but as thoſe Copulatives, eſpecially the Hebrew ו ſometimes are, or elſe this other importance and connexion with the antecedents they may have. The men of this age, that is, the Rulers, and Phariſees, and Doctors, which reject the counſel of God toward them, that is, God's wiſe and various methods of reducing them, Luke 7.30. do quarrel and complain, and except againſt all that is done, either by John or Chriſt, v. 16, 17, 18. and by doing ſo, bear a teſtimony that this is the true wiſdom of the Father, which according to predictions was to be refuſed by all the great ones, and approved and entertained only by the meaner ſort, the Publicans and the people, which in this part of the hiſtory, are by S. Luke ſaid to have juſtified God, Luke 7.29. Πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ἀκούσας καὶ οἱ τελῶναι ἐδικαίωσαν τὸν Θεὸν, All the people that heard, and the publicans, juſtified God. And then the υἱοὶ σοφίας, children of wiſdom, here are thoſe that receive it, that pretending leaſt to the wiſdom of the world, have yet humility enough to receive this true wiſdom which comes from above, when 'tis offered to them. And all theſe, as St. Luke reads, *v.*35. do approve or juſtify this wiſdom, this counſel, theſe moſt gracious & wiſe proceedings of God toward them. This rendring of the place is ſure moſt agreeable to the Scripture-ſtile, and acceptation of δικαιῶν, and alſo with the ordinary rendring of καὶ, (not but, but) and, and therefore is to be preferred as the cleareſt interpretation. Yet if the uſe of δικαιῶν among ancient Greek authors ſhould be conſider'd, another rendring there might be, which would be competible with the καὶ and, as that ordinarily ſignifies, and agreeable to the context alſo. Phavorinus and Suidas, two learned Grammarians, render δικαιῶ καταδικάζω, to condemn, and δικαίωσις, κατάκρισις, condemnation; and ſo Thucydides uſes it, *l.*3. ὑμᾶς αὐτοὺς μᾶλλον δικαιώσετε, you ſhall rather condemn your ſelves; and ſo the Greek Scholiaſt there underſtands it, and explains it by δικαίως καθ' ὑμῶν ἀποδείξετε ὅτι τυραννικῶς ἄρχετε, you ſhall demonſtrate againſt your ſelves that you reign tyrannouſly, i.e. you ſhall condemn your ſelves. So again, l.8. p.499. τῶν λεγομένων ὅτε ζήτησις ὅτε δικαίωσις ἐγίνετο, where the Scholiaſt ſaith, δικαίωσις ἀντὶ τοῦ

i. Υἱοὶ σοφίας

τῆ κόλασις ἢ εἰς δίκλω ἀπαγωγὴ, ὅτοι κρίσις, it is taken for punishing, impleading, judging. So in Hesychius, Δικωσῶσι, κολάσαι, to punish, (as the judge doth when he gives sentence of punishment) and so Harpocration observes it to signify oft in Thucydides, Ὁ μὲν ὅτοι Θουκυδίδης πολλάκις τ δικαίωσιν ὅλη τ κολάσεως τάτ]ει, and so Julius Pollux too, and so Synesius uses it, Ep. 44. μείζων ὄν]ω ἀγαθῶ τὸ μὴ ἁμαρτεῖν, δεύτερον ἀγαθὸν τὸ δικαιωθῆναι, The greatest good is, that men offend not, the second, that they be punished who do; which appears to be the sense by the πίσις and πιναὶ that preceded. Thus do our Northern and Scotch-men use the phrase to be justified for to be hanged, and our Common law forms of Commission to the Judges, are Præcipimus tibi, quod tu justicies, We command thee that thou shalt justify, in condemning, as well as absolving. Should this notion of the word be here thought appliable, then the sense would be this, At the coming and preaching of Christ, and that wisdom from above, to the Jews, the learned, and chief and wisest among them, those of the Sanhedrim (which by an Hebraism may be called the children of wisdom) either wise men, or those which of all others pretended most to divine knowledge, that is, the Pharisees, Doctors of the Law, &c. Luke 7.30. rejected Christ, and all the ways of preaching the Gospel to them, and this they did universally, all, saith S. Luke, (not all the Jews, but) all the wise men, all the sons of wisdom, Luke 7.35. These, tho' in reason they should have acknowledged Christ before all others, he being wisdom it self, and they the great pretenders to divine wisdom, did yet prove the greatest enemies, opposers, exceptors, arguers, quarrellers against it, held out most impenitently, *v.*21. and which way soever the address was made to them, they had still exceptions against it, v. 18, 19. and at length (in the attick sense of the word δικαιῦν,) caused him to be condemned and put to death, executed the wisdom of the Father, Christ himself. But the former appears (by comparing it with S. Luke) to be the sense of it.

i. Ἅδης

V.23. Hell] Ἅδης doth not signify here the place of Hell, but a state of perishing or dissolution; and because this is the first place, wherein the word is used in this book, it will not be amiss more largely to clear the notion of it. Among profane writers it is clear, that the word signifies not the place of the damned, no nor any kind of place, either common to both, or proper to either bliss or woe, but only the state of the dead. Thus in * Cornutus, ἐν ᾅδῃ οἰκεῖν, is interpreted by ἐν ἀσαφεῖ κεῖσθαι, to be no body knows where, according to the definition of death in Job c.14.10. man giveth up the Ghost, and where is he? and agreeable to the Etymology of the word ᾅδης quasi ἀειδὴς, an invisible state, (and so in the Rhetors, * Severus Sophista, &c. 'tis generally called not Ἅδης, but Ἀΐδης.) And therefore, saith he, the meaning of that fable of Hades stealing Ceres's daughter, is the perishing of Corn in the earth, ὁ μυθολόγ ὅτι χρόνον τινὰ τῶν σπερμάτων κατὰ γῆς ἀφανισμὸς, the disappearing of the seeds in the earth for some time, which word ἀφανισμὸς (directly the same with ᾅδης) is taken absolutely for death, 2 *Mac.*5.12. and is the periphrasis of death in the Psalmist, before I go hence, and be no more seen, and so *Heb.*8.13. that which grows old, is ἐγγὺς ἀφανισμοῦ, near to disappearing, or death. So * Again Ἅδης is called πλούτων, the rich man, ὅτι μηδέν ἐστιν, ὃ μὴ τελαιῶσεις αὐτὸν καταλήψεται, ἢ αὐτῆ κτῆμα γίνεται, because there is nothing which doth not at last come to it, and become its possession. The same is meant by him when he defines Ἅδης the last air that receives souls, not referring to any particular place, but that state of the dead which the Atheist, *Wisd.*2. calls the vanishing as the soft air. So Heraclitus π. ἀπ. speaking of the helmet of Hades, which makes men invisible, saith it is τὸ τέλ, the end, or death of every man, εἰς ὃ ἀπελθὼν τελαιωτικῶς ἀοράτ γίνεται, to which he that comes becomes invisible. Thus in those which are called the Sibyllin Oracles, (if they were not written by a Christian) upon occasion of this close, ——τὸν δ' αὖ ὑπεδέξατο Ἅδης, Hades received them, this Account is given of Ἅδης,

Ἅδλω δ' αὖτε κάλεσσεν, ἐπεὶ πρῶτ μόλεν Ἀδαμ Γευσάμεν Θανάτε, γαῖαδέ μιν ἀμφεκάλυ-μ.
Τὔνεκα δὴ πάντες οἱ ὀπιχθόνιοι γεγαῶτες
Ἀνέρες εἰν Ἀΐδαο δόμοις ἶέναι καλέονται.

Where 'tis clear, that Hades is the common state of the dead, when their bodies are laid in the Grave, the condition not only of the wicked, nor only of the godly, but of the πάντες ὀπιχθόνιοι all mortal men, who, as there follows, εἰν αἴδαο μολοῦντες πιμὴν ἔχηκαν, when they were gone to Hades were honoured by us. So in Philemon's Iambicks,

Καὶ γὰρ καθ' ᾅδλω δύο τρίβους νομίζομεν,
Μίαν δικαίαν, χαλεπὴν ἀσεβῶν ὁδόν.

There are two paths in Hades, one of the righteous, the other of the wicked. In the Scriptures of the Old Testament, the word is used accordingly of Jacob, *Gen.*37. 35. καταβήσομαι πρὸς τὸν υἱόν μου πενθῶν εἰς ᾅδλω, I will go (not to the grave, for he thought his son devoured by wild beasts, but) to Hades, that is, out of this life, to my son mourning. So *Esth.*13.7. εἰς τ ᾅδλω καταθήσεσθαι signifies to die, v. 6. to be killed; for that Heathen King cannot be thought to dream of Hell. So Bar. 3. 19. καθίσαντες εἰς ᾅδλω is joined with ἠφανίσθησαν and so signifies death, being there set to note the vanishing transitory estate of men, who die, and are succeeded by others. So 3 Mac. πλησίον ᾅδλω, μᾶλλον δ ἐπ' αὐτῆ σεσηκότες, They that are near Hades, or the state of the dead, or rather are come at it. So when Acts 2.27. out of Ps. 19. 10. we read of the soul in Ἅδης, as the soul signifies the living soul, so Hades must be the state of the dead, the state of separation of soul from body. So Apoc. 6. 8. after the mention of death is added, and Hades, that is, continuance in death, of both which together 'tis accordingly said, that they had power to kill with sword, &c. and c. 20. 14. Death and Hades are cast into the lake of fire, and *v.*13. gave up those that were in it, which sure cannot be said of Hell, from whence there is no release. So Eccl. 48. 5. he that raiseth the dead from death and Hades, sure raises not out of Hell, and so in the song of the three children, God's delivering them from Hades. And when Eleazar, 2 Mac. 6. 23. desires his friend to bring him on his way to Hades. So 2 *Esr.*4.41. In Hades the chambers of souls are like to the womb of a woman, desiring to pour back the souls that are departed from the bodies, to their wonted abodes again, as a woman that is come to her time desires to bring forth. Thus every where doth this word signify a state of death, destruction (denotes no place either of souls, heaven, or Hell, or of bodies, the grave, but) the ἀφανισμὸς invisible state. That the Writers of the Church had this notion of the phrase in the Creed, may be discerned (among many) by this place in Theophylact in *Rom.*4.25. Ἐπεὶ ὁ ἁμαρτίας οὐκ ἔχων ἀπέθανεν, εἰκὸς κ ἀνίστη· πῶς γὰρ ἔμελλεν ἐγκρατῶς ἔχεσθαι τ Ἅδ ὁ ἀναμάρτη ; Seeing he dyed, having no sin, it was reason he should rise again; for how should he that was sinless be detained by Hades? where being detained by Hades is by the opposition to rising again, explained to be no more than continuing in the state of the dead: So the same Theophylact on Eph. 4. 9. interprets the lower parts of the earth to be Hades, and that in the same notion, as when Jacob saith, You will bring my old age with sorrow εἰς Ἅδλω to Hades, (not to hell certainly) and as it is all one with εἰς λακκὸν to the pit, in David. Thus the Arabians use Al-Barzach for that space or state which is betwixt this life and the next, the time of Death and the Resurrection, and every one that dies is said to go Al-Barzach. And as in other places it is peculiarly the state of separation of soul and body, belonging to particular men: so in this place being spoken of a city, 'tis a state of destruction and desolation, to which that may as properly be said to descend (being a state of humiliation, or bringing low) as if it were a place to which a local motion belonged. For so of Jacob it is said (and in the other premised examples) καταβήσομαι εἰς ᾅδλω, I shall go down to that state of death, which therefore probably is the right reading here (according to the ancient Greek and Latine MS. καταβήσῃ, and not καταβεβήκοσιν) humbled to this low estate, as before lifted up to heaven. k. Πάντα V. 27. All things] The word πάντα all things here, though it may possibly signify either all power given to Christ, or all things belonging to his office, yet by the Context it rather seems to belong to persons than things, for of those he peculiarly speaks under the title of babes, v. 25. those single-hearted plain persons that believed on him (for whom he there thanks God, as here he saith, they are given unto him.) And the Neuter gender will be no hindrance to this, being ordinarily used in this manner for persons: see c. 18. 11. where that that is lost, is these little ones, v. 14. and whatsoever, v. 18. is whomsoever, and so c. 16. 9. So 1 John 5. 4. Apoc. 21. 27. Heb. 7. 7. 19. and c. 12. 13.

1. χρηστὸς e i V. 3. Easy] the word χρηστὸς signifies ἀγαθὸς good, and something more, good in the highest degree, and is rendred gratious, 1 Pet. 2. 3. Κύριος χρηστὸς, the Lord is gracious, the Septuagint render it, Ps. 34. 8. O taste and see, ὅτι χρηστὸς ὁ Κύριος, that the Lord is gracious, and so τὸ χρηστὸν Θεοῦ, Rom. 2. 4. the bounty of God, that which is immediately before, ὁ πλοῦτος χρηστότητος, the riches of his bounty; and proportionably here Christ's yoke, the precepts which he lays on his Disciple (being of all other the very things most agreeable to our humane, rational nature, and which by them, which did not think men bound to do them, have yet been counted most excellent in them that did practice them, and which, if the one custom of sin did not make us incompetent judges of it, would appear to us the fittest for our turns, the most pleasurable, profitable, and honourable of all things) are here said by him to be, not only a good, but a gracious, benign, bounteous yoke, that any man is the better for taking on him, and if he considered it well, he would put it on of his own accord, prefer it before liberty, or any other service.

CHAP. XII.

Paraphrase.

1. On the morning of the Sabbath day, before the time of the publick service, thro' corn-fields, and his disciples, being hungry, pluckt the ears of corn, thereby to break their fast, which among the Jews was not customary, till the publick offices were past, (see Note a.)

1. AT that time Jesus went [on the sabbath day thorow the corn, and his disciples were an hungred, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat.]

2. Thereupon the Pharisees taking notice of it,

2. But when the Pharisees saw it, they] said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the Sabbath day.

3,4 Remember the story of David, 1 Sam. 21. 6. and by that you will discern that the case of hunger was excepted and reserved in the law concerning holy days, or things; for there David and his company being pressed with hunger were by the Priests allowed to eat the shew-bread, which being consecrated did particularly belong to the Priest, Lev. 24. 9. yet might it seems, (by the intention of the Law-giver) be by him imployed in any charitable use, for the relief of others, as long as there were more ready consecrated for the sacred uses, 1 Sam. 21. 5. And accordingly, tho' the Priest pretended not to dispense with any (so much as ritual) part of God's Law (as appears by the exception interposed by him, v. 4. if the young men have kept themselves from women) yet he doubts not to give them freely of the consecrated bread; thereby assuring us, that it was as lawful for the Priest to give some part of the consecrated bread to relieve the hungry, as to eat it himself, and so that in the Law of holy things not being touched by any but the Priests, the cause of hunger or distress was reserved, in which it might by the Priest be lawfully given to others.

3. But he said unto them, [Have ye not read what David did when he was an hungred, and they that were with him?

4. How he entred into the house of God, and did eat the shew-bread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, but only for the priests?]

5. In the Mosaical Law of the Jews Religion (see note on Mat. 5. g.) how when it is for the service of the Temple, the Priests use the Sabbath, as another day, do works about the Sacrifice on that day, which, were it not for that end, were unlawful.

5. Or have ye not read [in the law, how that on the sabbath days the priests in the temple profane the sabbath and are blameless?]

6. And therefore if the Temple, and the necessities of the service thereof might give such a dispensation to the law of the Sabbath, much more Christ, (who is greater than the Temple) and the necessity of nature, and the service due to Christ from his Disciples.

6. But I say unto you, that in this place is one greater than the Temple.]

7. And if you were not merciless men, and so unlike that which God likes best in men, if you did consider that which is so visible in all God's word and methods, that God likes mercy towards them that stand in need of it, better than the offering to him the richest Sacrifices, you would rather have made a fair construction of this action, which their necessity renders justifiable, and would be so acknowledged by any that had humanity or bowels in them, than, under pretence of zeal to the Sabbath, thus fally charge the innocent.

7. But if ye had known what this meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless.]

a. 8. As for the ceremonial observance of the Sabbath, which you think is broken in this, God never required it in cases of this nature of necessity, and the like. And therefore the son of man, that is, Christ, which is here, and who as he is greater than the Temple, v. 6. so is the Lord also of the Sabbath, and for whose service that is done, which is here done by the Disciples, may certainly now with all reason permit them to prefer their health or life before the exact performance of the ceremonies or rest of that day.

8. For the a son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day.]

10. Is healing and doing cures on the sabbath day, one of those permitted things, of which thou speakest? if he should say it were, this they knew would (tho' the former would not) bear an accusation in their Sanhedrim, being by them at that time counted utterly unlawful.

9. And when he was departed thence, he went into their synagogue.

10. And behold there was a man, which had his hand withered, and they asked him, saying, [Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath days, that they might accuse him.]

11. In the smallest matter, if it be but of one sheep, the practice is ordinary among you now, according to your present interpretations of the Law, if that fall into a ditch, to drag it out, to save it from drowning on the Sabbath day.

11. And he said unto them, [What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?]

12. 'Tis therefore in all reason lawful to work a cure on a man, to perform a charitable deed of saving life, &c.

12. How much then is a man better than a sheep? [wherefore it is lawful to do well] on the sabbath days.

13. Then saith he unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand: and he stretched it forth, and it was restored whole, like as the other.

14. The Pharisees joining with the Herodians) either prefects of Herod the Tetrarch, or a sect called by that name. See note on c. 16. a. and c. 22. b.) went and debated in council, and resolved to charge a capital crime against him, and so to have him put to death.

14. Then [the Pharisees went out and held a counsel against him, how they might destroy him.]

15. To avoid this danger (as c. 4. 12.) he went with his Disciples to a private place, the sea of Galilee, Mark 3. 7. yet great multitudes from Galilee and from Judea, and from Jerusalem, and from Idumæa, and beyond Jordan, and of those that dwelt about Tyre and Sidon, Mark 3. 8. and of all quarters round about that place.

15. But when Jesus knew it, [he withdrew himself from thence: and great multitudes] followed him, and he healed them all,

16. And

16. And charged them that they ſhould not make him known.] 16. And he commanded that this ſhould not be celebrated, proclaimed abroad, that no acclamations ſhould be uſed toward him, deſiring quietly to diſcharge his office of doing good, and healing, without more notice taken of him, and conſequently more conteſtations with the Phariſees, who, he ſaw, would not be wrought on by him, but deſired only matters of accuſation, and advantage againſt him, v. 10. even to put him to death, v. 14.

26. And if Satan caſt out Satan, he is divided againſt himſelf, how ſhall then his kingdom ſtand? 26. And Satans caſting out devils, which are about his buſineſs, (poſſeſſing thoſe whom he would have poſſeſt) would be ſuch a civil diſſention and breach as this. This is an argument againſt you. And whoſoever [h] ſpeaketh a word againſt the ſon of man, [i] it ſhall be forgiven him; but whoſoever ſpeaketh againſt the Holy Ghoſt, it [k] ſhall not be forgiven him, neither [l] in this * world, nor in the world to come. 32. Whoſoever ſhall ſay this againſt the ſon of man, that is, ſhall not receive me, as I am the ſon of man, or before I am ſufficiently manifeſted by the Spirit or Finger of God to be the Meſſias, he may by want of light, or manifeſtation, be excuſable, and by a general repentance for all his ſins of ignorance, may receive pardon. But he that ſhall reſiſt the Spirit of God, manifeſtly ſhining in theſe miracles wrought by Chriſt, to the aſtoniſhment and conviction of all but Phariſees, v. 23. and ſhall impute thoſe miracles to the devil, which, by what hath been ſaid, ſufficiently appear to be the works of God's own power, if he repent not particularly of this, and come in, and acknowledge Chriſt, thus revealed and manifeſted to him, there is no pardon or mercy to be had for him, neither in this age, nor at the coming of the Meſſias (by him ſuppoſed yet future) or, neither in this life, where he ſhall be puniſhed with ſpiritual death, God's withdrawing of grace, nor in the other, where eternal death expects him.

* age, nor in that to come

33. Either make the tree good, and his fruit good, or elſe make the tree corrupt and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit.] 33. For indeed they that do this, that impute the miracles, which by the Power and Finger and Spirit of God are wrought by me, unto the devil, muſt, according to the old known rule of judging the tree by the fruit, be underſtood to affirm the ſame ill of him (that is, the Holy Ghoſt) whoſe productions theſe miracles are, as they affirm of the miracles themſelves, by pronouncing theſe to be diabolical, they do by implication pronounce the Holy Ghoſt to be an infernal Spirit, and ſo God to be the Devil, which is the higheſt and the moſt irremiſſible blaſphemy imaginable.

34. Ye are indeed a wretched ſort of people, your language ſpeaks you what you are, viz. that your viperous hearts will not permit you to ſpeak any otherwiſe, (as [how can you] is uſed John 5. 44. and of Chriſt, he could not do miracles Mark 6. 5. that is, their unbelief was a lett and impediment to him) For as your hearts are, even ſo by conſequence will your language be, and therefore from ſo viperous a brood no better can be expected.

34. O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, ſpeak good things? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth ſpeaketh.]

35. Every man entertaineth his gueſts with ſuch proviſions as he hath: And juſt ſo, mens words are teſtifications of what is in their hearts.

35. A good man out of the good treaſure of the heart bringeth forth good things, and an evil man out of the evil treaſure bringeth forth evil things.]

m. 36. But deceive not your ſelves, as if words were too light to be accounted for, believe it, words, ſuch they may be, falſe, blaſphemous words, ſuch as yours are now, v.32. and ſuch as flow out of the evil treaſure of the heart, v.35. ſhall be moſt ſadly accounted for in the day of judgment.

36. But I ſay unto you, That every m * idle word that men ſhall ſpeak, they ſhall give account thereof in the day of judgment.] * vain, falſe

37. For words as well as actions are accounted of by God in conferring either rewards or puniſhments upon us.

37. For by thy words thou ſhalt be juſtified, and by thy words thou ſhalt be condemned.]

38. All that take upon them to be ſent from God, and expect to be received, bring ſome ſigns with them, miracles, or ſomewhat of that nature, to give them authority, we now deſire ſome ſuch from you.

38. Then certain of the Scribes and of the Phariſees anſwered, ſaying, Maſter, [we would ſee a ſign from thee.]

39. 'Tis the ſign of a wicked infidel people to be always unſatisfied, after ſo many miracles and manifeſtations what you have already; for ſuch as you there is but one ſign, or token, or miracle behind, that of my reſurrection from death, after ye have crucified me, whereby you ſhall have my office aſſerted, after I am gone, and find Jonas's drowning and wonderful reſtoring from the whales belly, to have been a type of me, and that a moſt ſignificant one.

39. But he anſwered and ſaid to them, [An evil and adulterous generation ſeeketh after a ſign, and there ſhall no ſign be given to it, but the ſign of the prophet Jonas.] (ſufficient to prove me the Meſſias) ſtill to be requiring more, without ever being moved with

n. 40. For as Jonas lay buried in the whales belly three days, ſo ſhall Chriſt continue in the grave part of three natural days, or ſhall die in one day, and riſe again the third day after it.

40. For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whales belly, ſo ſhall the ſon of man be n three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.]

41. And they that are not convinced and brought to repentance by my reſurrection, and the preaching of my Apoſtles, which ſhall be conſequent to that, their ſin and condemnation ſhall be much greater than that of the Ninivites was, for upon Jonas's recovery from the whales belly, and coming to preach to them, they repented, Jon. 3. whereas the reſurrection of Chriſt, and miſſion of the Spirit, and preaching of the Apoſtles over all Judæa after that, is a far greater way of conviction, than that recovery and preaching of Jonas.

41. The men of Niniveh ſhall riſe up in judgment with this generation, and ſhall condemn it, becauſe they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold * a greater than Jonas is here.] * ſomewhat more πλεῖον

42. For certainly here is that which is infinitely more than all that wiſdom of Solomon, manifeſtations of God infinitely more diſcernible than ever Solomons wiſdom was, which yet was ſo talked of that it brought in foreign Princes from afar as the news of it.

42. The Queen of the ſouth ſhall riſe up in the judgment with this generation, and ſhall condemn it; [for ſhe came from the uttermoſt parts of the earth to hear the wiſdom of Solomon, and behold, * a greater than Solomon is here.] * ſomewhat more πλεῖον 43,44,45. But to you that having received ſuch means of converting and bringing you to repentance, ſuch miracles, and particularly caſting out devils, v.22. (which occaſioned all the diſcourſe ſince, and to which this is annext, Luke 11. 24.) have not yet walked worthy of them, I ſhall now apply this Parable, v. 43, 44, 45. the meaning of which is, That this nation (out of which I came to caſt out the power of Satan, and to bind the ſtrong man, and take from him his uſurped poſſeſſion and goods for their proper Maſters uſe) do appear ſo far to reſiſt all my methods, as to blaſpheme that holy Spirit, by whom I work v. 24. and then what is to be looked for, but that the Devils ejected (either by your own children, or) by me in my Fathers name, either out of any ſingle perſon, or nation, finding no where elſe in the heathen world, ſuch pleaſant deſirable habitations of reſt and contentment, as here among you (as a well watered ſeat is the moſt pleaſant) ſhall try their utmoſt to re-enter here, and when they come to do ſo, finding that Chriſt hath not gotten any admiſſion, they ſhall with many more worſe than themſelves, make entrance, and take a durable poſſeſſion again, and ſo the ſtate of this people is like to be more deſperately damnable, than before I came among you it was, or than, if Satan had never been caſt out, it would have been.

43. When the unclean ſpirit is gone out of a man he walketh through dry places, ſeeking reſt and findeth none.

44. Then he ſaith, I will return into my houſe, from whence I came out. And when he is come, he findeth it empty, ſwept and garniſhed.

45. Then goeth he, and taketh with himſelf ſeven other ſpirits, more wicked than himſelf, and they enter in and dwell there, and the laſt ſtate of that man is worſe than the firſt. Even ſo ſhall it be alſo to this wicked generation.]

46,47. Whilſt he was on this ſevere diſcourſe ſo ungrateful to many of his auditors, it happened that his mother, the bleſſed virgin Mary, and ſome others of his neareſt kindred were waiting without to ſpeak with him, and upon this occaſion one of his auditors, either to try what he would ſay, or perhaps to interrupt him in his ſpeech, told him that his mother and kindred waited for him.

46. While he yet talked to the people, behold, his mother and his brethren ſtood without, deſiring to ſpeak with him.

47. Then one ſaid unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren ſtand without deſiring to ſpeak with thee.]

48,49. To which he preſently replied (to ſignifie this office of his, to declare the will of his Father, to be dearer to him than all relations, and withal to ſhew, that obedience to God was the thing above all others moſt welcome to him) in theſe words, Who is my mother, &c. that is, Ye are deceived in me, bare natural or ſecular reſpects ſway not with me in compariſon to the gaining of proſelytes to heaven.

48. But he anſwered and ſaid unto him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren?

49. And he ſtretched forth his hand toward his diſciples, and ſaid, Behold my mother, and my brethren?

50. Becomes thereby the child of God, and conſequently by that means the brother and ſiſter of Chriſt, and beſides, Chriſt is alſo formed in him, and ſo is the mother of Chriſt, anſwerable to the Virgin, in whom Chriſt was conceived. And therefore I do moſt juſtly ſet that valuation on him, and in that reſpect more tend the teaching of ſuch, and converſing with them, than the paying a civility to thoſe, who are in carnal reſpects neareſt to me.

50. For whoſoever ſhall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the ſame [is my brother, and ſiſter, and mother.]

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XII.

a. Τὸς ἀνθρώπε

V.8. Son of man.] That by the phraſe the ſon of man in this place is not meant Man in common, (as ſome very learned men have thought) but peculiarly Chriſt, is more than probable, not only by theſe words, a greater than the temple is here (aſſuming a greater liberty for his Diſciples from his preſence, and the neceſſity of their ſervice to him, than belonged to other ordinary Jews in all caſes, or than the Temple could give any ſervants of the Temple) but alſo by the uſe of this phraſe of ſon of man for Chriſt in Daniel, c. 7. 13. and and in every other of the 88 repetitions of it in the New Teſtament. And although by the words, as they are in S. Mark, c. 2. 27. the contrary ſeemeth not improbable, where the ground of Chriſts affirming that the Son of man is Lord of the Sabbath, is becauſe the Sabbath is made for man, as if the Sabbaths being made for man did conclude him Lord of it, and conſequently that he was Lord, for whom it was made, that is, Man in common, and not Chriſt; yet to this the anſwer is ready, that the caſe of which Chriſt there and here ſpeaks, being for the neceſſary uſe, and good of man, plucking and eating for neceſſity and preſervation of life, That may be very fitly referred to by Chriſt, when he ſaith, The Sabbath is made for man, ſo that the phraſe for man ſhall ſignifie for the good of man, and import that the Sabbath being deſigned for the good of man, could not reaſonably be conceived to oblige him to any thing ſo contrary to that, as is ſtarving, or debilitating of nature (ſo as to render him unable to diſcharge the duty of the calling.) And from thence that former concluſion of Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς τοῦ σαββάτου mans being Lord of the Sabbath will not follow, becauſe man is not Lord, or free diſpoſer of all thoſe things that are for his good, (for even all the moral Precepts of God alſo are for mans good, and the King is ſaid to be for thy good; yet is not he ſubjected to thee, as to a Lord, no more than the moral Law can be diſpens'd with by thee). The only proper concluſion from this notion of the Sabbaths being made for man will be this, that he that made a poſitive law, did not oblige to the obſervance of it in ſuch caſes which are for the good of man, as works of mercy (which being part of the moral eternal Law, he prefers before the performance of theſe poſitive Laws, which reſpect his own ſervice, *v.*7.) and ſo that the Law of the Sabbath at the very making of it was not deſigned to have force in it to bind men to ſtrict reſt in ſome caſes, as thoſe *v.*5. of the neceſſary ſervices of the Temple (and what is done here was for the ſervice of Chriſt, who is greater than the Temple.) And ſo ſtill Chriſt, that ſon of man, who comes to do good in the world, is in any reaſon ſo Lord of the Sabbath, as that he may uſe it, which way he will, for the uſe and good of man, and thus God did always appoint it to be uſed ſo as the reſt might be broken, when any moral good required it. And ſo likewiſe the ſtrict abſtaining from eating till the ſixth hour, or till their ſolemn ſervice was performed, which is ſaid to have been obſerved among the Jews upon their Sabbaths, at leaſt their great days, and that cuſtom referred to by S. Peter, Acts 2. 16. when, it being the day of Pentecoſt, as this alſo was (ſee Note on Luke 6. a.) he proves that they were not drunk, as they were accuſed, becauſe it was yet but the third, not the ſixth hour of the day, before which they knew they did not uſe to eat or drink; and this ſeems to be the quarrel that the Jews had here to the Diſciples, that, on the Sabbath day, they eat before the time, not that the reſt was broken by rubbing the ears of corn. Of this therefore ſaith Chriſt, that were it never ſo much a part of the Law, or cuſtom of the Sabbath, yet in caſe of neceſſity, which implied charity, it was not of force; and thus the Jews, to whom Chriſt ſpake, underſtood his ſpeech, as appears by the queſtion that next follows *v.*10. whether 'twere lawful to heal on the ſabbath day, that is, whether in this caſe (of curing) God had permitted working, or doing any thing on the Sabbath, which Chriſt anſwers diſtinctly, that the life or ſafety of one ſheep (according to their own doctrines) much more of a man, is to be preferred before the obſervation of the Sabbath. One other ſenſe is affixed to theſe words, as by this phraſe of the Son of man's being Lord of the Sabbath, Chriſt's powers of aboliſhing the Sabbath were here aſſerted by him. But to this I conceive, this place doth not belong. For although there is little reaſon to doubt of Chriſt's having this power, yet if Chriſt had ſpoken upon that head, of his power to aboliſh the Sabbath, then 1. he would not have defended his action by that which was already (while the Law was in force) continually practiſed among them, which of you having, &c. And 2. if he had once aſſerted the abolition of the Sabbath, the Phariſees would have needed no other leſſer argument, nor conſequently have asked that other queſtion, to get matter of accuſation againſt him, *v.*10. To which again Chriſt's anſwer is the ſame, as to the former: For to both his only anſwer is, that God prefers acts of charity before the outward ſtrictneſs of Sabbatick reſt. To that belongs his ſaying, John 5. 17. that his Father worketh till now, and he worketh, that is, that God the Father at the creating of the world did not ſo reſt on the ſeventh or Sabbath day, but that he worketh ever ſince in the acts of conſervation and providence, as he did then in creating on the ſix days, and accordingly in imitation of him, *v.*19. Chriſt may fitly do the like, do cures, that is preſerve, &c. As for any diſtinct Text in the Goſpel for Chriſts abrogating the Judaical Sabbath, there is no more reaſon to expect it, than the like for Sacrifices, or Circumciſion, or the Judaical Prieſthood, the ſubſtance being come, and the Temple, and that people deſtroyed, the ceremonies or ſhadows, Col. 2. 16, 17. as far as they were ſuch, ceaſed of their own accord, and no farther are they now abrogated, having never been obligatory to any but that people.

V. 18. Choſen.] Ἀιρετίζω ſignifies ſo to prefer before all others, as to chuſe, or aſſume to any office, προσλαμβάνω, or αἴρω πρὸς ἐμαυτὸν, I take to my ſelf, in Phavorinus; but in Iſaiah, whence this verſe is cited, 'tis ἀνθιλήφομαι to ſuſtain, which ſeems rather to belong to it, that of choſen being after mentioned there, and rendred ἀγαπητὸς beloved here. b. Ἀιρετίζω

Ib. Judgment] The word κρίσις in this place ſeems to ſignifie the whole Goſpel, the true religion, the true way of worſhipping and obeying God, the whole will of God under the Goſpel, and either is to be rendred Truth out of the Hebrew משפט Iſa. 42. 1. (whence theſe verſes are taken) which Prov. 8. 20. is rendred ἀλήθεια truth, and ſignifies ſo, when 'tis rendred κρίσις judgment, Jer. 5. 4. Pſal. 37. 6. and Job 3. and κρίμα, Iſa. 32. 26.) and oftentimes δικαιοσύνη righteouſneſs, which is all one with ἀλήθεια truth: and ſo in Heſychius κρίσιν ἀλήθειαν (not, as 'tis falſe printed, ἀκολουθίαν) judgment ſignifies truth: or elſe being rendred judgment, it is to be taken in the ſame ſenſe as if 'twere rendred truth, as indeed κρίσις judgment in the title of the prime Chriſtian virtue, Righteouſneſs, or equity in judging, Mat. 23. 23. And either way it here ſignifies the Goſpel, and ſo v. 20. alſo. c. Κρίσις

V. 20. A bruiſed reed] The reed is the weak, infirm man, the bruiſing of that reed, is his falling into ſin, and the flax on fire that is burning in the illychnium, or lamp (ſee Iſa. 43. 17. Jud. 15. 14. 16. 9.) is the man again, the ſmoaking flax, (τυφόμενον) is when the flame is out, or burns darkly for want of oil, and yet there remains ſome fire in the flax, and that ſmokes, or ſhines dimly, inſtead of flaming; and anſwerable to that is the man, in whom grace is decayed, but yet not deſperately or irrecoverably gone out, ſome ſparks of good being ſtill left in him: and this perſon, in this eſtate, Chriſt is ſo far from deſtroying, or triumphing over, that he doth moſt tenderly cheriſh and labour to reſtore ſuch an one in the ſpirit of meekneſs, to a firm habit of Chriſtian practice again. This is Chriſt's practice at his coming into the world, as deſigning to plant (not the unſinning, legal, perfect, but) the ſincere, evangelical righteouſneſs through the world, which is the meaning of the phraſe that follows, until he bring forth (or, ſend forth) judgment into victory; the Hebrew Iſa. 42. 3. is, he ſhall bring forth, and the word until is taken out of v. 4. where the ſame ſenſe is repeated again, and judgment again ſignifies the Goſpel, that is, Chriſtian, Evangelical righteouſneſs (ſee Note c. and though εἰς νῖκος in the Old Teſtament ſignifies for ever, Lam. 5. 20. 2 Sam. 2. 26. Job 36. 7. Jer. 5. 3. Amos 1. 11. yet that is, when it renders לנצח which ſignifies both to victory, and to eternity, but here (ſeeming to be the Epitome or breviate of the following words, v. 4. he ſhall not fail nor be diſcouraged) it moſt probably ſignifies victoriouſly, and notes that the Goſpel ſhall be ſet up over the world, that he ſhall not fail, or be diſcourag'd, that is, either 1. the bruiſed d. Κάλαμος συντετριμμένος. Λίνος τυφόμενος. Εἰς νῖκος reed ſhall not fail, or be broken worſe than it is, nor the flax be diſcouraged or quenched; or elſe 2. the Meſſias ſhall not fail, &c. till he have ſet judgment on the earth, that is, till he have ſet up the profeſſion of the Goſpel in the world, among the Heathen, if the Jews will not receive it. By this rendring of it 'twill appear what is the meaning of לאמת in the Hebrew of Iſaiah, and εἰς ἀληθῆ (for ἀληθείαν) in the Septuagint; ſure, that κείσεις εἰς ἀληθείαν, judgment in truth ſhould be ſet for true judgment, and rendred ſo, he ſhall bring forth true judgment, and ſo 'twill remain, that εἰς νῖκος ſhall be the ſum of the following words, *v.*4. he ſhall not fail nor be diſcouraged, till he hath ſet judgment on the earth, and ſo the conſequents both in Iſaiah and here will be the ſame, There, and the Iſles ſhall wait for his law; here, and in his name ſhall the Gentiles truſt.

c. Ἰσχνὸν λέγει

Ib. Not break] It is the cuſtom of all writers, very frequent in the ſacred dialect, to uſe phraſes whereby they underſtand much more than they do expreſs. An example of it we have in this verſe out of the Prophet, where Chriſt's not breaking the bruiſed reed ſignifies his great mercy and kindneſs in repairing and reſtoring & curing the bruiſed weakling, and ſo his not quenching the ſmoaking flax, is his enlivening, quickning, inflaming that fire or ſpark of grace or goodneſs, which was almoſt quenched. So ἀργὸν ῥῆμα idle word, v.36. is much more than idle, vain, even blaſphemous ſpeeches. So *Eph.*5.11. where the Gentile foul abominations taken up by the Gnoſticks, are called ἄκαρπα ἔργα τῦ σκότους, unprofitable works of darkneſs, meaning ſurely not that they brought in no profit or advantage, but the greateſt danger and miſchief in the world. So ἄχρειος δοῦλος is a wicked and not only an unprofitable ſervant. So in Philoxenus's Gloſſary, Nequam ἄχρειος, and Nequitia ἀχρειότης, and ſo in Cyril's Greek Gloſſary: So in Heſiod, ἀχρεῖος ἀνὴρ an unprofitable man is he that neither underſtands himſelf nor heeds others, the moſt ſenſleſs, wretchleſs perſon: Of the ſame nature is illaudatus unpraiſed in Latine, of which ſee A. Gellius l. 2. c. 6. where he proves that word to ſignifie omnium peſſimum ac deterrimum, the worſt and baſeſt of all. And ſo *l.*7.*c.*11. he makes ἄκολαστον, ἄχρειον, ἄχρηστον, κακόηθες, μιαρὸν, riotous, intemperate, unprofitable, uſeleſs, ill-manner'd, deteſtable to be all one, the interpretation of the Latine Nequam, a wicked man, but litterally good for nothing. So ἄνομος which properly ſignifies without law, and ἀνομία a breach, or commiſſion, againſt the law, is oft ſet to ſignifie the higheſt degree of obdurate prophane ſinning, 2 Theſ. 2.8. being there ſpoken of Simon Magus the moſt blaſphemous Apoſtate. So though παραβαίνειν litterally ſignifies to tranſgreſs and may belong to the leaſt ſin, as being a variation from the ſtrict rule of the Law, yet παραβαίνων, he that tranſgreſſes, 2 *Joh.*9. and ſo παραβάτης tranſgreſſor (ſince the ſolemn title of Julian) ſignifies an Apoſtate. So 2 *Tim.*3.3. ἀφιλάγαθοι, thoſe which do not love the good is ſet to expreſs the moſt virulent haters of the orthodox pious Chriſtians. So 1 *Cor.*13.6. where 'tis ſet down as the character of the charitable man, ὁ χαίρει ἐπὶ τῇ ἀδικίᾳ, he rejoyceth not in iniquity, the meaning is, he is very much troubled and ſorrowful, ſo v. 5. ὁ φυσιῦται, the charitable man is not puft up, ſignifies much more than ſo, that he is extreamly humble. So in the third Commandment of the Decalogue, where 'tis ſaid of the perjured perſon, that the Lord will not hold him guiltleſs, that ſure ſignifies, that God will look on him, and deal with him as a moſt guilty puniſhable perſon. And ſo 1 *Pet.*1.18. ματαία ἀναστροφὴ, vain converſation, is moſt vicious, and enormouſly ill, and *Rom.*1.16. οὐκ ἐπαισχύνομαι, I am not aſhamed, is, I rejoyce and glory in the Goſpel of Chriſt. And Rom. 8. 8. They that are in the fleſh, (that is, thoſe that follow their carnal appetites, in deſpite of the Law) cannot pleaſe God, that is, are very far from pleaſing, being in profeſt enmity to him *v.*7. muſt needs be hated and oppoſed by him. And *v.*12. We are debters not to the fleſh to live after the fleſh, that is, we are far from all obligation to go on any farther in any carnal courſe, 'tis more than time to give over that, as 1 *Pet.*4.3. the time paſt of our lives may ſuffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, that is, 'tis abundantly ſufficient, much more than enough, to have ſpent ſo vilely. So Rom. 13. 10. where it is only ſaid of Charity that κακὸν οὐ κατεργάζεται, it worketh no evil to the neighbour, the meaning certainly is, that 'tis ſo far from doing ſo, that it worketh all the good it can, or otherwiſe it would not thence be concluded, that it were πλήρωσις τῦ νόμου, the filling up, and improving of the law.

V. 24. Beelzebub] Beelzebub in Hebrew בעל זבוב f. is rendred by the Greek of the Old Teſtament Βααλ μύιας, the prince of the fly or flies, the god of Ekron, 2 Kings 1. 2. and v. 6. being indeed an Idol, that the inhabitants in that city in Palæſtine worſhipped, and conceived to have power over all hurtful flies, and to drive them out of their region. That this was the heathen Jupiter is not improbable, the title of μύιος, μυώδης, ἀπόμυιος, ἀπομυαγρος, μυαγρος, and μυοδήρας, being beſtowed on him by the Heathens, that is, he that caught, or drove away flies. This Idol in * Pliny is called Achor Deus from Accaron or Ekron the name of that city, and, as he ſaith, the Cyrenæans, when any plague of flies comes on them, ſacrifice and pray to him, and on that they die preſently. This is here called Prince of Devils, i.e. one that hath power over them (as 'twas, it ſeems, believed) able to throw them out of thoſe that were poſſeſſed with them, (whole legions together) like ſwarms of flies, which, with their Prince or Chieftain, fly about in the upper and middle region of the air; this gives the reaſon of their ſpeech here, why they conceived Chriſt to caſt out Devils by Beelzebub, becauſe Beelzebub they thought to have that power, and therefore to have the name of Ruler, or Prince of Devils, and Chriſt viſibly caſting them out, they thought he operated by this power.

* Nat. Hiſt. l.10.c. 28.

V.27. Your children] Your children here ſignifie either your Diſciples, that is, ſpiritual children, or your country-men, that is, children of your nation naturally, and ſo he means the Jews, who did pretend at leaſt to exorciſe and caſt out Devils, in the name of the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, the God of Jacob, which was their ordinary form of Exorciſm; and which, it ſeems, the ſons of Scheva were willing to change into the name of the Lord Jeſus, in imitation of the Apoſtles, Acts 19.13. So in Juſtinus againſt Trypho the Jew, If, ſaith he, you invoke the name of any of your Kings, or juſt Men, or Prophets or Patriarchs, the Devil will not obey you, but if you call upon the God of Abraham, &c. and ſo exorciſe, ἴσως ὑπακούσεται, perhaps he will obey: So ſaith Irenæus. By the invoking of the moſt High and Almighty, even before the coming of Chriſt, men were deliver'd from the wicked ſpirits, and à Dæmonis univerſis, from all kinds of Devils: And ſo Tertull. contr. Marcion. expounds this paſſage in St. Luke, that Chriſt affirms himſelf to caſt out Devils by the ſame power, by which their children did, in virtute ſcilicet Creatoris, by virtue of the Creator. That there was this cuſtom among the Jews (and ſo long continued) of charming and incantations, may farther appear by the latter remainders, (being, as appears by the Chriſtians renouncing them, abuſes of the true) which we find in the forms of renouncing Judaiſm, in the Liturgies of the Greek Church; where, after the mention of the ſeveral Feaſts and Sabbaths, is added καὶ τὴν γενέσιας, καὶ τὴν ἐπωδὰς, καὶ τοῖς φυλακτηρίοις, καὶ τοῖς (not as 'tis read by Goar out of Allatius his MS. and that of Cryptoferrara, φυλακτηρίοις by him rendred obſervationibus, but without queſtion) φυλακτηρίοις ἀποτάσσομαι, I renounce all charms and incantations and defenſatives, &c. The Phylacteries there renounced being not thoſe (mention'd in this Goſpel *c.*23.5.) worn about them as remembrances of a part of the Divine Law, but ſuch Antidotes as we now ſpeak of, which they carried about them, to defend themſelves from Witchcraft, and Faſcinations, whether they were ſome written characters, or the names of God, as the God of Abraham, the Lord of Sabbaoth, &c. From the Jews the Ægyptians borrowed their magical practices, ſaith Orig. contr. Celſ. l.1. and l. 4. ὧν ποσῶν δυνάσαι τὰ ὀνόματα σωματοβόμβυα τῇ τῦ Θεῦ προσηγορίᾳ, ὡς ὁ μόνον τὰς ἀπὸ τῦ ἔθνους χρῆσθαι ἐν ταῖς πρὸς Θεὸν εὐχαῖς καὶ ἐν τῷ καταπάδειν δαίμονας, τῷ, Ὁ Θεὸς Ἀβρααμ, ὁ Θεὸς

g. Τοῖ υἱοῖ

ὁ Θεὸς Ἰσαὰκ, καὶ ὁ Θεὸς Ἰακώβ, ἀλλὰ καὶ σφόδρα καὶ πάντας τοὺς τὰ τῶν ἐπῳδῶν, καὶ μαγείων πραγματευομένους· εὑρίσκεται δὲ ἐν τοῖς μαγικοῖς συγγράμμασιν ἡ τοιαύτη τοῦ Θεοῦ ὄνησις καὶ παράληψις τοῦ Θεοῦ ὀνόματος, &c. The names of Abraham, &c. joined with the name of God is not only of force in the Jews prayers, and exorcisms, but almost all others that dealt in conjurations use them: and from thence the ignorant sort came to take Abraham for the name of a God, saith S. Chrysostome, because of the form Θεὸς Ἀβραάμ, by them thus easily mistaken. So in like manner the words Zebaoth and Adonai were ordinarily among them, saith Origen, l. 4. and * Iamblichus calls these Assyria nomina, that is, Hebrew names, as when Themistius saith the saying of, The king's heart is in the hands of God, is taken out of the Assyrian books, he clearly means the Hebrew, the book of the Prov. and the letters now used for Hebrew letters are properly the Assyrian, which in their captivity they compelled them to use, instead of their own ancient letters, which only the Samaritane retaineth. The same Incantations were by them also used in curing diseases, as I remember there is a famous one in Trallian for the cure of the Gout, and Pausanias in his description of the Rites of the Pyrætheia (mentioned by Strabo, l. 15.) saith that in Lydia the magician having laid wood on the Altar, first puts a Mitre on his head, then ἐπίκλησιν ὅτι ὃ Θεῶν ἐπῴδει βάρβαρα, καὶ ἀδήλως σωθεὶς τοῖς Ἕλλησιν, calls upon some kind of God in a barbarous form, not understood by the Grecians, ἐπᾴδῃ ὅπλεγόμενον ἐκ βιβλίου, he reads his charm out of a book (we might render it literally, out of the Bible) ἄνευ δὲ πυρὸς ἀνάγκη πᾶσα ἁφθῆναι τὰ ξύλα, (as the story of Elias) and presently the wood is set on fire, Eliac. a Such forms as these 'tis not improbable that God was sometimes pleased to prosper, when he was particularly called on, as the one true God, as he had revealed himself to his own people, & not as one of the false gentile gods, and when 'twas thus, 'twas sure the power of the true God, and not any vertue in the words, that did it. This Christ uses as an argument, ad homines, that they who themselves professed to cast out Devils by the God of Abraham, had no reason to say Christ did it by the Prince of Devils.

* De Myst. l. 8. *c.*4.

V.32. Speaketh a word] It is ordinary in the Hebrew dialect for speaking to signify doing, and word to signify thing, and so here to blaspheme or to speak a word against the son of man, and again, against the H. Ghost, is to oppose and resist them. Now the phrase Son of man, here belongs unto Christ, as he appeared in the weakness of humane state, the son of Mary, considered without any such light shining in him, to convince all men that he was the Messias, viz. Christ abstracted from the great power of his doctrine and miracles, which when they did appear, convinced the Auditors to an acknowledgment, that never man spake as he spake, and the beholders here, *v.*23. and elsewhere, that sure he was the Messias. This power (of his doctrine and here particularly) of his miracles is in the parallel place, Luke 11. 20. called the finger of God (which what it signifies is clear by *Ex.*8.19. when that is said to be truly the finger of God, that is, a work of God's own power, which the Magicians by their sorcery were not able to do) and here, *v.*28. the spirit of God: which two phrases, finger of God, and spirit of God, appear by these two parallel places compared, to be all one, and consequently To oppose, or to speak against the πνεῦμα ἅγιον, the holy spirit, or the πνεῦμα Θεοῦ, Spirit of God, is in this place to oppose the power, and convincing light of these miracles of his, which manifested him to act by the power of God, and so were the Testimonies of God himself, that Christ was what he affirmed himself to be, the Messias promised. And that shews the ground of difference betwixt these two sins, speaking against the son of man, and speaking against the Holy Ghost, the first was the not believing him to be the Messias, when tho' he affirmed himself to be so, yet there was not that convincing light, and manifestation of his being so, but the second was resisting this light thus brightly shining in him, acknowledging the miracles which he did, John 11.48. but rather than they would acknowledge them to be done by God, (because if they did that, they must receive him as the Messias, which they would not do, because he was not such an one as they had fancied, and desired he should be, a temporal deliverer) affirmed them to be done by the Devil, *v.*24. which being their only possible evasion, (and that here confuted by Christ by three arguments, the first v. 26. the second, v. 27, 28. and the third *v.*29, & 30.) he now tells them, that this, if they continue in it, must needs be a wilful blindness, and so not capable of that excuse of ignorance or blind zeal, of which the former sin was capable.

h. Βλασφημία πνεύματος

Ib. It shall be forgiven him.] The difference of these two sins being set down (note h.) it follows now that the former of these was a sin, for which, under the Law of the Jews there was place for Sacrifice, and so for forgiveness (upon a general confession of all unknown sins, and asking pardon for them of God.) It did not incur that sanction of death, or excision from the people, and proportionably (in the Christian analogy) it was in the number, or of the nature of those sins, by which the sinner, if before living spiritually, doth not ipso facto become spiritually dead, nor incur present obligation to death eternal, but by Christ's sacrifice is preserved from it; and if before he were spiritually dead, yet is not this such, as is to him imputed, so as to fill up the measure of his iniquities, and bring utter desertion upon him, but (as a sin ἀκουσιαθεσιας ψυχῆς, or unaffected ignorance, *Num.*15.28.) is accordingly pardonable by a general repentance, (such was that of Nathanael, John 1.47. Can any good come out of Nazareth? which was speaking a word against the son of man, and yet easily pardonable.)

i. Ἀφεθήσεται αὐτῷ.

Ib. It shall not be forgiven] As that former kind of sin was capable of mercy, so this second was of a far higher nature, none of those ἀγνοήματα ignorances, for which only sacrifices were appointed under the Law, *Heb.*9.7. *Num.*15.18. but parallel to those, for which there was no Sacrifice accepted (see Heb. 10.) but just vengeance and punishment under the Law, to which death without mercy was to be expected on the impenitent oppossers, ὑπεναντίοι and ἀθετήσαντες adversaries and despisers, Heb. 10.27,28. Those that sin thus, are the soul that doth ought presumptuously, or with a high hand, *Num.*15.30. (a hand lifted up, saith the Hebrew, a hand against God's finger, Luke 11. 20. or against the holy Spirit here) and so that reproaches the Lord there, as the Spirit, Heb. 10. 27. (which is just the βλασφημία or blaspheming the Spirit here, and so the Hebrew גדף reproach there is rendred blasphemy by the Greeks, 2 Kings 19. 22.) and so must be cut off from the people; and proportionably now under the Gospel, such a sin as this shall not be forgiven: the offender thereby, if he were before spiritually living, certainly dies spiritually, and so is cut off from God's true Israel (and by the Apostles and the Churches discipline is to be cut off from the congregation by censures) the sacrifice of Christ's death, typified by the legal sacrifices, doth not obtain, that such sinners should not fall into present spiritual death, and present obligation to eternal death, nor doth the spirit of meekness, but the rod of Excommunication belong to such. Or if the offender were not before spiritually living, this adds unto his dead works, and so brings on him a new obligation to eternal death; tho' the sacrifice of Christ's death, if they repent of such sin particularly and actually (God giving them space of Life to do so) may and certainly doth raise them up from this spiritual death, and obligation to eternal, by Justification. But without such particular special repentance from their sin particularly retracted, they shall continue in death spiritual here, till they fall into eternal hereafter, which is now by Christ most clearly revealed against all wilful sin continued in impenitently, though it were not before so clearly revealed under the Law. The issue of this whole matter, as far as concerned the Pharises there, was this, that unless their sin were particularly retracted by repentance, and Christ received and acknowledged upon

k. Οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται.

theſe miracles of his, or afterwards by the conviction, which the Holy Ghoſt ſhould work upon the crucifiers, they can never have pardon or remiſſion, not that they that were here guilty, ſhould never after repent, or upon repentance be accepted; this is not ſaid here or in any other place, but rather the contrary is every where affirmed in the Scripture, which offereth repentance to all (& that ſo really, that by the grace of Chriſt, and the Holy Ghoſt aſſiſting his word, they may receive it) and promiſeth pardon to all, be they never ſo great ſinners, ſo they do amend their lives ſincerely, and lay hold on God's mercy in Chriſt; and this is particularly applied to thoſe Phariſees, by force of Chriſt's prayer for his crucifiers (which was certainly heard) Father forgive them, that is, deny them not the means of forgiveneſs (the power of repenting) and forgiveneſs if they ſhall repent; and accordingly the Apoſtles after teach, that God had exalted Chriſt to his right hand to give repentance unto Iſrael, Acts 5. 31. that is, to all Iſrael, Acts 2. 36, and 38. and particularly thoſe crucifying rulers, Acts 3.17. whoſe ignorance is there, as on the croſs by Chriſt, urged to make their caſe the more hopeful, not that it was not notoriouſly vincible and criminous but that they had not yet received all thoſe means and methods of the Holy Ghoſt for their converſion, the greateſt of all being yet behind, the raiſing up Chriſt from the dead, to be ſuch a ſign to move them, as Jonas was, whereupon, v. 38. &c. he tells them, that that only ſign more they ſhould have (tho' they were a malicious and adulterous generation) and when that was witneſſed by the deſcent of the H. Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, and the preaching, and miracles wrought by that deſcent, then they that come not in to Chriſt, ſhall never be forgiven, nor be capable of any farther means of working repentance in them, this being indeed the laſt that ſhould ever be allowed them.

L. Ἀφεσις ἐν μέλλουσι αἰῶνι.

Ib. In this world, &c.] This phraſe ſeems to refer to a perſwaſion of the Jews, that ſome ſins which could not be forgiven upon their ſacrifices (whether their daily ſacrifices, or that on the great day of Expiation) and ſo are irremiſſible, ἐν τούτῳ τῷ αἰῶνι in this age, might yet be remitted and pardoned, ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι, in that to come, which ſometimes ſignifies among them the age of the Meſſias, ſometimes the ſtate after death (ſee note on Luke 1. 0.) But of this ſin unrepented of, ſaith Chriſt, there is no place for any ſuch hope; that opinion of yours, that every Jew hath his part in the age to come, as that notes the age of the Meſſias (there being now no farther Meſſias to be look'd for by you) ſhall ſtand you in no ſtead, if you ſtand out impenitently againſt all this light and manifeſtation of divine power, now evidently teſtifying that I am the Meſſias. And for the ſtate after death, when that comes, and your ſentence is once paſt, there will be ſmall hope of relief, or releaſe for you.

m. Ἀργὸν ῥῆμα

V. 36. Idle word.] The word ἀργὸν may bear proportion in ſenſe to the Hebrew שָׁוְא, which ſignifies vain indeed, but frequently falſe, becauſe that which is falſe wants the ſolidity and ſubſtance of truth. So μάταιον λόγον καὶ ψευδῆ, vanity and lies, Prov. 30. 8. Or as the Greek ἀργὸς is derived quaſi ἄεργος, when the words are without deeds agreeing to them. Thus κενὸς λόγος, vain ſpeech, Eph. 5. 6. is, not unprofitable, but falſe ſpeaking, ſuch as with which they are adviſed, that they be not deceived. But 'tis farther obſervable from the Scripture ſtile, mentioned Note e. (which uſes to ſignify more than the words literally import) that the word ἄκαρπος unfruitful, Eph. 5. 11. and μάταιος vain, do ſignify not only the negation of, but contrariety to all profit, i.e. the greateſt wickedneſs, and ſo may ἀργὸς here. The advice of Pythagoras, Ἀιρεῖότερόν σοι ἔστω λίθον εἰκῆ βάλλειν ἢ λόγον ἀργὸν, Let it be more deſirable to thee, or chuſe rather to caſt a ſtone at an adventure, than an idle ſpeech, where it is evident, that λόγος ἀργὸς is at leaſt a raſh ſpeech, and ſuch, as from which a man himſelf, or other, may as probably receive ſome conſiderable hurt, as from a ſtone raſhly caſt we have reaſon to expect. And accordingly in this place R. Stevens mentions another reading, πονηρὸν inſtead of ἀργὸν, every wicked word. Thus will the ἀργὸν ῥῆμα be the ſame with πονηρὰ evil things, v. 35. and thus it may refer to the notion of πονηρὸν ῥῆμα, uſed for reproach and contumely, c. 5. 11. for ſuch was that againſt Chriſt, v. 24. that great contumely and falſity of his caſting out Devils by the Prince of Devils. That it is ſome grand crime, not every word which tends not to ſome ſpecial end of Chriſtian edification, appears by the next verſe, where they are affirmed to be ſuch, as for which under Chriſt men are ſure to be condemned, and not by evil works or actions only.

n. Τρεῖς ἡμέρας, καὶ τρεῖς νύκτας

V. 44. Three days, &c.] That Chriſt was not in the earth three nights, it is clear, and therefore the way of interpreting this place muſt be taken from a figure, which expreſſes one whole thing by two parts of it. Thus the heaven and the earth in St. Peter, 2 Pet. 3. 7. (ſee note e.) ſignify the world; and the natural day, conſiſting of night and day, and beginning among the Hebrews at evening, is here meant by this phraſe night and day; and ſo Chriſt is ſaid to be three days and three nights in the earth, tho' the firſt natural day he was not in the grave any part of the night, but the latter part of the Friday, all Saturday, and ſo much of Sunday, as until the Sun approached their Horizon. The reckoning of days by the Jews was by the νυχθήμερον, evening and morning, which made up the natural day, ſo among the Athenians alſo, ſee A. Gellius, l. 3. c. 2. And as it is practiſed in the buſineſs of Circumciſion, which was preciſely obſerved the eighth day, if the child were born in one day, tho' but half an hour before the end of it, that is, before the beginning or evening of the next, that half hour was counted for one of the eight days (becauſe, ſay they, legal days are not accounted from time to time, or from hour to hour) ſo is it here, that part of Friday wherein he was buried, was the firſt day of this number. Thus when Luke 9. 28. 'tis ſaid, about eight days after, Mat. 17. 1. and Mark 9. 2. 'tis after ſix days, that is, after ſix days compleat, the firſt and the laſt being not complete, and ſo tho' numbred by one, yet omitted by two Evangeliſts, and accordingly the ſpace of theſe very three days of Chriſt's lying in the grave until his Reſurrection, are, when prophetically mentioned by Hoſea, c. 6. 2. ſaid to be after two days: So a Luſtrum, and an Olympiad, tho' they contain but four compleat years, are yet ſaid to be five years, after the manner of our accounting a tertian, and a quartan Ague. See Nebriſſenſis quinquag. c. 25. and Iſ. Caſaubon againſt Baron. p. 16.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XIII.

1. THE ſame day went Jeſus out of the houſe, and ſate by the ſea ſide.

2. Was forced to go ſit in a boat.

2. And great multitudes were gathered together unto him, ſo that he [went into a ſhip and ſate] and the whole multitude ſtood on the ſhore.

3. By ſimilitudes.

3. And he ſpake many things unto them [in parable] ſaying, Behold a ſower went forth to ſow.

4. And as he ſowed in the field, ſome of his ſeed fell on the path, or the ground which was not prepared for ſowing, but left to go on in paſſing through the field, and there, that which fell, was (trod on, ſaith Luke, and ſo was never able to grow, but lay till it was) devoured by the birds.

4. And when he ſowed, ſome ſeeds fell by the ways ſide, and the fowls came and devoured them up.]

5. Some

5. Some fell upon ſtony places, where they had not [much earth, and forthwith they ſprang up, becauſe they had no deepneſs of earth.]

5. Sufficient mould to take root, only enough to cover them, and by that means, as the manner is, they came up the ſooner for having no depth of mould to take root in.

6. And [when the ſun was up] they were ſcorched, and becauſe they had not root, they withered away.

6. When the time of year came for the ſun to get up to more ſtrength and heat.

7. And ſome fell [among thorns, and the thorns ſprang up and choaked them.]

7. In ſome parts of the field, where there were roots of bryars not deſtroyed; and the bryars or thorns over-grew the corn, and ſo choaked it.

8. But other fell into good ground, and [brought forth fruit] ſome an a hundred fold, ſome ſixty fold, ſome thirty fold.

8. Thoſe corns ſprang up proſperouſly to the harveſt, every corn yielding plentifully. a.

9. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10. And the Diſciples came and ſaid unto him, Why ſpeakeſt thou to them in parables?]

10. And his Diſciples wondred that he ſhould ſpeak ſo myſtically and obſcurely to the people, and therefore asked him why he did ſo.

11. He anſwered and ſaid unto them, Becauſe it is given to you to know the myſteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.]

11. And he gave them this anſwer, The underſtanding the higher and obſcurer parts of the Goſpel is a priviledge that belongs only unto you Diſciples, which are believers already, which have already received and profited, and undertaken to direct your lives according to the rules of my doctrine communicated to you, but theſe which have not done ſo, are not yet fit for revealing of ſecrets to them, (that which is fitter for their turn, is to be incited by the darkneſs of parables to enquire into the meaning of them, v. 13.)

12. For whoſoever b hath, to him ſhall be given, and he ſhall have more abundance: but whoſoever hath not, from him ſhall be taken away even that he hath.]

12. Whoſoever hath, to purpoſe, that is, hath made uſe of any degree of grace b. or knowledge afforded him by God, ſhall have more given him (as in the ſeed that fell on good ground) he ſhall have an abundant increaſe, as proverbially 'tis known of rich men, 'tis eaſy and uſual for them to grow richer ſoon, by wiſe imployment, and laying out of their wealth, and every man preſenting them; but whoſoever is poor ordinarily grows poorer: And ſo ſhall it be in the ſpiritual wealth, whoſoever imploys what he hath, he ſhall increaſe by exerciſing his graces, and beſides, have addition from God, but whoſoever makes not uſe of what he hath, and ſo by his own fault falleth into poverty, he ſhall not only be denied more, but ſhall be deprived of what he hath, the means of grace ſhall be taken from him, and alſo grace it ſelf, (as to that meaſure, which is in all the children of God) upon his wilful continuance in ſin againſt conſcience, and all degrees of it taken away, either when he ſhall have filled up the meaſure of his iniquities, or (in all who die before effectual repentance) at death.

13. Therefore ſpeak I to them in parables, becauſe they ſeeing, ſee not: and hearing, they hear not, neither do they underſtand.]

13. Parables may be deſigned to ſeveral uſes, 1. They are ſuch things that thoſe who deſire ſincerely to learn, may by induſtry and examination of the parables more fully diſcern by them, than by the plaineſt ſpeech, and withal better carry it away, and retain the ſenſe of them; but ſecondly, They that willingly ſhut their eyes againſt the light, becauſe their deeds are evil, they do not uſe to ſee, but underſtand and diſcern leſs by parables than otherwiſe (and yet thirdly, If they have any deſire of learning left, parables will more excite and inflame a deſire of underſtanding and enquiring after the meaning of them than any thing elſe) and therefore do I not ſpeak plainly to them, but in ſuch veils as theſe, becauſe what hath formerly been without Parables delivered unto them, as plainly as what is before their eyes, they have not made uſe of.

14. And in them is fulfilled the Prophecy of Eſaias, which ſaith, By hearing ye ſhall hear, and ſhall not underſtand, and ſeeing ye ſhall ſee, and ſhall not perceive.]

14. And ſo what Eſaias foretold of God's dealing with an obſtinate people, although it was foretold of ſome of your anceſtors, yet hath a moſt eminent completion now, and is found moſt true of them, That they ſhall not receive ſo much profit, as otherwiſe they might, by what is repreſented or delivered to them; things ſhall be ſo ænigmatically and darkly repreſented to them as that they (having before ſhut their eyes, v. 13.) ſhall now diſcern but little.

15. For this peoples heart is waxed groſs, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have cloſed, leſt at any time they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and ſhould underſtand with their heart, and ſhould be converted, and I ſhould heal them.

15. And this is a juſt judgment of God's upon them for their former obduration and obſtinacy, in that they have hung down their ears (as creatures do that hearken not, whereas others hold them up) and ſhut their eyes againſt me, wilfully blinded themſelves, for fear, as 'twere, that they ſhould ſee, or hear, or underſtand, and by repentance and converſion become capable of my working cures of mercy on them, which otherwiſe I ſhould infallibly do (and alſo on God's part, leſt ſuch precious knowledge ſhould be expoſed to farther contempt.) See note on Mar. 4. a.

16. But bleſſed are your eyes, [* for they ſee] and your ears, † for they hear.

* that, ὅτι
† that, ὅτι

16. That by receiving what hath been already taught you, you are thus capable of theſe higher illuminations.

17. For verily I ſay unto you, that many prophets and righteous men have deſired to ſee thoſe things which ye ſee, and have not ſeen them: and to hear thoſe things which ye hear, and have not heard them.]

17. For tho' there have been many men employed by God to reveal his will to others, and many ſo far in God's favour, that God hath made himſelf known very particularly unto them, as Abraham and Moſes with whom he talked face to face, yet the revelations now made to you, are infinitely beyond all thoſe that were ever afforded men before.

18. Hear ye therefore the parable of the ſower.]

18. You Diſciples therefore to whom it is given to know the myſteries, v. 11. (from whence to this 18th verſe, all was ſpoken as in a parentheſis) Hear ye the meaning of this parable.

19. When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and c underſtandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one and catcheth away that which was ſown in his heart; † this d is he which received ſeed by the way ſide.]

19. When the Goſpel is preached to any, and he lays it not to heart, but by temptations is induced to live an unchriſtian life. This is that is meant by the ſeed that is ſown by the path-ſide, that is, by that part of the parable mentioned v. 4. c. d.

† this is it which is ſown by the path-ſide.

20. But * he that received the ſeed into ſtony places, the ſame is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it.]

20. But the ſowing of ſeed on the ſtony ground, denoteth him, that at the firſt hearing receives the Goſpel, with all greedineſs and joy, looking only on the ſmoother part of it.

* that which is ſown on ſtony ground, ὁ δὲ ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη σπαρείς, ſee note d.

21. Yet hath he not root in himſelf, but dureth for a while; for when tribulation or perſecution ariſeth becauſe of the word, by and by he is offended.]

21. But for want of an honeſt heart, a good ſoil, where it may take deep root, for want of reſolution to bear whatſoever the Goſpel requires of them, they laſt but a little while. As ſoon as ever Chriſtianity is perſecuted, as ſoon as any chargeable Duty is required of them, immediately they are galled and diſcouraged from going any farther in the ways of Piety. See note on c. 11. c.

22. ‖ He alſo that received ſeed among the thorns, is he that heareth the word, and the cares of this world, and the deceitfulneſs of riches choke the word, and † he becometh unfruitful.]

22. But the ſowing of ſeed among thorns denoteth him that heareth the Goſpel, but the ſollicitude and care of preſerving the things of this world (and of getting of riches) being in his heart, where the word is ſown, ſuffocates it, and ſo renders the word in him unfruitful, makes him live never the better for being a Chriſtian.

‖ and that which is ſown, ὁ δὲ ἀκάνθαις
† it becometh γίνεται

23. But

23. But * he that received ſeed into the good ground, is he that heareth the word, and underſtandeth it, which alſo beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, ſome an hundred fold, ſome ſixty, ſome thirty.]

* that which is ſown upon

23. But the ſowing the ſeed in good ground denoteth him, that by hearing and underſtanding, and laying to heart the precept of Chriſt, expreſſes the effects of it by bringing forth abundance of Chriſtian practice all the life after, ſome in a greater meaſure than others, but all in a good proportion.

24. Another parable put he forth unto them, ſaying, [The kingdom of heaven] is likened unto a man which ſowed good ſeed in his field.

24. The ſtate of the Goſpel, or ſucceſs of Chriſt's preaching in the world.

25. But while men ſlept, his enemy came and ſowed * tares [among the wheat] and went his way,

* cockle, ζιζάνια

26. But when the blade was ſprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the * tares alſo.]

* cockle

25. All thro' the wheat, all over the ground,

26. This was not diſcerned at the time, but when the corn came up, and began to ear, then beſide the weat that was ſowed, there appeareth cockle alſo.

27. So the ſervants of the houſholder came and ſaid unto him, Sir, [didſt not thou ſow good ſeed in thy field? From whence then hath it tares?]

27. Certainly all the ſeed which thou didſt ſow in thy field was good wheat, and yet we diſcern now a great deal of cockle among it, Whence ſhould this be?

28. He ſaid unto them, An e enemy hath done this. The ſervants ſaid unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?]

e. 28. Some malicious perſon hath done this. Hereupon the ſervants offer their pains if he pleaſe to accept them, to go preſently and weed up all the cockle.

29. But he ſaid, [Nay, leſt while ye gather up the tares, ye root up alſo the wheat with them.]

29. No, for ſome of them are in ſuch a conjuncture with the wheat, that the one cannot be pull'd up, but the other will follow, if it be done by you, that are not ſo able to diſcern them.

30. Let them both grow together [until the harveſt, and in the time of harveſt, I will ſay to the reapers,] Gather ye together firſt the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

30. Until my time of judgment, and then I will appoint the Angels my officers, ſaying,.

31. Another parable put he forth unto them, ſaying, [The kingdom of heaven is like to] a grain of muſtard-ſeed, which a man took and ſowed in his field,

31. The ſtate of the Goſpel is of ſuch a growing procreative nature both in the world, and in the heart of man, where 'tis received, that it is fitly reſembled to, &c.

32. Which indeed is the leaſt of all ſeeds, but when it is grown, it is the * greateſt among herbs and becometh a tree, ſo that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.]

* greater than herbs, μείζον τῶν λαχάνων

32. Which being one of the leaſt ſeeds that are, yet when it comes up proſperouſly, it becomes bigger than any thing that comes from a ſeed, and among the Jews grows into a tree with boughs large enough for Birds to rooſt or lodge in. See note on Luke 13. a.

33. Another parable ſpake he unto them, [The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three meaſures of meal, till the whole was leavened.]

33. The Goſpel hath ſuch a ſecret inviſible influence on the hearts of men, to change them and affect them, and all the actions that flow from them, that it is fitly reſembled to leaven, ſo mixt throughly with the whole, that although it appeareth not in any part of it viſibly, yet every part hath a tincture from it.

34. All theſe things ſpake Jeſus unto the multitudes in parables, and without a parable ſpake he not unto them,

35. That it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet, ſaying, I will open my mouth in parables, [I will f utter things which have been kept ſecret from the foundation of the world.]

f. 35. I will pour out all thoſe myſterious truths which have been kept cloſe from all time, and now, tho' in parables, are revealed by me.

36. Then Jeſus ſent the multitude away, and went into the houſe: and his Diſciples came unto him, ſaying, [Declare] unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

36. Explain, interpret.

37. He anſwered and ſaid unto them, He that ſoweth the good ſeed is the ſon of man.

38. The field is this world, the good ſeed are the children of the kingdom: but the tares are the children of the wicken one.]

38. The field is this world, the place of our living here; that part of the parable that concerneth the good ſeed, ſignifies the Chriſtians: but that of the tares, ſignifies the wicked ſeducers, ſuch were the Gnoſticks, and other hereticks of the firſt times, ſuch are all hereticks and ſchiſmaticks ſince.

39. The enemy that ſowed them is the devil, [the harveſt is * end of the world] and the reapers are the Angels.

* concluſion of the age, συντέλεια τοῦ αἰῶνος.

39. The time when believers and unbelievers (and ſeducers) ſhall be called to account, is, to this people, that ſolemn approaching time of their viſitation, as to all other people, the time of final exciſions, and eſpecially the day of judgment.

40. As therefore the tares are gathered and burnt in the fire: ſo ſhall it be [in the † end of this world.]

† concluſion of this age.

40. At God's times of eminent diſcrimination, ſuch as his judgments on the Jews (ſee note on c. 24. c. and on Luke 1. o.) and ſuch the laſt dreadful day of doom.

41. The ſon of man ſhall ſend forth his Angels, and they ſhall gather out of his kingdom all * things that offend, and them which do iniquity.]

* ſcandals τὰ σκάνδαλα

41. Chriſt by his meſſengers and inſtruments of his juſtice ſhall deſtroy all hereticks and ſchiſmaticks, that any way keep others from the Chriſtian religion, and all that live profeſſly in any unlawful courſe of contrariety to Chriſtian purity.

42. And ſhall caſt them into a furnace of fire: there ſhall be wailing and gnaſhing of teeth.

43. Then ſhall [the righteous ſhine forth as the ſun in the kingdom of their father.] Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

43. The true pure Chriſtian profeſſors ſhine eminently in the Church here, and after in glory.

44. Again, [the kingdom of heaven is like unto a treaſure hid in a field, the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and ſelleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.]

44. The Goſpel being by ſome not look'd after, is yet ſometimes met with by them, and becomes matter of infinite joy and deſire to them, and ſo is likened fitly to a treaſure, which a man finding caſually, in a field, hid again or concealed it, and then deſigning to get it into his poſſeſſion, accounts no price that he can pay too dear for it.

45. Again, [the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant man ſeeking goodly pearls.

46. Who when he had found one pearl of great price, he went and ſold all that he had, and bought it.]

45, 46. Others there are which have followed the ſtudy of wiſdom, and thirſted after ſome inſtructor, and then the Goſpel of Chriſt comes as a rich prize doth to a merchant, which is in purſuit of rich merchandize, and meeting with a jewel for his turn, lays out all his eſtate upon it.

47. Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net which was caſt into the ſea, and [gathered of every kind.]

47. Caught fiſh of all ſorts, good and bad.

48. Which when it was full, they drew to ſhore, and ſat down, and gathered the good into veſſels, but caſt [the bad] away.

48. That which was ſick, or unwholſom at the ſeaſon.

49. So ſhall it be [at the end of the world, the Angels ſhall come forth, and ſever the wicked from among the juſt.]

49. At the time wherein Chriſt ſhall come to work his revenge upon his enemies, not only at the deſtruction of the Jewiſh State (wherein that diſcrimination ſhall be made betwixt believing and unbelieving Jews, reformed and unreformed) but eſpecially at the final day of every mans doom, at the concluſion of the world.

50. And ſhall caſt them into the furnace of fire, there ſhall be wailing and gnaſhing of teeth.

51. Jeſus ſaith unto them, Have ye underſtood all theſe things? They ſay unto him, Yea, Lord.

* made a diſciple for, μαθητευθεὶς εἰς

52. Then ſaid he unto them, [Therefore every g ſcribe, which is * inſtructed unto the kingdom of Heaven, is like unto a man that is an houſholder, which bringeth forth out of his treaſure things new and old.]

52. Therefore if, over and above your knowledge in the law, ye have underſtood the things which I have told you of the nature of the Goſpel, the excellency of it beyond all other profeſſions, and the obligation to good life, ye are obliged to ſhew forth the effects, and to the old actions of your former life, acted by Jewiſh principles, to ſuperadd a Chriſtian practice, after the manner of the houſholder, who when he makes ſhew of his poſſeſſions, his proviſions, or wealth, brings forth, and ſhews the fruit of the new, as well as the ſtore of the old year, his new, as well as old rayments, &c. and all little enough for the frank entertainment of his gueſts. g.

53. And it came to paſs, that when Jeſus had finiſhed theſe parables, he departed thence.

54. And when he was come into his own country, he taught them in their ſynagogue, inſomuch that they were aſtoniſhed, and ſaid, Whence hath this man this wiſdom, and theſe mighty works?]

54. And coming to Nazareth where he was bred, he ſet about the work of publick teaching of them in their aſſemblies, which he did in ſuch manner, expreſſing ſuch knowledge, and doing ſuch miracles, that they which ſaw and heard were amazed and aſtoniſh'd at it, ſaying, What means of knowledge hath he had by his education, and from whence can he be imagined to derive the power of doing ſuch miracles?

55. Is not this the carpenters ſon? is not his mother called Mary? And [his brethren] James, and Joſes, and Simon and Jude?

55. His firſt couſins.

56. And his ſiſters, are they not all with us? [Whence then hath this man all theſe things?]

56. Whence then is it that he thus far excels and ſurpaſſeth all them?

* ſcandalized at, ſee note on c. 11. c.

57. And they were [* offended in him. But Jeſus ſaid unto them, A Prophet is not without honour, ſave in his own country, and in his own houſe.]

57. Diſcouraged from following him any longer; whereupon Jeſus ſaid unto thoſe that were preſent, This is no ſtrange thing to me, for it is proverbially obſerved, that a Prophet or any ſent from God, is not deſpiſed or undervalued ſo much any where, as among his own country-men and kindred, who knew his birth here below, but knew not of his commiſſion from heaven.

58. And he did not many mighty works there becauſe of their unbelief.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XIII.

a. Διδόναι ἑκατὸν

V. 8. Hundred fold] That great proportion of an Hundred fold in the harveſt is no ſuch prodigious encreaſe, as men imagine. For though it were ſtrange that to the number of the buſhels of ſeed, there ſhould be an hundred times ſo many brought home by way of increaſe, becauſe a great deal of the corn that is ſowed, miſcarries and comes to nothing, yet it is eaſie to obſerve, that from one ſingle corn, (which is here referr'd to by the ὁ μὲν ἑκατὸν, &c. and εἷς in Mark, that is, one, an hundred) there oft comes ſo many branches, and ſtalks, and grains in all thoſe ſtalks, as may eaſily and ordinarily make up the number ſometimes of thirty, ſometimes of ſixty, nay ſometimes of an hundred fold, though the truth is, the hundred fold is the liberalleſt proportion, and ſo is ſet down as the higheſt degree of fruitfulneſs in the good ground. See c. 19. 29.

b. Ἔχειν

V. 12. Hath] The word ἔχειν ſignifies here, (as 'tis plain by the parable,) to uſe, to occupy, to traffick with grace, to take that care of it, which belongs to ſo great a treaſure, ſo ſaith Phavorinus in the word ἐωῦχ, ἔχε τὸ ἐπιμελεῖσθαί φασι καὶ φυλάττειν, To have is uſed for to take care of, to keep, thus perhaps may χρεὼν ἔχειν ſignifie Heb. 12. 28. though it be capable of another rendring, as there we ſhall ſee.

c. Σωίημι

V. 19. Underſtandeth] Σωίημι ſignifies ordinarily laying to heart, thinking on, conſidering, ξωίηκε, σωίλαβε, ſaith Didymus, and ſo συμβάλλω Luke 2. 19. ſeems all one with it; and ſo Suidas, σωίημι ὅτι τὸ νοῶ to conſider or think on, and σκόπει, βλέπε, σωίε, and Heſychius, σωίασιν, νοῦσιν. So Ὀδύσ. ὁ. Σιγῇ νῦν ξωίε καὶ τέρπεο, Conſider and pleaſe thy ſelf in private. And ſo Prov. 21. 12. the Septuagint renders Maſchil by σωίε, and ſo Pſal. 106. 7. and ſo here v. 15. conſider and turn, anſwerable to Ezech. 18. 28. becauſe he conſidereth and turneth away from his ſins.

d. Ἐστὶ

Ib. This is he] That the ἔστι ὅτι σπαρεὶς ſignifies literally not Him that receives the ſeed, but that which is ſown, either ὁ σπόρος the ſeed in S. Luke, or ὁ λόγος the word, or the like, appears both by the parable, in which anſwerable to it is the ἃ μὲν ἔπεσε, &c. ſome fell, that is, in ſowing fell, and alſo more particularly by the parallel place, Luke 8. 11. where 'tis ſaid, that σπόρος ὅτι λόγος, the ſeed is the word, and v. 14. inſtead of the σπαρεὶς ſown, is the τὸ πεσὸν, that which falls, which muſt needs be the corn, and not the ground, and in S. Mark c. 4. 19. 'tis clearly the corn, (and not the man or the ground) that becometh unfruitful, and therefore 'tis clear, that as ὅστις he refers to the whole precedent oration, when any one hears, &c. ſo the σπαρεὶς ſown is the whole of that part of the parable, the ſeed, and the ground, and the ſowing, and the fowls picking it up, all together, and then ὅτι ſignifies is denoted by. Only 'tis true, that in the following expreſſion ὅστις ἐστὶν ἀκούων, this is he that heareth, &c. the word is is taken a little otherwiſe, and the phraſe ſignifies, this is it, (that is, the ſeed ſown in that ground, or in complexo, the ſeed with its ground, is it) which denoteth, or by which is denoted he that heareth, &c. By both which 'tis obſervable, that in the Scripture dialect, the word ὅτι is or ἔστι ὅτι, this is doth either, as S. Auguſtine ſaith, ſignifie ſignificat, ſignifies, or ſignificatur, is ſignified, that is, denotes one thing which is anſwerable to another, whether it be the ſign, or the thing ſignified, ſometimes the ſign, as v. 19. the ἔστι οὗτος ὁ παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν σπαρεὶς, this is it that is ſignified by the ſeed ſown by the path ſide, and ſometimes the thing ſignified, as v. 20. ἔστι οὗτος ὁ τὸν λόγον ἀκούων, this is it which ſignifieth him which heareth the word, &c. and ſo v. 22. and 23.

e. Ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος

V. 28. Enemy] The phraſe ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος, literally enemy man, is here an Hebraiſm, the like as we ſhall find Heſt. 7. 6. the man adverſary, or adverſary man, is this wicked Haman. And ſo it reſtrains not the word here to a man, but leaves it in the latitude, that ἐχθρὸς alone would be, a man, or devil.

f. Ἐρεύξομαι

V. 35. Utter] The word ἐρεύξομαι muſt be rendred, I will pour out, for, ſaith Heſychius, ἐρεύξεσθαι, βρύσαι. it ſignifies to ſend forth, ſo as a fountain doth water, or as a Tree its juyce or moiſture. Thus נבע (which Pſal. 19. 3. and ſo Pſal. 119. 171. and Pſal. 145. 7. is rendred ἐρεύγομαι) ſignifies ſcaturire, or exundare, to pour forth water from within it, as here the κεκρυμμένα, what was before kept cloſe within.

g. Γραμματεὺς Μαθητὴς

V. 52. Scribe] The γραμματεὺς Scribe, here ſet oppoſite to μαθητὴς Diſciple, ſignifies him that is ſkilful in the the Moſaical Law (as the diſciple is he that hath thereto ſuperadded the knowledge of the Goſpel) or any man conſider'd as furniſhed with ſacred inſtructions, and obſervations out of the Law and the Prophets, and their δόλεχώσεις, any skill in the myſteries of the Old Teſtament, or Jewiſh Religion; who when he becomes a Diſciple, or turns Chriſtian, he becomes furniſh'd with the Myſteries of the New Teſtament; by this means he is here ſaid to be like the houſe-keeper, who for the maintaining of his family all the year long, is ſuppoſed to have a repoſitory for proviſions (which is here called the θησαυρὸς or ſtore-houſe) and there to have laid in proviſions of both ſorts, new and old, the new of daily purveyance, and the old which we call the ſtore. And being thus furniſh'd when any entertainment is to be made, he brings forth, and uſeth what is neceſſary of both. So for the furniſhing a table he brings forth his hot and cold meat, that which is new dreſs'd, and that which remains of former meals. And ſo in all other parts of Oeconomy, new and old Garments in the Wardrobe. Thus doth this knowing Jew, being now farther inſtructed by Chriſt, lye under an obligation of performing, as occaſion requires, all actions both of Moral and Chriſtian vertues, but firſt and eſpecially of Chriſtian, which are the new, here firſt named, though the μαθητεύθεὶς was laſt, by way of ὑστερον πρότερον, in other places frequently obſervable. See note on chap. 7. b.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XIV.

1. AT that time Herod the Tetrarch heard of the fame of Jeſus,
2. And ſaid unto his ſervants, This is John the Baptiſt, [he is riſen from the dead, and therefore mighty works do ſhew forth themſelves in him.]

2. Though John the Baptiſt, when he liv'd, did no ſuch miracles, yet being put to death, and God thinking fit to raiſe him from death again, 'tis reaſonable to expect that God will aſſiſt him with a miraculous power to aſſure men that he was ſent from God, his riſing from the dead is ſo ſtrange a thing, that it muſt needs be attended with other miracles.

3. For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in priſon for Herodias ſake his brother Philip's wife.
4. For John ſaid unto him, It is not lawful for thee to have her.
5. And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, becauſe they counted him [as a prophet.]
6. But when Herod's birth-day was kept, the daughter of Herodias daunced before them, and pleaſed Herod.
7. Whereupon he promiſed with an oath, to give her whatſoever ſhe would ask.
8. And ſhe [being before a inſtructed of her mother,] ſaid, Give me here John Baptiſts head in a charger. a.

5. A Prophet, or of ſome what a higher rank, more than a Prophet, c 11. 9.
6. Mark 6. note b.

8. Upon the advice, impulſion, inſtigation of her mother, with whom ſhe conſulted what ſhe ſhould ask.

9. And the King b was ſorry; nevertheleſs for the oaths ſake, and them which * ſate with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her.] b.

9. This petition was very unacceptable to Herod, yet becauſe he had ſworn, and that it might not appear a levity, or inconſtancy to thoſe that were at the feaſt with him, when he made the oath, he gave appointment it ſhould be ſo.

* lay σωανακείμ

10. And he ſent and beheaded John in the priſon.
11. And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the damoſel: and ſhe brought it to her mother.
12. And his Diſciples came and took up the body and buried it, and went and told Jeſus.]

12. And John's Diſciples took care of his burial, and that being done, came to Jeſus, whoſe fore-runner John was, and told him what had befallen John, and (probably) continued with him as his Diſciples.

13. When Jeſus heard of it, [he departed thence by ſhip into a deſart place apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the Cities.]

13. That the ſame might not befal him, before he had fulfilled his office, for which he was ſent, (ſee c 12. 15.) he departed by ſhip from thence, taking none but his Diſciples with him, and went to a place which was not inhabited, and when the people heard whither he was gone, they took a compaſs by land, and came to him thither.

14. And Jeſus went forth, and ſaw a great multitude, and [was moved with compaſſion toward them, and] he healed their ſick.

14. Was ſo kind as not to conceal himſelf from them any longer, but came to them, and when he was come,

15. And when it was evening, his Diſciples came to him, ſaying, This is a deſart place, [and the time is now paſt] ſend the multitudes away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themſelves victuals.

15. The time of evening when every one gets him to his Inn, and provides for his ſupper, is already paſt,

16. But Jeſus ſaid unto them, They need not depart, give ye them to eat.
17. And they ſay unto him, We have here but five loaves and two fiſhes.
18. He ſaid, Bring them hither to me.
19. And [he commanded the multitudes to ſit down on the graſs,] and took the five loaves, and the two fiſhes, and looking up to heaven he c bleſſed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his Diſciples, and the Diſciples to the multitude. c.

19. He appointed the Apoſtles, Mark 6. 39. to diſpoſe them meal-wiſe on graſs-plats there,

20. And they did all eat, and were filled; and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full:
21. And they that had eaten were about five thouſand men, [beſides] women and children.

21. Not counting.

22. And ſtraightway Jeſus conſtrained his Diſciples to get into a ſhip, and to go before him unto the other ſide, while he ſent the multitudes away.]

22. Upon this the multitudes deſigning to take him and proclaim him King, John 6. 15. he preſently ſent his Diſciples before him by ſea to the wilderneſs, Mark 6. 32. which was on the ſame ſide with Bethſaida and Capernaum, whether it ſeems they went, John 6. 17. that ſo he might quietly diſmiſs the multitude.

23. And when he had ſent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: and * when the evening d was come, he was there alone. d.

* the evening being ended

24. But the ſhip was now in the midſt of the ſea, toſſed with waves, for the wind was contrary.
25. And [in the fourth watch of the night] Jeſus went out unto them, walking on the ſea.

25. Towards the morning.

26. And when the Diſciples ſaw him walking on the ſea, they were troubled, ſaying, It is [a ſpirit;] and they cried out for fear.
27. But ſtraightway Jeſus ſpake unto them ſaying, Be of good cheer: It is I, be not afraid.

26. Some ſpirit or phantaſtick ſhape, that ſeems there to walk bodily.

28. And

28. And Peter anſwered him, and ſaid, Lord, if it be thou,[bid me] come unto thee on the water.

29. And he ſaid,Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ſhip, he walked on the water to go to Jeſus.

30. But when he ſaw the wind boyſterous, he was afraid, and beginning to ſink, he cried, ſaying, Lord ſave me.

31. And immediately Jeſus ſtretched forth his hand and caught him, and ſaid unto him, O thou of little faith, [wherefore didſt thou doubt?]

32. And when [they] were come into the ſhip, the wind ceaſed.

33. Then [they that were in the ſhip came and worſhipped him,] ſaying, Of a truth thou art the ſon of God.

34. And when they were gone over, they came into the land of [c Genneſaret.]

35. And when the men of that place [had knowledge of him,] they ſent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diſeaſed.

36. And beſought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment, and as many as [touched] were made perfectly whole.

28. Give me thy commiſſion, and then I know I ſafely may.

31. Why did thy mind ſtand divided,flote between faith and diffidence? why didſt thou ſtagger? why didſt thou diſtruſt my power, when I bid thee come to me?

32. Chriſt and Peter.

33. The reſt of his Diſciples came every one of them and adored him, and acknowledged his Omnipotence.

34. Cinnereth, Deut. 3. c.

35. Knew him, as having been there before, Luke 5.1.

36. Touched it, or any part of his garment.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XIV.

a. Προδιδάζω

V. 8. Inſtructed] The word προδιδάζω, ſaith Budæus, hath a peculiar notion for a Client inſtructing an Advocate in his cauſe, telling him the heads of his defence, and ſo it may properly ſignifie here, and ſo the Vulgar reads præmonita, that Herodias inſtructed her daughter, admoniſhing her before hand,what ſhe ſhould propoſe to the King by way of requeſt;So in Xenophon Απομνημ. α. the Maſters having ſhew'd their Scholars how to do their buſineſs, ᾧ τῷ λόγῳ προδιδάζωσι do alſo by words premoniſh them. But beſides this, Heſychius renders προδιδασκαλίς, προτροπάς, and in the old Gloſſary, προδιδάζω, promoveo, proveho, and Suidas, προδιδάζεις, πείθεις, προτρέπεις, in all of theſe to ſtir up, perſwade, inſtigate. The Interpreters of the Old Teſtament uſe it for נָשָׁה to ſharpen, *Deut.*6.7. and that belongs to the ſame ſenſe.

b. Ἐλυπήθη ὁ βασι.

V. 9. Was ſorry] Of Herods ſorrow many motives and reaſons might be collected; One leſs obſervable might be, becauſe this was his Birthday feaſt; On ſuch days they were wont to make merry, and entertain the people,and make it Holy-day from all ſecular employments, and they took ſpecial care to avoid all ill omens, to have no quarrels nor contentions, no pleadings in foro, (Natalem colimus, tacete lites,

*Mart.*l.10.87.) but eſpecially no ſhedding of blood, no executions, counting it unfit to deprive any of life, that day,wherein they received theirs (Ἔθος τὴν μηδένα κωλύειν τῶν καλλικελῶν ἄχεις ἀν ὑπφανεῖς, γενέθλιοι ᾗ πανηγύρεις, &c. διεξέλθωσι, ſaith Philo againſt Flaccus; and if any hanged on the gallows, or croſs before, they were then to be taken down. This was done by the Pagans, leſt they ſhould offend, or ſadden or diſpleaſe their Genius; and Herod being more then half a Pagan, might well have this cauſe of grief, and ſo be troubled to do this on John Baptiſt this day. But beyond this, two other reaſons of Herod's ſorrow are ſet down by the Evangeliſts, on Mark 6. 20. where 'tis ſaid Herod feared John, and look'd upon him as a juſt and holy man, and thereupon reformed many things upon his inſtance and took pleaſure in hearing him, and that is mention'd as the obſtruction of Herodia's deſign of killing him, *v.*19. A ſecond reaſon is here mention'd v. 5. he feared the multitude,becauſe they counted John as a Prophet, he was afraid to meddle with him becauſe of his popularity, (as the Phariſees were, c. 21. 26.) Both theſe had an influence on Herod,and cauſed this reluctancy to his execution.

c. Εὐλογῆσαι

V. 19. Bleſſed] That εὐλογῆσαι to bleſs ſignifies to give thanks, is ſufficiently known; And the ſame is otherwiſe expreſs'd by praiſing, glorifying, ſinging, confeſſing, calves of lips, but eſpecially giving thanks, and two of them together, ἐν χάριτι ᾄδοντες, Col. 3. 16. with thankſgiving, ſinging or praiſing. The only difficulty here is, whether the Verb εὐλογησε, he bleſs'd, be to be rendred ſo,as to joyn with the bread and fiſhes,or with the word God underſtood, that is, whether it be, he gave thanks to God, or he bleſſed the bread, &c. praying for God's bleſſing upon them. The ſenſe in either notion will be much the ſame. For if he bleſſed, or gave thanks to God,he is to be ſuppoſed alſo to have pray'd for his bleſſing upon them, and ſo if he gave thanks, or pray'd for bleſſing on them, it muſt be to God that this was perform'd. But the uſe of the phraſe in the New Teſtament inclines it (both here and Mark 6.41. and 8. 7.) to the latter notion, that of bleſſing the bread, giving thanks for it; For ſo 1 *Cor.*10.16. where it hath an Accuſative Caſe joyn'd with it, it is ποτήριον the cup, or pot, the cup of bleſſing ὃ εὐλογοῦμεν which we bleſs, which makes it neceſſary to render the word in that place, not to give thanks ſimply, but to bleſs, that is, by giving of thanks, to ſeparate or conſecrate it to a holy uſe, as when Gen. 2. 3. 'tis ſaid of God, that he hallowed the ſeventh day, and bleſſed it. Thus 1 Sam. 9. 13. we read εὐλογεῖν τὴν θυσίαν to bleſs the ſacrifice, that is, by giving thanks to God to conſecrate it. And ſo Luke 9. 16. 'tis clearly (without the notion of any extraordinary Conſecration) of the Loaves and Fiſhes, εὐλόγησεν αὐτούς, he bleſſed them, and brake, &c. And this is ἁγιάζειν to ſanctifie with prayer, &c. 1 Tim. 4. 5. which belongs to the uſe of every creature, and not only of thoſe which are conſecrated to a peculiar uſe in the ſervice of God.

d. Ὀψία

V. 23. Evening] The different ſignification of ὀψίας γενομένης, the evening being come in this verſe, from the ſame phraſe *v.*15. may be obſerved; For betwixt that and this,the people were ſet to ſupper, and riſen again, the Diſciples ſent to take boat, and the multitudes diſmiſs'd by Chriſt, and all that being done, Jeſus goes by himſelf to the mount to pray, and then after that it follows, ὀψίας γενομένης, the evening being come. The ſure way of underſtanding this muſt be by comparing theſe paſſages with the relations of the other Evangeliſts; S. John aſſigns not any part of the day to the former part of the action, but to the latter he doth, John 6. 16. ὡς δὲ ὀψία ἐγένετο, when the evening was come, S. Mark in the firſt place hath a different phraſe, ἤδη ὥρας πολλῆς γενομένης, much time being now ſpent, c. 6. 35. and S. Luke another, ἡ δὲ ἡμέρα ἤρξατο κλίνειν, c. 9. 12. Now the day began to wane. In the latter place, S. Mark reads with S. Matthew, ὀψίας γενομένης, evening being come, and S. Luke proceeds not to that part of the ſtory. By this it is clear, that the latitude of the word ὀψία, which we render evening, is it which muſt reconcile the ſeeming difference. The evening and the morning were the firſt day, ſaith Moſes, and ſo 'tis clear that the ὀψία ſignifies all from the beginning of the evening, till the next morning, the ſpace of the Suns being ſet, as the morning is of the Suns being up. So Mat. 28. 1. ὀψὲ Σαββάτων, the evening of the Sabbath is immediately attended with τῇ ἐπιφωσκούσῃ εἰς μίαν σαββάτων, the light of the morning of the firſt day of the week, and here the firſt thing, after this laſt ὀψίας γενομένης, is the fourth watch of the night, that is,toward morning. According to this latitude, the declination of the day, the Sun-ſetting in S. Luke, and the much time being ſpent in S. Mark, is by S. Matthew call'd ὀψία, v. 15. And the night time (for so it was, when they were a rowing in the river, and he at his prayers in the mount) is by all the three Evangelists, that mention it, call'd ὀψία too. See note on Mark 14. c.

V. 34. Genesaret] The place called כפרנח in Jo-
c. suah (and used by the Hierusalem Targum, Numb. 34.
Γεννεσαρὲτ 15.) was after commonly call'd Genezar, saith Jose- phus, from the Chaldee גניסר, which was the rendring of that Hebrew; from both which put together, ariseth the word here, Genezareth, that is, the valley of branches; and this as the title of the whole Province, which contain'd in it the Lake so call'd, and the City in the Tribe of Nepthaly, which Herod adorn'd with magnificent buildings, and call'd it Tiberias in honour of Tiberius Cæsar, and accordingly the Lake of Genezareth is sometimes call'd the Sea of Tiberias.

Paraphrase.

CHAP. XV.

1. THen came to Jesus Scribes and Pharisees which were of Jerusalem, saying,
2. Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they
a. 2. Before meat, as the Jews think themselves obliged to do. a wash not their hands [when they eat bread.]
3. But he answered and said unto them, Why do you also transgress the command-
3. The observance and practise of those things ment of God by [your traditions?]
which are not taught by God, but by your selves delivered to your disciples? Sure this must be acknowledged by you a great fault, who expect to have all your own ordinances observed so punctually.
b. 4. Useth them ill in words or deeds, that lightly regards them, that refuseth to do ought for them, v. 9. 4. For God commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother, and he that b [curseth [father or mother] let him die the death.
c. 5,6. But contrary to this, your tradition is, that if a man can answer his parents, when they need any relief, and tell them, saying, I have bound my self by an oath that I will not do any thing to the relief of my father and my mother; or, as some will understand it, O Father, that by which thou shouldst be received by me, is a gift already devoted to God, and cannot without impiety be otherwise employed, and by this piety to God, I may be as profitable and helpful to thee, for God will repay it upon me and thee, in our needs, he is under obligation not to give it his father, or (as some would have it in pursuance of the latter interpretation) He hath said enough to his parents, or, he shall be free from that obligation to relieve them. (See note on 1 Pet. 3. d.) Here is a clear example to demonstrate that you that stand so for the observing of your traditions, do make no scruple to evacuate the obligation of Gods commands.
5. But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, It is a c gift by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me,
6. And honour not his father or his mother, † he shall be free. Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect] by your tradition.
† It is an interdict, or he is obliged.
7. Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophecy of you, saying,
8. This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips: but their heart is far from me.
9. The service which they perform to me is little worth, and constitutions set up instead of them. See Mark 7. 7. and Heb. 8. note a. 9. But in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the * traditions of men.]
* injunctions, ἐνταλμάτα
10. And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear and understand.]
10. And leaving the Pharisees with some dislike, he calls the multitude, (who while he talk't to the Pharisees, stood at some distance) and speaks more hopefully of, and cheerfully to them, saying, To this matter of washing before meat, so insisted on by the Pharisees, do you consider what I now say.
11. Not that which is eaten, but that which is spoken, polluteth any man.
11. Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man, but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.]
12. Gall'd and discourag'd from receiving thy doctrine.
12. Then came his disciples, and said to him, knowest thou that the Pharisees [were fended] when they heard this saying?
d. 13. To this he gave no other reply but this, All such as they, which come with such prejudices, as the Pharisees do, that prefer their own injunctions before the commands of God, v. 9. 'tis to be expected, that the telling them the truth will alien them. All seed but that which falls on the good ground, and is there radicated in Humility and Piety, such as my father owns the planting of, shall certainly come to nought. And consequently so must all faith in these opinionative men, and therefore 'tis not strange if they be galled, and depart from me, upon the noting and reproving of their errors.
13. But he answered and said, Every † d plant which my heavenly father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.]
† plantation, φυτεία
14. If this have gall'd and discouraged and drove them from me, let them go, They are stupidly and perversly ignorant themselves, and take great pleasure to be accounted Doctors, and Rabbi's, instructors of the ignorant, and what can be the effect of this, but that the leaders, and they that are led by them, shall together ingulf themselves in perdition.
14. Let them alone, they be blind leaders of the blind, And if the blind lead the blind, they shall both fall into the ditch.]
15. Tell us the meaning of
15. Then answered Peter, and said unto him, [Declare unto us] this parable.
16. And Jesus said, Are ye also * yet without understanding?
* still all this while, ἀκμὴν.
17. Every thing that we eat, first comes from without, and so is no part of us, is not imputable to us in respect of the principle, and then doth but pass or travel through us, is soon dispatched, and thrown out of the body again, and so be it never so gross, never so unclean, it cannot pollute the eater, at least not comparably so much as that which hath the original from our selves, and have some space of permanency there.
17. Do not ye yet understand, that [whatsoever entreth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?]
18. But unclean, unsavory speeches, 'tis clear that they proceed from the heart, and those that are there, that is, in the heart, that sprang from that fountain, which we are most concerned to keep pure, and which is most truly and properly ours, and imputable to us, those are the sort of things that may most reasonably be deemed to defile any man.
18. But those things which proceed out of the mouth, come forth from the heart, and they defile the man.]
e. 19. For out of the heart proceed e * evil thoughts, murthers, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, † blasphemies.
* wicked machinations, or, designs. † railings, or, slanders βλασφημίαι.
20. But so meerly corporeal and external a thing as omitting to wash before meat, cannot be thought to defile any man.
20. These are the things which defile a man. [But to eat with unwashed hands defileth not a man.]
21. Then Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.
f. 22. An heathen woman born in Phenice, hearing of his miracles, and that he was now come thither, came to him on purpose.
22. And behold [a f woman of Canaan came] out of the same coasts, and cried unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David, my daughter is grievously vexed with a Devil.

23. But

23. But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came, and [besought him, saying, g Send her away,] for she crieth after us.

23. Entreated him (see note on John 4. b.) saying, do that for her that she desires, that she may be quiet. g.

24. But he answered and said, [I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.]

24. My mission is purposely to the Jews, to reduce them to repentance, and so to shew my miracles among them.

25. Then came she and [worshipped him] saying, Lord help me.

25. Fell down and besought him.

26. But he answered and said, It is not meet [to take the childrens bread, and to cast it to dogs.]

26. To work these miracles and cures on a heathen, which were destin'd to God's people the Jews.

27. And she said, [h * Truth, Lord, yet the dogs eat of the crumbs, which fall from their masters table.]

* Yea, or, I beseech thee.

27. I beseech thee, Lord, for altho' it be as thou saist, yet 'tis ordinary that the dogs lick up the remainders and scatterings of the table, and so may the Gentiles be admitted to partake of thy mercies to the Jews. h.

28. Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith, be it unto thee, even as thou * wilt. And her daughter was made whole from that very [hour.]

28. Instant point of time.

* desirest, θέλεις

29. And Jesus departed from thence, and came [nigh unto the sea] of Galilee, and went up into a mountain, and sat down there,

29. To the coast by the side of the sea.

30. And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, [dumb, maimed, and many others] and cast them down at Jesus feet, and he healed them.

30. Deaf, and, by that, dumb, men that had lost their limbs, and many more sick of other diseases.

31. Insomuch that the multitude wondred, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see [and they glorified the God of Israel.]

31. And they all, whether Jews or Gentiles, acknowledg'd this to be a wonderful work of mercy wrought by the God of Israel, and such as no other God was able to do.

32. Then Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat, and I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint by the way.

33. And his disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness, as to * fill so great a multitude?

* feed, or satisfy, χορτάσαι

34. And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? and they said, seven, and a few little fishes.

35. And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground.

36. And he took the seaven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

* satisfied, ἐχορτάσθησαν

37. And they did all eat, and were * filled; and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets full.

38. And they that did eat, were four thousand men, besides women and children.

39. And he sent away the multitudes, and took ship, and came into the coasts of i Magdala.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Ch. XV.

a. Νίπτεσθαι χεῖρας

Ver. 1. Wash not their hands.] A Custom this was taken up among the Jews, and so strictly commanded one another, that he that should not observe it, was thought guilty of an heavy crime, and a Capital. So saith Rabbi Aquiba, He that takes meat with unwashed hands, is worthy of death; and therefore having, in prison, water given him for his use, to wash, and to drink, having by Accident spilt one half of it, he washed his hands in the remainder, thinking it more necessary to do so, then to drink, and to die, then to violate the Traditions of his Ancestors. Hence is that of another Jew, Rabbi Jose, that to eat with unwashed Hands, is all one as to lye with a Whore.

b. Κακολογίω

Ver. 4. Curseth, &c.] The words of this second Text, being by our Saviour taken out of Exodus 21. 17. and set down punctually out of the Septuagint, κακολογίω, according to the scope of Christ, must have the extent of the signification of the Hebrew radix, קלל, and therefore it signifies, First, Positively, doing, or, speaking injuriously to any; and Secondly, Privately, lightly regarding, in words, or deeds, and so not maintaining them in their need. For as this is the thing to which Christ's scope directs the signification of it here, so קלל the word used in all the Texts to which this refers, Exodus 21. 17. Levit. 20. 9. Proverbs 20. 20. signifies vilependere, contemnere, parvi facere, to slight and contemn, and set at naught (as in Pibel most usually maledicere.) So Ezek. 22. 7. πατέρα καὶ μητέρα ἐκάκολόσων, say the Septuagint, where we rightly render it, set light by Father and mother; and although every part of this was not so far meant, Exodus 21. 17. as to bring temporal death on all, that did thus neglect their Parents, yet it is thus fitly extended by Christ in the following words, as bringing danger of eternal death on those, who though they did not in plain words curse their Parents (which the Pharisees told them, was all that was meant by that Text) would not yet do ought for them, and so in St. Paul's Judgment, 1 Tim. 5. 8. were worse then Infidels. It is here farther observable, that ὁ κακολογῶν signifies here indefinitely, every Man, whosoever he be, not accepting any under what vow ſoever, for ſo 'tis in Lev. 20. 9. אש איש ἀνθρωπος ἀνθρωπος, ſay the Septuagint, every man, or what man ſoever.

c. Κορβᾶν Δῶρον

V. 5. Gift] A ſolemn form of devoting there was among the Jews, called ἐυχὴ ἀφελείας, and tho' very contrary to charity, yet frequent among them, to bind a mans ſelf by vow, or execration, that he will in nothing be beneficial to his neighbour, his parent, &c. ὅρκῳ ἢ ἀγρειοπρεπεῖ τινὶ τρόπῳ τῶν ἤθων, ſaith Philo, he confirms by oath the barbarouſneſs and ferity of his diſpoſition. And this was called by them Corban, and is often in this ſenſe to be met with in the Miſnaioth, and in Maimonides, and is the word uſed in Mark 7. 11. and is all one with δῶρον a gift here. And what is thus paſſed under their vow, is, ſay they אשור, that is, utterly forbidden or unlawful, or אשור כקרבן unlawful as Corban, which being conſecrated, muſt not be touch'd, or employed to any other uſes: Which therefore in all probability is the word omitted in the Ellipſis, which others ſupply by ἀναίτιος ἔσται, he ſhall be free, but ſhould rather be, he is obliged, may not give his father. So that the plain meaning of the place is, A Father being in want requires relief of his Son; the Son anſwers that he hath vowed he will not, and ſo that to him it remains not lawful to relieve him: And the Phariſees approve of this practiſe, that he may thus evacuate his duty to his parent, and, tho' quite contrary to the precept of honouring and relieving them, yet it was by them thought obligatory to the fruſtrating of that commandment, and many caſes are ſet down wherein it doth ſo, in Maimonides and the Rabbines. See Mr. Pococke Not. Miſcell. p. 414. and ſo this without queſtion is it, which is here charged on the Phariſees by Chriſt; But that which is more ordinarily received by the Ancients, and which Origen had from an Hebrew, is, that Corban and δῶρον are (in the ſenſe of it, Lev. 1. 2. and 7. 14. &c.) a gift conſecrated to God, and ſo ſaith Theophylact the Phariſees (covetous greedy perſons) perſwading children to give nothing to their parents, but to conſecrate all to the treaſury of the Temple, taught them to ſay, O Father, that which thou deſireſt to be profited by me (that is, relieved) is a gift, that is, conſecrated to the Temple, and ſo they divided with the children all that they had, καὶ οἱ γονεῖς καταλιμπάνοντο ἀσπόρχόμιστοι, the poor old parents were left without any relief in their old age. This interpretation is probable alſo, yet appears not to be agreeable to the Jewiſh practice, for among them are no foot ſteps of any cleaving to God, or conſecrating, in this matter, as the teſtimonies produced by Mr. P. do evidence. However it be, the words in Greek have an Ellipſis, moſt fitly to be ſupplied, as was ſaid by אשור an interdict, or it is unlawful to break my vow, and not as others ſupply it by adding, ſhall be guiltleſs, or, ſhall be free, that is, from the obligation or puniſhment attending that prohibition, or, there is no more required, or, this is enough, or the like.

d. φυτεία

V. 13. Plant] the word φυτεία plantation here ſignifies not one ſingle plant, but a garden, or nurſery of plants; and ſo fitly belongs to a multitude of men, a ſect, or ſort as here of the Phariſees, v. 12. which followed Chriſt, and heard his doctrine. The only difficulty is, what is meant by ſuch a plantation being planted, or not planted by God. And that will be beſt conjectured from the context. At one ſaying of Chriſt the Phariſees were ſcandalized, gall'd, and diſcouraged from following him, or entertaining his doctrine, v. 12. And when Chriſt is told of this, his only anſwer is, Every plantation which is not planted by God, ſhall be rooted out, Whereas their being ſcandalized, or diſcouraged from following him, is the rooting out of his plantation, ſo their manner of following, believing, entertaining of his doctrine is expreſs'd by God's having not planted that plantation. The bottom of it is, that Faith, which comes from God, as founded on his teſtimony, and terminated in his doctrine, will extend it ſelf infinitely to all that ſhall come ſo teſtified, and ſo to the whole doctrine of Chriſt, as well as to any part of it, it being certain that God cannot lie, or bear teſtimony to any, that ſhall ſay any thing falſe, and as certain, that all Chriſt's doctrine, particularly this, v. 11. hath a tincture of divinity upon it. And therefore, they that profeſs to hearken to Chriſt, and to receive his doctrine in ſome things, but not in all, to follow him a while, and then to quarrel with his doctrine, when it agrees not with their humour, it is hereby evident, that the faith which is in them, is not founded on God's teaching or teſtifying, (ſee c. 16. 17.) is not his ſeed received into a humble, obedient, honeſt heart, (which is a mould that receives all that comes from God, and brings forth fruit abundantly, c. 13. 23.) but is founded on ſome other principle, the gratifying their humours, or intereſt, &c. and accordingly as the ſeed that fell on ſtony ground, ſoon withered away, (that kind of believer, when tribulation came, was ſcandalized, fell off and forſook Chriſtianity) ſo this kind of partial, hypocritical faith of them that believe Chriſt's doctrine no farther than they like it, is ſure not long to laſt, whenſoever a croſs doctrine comes, as here they are ſcandalized, and fall off from Chriſt, the plantation being none of God's, is rooted out. By this will be diſcern'd, what is meant by διδακτοὶ, being taught of God, by having any thing revealed from God, c. 16. 17. that is, when as God by his teſtimony of Chriſt, or the H. Ghoſt's deſcent on the Apoſtles, teſtifies the truth of any doctrine, ſo the humble, obedient believer receives it as God's, and without conſideration of any humane or carnal motives, imbraces it whatever it is, how ſtrange or ungrateful ſoever. Θεοδίδακτοι

e. Διαλογισμοὶ

V. 19. Evil thoughts] Διαλογισμοὶ cannot well in this place ſignify reaſonings, bare thoughts, without ſubſequent actions, becauſe they are here ſaid to come out of the heart, and to come out of the man. Mat. 7. 20. it may therefore poſſibly be wicked talking, from λόγος ſpeech, and not λόγος reaſon, according to which it is that Heſychius renders it ἀδολεσχία loquacity, garrulity, and ſo 'twould accord with the mention of the mouth, v. 11, 18, 19. But it may well be that that the mouth there may be uſed by a Synecdoche for the outward man, as in Mark 'tis ſet, out of the man, and then other circumſtances there are of the Context, which will, I conceive, ſuggeſt another ſignification of the word, which may be moſt agreeable to them. Our Saviour here mentions ſeveral ſins againſt the ſecond Table, againſt the ſeventh Commandment, adulteries and fornications together, and by ſetting fornications after adulteries, I ſuppoſe he means a fouler ſort of that ſin, unnatural uncleanneſs, ſuch as is meant by πορνεία in many other places. Then againſt the eighth, Theſts of all ſorts; the word κλοπαὶ will belong to greater and leſſer kinds of that ſin, and ſo no other word is added to it. Then againſt the ninth, falſe witneſs, and βλασφημίαι, that is, defamations and railings (as that word being annexed to ψευδομαρτυρίαι certainly ſignifies here; and ſo in Cyrils Lexicon βλάσφημος, maledicus, Βλασφημία, infamia, and Βλασφημῶ, jurgo, maledico) by which 'tis plain, that he mentions the ſins againſt the ſeveral Commandments in the order wherein the Commandments are ſet; and in two of them he ſets down two ſeveral words to comprehend all the ſins againſt thoſe commandments; and the latter of the two an higher ſin then the former. This makes it very probable, that as φόνοι murthers, the breach of the ſixth Commandment, is ſet immediately before adulteries, the breach of the ſeventh, and the word murthers ſignifying the higher part of that ſin, actual bloodineſs or killing, ſo the πονηροὶ διαλογισμοὶ ſhould be ſet to ſignify that which is the degree next to actual murther, and ſo note wicked machinations, or conſpiracies againſt the life of any man; and that not only from the force of the word πονηροὶ wicked, but of διαλογισμοὶ too, by which מומה (vafricies, machinatio ſtratagema) is rendred, Pſ. 139. which is in other places rendred ἐπιχείρημα conatus, machinatio, Jer. 23. 20. and 30. 20. and ſo the ordinary Hebrew word חשב for διαλογίζομαι, is ἀρχιτεκτονέω, Ex. 31. 4. μηχανεύομαι, 2 Chron. 26. 15. μηχανάομαι, Zach. 7. 10. Thus Gen. 6. 5. with the wickedneſs of man which was great on the earth, and for which the flood came, (by which is to be underſtood that violence mention'd Πορνεία Βλασφημίαι

v. 11.

v. 11. and 13. and that blood-guiltineſs which is particularly forbidden the ſons of Noah after the flood, *Gen.*9.6. and hedged in with a ceremonial ordinance, *v.*4.) is joined the imagination of the thoughts of his heart, which was only evil continually, no doubt meaning theſe wicked bloody machinations, and ſo 1 Mac. 2.63. διαλογισμὸς ὠπῆ is the heathen Tyrants bloody machinations againſt God's people. Thus Luke 6. 8. Chriſt knowing their διαλογισμὸς (where that it ſignifies not their ſecret reaſonings of thoughts, appears by the parallel in *Mat.*10.12. where they openly ask him the queſtion, Is it lawful, &c.) it muſt therefore note their treacherous deſigns againſt him, to which this queſtion was ſubſervient, that that they might accuſe him. And Luke 2.3. ἐκ πολλῶν καρδιῶν διαλογισμοὶ are the ſeveral deſigns and machinations of men, which lying hid in their hearts, are by the means there mention'd, the coming of Chriſt, brought forth ἐκ τῶν καρδιῶν, out of their hearts, and ſo revealed. And thus Phil. 2. 14. διαλογισμὸς are added to γογγυσμοὶ murmurings, and both of them together look'd on as ſins, that would much blemiſh the Chriſtian profeſſion among the enemies thereof, but above all, the uſe of the word in this ſenſe is moſt commodiouſly appliable to 1 *Tim.*2. 8. where he commands all that pray in every place, to do it, lifting up pure hands, without wrath, and διαλογισμοὶ, where ſure as wrath ſignifies bloody-mindedneſs, malice, &c. ſo διαλογισμοὶ is the contriving of that, the deſire of which was contained in the former word, according to that of *Iſa.*1. where the hands being full of blood, that is, their bloody ἐγχειρήματα (as they are all one with διαλογισμοὶ) are the things that ſo blemiſh their prayers, and make them odious in God's ſight. 'Tis indeed in S. Mark c.7.21. only κακοὶ διαλογισμοὶ, and there the order of the ſins according to the decalogue is not obſerved, and many more are named then here; but becauſe in this place the order is more exact in all the other, it muſt be ſo in all probability in this alſo, and if the notion of διαλογισμοὶ be rightly obſerved in the other places, eſpecially in that to Timothy, then ſure κακοὶ being joined to διαλογισμοὶ will ſignify ſuch wicked or evil machinations, and not ordinary evil thoughts. Thus doth the word ſeem to be uſed in the Epiſtle of Clemens Romanus to the Corinthians, *p.*30. ἐδίν λέληθεν αὐτὸν τῶν ἐνοιῶν ἢ μέλλ, ἐδὲ τῶν διαλογισμῶν ὧν ποιύμεθα, The machinations (meaning thereby ſeditions and factions) which they were guilty of, or which they are ſaid to have committed, or acted, which concludes the word to ſignify ſomething beyond thought. Of this word ſee more, *Rom.*14. note a.

f. Καναανιτις Σροφοίνισσα

V. 22. Woman of Canaan] This woman of Canaan is Mark 7.26. called a Syrophœnician, that is, as the Context here ſhews, a Phœnician of Tyre and Sidon, for in thoſe maritime coaſts Chriſt now was, v. 20. This borders upon Syria, as we ſee in Pliny, Nat. hiſt. l. 5. *c.*12. Qui ſubtiliùs dividunt, circumfundi Syriâ Phœnicen volunt, eſſe enim primùm oram maritimam Syriæ ab Arabia,—deinde Phœnicen (as * Budæus out of an ancient copy hath reſtored that place) they that divide more ſubtilly affirm Phœnice to be bounded by Syria, for that there is firſt the ſea-coaſt of Syria toward Arabia, then Phœnice, &c. And ſo * Dionyſius having reſolved of Syria, ταύτης ἀλὶς ἔγγυθεν ἔρπει, that it creeps cloſe upon the Sea, adds, that all the inhabitants are not of one name, but ſeverally called,

'Οι μὲν ἐπ' ἠπείρου, πίπτερ Σύριοι καλέονται,
'Οιδ' ἅλὸς ἐγγὺς ἐόντες, ἐπωνυμίην Φοίνικες.

Thoſe that are on the continent are called Syrians, but thoſe which are near the ſea have the ſurname of Phœnicians, that is, are called Syrophœnicians, not after the account, wherein the Lybophœnicians are in * Livy, miſtum Afris Punicum genus, a ſort of Phœnicians mingled with the Africans, but only as bordering upon Syria, or in * ſome accounts, part of it, for ſo they that divide Syria into into five parts, name τὴν παραλίαν Φοινίκην, Phœnice by the ſea-ſhore, for one, and * Euſtathius ſpeaking of that Syria, which is περὶ τραχωνίτιν καὶ τὴν Ἰτυραίαν κάλπεν, adds τετάρτην ἡ Φοινίκη, this is Phœnice, &c.

Now Phœnice and Canaan are the ſame region (and the learned * Bochart's conjecture is very ingenuous, that the Greek word φοίνιξ is lightly changed from בני ענק the ſons of Anac, which we know were in Canaan, *Num.*13.33.) and to the land of Canaan ארץ כנען, Ex. 16.35. is by the LXXII. rendred Φοίνικη Phœnice: and ſo Shaul, *Ex.*4.15. is by them called Σαὺλ ἐκ τῆ Φοινίσσης, Shaul of the Phœnician; but *Gen.*46.10. υἱὸς Χαναανίτιδος the ſon of a Canaaniteſs woman. So when their ſcituation is ſet down, *Numb.*13. 29. 'tis ſaid expreſly, the Canaanites dwell by the Sea, and that aſſures us of their inhabiting Phœnice. And therefore as the Phœnicians were famous for merchandiſe, and cunning, and ſubtilty therein,

The Phœnicians are famous Merchants, &c. and they were the firſt that adventured on navigation, and the firſt that invented merchandize by ſea, and from them Euſtathius, ἐμποριϰοὶ οἱ Φοίνικες ϰ᾽ πρακτῆρες, ϰ᾽ τρῶκ- In Dionyſ. ται, ϰ᾽ παντα χῆ πλωιζόμενοι, The Phœnicians were merchan- p. 65. dizers, trafickers, and great Navigators) ſo we have it obſerved of Canaan in the Scripture; thus Hoſ. 12. 7. 'tis ſaid of Ephraim, כנען He is Canaan, (we from the Chaldee render it, a merchant) the balances of deceit are in his hand, &c. ſuch it ſeems the Canaanites were to a Proverb. And ſo of Tyre, *Iſa.*23.8. whoſe merchants are Princes, whoſe trafickers are the honourable of the earth. And that which is ſaid by the Heathens of the original of letters and literature, confirmeth the ſame. It was brought, ſay they, by Cadmus, from the Phœnicians, theſe Phœnicians of Tyre (as * Euſtathius ſaith of Hercules, ὁ Φοῖνιξ ἤτοι ὁ Τύϱι, the Phœnician, that is, the Tyrian) for Cadmus was a Tyrian, and therefore as by Lucian he is called Συροφοίνιξ ἔμπορ, a Syrophœnician merchant, ſo elſewhere he is Κάδμ ὁ νησιώτης, Cadmus the Iſlander, as being of this Iſland Tyre. From this Tyrian or Phœnician, ſay they, was learning brought to the Greeks, that is, from the Hebrews, the Inhabitants of Canaan, according to that of * Laertius, that Philoſophy was ſaid to have had its beginning from Barbarians, and of Clemens and the Fathers, that the Greeks * ſtole all they had from the Jews. This ſame woman is by S. Mark called ἑλλὰς a Grecian, either in reſpect of her religion, that ſhe was not of the Jewiſh profeſſion, or elſe as all that were not Hebrews were called Greeks, and as the Greeks call all other nations Barbarians, and as the Turks call ſeveral nations Franks.

g. Ἀπόλυσον

V. 23. Send her away] The Diſciples ſpeaking to Chriſt to diſmiſs her ſeemeth not here to mean, that he ſhould ſend her away without doing what ſhe deſired, ſend her away empty, but that he ſhould ſatisfy her requeſt, and ſo diſpatch or diſmiſs her (as when a maſter bids the ſervant diſmiſs the poor body, his meaning is, that he ſhould give him his dole) this ſenſe accords with Chriſt's anſwer, which is, that he is not ſent ſave to the houſe of Iſrael, v.24. in oppoſition to this Canaanitiſh woman, which was not ſuch, and v. 26. It is not good to take the childrens bread and caſt it to dogs, which objection of Chriſts is a reaſon, why he ſhould not preſently cure the womans child, not why he ſhould cure it, and ſo argues the ſenſe of the Diſciples (who ſure deſire him to do, that which he did not ſeem to intend to do) to be, that he ſhould grant, not that he ſhould deny her.

h. Ναὶ

V. 27. Truth] The Greek ναὶ is here a ſign of beſeeching, not only of aſſenting, as *Phil.v.*20. ναὶ ἀδελφὲ, I beſeech thee brother, let me, &c. *Rev.*22. 20. ναὶ ἔρχε κύριε, Come Lord, I pray thee. This uſe of the word ναὶ ſeems to be taken from the Hebrew נא which is a form of exhorting or praying, *Numb.*12.13. heal her now, O Lord, נא I beſeech thee. So *Gen.*19.7,8. and 18.30, 32. and ſo in in the word Hoſanna. So in Euripides, ναὶ σὲ τὸν ἁγνὸν ἁγνείας ἐναύλιον, and in Ariſtophanes, ναὶ ναὶ κεκραγότων παιγνίων Δία.

i. Μάγδαλα

V. 39. Magdala] What the Greek here reads Magdala, the Syriack reads Magedu, the vulgar Latin, Magedan, and the ancient Greek and Latine MS. ἡ Μαγαδὰν, Magadan, which makes it probable, that this coaſt of Magdala, is all one with the valley of Mageddon, or Megiddo, which belongs to the tribe of Manaſſes, Joſ. 17. 11. Jud. 1. 27. where Joſias was ſlain, 2 Kings 23. 29. by Pharaoh Neco. For to this belongs the narration of that ſtory in Herodotus, l. 2. Σύροισι πρὸς ὁ Νεκὼς συμβαλὼν ἐν Μαγδώλῳ ἐνίκησε, Neco fought on foot with the Syrians (that is, the Hebrews) in Magdol, and had the victory, and, as it follows, μετὰ τὴν μάχην Καδύτιν πόλιν τὴν Συρίης ἐούσαν μεγάλην εἷλε, After the fight took Cadytis (that is, ſaith Joſ. Scaliger, Cadiſh) which was a great city of Syria.

Paraphraſe. CHAP. XVI.

1. Not being ſatisfied with his former anſwer of the ſign of Jonas, c. 12. 39. they again require ſome farther ſign from him, to Teſtify that the God of Heaven hath ſent him.

1. THE Phariſees alſo with the Sadduces came, and tempting, deſired him that he would ſhew them a ſign from heaven.]

2. He anſwered and ſaid unto them, When it is evening, ye ſay, It will be fair weather, for the sky is red.

3. Ye hypocrites, ye have skill enough to expound and interpret the appearances of the sky, and can prognoſticate what kind of weather it will be, by what at the preſent ye obſerve in the colour of the clouds, And when my preaching in theſe words, [Repent, for the kingdom of God is at hand] and my adding miracles of all ſorts to enforce belief on you, do not yet work on you; Is it not ſtrange, that you cannot diſcern what is coming upon you? Can there be any more certain prognoſtick of approaching deſtruction than this? and are not you much more neerly concerned herein, then in rain or fair weather ye can be? Why ſhould not your ſagacity in other things extend to this alſo?

3. And in the morning, it will be foul weather to day, for the sky is red and lowring. O [ye hypocrites, ye can diſcern the face of the sky, but can ye not diſcern the ſigns of the times?]

4. Tis an argument of great perverſeneſs and falſeneſs in you, that when ſo many miracles have been wrought, and repentance ſo long preached among you, ye now require a ſign from heaven, to evidence that I am a true Prophet, this ye would never do, if ye were not bent againſt all reformation. And ſince ye are ſo, All that I ſhall farther add, is to put you in mind of Jonas's preaching to Nineveh, and to aſſure you, that if ye do not now repent, ye ſhall ſuddenly be deſtroyed. And having ſaid this he departed from them.

4. A wicked and adulterous generation ſeeketh after a ſign, and there ſhall no ſign be given to it, but the ſign of the prophet Jonas. And he left them and departed.]

5. And when his Diſciples were come to the other ſide, they had forgotten to take bread.

6. Take ſpecial heed of the Phariſees and Sadduces, a ſowr and a proud ſort of people, and ſo not fitter compared to any thing then to a piece of ſowr dow, that diffuſeth it ſelf to the whole lump of bread, with which 'tis mixed, as their diſpoſition doth to all their ſect.

6. Then Jeſus ſaid unto them, [*Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Phariſees, and of the a Sadduces.

*Look, and take heed, ὁρᾶτε καὶ προσέχετε

a.

7. And they underſtood not his meaning, but from the mention of leaven, groſly conceited that the occaſion of his ſpeech was, becauſe they had forgotten to bring bread along with them.

7. And they reaſoned among themſelves, ſaying, It is becauſe we have taken no bread.]

8. What a piece of infidelity is this, thus to apply my ſpeech to the want of bread?

8. Which when Jeſus perceived, he ſaid unto them, [O ye of little faith, why reaſon ye among your ſelves, becauſe ye have brought no bread?]

9. Will you never lay to heart, or conſider? have you ſo ſoon forgot how eaſily I am able to relieve your want of Bread? Ye have had two competent Evidences of this very lately afforded you, Five thouſand Men fed with five Loaves, and yet Twelve Baskets of Fragments to ſpare, after they were ſatisfied.

9. Do ye not yet underſtand, neither remember the five loaves of the five thouſand, and how many baskets ye took up?

b. 10. And ſo four thouſand fed with ſeven loaves, and ſeven baskets of Fragments remaining.

10. Neither the ſeven loaves of the four thouſand, and how many b baskets ye took up?]

11. How then could ye be guilty of ſo groſs an infidelity, as to think me ſtill unable to provide neceſſaries for my ſelf and you, and conſequently to ſpeak of Bread when I bid you.

11. How is it that you do not underſtand, that I ſpake it not to you concerning bread: that ye ſhould] beware of the leaven of the Phariſees and of the Sadduces.

12. Then they underſtood their miſtake, how that he had not ſpoken of bread, or leaven literally, but that he foretold them what kind of People all the Phariſees and Sadduces were, and all that were leavened or taught, or received infuſions from them, viz. that all the whole tribe of them were a ſort of hypocrites, Luke 12. 1. who pretended much Piety and love of the Truth, and ſo enquired after ſigns from Heaven, v. 1. but were indeed moſt perverſly and maliciouſly bent againſt Chriſt, and his Doctrine, and would prove the moſt virulent Perſecutors both of him and them, c. 10. 17.

12. Then underſtood they how that he bad them not beware of the leaven of bread: but of the doctrine of the Phariſees and of the Sadduces.

c. d. 13. And being on his way, (Mark 8. 27.) to Ceſarea Philippi, he asked his Diſciples, What opinion have the Multitude, Luke 9. 18. of me? do they take me for an ordinary man? or a Prophet, or what elſe?

13. When Jeſus came into the coaſts of c Ceſarea Philippi, he asked his diſciples, ſaying, Whom do men ſay that I d the ſon of man am?]

14. Some old Prophet of the Old Teſtament, either riſen from the dead (as 'tis clear they expected Elias ſhould come again) or elſe that the Soul of one of them was by way of tranſmigration (which the Phariſees had borrowed from the Pythagoreans) come into his body. See note on John 9. a.

14. And they ſaid, Some ſay that thou art John the Baptiſt, ſome Elias, and others [Jeremias, or one of the Prophets.]

15. He ſaith unto them, But whom ſay ye that I am?

16. To this queſtion Simon Peter particularly rendred an anſwer, Thou art the Meſſias, even the

16. And Simon Peter anſwered and ſaid, Thou art the Chriſt, the] ſon of the living God.

e. 17. This faith of thine is not built upon humane teſtimony, but upon the miracles and doctrines which thou haſt heard and ſeen, which are the teſtimonies of God himſelf, whereby he hath teſtified of me to thee, and ſuch as thou art, Mat. 11. 25. See note on c. 15, d.

17. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Bleſſed art thou Simon Bar-Jonah, for [e fleſh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my father which is in heaven.

18. And

18. And I ſay alſo unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this f rock I will build my church, and the gates of g * hell ſhall not prevail againſt it.]

* Hades.

18. And ſeeing thou haſt ſo freely confeſt me before men, I will alſo confeſs thee, Thou art, &c. that is, The name by which thou art ſtiled and known by me is that which ſignifies a ſtone or rock, and ſuch ſhalt thou be in the building of the Church, which accordingly ſhall be ſo built on thee, founded in thee, that the power of death or the grave ſhall not get victory over it; the Chriſtian Church, now to be planted, ſhall never be deſtroyed.

f. g.

19. And I will give unto thee the h keyes of the kingdom of heaven, and whatſoever thou ſhalt bind on earth ſhall be bound in heaven, and whatſoever thou ſhalt looſe on earth ſhall be looſed in heaven.]

19. And I will give thee (as afterwards to all the twelve, c. 18.18. and more diſtinctly John 20.23.) the keys of the gate of this Court or Kingdom, the Church, of which every one of you is to be the ſteward, (as the keys of the court were given to Eliakim, Iſa.22.22. in token of his being ſteward of the houſe, to admit and exclude whom he pleaſed, that is, both power and enſign of power, Apoc.3.7. to exerciſe cenſures, and by them to exclude men in caſe of their impenitence, either by laying ſome reſtraints on them in the Church, or to turn them out of the gates of this city, and upon repentance to receive them into the Church again. And what you do here, as you ought to do, ſhall be valid in heaven.

20. Then charged he his diſciples that they ſhould tell no man that he was Jeſus the Chriſt.

20, 21. The Diſciples knowing that he was the Meſſias, and having told him ſo, v. 16. he commands that this be not publickly diſcloſed (till after his reſurrection, at which time in his wiſdom he thought it moſt ſeaſonable) telling them that it was neceſſary that Chriſt ſhould be put to death, by the inſtance of the Jewiſh Sanhedrim. See note on chap.8. b.

21. From that time forth began Jeſus to ſhew unto his diſciples, how that he muſt go unto Jeruſalem, and ſuffer many things of the elders, and chief prieſts, and ſcribes, and be killed, and be raiſed again the third day.]

22. Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, ſaying, [i Be it far from thee,] Lord, this ſhall not be unto thee.

22. God forbid, or avert this from thee; or as the Syriack reads, be propitious to thy ſelf, Lord.

23. But he turned, and ſaid to Peter, Get thee behind me k Satan, thou art [an offence unto me,] for thou ſavoureſt not the things that be of God, but thoſe that be of men.

23. A ſnare or ſtumbling block, moving me to that which were a ſin, if I ſhould yield to it, and contrary to the will, courſe, and commandment of God my father. See note on chap.11.c.

24. Then ſaid Jeſus unto his diſciples, [If any man will come after me, let him l deny himſelf, and take up his croſs, and follow me.

24, 25. And not only I, but all that have a mind to be my diſciples and followers (as you profeſs to be) muſt deny their own humane will of ſparing themſelves, indulging and favouring themſelves, and in preparation of mind take up that croſs, and indeed when I am gone, the ſame afflictions which befal me, ſhall purſue them. But yet of this ſtate of theirs this will be obſervable, that perſeverance in the faith will be the only way to relieve and reſcue them out of their preſſures; for they that by perſecutions ſhall be brought to apoſtatize and joyn with the Jews, ſhall with them be certainly deſtroyed in that great ſlaughter of them, and he that ſhall hold out, and venture the utmoſt for the confeſſion of the truth, ſhall be moſt likely to be deliver'd, when they are deſtroyed (unleſs when his ſuffering death is more behoofeful, as mine is now, and then he ſhall, for that enduring, be raiſed again to an endleſs life.) See c. 10. 22. note h. and 2 Pet.1.16.

25. For whoſoever will ſave his life ſhall loſe it, and whoſoever will loſe his life for my ſake, ſhall find it.]

26. For what is a man profited, if he ſhall gain the whole world, and m loſe his own ſoul? Or what ſhall a man give in exchange for his ſoul?]

26. Nay, if by denying me a man ſhould gain ſome advantage at the preſent, what a pitiful bargain would he make of it, although he ſhould gain the whole world, as long as life, (v.25.) eſpecially eternal life were loſt by it? And what price is there imaginable to buy that back again if it be loſt, or what is there that a man would not willingly give for it?

27. For the ſon of man ſhall come in the n glory of his father with his angels; and then he ſhall reward every man according to his works.]

27. For there ſhall be a ſolemn viſitation among the Jews, a time of judgment on them (ſee note m.) wherein there ſhall be a viſible diſcrimination between thoſe which cleave faſt to Chriſt, and thoſe which do not, and ſo likewiſe on all mankind, either in particular viſitation upon kingdoms, or at the day of doom.

28. Verily I ſay unto you, There be ſome ſtanding here, which ſhall not taſt of death, till they ſee the ſon of man o coming in his kingdom.

28. And of this coming of mine againſt my enemies, and to the relieving of them that adhere to me, I tell you aſſuredly, that ſome that are here preſent, John by name, ſhall live to ſee it, that is, that he ſhall not die till that remarkable coming of Chriſt in Judgment upon his Crucifiers, the viſible deſtruction of the Jewiſh Sate.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XVI.

a. Ζύμη Σαδδυκαίων

V.6. Leaven of the Sadducees] That which is here the leaven of the Phariſees and Sadduccees, the infuſions of theſe upon all their followers, is Mark 8.15. the leaven of the Phariſees, and of Herod. And the reaſon may be, either becauſe ſome of the Sadducees were alſo Herodians, adhered to Herod's party, that is, to the Roman government (ſee Note on c. 22. b.) whereas generally the Phariſees were on the other ſide, took Cæſar for an uſurper; Or elſe becauſe Chriſt mention'd all three, the leaven of the Phariſees, and of the Sadducees, and of Herod alſo, each of them deſigning ill againſt Chriſt, and his Apoſtles.

b. Σπυρίδας

V. 10. Baskets] That which is here rendred baskets is not κοφίνους (the word uſed before v. 9. and in the relation of the ſtory, to which that refers, *Mat.*14.20. Mark 6.43. John 6.13. conſtantly retain'd in all the three Evangeliſts) but σπυρίδας which is retain'd alſo in the other ſtory (to which this paſſage refers) Mat. 15. 37. and Mark 8.8. from whence 'tis probable that theſe two, κόφινοι and σπυρίδες, were veſſels of ſeveral quantities, and σπυρίδες much the bigger; ſo large that Saul was let down in one, Acts 9. 25. but what the bigneſs was, or how they differ'd, will not perhaps be worth the pains of enquiry, and however the word basket (being not a note of a limited meaſure or quantity, but only of the kind of the veſſel) may well enough be retain'd in both places.

c. Καισάρεια Φιλίππου

V.13. Cæſarea Philippi] Καισάρεια Φιλίππου is not here ſet to ſignifie that City where Philip the Evangeliſt dwelt; Acts 21.8. The ſtyle is of another Origination, for *Euſeb.Chron.*l.1.p.43. ſaith that Philip the Tetrarch, Herod's brother, built many Houſes in the City Paneas, and having ſo enlarged it, gave it a new name, Cæſarea Philippi, the firſt part in honour of the Emperour, the ſecond of himſelf. And to the ſame purpoſe Joſephus alſo. Whereas that other Cæſarea ſimply ſo call'd, without any addition, in the Acts, was built by Herod, and was in Syria, formerly called Stratonis turris; of that ſee *Ærodius Pandect.rer.Jud.*l.5.tit.21. c.7. where he relates the contention between the Jews and the Syrians before Nero for this City, the Jews ſaid it was a City of Judæa, becauſe built by Herod, and by him Jews planted there; the Syrians that it was in Syria, and that Herod did not found, but only enlarge it, and gave it a new name, and that he built it not for the Jews, becauſe he ſet up Images in the Temple, which are not allow'd by the Jews. Whereupon the Emperour adjudged it to the Syrians.

Ib. Son of Man] That the ſon of man is a title of Chriſt peculiarly (though the moſt humble title, and of leaſt eminence, belonging to his ſtate of exinanition) hath been before ſaid, note on c. 12. a. And ſo here it is ſet to ſignifie Chriſt in that humble guiſe, as a man, or according to his humanity. Where the ſetting of the words in Greek, Τίνα με λέγουσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου; doth ſomewhat incline to read them ſeparately, ſeparately, not μὲ ἢ υἱὸν, that I the ſon of man, but μὲ ἢ) that I am? (and then in a new interrogation, or as the top of the former) ἢ υἱὸν ἢ ἀνθρώπου; the ſon of man? thus Who do they ſay that I am? do they ſay that I am the ſon of man? But the ordinary reading agrees better with the context or queſtion following, where, if Chriſt, had firſt mention'd that phraſe as the title of the Meſſias, and thereby ſo much as by intimation call'd himſelf the Meſſias, he could not probably have ask'd them, v.15. Who ſay ye that I am? The meaning then of the whole is this, I that have done ſuch miracles on one ſide, and ſo am the ſon of man by way of eminence, ſomewhat above other men, and yet live in ſo mean a humane condition on the other ſide, and have call'd my ſelf by no other name among you, pretended to no other title, but that of the ſon of man, Who am I taken to be? In the other Goſpels of Mark 8.27. and Luke 9. 18. 'tis only thus, Who do men ſay, or who ſay the people that I am?

d. Τὸς ἀνθρώπε

c. Σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα

V. 17. Fleſh and blood] The phraſe Σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα, fleſh and blood is an Hebrew phraſe, בשר ודם, ſignifying no more than a meer man here upon the earth, one that hath aſcended no higher than the common ſtate of men. This 'tis ordinary in the Jewiſh Writers, Take one example for all, in Gemara Babyl. ad Cod. Beracboth, where a parable of a rich man (the firſt draught as it were, and monogram of that which is enlarged, and fill'd up with lively colours by our Saviour, Luke 16. 19.) is call'd משל למלך בשר ודם a parable of a King of fleſh and blood, that is, of a humane mortal King here on earth. Thus 1 Cor. 15. 50. Σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα, fleſh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, that is, theſe corruptible, groſs, earthy bodies of ours, till they be refined. So Eph. 6.12. our wreſtling is not againſt fleſh and blood, that is, againſt ordinary humane enemies, but, as it follows, againſt the moſt powerful enemies, &c. and ſo here, when Chriſt tells Peter that that confeſſion of his, That Chriſt is the Son of God, was not founded on any humane reſtimony, nor on the votes and wiſhes of men, which were not much likely to be gratified by this doctrine, but on that ſtronger of God himſelf. And ſo, when S. Paul mentions his call to Apoſtleſhip immediately from heaven, Acts 13. 2. he adds Gal. 1. 16. that he applied not himſelf to fleſh and blood, that is, to any men, to receive miſſion or commiſſion of Apoſtleſhip from them.

f. πέτρος

V. 18. Rock] The name of πέτρος ſignifying a ſtone here, ſuch an one as for the firmneſs and validity is fit to bear the greater ſtreſs and weight in the building, is applicable to the perſon of S. Peter in reſpect of the Church. He was the Apoſtle of the Circumciſion, as Chriſt himſelf was. He was already a very conſiderable Diſciple, joyn'd ordinarily with James and John in the participation of ſome favours, which others enjoyed not, (though in Chriſt's favour John enjoy'd the firſt place, Joh. 13.25.) he twice made confeſſion, with greateſt boldneſs, of Chriſt's being the Meſſias, and ſon of God, Joh. 6.19. and here. And after the Reſurrection of Chriſt, he had among the twelve the honour of his firſt appearing, 1 Cor. 15.5. and proportionably was firſt of all to preach, and make known to the Jews, (but ſo as not to exclude the Heathens) the truth of that which he here profeſs'd, viz. that Jeſus is the Chriſt. In this reſpect it is here told him, that he ſhould be a ſtone, by way of excellence (for amongſt the Hebrews all the Levites were in a common notion of this phraſe call'd ſtones of the Temple) ſuch as (next the corner-ſtone) may alſo be called the firſt ſtone in building the Church of Chriſt, (which when 'twas once built, ſhould never be deſtroyed again) and that he ſhould have a power of governing, ſignified by the keyes, v. 19. yet ſo as that other Diſciples are to be look'd on as foundation ſtones alſo, Epheſ. 2. 20. Revel. 21.14. (ſee note on c. 10. b.) as they are called, after the erecting of it, columns and pillars, Gal. 2.9. that is, principal ſupporters of the Church built, and principal ingredients in the building, and ſo alſo endowed with the power of governing, of binding and looſing, c.18.18. remitting and retaining, Joh. 20. 23. all one directly with that which is here beſtowed on him. So that the application of this whole ſpeech to S. Peter's perſon, doth not either immediately import, or by neceſſary or probable conſequence infer any Oecumenical paſtoral power in him (much leſs in any other perſon, by claim of ſucceſſion from him) over other Apoſtles and their plantations, that is, the Univerſal Church of Chriſt, but only a reverence due to him, who was ſo excellent and principal an inſtrument in the firſt erecting of the Church, and, in proportion alſo, to his Succeſſors in each Church by him planted, as far as they ſhould walk in his ſteps. And for any other priviledges of particular See or Biſhop, upon claim of Succeſſion from him, they cannot appear to belong to any one or more, above all others, by the force of this Text.

g. Πύλαι ᾅδου

Ib. Hell] Hades here (according to the notion of ᾅδης for the ſtate of ἀφανισμὸς before mention'd, note on c.11.i.) ſignifies death, or grave, or deſtruction, and by conſequence Satan alſo, who hath the power of theſe. Then for gates, they may ſignifie firſt power, force, ſtrength, which conſiſts in arms or weapons, which were uſually kept over the Gates of the Cities. Secondly counſel, contrivance, ſtratagems, policy, becauſe they were wont to ſit in counſel in the Gates. Thirdly worldly authority borrowed by Satan from his inſtruments, the heathen powers of the world, becauſe judgment was wont to be exerciſed in the Gates: and ſo theſe three (πὰ τρίσυρα διαβόλε in Macarius his ſtyle) being put together will conclude, that 'tis not all the power and ſtrength, wiſdom and policy, authority and empire in the world, no not death or grave (which are proverbially irreſiſtible, Cant. 8.6.) nor Satan himſelf that ſhall be able to deſtroy this Fabrick now to be erected by Chriſt and his Apoſtles in the hearts of men, though that glorious Temple of Jeruſalem erected by God's own appointment ſhall be deſtroyed. Now that all this ſhall not prevail againſt the Church, may be underſtood either as the Church ſignifies particular perſons (believers, true faithful Chriſtians) of which the Church conſiſts, or as it ſignifies the whole congregation and ſociety of men: As the Church ſignifies the perſons, ſo the phraſe imports, that though Chriſtians ſhall die, yet Death ſhall have no dominion over them, Chriſt ſhall break open thoſe bars, and reſcue them by his reſurrection from the power of the grave; As it refers to the Church in complexo, that is, to the whole congregation of Chriſtian profeſſors, ſo it ſignifies a promiſe of Chriſt, that it ſhall never be deſtroyed ſo as to periſh totally, irrecoverably, but whatſoever change it undergoes in the world, it ſhall again lift up the head, and have as it were its reſurrection; which promiſe is perform'd, if, as it decays or periſhes in one branch or part, it receives and flouriſh in another.

h. Κλεῖς τῆς βασιλείας

V. 19. Keys of the kingdom] What is here meant by the keys is beſt diſcernible by Iſai. 22. where God foretels Eliakim v.20. the ſon of Helkiah, that he will call him, and cloath him with the robe of Shebna (which was over the houſhold, v. 15.) and ſtrengthen him with his girdle, and commit his government into his hand, and lay the key of the houſe of David upon his ſhoulder, and he ſhall open, and none ſhall ſhut, and ſhut, and none ſhall open; By which is noted the beſtowing on him the power of adminiſtring, and ruling the whole family, or houſe of the King, ſo as to entertain and admit into it, and in like manner to exclude out of it, whom he would. And accordingly this being by Chriſt accommodated to the Church, notes the power of governing in it. This primarily, and independently belongs to Chriſt, the holy and true, which hath the key of David, Apoc. 3. 7. where a difference muſt be obſerved betwixt the Key of David, and the Keys of the houſe of David: Keys are an enſign of power, but that power is not all of one kind, it is greater, or leſs, principal and independent, or inferior and derivative, and the ſeveral Keys are emblems of theſe ſeverals. David we know was a King, and independent from any on earth, and conſequently the Key of David notes an independent ſupreme power, and that applied to the Church

Church, belongs only to Chriſt, in that prophetick expreſſion *Apoc.*3.7. But the Keys of the houſe of David notes an inferior power, that of a ſteward in David's family, which being perfectly ſubordinate to him, hath yet the οἰκονομία, the adminiſtration of the affairs of his family intruſted to him. Now Chriſt is the Original, and prime fountain of all power over the whole Church, that ſpiritual kingdom of David, as to whom was given by the father all power in heaven and earth, particularly that of looſing, or remitting ſin on earth, *Mat.*9.6. And this is by Chriſt here communicated to his Apoſtles, and their Succeſſors the Biſhops in the Church as ſo many ſeveral ſtewards. Hence is that of S. Chryſoſt. περὶ ἱερωσ. l.3. That the Biſhops are thoſe faithful ſervants in the parable, whom the Lord ſets over his houſhold, that is literally Stewards. And ſo this agrees perfectly with the promiſe of Chriſt, c.19. of the Apoſtles ſitting on twelve thrones, where the power of judging and governing in the Church, ſet anſwerable to that of the Phylarchæ or chief of the tribes, which was, among the Jews, next unto the Regal, is directly that of the œconomus, or ruler of the King's houſhold, which is here, as in Iſaiah, noted by the keys. And this power being here promiſed to Chriſt to be conferr'd on Peter, a ſingle perſon, ſo that whatever he bound, or looſed, was bound and looſed by Chriſt's affirmation, is by force of the words c. 18. 18. (before the keys were given) whatſoever ye ſhall bind, and ye ſhall looſe, and by the form of conferring it actually, *Joh.*20.23. he breathed on them, and ſaith unto them, Receive the Holy Ghoſt, whoſeſoever ſins ye remit they are remitted, &c. actually and equally inſtated on every of the Apoſtles, and accordingly the fiery tongues deſcended, and ſat upon every one of them. And ſo when Cephas in reſpect of this authority is ſtiled Πέτρος, a ſtone, on which as on a foundation-ſtone, built on Chriſt the head of the corner, this holy city, that comes down from heaven, the new Jeruſalem, the Church of Chriſt is built, 'tis alſo apparent that all, and every the Apoſtles have the ſame title beſtow'd upon them, *Rev.*21.14. where the wall of the city hath twelve foundations, and upon them twelve names of the twelve Apoſtles, of which every one in reſpect of this power and dignity in the Church is particularly compared to a pretious ſtone, v.18. And when the wall of that city, the Church, exactly meted, is found to be 144 cubits, that is, twelve times twelve, 'tis clear that an equal portion or province is aſſign'd to each of them. To which purpoſe is that of Theophylact, Εἰ καὶ πρὸς Πέτρον μόνον εἴρηται τὸ, δώσω σοι, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ πάσι τοῖς Ἀποστόλοις ἐδόθη, though it were ſaid to Peter alone I will give unto thee the keys, yet they were given to all the Apoſtles. And Cyprian, Ep. 27. Dominus noſter Epiſcopi honorem & Eccleſiæ ſuæ rationem diſponens in Evangelio loquitur & dicit Petro, Ego tibi dico, quia tu es Petrus, & tibi dabo claves, & quæ ligaveris, &c. Inde per temporum, & ſucceſſionum vices Epiſcoporum ordinatio & Eccleſiæ ratio decurrit, ut Eccleſia ſuper Epiſcopos conſtituatur, & omnis actus Eccleſiæ per eoſdem gubernetur. Our Lord Chriſt provided for the honour of the Biſhop, and the diſpoſition of his Church, ſpeaks in the Goſpel, and ſaith to Peter, I ſay unto thee, that thou art Peter, and I will give thee the keys, and what thou ſhalt bind, &c. From thence by viciſſitudes of times and ſucceſſions the ordination of Biſhops, and the diſpoſition of the Church doth flow, ſo that the Church is built on Biſhops, and every act of the Church is govern'd by them. And before him Irenæus, l.5.c.20. the Apoſtles deliver'd the Churches to the Biſhops. And many the like teſtimonies. So *Tertullian de Preſcr.*c.32. Sicut Smyrnæorum Eccleſiæ Polycarpum a Johanne collocatum refert, utique & cæteræ exhibent, quos ab Apoſtolis in Epiſcopatum conſtitutos Apoſtoli ſeminis traduces habent. As the Church of Smyrna had Polycarp placed Biſhop there by John, ſo the other Churches are able to ſhew thoſe, whom they have conſtituted Biſhops by the Apoſtles, the children, as it were, of the Apoſtles, who are propagated by them. So S. Athanaſius of the office of Biſhop, that it is one of the things, ἃ ὁ Κύριος διὰ τῶν Ἀποστόλων τετύπωκε, which Chriſt hath formed by the Apoſtles, in his Ep. to Dracontius. And S. Baſil the Great, Ἐπισκοπὴ σεμνὸς Ἀποστολικὴ, Epiſcopacy is the Apoſtolical precedence, or authority over others. And S. Ambroſe, Claves regni cœlorum in Beato Petro cuncti ſuſcepimus ſacerdotes. All Biſhops (that is the notation of Sacerdotes there, ſuch as he then was) received in S. Peter the keys of the kingdom of heaven, de dign. ſacerd. c.6. And Theophylact, Ἔχουσιν ἐξουσίαν δεῖναι καὶ λῦσαι οἱ κατὰ Πέτρον ἐπισκοπικῆς ἀξιωθέντες χάριτος, They that according, or anſwerably to Peter, are vouchſafed the honour or grace of Epiſcopacy, have power to bind and looſe. And generally all the ancient Writers to this purpoſe, even S. Jerom himſelf in *Pſal.*45. Quia Apoſtoli à mundo receſſerunt, habes pro illis Epiſcopos filios, becauſe the Apoſtles have departed from the world, ye have their ſons the Biſhops inſtead of them.

V. 22. Be it far] This form of ſpeech, Ἵλεώς σοι is borrowed from the Hebrews, who uſe it to expreſs the Latine abſit, that is, amoliri malum aliquod, to ſignifie our deſire that ſuch a thing may not come to paſs. So in the Hieruſalem Targum on Gen. 49. 22. Parce tibi Joſephe! ut nè conjicias oculos, that is, God forbid thou ſhouldeſt caſt thine eyes; and on Numb. 31. 50. Parce nobis Moſes Doctor noſter! nè unus aſpexit, God forbid that any of us ſhould have look'd. See Buxtorf. Chald. Dict. rad. חוס. i. Ἵλεώς σοι

V. 23. Satan] The title of Satan here ſignifies according to the uſe of the Hebrew phraſe, 2 *Sam.*19.22. where David rejecting the counſel of Abiſhai, ſaith, Why art thou to me this day לשטן in Satanam for an adverſary; that is, Why doſt thou give me this evil pernicious counſel, and ſo ſupplieſt the true Enemies, or even the Devils place to me? k. Σατανᾶς

V. 25. Deny himſelf] Denying himſelf is renouncing all intereſt, relations, engagements of his own, when they come in balance or competition with Chriſt. Thus ſaith Porphyry of the Gymnoſophiſts among the Indians, that there were two ſorts of them the Θεόπροποι, Divines, by families, and the Semanæi, which were choſen; and of theſe, whenſoever any had once taken the ſtole upon him, ὅτε πρὸς γυναῖκα ὅτε πρὸς τέκνα (εἰ τύχοι καὶ πεπαιδοποιημένος) ἐπιστρέφοιτο, ἢ πρὸς αὑτὸν ὅλως νομίζων εἶναι ἀπωκ. l.4.p. 58,59. he never thought of any return to wife, to children, or at all to himſelf again. l. Ἑαυτὸν ἀρνήσασθαι

V. 26. Loſe] Ζημιωθῆναι to have a mulct inflicted on one, is not thought very fitly to be joyn'd with ψυχὴν, the ſoul, as the Accuſative caſe govern'd by it, but rather to ſtand as a Paſſive, and ἢ ἡ ψυχὴ to be inſtead of καὶ ἡ ἢ ψυχὴ, and ſo not only to belong to the final fatal loſs or damnation of the ſoul, but alſo to any loſs or damage that belongs to it here, as deprivation of grace, nay guilt of ſin, &c. ſo Munſter's Hebrew reads it ישא נזק בנפשו receive damage in his ſoul. Yet may it be read with an Accuſative caſe following the Verb, as in that place of Agathias in the ſpeech of Phartazes to the Colchians, Τί δὲ καρδαινόμεν ἅπασαν τὴν Παρσίδα, δώμεν δ' ἔτι, στρατιὰν ἀνοσίους, τὰς δὲ ψυχὰς ἐζημιωμένοι; What if we gain all Perſia, and loſe our lives, or our ſouls? a place almoſt parallel to this. m. Ζημιωθῆναι l.3.p.82.

V. 27. Glory] The Hebrew שכינה the appearance of God, or, ſpecial preſence, which is call'd his δόξα glory, conſiſts generally in the appearance of his guard, the Angels that wait on him; as when Jacob ſees the viſion of Angels, he concludes, Surely the Lord is in this place. And accordingly here, Chriſt coming ἐν δόξῃ πατρὸς, in the glory of his father, is expreſs'd by μετὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων αὐτοῦ, with his Angels. See note on c.3.k. n. Δόξα

V. 28. Coming in his kingdom] The nearneſs of this to the ſtory of Chriſt's Tranſfiguration, makes it probable to many, that this coming of Chriſt is that Tranſfiguration of his, but that cannot be, becauſe the 27th verſe of the ſon of man's coming in his glory with his Angels to reward, &c. (to which this verſe clearly connects) cannot be applied to that. And there is another place, Joh. 21. 23. (which may help to the underſtanding of this) which ſpeaks of a real coming, and one principal perſon (agreeable to what is here ſaid of ſome ſtanding here) that ſhould tarry, or not die, till that coming of his. And that ſurely was fulfilled in o. Ἐρχόμενον ἐν βασιλείᾳ

John's seeing the προλεθρία, or famous deſtruction of the Jews, which was to fall in that generation, Mat. 24. that is, in the life-time of ſome there preſent, and is call'd the Kingdom of God, and the Coming of Chriſt, and by conſequence here moſt probably the ſon of man's coming in his kingdom, (ſee the Notes on Matth. 3. 2. c. and ch. 24. 3. b.) that is, his coming in the exerciſe of his Kingly office, to work vengeance on his enemies, and diſcriminate the faithful believers from them. And becauſe the way for God to be preſent in one place more then another (as to the preſence of a Glorious appearance or viſion) is by the preſence or ſatellitium of Angels, and becauſe the appearing of them is call'd Schechina or δόξα, glory, and again becauſe theſe Angels are his officers, and employed in his ſervice to puniſh (as when the Angel ſmites with peſtilence, or diſcomfits the enemies armies, deſtroys the murmurers, and the firſt-born of Egypt, and is accordingly call'd ὀλοθρευτὴς 1 Cor. 10. 10. and ὁ ὀλοθρεύων the deſtroyer, Heb. 11. 28. and the like) therefore this coming of his is ſaid to be in the glory of his father, with his holy angels, v. 27. as Jude 14. The Lord cometh with his holy myriads, that is, with his hoſts of Angels, to execute, &c. which it ἁγία εἰδὼς ſeems was an ancient form of ſpeech there cited from the Book of Enock by God's coming with his Angels, to ſignifie his taking vengeance on ſinners.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XVII.

1. Thoſe three of his Diſciples, which had many ſingular favours afforded them above the reſt of the twelve, Peter, and the two ſons of Zebedee, and leaving all the reſt behind, bringeth them up into a high mountain.

1. AND after ſix days Jeſus taketh [Peter, and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart.]

2. Changed into another form, or manner of appearance (expreſſed in the following words, his countenance ſhined, &c.)

2. And was [transfigured] before them, and his face did ſhine as the ſun, and his rayment was white as the light.

3. And behold there appeared unto them Moſes and Elias, talking with him.

4. Then Peter ſaid to Jeſus, Lord let us abide here, and not confort any more with thoſe beneath us: and to that end build three boothes, one for thee and us.

4. Then anſwered Peter and ſaid unto Jeſus, Lord, It is good for us to be here: If thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moſes, and one for Elias.

5. Whatſoever he ſhall teach, is that which you are to receive as my good pleaſure, before any either of the Law or Prophets, Moſes or Elias then appearing, according to that prediction of Moſes himſelf, Deut. 18. 15. Him ſhall ye hear.

5. While he yet ſpake, behold a bright cloud overſhadowed them, and behold a voice out of the cloud, which ſaid, This is my beloved ſon, in whom I am well pleaſed, [hear ye him.]

6. And when Peter, and James, and John heard that voice from heaven, they were amazed and aſtonied for fear, and fell down proſtrate.

6. And when the diſciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were ſore afraid.]

7. And Jeſus came and touched them, and ſaid, Ariſe, and be not afraid.

8. And when they had lift up their eyes, they ſaw no man ſave Jeſus only.

9. Tell not that which you have now ſeen, and heard, to any man, no not to the reſt of your fellow-diſciples, (ſee note on c. 8. b.)

9. And as they came down from the mountain, Jeſus charged them, ſaying, [Tell the viſion to no man,] until the ſon of man be riſen from the dead.

a. 10. And upon the contemplation of what here they had ſeen, and heard, theſe three diſciples asked him ſaying, If this be true that was ſaid by Moſes and Elias in the mount concerning the approach of the great and dreadful day for the deſtroying of God's enemies, and reſcuing his faithful ſervants, Then what is the meaning of that which the Doctors generally teach, that Elias muſt come before that great and dreadful day of the Lord, and the riſing of the ſun of righteouſneſs with healing in his wings, to them that fear God's name? Mal. 4. 2, 5.

10. And his diſciples asked him, ſaying, Why then ſay the Scribes that a Elias muſt firſt come?]

b. 11. 'Tis truly obſerv'd by them from Malachi that Elias is firſt to come, and to do his office of reſtoring and returning the Jews to repentance (ſee Mar. 9. 12.) to preach repentance, and ſo prepare for this famous coming.

11. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, [Elias truly * ſhall firſt come and b reſtore all things.]

* cometh firſt and ſhall reſt, ἐρχόμενος ἀποκατ-ιστάνει.

12. But I ſay unto you that Elias is come already, and they † knew him not, but have done unto him whatſoever they liſted, likewiſe alſo ſhall the ſon of man ſuffer of them.]

12. That it is another perſon that is prophecied of under the name of Elias, which cometh, and that perſon is come and gone already, but not acknowledged by the principal men of the Jews, but deſpiſed by them, and put to death by Herod, and ſo Chriſt himſelf ſhall alſo be, before this great day that now ye hear of.

† acknowledg'd ἐπέγνωσαν.

13. Then the Diſciples underſtood that he ſpake to them of John the Baptiſt.

14. And when they were come to the multitudes, there came unto him a certain man, kneeling down to him and ſaying,

c. 15. The changes of the Moon have ſuch a power on him, that at ſuch times the devil, v. 18. handleth them miſerably, caſting him into fits of the falling ſickneſs, throwing him into the fire or water, whichſoever is next.

15. Lord have mercy on my ſon, for [he is c lunatick, and ſore vexed, for oft-times he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.]

16. Thoſe diſciples of thine that ſtayed beneath when thou wert retired.

16. And I brought him to [thy diſciples,] and they could not cure him.

17. Upon this Jeſus rebuked thoſe diſciples, accuſed them of infidelity and perverſneſs, that when he had been with them ſo long, given them power to heal diſeaſes, and caſt out devils, and in ſome caſes preſcribed prayer and faſting, v. 21. as the means of doing it, they now neglected that means, and ſo were not able to caſt out this devil, this impotency of theirs therefore was very culpable, and ſo here charged upon them by Chriſt, and having done, he calls for the lunatick to be brought to him.

17. Then Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, O faithleſs and perverſe generation, how long ſhall I be with you? how long ſhall I ſuffer you? bring him hither to me.

18. And when he came, Jeſus commanded, and chid that evil ſpirit that brought that diſeaſe upon him; and the devil and the diſeaſe departed from him together.

18. And Jeſus rebuked the devil, and he departed out of him;] and the child was cured from that very hour.

19. Then came the Diſciples to Jeſus apart, and ſaid, Why could not we caſt him out?

20. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, becauſe of your unbelief: for verily I ſay unto you, [If ye have faith as a grain of muſtard ſeed, ye ſhall ſay unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place, and it ſhall remove, and nothing ſhall be impoſſible to you.]

20. I have given you the power of doing all miracles, & directed you to the means which ye are to uſe, in the doing them, and if you did ſincerely believe, though in never ſo weak a degree, the things that I have ſaid to you, and obeyed and practiſed accordingly, ye ſhould by me be enabled to do any thing, that is moſt impoſſible among men, as even to remove a mountain out of the place by ſpeaking to it, (which is literally affirmed to have been done by the gift of miracles) or any thing elſe, as ſtrange, and as difficult as that.

21. * How

* But this ver. 20.

21. * Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting.]

21. Now that which ye fail'd in was this, that ye used not fasting and prayer to this purpose, for that is the method that must be used to the ejecting of this sort of diseases, and of devils, viz. great intention of devotion joined with faith, and if that be not used, it will not go out, and your not using that means, was a want of faith in you, v.20.

22 And while they abode in Galilee, [Jesus said unto them, The son of man shall be d † betrayed into the hands of men, † delivered up.

23. And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again.] And they were exceeding sorry.

22,23. Jesus kept himself as private as he could, Mark 9. 30. telling his disciples the reason of his doing so, because having done so many miracles among them, and wrought so little effect upon them, as that he foresaw he should soon be put to death by them, he thought it not yet seasonable to do any more, till by the addition of his Resurrection from death, he should be more likely to be received and believed on by them. 25. He saith, Yes. And when they were come into house, Jesus prevented him, saying, What thinkest thou Simon? of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their f own children, or of * strangers?]

25. And when they were retired into the house, and Peter was a musing within himself about this business of paying or not paying the tribute-money, and was about to ask Jesus concerning it. Jesus prevented, and asked his opinion, From whom, saith he, do all kind of Kings exact tribute or head-money (so the Syriack renders it) from those of their own family, their own children, &c. or from other folks only?

26. Peter saith unto him, [Of strangers. Jesus saith unto him, Then are the children free.]

26. Never of those of their own household. Jesus replyed, Then this Tribute which is paid to God for his Temple belongs not to me, who am his Son, nor to you who are now domesticks of his.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XVII.

a. Ἠλίας δεῖ ἐλθεῖν πρῶτον

V.10. Elias must first come] By this question of the three Apostles made unto Christ, at his coming down from the mount, may be collected what was the prime matter of the discourse betwixt him, and Moses, and Elias, v. 3. (For that their question should refer to Christ's resurrection from the dead, incidentally mentioned, v.9. is not possible, because the Scribes did not believe that the Messias should die, or rise, nor consequently that Elias should come before that.) Of this Discourse, what was the subject matter of it, there is nothing said either in this Gospel, or in that of S. Mark, but only this, that the disciples asked him, saying, Why then say the Scribes that Elias must first come? By the Scribes are here meant their doctors of the law, those that were skilful (not only in the Law, but) in the doctrine of the whole Old Testament, and so of the Prophets, among whom, *Mal.*4.5. they found, that Elias was to come, before a set time or period, that is, before the great and dreadful day of the Lord; this therefore being it that was asserted by the Scribes, the great and dreadful day of the Lord, the thing, before which, say they, Elias must first come, and the disciples question, Why then do they say that Elias must first come? being an objection against what they had heard discoursed of in the mount, it necessary follows, that that which was discoursed of in the mount, was the approaching of that great and dreadful day of the Lord; Now what is meant by this great and dreadful day of the Lord, appears by the 1st, 2d, and 3d verses of that Chap. Behold the day cometh, that shall burn as an Oven, and all the proud, yea & all that do wickedly shall be as stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name shall the sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings, and ye shall go forth and grow as calves of the stall, and ye shall tread down the wicked, for they shall be as ashes under the soles of your feet, in the day that I shall do this, saith the Lord of hosts. What was the ultimate completion of this Prophecy, (and of the like, Joel 2.11,12,23,33. tho' Elias be not mentioned there) is clear enough the eradication of the wicked obstinate Jews, v.1. and the delivery and preservation of all the humble, faithful penitents out of that destruction, v.2. together with the advantages, that should come to the faithful by that means, as from a victory over enemies, and persecutors, v.3. So in Joel, the fire devoureth before, and the flame consumeth behind, the land, from a garden of Eden becomes a desolate wilderness, yea and nothing shall escape them, v.3. and much more to the same purpose, noting the utter destruction of the Jews, and then, Fear not O Land, be glad and rejoyce, for the Lord will do great things, v.21. Be not afraid, v.22. be glad ye children of Sion, v. 23. and ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the Lord, that hath dealt wondrously with you, and my people shall never be ashamed, v.26. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever calls upon the name of the Lord shall be delivered, for in mount Sion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the Lord hath said, and in the remnant whom the Lord shall call. These two then being the parts of that great and dreadful day, the destruction of the unbelieving Jews that stood out and persecuted and crucified Christ and Christians, and the rescue of a remnant, the persevering believers, & John Baptist being the Prophet, sent into the wilderness, like Elias, to foretel this destruction, & preach repentance for averting of it, there is little reason of doubting, but that that prophecy of Malachy was exactly thus fulfilled, & that consequently this was the matter of the discourse of Elias & Moses with Christ, tho' as in a vision somewhat obscurely and darkly delivered, upon which the Disciples discerning this to be the day spoken of by Malachy, but not discerning that Elias was yet come, (and so that that precedanious part was yet fulfilled) ask Christ this question, why then 'tis resolved on by all that Elias must first come? first, that is, before this great and terrible day of the Lord, which they now heard was approaching, and had nothing to say against it, but the known Scripture-prediction that Elias was first to come. That which hath been thus explained from this advantage of the Disciples question, is indeed the very same with what St. Luke (the only one of the four Evangelists, that mentions any thing of this discourse of Elias and Moses with Christ) relates of it, c.9.31. ἔλεγον τὴν ἔξοδον αὐτοῦ, they related his Exodus, or going out which he should accomplish at Jerusalem, which that it agrees perfectly with what hath here been said, see note on *Luk.*9.c. & 2*Pet.*1. e. And for this discourse Elias indeed and Moses were fit persons to be brought in a vision to deliver it, because Elias was he that call'd fire from heaven upon the enemies of God, and so might fitly represent the destruction of enemies, & Moses, besides the destructions wrought on the Egyptians and Pharaoh, deliver'd the Israelites out of that thraldom and persecution indured there, and so was fitly chosen to represent the deliverance and rescue of true patient persevering believers.

b. Ἀποκαταστήσει

V. 11. Restore.] Ἀποκαταστῆσαι, the word here used is rendred by Hesychius and Phavorinus, to finish or perfect. 'Tis true indeed the ordinary books reads ἀποκαταστῆσαι, τελειῶσαι, but that is a false reading, as it is evident by that which it immediately follows ἀποκαταστάσεις, τελειώσεις, the substantive signifies perfection, completion. According to this notation of the word, this would be the importance of the place, he shall finish or perform, establish, settle all things, both perform all that was prophesied of Elias at his coming, and close and shut up the first state of the world, that of the Mosaical œconomy, making entrance, as an harbinger, on the second, that of the Messias. In this sense it is, that it is said, that the Law and the Prophets were until John, noting him to be the conclusion and shutting up, finishing and closing that state, and that was to be the office of Elias, under whose name John was prefigured. And thus the word ἀποκαταστάσεως clearly signifies, Acts 3.21. the establishing, settling, completing, or fulfilling of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his prophets, &c. and so saith Oecumenius ἀποκαταστῶσι, εἰς τέλος ἐνδῶσι πάντα, for all things to come to an end. But 'tis also certain that this word hath another signification belonging to it, to restore or reduce. So Acts 1.7. when the Disciples demand of Christ, εἰ ἐν τῷ χρόνῳ τούτῳ ἀποκαθιστάνεις τὴν βασιλείαν τῷ Ἰσραήλ; Dost thou at this time restore, or reduce the kingdom to Israel? (that kingdom which was prophesied of, that in the Messias's time, the saints of the most high should take the kingdom and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever, Dan. 7.18.) Christ's answer is, that they were not to know the times and seasons, but be fitted for the ministry by descent of the H. Ghost, and preach the Gospel over all Judea and Samaria, &c. and by that time, Christ had said, Mat. 10. 23. that the son of man should come, that is, should really perform that which is meant by those Prophecies, which they conceived to signify his illustrious delivering and redeeming of Israel, Luke 24.21. and (in that of Acts 1.7.) of his restoring the kingdom to Israel. And so for this place in S. Matthew, it must be observ'd that Mal. 4.6. where Elias's coming is foretold, 'tis there added in the Septuagint, instead of והשיב לב he shall turn the hearts of the fathers (not to, but) with the children, ἀποκαταστήσει καρδίαν, (the word here used) he shall reduce, or restore, the heart, &c. And 'tis evident that this place refers to that, tho' it repeat not the remainder of that verse, but only πάντα instead of it; and doing so, it must then signify John Baptist's preaching of repentance, which is the signification of תשובה, and the importance of that verse in Malachy) and by that means converting them to the faith of Christ, that is, by his preaching, endeavouring, tho' not very successfully to do so. This then being the meaning of that Prophecy in Malachy of a spiritual restoring, bringing them to repentance, or preaching the doctrine of repentance to the Jews, they understood it in a more carnal sense, of restoring them to their splendid state again which they enjoyed before their captivities, and late conquest of the Romans over them. Thus is the word used by Origen against Celsus of the Jews, παῤῥησίως ἐρῶμεν ὅτι οὐκ ἀποκαταστήσονται, We affirm confidently, that they shall not be restored, and Christ acknowledging the Prophecy, gives it the right interpretation, and shews how 'twas fulfilled in John Baptist.

c. Σεληνιάζομαι

V. 15. Lunatick.] The word σεληνιάζεται here coming from σελήνη, the moon, is directly parallel to the English Lunatick from Luna the Moon also. Yet some mistake hath arisen from thus rendring of it. For the English word Lunacy and Lunatick is vulgarly taken to signify a mad man, and nothing else, to wit that species of madness, which comes on men at such a set time toward the full of the moon, as ordinarily 'tis observable in those that have any intervals. But here it is apparent by the nature of the disaffection, and the effects of it, falling into the fire, and water, &c. that it was not any madness that this mans son was affected with, but a plain Epilepsy or falling-sickness, which farther appears by the relation of this same story made by St. Luke, c.9. 39. where 'tis said that the spirit taketh him (λαμβάνει, of which Epilepsy is compounded) and presently he cries καὶ σπαράσσει αὐτὸν μετὰ ἀφροῦ, and it agitates, shakes, boyls within him, and thereby causeth him (as the boyling of a pot) to foam at mouth, and hardly departeth from him, that is, costs him an horrible pain in coming to himself again, as in the Epilepsy 'tis observed, and συντρίβει αὐτὸν, shakes him shrewdly, works a great weakness on all his faculties. All clear and evident symptoms of an Epilepsy; now the reason why this is here expressed by σεληνιάζεται, is because this disease being in the head, as well as madness is, the Moon hath the same influence on one, as on the other. And generally the changes of the Moon affect those that are subject to this disease, and cast them into fits of it, now whereas it is said here, v. 18. that Christ rebuked him, and the Devil went out of him, noting this person to be possess'd with the Devil, and so Luke 9. 39. the spirit takes him, and 42. the devil threw him down, cast him into a fit, and again, Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit. The clear meaning of all this is, that as in those days it was ordinary for the Devil to have power over mens bodies, and having so, to exercise it in bringing diseases upon them (see note on v. 10. a.) so it was here, the Devil, that possess'd him, cast him into frequent fits of Epilepsy, of which there was no way of curing him, but by casting out the Devil. See note on John 7. b. This will generally be observable in all the Demoniacks, which appear to be, by the Devil that possesseth them, brought into some disease or other. And so when men are by the Censures of the Apostles delivered up unto Satan, 'tis said to be εἰς ὄλεθρον σαρκὸς, to the destruction of the flesh, that is, to the bringing some sore disease upon them.

d. Παραδίδοναι

V. 22. Betrayed] Some difference there is betwixt παραδίδοναι, and προδιδόναι tradere, and prodere; the latter is ordinarily taken for treachery, falseness to him, whose part we take, whether by going over to the enemies part, or betraying secrets, but the former is somewhat more, not only to reveal those things to the enemy, that may be hurtful to the friend, but to deliver him (master, captain, friend, fort) into the enemies hand, who desires to have him and mischief him. So in * Athenæus, l. 5. of Quintus Oppius, παραδοθεὶς δεσμῷ, a prisoner delivered up to custody. So Ps. 88.8. παρεδόθην καὶ οὐκ ἐξεπορευόμην, I was imprisoned, and went not forth. And this is it that is peculiarly affirm'd of Christ here and in other places, he shall be delivered into the hands of men, and of sinners, the Roman Soldiers; and Mat. 26. 3. he shall be deliver'd to be crucified. And therefore altho' the English word Traytor is originally all one with the Latine, traditor, and so to betray with παραδιδόναι here, yet because the ordinary use of the word is for revealing of secrets, or advantages, &c. and is not thought peculiarly to denote that, to which the Greek here belongs, of delivering into the enemies hand, it was therefore more reasonable to render it in this phrase (not so subject by custom to mistake) to deliver up.

e. Δίδραχμα

V. 24. Tribute Money] The δίδραχμα signifies two drachms. The word δραχμὴ is a Greek word, first δραχμὴ, saith Julius Pollux, that is, an handful, as containing so many oboli ænei, pieces of brass money, as would make an handful, to wit, six. This word from the Greeks came not only to the Romans, but after the time of the Seleucidæ, to the Jews also, so Ezr. 2. 69. we have דרכמונים, the Greek word with a very light change, which is by the Septuagint rendred δραχμαὶ, by us drachmes. Now four Attick drachmes make one shekel, or σίκλος, so saith Hesychius and Phavorinus, σίκλος (not τετράγραμμος, as 'tis corruptly read, but) τετράδραχμος. and so v. 27. it appears, one σίκλος was two of these half shekels, which served there for two mens tributes. See note on c. 26. d. Now the truth is, the δίδραχμον ἄγιον, the shekel of the Jews and the Alexandrians, the shekel of the Sanctuary is double as much as the ordinary shekel, or δίδραχμον, and therefore Ex. 30.13. when there is mention of the half shekel, which was to be paid for the use of the Temple, the Septuagint reads τὸ ἥμισυ δὲ δραχμὴ the half of the didrachm, or half shekel, which is all one with a whole didrachm Attick. This sum ſum was yearly paid by every Jew, above twenty years old, to the uſe of the Temple, and ſo continued till Veſpatian transferr'd it to the Capitol, ſo ſaith Joſephus, φόρον ὃν τοῖς ὑπερθήκοσιν ἔτεσιν Ἰουδαίοις ἐπέβαλε δύο δραχμὰς, ἕκαστον κελεύσας ἀνὰ πᾶν ἔτος εἰς τὸ καπιτώλιον φέρειν, ὥσπερ ἔφερον εἰς τὸν ἐν Ἱεροσολύμοις νεὼν ἔμπροσθεν, he commanded that every Jew ſhould pay the yearly tribute of two drachms to the Capitol, as they did before to the Temple in Jeruſalem.

f. υἱοὶ αὐτῶν, ἢ ἀλλότριοι.

V. 25. Own children] That the own ſons here are not the natural ſubjects of the kingdom, and ἀλλότριοι thoſe, whom they have conquer'd, and brought under their dominions, will appear, 1. becauſe the natural ſubjects ordinarily do pay tribute, and the law was clear, Ex. 30. 13. that every Jew ſhould pay his half ſhekel to the Temple. And 2. becauſe to the ſtate of the Jews which now exacted this Tribute (not the Publicans or Officers of Cæſar, this being not collected by them, till 'twas transferred to the Capitol, that is, in Veſpatian's time) there were no ſuch ſorts of men, that were ſo conquer'd by them, which could own that title of ἀλλότριοι in that notion. The words and ſenſe will be clear if it be underſtood thus, that no king impoſes taxes on his own children or family, but on ἀλλότριοι υἱοὶ, alieni filii, that is, the children of other men, as ἀλλότριος δοῦλος is another mans ſervant, oppoſed to ἴδιοι δοῦλοι, his own ſervants, c. 25. 14. (as that is oppos'd to οἰκεῖοι, or ἴδιοι, his own children and ſervants) and therefore by proportion, this tribute to the king of Heaven ought not to be exacted from the ſon of that King, but from others; ſome poſſibility and colour there is, that this tribute here might be a Tax paid to the Romans impoſed under the form of the δίδραχμα ever ſince Pompey had overcome the Jews, or elſe impoſed on them by Auguſtus, and a paſſage in Joſephus de Bell. Jud. l. 7. c. 16. (where he ſaith that Agrippa remitted them the tax which was yearly paid by them) makes it more probable; and it might well be that this was by the Romans impoſed under the form of the δίδραχμα, the known tax among the Jews, as in Cicero's orations againſt Varres we every where ſee, that the Prætor of Syria required the tenths of that Province, which was we know firſt inſtituted by God to be paid the Prieſts. And ſo Chriſt, pleading an immunity (who yet was to fulfil all righteouſneſs, that is, to obſerve the Judaical law) and mentioning the kings of the nations, is thought to encline alſo. But becauſe 1. that tribute in Joſephus, remitted by Agrippa, was paid by each houſe, not by each head, and this here is for each head, and 2*ly*, becauſe, tho' Chriſt as man was reſolved to fulfil all righteouſneſs, and accordingly paid this, yet as God, or here as the ſon of God, he was not bound to it, at leaſt 'twas not the cuſtom (which is all that Chriſt here ſaith) in other places for the children to pay their fathers thoſe taxes which others paid; and thirdly, becauſe 'tis not ſo much as intimated that this was paid to the Kings of the nations, but only that among them 'tis not the faſhion for King's ſons to pay (which Chriſt only accommodates to his own purpoſe) and fourthly, becauſe Chriſt was to live as obediently to the Roman laws (as far as they were of force in Judea) as to the Jewiſh, and to give example of obedience to all that are ſet over us by God's providence (and ſo did in his good confeſſion to Pilate, and making no reſiſtance at his crucifixion) and fifthly becauſe there is no evidence, but only conjecture, that there was any ſuch Roman tax on every head at that time, or that that was δίδραχμα, but on the contrary, the Cæſarean tribute-money is denarius a Roman coyn (ſee note on ch. 22. c.) and if it had been Roman, it would have been gathered by Publicans, and thoſe in all probability would have been here named, whereas on the contrary the perſons are here ſtiled as by a known title, they that received the δίδραχμα. For theſe reaſons, I ſay, the former interpretation of the Jewiſh tax ſeems to be moſt reaſonable, eſpecially when 'tis not very likely that (or imaginable how) Chriſt ſhould call himſelf a child or ſon of the Roman Emperors, to whom that tax was paid. One only queſtion may be farther asked, why the payment ſhould fall particularly on Chriſt and Peter, and not on the reſt of the Diſciples? to which I anſwer, 1. that it no way appears by Chriſt's paying for himſelf and Peter, that the others did not alſo pay; and ſecondly, that it may be very probable that thoſe Receivers did at that time require it only of thoſe that dwelt at Capernaum, and ſo of Chriſt and Peter, and that the reſt paid it in their ſeveral cities.

CHAP. XVIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. AT the ſame time came the diſciples unto Jeſus, ſaying, Who is the greateſt in the kingdom of heaven?]

1. Upon Chriſt's mentioning his reſurrection from death, c. 17. 23. and Mark 9. 31. which they took to be a beginning of his kingdom here, the diſciples enquire ambitiouſly (among themſelves, Mark 9. 33.) who ſhall have the chief place of dignity in that kingdom of the Meſſias here? (ſo again on the ſame occaſion they fall on the ſame thoughts, Mat. 20. 20. Luke 22. 24. and look that way, Acts 1. 6.

2. And Jeſus] called a little child unto him, and ſet him in the midſt of them,

2. And Jeſus willing by an embleme, or viſible repreſentation to ſatisfy this queſtion of theirs, as far as was uſeful to them,

3. And ſaid, verily I ſay unto you, [except ye be converted and become as little children, ye ſhall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.]

3. Unleſs you change your inclinations & deſires, and take your ſelves off from this vain ambitious expectation and purſuit of a carnal kingdom of Chriſt, and of your receiving dignities and preheminencies in it, you can never be true diſciples of Chriſt, this carnal ambition, and projecting being ſo contrary to the Chriſtian temper.

4. Whoſoever therefore ſhall humble himſelf as this little child, the ſame is greateſt in the kingdom of heaven.]

4. Two things therefore I ſhall teach you from this emblem, firſt, that the ſtate of Chriſtianity is ſuch a ſtate, that he which is moſt lowly is moſt capable of eminence in it.

5. And whoſo ſhall receive one ſuch little child in my name, receiveth me.]

5. Secondly, that all the lowlyeſt and meaneſt perſons are ſo dearly valued by me, that he that would do a grateful thing unto me, cannot find any fitter way to do it then by cheriſhing, and treating kindly and tenderly any ſuch mean, lowly perſon, eſpecially if it be by ſhewing kindneſs and tenderneſs to his ſoul, endeavouring to advance that in the ways of godlineſs.

6. But whoſo ſhall offend one of theſe little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a * milſtone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the ſea.]

* milſtone, ſuch as is drawn by an Aſs, μύλος ὀνικὸς.

6. Whereas on the other ſide, he that ſhall gall, diſcourage, drive from me and the Chriſtian practiſe any ſuch meaneſt perſon that comes to me, 'twere for his advantage, that the ſtone of a mill, not ſuch as women turn with the hand, c. 24. 41. but ſo big, that it is faln to be turned by an Aſs, were hung as a weight about his neck, and he then caſt into the ſea, ſure to be hurried preſently to the bottom of it.

7. Wo unto the world becauſe of offences: for it muſt needs be that † offences come, but wo to that man by whom the offence cometh.

† ſcandals σκάνδαλα.

7. Upon this occaſion I tell you before-hand, that great falling off, and apoſtatizing there will be amongſt thoſe that receive the faith, great diſcouragements to obſtruct the receiving of it, many will be ſeduced from the right way (which is a ſad and woful thing) but tho' this be to be expected in reſpect of the wickedneſs of ſome, and ſeducibleneſs of others, and tho' it be not imaginable that the word ſhould by God be kept free from all ſuch temptations to ſin (as God hath thought fit to permit ſuch for the tryal and exerciſe of Chriſtians) yet will this be little matter of excuſe, but rather of aggravation of their ſin and wo, that ſhall be inſtrumental to this end, that ſhall be the authors of them.

8. Wherefore

8. Wherefore [if thy hand or foot * offend thee, cut them off, and caſt them from thee, it is † better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather then having two hands or two feet, to be caſt into fire everlaſting.]

* ſcandalize, σκανδαλίζῃ
† good, καλὸν

8. And therefore I now forewarn you that if any that is neareſt to you (friend, profit, pleaſure, as dear to thee as a member or any part of thy ſelf) go about to diſcourage thee in thy Chriſtian courſe, to withdraw thee either in groſs from the Chriſtian profeſſion, or more particularly from any act of duty to the contrary ſin, thou be ſure to renounce it, part with it: (Mat. 5.29,30.) it being ſo much more elegible, and deſirable for thee to attain eternal bliſs, having in thy life-time been halt or maimed, that is, paſſing through ſome difficulties or auſterities, then by eſcaping thoſe difficulties, to run into ſin, and ſo to hazard everlaſting fire.

9. And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and caſt it from thee: it is † better for thee to enter into life [with one eye] rather then having two eyes, to be caſt into hell fire.]

* good, καλὸν

9. Having here for ſome years loſt the benefit of one of thine eyes.

10. Take heed that ye deſpiſe not one of theſe little ones, for I ſay unto you, That in heaven their a Angels do always behold the face of my father which is in heaven.]

10. It is a matter of great moment, then, worthy your ſaddeſt care, that you do not undervalue or neglect the good, and advantage of any the meaneſt perſon, to whoſe reformation, or eſtabliſhment, ye are able to contribute any thing, but eſpecially that you take care leaſt by neglecting to do what is in your power to do toward the recalling, or confirming, or elſe by any other means (tho' but occaſionally) ye prove the undoing of any my meaneſt ſervants, for I tell you, the Angels which are by God appointed to be their guardians on earth, have yet their continual returns and recourſe to Gods glorious preſence, are near and high in Gods favour, always having acceſs to make requeſts, or complaints in their behalfs, and to receive commands from him concerning them, and therefore theſe, though little in their own, and the worlds Account, are not yet to be ſlighted, or deſpiſed by any, or averted from their courſe of piety by that means.

11. For the ſon of man is come to ſave that which was loſt.]

11. For Chriſt that came to reduce thoſe (ſee note on c. 11. k.) that are gone aſtray from the ways of God, muſt be thought to require the ſame of you, to be moſt diligent and induſtrious to reduce the meaneſt perſon upon earth, that is in a courſe of any danger of ruine to the ſoul.

12. How think ye? If a man have an hundred ſheep, and one of them be gone aſtray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and ſeeketh that which is gone aſtray?

13. And if ſo be that he find it, verily I ſay unto you, He rejoyceth more of that ſheep, then of the ninety and nine, which went not aſtray.]

12, 13. For judge in reaſon, I pray, by this ordinary reſemblance, If an ordinary man on earth have a poſſeſſion on which he ſets any conſiderable value, be it an hundred ſheep, and if one of them be ſtrayed from the reſt, and that be diſcerned by him, doth he not ſet ſo great a value on that one loſt ſheep, as at the preſent to leave the whole number beſides (knowing them ſafe in the paſture or fold) and go and ſearch diligently and ſolicitouſly for that one, and upon the finding it, is he not affected with more joy at the firſt ſight of it, then he is at the beholding his whole flock, which had never run that hazard.

14. Even ſo it is not the will of your father which is in heaven, that one of theſe little ones ſhould periſh.]

14. And juſt thus it is with God, he is very unwilling that any the meaneſt perſon upon earth ſhould be loſt, that might with any care or methods of ours be recovered to Piety.

15. *Moreover, If thy brother ſhall treſpaſs againſt thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone, if he ſhall hear thee thou haſt gained thy brother.]

* But if καὶ ἐὰν

15. To this purpoſe, theſe directions I ſhall now give, which I require to be uſed in the Church for ever. If any fellow Chriſtian of thine do thee any injury, and by ſo doing offend againſt God, thy charity to him, as it muſt be ſure to put off all thoughts of revenge againſt him, to forgive him freely, v. 22. ſo will it oblige thee to uſe all prudent methods to reduce him to a ſenſe and reformation of his fault (and by the ſame reaſon this is to be extended to all other wilful crimes of which thou ſeeſt him guilty, thoſe being as fit to exerciſe this part of thy charity towards his ſoul, as any injury done to thee immediately) and let this be the method, firſt go and admoniſh him of it privately, ſo that it have nothing of ſhame or reproach joined with it, and if he mend upon ſuch admonition, there's an end, thou haſt reaſon to rejoyce as at the finding the ſtray ſheep, that thou haſt been ſo happy an inſtrument of his repentance.

16. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witneſſes, every word may be eſtabliſhed.]

16. But if this firſt method of thy charity ſucceed not, another eſſay muſt be made, take with thee one or two other men, either that the crime which thou layeſt to his charge, be ſo confirmed to him by ſufficient teſtimony, John 8.17. that he be no longer able to deny it (as that, which cannot be contradicted or denyed, is ſaid to be eſtabliſhed, Heb. 6. 16.) or that the authority of theſe added to that of thy private admonition, may be of more force with him, induce him to condemn himſelf, at leaſt be more likely to do ſo, be more weighty in the preſence of two or three.

17. And if he ſhall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church; but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man, and a publican.]

17. But if he be ſtill refractory, either thro' non-conviction of the fact, or non-contrition for it, if this ſecond admonition work not on him, then make it a matter of publick cognizance, tell it to the rulers of the aſſemblies, (ſaith S. Chryſoſtom, ſee power of Keys, c. 2. ſect. 12.) or tell it in the preſence of all the people, that before them the Governour may rebuke him, (as Timothy is appointed to do, 1 Tim. 5.20.) But if this laſt method ſucceed not neither, if he be ſtill refractory, thou art then to look on him as a deſperate deplored ſinner, (ſee power of Keys, c. 2. ſect. 9.) fit for the cenſures of the Church to overtake him.

18. Verily I ſay unto you, whatſoever ye ſhall bind on earth, ſhall be bound in heaven, and whatſoever ye ſhall looſe on earth, ſhall be looſed in heaven.]

18. Which ye therefore to whom now I ſpeak, the deſigned rulers of the Church, and your ſucceſſors the Biſhops, are in this caſe to proceed to, to uſe the keys given to you, as Stewards of the houſe, c. 16. 19. for the ejecting of ſuch. And I aſſure you, whomſoever (ſee note on c. 11. k.) ye ſhall thus caſt out of the Church on earth, ſhall, without repentance, and ſubmiſſion to your cenſures and reformation upon them, and ſincere deſire to reconcile, and approve themſelves to you, be by me excluded from heaven, theſe cenſures of yours, inflicted by this commiſſion from me, ſhall be back'd by me, and ſo whomſoever ye ſhall upon ſincere repentance receive into the peace of the church again, he ſhall by me be pardoned alſo.

19. Again, I ſay unto you, that if two of you ſhall agree on earth as touching any thing b that they ſhall ask, it ſhall be done for them of my father which is in heaven.]

19. As for the ſecond of the three admonitions ſpoken of, v. 16. (ſee note on c. 7. b.) this I aſſure you, that as the aſſize of three men among the Jews had ſome power, ſo ſhall any two or three Chriſtians, joinde in ſuch a reprehenſion, be conſiderable in this matter, having the priviledge of Gods preſence (as in their prayers thus united, ſo in their united admonitions) to give them authority, aſſiſtance and bleſſing.

20. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midſt of them.]

20. For where two or three are met, or aſſembled for this piece of diſcipline (as for any holy action beſides) there am I preſent with them in a ſpecial manner, and will not ſuffer the actions, which thus they undertake by my appointment, to be ſet at naught by any.

21. Then came Peter to him, and ſaid, Lord, how oft ſhall my brother ſin againſt me, and I forgive him? till ſeven times?]

21. When Chriſt had gone thus far by way of return from the laſt to the ſecond, and before he proceeded from that to the firſt, Peter interpoſed this queſtion (the anſwer to which comes home to the firſt of the three alſo) Sir, ſeeing I am bound to forbear my brother, or fellow Chriſtian, that injureth me, and not to act any revenge upon him, as we were taught by thee, Mat. 5.39. and ſeeing now, upon admoniſhing him that hath injured me, in caſe he repent either on the firſt or ſecond, or third admonition, I am to proceed no farther againſt him, but forgive him, and rejoyce that I have done ſo much good upon him, v. 15. yet becauſe he that hath thus treſpaſſed and repented once, may poſſibly treſpaſs again, and repent again, (ſee Luke 17. 3, 4.) I deſire to be taught by thee, how oft I am to do this, to forgive him, that tho' he repent of his injury, aſk forgiveneſs, and promiſe to do ſo no more (ſee v. 26. 29.) yet oft-times relapſes again, how oft muſt I be thus indulgent to him and forgive him upon his requeſt? muſt I do it often, or ſeven times.

22. Jeſus

22. Jeſus ſaith unto him, [I ſay not unto thee, until ſeven times, but until ſeventy times ſeven.]

22. This rule is to hold eternally, not only for a great but an unlimited number of treſpaſſes, ſuppoſing that the treſpaſſer repent and promiſe amendment for the future, Luke 17.4. (otherwiſe thou art not ſo bound to paſs by his treſpaſs, but that thou maiſt by the means preſcribed v. 15 &c. endeavour his reformation, for in that caſe that is the greateſt charity he is capable of.)

23. Therefore is the kingdom of heaven like unto a certain King, which would take account of his [c] ſervants.]

23. To which purpoſe (to ſhew you how neceſſary it is for every of you to remit moſt freely the injuries that are done to you by your brethren, be they never ſo great, if you expect any remiſſion from God for your ſins committed againſt him) I ſhall give you this parable, God's dealing with men under the Goſpel is very fitly reſembled to a King calling his ſervants to account. c.

24. And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him which ought him ten thouſand talents.]

24. And when he did ſo, one of his ſervants upon account was found to owe him a great ſum caſt up by ordinary valuation to be a thouſand eight hundred ſeventy five thouſand pounds.

25. But for as much as he had not to pay, his Lord commanded him to be ſold, and his wife and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made.]

25. But he being not able to pay that ſum, his maſter appointed him to be uſed as debtors, which are not able to pay, are wont to be uſed among the Jews, ſold, they and their wives and their children, to be ſervants, and bondmen, 2 Kings 4.1. and by that ſale the debt to be paid.

26. The ſervant therefore fell down and worſhipped him, ſaying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.]

26. Hereupon the indebted ſervant fell down on his face, and beſought him that he would ſtay a while, till he might be able to pay him, and not uſe this extremity towards him, promiſing, if he would do ſo, that he ſhould loſe nothing by him.

27. Then the Lord of that ſervant was moved with compaſſion, and looſed him, and forgave him the debt.]

27. And his maſter was merciful, and quitted him of the former ſentence, v. 25. and frankly forgave him that vaſt ſum, upon his bare requeſt.

28. But the ſame ſervant went out and found one of his fellow-ſervants, which ought him an hundred pence, and he laid hands on him, and [d] * took him by the throat, ſaying, Pay me that thou oweſt.]

* ſhook him

28. But when this was done, this ſervant, that had been thus mercifully and magnificently dealt with by his maſter, having had ten thouſand talents forgiven him, met with one of his fellow-ſervants, which ought him ſomewhat, one hundred denarii, valued to three pounds two ſhillings ſix pence of our money, a contemptible ſum in compariſon with what had juſt now been forgiven him, and he preſently apprehended him in a moſt rigid manner, requiring him to make preſent payment. d.

29. And his fellow ſervant fell down at his feet, and beſought him, ſaying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.]

29. And this fellow-ſervant of his beſought him with as much humility to forbear him, as he had v. 26. beſought his maſter's forbearance for ſix hundred thouſand times as much.

30. And he would not: but went and caſt him into priſon, till he ſhould pay the debt.]

30. And that ſervant that had had ſo much forgiven him, would not forgive ſo little, but dealt with him in the extreameſt rigor, caſt him into priſon never to be releaſed, but upon paying the whole debt.

31. So when his fellow-ſervants ſaw what was done, they were very ſorry, and came and told unto their Lord all that was done.]

31. For this all the fellow-ſervants that ſaw it, were much troubled; both for the unhappy lot of him that ſuffered, and the unreaſonable behaviour of him that thus dealt with him, in ſo diſtant a matter from what himſelf had ſo lately found from his maſter, and upon this came and informed their maſter of it.

32. Then his Lord, after he had called him, ſaid unto him, [O thou wicked ſervant, I forgave thee all that debt, becauſe thou deſiredſt me.]

32. O thou unconſcionable man, thou canſt not but remember, how I lately forgave thee all that vaſt ſum owing to me by thee, (with which this of thy fellow-ſervant to thee beareth no proportion) and that upon thy bare requeſt, having no motive, beſide my own compaſſion to an helpleſs creature, to invite me to ſo great a mercy.

33. Shouldſt not thou alſo have had compaſſion on thy fellow-ſervant, even as I had pity on thee?]

33. Was is not then reaſonable for thee that hadſt received pardon of ſo vaſt a debt from thy maſter, or ſuperior, to have (in like manner as I gave thee example) ſhew'd pity to thy fellow-ſervant, to whom thou wert ſo much more obliged then I to thee, and to have remitted him ſo ſmall a ſum, when I forgave thee ſix hundred thouſand times as much.

34. And his Lord was wroth, and delivered him to the [e] † tormentors,] till he ſhould pay all that was due unto him.

† jaylours

34. Upon this, the maſter was moſt juſtly enraged againſt him, and uſed him as he had done his fellow, v. 30. and though he had before remitted him, yet upon this unworthy impious behaviour he revoked his deſigned mercy, and caſt him into priſon. e.

35. So likewiſe ſhall my heavenly father do alſo unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their treſpaſſes.]

35. By this reſemblance ye ſee what meaſure ye muſt expect from God in this matter, For juſt ſo ſhall God deal with you, remit nothing of that rigor againſt you, which you uſe againſt others; deal moſt ſeverely with you, if ye do not clearly, plenarily, and ſincerely (without any reſervation, or deſign to have God execute any vengeance for you, or the like) forgive all injuries, how great ſoever, (being certainly far below the proportion of yours againſt God) that are done to you by any man living.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XVIII.

a. [a] Ἄγγελοι αὐτῶν

V. 10. Angels] That Angels are God's miniſtring Spirits, and do perform his commands in guarding his Servants here below, is the Doctrine of Scripture, Heb. 1.14. and ſo ſeveral times in the Revelation, where the ſeven Spirits c. 1.4. and c. 4.5. (that is, ſaith Andreas Cæſareenſes, ſeven Angels) are ſaid in heaven to behold his face, in the ſame manner as is here affirmed of them. But whether the ἄγγελοι αὐτῶν, their Angels here, be to be defined ſingular Angels peculiarly deſigned to particular perſons, is not here diſtinctly affirmed, only that they are, as God ſees fit, employed in ſervices for the benefit of theſe little ones, that is, of Chriſtians: And of that there is no doubt. Thus ſaith Origen contr. Celſ. l. 6. Ἄγγελοι τεταγμένοι εἰς τὸ προϊστασθαι αὐτῶν, the Angels that are appointed to preſide over them, as guardians, to counterwork the treacheries and policies of Satan; That theſe are ſaid continually to behold the face of God, is, ſaith * Dionyſius Alexandr. διὰ συνήθειαν τοῦ θεοῦ καλεῖ διὰ παντὸς, ἑδραίως ἐν τῷ θεῷ ἀεὶ ἐστῶτας, becauſe they continually and ſtedfaſtly behold the beauty of God, and never fall off from that dignity and preferment (as Lucifer did) which they enjoy by their nearneſs to the true, real, eternal good. But there is beſides this, a more peculiar notation of the phraſe, as to behold the face, ſignifies to wait, attend as a ſervant, Pſal. 123.2 as a Miniſter to be ready at hand, to do whatſoever is commanded. Thus in Elias Levita, ſpeaking of the word Mitateron, he is, ſaith he, שר המנים princeps faſierum, Prince of faces, that is, Angelus qui ſemper videt faciem regis excelſi, &c. an Angel which always beholds the face of the high King, &c. that is, of God. And both theſe put together make up the full ſenſe of the words, which yet farther note a more eminent ſort of Angels.

* in Cat. Jobi. p. 21.

b. Αἰτήσουν

V. 19. Shall ask] It is ſomewhat uncertain what is the meaning of ἐὰν αἰτήσουν here. For that it is not in the Active, which is ordinarily uſed for asking (ſee c. 21. 22.) is clear, and if it be rendred in a Paſſive ſenſe, then it will be whatſoever they ſhall be required to, and refer to the one or two, that are taken v. 16. that is, required quired to go along with the admoniſher; which being here part of Chriſt's inſtitution, it may conſequently be ſaid of it, as a promiſe from Chriſt, γενήσεται αὐτοῖς, &c. it ſhall be unto them from my father, that is, my father ſhall give authority to that, which they being thus called, or required, συμφωνήσωσιν ſhall agree on. The reaſon of which is given v. 20. For where two or three are thus aſſembled in my name, according to my appointment, there am I in the midſt of them. This hath that degree of appearance of truth, that I thought fit here to mention it, but not ſo much certainty, as to put in the margent, or to impoſe it as the primary ſenſe in the Paraphraſe.

c. V. 23. Servants] The ſervants here, that the King or Lord is ſuppoſed to call to account, ſeem to be thoſe which are intruſted by him to negotiate for him, ſuch as are mentioned c. 25. 14. and Luke 19. 13. And proportionably his reckoning with them here, v. 24. is all one with that, Mat. 25. 19. and the ſame phraſe συναίρειν λόγον is uſed in both places, which in S. Luke (who calls him a King alſo, as he is here) c. 19. 5. is expreſs'd by commanding his ſervants to be called, that he might know how much every one had gained by trading, that is, what every man had gotten, and had ready, to bring him in, above the money which he received. That is there ſet down to be a very ſtrange encreaſe, one pound had been improved into ten, v. 16. another into five pounds, v. 18. and in S. Matthew, five are encreaſed into five more, two into two more. And ſo in both Evangeliſts ſome ſuch encreaſe is brought in by every one, but only by him that had laid it up in a napkin, and been perfectly idle, done nothing with it. Agreeably to this it here follows, that one of theſe ſervants, when he comes to be reckon'd with, is found upon account, to be endebted to his Lord ten thouſand talents, which at the rate of 750 ounces of ſilver to a talent, and of five ſhillings an ounce, ariſes to one thouſand eight hundred ſeventy five thouſand pounds, a vaſt ſum of money. And that being required, he was no way able to make payment, and ſo was adjudg'd by his Lord (as ſuch debtors are wont) to be ſold, &c. upon this his petition to his Lord is, that he will bear with him a while, and he will repay him all, that upon account was due unto him, all the ten thouſand talents. And thereupon his Lord moved with pity towards him, not only ἀπέλυσεν αὐτὸν, releaſed him from that ſentence of ſelling and impriſoning, before decreed againſt him, but alſo remitted him τὸ δάνειον, the whole debt, the ten thouſand talents, for which he was caſt into priſon.

'Tis true indeed that the word δάνειον here uſed, and rendred debt, doth alſo ſignifie uſury, or intereſt, and ſo might be thought to ſignifie here not the whole debt, but only the intereſt, that would be due for the forbearance of it for the ſpace that he now deſired. To this alſo the words of the ſervant's requeſt ſeem to incline, which were only theſe, that he would have patience, that is, grant him ſome time, promiſing him if he would, to pay him the whole ſum, and not deſiring the forgiveneſs, or remiſſion of that. But although δάνειον ſometimes ſignifies uſe, yet it ſignifies a loan or debt alſo, and ſo is expreſs'd to do here, v. 30, 32, 34. and the Arabick reads Colla mah alaihi, all that was upon him, all that he was liable to, or reſponſible for; now that was plainly not only all the intereſt that this deſired forbearance would ariſe to, but even the principal it ſelf. For though the ſervant doth not beg the abſolute remiſſion of that, but uſes the ordinary form of inſolvent debtors, which deſire patience, or releaſe from priſon, and labour to encline the Creditor to that, by fair promiſes, that he ſhall loſe nothing by them, yet God's mercy expreſs'd by this of the Lords, and the example ſet to us, in the former paſſage, v. 22. of plenary and abſolute forgiveneſs of what is already ſuffered (and not only of what may follow) will certainly extend it to the whole ſum, and not ſuffer it to be reſtrained to no more than the Creditor's requeſt; the intereſt for forbearance. And ſo the other part of the Parable, his dealing with his fellow-ſervant doth demonſtrate alſo, for there that which he would not forgive, was (in all reaſon) anſwerable to that, which the Lord had forgiven him, (differing only in the quantity of it, ſo few denarii on eight parts of an ounce, to ſo many Talents, and anſwerable to that is the brother's treſpaſs againſt me in proportion to thy ſins againſt God) and that is there called τὸ ὀφειλόμενον (in a word which is not capable of that ambiguity) the debt, v. 30. not the intereſt, and πᾶσαν ὀφειλὴν ἐκείνην, all that debt, and therefore this is moſt reaſonably to be pitch'd on as the meaning of the place, and the Concluſion from thence, this plain truth, that God's pardons here in this life are not to us Abſolute, while we become uncharitable to our brethren, but, according to the petition in our Lord's Prayer, anſwerable to our dealings with others, and ſo conditional, and are no longer likely to be continued to us, then we perform that condition.

d. Πνίγω

V. 28. Took him by the throat] The word πνίγω is not only to choak or throttle, but alſo, according to the uſe of the Hebrew בעת (which ſometimes is rendred πνίγω, 1 Sam. 16. 14. ſometimes σαλεύω, ταράττω ἐκταράττω, σείω) ſignifies to pluck, to exagitate, to trouble, to hale, to ſhake, to terrifie, and ſo it may here ſignifie.

e. Βασανιστὴς

V. 34. Tormentors] Βασανισταὶ, λιμόκοιτοι, ſaith Heſychius, it not only ſignifies one that explores, and examines, and puts upon the rack, (in which notion it cannot be taken here) but alſo a keeper of a common gaol, and ſo it muſt do here, the uſage in this verſe being proportionable, and parallel to that, which this man had dealt to his fellow-ſervant, v. 30. which was caſting him into priſon, until he ſhould pay the debt, which argues the Βασανιστὴς here, to whom he is delivered, to be the keeper of that priſon and no more, there being no uſe of the rack, or torment in this buſineſs.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XIX.

1. When all thoſe occaſions were over, on which he ſpake thoſe things,

2. No leſs in Judæa now, then before in Galilee.

AND it came to paſs that [when Jeſus had finiſhed theſe ſayings,] he departed from Galilee, and came into the coaſts of Judea beyond Jordan.

2. And great multitudes followed him, and he healed them [there.]

3. The Phariſees alſo came unto him, tempting him, and ſaying, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cauſe?

4, 5. Ye cannot but remember the ſtrict union and conjunction betwixt man & wife which was appointed by God in the creation, Gen. 1. 27. where as ſoon as the man and woman were created, we find this concluſion made by Adam, (or rather the Hiſtorian) Gen. 2. 24. that the man was to forſake all and cleave to his wife, and continue with her as inſeparably as with another part of the ſame fleſh, (ſee note on Luke 16. b).

4. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, [Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning, made them male and female?

5. And ſaid, For this cauſe ſhall a man leave father and mother, and ſhall cleave to his wife, and they twain ſhall be one fleſh.]

6. And therefore thus are they to be thought of, as two by God united into one, and then ſure that which hath been thus inſtituted by God, muſt not by man be altered, it ought ſtill to continue among you, as it was firſt inſtituted, 'tis utterly unlawful (unleſs in caſe of falſeneſs to the huſband's bed, Mat. 5. 32.) to put the wife away.

6. Wherefore they are no more twain, but one fleſh. What therefore God hath joyned together, let no man put aſunder.

7. They

7. They ſay unto him, Why did Moſes then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away?]

7. To this the Phariſees objected, ſaying, What account then is to be given of that precept in the Law, wherein Moſes appointed the husband (in ſome caſes mentioned by him Deut. 24.1.) to give a bill of divorce unto the wife, in this manner permitting him to put her away?

8. He ſaith unto them, [Moſes, becauſe of the hardneſs of your hearts ſuffered you to put away your wives, but from the beginning it was not ſo.]

8. God in the Moſaical œconomy, knowing you Jews to be ſo impervaſible, and obſtinately bent to your own luſts and rages, that in caſe you were obliged to live with hated wives, and not permitted divorces, it would probably cauſe in you ſome greater ſin, for the preventing hereof allow'd a diſpenſation in this point, tolerated divorces, and took ſo much pity and care of the oppreſſed hated wife, as to provide this kind of relief for her, commanding to give a bill of divorce thereby as by an act of manumiſſion to reſtore her liberty to her, withal decently to ſend her out of the family, and in ſome ſort endow her: But this you ſee (v.4,5.) was very diſtant from the appointment of God in the firſt inſtitution of marriage.

9. And I ſay unto you, Whoſoever ſhall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and ſhall marry another, committeth adultery, and who ſo marrieth her that is put away, doth commit adultery.]

9. And accordingly I now define that whoſoever ſhall uſe that liberty to frequent among you to put away his wife, for any leſſer cauſe then that of fornication, and then think it free for him to marry again; that man by marrying another, whilſt his wife is alive, (from the obligation to whom he is not, nor can be freed) is conſequently guilty of adultery, and ſo likewiſe he that marrieth her that is divorced, taketh another man's wife, which is adultery alſo.

10. His diſciples ſay unto him, If the caſe of the man be ſo with his wife, [it is not good to marry.]

10. Hereupon his own diſciples began to object, that if marriage brought ſuch an inſeparable conjunction with it, then ſure the inconveniencies and hazards of marriage above the advantages and conveniencies of it would be ſo great, that it were more prudent not to marry at all, then to be ſubject to ſuch poſſible inconveniencies.

11. But he ſaid unto them, All men cannot receive this ſaying, ſave they to whom it is given.]

11. To this objection he gave this anſwer, That all men are not capable of that prudential aphoriſm [That a ſingle life is more profitable and fit for their turn, then marriage] but thoſe only, whom God hath ſome way more then ordinarily fitted for it, by ſome ſpecial gift.

12. Fore there are ſome a Eunuchs, which were ſo born from their mothers womb: and there are ſome Eunuchs, which were made Eunuchs of men: and there be Eunuchs which have made themſelves Eunuchs for the kingdom of heavens ſake. He that is able to receive it, let him receive it.

12. For ſome live unmarried, as being naturally enabled to do ſo chaſtly, and without great difficulty, ſome as being by men diſabled (of which ſort there are very many among the heathens, ordinarily called Eunuchs) ſome out of firmneſs of reſolution have gotten that maſtery over themſelves, that they can live chaſtly in a ſingle life, and do ſo on purpoſe, that they may have fuller vacancy to ſet themſelves apart for the duties of Chriſtianity. Now he that finds this agreeable to his condition, and can thus conquer and ſubdue himſelf, he may do accordingly, if he pleaſe; and ſhall do well, and wiſely in ſo doing.

13. Then were there brought unto him little children, [that he ſhould put his hands on them, and pray: and the diſciples rebuked them.]

13. That by impoſition of hands he would beſtow his benediction upon them. And his diſciples would have chid them away.

14. But Jeſus ſaid, Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me; for [of ſuch is the kingdom of heaven.

14. Their meekneſs, humility and docility, are the temper, which of all others is moſt like that which is required of the diſciples of Chriſt.

15. And he laid his hands on them,] and departed thence.

15. And uſing that ceremony of impoſition of hands, frequent among the Jews in all kind of benedictions, he beſtowed his bleſſing upon them.

16. And behold, one came and ſaid unto him, Good maſter, [what good thing ſhall I do that I may have eternal life?]

16. What is the condition required of me to make me capable of eternal bliſs?

17. And he ſaith unto him, [Why calleſt thou me good? there is none good but one, that is God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments.]

17. Thy calling me good, without conceiving me to be God, is not right. But for thy queſtion of the way to eternal bliſs, this is ſoon anſwer'd, 'tis by obedience to God's commandments.

18. He ſaith unto him, Which? [Jeſus ſaid] Thou ſhalt do no murther, Thou ſhalt not commit adultery, Thou ſhalt not ſteal, Thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs.]

18. Jeſus ſaid, thoſe great Precepts given by God to Moſes, containing the heads of all duties both toward God and Man, particularly thoſe ſix of the ſecond ſort, containing the duty toward man.

19. Honour thy father and thy mother, and, [Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelf.]

19. Thou ſhalt not deſign advantage to thy ſelf by another mans loſs, or deſire any thing that is his, but conſider his good, as well as thine own, which is the ſum of the laſt commandment.

20. The young man ſaith, [All theſe things have I kept from my youth up: What lack I yet?]

20. All theſe parts of duty I have ſincerely obſerv'd all my life, what more is required of me?

21. Jeſus ſaid unto him, [If thou wilt be b perfect, go and ſell that thou haſt, and give to the poor, and thou ſhalt have treaſure in heaven, and come and follow me.]

21. If thou wilt aſcend to that higher pitch, to which I come to raiſe men, if thou wilt be a Chriſtian, then muſt thou, upon contemplation of the reward that is laid up in heaven for all that ſincerely obey me, be contented to part with all the wealth of the world, whenſoever that is required of thee, either directly (as now I command thee to ſell and give to the poor all that thou haſt, and ſo to follow me, as all my Diſciples have done, though they had not ſo much to part with, as thou haſt) or by conſequence when thou canſt not obey any particular precept without danger of being undone by it.

22. But when the young man heard that ſaying, he went away ſorrowful: for he had great poſſeſſions.]

22. When the young man heard Chriſt ſay this he was much grieved, becauſe he had a very great eſtate, and therefore ſeeing he could not be a Chriſtian at any cheaper rate, he forſook, or departed from Chriſt, would not pay ſo dear for that perfection.

23. Then ſaid Jeſus to his diſciples, Verily I ſay unto you that [a rich man ſhall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.]

23. It is very difficult for a wealthy man to undertake that condition, required of all by me, that will be Chriſtians, and come to bliſs now under the Goſpel.

24. And again I ſay unto you, [It is eaſier for a c camel to go through the eye of a needle, then for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.]

24. The rich man ſetteth his heart upon his riches, & truſting in them, Mark 10.24. muſt part with as much of his humour, before he can be capable of being a Chriſtian, of performing the condition by me required to attain bliſs, as that Beaſt, Camel or Elephant, &c. which is of the greateſt bulk, muſt part with, to be qualified to paſs through the ſtraighteſt place.

25. When his diſciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, ſaying, [Who then can be ſaved?]

25. If the way preſcribed by thee to bliſs be as ſtraight as a needles eye, who then can undertake it? who can come to bliſs upon ſuch terms as theſe? who is there that according to this rule is qualified for ſalvation?

26. But Jeſus [beheld them, and ſaid unto them, with men this is impoſſible, but with God all things are poſſible.]

26. Look'd upon them (as examples of the practicableneſs of this Doctrine, of forſaking, parting with all to follow him) and tells them, to encourage them, that, it ſeems, thoſe things which are in themſelves ſo hard, and ſo unreaſonable for meer men to do, are yet very poſſible for God; and ſo this of contemning the world, working ſuch a change on a worldly man's heart, that he ſhall liberally beſtow his wealth, and not place any confidence in it, is a work, that God doth ordinarily work in mens hearts, and enables them to do with eaſe.

27. Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee, what shall we have therefore?

28. And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, [that ye which have followed me, in the d regeneration, when the son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, ye shall also sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.]

d. 28. Ye that are my Disciples, and have by receiving the faith and baptism left all to follow me, shall, assoon as I come to my Kingdom, be highly honoured and rewarded by me, or, You that have received me and followed me, and persevered constant to me, continued with me in my temptation, Luke 22. 28. shall in the new age, or state, (taking its beginning from the resurrection, and ascension of Christ) have a power in the Church instated on you, as my Successors, somewhat proportionable to that of the several Rulers of the Tribes among the Jews, (a token of which are the keys, after given to them, and promised, as here, c. 16.19.) The power which my Father hath given me on earth, shall at my departure be instated upon you, Luke 22. 29.

29. And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for my names sake, shall receive an e hundred fold, [and shall inherit everlasting life.

e. 29. And whosoever shall for my sake part with any of the advantages and possessions of this life, whatsoever it is, he shall be so far from being a loser by it, that he shall in this very life be by that means abundantly more richly provided for; in the same proportion, that he which in the harvest hath the most plentiful returns to his seed and pains-taking, (c. 13.8.)

30. But many that are first shall be last, and the last shall be first.]

30. But though you have advantage of other men in being thus early in Discipleship, yet 'tis very possible that some that come after you in time (as Paul) may labour as fervently, deserve as much, and consequently be as richly rewarded as you, (upon which follows the parable of c. 20. 1.)

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XIX.

V. 12. Eunuchs] The word εὐνοῦχοι and εὐνουχίζεσθαι have a vulgar ordinary signification, which is known by the English use of the word Eunuch, that is, in the expressions of the Grammarians παιδων, τμιας, &c. And accordingly three sorts of them are ordinarily set down, 1. ἐκτομίαι castrati; οἱ διὰ σιδήρου ἀκρωτηριασθέντες, 2. Σπάδονες, οἱ ἐκ γενετῆς διδύμους μὴ ἔχοντες, and 3. Θλιβίαι and Θλασίαι, οἱ ὑπὸ δύσιν ἀπελαθέντες τὰ παιδόγονα μόρια ὑπὸ τῶν γονέων θλιβέντα, καὶ ἀχρηστωθέντα. But here the Context which sets it in opposition to marrying, makes it clear, that Eunuchism is taken for the chastity of a single life, how soever acquired, whether 1. by natural temper, or 2. by some outward accidental weakning, or debilitating of nature, as was frequent among the Gentiles, in order to some offices and services, to which men, that were thereby secured from desires, were designed: Such, if it were done by themselves, are called by the Apostles Canons αὐτοφονεῖς, self-murtheres, ἐχθροὶ τῆς θεῖας δημιουργίας, enemies of God's workmanship, Can. 22, 23. or else by firm purpose or resolution of mind assisted by God's grace, in order to his service; such were the Ἀσκηταὶ, συλλεγόμενοι τῇ ἰδίᾳ καρδίᾳ ἀγωνιζόμενοι, those that imposed hardships on themselves, and combated with their own desires. Thus in Pharorinus, the word being deduced according to some Grammarians, from εὖ νοῦν ἔχειν, to have the mind well or wisely disposed, it signifies, saith he, ἀπολέλαχθαι τῶν ἀφροδισίων, to have nothing to do with any thing of venery or carnality; for, saith he, the Ancients ἀφροδίσια ἀνόητα ἐκάλουν, called all things of that kind, follies: Thus we know the Scripture hath expressed any such unlawful commission, the doing folly in Israel, and so 'tis cited out of Aristophanes, ὕπνου τε ἀπέχεσθαι καὶ τῶν ἀνοήτων πάντων, to abstain from sleep and all foolish things, where yet Aristophanes hath only οἴνου ἄπεχε καὶ γυμνασίων, καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ἀνοήτων, which the Scholist expounds by τῶν ἀφροδισίων καὶ τὸ ἀνεπίσκεπτον ὑποφαίνειν, διὰ τὸ ἀφροδισιάζειν ἔλεγον, saith he. But 'tis possible that the place in Aristophanes is to be read ὕπνου τε instead of οἴνου, and then there is no question but that ὕπνος sleep, might be a civil word for things of that nature, as in the Wiseman, ἡδονὴ δ' ὕπνου signifies.

V. 21. Perfect] What is the notion of τελειότης perfection here, must be defined by considering what is meant by entring into the kingdom of heaven, v. 23. For it appeareth that the not undertaking the condition required of the young man by Christ, to his being perfect, doth also exclude him from entring into this kingdom, or render him incapable of it. Now that kingdom of heaven, signifying that crown of eternal life and bliss, which was this man's aim, v. 16. the entring into that kingdom is the undertaking the condition now required by Christ, or the attaining that bliss by performing that condition, and therefore his going away, v. 22. that is, forsaking of Christ, caused by the greatness of his riches is all one with the rich man's not being able to enter into that kingdom, v. 23. This again appeareth by the question and answer ensuing, v. 25. where when the Disciples ask, Who then can be saved? (whatsoever they mean by that, whether who can be a Christian? as the word rendred escaping or being saved often signifies, (see Mat. 10. h. Luke 13. b. and Rom. 10. a.) or whether who can come to heaven? Christ's answer is, by looking upon them, &c. intimating them to be examples of this possibility, capable of this salvation, this entring into the kingdom of heaven, as having performed the condition required to qualifie them for it. From these premises it seems necessary to conclude that the perfection here spoken of is Christianity it self, (and not only an heroick eminent degree of it) and that the condition here required to it is matter of command, not counsel only, and such, as he that will not ascend to, (the young man here) cannot be called or deemed a Christian, cannot attain to bliss, as 'tis now offered under the Gospel. From hence it follows not, that no man is saveable, or a Christian, but he that sells all, and gives it to the poor, and so follows Christ, for there is no command elsewhere given by Christ to all men to do so, (and this command here given to this young man, and the like, in some degree, to the Disciples, to leave their nets, that is, their whole estates, and follow him, obliges none but those to whom it was given) but only thus, that he that loves any thing more then Christ, is no Christian, that whatsoever Christ shall at any time by any explicite command, as here, or else by his providence (by making it impossible to preserve my fidelity to him, or obedience to any known command of his, without parting with my wealth, &c.) require of me, I must impartially perform it, though it be with the loss of my estate, or even of life it self, and if I do not resolve and undertake to do so, I cannot be saved, I am no Christian. Or if having vowed it, (as every Christian doth in Baptism, vowing there, whensoever the world comes in competition with Christ, to forsake the world and follow Christ) I do not in time of trial perform it, I forfeit the priviledges of Christianity, all title to bliss. And this is it that maketh it so hard a thing for the rich man, and even so impossible for him that trusteth in riches, Mark 10.24. (that hath reposed any confidence in them, that depends, or looks on them as his felicity) to enter this kingdom, to be, and continue Christian, to attain this perfection or this bliss; for, where his treasure is, there will his heart be also.

V. 24. Camel] It was an ordinary proverb among the Jews, that an Elephant cannot pass through the eye of a needle, to signifie the most impossible thing. Thus in the Babyl. Talmud. Perek Haroe Barachoth, You perhaps are one of Pombeditha (an Academy of Jews in Babylon) where they can make an Elephant pass through a needles eye; signifying them a vain-glorious people, that would boast of doing impossibilities, and in Gemera לא פילא דעיול בקיפא דמשמא there is no Elephant that enters by the hole of a needle. This proverb Christ was willing to change from the Elephant, which was a beast that few had seen, to a Camel, which was very ordinary in Syria, & whose bunch on his back is apt to hinder his passage thro' any narrow entrance. This being thus premised, as the full account of the place, it is yet further observable

c. Παροιμία Ἑβρ. Κάμηλον διὰ τρυπήματος βαφέως διελθεῖν.

that Phavorinus on the word κάμιλος, ſaith, that 'tis not only the name of that beaſt, but χὴ τὸ παχὺ χοινίον, ἐν ᾧ ἀτσμένοι τὰς ἀγκύρας οἱ ναῦται, it ſignifies alſo a cable with which the mariners bind the anchors, and cites this place of the Goſpel, as belonging that ſignification of the word; and ſo Theophyl. that 'tis παχὺ χοινίον ᾧ χρῶνται ναῦται πρὸς τὸ ῥίπτειν τὰς ἀγκύρας, a cable with which Mariners uſe to caſt their Anchors. Were the word to be found in that ſenſe in other Authors, it would be an ingenious conjecture, but this word for a cable (from which the Engliſh probably comes with a light change of [m] into [b]) is by Suidas, and the Scholiaſt of Ariſtophanes written with [ι] κάμιλος, and ſo in Heſychius (from whom Phavorinus ordinarily borrows) for ſo ſure ſhould it be read κάμιλος (which is now καμίνος) μέγος τι τῶν νεῶν, and ſo this being the only place cited by Phavorinus (and from him or with him obſerved by others) 'tis more poſſible, that it was but a conjecture of that grammarian, and ſo of no more authority then ſuch; & therefore the proverbial ſpeech among the Hebrews forementioned (the uſing of which was not extraordinary with Chriſt, ſee note on *c.*10. i.) to him probably unknown, but to us made clear by their writings, may remove all that difficulty, the not diſcerning of which put him upon that bolder interpretation. Mean while the application of that Proverb to the rich mans turning Chriſtian, or entring bliſs, is no farther to be extended, then to ſignify the greatneſs of the diſtance, & ſo of the change or paſſage from one of theſe ſtates to the other, the rich mans truſts, and joys, and confidences being ſo contrary to the chriſtians, and ſo perfectly irreconcilable with them. This is ſo far affirm'd by Plato 5. de Leg. ἀγαθὸν ὄντα διαφερόντως καὶ πλούσιον εἶναι διαφερόντως ἀδύνατον, 'tis impoſſible to be exceeding good, and exceeding rich, that Celſus, the heathen enemy of Chriſt & Chriſtians, ſaith, that this ſpeech of Chriſt's was but a corrupting of that ſpeech of Plato's, ſee Orig. cont. Celſ. l. 6. p. 294.

d. Παλιγγενεσία

V. 28. Regeneration] The word παλιγγενεσία ſignifies properly a new or ſecond ſtate, τὸ ἐκ δευτέρας γεννηθῆναι, καὶ ἀναπλασθῆναι, ſay the Grammarians. 'Tis uſed among the Pythagoreans for the return of the ſoul, εἰς γένεσιν, when that ſoul which was once in him, that is dead, comes back to life again in another body. In ſacred writers 'tis uſed agreeably for the reſurrection, whether that of the future being of body and ſoul, or that which Chriſt is pleaſed to make preparative to it, the ſpiritual proſelytiſm, expreſs'd by that phraſe, Tit. 3. 5. the change and renovation of the ſoul and affections in this life, and as a token and ſign of that work of Chriſts, it is uſed for Baptiſm, that being born of water, and the Holy Ghoſt, Joh. 3. And ſo hath Phavorinus obſerved, παλιγγενεσία, τὸ ἅγιον βάπτισμα λέγεται, 'tis ſet to ſignify Holy baptiſm, (ſee note on Mat. 3. a. and Joh. 3. a.) farther yet, and by the ſame analogy, it may ſignify that ſecond or new ſtate, that μέλλων αἰών, in Iſaiah, that age to come, that is, the ſtate of the Church under Chriſt, or his ſpiritual kingdom, beginning at the reſurrection of Chriſt, and this, either in reſpect of the beginning of it, Chriſt's reſurrection, which is fitly ſtiled παλιγγενεσία the new birth of Chriſt, or elſe in regard that all other things (that is, the general diſpoſal of all things in the Church) are become new, 2 Cor. 5. 27. the Gentiles received into the Church, the Jewiſh Prieſthood, and ceremonies aboliſhed, &c. If this laſt ſenſe be here made uſe of, then it will be moſt agreeable to the ordinary punctation of our printed Copies, which ſet a comma after ἀκολουθήσαντές μοι, ye that have followed me, and another again after ἐν τῇ παλιγγενεσίᾳ, in the regeneration, ſevering the latter from the former, and joining it ſo with καθίσεσθε καὶ ὑμεῖς, ye ſhall alſo, ſit, &c. that what is betwixt ὅταν καθίσῃ, &c. when the ſon of man ſhall ſit on the throne of his glory, ſhall be as in a Parentheſis, to explicate what is meant by that time, and what that in the regeneration ſignifies, viz. when Chriſt ſhall be gone to heaven, and all power in the Church ſolemnly enſtated on him. At which time they ſhall be placed in authority next unto him, as the four and twenty Elders, Rev. 4. 4. are next to him that ſits, in the midſt, upon the throne. And thus that which is in theſe words here propſoed to Peter and the reſt of the diſciples, by way of reward for following him, will be exactly proportionable to that other promiſe in the ſame kind made to them in the perſon of St. Peter, c. 16. 19. For the giving the keys there, was the enſtating on them a power in the Church, to which they were to ſucceed, under & after him, upon his Aſcention, which very thing is clearly expreſs'd by ſitting on ſeats, and judging the twelve tribes; the expreſſion being taken from the φυλάρχαι, or chief of the tribes, among the Jews, who had a dignity inferior, but (in that circuit) next to the regal, to which Chriſt was by his Aſcenſion enthroned. What this dignity and power was to be, is diſcernible both by that place of the donation of the keys, and more particularly by that, which, c. 20. is added upon this very occaſion; there the ſons of Zebedee, or their mother, in their behalf, having on this preſent promiſe of Chriſt, built an expectation of ſome earthly greatneſs, particularly of that (ſo familiar among them) of the φυλάρχαι, the chief of the tribes, thereupon they petition, that they in the diſpenſing of theſe dignities among the Twelve, might have the πρωτεῖα (as Judah and Joſeph among the Jews) the pre-eminence above the reſt of the twelve, whereupon Chriſt diſabuſes her, and ſhews them that they were no kind of ſecular advantages (or ſuch as would be very deſirable to them) which were likely to come in to them by this means (ſee power of keys, c. 5. ſect. 13. &c.) By which anſwer of Chriſt to the Diſciples, reflecting on the dignity and office of judge here mention'd, it is in ſome degree evident (what S. Auguſtine affirmeth) that the judicature here ſpoken of, is that in the Church of Chriſt; yet becauſe it is by St. Paul alſo affirmed of the Saints, that they ſhall judge the world, 1 Cor. 6. 2. and becauſe in St. Luke, c. 22. 29. there is joined herewith the eating and drinking at his table in his kingdom, and becauſe Mar. 10. 30. (which is parallel to this) beſide the reward in this time (this world) there is mention of the world to come alſo, and everlaſting life, therefore it will be moſt ſafe to interpret this judging here, of the Apoſtles power in the Church of Chriſt, yet ſo as may not exclude that future dignity alſo.

e. Εκατονταπλασίονα λαμβάνειν

V. 29. Hundred fold] There is a ſaying in the Alcoran very agreeable to this, Qui opes ſuas erogant in via Dei, ſimiles ſunt grano, quod ſeptem ſpicas germinavit, They that lay out their riches in the way of God are like a grain of corn which hath ſhot out ſeven ſtalks. Now ſuppoſing every of thoſe ſtalks, or ears to have ten corns in it, that will be the ſeventy fold ſpoken of Mat. 13. But ſuppoſing fourteen or fifteen in each (as in the moſt fruitful places and years it is) then it amounts to an hundred fold, and ſo the hundred-fold being the proportion of the moſt fruitful meſſuage, is here ſet down as the harveſt of the Chriſtian (that ſuffers or gives for Chriſt's ſake) and that in this life.

CHAP. XX.

Paraphraſe.

1. FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an houſholder, which went out * early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

1. If you do not perfectly underſtand what was laſt ſaid, (of the laſt ſhall be firſt, &c.) then a reſemblance of it (and in that of all Gods dealing with men in the Church) you may have in a man of an eſtate, managing it himſelf, by the manner of his dealing with his hired labourers; firſt he went out as ſoon as it was light (anſwerable to Chriſts calling and ſending the twelve at the beginning of mens receiving the faith, c. 9. 38. and c. 10. 1.) into the market-place, where day-labourers were wont to ſtand, expecting imployment, to hire labourers for his Vineyard.

2. And when he had agreed with the labourers for a penny] a day, he ſent them into his vineyard.

2. And having agreed with a certain number for ſet determinate wages of ſeven pence half penny.

†or, found, for the Gr. and Lat. MS. reads εὗρεν

3. About nine of the clock in the morning.

3. And he went out [about the third hour] and † ſaw others ſtanding idle in the market-place.

4. I will not bind my ſelf to give you the wages of a whole day for this part of it, but according as you ſhall, for the time you are in, behave your ſelves in the vineyard, ye ſhall be rewarded.

4. And ſaid unto them, Go ye alſo into the vineyard, and [whatſoever is right I will give you.] And they went their way.

5. About twelve at noon, and about three in the Afternoon.

5. Again he went out [about the ſixth and ninth hour,] and did likewiſe.

6. And about five in the evening he went out again, and found others looking for work, willing to be employed, but not entertained by any.

6. And about the eleventh hour he went out and found others ſtanding idle] and ſaith unto them, Why ſtand ye here all the day idle?

See v. 4.

7. They ſay unto him, Becauſe no man hath hired us. He ſaith unto them, Go ye alſo into the Vineyard, and [whatſoever is right, that ſhall ye receive.]

*bayliff, or him that had the overſight, ἐπίτροπος

8. Beginning firſt with thoſe that came in lateſt, and ſo aſcending to them that came in firſt.

8. So when even was come the Lord of the Vineyard ſaith unto his * Steward, call the labourers and give them their hire, [beginning from the laſt unto the firſt.]

9. And when they came to be paid that had entred laſt upon their work, he gave them a whole days hire, upon their good diſcharge of that one hour in the Vineyard.

9. And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny.]

10. But when they came which were hired firſt, and wrought from the morning all the day, they thought that they ſhould have more then they which had been leſs time in the Vineyard, but they were miſtaken in their expectation, had no more then the ſum for which they were hired.

10. But when the firſt came, they ſuppoſed that they ſhould have received more and they likewiſe received every man a peny.]

†Maſter of the houſe, οἰκοδεσπότου.

11. And when they had received it, they murmured againſt the † good man of the houſe,

12. Haſt given them as much wages as we, which have laboured all day long.

12. Saying, Theſe laſt have a wrought but one hour, and thou [haſt made them equal unto us, which have born the burthen and heat of the day.] a.

13. But he anſwered one of them, and ſaid, Friend, I do thee no wrong, didſt thou not agree with me for a penny?

14. Be thou content with that which comes to thy ſhare, according to agreement, this man that came laſt to work (it being not his fault that he came not ſooner, but his not being ſooner called, v. 7. and he having laboured honeſtly and cheerfully ever ſince he came) ſhall by me, who accept the will for the deed, be rewarded with the ſame reward that thou haſt.

14. Take that thine is, and go thy way, I will give unto this laſt even as unto thee,]

15. And ſure thou haſt no reaſon to complain. What cauſe I am b good?]

15. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil because I am b good?] b.

reaſon is there that my bounty to others ſhould be matter of envy and diſcontent to thee? or that thou ſhould'ſt be the judge, how I am to deal with thy brother? Many reaſons there may be which thou knoweſt not, why they that came in laſt to the vineyard, if they were not ſooner called, or not ſo powerfully as others, ſhould be rewarded as liberally as they that have longer laboured; for a few acts of the will, if they be more intenſe and heroical, may in equitable eſtimation countervalue the work of a far longer time, as the Thieves confeſſing Chriſt, when he was on the Croſs, when his Apoſtles had forſaken him, and ſo Paul called laſt, was in labour more abundant, and ſo ranked with the firſt, and ſo many that came in to Chriſt in the cool of the day, when perſecution was over, might yet be as cordially intenſe and affectionate in his ſervice, as they that ſuffered for him, and ſo ſome that come to repentance more aged then others, and thoſe that at Chriſts preaching came in to Chriſtianity, compared with thoſe that had lived in the Jewiſh Church all their time, ſee note b.

* the called are many, but the choiſe or elect few.

16. And thus that which was ſaid before, c. 19. 30. is evident, that ſome that came after you in time, may prove as richly rewardable as you, for the known ſaying is very true, that they that have favours done them by God beyond others (as to be firſt called, was a ſpecial favour to the diſciples, of which no reaſon can be given, but Gods will) do not always exceed all others in labour and Chriſtian diligence (as the Apoſtle St. Paul called long after, and therefore by himſelf ſtyled leſs then the leaſt, and born out of due time, as called after Chriſts being gone to Heaven, yet did labour more abundantly then all the twelve) nay ſome of them apoſtatize and fall off from Chriſt, as Judas did, and ſo of the whole nation of the Jews 'tis clear, that they were the men to whom God was firſt made known, and to whom Chriſt and the Goſpel were firſt ſent, they were firſt called to the faith, and firſt believed on him, and yet few of them in compariſon continued faithful to him, but the Gentiles that are after called, do eſpecially believe, and ſtick cloſe to him, and conſequently are accepted of him.

16. So the laſt ſhall be firſt, and the firſt laſt; for * many be c called, but few choſen.] c.

17. And Jeſus going up to Jeruſalem took the twelve diſciples apart in the way, and ſaid unto them,

* delivered up, παραδοθήσεται

18. To the Sanhedrim there, who tho' they have not power to put any man to death, yet ſhall paſs that ſentence againſt him, that he is guilty of death.

18. Behold, we go up to Jeruſalem, and the ſon of man ſhall be * betrayed [unto the chief Prieſts, and to the Scribes, and they ſhall condemn him to death.]

19. And ſhall preſs the Roman Judge to put him to death after their manner of puniſhing the baſeſt malefactors.

19. And ſhall deliver him to the gentiles to mock, and to ſcourge, and to crucify him,] and the third day he ſhall riſe again.

20. Upon this mention of his reſurrection, which they preſumed to be the time of his taking all greatneſs upon him, the mother of James and John, being put upon it by them, came with them to Jeſus, and falling down to him, made a petition, (ſee power of Keys, c. 5. ſect. 13.) to him.

20. Then came to him the mother of Zebedees children with her ſons worſhipping him, and deſiring a certain thing of him.]

21. Of that dignity which thou haſt promiſed thy diſciples, c. 19. 28. proportionable to that of being heads among the tribes of the Jews, grant that my two ſons, James and John may have the firſt places, as Joſeph and Judah had among them.

21. And he ſaid unto her, What wilt thou? ſhe ſaith unto him [Grant that theſe my two ſons may ſit, the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom.

22. Then Jeſus told the two diſciples, they begg'd they knew not what, all the dignity ſaith he, that is to be had by being nearer to me than others, is that of ſuffering inwardly and outwardly. Can you prepare your ſelves for that?

22. But Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I ſhall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptiſm that I am baptized with?] They ſay unto him, We are able.

23. Tis true indeed, the ſufferings that befal me ſhall befal you alſo, afflictions, and perſecutions, wherein you may rejoyce, that you are made partakers with me. But for any priviledge of honour or dignity above others, they to whom my Father hath deſigned, ſhall have it, and I ſhall not go about to change his deſignation, or aſſign it to any others, upon any abſolute unconditionate will or favour of mine, to gratify you, or ſatisfy your importunity, but diſpoſe of it according to thoſe rules and conditions and qualifications, which my father hath ſet down, and I from him have revealed to you.

† ſave to thoſe for whom, ἀλλ' οἷς ἡτοίμασται

23. And he ſaith unto them, [Ye ſhall drink indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptiſm that I am baptized with; But to ſit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to give, † but it ſhall be given to them, for whom it is prepared of my father.]

24. And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation againſt the two brethren.

25. But

25. But Jeſus called [them unto him, and ſaid, Ye know that the Princes of the Gentiles exerciſe dominion over them, and they that are great, exerciſe authority upon them.]

25. Thoſe that were diſpleaſed with the ambition of the other two, and ſaid to them, 'Tis true that the rulers or kings of the nations are ſerved and benefitted by their ſubjects; receive ſecular advantages by their pre-eminences (ſee note on 1 Pet. 5. a.) and the Emperours in like manner are over thoſe kings.

26. But it ſhall not be ſo among you: but whoſoever will be great among you, let him be your miniſter.]

26. But prelacy and pre-eminence among you muſt bring along with it offices of burthen and humility, and not be after the manner of Gentile Princes.

27. And whoſoever will be chief among you [let him be your ſervant.]

27. Muſt be the ſervant of all the reſt (for ſo the governours of the Church are to be.

28. Even as the ſon of man came not to be miniſtred unto, but to miniſter, and to give his life a ranſom for many.]

28. Even as Chriſt's kingdom here is not adminiſtred in that way, which might bring in ſplendour, or profit to him, but in a way of charity, ſerving, relieving, providing, and dying for his people, inſtead of requiring ſuch offices from them.

29. d And as they departed from Jericho, a great multitude followed him. d.

30. And behold two blind men ſitting by the way ſide, when they heard that Jeſus paſſed by, cryed out, ſaying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou ſon of David.

31. And the multitude rebuked them, becauſe they ſhould hold their peace; but they cryed the more ſaying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou ſon of David.

32. And Jeſus ſtood ſtill and called them, and ſaid, What will ye that I ſhall do unto you?

33. They ſay unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.

34. So Jeſus had compaſſion on them, and touched their eyes, and immediately their eyes received ſight, and they followed him.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XX.

a. Ποιεῖν

V. 12. Wrought] The word ποιεῖν in the New Teſtament, when 'tis joined with words that denote time, is to be rendred, to ſtay, or to ſpend. So Acts 5. 34. βραχύ τι ποιῆσαι, to ſtay a little while. So Acts 15. 33. ποιεῖν χρόνον, to ſtay time, and χρόνον τινα, ſome time, c. 18. 23. So Acts 18. 21. ἑορτὴν ποιεῖν to ſtay or ſpend the feaſt, Acts 20. 3. ποιεῖν μῆνας τρεῖς, to ſtay three months. And ſo here it may poſſibly note the ſpace of their being and labouring in the Vineyard, tho' it is not improbable that the right reading might be ἐπόνησαν, laboured, which is very little diſtant from it. If it be not, yet moſt probably the word ἐποίησαν muſt be taken in that ſenſe of ἐπόνησαν, as viſibly it is, Ruth 2. 19. τῷ ἐποίησας; where haſt thou laboured, and τῷ ἐποίησε where ſhe had laboured, and μεθ' ᾧ ἐποίησα, with whom I laboured, where ſtill the Hebrew hath עשה labouring.

b. Ἀγαθὸς

V. 15. Good] The word ἀγαθὸς good, hath a peculiar notion in this and ſome other places, and ſignifies bounty or liberality, as when works of Mercy are call'd ἀγαθὰ ἔργα goods works, Acts 9. 36. ἀγαθοποιῶν doing good, Mark 3. 4. καρποὶ ἀγαθοί, good fruits, Jam. 3. 17. and ordinarily in the Church-writers, ἀγαθουργία, working good. Thus ἀγαθὸν ἐργάζεσθαι to work good, Gal. 6. 9. and πᾶν ἀγαθὸν ἔργον, every good work, 2 Cor. 9. 8. appear by the context to belong to works of mercy. Thus Rom. 5. 7. where the good man is ſo particularly diſtinguiſhed from the righteous man, and Tit. 2. 6. where the elder women are commanded to be ἀγαθαὶ good, that is, merciful or kind to thoſe of their family. Thus when Heſychius mentions the word χάσιος (which is, as hath been ſaid, the Hebrew חסיד, or Syriack חסי, with the Greek termination, which ſignifies bountiful or merciful) he explains it by ἀγαθὸς, χρηστὸς, making theſe three words to have the ſame ſignification, and ſo doth the Targum render the Hebrew חסיד by טב ſometimes, that is, good. And ſo in this place the maſter is ſaid to be good, becauſe he gave to him that had been in the Vineyard but an hour, as much as was the wages of the whole day: This, tho' it were not matter of injury to them that had laboured all day, becauſe they had the full hire, for which they had contracted, is yet matter of murmuring there, v. 11. and indeed hath ſomewhat of difficulty in it, how to reconcile it with God's rewarding every man according to his works, or actions, (which is every where ſaid of God) and his giving a more liberal harveſt to him that ſoweth plentifully, then to any that ſoweth leſs plentifully, 2 Cor. 9. 6. The way of clearing this difficulty will be by obſerving that this Parable here uſed by Chriſt was a Parable uſed among the Jews, and therefore if any part of it were here unmentioned by Chriſt, and briefly referr'd to by him, the ſure way will be to ſupply it by the Authors among them, by whom 'tis fully ſet down. Now this is done by Gemara Hieroſol. Cod. Berachoth. Of a king and labourers hired by him, and one of them paid for a little time the whole days hire, whereupon the reſt of them grieve and murmur, and ſay, We have labour'd all day, & this man לא יגע, &c. hath not laboured above two hours of the day, and, ſay they, בטל שכרו משלם he hath received his hire in peace, that is, the full hire of a day for that ſmall time; To theſe the kings anſwer there is, He in that two hours hath laboured as much as you have done all the day. Here it is evident, the account of the buſineſs is laid upon the ſuperabundant diligence and earneſtneſs of thoſe that came late in, which God (tho' not tyed by contract, as with the other, but only by promiſe of giving them what ſhall be meet, v. 47. that is, dealing equitably with them) thinks fit to reward, thro' his merciful interpretation and acceptance of it, as richly, as the whole days labour of the others. And tho' the weight of the reaſon or anſwer here mentioned by Chriſt ſeem wholly to be laid upon the free will and liberality of the Lord, v. 15 and not upon their ſuperabundant diligence, for the time that they were in the vineyard, yet is this other reaſon to be ſuppoſed here alſo, being not by this excluded, any more then God's rewarding according to works is excluded by his being merciful (when indeed David makes a cloſe connexion between them, Pſ. 62. 12. Thou Lord art merciful, for thou rewardeſt every man according to his works) and 'tis poſſible it might alſo be mentioned by Chriſt, tho' for brevity it be not here ſet down. And indeed this form of anſwer (here uſed by Chriſt, and ſet down) by way of ἔνστασις, to repel and poze the diſputer (Is it not lawful, &c. Is thy eye evil, &c.) is very fit to have been proœmial to this other of the equitableneſs of the payment, in like manner, as Rom. 9. 20, 21. is preparatory to the fuller and more ſatisfactory anſwer, v. 22. However this is clear, that in Chriſt's application of the Parable to his deſigned buſineſs, this is more then intimated. For the whole parable being briefly applied in theſe words οὕτως, &c. So the firſt ſhall be the laſt, and the laſt firſt; the reaſon is diſtinctly annexed, For or becauſe many are the called, but few the choſen, Many of the called (that is, thoſe that were hired, and admitted into the vineyard) are not the choſen, that is, are not thought fit to be rewarded at all by Chriſt, which à majori concludes, that ſome that came in later deſerved as well as they that were firſt called in in the morning, which cannot be, but (as ſaith St. Paul of himſelf) by their labouring more abundantly for the time, then they had done which were longer there.

c. Κλῆσις

V. 16. Called] What the word κλῆσις ſignifies here, and how it differs from κλητὸς is worth examining at large now once for all, which therefore I ſhall ſet about; the word κλῆσις and κλῆσις in the New Teſta-

ment are proportionable one to the other, and will mutually help to the underſtanding one the other. If we look on them in the Apocrypha, as we meet with them both in one place of the third book of the Maccabees, it will prove a uſeful riſe; there κλητοὶ ſignifies gueſts invited to a feaſt, ἀγρίους τὺς κλητὺς ἰδὼν (as in humane Authors, ὅταν τῶ κλητῶμεν ἡ λαμπρὸς ζωοδωχώμεθα, Heraclitus ἐπὶ ἀπο. λβ. to which is oppoſed ἄκλητοι in Homer, and invocati in Plautus) and κλῆσις the office of inviting and entertaining them; and Judith 12. 11. a banquet or invitation. So ὁ ἐπὶ τῆ κλίσει τεταγμένος, is he that was to invite and entertain (κλήτωρ invitator in the Gloſs, and δειπνοκλήτωρ, ſee note d.) In the Greek tranſlation of the Canonical books of the Old Teſtament the word hath another notion; as when thoſe that were pitch'd on as ſpecial men by Adonijah to be of his party, are call'd οἱ κλητοὶ τῦ Ἀδωνίου, 1 Kings 1.49. and v. 41. the called of Adonijah, not becauſe they had been invited by him to a feaſt, but ſuch as were call'd by his name, that is, ſuch as adhered to him. For ſo they that Abſalom had pick'd out in the ſame manner to be his confidents are call'd κλητοὶ, two hundred call'd men, 2 *Sam.*15.11. So that hitherto κλητοὶ ſignifies thoſe that are pitch'd on either to receive ſpecial favours, or over and above to be employed in ſpecial truſts, and the latter the ſpecial meaning of the word. So Ariſtotle in his Oeconomicks, *l.*2. in the paſſage of Antimenes Rhodius, where we find τεχνίτας κλητὺς ſubjoined to σαφεάτας ἀποδοκίμως approved officers, where probably it muſt ſignify ſpecial pick'd Artificers. Beſides this notation of the Greek from the Hebrew for calling, there is another for celebrare to celebrate, and ſo the words קריאה and מקרא ſignify celebrem, as well as vocatum, and is rendred ἐπίκλητος illuſtrious, famous, ſometimes, and κλητὸς call'd, when it ſignifies ἐπίκλητος famous. Thus in the book of Exodus (*c.*12.16.) and in Levit. often, we find this phraſe κλητὴ ἁγία, call'd holy, where the Hebrew read מקרא קדש, where yet we have no more reaſon to reprehend the Greek for either ſolœciſme, or miſs-tranſlation, then in the ὅσια τὰ πιστὰ, for ſure mercies, which yet is tranſcribed by S. Luke, who was skilful enough in that language, Acts 13.34. The Greek, I conceive is to have a ſenſe aſſigned fit and proper for both the words and intention of the original, and it will be this, that ſuch a day, the ſeventh or the like, ſhall be the called, or the ſolemn holy, holy ſignifying one ſet apart to a ſeparate uſe, the ſervice and worſhip of God, the κλητὴ the ſolemn or called, a ſpecial celebrity, a known day, favoured by God with that priviledge above others, and both together a ſolemn holy, or a holy ſolemnity, not, I conceive, as our ordinary Engliſh reads (and the ſenſe, tho' not the words bears well enough) an holy convocation, as if the מקרא referred peculiarly to the calling or aſſembling the people together, but as it notes a ſpecial honouring and picking out of a day, and preferring it before others, a ſolemn, ſeparate, feſtival day. So ſaith Phavorinus, Κλητὴ ἡ καλλίστη (not, as the copy hath it, καλεστὴ) ἐξοχωτάτη, ὡς τὸ αὐτὸ ἡ κλητὴ καὶ ἁγία ἡμέρα, it ſignifieth the beſt and principal day, and is the ſame that an holy day. And juſt agreeable to this notion of κλητὸς for called, or renowned, or picked out, (ſet apart in ſome ſpecial degree, allowed ſome priviledge, which others were not vouchſafed) is the notation of ἐπίκλητος in the Septuagint, either as applied to a day, *Num.*28.18. ἐπίκλητος ἁγία, juſt as before κλητὴ ἁγία, or as to perſons, *Num.*1.16. οἱ ἐπίκλητοι τῆς συναγωγῆς, which we render the renowned of the congregation (as in Heſychius Κλητὸς ὁ ἔνδοξος) where yet the Hebrew hath (from the ſame root, that before) קריאי the called, and is, Num. 26.9. rendred σύγκλητοι βουλῆς, Senators of the councel, or Patres conſcripti, as it were. Thus far will the Old Teſtament lead us into the ſenſe of this word, and by the conſent which is between the Tranſlators of that, and the Writers of the New, κλῆσις actively taken (as it muſt be, when 'tis applied to God) ſignifies that peculiarity of favour now vouchſafed (unto both Jews and Gentiles, but firſt to the Jews, to whom Chriſt firſt came, and the Goſpel was firſt preached) which had not before been allowed to any, a ſtate of favour vouchſafed by God's ſpecial providence, and grace, particularly that of having the way to heaven laid open to them, in the preaching of the Goſpel. So *Rom.*9.11. Gods calling is ſet to ſignify his peculiar favour contrary to ἐξ ἔργων, doing any thing on intuition of merit; and *Rom.*11.29. it ſignifies God's favour in allowing the means of ſalvation, and place of repentance unto the Jews, and is joined with the χαρίσματα, gifts or graces of God, particularly that of ſpecial promiſe to them, (that is, to their fathers) that they ſhould not utterly be deſtroyed, of which two favours of God to that people for their fathers ſakes (1. that they ſhould not utterly be deſtroyed, 2. that the way to heaven, the knowledge of Chriſt ſhould not utterly be obſtructed to them, but that there ſhould ſtill be a poſſibility of returning) it is there affirmed that they are ἀμεταμέλητα, abſolutely immutable and irreverſible, ſo 1 *Cor.*1.26. κλῆσις ſignifies that invitation unto Chriſt, which, as it follows there, brought in thoſe eſpecially which were of the pooreſt ſpirits, not that others were not called, but that they did not ordinarily accept of the invitation. So *Eph.*1.18. and 4.4. the ἐλπὶς κλήσεως hope of his calling, is that Hope that reſults from the mercy of God in revealing his Son to them, or poſſibly in a paſſive ſenſe, the Hope that was conſequent to their belonging or retaining unto Chriſt, being Chriſtians; and ſo when *c.*4.1. they are exhorted to walk worthy of that calling, that ſervice into which they were entred. So Phil. 3. 4. βραβεῖον τῆ ἄνω κλήσεως τῦ Θεῦ, the reward or crown of the ſupernal calling of God, ſuppoſes the κλῆσις or calling to be ſome ſervice of ours, to which the reward given by God the Judge is ſtyled βραβεῖον τῆ κλήσεως, the reward of the calling. So 2 *Theſ.*1.11. κλῆσις is that great honour of retaining to Chriſt, being his followers; and that 'tis there look'd on as a ſpecial dignity, appears by the ἀξιώσῃ, which ought to be rendred, not vouchſafing, or counting worthy, but making worthy, for that is pertinent to dignities and priviledges already enjoyed by any. So 2 Tim. 1.9. the holy calling, is that honourable condition of being Chriſtians, thro' the free mercy of God in revealing his Son to us, not upon the intuition of any merit of ours, but by his own free undeſerved grace, call'd his purpoſe and grace in the middle of the verſe. So *Heb.*3. 1. κλῆσις ἐπουρανία, the heavenly calling is the retaining to Chriſt, which is mentioned as a high mercy, of which they were μέτοχοι partakers; and laſtly, 2 Pet. 1. 10. where we are exhorted to make our calling and election firm, the calling is again thoſe mercies of Gods in making us Chriſtians, and the ἐκλογὴ election, either again the ſame (as κλητοὶ and ἐκλεκτοὶ the called and the elect are the ſame, *Rev.*17.14. both expounded by πιστοὶ believers, or faithful, which follow) becauſe that of having Chriſt revealed to them, this favour vouchſafed to them, was an act of God's free choice, without any kind of merit on mans part, (and ſo the word appears to be taken, *Eph.*1. by comparing v. 4. with *v.*9. or elſe the purpoſe and mercy of God rewarding believers eternally. And theſe are made firm when that ſanctifying uſe is made of them, when men live proportionably to their talent given, God threatning otherwiſe to remove and withdraw thoſe mercies. By proportion with this ſignification of the Subſtantive κλῆσις calling, we muſt render κλητὸς, one that hath received this mercy, and honour of retaining to Chriſt in any higher or lower quality. Thus κλητὸς ἀπόστολος, *Rom.*1.1. and 1 *Cor.*1. 1. one that hath received this ſpecial ſingular honour and mercy of Chriſt to be an Apoſtle, called from heaven to that office, and v. 6. κλητοὶ Ἰησῦ, Chriſtians, tho' not Apoſtles; and *v.*7. and 1 Cor. 1. 2. κλητοὶ ἅγιοι, though not dignified ſo far as to be his Apoſtles, yet to be his ſervants or Chriſtians; and c. 8. 21. κατὰ πρόθεσιν κλητοῖς, either (in proportion to 2 Tim. 1. 9.) they that are thus loved and favoured by God out of his ſpecial grace, or (according to S. Cyril of Jeruſalem his notion of πρόθεσις in his preface to his Catechiſms) they that are come in to the faith of Chriſt, not only bodily as Simon Magus, but in ſincere purpoſe and reſolution of mind, (ſee note on Rom. 8. 28.) So 1 Cor. 1. 24. οἱ κλητοὶ the called, being oppoſed ſed to infidel Jews and Greeks, are ſervants, followers of Chriſt; ſo Jude 1. the word is uſed abſolutely and ſubſtantively τοῖς κλητοῖς, to them that are called, that is, to the Saints or Chriſtians, ſanctified by God the Father, and kept by Jeſus Chriſt. Having gone thus far, there are only three places behind; Two are thoſe, in which κλητὸς is ſet in oppoſition to ἐκλεκτὸς, here and c. 22.14. In this place 'tis clear that κλητὸς belongs to the notion of retaining unto Chriſt, entring into his ſervice in the vineyard, and ἐκλεκτὸς to ſome ſpecial excellence or diligence there, to which reward is conſequent. Nay κλητὸς may refer to the favor of being call'd before others, preferr'd before others in that reſpect, when others lye idle a great while, becauſe they are not call'd, v. 7. But ἐκλεκτοὶ ſuch, as to whom God hath rewarded the hire or reward, which we ſee was by God (who rewards every man according to his actions or works) awarded as plentifully to them that came in late to the vineyard, as to thoſe that came in earlieſt, and that ſignifies that they coming in late laboured more for the time than the other did, nay very many of thoſe that were firſt call'd, viz. the Jews, came not in at all, and ſo were not all capable of that reward; And in both reſpects, 1. of them that being call'd firſt, were yet exceeded in diligence, and ſo overcome by thoſe that came later, and 2. of thoſe that forſook their own mercy, it is there ſaid, that many are the called, but the choſen few, and the laſt ſhall be firſt, and the firſt laſt, thoſe that had been vouchſafed earlier mercies, greater graces for the obtaining ſalvation, call'd before others to the Goſpel, nay perhaps allowed higher revelations here, are not yet found capable of higher rewards, greater degrees of glory hereafter. And the reaſon is, becauſe (though not this of God's vocation, which is free, yet) that other mercy, of eternal reward, is diſpenſed ſecundum opera, according to the proportion to that uſe that is made of that grace of vocation, that is, to every man according to his works. So in the ſecond place, Mat. 22.14. the called are thoſe to whom the firſt graces are given of inviting and calling to Chriſt, v. 3, 4. and yet farther, of bringing in to that ſpiritual feaſt, v. 10. but then thoſe that were invited, and did not at all come in, and ſo were not worthy, v. 8. that is, capable of the farther grace of reward, or reception there, and he that coming in, came without the wedding garment, that due reformation and change of mind, required of him in obedience to that call, were not allow'd thoſe higher vouchſafements, but even thoſe which they had taken from them, and they puniſhed for the abuſe of them, caſt into utter darkneſs, where there is crying out, &c. The laſt place, Apoc. 17.14. is very remarkable, where κλητοὶ, ἐκλεκτοὶ, πιστοὶ, called, choſen, faithful, are ſet down either as all one, or elſe as divers degrees of Chriſtians and πιστοὶ the laſt or higheſt. 1. κλητοὶ retainers to Chriſt, or to the faith of Chriſt; then 2. ἐκλεκτοὶ, thoſe that had lived like ſuch, that had not in vain receiv'd the Goſpel; 3. πιστοὶ the faithful ſervants that continued faithful unto death, performed all the truſts that God had repoſed in them. By what hath been thus ſhortly ſaid, may be diſcerned what probably is the meaning of this word in the ſeveral places in the New Teſtament, which here once for all was not amiſs to have mentioned. Of the word ἐκλεκτὸς ſee Note on 1 Pet. 2.c.

V. 29.] In this place after v. 28. there is a large addition in the ancient Greek and Latine MS. thus, Ἀπὸ μικροῦ αὐξῆσαι, καὶ ἐκ μείζονος ἐλαττονεῖσθαι (either miſ-written for ἔλαττον εἶναι, or ἐλαττονοῦσθαι) εἰσερχόμενοι δὲ καὶ ἀνακλινόμενοι δειπνῆσαι, μὴ ἀναπηδᾶτε (for ἀνακλίνεσθε) εἰς τοὺς ἐξέχοντας τόπους, μήποτε ἐνδοξότερός σου ἐπέλθῃ, καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ δειπνοκλήτωρ εἴπῃ σοι, Ἔτι κάτω χώρει, καὶ καταισχυνθήσῃ. ἐὰν δὲ πρῶτος εἰς τὸν ἥττονα τόπον, καὶ ἐπέλθῃ σου ἥττων, ἐρεῖ σοι ὁ δειπνοκλήτωρ, συμπάρελθε ἄνω, καὶ ἔσται σοι τοῦτο χρήσιμον. But do ye ſeek to encreaſe from a little, and from the more to leſſen. But when ye enter, and are invited to ſupper, lie not down in the moſt eminent places, leſt a more honourable than thou come in, and he that made the invitation come and ſay unto thee, Get thee lower, and thou be put to ſhame. But if thou lye along in the inferiour place, and one inferiour than thou come, then he that made the invitation ſhall ſay to thee, Come up higher, and this ſhall be for thine advantage. That ſome ſuch thing was ſpoken by Chriſt upon ſome occaſion, appears by Luke 14. 8. And of this there is no other mention in this Goſpel, unleſs it be here.

CHAP. XXI.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND when they drew nigh unto Jeruſalem, and were come to Bethphage unto the mount of olives, then ſent Jeſus two diſciples,

2. Saying unto them, Go into the village over againſt you, and ſtraightway ye ſhall find an aſs tyed, and a colt with her, looſe [them] and bring them unto me.

2. The foal of the aſs, Mark 11.2. and Luke 19.30, 31. (ſee c. 26.8. and 27.44.)

3. And if any man ſay ought unto you, ye ſhall ſay, The Lord hath need of them, and ſtraightway he will ſend them.

4. All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet, ſaying,

4, 5. Thus Chriſt road not for any wearineſs (having gone formerly through all Paleſtine on foot, and this being now a ſmall journey from mount Olivet to Jeruſalem, but thereby (by uſing this that belonged to Judges, Speak you that ride on white aſſes) to ſignifie his approbation of thoſe due acclamations which he knew would that day be given him, v. 8. as to the Meſſias, that ſo the prophecy Iſa. 62.11. and Zach. 9.9. might be accompliſh'd, wherein we read, That the King of the Jews, the Meſſias, ſhould come riding upon an Aſſes foal, which though it were a meek, was yet alſo a royal geſture or ceremony.

5. Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, Thy King cometh unto thee, meek, ſitting upon an aſs, and a colt the foal of an aſs].

6. And the Diſciples went, and did as Jeſus commanded them.

7. And brought the aſs and the colt, and put on them their clothes, and they [ſet him thereon.]

7. Set him upon the foal, ſee v. 2.

8. And a very great multitude [ſpread their garments in the way, others cut down branches from the trees, and ſtrewed them in the way.

8, 9. While they fitted the beaſt for him, uſed this ceremony of laying garments ſpread in his way, a rite uſual among them at the creation of a King (2 Kin. 9.13.) others uſed the ceremonies uſed at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, cutting and carrying of boughs, and crying in Hebrew, Save now, which being here done to Chriſt under the title of the Son of David, was their proclaiming, or acknowledging him to be the Meſſias, which was to come (ſee Mat. 11.2.) and this they did in more words, ſaying, Bleſſed in the name of the Lord be he that is thus peculiarly ſent by God to bring reconciliation or peace, (Luke 19.38.) to us ſinful men. Glory be to thee in the higheſt heaven, for thou art the eternal God, that dwelleſt there. a.

9. And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cryed, ſaying, a Hoſanna to the ſon of David, * Bleſſed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hoſanna in the higheſt.]

* Bleſſed in the name of the Lord be he that cometh, εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι

10. And when he was come into Jeruſalem, all the city was moved, ſaying, Who is this?

11. And the multitude ſaid, This is Jeſus the Prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

12. And Jeſus went into the Temple of God, and caſt out all them that ſold and bought in the Temple, and overthrew the b tables of [the money-changers] and the * ſeats of them that ſold Doves.

12. Thoſe which returned money by exchange. b.

† money-merchants. * ſtalls, καθέδρας

13. And ſaid unto them, It is written, My houſe [ſhall be called the houſe of prayer, but ye have made it a den of c thieves.]

13. The Temple ſhall be ſet apart peculiarly to Gods ſervice, or imployed only as a place of prayer, but your practiſe hath made it far otherwiſe, you have made it a kind of market place, a receptacle of cunning merchants that make gain and advantage of their brethren, by attending the Feſtivals of the Temple, and ſelling to them that bring not Sacrifices with them. c.

14. And

14. And the blind and the lame came to him in the Temple, and he healed them.
15. And when the chief Priests and Scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying in the Temple, and saying, Hosanna to the son of David, they were sore displeased.

15. And when they of the Jewish Sanhedrim saw his miraculous cures, v. 14. and the childrens acclamations as to a King, or Messias, they were much troubled at it.

16. And said unto him, Hearest thou what these say? And Jesus saith unto them, Yea, [Have ye never read, out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou perfected praise?

16. Do you not remember that prediction, Psal. 8. 2. that, out of the mouth of babes, &c. that is, from the testimony of such weak and feeble Creatures, Christ's divinity and power should be proclaimed, and great matters should come from such weak and mean beginnings.

d.

17. And he left them, and went out of the City into Bethany, and he lodged there.
18. Now in the morning as he returned into the city, he hungred.
19. And when he saw a fig tree † in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and said unto it, Let no more fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever. And presently the fig tree withered away.

† at some distance from the way, ἐπὶ ὁδοῦ, see note on Mark 2.6.

See Mar. 11. 13.

20. And when the disciples saw it, they marvelled, saying, * How soon is the fig tree withered away?]

20. And the next morning, Mar. 11. 20. passing by the disciples saw it, and wondred, saying, How wonderful is it, that the fig tree upon those words of Christ should be withered and dead all of this thus instantly?

* how is the fig tree withered presently? πῶς παραχρῆμα ἐξηράνθη.

21. Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, If ye have faith and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea, it shall be done.

See Mat. 17. 20.

22. And all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing, ye shall receive.]

22. But this you must set upon, not in any confidence of your selves, but in all humility of prayer to God, and whatsoever ye shall thus pray for, believing that I according to my promise will grant it to you, ye shall certainly receive from me, see Mark 11. 24.

23. And when he was come into the Temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came unto him, as he was teaching, and said, [By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?]

23. Thou hast no authority from the Sanhedrim to do what thou doest, from whence then hast thou it? or why dost thou teach, and do what thou doest without it?

24. And Jesus said unto them, I also will ask you one thing, which if you tell me, I in likewise will tell you by what authority I do these things.]

24. To this question Jesus thought fit to give answer by making this other question, which would retort, and stop their mouths, as it appears it did v. 27.

e.

25. The baptism of John, whence was it? from e heaven, or of men?] And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven, he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him?

25. Had John the Baptist commission from God to do what he did, or came he only of himself?

26. But if we shall say, Of men, [we fear the people,] for all hold John as a Prophet.

26. We shall be in danger to be stoned by the multitude, Luke 20. 6.

27. And they answered Jesus, and said, We cannot tell. And Jesus said unto them, [Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.]

27. Then sure it is not needful for me to give you an account of my commission or authority, when 'tis granted by you, that a man may lawfully preach and baptize, and entertain Disciples, as John did, without the approbation of the Sanhedrim.

28. But what think you? A certain man] had two sons, and he came to the first and said, Son, go and work to day in my vineyard.

28. But is not this a strange thing that you that undertake and pretend so much to be God's knowing and obedient Servants, should yet stand out the most obstinately of all others against his commands and messengers sent from him, when the worst and meanest of them the Publicans and the multitude forsake their former ways, repent and believe the Gospel? I will tell you a story, or parable, There was a man that

29. He answered and said, I will not, but afterward he repented and went.
30. And he came to the * second, and said likewise, and he answered and said, I go Sir, and went not.

* or, other, for the Gr. and Lat. & most of the MS. read ἑτέρῳ not δευτέρῳ.

31. Receive the Gospel, when ye reject it.

31. Whether of them twain did the will of his father? They say unto him, The first. Jesus saith unto them, Verily, I say unto you, that the publicans and harlots [go into the kingdom of God before you.]
32. For John came unto you [in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not: but the publicans and the harlots believed him. And ye, when ye had seen it, repented not afterward that ye might believe it.]

32. Shewing you a way (preaching repentance as the only way) to rescue you and your whole Nation from destruction, and ye despised his menaces, Nay when even the Publicans and viciousest people were wrought on by him, yet did not this work upon you neither.

33. A hollow trough, wherein they tread grapes; and built a fair lodge for the vine-dresser to dwell in, and having furnish'd it so compleatly that no man could require any more to be done to make it tenentable, he let it out to those that deal in that commodity, who for the fruit of it were to pay him a set price, upon agreement, Cant. 8. 11. and having so done, himself took a journey a great way off.

33. Hear another parable, There was a certain housholder, which planted a vineyard, and * hedged it round about, and digged [a wine-press in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country.]

* set a mound about it, & hewed a wine-press φραγμὸν αὐτῷ περιέθηκε καὶ ὤρυξε ληνόν.

34. And when the harvest time came, when they were to receive the fruit and pay the rent.

34. And when the time of the fruit drew near] he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.

35. At another they threw stones, though they killed him not.

35. And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and [stoned another.]

36. A greater number of servants, then those which he had sent at the first.

36. Again he sent [other servants more than the first,] and they did unto them likewise.

37. But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son.
38. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir, come let us kill him, [and let us seise on his inheritance.]

38. And then we may take possession of his inheritance, as our own.

39. And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.
40. When the Lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?
41. They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard to other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons.]

† money. * hail.

41. And the Pharisees express'd a great indignation against these false and bloody servants, affirming them worthy of utter destruction, that the Lord might provide him better Officers, which should pay him his rent duly; though when Jesus upon this answer of theirs approved the reasonableness of it, and affirmed it should thus befal them indeed, Luke 20. 16. (by which they began to discern, that he spake the parable against them,) they with indignation deprecate the sentence, Luke 20. 19.

42. Jesus

42. Jeſus ſaith unto them, [Did you never read in the Scriptures, The ſtone which the builders rejected, the ſame is become the head of the corner, f this is the Lords doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?]

42. Did you never obſerve a notable paſſage in the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 118.22. referring proverbially to ſome famous building, the Temple, or the like, (wherein one ſtone which the builders had laid aſide, as good for nothing, proved at length to be very fit for the prime place in the building, the utmoſt corner-ſtone) and by that Pſalmiſt applied to David (whom the princes, with Saul and the chief of Iſrael, refuſed, and perſecuted, but after he became king) and which yet farther prophetically belongs to Chriſt (who being refuſed and rejected a long time by the chief prieſts and elders, and the Sanhedrim of the Jews, and by them put to death, was to riſe again, and become a glorious head of his Church? f

43. Therefore I ſay unto you, [the kingdom of God ſhall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.]

43. The Goſpel and the priviledge of being the only Church and People of God, ſhall be taken from you, and given to ſuch as ſhall practiſe thoſe things which the Goſpel requires.

* This whole verſe is left out in the Gr. and Lat. MS. † bruiſed or ſhrewdly ſhaken, συνθλασθήσεται. ‖ daſh him to pieces.

44. * And whoſoever ſhall fall on this ſtone ſhall be † broken, but on whomſoever it ſhall fall, it ſhall g ‖ grind him to powder.]

44. He that, on occaſion of Chriſt, ſhall by any thing that befals him, be diſcouraged, or fall into unbelief, this ſhall be a great wounding of his Soul, a great ſin thus to fall off in time of tribulation; but he that not out of weakneſs, but of contumacy, ſhall reſiſt and provoke his wrath, and judgments, and ſo bring this ſtone, this vengeance of Chriſt down upon him, it ſhall come down moſt heavily, and daſh him into a thouſand pieces. g

45. And when the chief Prieſts and Phariſees had heard his parables, they perceived that he ſpake of them.

46. But when they ſought to lay hands on him, [they feared the multitude, becauſe they took him for a prophet.

46. They durſt not, knowing that the people generally took him for a Prophet, that is, one that had liberty of ſpeech, and was not to be reſtrained, or apprehended, nor diſparaged by them, v. 26.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XXI.

a. Ὡσαννα

V. 9. Hoſanna] The word Hoſanna is contracted of הושיעה נא, σῶσον δή, Save I beſeech thee, A form of Acclamation, which the Jews were wont to uſe in their Feaſt of Tabernacles, in which alſo they uſed to carry boughs in their hands, (ſee Nehem. 8.15. 1 Mac. 13.5. 2 Mac. 10.7.) and alſo to ſing Pſalms, as it is in the Maccabees, that is, to cry Hoſanna. Both theſe of Boughs and Hymns were uſual among the Grecians in any time of ſacred feſtivity. See Heſychius on the word Αἴσακος, which, ſaith he, is ὁ ἐκ δάφνης κλάδος, ὃ καθικέσιος ὕμνων τὰς Θεὰς, a bough of Lawrel (as here of Palm) which they held in their hands when they praiſed their Gods. From theſe two put together in is, that, as Elias Levita tells us in his Thisbi, thoſe Boughs there uſed, were called Hoſanna's, and to bind up Hoſanna's, is properly, to bind up bundles of willow-boughs, which, ſaith he, where they were to be had, were moſt uſed by them, though thoſe that are preſcribed in Nehemiah are Olive, and Pine, and Mirtle. This ceremony thus largely uſed to Chriſt, with all the ſolemnities of ſtrewing garments and boughs in the way, as at the inauguration of a King, as in David's Coronation, Pſal. 118.25. and Pſal. 20.9. and as at the Feaſt of Tabernacles (by which was noted, or prefigured God's pitching his tabernacle in our fleſh, his ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, dwelling, or pitching his tent or tabernacle among us, John 1.14. his dwelling in the tents of Sem, Gen. 9.17.) is a token of the peoples acknowledging him to be the Meſſias, the Shiloh, whom they expected, who is therefore expreſs'd by the ὁ ἐρχόμενος, he that cometh, that is, he that was thus ſolemnly ſent, and anointed by God (ſee Mat. 11.a.) And the addition in the next words of Hoſanna ἐν ὑψίστοις in the higheſt, will be beſt underſtood by comparing it, 1. with Pſal. 148.1. (where במרום in the higheſt ſignifies poetically in the heavens, immediately precedent) and then with Luke 19. 38. where it is, peace in heaven, and glory in the higheſt, that is, glory and praiſe to him in heaven, who had uſed this means of reconciling heaven with us, that is, God in heaven to us ſinners upon earth.

b. Τράπεζα

V. 12. Tables] The word τράπεζα table here is that from which thoſe that dealt in returning moneys, or in bills of exchange, and made advantage and gain by ſo doing, are call'd τραπεζῖαι, Matth. 25.27. ordinarily among Authors. Thus among the Jews in the Gemara Sanhedrim, c. 7. § 11. חרבה מעיתיש לי ואין לי שלחני לחרצוהן I have a great deal of money, but there is no Trapezite, or Money-Merchant, with whom I may place it. Here the Trapezite ſeems to ſignifie that ſort of men who (as Merchants among us) return money for others to ſome other place, or help them to do it, and by ſo doing receive ſome themſelves, and help them to advantage ſometimes. Hence it was that the Iſraelites being by the Law to come up to Jeruſalem (how far ſoever they dwelt from) and there to ſacrifice and to offer the half ſhekel for the uſe of the Temple, Exod. 30. 13. (which by the length of their journey ſometimes they were diſabled to do.) Theſe trapezitæ ſet up their Tables in the very Temple, that ſo they might traffick with all that had uſe of them, in like manner as others brought oxen, and ſheep, and doves to ſell there to them which had not brought their ſacrifices with them. Theſe traders are here called κολλυβισταὶ, that is, men that dealt in money (for, as the Grammarians tell us, κόλλυβος for which the printed Copy of Thomas Magiſter reads κόλλυμβος) εἶδος νομίσματος, ἢ ὁ ἐν τῷ χαλκῷ κεχαραγμένος βοῦς, it is a piece of money with the image of an ox upon it) and ſo alſo κερματισταὶ, Joh. 2. 14. and that is the very ſame, κέρμα being ordinarily taken for χέρμα, that is, money indifferently, and it is a miſtake of thoſe, which from the nature of this word, think it fit to tranſlate it money-changers in this and that other place (*meaning therby thoſe that change one piece of money into another, other coins greater or ſmaller into that of a ſhekel) whereas it is dealing in money by way of return or exchange. From whence it is that Heſychius puts theſe four words in the ſame ſenſe, one to explain the other, τραπεζίτης, κολλυβιστὴς, κερματιστὴς (in like manner as Thomas Magiſter renders ἀργυραμοιβὸς by κολυμβιστὴς (for κολλυβιστὴς) and explains it by καταλλακτὴς) and δανειστὴς, the three former uſed in the Goſpel, and all to be interpreted by the fourth, an Uſurer, that is, one that made gain by loan of money, though this were not the uſury directly forbidden by their Law, but rather a way of merchandize, giving then ſo much money here, for ſo much more in another place, where the thing that is paid for, is not ſo much the uſe of the money, as the conveying it from one place to another, or the ſaving others that trouble of conveyance. 'Tis true, κερματίζω coming from κείρω to cut or ſhave, ſignifies to divide any thing into ſmall pieces, as in Plato, mans nature, ſaith he, ſeems to me εἰς ζμικρότερα κατακεκερματίσθαι, to have been cut into very little pieces. And in S. Chryſoſtom, who ſpeaking of his Homilies, more then once of the ſame matter, ſaith, εἰς πολλὰς ὑμῖν αὐτὸ κατακερματίσαμεν ἡμέρας, we have cut it into many minute parts for ſeveral days. And Heſychius κέρματα (or as it ſhould be written, κερματίζει) εἰς λεπτὰ διαιρεῖ, to divide into thin parts, but that doth not ſignifie the changing Gold into Silver, or a Shilling into three Groats, &c. but to divide the Wedge of Gold or Silver into little parts, and then ſtamp them and make coin of them, and ſuch are generally called (be they bigger or leſſer pieces) κέρματα (as 'tis plain John 2. 15.) that is, money, and by Analogy κερματισταὶ numularij, they that deal in money for advantage, returning it by way of exchange, in the ſenſe, in which among Authours χρυσαμοιβοὶ and ἀργυραμοιβοὶ are uſed; as in Themiſtocles's Epiſtles, where Philoſtephanus the Corinthian χρυσαμοιβὸς is the ſame of whom before he had ſaid, τῇ ἐπὶ τραπεζίδιον ἐργασίᾳ χρώμενος, he that made gain by re- turning of money. All these traders and traffickers that had set up in the Temple, Christ removes from thence, and, as S. Mark adds, c. 11. 16. would not permit that any should bring σκεῦος, (that is, not only vessel, but any other utensil, as in Nicolaus Damascenus of the Sordo Libyes, of whom he saith ὀλὴν σκεῦος χίλπνη ἔξω κύλικος καὶ μαχαίρας, they have no σκεῦος but a cup and a sword, where the sword is called σκεῦος, as well as a cup, and so is a sheet, Act. 10. 11.) any kind of commodity, through the Temple, which was observed also among the Jews. For so saith Maimonides in Halacha Beth Habbechira, c. 7. no man may come into the mount of the Temple with a staff, or shooes, or with a wallet, or with money folded up in a napkin, (all which are contained in the Greek word σκεῦος.) And that which is observed in this kind of some Temples by Plutarch, seems very probably to be meant by him of this Temple of Jerusalem, as P. Cunæus hath observed.

c. Λῃσταὶ. V. 13. Thieves] By λῃσταὶ thieves here are meant those that by merchandize make gain of others, not those that are robbers indeed; so Joh. 2. 16. τὸν οἶκον ἐμπορείου, a house of merchandize. Of this see our learned Countryman Mr. Fuller Miscell. l. 4. p. 6. p. 499.

d. Καταρτίσω αἶνον. V. 16. Perfected praise] The Greek καταρτίζω αἶνον in this place, is the Septuagints translation of יסדת עז thou hast founded, or ordained strength. There is little doubt but our Saviour repeated this place, as it was in the Hebrew of the Psalm, or in the Syriack dialect (as it appears he did in the repeating of the beginning of Psalm 22. by the Syriack Sabacthani) and not in the Greek, and therefore the Greek made use of by the Evangelist, or his Interpreter, must still continue to have a sense that the Hebrew words will bear, and so belongs to the childrens singing Hosanna's (for though those which did so, were not infants or sucklings, but as they are called v. 15. παῖδες children, yet were they of an age far less able to judge, then the Pharisees that rejected Christ; and if that which was said by the Psalmist of very infants, were true, then much more may it be admitted of these) which was a testimony of his Divinity; and so was the ordaining strength, that is, a strong and glorious effect from weak means, and again the perfecting praise, that is, compacting, putting together a song of confession or praise, (see 2 Cor. 13. c.) a testimony of him, such as the Scribes & Pharisees could not think fit for him to accept, but he by remembring them of that prophecy of the Psalmist, acknowledges and owns it, as a good & valid testimony, & gives them reason to do so too.

e. ὑψηνὸς. V. 25. Heaven] Heaven here signifies God, one of Gods Titles among the Hebrews being השמים Heaven.

f. Αὐτὴ. V. 42. This] Both in the Greek of Psal. 118. 23. and here αὐτὴ is put for τοῦτο, the Feminine for the Neuter, because the Hebrew זות is so used; and so Psal. 27. 4. the Greek hath μίαν ἠτησάμην, for ἓν, one thing have I asked, because the Hebrew אחת is Feminine.

g. Λικμᾷν. V. 44. Grind] Λικμᾷν here is by the Grammarians rendred τὸ σῖτον καθαίρειν, and ἀλοᾶν, and σῖτον καὶ ἄχυρα διαχωρίζειν, not only to winnow, but to thresh the corn, either by breaking it with an instrument, a flail among us, or by bringing the wheel over it, or by treading it out, which was the custom among the Jews, (see note on chap. 3. i.) and accordingly ἀλοᾶν, which is set to render λικμᾷν, is it self rendred by Phavorinus, τὸ ἐπὶ τὸ ἅλω πατεῖν, καὶ τρίβειν τὰς στάχυας καὶ τύπτειν, to tread, or rub, or beat the ears of corn. Now this phrase here applied to men (as 'tis also in the Prophets of the Old Testament, I will thresh you with a threshing instrument, &c. seems here to signifie that sad condition of the people of the Jews, all of them that should hold out against Christ, Christ shall come upon that people, as with his threshing instrument in his hand, c. 3. 12. shall break and dash them to pieces, violently separate the straw from the wheat the multitude of unprofitable, that is, unbelieving impenitents from the little sound corn among them; the few sound believers; and then break all that straw into small pieces, as the manner of their threshing was; see Note on chap. 3. i. So we have the word Dan. 2. 44. λεπτυνεῖ καὶ λικμήσει πάσας τὰς βασιλείας, he shall beat small and break into chaff all the kingdoms.

CHAP. XXII.

Paraphrase.

1. Continued his discourse c 21. 44. and went on in parables, saying,

1. AND Jesus [answered and spake again unto them by parables, and said,]

a. 2. It hath and shall be the fate of the Gospel now preach'd to men, and first to the Jews, to meet with such reception, as a King is by parable supposed to meet with, who at the marriage of his son made an entertainment.

2. The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a a * marriage for his son.] * marriage feast.

3. To call upon the appointed guests for whom the feast was provided, and to bring them in.

3. And sent forth his servants [to call them that were bidden] to the † wedding, and they would not come. † feast γάμους

4. Again he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which were bidden, Behold I have prepared my dinner, my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready, come unto the * marriage.

5. But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise.]

5. But of the whole number of those that were invited, none came, some preferring their other affairs in the world before coming to a feast, took no great heed to the invitation, but sent back their desires to be excused Luke 14. 18.

6. Others most barbarously treating the servants that were sent on no other message to them but this of inviting them to a feast, killed them reproachfully which came thus to oblige them.

6. And the remnant took his servants, and intreated them spightfully, and slew them.

7. But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth, and sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murtherers and burnt up their city.

8. The feast is prepared, and in it your duty is perform'd, but those which were the prime guests first invited to it, have behav'd themselves most unthankfully, and unworthily, there is no reason they should be waited for any longer, (meaning hereby the Jews to whom the Gospel was first to be preach'd, Acts 3. 26.)

8. Then said he to his servants, [The * wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy. * feast

9. Places, where divers ways meet, where in all reason the greatest company was to be met with, (that is, unto the Gentile heathen people of the world) and all that you can meet with there, be they never so vile in your eyes, invite and bring them to the feast, (preach the Gospel to them.)

9. Go ye therefore into the [high-ways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.]

10. And this was accordingly done (the Gospel preach'd unto the Gentiles without any distinction) and they received it universally.

10. So those servants went out into the high-ways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good, and the wedding was furnished with guests.]

11, 12, 13. When this was done, the feast furnish'd with guests, the Gospel received by the Gentiles, then shall Christ come to visit, and discern whither all come in to this feast in such manner as is required, if any man that continues in his sins, his heathen practises, croud in under that profession, Christ will expostulate with him, and shew him the great unreasonableness of this, and he shall never be able to plead any excuse in this matter, but fall under the terrible sentence of Christ as a Judge, and be delivered up to the Officers or Sergeants for a sad and direful execution.

11. And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not a wedding * garment, * festival garment, ἔνδυμα γάμου see note a.

12. And he saith unto him, Friend, how cameſt thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless.

13. Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.]

14. And

14. For * many are called, but few are choſen.]

* The called are many, but the elect few. † inſnare, παγιδεύσωσιν.

14. See note on ch. 20. 16. c. and 1 Pet. 2. b.

15, 16. This parable did ſo gall and incenſe the Phariſees, which were ſo viſibly concern'd in it, that ſeeing they had nothing to lay to his charge, they now conſult b.

how to get ſome advantage againſt him, and to that purpoſe, knowing him to be a free ſpeaker that would not diſguiſe his thoughts for fear of any man, they ſend ſome of two contrary parties, ſome Phariſees, others that adhered to Herod the Roman Governour, that whatſoever anſwer he ſhould make to their queſtion, one party might be offended with him; and they came and asked him flatteringly, but inſidiouſly, ſaying, We know that without all fear of men, or partiality, thou wilt tell us truly what is our Duty toward God.

17. Tell us therefore, [What thinkeſt thou? Is it lawful] to give tribute to Cæſar or no?

17. What is lawful by Gods law in thy opinion? Is it by that lawful?

18. But Jeſus perceived [their wickedneſs, and ſaid, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites?]

which ye are wont to pay the tax; and they brought him a coyn that was half the Alexandrian, but a whole Attick drachme, and ſo the fourth part of the ſhekel of the Sanctuary, or half the ordinary ſhekel. See note on ch. 17. c.

20. And he ſaith unto them, [whoſe is this image and c ſuperſcription?]

Beſides, the coyning of Money is part of the ſupreme power, or regal prerogative, incommunicable to any other, and your acknowledging this to be the current Coyn, ſuppoſes Cæſar, whoſe ſignature it hath, to be your lawful Prince, to whom therefore the tribute is due, as the legal protector of your civil commerce; look therefore upon the Coyn for the ſtating of your queſtion, whoſe image and ſignature it hath on it.

21. They ſay unto him, Cæſars. Then ſaith he unto them, Render therefore unto Cæſar the things that are Cæſars, and unto God the things that are Gods.]

21. They confeſs it to be the image or ſignature of the Roman Emperour, and Chriſt thence concluded, that they that acknowledge Cæſars ſupremacy over the Jews, ought not to diſpute, but pay him that tribute that is due to him as ſupreme, there being nothing derogatory to God in ſo doing. But the law of God requiring that every one ſhould have that which belongs to him, and particularly kings their due acknowledgments, and tributes which are due to them, as acts of piety are due to God.

22. When they heard theſe words, they [marvelled, and left him, and went their way.]

22. Admired the prudence of his anſwer, and ſo departed without hopes of gaining any advantage againſt him.

23. The ſame day came to him the Sadduces, which ſay there is no [reſurrection] and asked him.

24. Saying, Maſter, Moſes ſaid, If a man die having no children, his brother ſhall [marry his wife, and raiſe up ſeed unto his brother.]

24. Do the part of the next of kin to his wife, and the children which he begetteth of her ſhall be accounted his dead brothers children or ſeed.

25. Now there were with us ſeven brethren, and the firſt, when he had married a wife, deceaſed, and having no iſſue left his wife unto his brother.

27. And laſt of all the woman died alſo.

28. Therefore in the reſurrection whoſe wife ſhall ſhe be of the ſeven, for they all had her?

29. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, [Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God.]

29. This error of yours in believing no reſurrection, proceeds from your not conſidering the ſeveral places of Scripture, nor the power of God in ordering the life to come in another manner then is uſed in this.

30. For in the reſurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the Angels of God in heaven.

30. As for your argument againſt it, 'tis ſoon anſwered, by telling you, that in that other world thoſe that are there, live not like husbands and wives, but are in that reſpect no otherwiſe then the pure ſpiritual Angels of God, which have no bodies about them, all ſuch relations which are here among men, are ſwallowed up in that other world.

31. But as touching the d reſurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was ſpoken unto you by God, ſaying,]

31. But to make it evident to you by that part of d

Scripture which hath Authority among you Sadduces, that is, by the Law, by you acknowledged for the word of God, that there is another life, it is there you know, thus written.

32. I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob? [God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.]

32. Which being ſpoken after their deceaſe, was an evidence that there is another life after this, which they that are dead to this have their parts in, or otherwiſe how could God be ſaid not only to have been, but ſtill to be their God after death?

33. And when the multitude heard this, they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine.

34. But when the Phariſees had heard that he had put the Sadduces to ſilence, they were gathered together.

35. Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a queſtion, [tempting him] and ſaying;

35. On deſign to enſnare him in his anſwer, or to hear what he would ſay.

36. Maſter which is the great commandment in the law?

37. Jeſus ſaid unto him, Thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God [with all thy heart, and with all thy ſoul, and with all thy mind.]

45. If David then call him Lord, how is he his ſon?

46. This queſtion pozed them all, and quite put them out of their courſe (to which formerly they had received ſome diſcouragement, v. 22. 33.) of asking him queſtions, to take advantage from him, v. 15. 35.

46. And no man was able to anſwer him a word, neither durſt any man (from that day forth) ask him any more queſtions.]

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XXII.

a. Γάμος Ἔνδυμα γάμου.

V. 2. Marriage] That γάμος and γάμοι ſignify both in this place, and Joh. 2. a marriage-feaſt, we have before obſerved (ſee note on c. 9. e.) that here the ἔνδυμα γάμου ſignifies the garment that was cuſtomary at ſuch feaſts, that is a better ſort of array then thoſe that were uſed upon ordinary days, will be obvious to any man that is converſant in antient cuſtoms; ſo in the Wardrobes of great men, there were robes to put on for that uſe, mentioned by Juvenal, when he ſpeaks of the trechedipna, that runs about to feaſts or entertainments. Theſe were veſtes diſcubitoriæ, fine and florid, ſuch as Trimalcios in Petronius, in whom they are alſo call'd veſtimenta Triclinaria, and in Xiphilin, in the life of Adrian, στολὴ δεπνική, the feſtival garment, and this, it ſeems ſo neceſſary, (as repentance and reformation of life, the new garment, or array of the ſoul, which is here parabolically expreſs'd by it) that without it, even they that were invited to come, were not yet permitted to taſte of the feaſt, or remain among the gueſts.

b. Ἡρωδιανοὶ * Druſius in Prætor.

V. 16. Herodians] The Herodians were not a diſtinct ſect from the Phariſees and Sadduces (ſee note on c. 16. a.) but ſome of them Sadduces, as appears by comparing Mat. 16. 16. with Mark 8. 15. They are by * a learned man ſaid to be Grecians, which king Herod brought with him out of the deſert, and which became a certain ſect after that time, for which he cites Aruch; but this was by a great miſtake in him of the Hebrew יונים, as if it were Ionas Grecians, when 'tis no more but jonim doves, or pigeons, which Herod brought with him out of the deſert, and from which ſprang a certain ſort of Pigeons, (not ſect of men) different from others. The Herodians by many of the Antients are thought to be thoſe that (conceiving the Prophecy of Jacob concerning the Scepter departing from Judah to be accompliſh'd in Herod the great, who was not a Jew, and yet ſwayed the Scepter there) believed him to be the Shiloh promiſed by Jacob at that time; ſo Epiphanius, that they were Jews, idle, and hypocrites, that thought Herod to be the Chriſt promiſed in the Prophets. So Tertullian, Herodiani qui Chriſtum Herodem eſſe dixerunt. So Chryſoſtome on Mar. 12. ſo Theophylact, and St. Hierome, Dial. cont. Luciferianos, though in his Comment on this place, he utterly rejects it. Nor indeed is it any thing probable, that now at this time, thirty years after Herod's death, there ſhould remain any of this belief that Herod was the Meſſias; it is therefore in the next place obſervable, that the Syriack for Herodians reads Herod's followers, and that may give us an hint of another interpretation, which ſeems to be the moſt probable: Of the Jews, ſome part acknowledg'd, and adher'd to the Cæſarean or Roman Authority, ſome part look'd upon it, as an uſurpation, and of this generally were the Phariſees. This difference or controverſy was thus occaſion'd. About 150 years before the birth of Chriſt, the government of Judea came into the hands of the Zelots or Maccabees, among them Judas Maccabeus being in fear of Antiochus, entred into a league with the Romans, which continued about ninety years. Then Hyrcanus and Ariſtobulus the ſons of Alexander falling into contention for the kingdom, and the younger brother Ariſtobulus getting poſſeſſion of it, Hyrcanus applied himſelf to the Romans for redreſs; and by Antipater's mediation beſought Pompey, (being then near) to come with an army to his relief; Pompey did ſo, and thereupon beſieged Jeruſalem; Hyrcanus's party within, ſoon delivered it up, and Ariſtobulus's party retired into that part where the Temple ſtood, and Pompey ſtorm'd the Temple, and took it, and ſo the city came into the Romans power, and Hyrcanus was reſtored to the High-prieſthood, and kingdom of Judea, but ſo as to hold (as he obtained) it being under the Romans protection, which they did (thoſe of them that were of Hyrcanus's party) by conſent, and not by force, by a choice which the factions among themſelves put them upon, and by way of dedition, and ſo * Joſephus plainly ſaith of the Jews, that they had made a dedition of themſelves. Mean while they of Ariſtobulus's party looked upon the Romans as Uſurpers, and forcible poſſeſſors. And thus it continued till our Saviour's time. And at this time ſome of each Party, Phariſees on one ſide, and Herodians, that is, followers of Herod, on the other, came unto Chriſt, meaning to enſnare him, whatſoever he ſaid, and to take advantage, either to inflame the Phariſees (which were the moſt eminent men among the Jews) if he ſhould ſay that tribute was to be paid, or to bring him into danger of Herod, and the Roman party, if he ſhould ſay, 'twas not to be paid. And tho' Chriſt's anſwer be punctually in favour of the Roman Emperour, eſpecially to thoſe that took the Tribute to be his right, yet becauſe in prudence Chriſt thought fit to give ſuch an anſwer, as might beſt avoid the oppoſite danger, this very prudence of his is after by falſe malicious perſons improved into an accuſation againſt him, Luke 23. 2. as if he forbad to give tribute to Ceſar, ſee Mark 12. note a.

* De Bell. Jud. l. 1. c. 8.

c. Δηνάριον

V. 20. Superſcription] The Tribute money or denarius that was to be paid to Ceſar by way of tribute, had on it, ſaith Occo the picture or image of Cæſar, and in it theſe letters written, Καῖσαρ Ἄυγυς: Ἰουδαίας ἑαλωκυίας, Ceſar Auguſtus, ſuch a year, after the taking of Judea. This latter, no queſtion, is that which is here meant by the ἐπιγραφὴ, inſcription or ſuperſcription of the coyn, from whence Chriſt concludes Cæſar's right by title of Conqueſt to require tribute of the Jews.

V. 31. Reſurrection] The argument againſt the living of ſouls now after death, and before the Reſurrection, which is taken by ſome (ſee Brevis diſquiſitio) from this place of Mat. 22. 31, 32. lies thus: Chriſt proves the reſurrection of the dead, v. 31. by this Argument, God, ſaith he, is the God of Abraham, &c. long after Abraham's death, and God is not the God of the dead, but of the living, which proof being put into form muſt lie thus, Abraham's body ſhall riſe, and likewiſe Iſaac's and Jacob's, therefore the bodies of the dead ſhall riſe; The antecedent is prov'd thus, Abraham ſhall live again now he is dead, therefore his body ſhall riſe; that antecedent thus, God is the God of Abraham now he is dead, therefore Abraham ſhall live again now he is dead If this antecedent were denyed, then the plain words of Scripture were denyed, and therefore the argument or conſequence muſt be denyed, or nothing; and that will thus be proved, God is not the God of the dead, who are ſo dead that they ſhall never live again, therefore it being granted that God is the God of Abraham, ſince the time of his death, it muſt follow that, tho' he be now dead dead, he shall live again. Christ's argument being supposed thus to proceed, might readily have been answered (by them that deny the Resurrection of the body) in case the continued life or not dying of the soul were granted; For they might reply thus, Abraham's soul lives all this while since his death, and therefore Gods being the God of Abraham, granting him to be the God of none but the living, doth not conclude that Abraham's body shall rise, for he who lives in soul, may be said to be living, though his body never rise. Now because it's certain that Christ's argument was a good argument, concluding unanswerably what he meant to prove, therefore the not dying of souls, on concession of which the refutation of Christ's argument is, or may be grounded, is not to be thought a truth. To this objection against the immortality of souls from this manner of Christ's arguing against the Sadduces, the answer might be easy enough, by remembring the disputers, that the Sadduces, with whom Christ disputed, are not supposed to grant the immortality of the soul, any more then the rising of the body, and therefore this argument of Christ's, though it would not hold against him, that did acknowledge the immortality and continued life of the soul, without ever having the body united to it, would yet be a good argument, ad homines, against the Sadduces, and that were sufficient to salve the matter; or secondly, that the resurrection of the Body is a necessary consequent to the life of the soul, and that the proving that the Soul lives after death, is therefore used by Christ, as an argument sufficient to infer that the body shall certainly revive also; but this is not all, they that make use of this arguing of Christ to favour their opinion of Ψυχοπαννυχία, do mistake the thing, that Christ went about to prove against the Sadduces; for it being certain that the Sadduces deny'd all other life, beyond this that here men live in the flesh, (affirming that there is no spirit, no soul of man subsisting after death, and in consequence to that, that the body after death rots, never to rise again) 'tis as certain that Christ here confronted his argument (out of the Law, which was the only Scripture which those Sadduces acknowledged) against this whole doctrine of the Sadduces (not only against one part of it, the resurrection of the Body) and by that testimony of the Law (which they could not deny) demonstrated to them that there was another life after this. Of this whole matter (not only of that which concern'd the Body) 'tis clear that the Sadduces question and objection (of the wife that had seven husbands) proceeded, concluding, as far as it did conclude (but being indeed a very weak ridiculous argument) against all future being; for if the death of the husband voided the relation between him and his wife, as 'tis certain it did, and he and she live together again any way after this life, the Sadduces thinks that relation must revive also, and upon that his argument proceeds, and doth so as well (that is, equally or no worse) on supposition of another life of spirits, as of bodies spiritualized also. For if there were those relations of Husband & Wife in heaven, they would sure be there before the resurrection of bodies, as well as after, unless the Sadduces believed Christ's doctrine to be, that procreation (and the like, which could not be done without bodies) continued in heaven, as here on earth, which it no way appears that they did, or that that was the thing here particularly opposed by them. The only matter of difficulty now remaining is, whether ἀνάστασις, of which the Sadduces ask, v. 23. and ἀνάστασις τῶν νεκρῶν, which Christ undertakes to demonstrate, v. 31. doth not peculiarly signify the resurrection of the body. To which I answer positively, that it doth not, but denotes another life (besides this and after this) a continuing or being kept alive by God after departure out of this life; as that which is call'd Rom. 9. 17. raising up, (and in Luke the phrase is ἐγεῖραι, the same that there is in the Hebrew, from whence 'tis cited, Ex. 9. 16. to make to stand, and is rendred by the Septuagint, keeping alive or safe; and the literal notion of the word ἀνάστασις goes no farther; for στάσις is standing or subsisting, and ἀνὰ in composition signifies re or again, so ἀνάστασις νεκρῶν is the resubsistence, or second state of men, that after this life consisting first of the immortality and continuance of the soul in state of separation, and at length in the re-union of the body to it whereby it becomes perfect; 'tis true it sometimes signifies the resurrection of the Body distinctly, but that is when 'tis joined with the word σαρκὸς of the flesh, or σώματος of the body, or νεκρῶν of the dead, in the neuter (as νεκρὰ signifies cadavera, or dead bodies) or when without any of these, the context of the Author doth appear to restrain it to that sense, and indeed in later Ecclesiastical Writers, it may perhaps be found to be commonly used for the Resurrection of the body, but all this no whit prejudiceth the notion, which I have given of it in this place, where τῶν νεκρῶν is the Masculin, (as appears by comparing it with the story in St. Luke, where 'tis distinctly νεκροὶ in the parallel) and where the context doth not so restrain it, but rather enforceth the enlarging of it, in like manner as οἱ λέγοντες μὴ εἶ) ἀνάστασιν, v. 23. may be the character of the Sadduces, who denied all future life or subsistence of soul, or body after death; and thus ἀνάστασις τῶν δικαίων seems to note Luke 14. 14. the reward there spoken of, being that which is opposed to our rewarding one another here in this life, and so the phrase denoting all which is not of this life, that is, that bliss, which the just enjoy after this life. And the phrase which the Jews used to signify this, is, the age, or world to come, which these Sadduces distinctly denied, and the Pharisees believed and affirmed; and sure St. Paul, one of those Pharisees Christianized, did reckon of this continued life of the soul, contrary to the mortality or sleeping of it, when Phil. 1 23. he saith that he desires ἀναλῦσαι (which sure is a phrase to express the separation of soul and body) and to be with Christ, which I suppose must conclude a being of the soul, and that an happy one, unless Christ be imagin'd still to be asleep; and so again when he calls the ἐκδημῆσαι ἐκ τοῦ σώματος travelling out of the body, a travelling to the Lord, 1 Cor. 5. 8.

Ἀνάστασις

Ἀνάστασις τῶν δικαίων

V. 38. Great] This Commandment by which the worship of the one God is commanded, Deut. 6. 4. is not only one of those which were written in their Phylacteries, fasten'd on their posts, and read in their houses daily, but to note it to be the great commandment indeed above others, it is observable, that in Deut. the words in the Hebrew which begin and end it, have the last letter written very big, and noted in the margin to be so written.

e. ἡ μεγάλη ἐντολή.

V. 40. Hang] The word κρέμαται may fitly, and according to the notion and use of it in sacred Authors, and according to the importance of this place, most properly be rendred conspire or agree, for so the Hebrew קשר, which signifies an agreement of mind, a covenant or league, Gen. 44. 30. is rendred ἐκκρέμαται where we read, is bound up with, noting an huge kindness and conjunction of affections between Jacob and Benjamin. As in Chrysostom Epist. κ. σφόδρα κεκρεμᾶσθαι τῶν ἐπιστολῶν, is, earnestly to desire his Epistles. So Judith 8. 24. where we vulgarly read, their hearts depend on us, 'tis most proper to render it, their hearts agree or conspire with us, or are bound up with us. So Luke 19. 48. the people ἐξεκρέμαντο αὐτοῦ ἀκούων, as they heard him, they took his part, were of his side, agreed with him. So in Chrysostom. Ep. ξη. Τῆς διαθέσεως ἐκκρέμαται τῆς σῆς, καὶ ἡμῶν σφοδρὸς ἔστιν ἐραστὴς, He affects you much, and is an earnest lover of me, and Ep. ϟς. ἀγαπῶντων καὶ ἐκκρεμαμένων, loving and tendring. So in Palladius, Ἐκκρεμαμένη παισὶ φήφῳ τῇ κόμῃ, placing all her affection on the young maid. And so here in these two commandments all the law and the prophets conspire, that is, the whole Old Testament agrees, conspires with these, these are the sum of all that is said there. But if it be rendred hang, then the meaning will be, that all commanded in the Jewish received Scripture, depends upon one of these two, hangs on one of these great pegs, that is, is, in the last resort, reducible to one of these heads.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XXIII.

1. Then Jeſus having quit himſelf from the Phariſees and Sadduces, ſpake

1. THEN ſpake Jeſus] to the multitude, and to his diſciples,

2. The Scribes and Phariſees, &c. thoſe that are of the Sanhedrim are by you to be looked on, as your lawful Rulers, that have authority over you, ſucceeding Moſes and the ſeventy Elders, Num. 11. 16.

2. Saying, [The Scribes and Phariſees ſit in Moſes ſeat,]

3. And therefore do ye live in obedience to all their lawful commands, in all regular ſubjection, and obedience. But let not their actions be your examples, for they live not according to their own preſcriptions.

3. And therefore whatſoever they bid you obſerve, that obſerve and do: but do not ye after their works, for they ſay and do not.]

4. For many ſevere ordinances they impoſe on others, over and above what the Law exacts, but will not themſelves be perſwaded to take the leaſt pains to do thoſe things, which by the clear law of God are moſt neceſſary.

4. For they bind a heavy burthens, and grievous to be born, and lay them on mens ſhoulders, but they themſelves will not move them with one of their fingers.]

5. All that they exerciſe themſelves in moſt induſtriouſly, are the performances, which will bring them in moſt of praiſe. The law which they were commanded, Deut. 6. 8. to bind upon their hands, &c. that is, to lay it near their hearts, to practice it diligently, they write in rolls, and hang them in their foreheads, and bind them on their wriſts, &c. count them as a kind of charms, and make them as large as they can, to be ſeen of men, and one to exceed the other. And for the fringes of their garments, which they were indeed commanded to wear, Num. 15. 38. Deut. 22. 12. to remember them of the law, and as a peculiar faſhion to diſcriminate them from other men, they either for an oſtentation of piety, which thoſe were to remember them of, or to expreſs the great ſtrictneſs in ſeparating from all others, wear theſe fringes very large, and ſo whether for obſervances invented and preſcribed by themſelves only, or for thoſe which the law preſcribes, all their care is to be praiſed of men.

b. c.

5. But all their works they do for to be ſeen of men: they make broad their b phylacteries, and enlarge the *c borders of their garments.]

* Fringes

6. They love to have the first place, if it be but at an ordinary meal, and in the conſiſtories they are ambitious of the headſhips, and when they teach in the ſynagogues, or are there to hear others teach, and, as the manner was, ſit in chairs, while they do ſo, they are ambitious of getting the uppermoſt chairs.

6. And love the uppermoſt rooms at † feaſts, and the chief Seats in the Synagogues.

† meals, Mirrour.

7. And to receive the civilities and adorations, and commendations of men above all others, as the greateſt doctors and leaders of others; which is an evidence of their temper, what 'tis that they principally deſign in all their religious performances.

7. And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi.]

8. But do not ye contend thus for ſuperiorities, for precedence one above another, for you are all fellow ſervants, by being fellow Chriſtians.

8. But be not ye called Rabbi, for one is your maſter even Chriſt, and all ye are brethren.]

9. And give not up your faith abſolutely to be ſwayed, and ruled by any man, as children are to be ſwayed wholly by their parents bare will, and as theſe men Phariſees, &c. have their admirers and followers in Religion, whereas indeed God your father in heaven is only he, to whoſe doctrine and precepts ye owe this abſolute faith and obedience.

9. And call no man your d father upon the earth, for one is your father which is in heaven.]

10. And do not ye pretend to be leaders or teachers, but all fellow diſciples that receive the faith from me, and ſo communicate it to others.

10. Neither be ye called maſters, for one is your maſter, even Chriſt.]

11. As for any precedency or ſuperiority, which ſhall hereafter be inſtituted in the Church, ye are not to look upon that, but as an office of burthen, and duty, of watching and waiting on them, over whom ye are placed.

11. But he that is greateſt among you, ſhall be your ſervant.]

12. And indeed for this, this ought to be the rule that whoſoever is ambitious of dignity in Chriſts Church, ought never to be admitted to it, but he that ſhall think himſelf unworthy of it, is fitteſt to be advanced to it.

12 And whoſoever ſhall exalt himſelf, ſhall be abaſed, and he that ſhall humble himſelf ſhall be exalted.]

13. Ye keep the multitude from embracing the Goſpel or doctrine of Chriſt, to which they are generally enclin'd, ye ſuppreſs the meaning of the Scriptures, which belong to the Meſſias, and not only reject Chriſt your ſelves, but prohibit others from believing on him, which were it not for fear of you, would willingly embrace him.

13. But wo unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for [ye ſhut up the kingdom of heaven againſt men, for ye neither go in your ſelves, neither ſuffer ye them that are entring to go in.]

14. For inſtead of ſhewing Mercy and charity to them that are left deſtitute, ye on the other ſide are greedy, and rapacious, grind the face of the poor, and devour the remainder of their ſubſtance, whom ye ought in reaſon to relieve, and that ye may do theſe acts of uncharitableneſs more ſecurely, ye pretend to great piety, and for a colour, or fair ſhew (that you may be the more truſted, and ſo have opportunities to do it the better) uſe to make long prayers: But for this, for your making piety a colour and guiſe, under which to practice the greater ſins.

14. Wo unto you Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, [for ye devour Widows houſes, and for a pretence make long prayer: therefore] ye ſhall receive the greater damnation.

15. To get one Gentile to your religion, and when he is ſo, by teaching him the worſer part of your doctrine, (which is commanded you as Jews, but belongs not to him) you put him into a far worſe, and more dangerous eſtate, and make him more vehemently to oppoſe the Goſpel, then your ſelves, or your own children, natural Jews.

15. Wo unto you Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for ye compaſs ſea and land [to make one e proſelyte, and when he is made, ye make him two-fold more the child of hell then your ſelves.]

16. Wo unto you which take upon you to be the leaders of the blind, Rom. 2. 19. and are blind your ſelves, ſaying, If a man ſwear by the Temple he is not obliged by that oath, but he that ſwears by the Gold of the Temple, in any promiſſory oath, he renders himſelf a Debtor, in any aſſertory, he is guilty of perjury, if he be not true.

16. Wo unto you, ye blind guides, which ſay, whoſoever ſhall f ſwear by the Temple, it is nothing, but whoſoever ſhall ſwear by the gold of the Temple, he is * a debtor.]

* obliged, ὀφείλει

17. What a ſottiſh ſenceleſs folly is this, which your deep learning hath advanced you to? For ſure the gold of the Temple which receives all the ſacredneſs it hath, above other gold meerly from being the gold of the Temple, cannot be more ſacred then the Temple it ſelf, nor conſequently the oath by the gold obliging, when an oath by the Temple it ſelf is not.

17. Ye fools and blind, for whether is greater, the gold, or the temple that ſanctifieth the gold?

18. And whoſoever ſhall ſwear by the altar it is nothing: but whoſoever ſweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is † guilty.

19. Ye fools and blind, for whether is greater, the gift, or the altar that ſanctifieth the Gift?

20. Who

20. Whoſo therefore ſweareth by the altar, ſweareth by it, and by all things thereon.]

20. The ſwearing by the altar contains in it that other oath, which ye take to be ſo much more obliging, that by all the free-will offerings preſented at or on the altar, and ſo cannot poſſibly be leſs obliging then that alone.

21. And whoſo ſhall ſwear by the temple, ſweareth by it, and [by him that dwelleth therein.

21. By God, who although he have his throne in heav'n, yet is pleaſed to own the Temple, as his place of reſidence or dwelling upon earth.

22. And whoſo ſhall ſwear by heaven, ſweareth by the throne of God, and by him that ſitteth thereon.

23. Wo unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, Hypocrites, for [ye pay tithe of mint, and aniſe, and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, g judgment, mercy and faith, theſe ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.]

23. In matter of paying tithes you are as exact, as any the ſtricteſt lawyer would require of you, deſcending to the tithing of herbs, of which there was doubt and diſpute, whether they ought to be paid or no: but for the great moral duties, both of the ſecond and even the firſt table, juſt dealing and works of mercy towards men, and the great duty (even of the Law) Faith in God, you are far from the practiſe of theſe, which being the moſt conſiderable weighty duties, ought moſt preciſely to be walk't in, to be made your work and care; and the other, though not to be left undone, yet counted inferiour to thoſe. g.

24. Ye blind guides, which [ſtrain at a gnat, and ſwallow a camel.]

24. Are very ſcrupulous in ſmall, and very adventurous in the greateſt matters.

25. Wo unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, Hypocrites, for [ye make clean the outſide of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of * extortion and exceſs,] * violence and incontinence, ἁρπαγῆς καὶ ἀκρασίας, ſee note on 1 Cor. 5. h.

25. Ye are all for waſhing of outſides, as of your veſſels to eat and drink in, ſo alſo of your hands, and whole bodies, and in the mean while leave your ſouls full of all abominable impurities, ſuch as Gen. 6. 11. are expreſt by [corrupt, and full of violence] which is as if you ſhould make clean only the outſide of a cup or platter, and leave the inſide, where the drink and meat is put, full of all kind of filth, ſee Luke 11. 39.

26. Thou blind Phariſee, cleanſe firſt * that which is within the cup or platter, that the outſide of them may be clean alſo.

* the inſide of τὸ ἐσ τὸς τῦ

26. Thou hypocrite, that art ſo like a blind man as to waſh one part only, and then think all is clean, ſee to the cleanſing thy heart, which is as it were the inſide of the veſſel, and that is the true way of cleanſing the outſide, the actions alſo, at leaſt let the firſt care be taken for the inſide, and the outward cleanneſs will have its place, and praiſe, will be to ſome purpoſe.

27. Wo unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, Hypocrites, for [ye are h like unto whited ſepulchres, which indeed are beautiful outward, but are within full of dead mens bones, and of all uncleanneſs.] h.

27. Ye may fitly be reſembled to ſepulchres, which are fain to be whited over, that they may be diſcerned to be ſuch, and ſo avoided, being otherwiſe grown over with graſs, and not diſcernible from other ordinary ground, by the outſide, Luke 11. 44. whilſt yet within like real ſepulchres, ye are full of all pollution.

28. Even ſo, ye alſo outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocriſie and iniquity.

28. Even ſo are ye, the faireſt in outward guiſe, and ſhew, but in your hearts, deſigns, and actions that flow from thence, the moſt noiſome, the polluted that can be, nothing but contrariety to your poſſeſſions, and inſtead of juſtice and charity, which ye pretend, the moſt greedy and ravennous profeſſors, v. 14.

29. Wo unto you Scribes and Phariſees, Hypocrites, † becauſe [ye build the tombs of the Prophets, and garniſh the ſepulchres of the righteous,]

† that ὅτι

29. You do honour unto the prophets ſlain by your forefathers.

30. And ſay, If we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the Prophets.

By this it appears, how this cuſtom of the fringes differs from the other of the Phylacteries; That was wholly a tradition and invention of the Jews, on a miſtake of God's command,and then an enlarging of this to vanity and oſtentation; But this hath a truth in God's precept,was really commanded by him, in order to a pious end,which end being forgotten,they wholly contented and ſatisfied themſelves in the outward obſervation of them; and the Phariſees made that as pompous as they could,labouring to exceed all other men in the bigneſs of their fringes, or ציצית, and placing piety in that, as being moſt diſcriminated thereby from the Nations (in order to which this faſhion was preſcribed by God) and in ſome meaſure from other Jews, which wore them not ſo big,and ſo are particularly in this,as in many other things ἀφορισμοῖοι, according to the meaning of their name in Hebrew, vain-glorious ſeparatiſts,and are thus looked upon by our Saviour in this place.

d. πατὴρ V. 9. Father] The Wiſeman, the principal of the School of the Prophets, who had the great authority among them, no man contradicting what he ſaid, was by them then called אב Father. e. Προσήλυτος V. 15. Proſelyte] A Proſelyte is one that being a Gentile by birth and religion, comes over to the Jewiſh religion,either in whole, or in part; For there are three ſorts of Strangers, and two of Proſelytes among the Jewiſh writings. The firſt ſort of ſtrangers are thoſe which continue open Idolaters, who were not permitted to live, or have any place of being in the Land of Iſrael; the ſecond ſort of ſtrangers are the firſt of Proſelytes, which though they embraced not the whole Jewiſh religion of Circumciſion, Waſhing, and Sabbatizing, &c. yet renounced the Idolatry,and πολυθεότης, or multitude of the Gentile Gods, and aſſented to ſome foundations of the Jewiſh religion,which they call'd the ſeven precepts of the ſons of Adam, and of Noah, of which we ſhall have a fitter occaſion to ſay more on Acts 15. Theſe were call'd Proſelytes of the gates, were permitted to live among them, to come into one court (the outer) of the Temple (call'd atrium Gentilium, divided by a low Wall or Sept from the other, call'd by S. Paul μεσότοιχον φραγμοῦ, Epheſ. 2. 14. a half wall of partition, on which, ſaith Joſephus, was written μὴ δεῖν ἀλλόφυλον ἐντὸς εἶναι, that no ſtranger might go in into the inner court) and, in brief, were by the Jews allowed to have portionem in vita futura, a portion in the life to come, whether that be Heaven, or the Kingdom of the Meſſias, *Maimon. de pœn.*c.3.§ 5. And yet of theſe 'tis obſervable, that after the Jews came under the Roman yoke, and ſo were unable to keep their Proſelytes of the gates within their preſcribed rules, having no juriſdiction over them,their wiſe men determin'd that they ſhould have no commerce with them, which was accordingly obſerv'd, till S. Peter's Viſion (Acts 10.) aſſured the Chriſtian Jews, that this was not required of them. The third ſort of ſtrangers, and ſecond of Proſelytes, are thoſe which embraced the whole Jewiſh religion, ſubmitted to be circumciſed, and to perform the whole number of the Precepts of the Law; and theſe are admitted to privildges proportionably, and differ nothing from a Jew, but only that they are not born in the Land (as the Mamluchi among the Mahomedans) of whom 'tis * Juſtin Martyr's affirmation, προσήλυτος ὁ περιτμηθεὶς, εἰ τῷ λαῷ προσεκλήθη, καὶ εἰς αὐτὸν ἦλθεν, the circumciſed proſelyte is as one that was born in the land. To which purpoſe they apply that of the Prophet, The ſtranger, גר, ſaith he, that is, the Proſelyte, ſhall be joyned unto them, ſhall be joyned to the houſe of Jacob, ἐπὶ τῷ αὐτῷ ἡμῖν καὶ πᾶσι τοῖς περιτμηθεῖσι νόμῳ εἷς, one and the ſame law being given to all that are circumciſed. Of this ſort were the Sichemites, Achior, (Judith 14. 10.) Nebuſaradan, (ſaith Gemara Sanhedrim c. 11.) Urias the Hittite, and Herod the Idumean (whoſe kingdom in his ſucceſſors is therefore call'd מלכות גרים the kingdom of the ſtrangers) Nicolas, Acts 6. and theſe are call'd גרי צדק Proſelytes of righteouſneſs, and גרי ברית Proſelytes of the covenant. Of theſe ſay the Jews, that above all things they muſt be circumciſed; and Tacitus Hiſt. l. 5. having mention'd the Jews cuſtom of circumciſion, adds, tranſgreſſi in morem eorum idem uſurpant, nec quicquam prius imbuuntur quàm contemnere divos, &c. And, becauſe ſome other Nations had gotten a traditionary cuſtom of circumciſing, without forſaking Heatheniſm, or undertaking any degree of Proſelytiſm, as the Egyptians, and from them, ſaith * Diodorus Siculus, the men of Colchos, and of old the Iſmaelites, and now the Turks; it is therefore reſolved among the Jews, that if any ſuch ſhall become a Proſelyte, though he cannot be circumciſed again, yet on the eight day of his proſelytiſm, ſome blood muſt be fetch'd of that part, which they call פרצת the breaking of the skin (for a teſtimony of their proſelytiſm) which, they confeſs, Moſes knew nothing of, but is an inſtitution of their own. Theſe Proſelytes of the Covenant may perhaps be meant by the Children of the Covenant, Acts 3. 25. the multitude there being mixt of Jews and Proſelytes, c. 2. 5, 14. and both thoſe ſpoken to in the third chap. the Jews under the title of Children of the Prophets, that is, of Abraham, &c. the reſt under the title of Children of the Covenant, which being made with Abraham, belonged not only to Iſraelites, but to all the kindreds of the earth, as it follows there. Now of theſe latter ſort of Proſelytes this place here ſeems to be underſtood, wherein Chriſt reproacheth the diligence of the Phariſees, who took ſuch pains to make a Proſelyte, that is, to bring a Gentile, that was no way bound to it, to be circumciſed, and to undergo all the Judaical Law, which God had never propoſed to the Gentiles, thereby demonſtrating, that it was not true purity and reformation of heathen vices, that they thought to work in their Proſelytes, but did it only to get more Companions to their Faction, of holding up the external Ceremonies, of Circumciſion againſt the Reformation now preach'd by Chriſt. From whence it appears not only why the Phariſees were called Hypocrites for ſo doing, this being no way an act of Piety, which they pretended to do ſo zealouſly, but alſo, why the Proſelyte ſo made by them, is ſaid to be worſe then they, or then their own children, made doubly more then they the child of hell, (that is, worthy of puniſhment,) 1. Becauſe before the coming of Chriſt, the Phariſees were bound to obſerve the whole Law, and ſo though Chriſt, the ſubſtance being come, did take it away, that is, the typical parts of it, yet the Phariſees were more excuſable, if they continued in the obſervation of it, whereas the Gentiles were never obliged to it, and ſo had not that excuſe, if they ſhould reſiſt Chriſt upon that ground of his deſtroying the Moſaical Law, which was the great ſcandal againſt Chriſt's doctrine. Secondly, Becauſe the Phariſees being now engaged in this Faction againſt Chriſt, theſe new Proſelytes of theirs, to approve themſelves to their Maſters, expreſs'd more bitterneſs againſt Chriſt then themſelves had done, and by their inſtigation were made inſtruments of more miſchief after to Chriſtians. So Acts 13. 50. the Jews παρώτρυναν τὰς σεβομένας γυναῖκας, inſtigated and inflaming the worſhipping, that is, Proſelyte toomen againſt the Apoſtles, and it follows, ἐπήγειραν διωγμὸν, they raiſed a perſecution againſt them. So ſaith Juſtin Martyr, οἱ δὲ προσήλυτοι ὑμῶν μόνον οὐ πλέον, ἀλλὰ διπλότερον ὑμῶν βλασφημοῦσιν εἰς τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἡμᾶς τοὺς εἰς ἐκεῖνον πεποιθότας καὶ φονεύειν καὶ αἰκίζειν βέλον ἔχετε, καὶ πάντα ὅσα ὑμεῖς ἐξομοιοῦσθαι σπουδάσατε, the Proſelytes do not only not believe, but do, doubly to what the Jews do, blaſpheme the name of Chriſt, and kill and reproach us, who do believe, and make all haſte to be like you. The truth of this was very obſervable in the Gnoſticks, who being Gentiles firſt, then Chriſtians, at laſt in appearance turn'd Jews, and then became the moſt bitter perſecutors of the Orthodox Chriſtians. Three other things obſervable, concerning theſe two ſorts of Proſelytes, will come in more naturally in other places to which they more immediately refer.

V. 16. Swear by the Temple] It ſeems by this which Chriſt here affirms of the Phariſees, that they had a tradition, that thoſe oaths only were obligatory, which were conceived by God, or ſomething immediately conſecrated to him; meaning thereby not the Temple and Altar, which had only an univerſal conſecration (being ſet apart to his ſervice) but other particular oblations and gifts, which were by the voluntary piety of men devoted unto him; of this ſort is the gold of the Temple, and the gift on the Altar, wherein, it ſeems, they placed a more eſpecial ſanctity, then in the other. This Chriſt looks on as a pitiful nice piece of deceit, either to fruſtrate the obligation of ſome oaths (it being ordinary with them to ſwear per Templa tonantis, ſaith the Poet, by the Temple, when, it ſeems by him, they did not think themſelves obliged by ſuch an oath) or to make a nice diſtinction of ſanctity, where indeed there was none, the whole ſanctity of the gold, or gift, flowing from the Temple or Altar, to which, and the God in it, they were conſecrated. What ſhould be the colour or pretence of this doctrine of theirs, it would be hard to gueſs, unleſs perhaps it was, that they conceived the Temple, by its having been demoliſh'd to have loſt its ſanctity, and not to have recover'd it as its rebuilding, and increaſe by Herod; whereas the gold or the gift, which the piety of the Jewiſh Donor had conſecrated, might be allowed by them to have that ſanctity; but this being ſo weak a reaſon, leaves it liable to the cenſure of Hypocriſie, which Chriſt here lays upon it, the true cauſe ſurely being, that by perſwading men that the gold and gifts brought to the Temple, were the holieſt things in the world, holier then the Temple, or Altar it ſelf, they might bring men to great liberality that way, and ſo make gain of their doctrine. f. V. 23. Judgment] For the diſcerning the meaning and difference of theſe three, the beſt riſe will be from the obſervation of Maimonides, a ſober learned Jew, Moreh Nevoch. par. 3. ch. 53. Theſe three, ſaith he, are moſt accurately diſtinguiſh'd among the Hebrews, משפט, חסד, צדקה, all to be met with together Hoſ. 2. 19. judgment and mercy and righteouſneſs. The firſt ſignifies juſtice or equity in judging, whether it belong to reward or puniſhment. The ſecond to the higheſt degree of mercy or bounty, that which is in Hoſea farther expreſs'd by the addition of רחמים, bowels, or tenderneſs of mercy, and is the ſame that before we ſaid was ſignified by ἀγαθότης, goodneſs, (ſee Note on ch. 20. 15. b.) The third denotes that virtue of honeſty in all kinds, which by the Law of God is due from us to our brethren, whether by way of ſtrict juſtice, or of charity which is alſo commanded us, and is part of our righteouſneſs toward our brethren, (of which we have alſo ſpoken before, ſee Note on c. 1. g. and ch. 6. a.) Thus when John the Baptiſt tells all the ſorts of men that came to him, what was their righteouſneſs, their duties, Luke 3. that which he preſcribes to the promiſcuous multitude is, μεταδιδόναι τῷ μὴ ἔχοντι, to communicate, or give to him that hath not. And * Olympiodorus, according to the ſenſe of the Fathers, tell us, Ἀποστερητὴς ὅστις οὐ πλεονεκτὴς ὁ μὴ ἐνδύων τὸν γυμνὸν, he that doth not clothe the naked, is a defrauder, and a coveter, that is, ſins againſt the Tenth Commandment of the Law. And the whole difference of this from the ſecond, is, that in this a man performs all acts of charity required in the Law, when occaſions offer themſelves, but in the other, the merciful man doth ſeek out occaſions, and doth more then the Law requires of him, which therefore Chriſt calls τελειότητα perfection, Matth. 5. 48. Now to the two firſt of theſe in Maimonides, the two former here κρίσις, and ἔλεος, are directly parallel; κρίσις judgment, literally and clearly anſwerable to the firſt, and ἔλεος mercy to the ſecond: All the difficulty is of the third, πίστις faith, which that is parallel to, and equivalent with δικαιοσύνη righteouſneſs, may at firſt ſight be thought probable alſo. For the Hebrew אמת which is directly rendred πίστις, and hath the ſame importance ſometime, which we gave out of Maimonides to צדקה, is by the Septuagint rendred alſo by the very word, δικαιοσύνη righteouſneſs, Gen. 24. 49. Iſa. 38. 19. The ſame is ſometimes again rendred ἀλήθεια truth, and ſo πίστις, δικαιοσύνη, ἀλήθεια, faith, righteouſneſs, truth, are oft taken promiſcuouſly the one for the other, among the Jews, that write Greek. So Pſal. 85. 10. we have ἔλεος καὶ ἀλήθεια, mercy and truth, Prov. 3. 3. ἐλεημοσύναι and πίστεις, mercies and fidelities; and Heſychius renders ἀληθὴς true, δίκαιος righteous, and ſo δίκαιον ſeems to be taken, Luke 12. 57. κρίνετε τὸ δίκαιον, judge right, or true, and Luke 16. 11. μαμωνᾷ ἀδίκου, the unrighteous mammon, is ſet oppoſite ἀληθινῷ to the true riches, agreeable to that of the Targum, Ez. 22. 27. who call it ממון דשקר the mammon of vanity, or falſity. All makes it not improbable, that πίστις faith here, ſhould be taken in that notion of צדקה righteouſneſs, and ſo rendred not faith, but fidelity. And thus Mr. Calvin hath interpreted it in this place. But upon further conſideration it will appear, that there is no place for theſe probabilities, the expreſs words of S. Luke in ſetting down this paſſage, inforcing another interpretation of it. For Luke 11. 42. the words are theſe, Ye tithe mint and rue, and all manner of herbs, and paſs over judgment and τὴν ἀγάπην τοῦ θεοῦ the love of God, where, as by judgment muſt be underſtood all the duties of juſtice and charity to our neighbours (ſet down more fully in S. Matthew by judgment and mercy) and ſo under that צדקה righteouſneſs alſo is comprehended, viz. that mercy which is our righteouſneſs, (as being from us due to other men) ſo the love of God, which comprehends all the duties of the firſt table, Mat. 22. 37. is ſet down as directly parallel and anſwerable to πίστις faith, which muſt therefore neceſſarily be the believing in God, as that is the foundation of our love of him, as the Apoſtle affirms, 1 Tim. 1. 5. The end of the commandment is charity out of a pure heart—and of faith unfeigned. And then as the two former may be taken from Mich. 6. 8. doing juſtice and loving mercy, ſo this third may be parallel alſo to the third thing mention'd there, walking humbly with thy God; and if ſo, will give us an excellent definition, whether of the faith or the love of God, or indeed of the conjunction of them; Faith perfected by love; that it is an humble fiducial obedience unto, or walking with God, as when Enoch's walking with God is by the ſon of Syrach, Eccl. 44. 16. and S. Paul Heb. 11. 5. out of the 72. called his pleaſing of God, and that including faith, without which, ſaith he, it is impoſſible to pleaſe God, v. 5. and that faith a believing that God is, and that he is a rewarder— And this faith very fitly here mentioned by Chriſt to the Jews, who are ſo frequently and juſtly accuſed and reprehended by him, for want of faith, or not believing in God, and that their guilt evidenced by their not believing in him, who had ſo ſignally and powerfully demonſtrated himſelf to be ſent by God. And if it be here demanded, with what propriety Faith in this ſenſe can be called one of the βαρύτερα τοῦ νόμου, the weightier things of the law, when Faith is ſo oft ſet oppoſite to the Law, and ſo is not ſo much as a part of it, and when the Law of Moſes was but the Pædagogie to that faith, which ſhould after be revealed, the anſwer will be clear, that the Law to which Faith is oppoſed, is chiefly the Law of Jewiſh Ceremonies, which being but the ſhadow of thoſe things, which are the object of the Chriſtians faith, were to be done away at the preſence of the body it ſelf, and ſo Faith ſet oppoſite to them, as perfect is oppoſite to imperfect, clear day to twilight. And of theſe alſo thoſe words are to be taken, which affirm the Law to be a Schoolmaſter or Leader of Children to Chriſt, theſe being but thoſe initial elements fitted for thoſe of tender years and groſſer underſtandings, yet deſigned alſo to adumbrate thoſe things which are now more clearly taught us by Chriſt. As for the Law of God, as that was given to Moſes, and comprehended all the duties to God and man, 'tis evident that faith in God is a part, and weightier part of that, and ſo reducible to the firſt and great commandment, (as that phraſe Mat. 22. 37. comprehends the whole firſt table of the Commandments) being certainly compriſed in the love of God, and ſuppoſed in it, and not only ſo, but it is particularly contained in the firſt commandment of that firſt table, I am the Lord thy God, thou ſhalt have no other Gods but me; the former of which are federal words, and ſo are to be anſwered by our believing that God promiſeth in his Covenant, viz. that he is our God, a merciful and a gracious Father, and ſo to be filially depended on, truſted in, and obeyed, as well as loved by us, and the latter part commanding us to have God for our God, muſt again be interpreted to require from us a believing of him, both as that ſignifies a fiducial reliance and affiance on him, a believing his promiſes, and as it is a believing whatſoever he ſhall ſay, whether bare affirmations, (our doctrinal points, either in the Old or New Teſtament, revealed to us) or more eſpecially his commands and threats, as our belief of them is all one with fearing and obeying him, God's veracity being one of thoſe his attributes, to which our belief muſt be anſwerable, if we will be deemed to have him for our God. As for the promiſes of another life, which are a principal part of the object of a Chriſtians faith, if they be not thought to have been revealed under the Law of Moſes, which is conceived to look only toward an earthly Canaan, and ſo the felicities of this life only. This ſure is a miſtake, cauſed in many, perhaps, by not diſtinguiſhing betwixt leſs clear revelations (ſuch indeed were thoſe under the Law, in compariſon with the luſtre that Chriſt brought into the world) and none at all; or perhaps by moſt through not obſerving, that thoſe divine promiſes were revealed before the Law, (and being found inefficacious among the ſenſual world, God was farther pleaſed to add, under Moſes, thoſe earthly promiſes to attract even ſenſual men, and give them a preſent taſte of thoſe good things, which he had laid up for them that would adhere to him.) Theſe therefore being long before revealed to Adam, and Noah, and by tradition from them ſtedfaſtly believ'd by all the people of God, were ſuppoſed in the Moſaical Law, as known already, and therefore needed not therein to be more particularly repeated; Beſides, Moſes in his giving the Law to the Jews, ſet down, over and above the Law it ſelf, a ſtory from the Creation to his time, wherein many paſſages there are, which give certain evidence of another life, and the joys of that, as the reward of a godly living; as when of Enoch it is ſaid, Gen. 5. 24. that Enoch walked with God, and was not, for God took him, when he was but 365 years old, which muſt needs infer, that ſomewhat extraordinary befel Enoch (which the Apoſtle calls tranſlating him, Heb. 11. 5.) and alſo that that life, to which God took him, was much more deſirable, than that which here he parted with, elſe his untimely death (far ſooner than others there recited, both before and after him) could not be propoſed, as a reward of his walking with, that is, pleaſing God, Heb. 11. 5. This tranſlation of Enoch then being known among thoſe in whoſe time it happened, and by Moſes recorded for all the Iſraelites to know that came after, muſt needs be to all them a teſtimony beyond all doubt of this truth, that there remained a bleſſed life, after this, for thoſe who pleaſed God. The like was that of Elias in the time of the Kings, who was viſibly carried up to heaven, and this both by the ſons of the Prophets foretold before-hand, and teſtified by Eliſha, who ſucceeded him in his prophetick office, and was an eye-witneſs of it. The ſame appears by that paſſage of God's being by himſelf ſtiled, in the law, the God of Abraham, &c. after their death; whence our Saviour concludes againſt the Sadducees, that Abraham liv'd with God, and that there was another life revealed by God in that ſtile. To this pertains the ſpeech of Balaam, Numb. 23. 10. Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my laſt end be like his. But above all, the expreſs words of Daniel, long before Chriſt, and ſo under the Law, Dan. 12. 2. Many of them that ſleep in the duſt of the earth ſhall awake, ſome to everlaſting life, and ſome to ſhame and everlaſting contempt. And in a word, though the Law given by Moſes have not, in the letter, the mention of any other life, but that in the land of Canaan, yet all the ceremonies of the Law were principally (no doubt) doubt (designed to this end, to adumbrate and so reveal this truth unto them, and that in such a manner, as was most for the turn of such childish and gross and rude minds, viz. by sensible representations, which the Apostle, that well knew their meaning, interprets to this sense, throughout the Epistle to the Hebrews, and assures us, that *Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob expected a city that had foundations, whose builder and maker was God, Heb.*11.10. meaning Heaven undoubtedly by that phrase; and so of Moses, *v.*26. that he had respect to the recompence of reward, that sure, which was after this life, (for he came not to Canaan) the pleasures and honours of which were on this intuition, despised by him, *v.*25. Thus much hath been here added on this occasion, for the refuting the doctrine of those men, who can discern none, but temporal, carnal promises, under the Law, whom for farther satisfaction (if it be yet needful) I refer to the judicious and perspicuous treatise of P. Baro, De præstantia & dignitate divinæ legis (dedicated to Archbishop Whitgift, but first read in his Lady Margarete Lectures at Cambridge) lib. 1.

* Cat. in Job 22.

Κρίσις. Ἔλεος. Πίστις.

h. Τάφοις κεκονιαμένοις

V.27. Whited Sepulchres] There is little difficulty to determine what is meant by τάφοις κεκονιαμένοις. Sepulchres washed over with white lime, on purpose that they may be discerned by Passengers, and avoided lest they contract legal pollution by them; for thus the Jews were wont to mark Sepulchres, Calcem aquâ maceratam effundit in locum immunditiei, they use lime macerated with water, and pour it upon the place of uncleanness, Tad. Tum. Met. c. 8. And Rashi ad Gemar. Moed Cat. c. 1. f. 5. renders the reason, quòd ipsa alba sit instar ossium, quam ergo videntes, eò non accederent, because lime is white like bones, and therefore they see, and go not near it. So among the Christians in * Optatus, Corpora (occisorum) per dealbatas aras aut mensas poterunt numerari, the bodies of the slain may be yet numbred by the whited altars or tables, that is, by the tombs in fashion of an altar, or table, laid over them, and whited. All the difficulty is, in what respect it here follows that they appear ἔξωθεν ὡραῖοι, outwardly fair, when Luke 11. 44. it is said of them, that they are ὡς μνημεῖα ἄδηλα, as graves that appear not. And this will be fitly salved, by considering, that this fairness is not all one with their being whited before, but denotes the reason, why they had need of being thus whited; these graves were, it seems, grown over with grass, and so were undistinguishable from other ordinary ground, were outwardly as fair green grass, as if there were no graves under, and so as they are properly said to appear, ὡραῖοι ἔξωθεν outwardly fair, so most fitly is it said of them in Luke, that they are ἄδηλα μνημεῖα, undiscernable graves, or monuments, so that the men that go over them are not aware of their being graves, and so are polluted by going over them. And that makes it necessary that they should have some mark set upon them, be washed over with lime, proportionable to which was Christ's reproving of these Pharisees hypocrisy, that so, as fair as they were outwardly, they might not deceive and pollute silly disciples, which were not aware of their wickedness. See Mr. Pocock Miscell. c. 5.

i. Ζαχαείαν, υἱὸς Βαραχίου

V.35. Zacharias son of Barachias] Who this Zacharias was is questioned among learned men, and it falls out, there were very many of the name, to each of whom some part of this character here set is competible. There was Zachary the prophet, who besides that he was a Prophet, was the son of Barachiah also, Zach. 1.1. but of him no author reports that he was slain, and betwixt the temple and the altar he could not be slain, because the temple in his time was destroyed, and so there was neither temple nor altar then; and tho' he were chief of those which caused the re edifying of the temple, yet in that he offended not the Jews, nor in any other part of his prophecy, nor indeed is it imaginable, that so immediately after they came from under the scourge (from the captivity) they would kill their prophet, or defile their temple. A second Zacharias was the father of John the Baptist; and tho' the Scripture neither mention him to be the son of Barachias, nor to have been killed, yet for the latter (that of his death) two traditions there are, one indeed of writers of no great authority, yet pretending to be very antient, that he was kill'd by Herod's officers because he would not tell where his son John was, for whom Herod sent. And with one passage of that narration, viz. that his blood continued upon the threshold like a stone, agrees that which is affirmed by Tertullian, contr Gnost. c. 10. The other is asserted by † Basil, and before him by * Origen, and repeated in the same manner by † Gregory Nyssene, * Cyril of Alexandria, Theophylact and others, that there being a place in the Temple, where the Virgins were wont to be by themselves, and to pray, and Mary after the birth of Christ, continuing to come to that place, she was prohibited by those that knew she had a child, but maintained by Zacharias the Priest, who affirmed her still to be a virgin, whereupon the men of that age set upon Zachary as a manifest transgressor of the Law, and killed him betwixt the temple and the altar. But this tradition is rejected by S. Jerome. And indeed which soever of those two causes be assigned for the cause of his death, it will not be very proper for this place where Christ speaks of their killing of Prophets (and such this Zachary was not, but only a Priest) and those Prophets particularly sent to them, *v.*34.37. as instruments to gather them, *v.*37. that is, to reduce them unto repentance by denouncing judgments against them; and upon this ground it is that the learned men which believe this Zachary to be here meant, do not yet believe either of the two assigned causes of his death to be the true one; but his fore-telling the destruction of the city and temple (as Stephen after did, and was stoned for it) and so executing the prophetick office; which as it is not very appliable to this Zachary, who was no Prophet, so it also takes away all force from the authority of those antient writers in this particular, and the tradition by them mention'd (which are the only basis whereon this opinion can stand, and in reverence to whom it is that I set down this opinion so largely) they and the tradition being as positive for that cause of his death, as that he was at all killed. There was a third Zachary, and he a prophet, and slain by the people at Joash's command, and that for testifying against them, being sent particularly by God to reduce them, 2 Chron. 24.19,20. This death of his was by stoning, *v.*21. (as here, and stoned them which were sent unto you, as he also was said to be sent, *v.*19.) and that in the very place here mentioned betwixt the temple and the altar, expressed thereby In the court of the Lord's house (see note k.) and of him 'tis peculiarly mentioned, that when he dyed he said, The Lord look upon it, and require it, which makes the mention of this man's death very proper to be joined with Abel, whose blood cryed for judgment from the ground. The most considerable objections against this interpretation are, 1. that this Zacharias was the son of Jehojadah, *v.*20. which is answered by those that favour it, by saying that it was very ordinary for men to have more names then one, especially those that had Jehovah in their names. Thus Jehoiakim the king is also Eliakim, 2 Kings 33.34. and so Jojakim the Priest, Judith 15.8. is Eliakim. Thus Judas Luke 6. 16. is also Lebbæus and Thaddæus, Mat. 10. 3. and, say they, 'tis possible, that Zacharias might be set in this Gospel, as in Luke it is, without mention of his Father, or with mention of Jehojada, and some Scribe might set υἱὸν Βαραχίου in the margin, taking it for Zachary one of the small prophets, who was so, and this might afterward creep into the text. To which purpose 'tis observable that S. Jerome upon search found in the Hebrew Gospel, call'd the Gospel of the Nazarites, the name of Jehojada for this of Barachiah. A second objection against this is, that this Zacharias being slain by Joash so long ago, could not fitly be set down as the last of that catalogue, whose blood brought down judgment on the Jews, it being in all reason that beginning so high as the righteous Abel, the speech should descend much lower then to that Zacharias, and it is not very easy to give a probable answer to, or account of this. A third exception there is farther against this interpretation, viz. that here 'tis ſaid that they (that is, thoſe of that preſent generation) kill'd him, which ſome have anſwered by ſaying, that that people (of whom that generation was a part, continuing in their ſins) are the they, and that 'tis ordinary in Scripture to charge the acts of parents upon their poſterity, which go on in their ſins. And accordingly the reaſon why thoſe words, ὃν ἐφονεύσατε, whom ye have killed, are here added and annexed to Zacharias, might be this, becauſe Cain indeed who had killed Abel, was not their progenitor. and ſo that people could not be ſaid to have killed Abel. But for Zacharias, whom their progenitors kill'd in the diſcharge of his office to that people, they, who do not yet obey his prophecy by repenting, may juſtly be ſaid to join with them that did kill him. But there is yet a fourth Zacharias, and he, ſaith Joſephus, l. 4. c. 13. υἱὸς Βαρούχου the ſon of Baruch, which might well be all one with Barachias, as we know Ananus is with Ananias, and he was ſlain by the Jewiſh Zelots, ἐν μέσῳ τῷ ἱερῷ, in the midſt of the Temple, and that ſo immediately before the ſiege of Jeruſalem, that as Chriſt mentions Abel the firſt that was ſlain, ſo he might very fitly mention this Zacharias alſo, as the laſt inſtance of their bloodineſs upon holy and eminent men. This I find to have been pitched on in the Spaniſh bible of Cypriane de Valera, where, upon this verſe, is this note, whom ye kill'd, that is, ſhall kill, he foretelleth the hiſtory of Zacharius the ſon of Baruch, which Joſephus de Bell. Jud. deſcribeth, whereby the meaſure was fill'd up, v. 32. for which Jeruſalem was deſtroyed. The only objection againſt this is, the ὃν ἐφονεύσατε, whom ye ſlew, whereas this man was not now ſlain at the time of Chriſt's ſpeaking; but this is readily anſwered, 1. that the Aoriſt may fitly be rendred, whom ye ſhall have ſlain, and that it muſt be ſo, becauſe the blood of Chriſt, and Stephen, and James, and all that ſhould fall by them in thoſe forty years, was contained in the πᾶν αἷμα δίκαιον. all the righteous blood here mentioned, as ingredients in that judgment on the Jews. 2*dly*, 'Tis ordinary in Prophecies to uſe the time paſt for the future, and ſo Rev. 2. 19. when Antipas is mentioned, ὃς ἀπεκτάνθη, who was killed, (who yet was not * kill'd till after the time of that viſion) 'tis clear it muſt be ſo taken. So 1 Theſ. 2. 16. ſpeaking of the deſtruction of the Jews, v. 15. which was not then come at the writing of that Epiſtle, he ſaith, ἔφθασεν in the Aoriſt, the wrath of God hath overtook them, or come haſtily upon them, εἰς τέλος, to a final utter deſtruction, that is, their meaſure of iniquity is filled up, and ſo this deſtruction ſecured to them, as if it were already fallen upon them. And ſo this is the moſt full interpretation of the place, and clear from all difficulty.

k. Θυσιαστήριον

Ib. Altar] There were two ſorts of Altars, one the θυμιατήριον, the Altar of incenſe within the Temple, (ἔνδον πρὸς τὸ ὀπθυμιᾶν in Philo) the other θυσιαστήριον the altar of holocauſt or burnt-offering that was without in the court (ἔξω πρὸς τὰ ἱερεῖα, ſee note on Apoc. 6. e.) Of both of them Philo's words are perſpicuous and worth ſetting down, Ὁ νόμος προστάξας δύο κατασκευασθῆναι βωμούς, καὶ τῇ ὕλαις, καὶ τοῖς τόποις, καὶ τῇ χρήσεσι διαφέροντας, the law appointed two altars to be made, differing in matter, and place, and uſes: ὁ μὲν γὰρ ἐκ λίθων λογάδων ἀτμήτων ξυνοικοδόμηται, καὶ ἐν ὑπαίθρῳ πρὸ τῆς νεὼ προβάσεσιν ἵδρυται, καὶ γίνεται πρὸς χρείαν τῶν ἐπάλξεων, For the one was built of choice unhewed ſtones, and was ſet in the open court by the aſcent or ſtairs of the Temple, and was for the bloody ſacrifices, ὁ δὲ χρυσῆ μὲν κατεσκεύασται, ἵδρυται δὲ ἐν ἀδύτῳ εἴσω τῆς πρόσω καταπετάσματος, ὃς ἰδεῖν μὲν οὐδενὶ τῶν ἄλλων ἔξεστιν, ὅτι μὴ τοῖς ἁγνεύουσι τῶν ἱερέων, καὶ γίνεται πρὸς ἃ χρείαν ἡ τῶν θυμιαμάτων, The other was made of gold ſet in the inner court within the firſt veil, which cannot be ſeen by any other, but only by thoſe of the prieſts that are clean, and this was for the offering of incenſe. And ſo that which was ſaid of Zacharias. 2 Chron. 24. 21. that he was ſtoned in the court of the houſe of the Lord, that is, in the court of the Temple (as ναὸς Temple here, and οἶκος houſe, Luke 11. 51. are directly all one) might be well enough agreeable to what is here ſaid, that he was ſlain betwixt the temple and the altar, to wit, this altar of holocauſt, peculiarly θυσιαστήριον (as here) which was without in the court, and to that alſo belongs as properly, that which Joſephus ſaith of the other Zacharias, ſon of Baruch, that he was ſlain, ἐν μέσῳ τῷ ἱερῷ, in the midſt of the temple, that is, not of the ναὸς or ſanctuary, rendred temple here, but of the ἱερὸν that is, the whole fabrick of the court, &c. Beyond this altar and court was Solomon's porch built before the temple, or at the entrance to it, and the ſpace betwixt that portal and the altar of incenſe was (ſaith Codex Middoth, c. 3.) 22 cubits. Thither the Prieſt was wont to enter at other times with incenſe at that altar to ſanctify the prayers of the people; but on days of Expiation, he was not to approach ſo far, but without the door of the porch to proſtrate himſelf (as unworthy to approach the Sanctuary) and there to confeſs the ſins of the people, Joel 2. 17. where the Prieſts are ſaid to weep between the porch and the altar, that is, betwixt Solomon's Porch and the Altar of burnt-offering in the court, where, ſaith Kimchi on that place, עומדים לשרת עבודת חכם they ſtood to miniſter their miniſtry, that is, to officiate there. So Joma, c. 3. ſect. 8. the bullock ſtood בין האולם ולמזבח, between the porch and the altar, and the prieſt laid his hands upon him, and confeſs'd, and ſaid, אנא השם, &c. I pray thee, Lord, I have offended and been rebellious, and have ſinned before thee, I and my houſe, I beſeech thee Lord, forgive now the offences, and rebellions, and ſins, wherewith I have offended, and rebelled, and ſinned againſt thee, I and mine houſe, &c. And they anſwer, Bleſſed be the name of his kingdom for ever and ever. So Ezr. 10. 1. Ezra is ſaid on the faſt-day to weep, and caſt himſelf down before the houſe of the Lord, that is, in that court before the porch of the Temple, and 1 Mac. 7. 38. the Prieſts entred in (to the court of the Temple) and ſtood between the Altar and the Temple) weeping, where though the Greek Tranſlator read καὶ ἀνὰ πρόσωπον τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου καὶ ναοῦ, before the altar and temple, yet Joſeph Ben Gorion's Hebrew reads diſtinctly בין האולם ולמזבח between the porch and the altar.

9. For firſt it ſhall fall heavy on you diſciples; the orthodox Chriſtians ſhall be every where delivered up by the unbelieving Jews to impriſonment, and death it ſelf, and be hated and perſecuted by them in all quarters of Judea, and wherever elſe they are diſperſed (ſee note e.)

10. And then many ſhall be offended, and ſhall betray one another, and ſhall hate one another.]

10. And then many Chriſtians ſhall by their ſufferings be diſcouraged from following me any longer, and to ſecure themſelves ſhall betray other their fellow Chriſtians, and deal maliciouſly againſt them.

11. And many falſe prophets ſhall riſe, and ſhall deceive many.]

11. And this ſhall be an opportunity for another ſort of falſe teachers to ariſe (ſee note d. and 2 Theſ. 2.3. and 1 John 2. note a.) the Gnoſticks, followers of Simon Magus, who by two allectives, firſt promiſe of immunity from the preſent perſecutions, then by allowing carnal liberties, ſhall corrupt and inveagle many Chriſtian profeſſors.

12. And becauſe iniquity ſhall abound, the love of many ſhall wax cold.]

12. And by reaſon of the extream ſharpneſs of the perſecutions, great multitudes ſhall fall off from Chriſtianity to that ſect of the Gnoſticks, who profeſs not to have ſo much love or zeal to Chriſt as to acknowledge or confeſs him in time of perſecution. See note on Luke 2.6.

13. But he that ſhall endure to the end, the ſame ſhall be ſaved.]

13. But the event ſhall prove this prudential compliance of theirs, and denying of their perſecution profeſſion to be the greateſt folly in the world, this very deſign of avoiding dangers ſhall ingulf them into them, and (as for ſalvation hereafter, ſo) for ſecurity, ſure the ſureſt way to attain to both, is the conſtant adhering to Chriſt without wavering (ſee note on c. 10. h. and v. 39.)

14. And this Goſpel of the kingdom ſhall be preached in all the world, for a witneſs unto all nations, and then ſhall the end come.]

14. And after this there ſhall be but one prognoſticke more, viz. that the diſciples ſhall depart and preach the Goſpel to them that are more likely to receive it, after the Jews rejecting the Goſpel, it ſhall be removed from them, and preach'd to the Gentiles, and then ſpeedily ſhall this deſtruction come, ſee 2 Theſ. 2.3.

15. When ye therefore ſhall ſee the [f] abomination of deſolation ſpoken of by Daniel the prophet, ſtand in the holy place, (who ſo readeth, let him underſtand.)]

15. And therefore to proceed from the ſigns to the thing it ſelf, from the fore-runners to this actual ſad coming of mine in vengeance upon the crucifiers, obſerve what I now ſay unto you; as ſoon as ever ye ſee the Roman army, which will make ſuch an horrid waſtation, that you may reſolve it the ultimate completion of that prophecy of Daniel (which belonged primarily unto Antiochus, but ſecondarily alſo to theſe Romans) when, I ſay, ye ſhall ſee this army ſet down in a ſiege, and begirting the holy city (when you read that place in Daniel, remember what I now ſay, and remember how pertinent it is to this purpoſe, tho' ſpoken alſo of another.)

16. Then let them which be in Judea [g] fly to the mountains.

17. Let him which is on the [h] houſe-top, not come down to take any thing out of his houſe.

18. Neither let him which is in the field return back to take his cloaths.

19. And wo unto them which are with child, and to them that give ſuck in thoſe days.

16, 17, 18, 19. Then is the ſeaſon for every one that is in any part of the region of Judea to get out of it (as haſtily as Lot was by the Angel warned to get out of Sodom, Gen. 19. 17.) and to fly to the mountainous parts beyond Jordan, or elſe he muſt expect to be deſtroyed in it. For this will be a very ſudden vengeance, ſuch as on Sodom, and woful to them that are not in condition to fly ſpeedily out of it.

20. But

20. This will be a ſad condition indeed, if it chance to fall out in the time of winter, when long and haſty journeys are moſt miſerable; or if on a Sabbatick year, a time of the greateſt ſcarcity (for tho' there was a promiſe in the law, on their obedience, that the reſt of the Seventh year ſhould bring no ſcarcity upon them, but that the year before ſhould be bleſt with a double plenty, yet now that their diſobediences had ripened them for their utter ruine, the continuance of this miraculous mercy was not to be expected) for in ſuch a year 'tis to be expected, that thoſe by whom ye paſs, will have no more then they uſe for their own neceſſities, nothing to ſpare for you (at leaſt to provide for ſuch multitudes flying all at once (who yet muſt not ſtay to carry any thing with you, v. 17. Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XXIV.

a. Λίθος ἐπὶ λίθον.

V. 2. One ſtone upon another] The full completion of this Prophecy of one ſtone left on another, is very remarkable in ſtory, which tells us that Turnus Rufus did with a plough-ſhare tear up the foundations of the Temple, and ſo not leave any part of it under ground undiſſolved, not one ſtone upon another. See Scaligers Canon Iſagog. p. 304.

b. Παρουσία Χριστοῦ.

V. 3. Coming.] Παρουσία Χριστοῦ, the preſence, or the coming of Chriſt is one of the phraſes that is noted in this book to ſignifie the deſtruction of the Jews. See Note on c. 16. 0. A threefold coming of Chriſt there is, 1. In the fleſh to be born among us; 2ly, At the day of doom to judge the world, 1 Cor. 15. 23. and in many other places: And beſide theſe 3ly, a middle coming, partly in vengeance, and partly for the deliverance of his ſervants; in vengeance, viſible and obſervable on his enemies and crucifiers, (and firſt on the people of the Jews, thoſe of them that remain impenitent unbelievers) and in mercy to the relief of the perſecuted Chriſtians. So 'tis four times in this Chap. v. 27, 37, 39. and here. So 2 Theſſ. 2. 1. and 8. when the coming of Chriſt is ſaid to deſtroy that wicked one, which it ſeems ſhould then in a ſhort time be revealed, which therefore as it agrees with the predictions here of the many Antichriſts before this deſtruction, ſo it cannot be applicable to that other coming at the end of the world. So Jam. 5. 7, 8. where the deſign being to eſtabliſh the ſcatter'd Jew Chriſtians, and to give them patience in their preſent preſſures, the only argument is becauſe the coming of the Lord draws nigh, which being foretold as the ſeaſon, which he that ſurviveth ſhould eſcape (both here in this chap. v. 13. and c. 10. 22. and Mark 13. 13.) as when their perſecutors (for ſuch were the unbelieving Jews) are deſtroyed, it muſt neceſſarily follow. The nearneſs of it is therefore the beſt motive to confirm the patience of any; and is again expreſſed v. 9. by the Judges ſtanding before the gate, that is, very nigh at hand, ready to enter on the work. And ſo I conceive it ſignifies alſo 2 Pet. 1. 16. as will appear by conſidering the circumſtances of the place, (ſee Note c.) and ſo ch. 3. 4. and 12. being a coming, which was within a while to be expected by them. And ſo 1 Joh. 2. 28. there having been before mention of the ἐσχάτη ὥρα v. 18. Ἐσχάτη ὥρα the laſt hour then preſent, which belongs therefore to that matter, both by the ἀρχὴ the then preſence of it, John being the diſciple that lived to ſee it, and by the Antichriſts again, that were to come before it. Of this coming of Chriſt it is, that Cunæus and ſome other learned men interpret the Prophecy of Jacob, of Shilo's coming. For that by Judah is ſignified the Jewiſh Nation, and by the Scepter, the Government, or Politia, 'tis clear, which yet did not depart from them at Chriſt's birth, no nor at his death, till about forty years after, at which time the government was wholly taken away from that Nation, and from that time to this was never in any degree recovered again, (and ſo that Prophecy then, and not till then, perfectly fulfill'd) and at the ſame time was the preaching of the Goſpel to the Gentiles, which follows in that place. Thus when Chriſt anſwer'd Peter about John, If I will, &c. ch. 21. 20. (which is in effect that John ſhould live till this coming of Chriſt) 'tis clear that it muſt belong to the * deſtruction of the Jews which John did outlive. That this is the meaning of his coming in glory with his Angels, Mat. 16. 27. hath been ſhew'd already. So again Mat. 26. 64 his coming in the clouds of heaven, though it may be thought to look toward his final third coming at the great day of doom, yet as the very Jews have obſerv'd, that that phraſe ſignifies the inflicting of judgment or puniſhment, ſo that it doth ſo there appears appears by the beginning of the verſe, where, ſaith Chriſt, ἀπ' ἄρτι ὄψεσθε, from now, that is, within a ſhort time, ſaith Euthymius, you ſhall ſee this, &c. To the ſame may be applied that parable, wherein the maſter giving talents to his ſervants, bids them occupy 'till he come, Luke 19.13. that the diſciples uſe the talent intruſted to them, to get believers to Chriſt in Judæa, till the time when Chriſt thus comes to viſit. So Luk. 18.8. when the ſon of man comes, that is, when Chriſt thus comes to judge this Nation, ſhall he find faith ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς in this land of Judæa? that is, very little faith ſhould be found among them. The phraſe ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς (like as בארץ among the Rabbins) ſignifying in the ſame manner, as it doth Luke 21. 23. that is, ἐν λαῷ τούτῳ among this people, and ſo φυλαὶ τῆς γῆς, the tribes of Judæa, v. 30. So Heb. 10.37. Yet a little while, and he that cometh, will come and will not delay, which cannot be interpreted of any other coming, but this, and had before been expreſs'd v. 25. by ἡμέρα ἐγγίζουσα the day approaching, (ſee the Note on that place.) And all this agreeable to that expreſſion in S. Luke c. 19.15. where in the parable there is mention of the man ἐπανελθὼν returning, or coming back, when he had received the kingdom, that is, of Chriſt returning again after his going to heaven, and that firſt to call his ſervants to account for the talents, to ſee what profit came in of all his, and the Apoſtles preaching on earth; and then for his enemies, that would not have him reign over them, that is, the Jews that rejected and crucified him, to ſend for them, and ſee them ſlain before him. The only objection (of any appearance of reaſon) againſt this interpretation is, that this deſtruction being wrought by the Roman Army, and thoſe as much enemies of Chriſtianity as any, and the very ſame people that had joyn'd with the Jews to put Chriſt to death, it doth thereupon appear ſtrange, that either thoſe Armies which are call'd Abominable, ſhould be call'd God's Armies, or that Chriſt ſhould be ſaid to come, when in truth it was Veſpaſian and Titus that thus came againſt this People. To this I anſwer, 1. That 'tis ordinary with God in the Old Teſtament to call thoſe Babyloniſh, Aſſyrian, Heathen Armies, his, which did his work in puniſhing the Jews, when they rebell'd againſt him. As for Veſpaſian (though it need not be ſaid, and though the anſwer is otherwiſe clear, that Chriſt is fitly ſaid to come, when his Miniſters do come, that is, when either heathen men or Satan himſelf, who are Executioners of God's will, when they think not of it, are permitted by him to work deſtruction on his Enemies, to act revenge upon his Crucifiers) it is yet not unworthy of obſervation, how eaſie it might be in many particulars to ſhew that Chriſt was reſembled or repreſented by that Emperour: As, 1. that it was before-hand prophecied of him, that he ſhould be Emperour, (ſee Joſephus l. 3. c. 7. &c. Suetonius, Tacitus, Dion.) 2ly, That an Ox brake in and fell down at his feet, in Suetonius, as when Chriſt was born in the ſtable it had been. 3dly, That he healed the blind and the lame with ſpittle and touch, ſo Sueton. c. 7. and Tacit. l. 4. Hiſt. 4ly, That he was moſt humble and mild, humillimus & clementiſſimus, ſaith Suetonius, a perfect image of what was moſt eminently true in Chriſt, Learn of me, for I am meek—&c. 5ly, That he ſhut the gate of Janus's Temple, and erected a Temple of Peace, Joſephus de Bell. Jud. l. 7. c. 24. and Baron. ann. 77. 6ly, Becauſe he came out of Judæa, and was Ruler over the Gentiles, and ſo was by Joſephus believed to be the Meſſias. 7ly, That neither he nor his ſon Titus would be call'd Judaicus (in token of their victory over the Jews) but aſcribed all the conqueſt and whole work to God, ſaith Dio. 8ly, That he was by the Jews themſelves taken for Shiloh, or Chriſt, becauſe at that time all the progeny of the Aſſamonæi were ceaſed. By all which it is clear, how far it would be from ſtrange, how agreeable to Scripture Prophecies, which muſt be allowed to have ſomewhat of figure in them, and not to be perfectly literal) that Chriſt ſhould be deſcribed here, in the perſon of Veſpaſian, to return, and ſo to come again to avenge his crucifixion, and puniſh the Jews that crucified him. To which purpoſe many farther parallels betwixt the ſtory of that deſtruction, and the paſſages in the ſtory of Chriſt, might be obſerved out of Joſephus: As, 1. That in Galilee were the beginnings of theſe miſeries, (Joſeph. de Bell. Jud. l. 3.) where Chriſt's firſt Miracles were wrought. 2. That from Mount Olivet the ſiege began, l. 6. c. 10. where Chriſt ſeems to have been v. 1. when he began to deliver this Prophecy againſt them, and near which place it was that he was apprehended. 3ly, That the time of the Paſſover was the beginning of the ſlaughter, c. 11. and lib. 7 c. 17. as it was of his crucifixion, (ſee Euſeb. Eccl. Hiſt. l. 3. c. 5.) 4ly, That the high and low places were made ſmooth for the coming of the Roman Army and the engines, ch. 12. as was ſaid in John Baptiſt's Prophecy of it. 5ly, That at the coming of the Baliſtæ they cried out, Filius venit, ch. 18. The ſon cometh, which is the very phraſe which we have now in hand. 6ly, That one was crucified alive before their faces, ch. 19. 7ly, That Longinus pierced the ſide of one, ch. 22. 8ly, That Titus deſired to ſave the Temple in ſpight of them, c. 24. and many prodigies of this nature, which might make it more reaſonable that that deſtruction ſhould be thus ſtiled, The coming of Chriſt.

* Ἅπαντα τὰ συμβησόμενα μετὰ ἀναλήψεως μέχρι καὶ τῆς τῶν Ἰουδαίων ἁλώσεως, ἢ καὶ ἕως τῆς τοῦ Ἰωάννου ἐκβάσεως. Theophylact. in Johann. 21.

Ἐπανελθὼν

V. 3. End of the World] By what hath been ſaid of the meaning of Chriſt's coming in this place, will appear alſo, what is the Συντέλεια τοῦ αἰῶνος, the concluſion of the age, eſpecially if it be mark'd, that inſtead of theſe two together, S. Luke c. 21.7. hath only ταῦτα theſe, uniting them into one, What is the ſign when theſe things ſhall come to paſs? and S. Mark ὅταν μέλλῃ ταῦτα πάντα συντελεῖσθαι, when all theſe things ſhall be concluded, that is, thoſe immediately forementioned, the deſtruction of the Temple, c. 13.4. (ſee Note on Mark 13.a. For the word αἰὼν literally ſignifies age (ſee note on Luke 1.o.) & is in a manner the Engliſh word with the Greek termination (and ſo is uſed ſometimes for the age of man, all one with ἡλικία, as Homer Il. γ'. μινυνθάδιος αἰών, a ſhort age) and then Συντέλεια will denote the concluſion, or ſhutting up of that age, or the Jewiſh ſtate, which was to be within that age, according to that of the Jews, that there was a double age, the then preſent and the future μέλλον αἰών, the age to come, Iſa. 9. 6. which they call the age of the Meſſias, and ſo this revenge upon the Jews, the deſtruction of that people, may be ſtiled the conſummation of the age. An eminent place there is in the Book of Tobit, which will give light to this, and ſhew the ground of this phraſe in the ordinary ſpeech of the Jews; it is ch. 14.5. where Tobit prophecies of three periods, which ſhould fall after his time; 1. The rebuilding of the Temple, God ſhall again bring them into the land, where they ſhall build the Temple, but not like the firſt; and that ſhall continue 'till the times of that age be fulfilled, that is the ſecond period, the concluſion or conſummation of the age here, the end of the Jewiſh ſtate. And then after is the glorious Jeruſalem, the glorious building ſpoken of by the Prophets, and there deſcribed v. 6. by the turning of the Nations, converting of the Gentiles, and ſerving God truly, and burying their idols, which is clearly the ſtate of Chriſtianity. Thus when in Gemara, out of an ancient writing 'tis ſaid, Sanhed. c. 11. § 29. that after 4291 years עד מלאת העולם the age ſhall be conſummated, 'tis clear that it belongeth to this matter, not to the end of the whole world, but, as they ſay, to the days of the Meſſias, which they uſe to call אחרית הימים the laſt days, and ſo Heb. 9.26. Συντέλεια τῶν αἰώνων, the conſummation of the ages, in the ſame ſenſe alſo. And in that famous place of Daniel (refer'd to v. 14.) c. 9.27. he ſhall make it deſolate even until the conſummation. So ch. 13.40. Συντέλεια αἰῶνος τούτου, the concluſion of this age, that famous period of the Jewiſh ſtate, 'till which time Chriſt would not have the wicked heretical Profeſſors medled with, or diſcriminated, but pure Believers, and impure Miſbelievers permitted together, that is, the Gnoſticks (that ſoon ſprung up after Chriſt's departure) and the Orthodox Chriſtians. And accordingly ſo it was, Theſe abominable Hereticks infested the Church, and so for some time continued to do under the guise of Christians, though their Heresie were a rapsody of Heathenism and Judaism, and all vile practise; Only when the time of visitation came, then they were destroyed with the crucifiers of Christ, and then the discrimination was made. Thus * Orosius evidently understands it, for speaking of the times before that destruction, Cum Christus, saith he, à discipulis interrogatus esset, de conclusione temporum subsequentium, sic ait, Audituri estis prælia, &c. When Christ was asked by his Disciples of the conclusion of the following times, he said, Ye shall hear of wars, &c. For the notion of this phrase, *Mat.*28.20. see Note c. on that Chapter. The like phrases (τὸ τέλος the end, and τέλος πάντων the end of all things, &c.) have, and shall be observed in their due places.

Τέλος πάντων

V. 6. End] What τὸ τέλος the end signifies, is expres'd by S. Chrysostom, τέλος Ἱεροσολύμων the end of Jerusalem, the same that before by Christ's coming, and the end of the age. So *v.*14. Then shall the end come, to wit, when the Gospel having been preached through all the cities of Judea successelly, the Apostles turn to the Gentiles, as 'tis in the beginning of that verse. So Mark 13.7. that place directly parallel to this, so Luke 21.9. also, and 1 Pet. 4.7. τὸ τέλος πάντων the end of all things, that is, of the Jewish State, wherein those of the dispersion to whom he wrote, were so particularly concerned: And 'tis observable, that as there, when the end of all things, that is, that fatal destruction was at hand, there was actually ἐν ὑμῖν among them the πύρωσις v. 12. that is, a combustion or conflagration, to wit, that of civil broyls caused by the unbelieving Jews, and heretical Gnosticks, against the orthodox and pure Christians, so here before this coming of the end, the nation shall rise against the nation, &c. v.7. that is, there should be these civil commotions and wars among them, which did indeed so hasten their ruin, and make it so cruel, when it came. Thus also 1 *Thess.*2.16. where, upon the filling up the measure of their sins, the wrath of God is said to have come hastily upon those Jews εἰς τὸ τέλος, to a παντελεθρία or total destruction of them, for though it were not then actually done, when that Epistle was writ, yet it was so certainly decreed against them, that it is said in the Aorist, indefinitely, it hath overtaken them already, that is, will speedily overwhelm them. Thus is the phrase used by Ezekiel c. 7. An end, the end is come upon the four corners of the land, v.2. and v.3. now is the end come upon thee, and v.6. an end is come, the end is come; all to the destruction of the Jews, not to the end of the whole world; see Note on Acts 2.6. Now whereas it is here said, that all must come to pass, but the end is not yet, it follows yet manifestly from hence, that the false Christs mentioned v. 5. must be some persons, that came before that period which is here called the end, that is, before the approach of the Romans to destroy Jerusalem, soon after the ascension of Christ. Of this kind is that Theudas which is mentioned by Eusebius in the time of Claudius, not he that is referred to by Gamaliel, Acts 5.36. (for he is there said to have been before Judas Galileus, which was in the days of the taxing, that is, about the time of the birth of Christ, see Euseb. l. 1. c.5.) but another later, Theudas, which though Eusebius by incogitancy affirm to be the same, which is mentioned by Gamaliel before Judas, yet he out of Josephus places him in the time of the Prefecture of Fadus, that is, in Claudius's reign. And of this Theudas saith Josephus, that being a sorcerer he perswaded a great multitude to bring all their goods and follow him to the river Jordan, which he promised to divide by his commands, and give them an easie passage over it, and saying thus, πολλοὺς ἐπάτησεν he deceived many, (which is the thing here affirmed of him) and he and his were by Fadus discomfited, and his head cut off, and brought to Jerusalem. Such again was the Egyptian, Acts 21. 31. mentioned also by * Eusebius and Josephus. And such was Dositheus or Dositheus, which called himself χριστὸν, saith Origen, contr. Cels. l. 2. And indeed the rest of the forenamed, and many more, which rose up with this undertaking, that they would redeem the Jews out of their subjection to the Romans, (See Luke 21. 8.) though they did not distinctly call themselves Christ, yet did so in effect, the definition of a Christ being ὁ μέλλων λυτροῦσθαι τὸν Ἰσραὴλ, he that should redeem Israel, Luke 24.21. As for the false Prophets mentioned *v.*11. they belong to another period of time, immediately before the fatal day, v. 14. and by that which is mentioned together with them, the Christians hating and betraying one another, and many being scandalized, and falling off from Christ by that means, and the multiplying of iniquity, that is, the unnatural dealing of those fellow Christians, in sharpning the Jews, and bringing that heavy tribulation and oppression upon them, and the growing cold of love, that is, of constancy in confessing of Christ, all which was eminently fulfilled in the Gnosticks, (that filthy Sect of Christians) 'tis most proper to interpret those Pseudo Prophets to be the followers of Simon Magus, to wit, those Gnosticks, which first secretly infus'd their Doctrines of Complyance with the Jews, on purpose to avoid persecution from them, *Gal.*6.12. and at the time of writing the second Epistle to the Thessalonians, were then a mystery of iniquity, that is, had not then broken out into that height, as soon after they did upon occasion of the Apostles departing from the Jews, and going professedly to the Gentiles, a while before the destruction of the Jews, which came and destroyed these also, 2 *Thess.*2.8. And so 'tis here said next after the mention of the false Prophets, and the persecutions wrought by them, that the Gospel shall be preach'd to all the world for a witness to all nations, that is, that the Apostles shall give over the Jews, and go preach to the Gentiles, and then shall the end come, v.14. and what that is, appears by the next words, v.15. the abomination of desolation, &c. that is, Jerusalem besieged, in S. Luke. As for the Pseudo-Prophets and Pseudo-Christs, v. 24. they belong to a third time or period immediately consequent to the great tribulation, v.21. upon Titus's building the wall about the City, which made the Famine rage so horribly, and the Soldiers firing of the Temple, which soon followed after. For at this point of time, * Josephus tells us of a false Prophet, who as from God, promised deliverance to all that should go up into the Temple, and many beleving him, six thousand were by that means burnt in that fire. Beside this, saith he, there were many false Prophets, set up by the στασιασταὶ seditious, promising help from God, and conjuring then neither to fly, nor think of delivering up the City, and though Josephus mention it not, yet it seems by v. 24. that by evil arts they wrought some strange feats, to gain belief from them. Of these some exalted Simon, with his army in the wilderness, as the person by whom the work would be wrought, others directed them to John, and his faction of Zelots, which kept within the City, as it follows there *v.*26. If they shall say unto you, Behold he is in the desart, &c. For by these means they were still kept in hope, and restrained both from flight and delivering the City, and so more ascertain'd to all sad distress and destruction finally.

* l.8. c.12.

V. 7. Nation] The Greek word ἔθνος here, which we render Nation, and the Latin gens, (answerable to the Hebrew גוי are the Originals from whence the words ethnick (or heathen) and Gentile come, and by the customary acception of the words for the other nations of the world, exclusively, and in opposition to the Jews then, and Christians now, it comes to pass, that the word nations is ordinarily thought to signifie all other people of the world, but never the Jews. But this is a mistake, thus casually and causelelly occasion'd; For there were several divisions of Palestine (as they were before ἔθνη πολλὰ, Deut. 15. 6. many Nations and great, c.9.1. which were the Jews now possessed of) Judæa, and Galilee, and Iturea, and Abylene; and each of these is properly called ἔθνος natio, & so βασιλεία kingdom too, there being several Tetrarchs over them, Luke 3.1. So *Ecclus.*50.26. there being mention of δύο ἔθνη two nations, Samaria is presently specified to be one of them. And so here and *Luk.*21.10. the phrase nation against nation (and in like manner kingdom against kingdom) may well denote civil inteſtine commotions in Paleſtine, perhaps one of theſe Tetrarchies againſt another, or elſe one of theſe againſt it ſelf (as Civil Wars are inteſtine breaches in the ſame City or Nation) and ſo certainly the very phraſe is uſed 2 Chron. 15.6. where as an expreſſion of the great vexations of the Jews *v.*5. 'tis added, nation was deſtroyed of nation, city of city, where the Greek reads πολεμῶσι ἔθνος ἐπὶ ἔθνος, nation ſhall fight (as here ſhall riſe) againſt nation. In this ſenſe we find not only the word nation in the ſingular appropriated by ſome adjunct to Judea, as our nation, Luke 7.5. our place, and nation, John 11.48. the nation of the Jews, Acts 10. 22. this nation, Acts 24.2.10. thy nation, John 18.35. and my nation, Acts 24.17. 26.4. 28.19. but without any ſuch adjunct, τὸ ἔθνος, the nation, Luke 23.14. and Jo. 11.50, 51, 52. and even in the Plural, the word nations uſed in the Prophets for Paleſtine; ſo Pſal. 2.1. the גוים, or nations, and people, that oppoſe Chriſt, are, I conceive, the Jews in their conſultation againſt him, and ſo 'tis interpreted and applied peculiarly to them, Acts 4.25,27. where they are called ἔθνη, καὶ λαοὶ, the nations and people, and more diſtinctly, *v.*28. (divided from Herod and Pontius Pilate) the nations and people of Iſrael. And ſo when of Jeremy 'tis ſaid, that he was ordained a Prophet unto the nations, Jer.1.5. the Jews ſure are at leaſt one of thoſe nations. So c. 4.16. mention to the nations, that is, to the Jews. For by that which follows in the next words, publiſh againſt Jeruſalem, it appears to be a Prophecy againſt that people, ſo *c.*25.11. theſe nations, that is, the Jews, ſhall ſerve the king of Babylon ſeventy years, the preciſe time of the Jewiſh captivity. So when Mat. 12.15. 'tis ſaid that Chriſt withdrew from Capernaum, (and Mark 3.7. 'tis ſpecified, that it was to the Sea of Galilee) upon that is applied to him by S. Matthew that of *Iſa.*42.1. that he ſhall declare judgment to the Gentiles, or Nations, and in him ſhall the ἔθνη nations truſt, that is, the Jews in Galilee and the adjacent Cities of Tyre and Sidon, &c. which came out and were healed of him, Mark 3.8. when the Phariſees conſulted to deſtroy him, *Matth.*12.14. So Lam. 1.1. when of Jeruſalem 'tis ſaid, that ſhe was great among the nations, that ſignifies that City to have been the Metropolis of Judea, as is farther expreſs'd by the next words, and Princeſs among the Provinces. And ſo, I ſuppoſe, is it to be affirmed of the chief or firſt fruits of the nations, Amos 6. 1. and ſome others the like: Thus Luke 21.25. ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς συνοχὴ ἐθνῶν, a diſtreſs of the nations on, or in, the land of Paleſtine, ſee Note on that place. That this is the meaning of nation here, will appear both by the completion of this Prophecy (not by wars in other parts of the world, for that was ſo ordinary a thing, that 'twas incompetent to be given for a ſign or denotation of a particular time, but in the great commotions and ſlaughters (ſee *Rev.*6.4. Note a.) that were in Paleſtine, as alſo by the addition of famines, &c. κατὰ τόπους, from place to place, which belongs to that famine mentioned Acts 11.28. (and in Euſebius Eccl. Hiſt. l.3.c.5. out of Joſephus de Bell. Jud. l.5. in the days of Claudius Cæſar, which (agreeably to this prediction of Chriſt) was there alſo foretold by Agabus, and when 'tis there ſaid that it ſhall be ἐφ' ὅλῃ τῇ οἰκουμένῃ, on the whole world, that muſt be underſtood (as οἰκουμένη world ſignifies Luke 21.26. and Rom. 10. 18.) the whole land of Judea, according to the manner of the Septuagint, who oft render the land (when it ſignifies the land of Judea) by οἰκουμένη the world. So *Iſa.*10.23. where for ἐν τῇ οἰκουμένῃ in the world, the Apoſtle *Rom.*9.28. reads ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς upon the land, ſo *Iſa.*13.5. καταφθεῖραι πᾶσαν τὴν οἰκουμένην, to deſtroy the whole world, where according to the Context we read to deſtroy the whole land; and ſo again *v.*9. θεῖναι τὴν οἰκουμένην ἔρημον, to lay (not the world, but) the land deſolate: ſo *c.*24:1. See Note on Luke 2.a. And in this ſenſe of οἰκουμένη world, the prediction here exactly agrees with Joſephus's relation of the times, who ſaith, μεγας λιμὸς κατὰ τὴν Ἰουδαίαν γενέσθαι, that there was a great famine through Judea. And accordingly 'tis ſaid in the Acts c. 11. 29. and they of Antioch ſent relief into Judea, which argues the famine to have been confined to Judea, and not extended to Antioch, ſee 1 Cor. 16. 1. and 2 Cor. 9. 1. And thus moſt probably muſt πάντα ἔθνη be interpreted in this chapter, v. 9. all the nations, that is, of Paleſtine, all the Jews in all parts, for the Jews were they which ſo hated and perſecuted (and the Gentiles comparatively did not, but as they were ſtirred up by them) and the Apoſtles are not yet ſuppoſed to go out of Paleſtine, but to be on their task of preaching through the Cities of Iſrael,) till the time of Chriſt's coming to deſtroy that people, Mat. 10. 23. ſee Note on that *chap.*h. And accordingly 'tis poſſible that the 14 verſe of this chapter of the preaching of the Goſpel ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ οἰκουμένῃ, in the whole world, and εἰς μαρτύριον for a teſtimony πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσι (which is there the immediate forerunner of this end, or coming of Chriſt to deſtroy the Jews) may be ſo underſtood, as will be moſt agreeable to *c.*10.23. of the Apoſtles preaching through all the parts of that region, that is, ſo as οἰκουμένη and ἔθνη ſhall not ſignifie the world, or nations in the greateſt latitude, but all Paleſtine, and the ſeveral nations and cities in it, as we know Gens ſignifies among the Latines in a very limited ſenſe, no more then a family or kindred, and ſo here it may ſignifie all the tribes of the Jews. But in that 14. v. it may be otherwiſe interpreted very fitly, that juſt before the coming of that vengeance on the Jews, the Goſpel ſhall be preached through all the world, which indeed was the natural conſequent of their having preach'd over all the regions of the Jews ſucceſſively. See more of the word ἔθνη in Note on c. 28.b. and on *Rev.*11.g.

Οἰκουμένη

V.15. Abomination] That the βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως ἑστὸς ἐν τόπῳ ἁγίῳ, the abomination of diſſolation ſtanding in the holy place, is the Roman Army beſieging Jeruſalem, may appear 1. by the parallel place Luke 21.20. where before that admonition of, then let thoſe that are in Judea fly to the mountains, &c. (which here follows immediately, and ſo demonſtrates it to be this very matter) theſe words are ſet, when ye ſhall ſee Jeruſalem compaſſed with armies, then know that the deſolation thereof is nigh. 2ly, By the agreeableneſs of the words to this ſenſe, and conſonance of them to that other expreſſion in S. Luke. For the βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως doth (by an Hebraiſm, imitated by the Writers of the N. Teſtament) ſignifie an abominable, heathen, prophane, waſting company of ſoldiers, or the like: ſo in the place of Daniel (here referr'd to) 'tis clear c.9.27. with the abominable armies he ſhall make it deſolate, the word abominable being ordinarily applied to the then polluted and idolatrous heathen world, of which the Romans were a principal part, whoſe armies were to work this deſolation on Jeruſalem; agreeable to which it is what Artemidorus hath ſaid in his Oneirocriticks l.2. c. 20. that γῦπες Vultures or Eagles (the very creatures to which in this place the Roman Armies are compared *v.*28.) ſignifie in his art ἐχθροὺς ἐναγεῖς καὶ μιαροὺς, wicked abominable enemies, the very paraphraſe of βδέλυγμα here, this Army, by which the deſolation is wrought, is therefore expreſs'd by this. And the ſtanding of it in the holy place, is the ſituation of it about Jeruſalem, for ſo ἐν ſignifies on or among, or cloſe to that place, to wit, the bounds of that City, which is ſo oft call'd the holy city, or place. And ſo theſe words, though at firſt ſight ſomewhat diſtant from it, ſignifie no more then that heathen army about Jeruſalem. And when in S. Mark 'tis ſaid to ſtand ὅπου οὐ δεῖ where it ought not, that refers to the ſeparation made by God of the Jews from all other the heathen people, which were not to come to that place, which is therefore call'd holy, in reſpect of that ſeparation from all others. That by this Prophecy in Daniel is meant the παντελῆ φθορὰ καὶ ἀφανισμὸν ὅλου the total deſtruction and final ruin of the Temple, ſee Euſeb. Eccl. Hiſt. l.3.c.5.

V.16. Fly to, &c.] How exactly the ſeveral paſſages of ſtory in Joſephus agree with theſe predictions, will eaſily be diſcerned by comparing them, particularly with that which belongs to this place of their flying to the mountains, &c. For when Gallus beſieged Jeruſalem and without any viſible cauſe, on a ſuddain raiſed the ſiege, what an act of Gods ſpecial providence was this,

g. φεύγειν εἰς τὰ ὄρη

thus to order it, that the believers or Christian Jews being warned by this siege, and let loose (set at liberty again) might fly to the mountains, that is, get out of Judea to some other place; which that they did accordingly appears by this, that when Titus came some months after and besieged the city, there was not one Christian remaining in it. This same thing is observed by Eusebius, Eccl. Hist. l.3. c.5. and that the people of the Church in Hierusalem (that is, the Christians there) κατὰ τινα χρησμὸν, &c. according to an oracle delivered by revelation to some honest men among them, commanding them to go over Jordan to a city called Pella, did all remove thither, and left Jerusalem without any Christians in it at their destruction; and this he refers to read at large in Josephus, where the story is set dõwn. The same is again related by Epiphanius, de Pond. & Mens. ch. 15. (see 1 Pet. 1.5.)

h. Δῶμα. V.17. House-top.] the buildings of Judea had generally δώματα plain roofs, fit to walk upon; and converse in, as cloysters paved with stones to that purpose. See Gerson tract. in Magnif. p.975. whence, saith he, is that of the Psalmist, I am become as a sparrow on the house top, walking solitary there. Of this whole passage, that it belongs to the Jews in Jerusalem, see Cæsarius, Dial. 4. ἀπορρησ. 194. Τῶν μέλλοντων Ιουδαίοις φυγὴν προφαίνων, &c. Christ fore-telling the future flight of the Jews, commands them to fly to the mountains, for after Vespatian, Titus arising, utterly demolished and depopulated Jerusalem, destroyed the Jews, the men with the sword, the children by dashing them against the ground, cutting up them that were with child, with all kind of death and destruction, blotting out those fighters against God. And it happened that the city was taken on the sabbath-day, all the people staying at home to observe the sabbatick rest, and this in the winter also, and so none could avoid or escape the destruction. He that was on the house-top endeavoured to hide himself, and so preferring life before possessions, would not take any thing out of his house. He that was in the field, or country about, did not only not return to his house, but fled as far as he could, seeing the burning and taking of the city.

i. Σὰρξ πᾶσα. V.22. No flesh] By no flesh here is meant none of all the Jews, so saith S. Chrysostom, πᾶσα σάρξ, that is, Ιουδαικὴ, all flesh, that is, all the Jews, that is, that the sharpness of this war from the Romans without, and of the Zelots within, that killed all that were averse from war, was such, that if it had continued, εἰ ὀλίγον πλέον ἐπεμένετο κατὰ τῆς πόλεως, if it had gone on farther against the city, all the Jews every where πρόῤῥιζον ἀπώλοντο, had been destroyed utterly.

k. Ἐκλεκτοὶ Ib. Elects] The ἐκλεκτοὶ here are those few, whom God had determined to preserve out of that common destruction, the believers among the Jews. These are the remnant, so oft mentioned by the Prophets, that they should escape, λεῖμμα κατ' ἐκλογὴν, the remnant according to the election of grace, Rom. 11.5. So *v.*7. ἡ ἐκλογὴ, this remnant of the Jews have obtained that, which the rest, being obdurate and senseless, obtained not. Of this word see Note on 1 Pet. 2. c.

l. Ταμεῖα V.26. Secret chambers] Ταμεῖα, saith Hesychius, signify ἀπόκρυφα οἰκήματα, secret dwellings, possibly such where men could gather company together undiscernibly, and so raise armies secretly, as others, (which designed it openly) in the wilderness, v. 5. But 'tis more likely that ταμεῖον being taken ordinarily for a magazine or store-house, the word may so signify here, places for ammunition and arms, some frontier towns in the borders of that kingdom, where men and arms lay in store for defence. Agreeable to this is that of Hesychius in the word ταμίαι, that they are οἱ τῶν δημοσίων χρημάτων καὶ πάντων τῶν κοινῶν φύλακες ταμιοῦχοι, the keepers, and governours, and storers of the publick moneys, and all else that was common. And accordingly the ἀπόκρυφα οἰκήματα before, may most probably denote such houses of store, under ground cellars, &c.

m. Ἀετοὶ. V. 28. Eagles] The explication of this verse will depend upon two things, 1. That the Eagle was the ensign of the Roman Militia, so saith Dion, 'twas ναὸς μικρὸς, καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ ἀετὸς χρυσοῦς, a little shrine with a golden eagle in it. And tho' the Persians also had the Eagle in their army, yet that was but one in the whole army, as the βασίλειον or kings colours, whereas the Romans had two in every Legion. So in the ancient writer of Sibylline Oracles, prophecying of the destruction of the Roman powers, Καὶ τὸ ἀετοφόρων λεγεώνων δόξα πεσεῖται, the glory of the Eagle-bearing legions shall fall. To this I shall only add that of Pliny, Nat. Hist. l.10. Aquilam Romanis legionibus Caius Marius in secundo consulatu suo proprie dicavit; Erat & antea prima cum quatuor aliis Lupi, Minotauri, Equi, Aprique singulos ordines anteibant; paucis ante annis sola Aquila portari cœpta est, reliqua in castris relinquebantur, Marius in totum ea abdicavit, C. Marius in his second Consulship appointed the Eagle for the Roman Legions: Before that, it had been the first, but had four more to bear it company, the Wolf, the Minotaur, the Horse, and the Boar. Then these four grew out of use, and only the Eagle was brought out. But Marius wholly abdicated the rest. From whence 'tis clear, 1. That all the five Ensigns in use among them, were by Marius reduced to that one of the Eagle, and so remained at the time wherein Christ spake, and indeed was not changed till Constantine brought the Cross into their armies. 2. That that, as all the other four, was an Emblem of rapacity or devouring, which (together with their sagacity to find out, and skill to presage slaughters) was the other thing, on which I purposed to ground the explication of this verse. To which purpose (besides that observation of Job's concerning the Eagle, she seeketh the prey (ἀφορᾷ βρῶσιν, Ιλ. ω.) and her eyes behold afar off, her young ones also suck up blood, and where the slain are, there is she, ch. 39.29, 30. setting down the whole matter very exactly and punctually) I shall add some few others out of Authors. The Eagle that is there spoken of in Job, is by the Translators rendred γὺψ, of which kind of Vultures 'tis * Lucian's expression, and that proverbial, speaking of one that had a great sagacity, ῥᾷον τὰς γύπας ἕωλον νεκρὸς διαλάθοι, a carkase will sooner be concealed from those Vultures. So saith * Phornutus, This vulture is a kind of bird consecrated to Mars, διὰ τὸ πλεονάζειν τὰ ὄρνεα ταῦτα, ὅπου ἂν ᾖ πλώματα πολλὰ, because such birds abound where there are many carkasses, and they are, saith he, ἀριῴδοντα, proclaimers of fights, and do tell their companions of them by a kind of cry of theirs. So Philes in his Iambicks, περὶ ζώων.

* ἰυγὰς c

* Φαιρν. περὶ τῆς τῶν Θεῶν φύσ. c

Πλὴν μαντικὴν ἔχουσιν αἱ γύπες φύσιν,
Καὶ γὰρ συνεκδημοῦσι τοῖς μαχομένοις,
Τῶν σωμάτων ἐλπίδι τῶν πεσουμένων,
Μεμήνασι δ' τῇ σοφᾷ τῶν λειφθέντων.

These birds have a divining nature in them, by which it is that they travel as companions of armies, in hope and expectation of the carcasses that fall there, and are most ravenous in the devouring of what is there left behind. So Artemidorus in his ὀνειροκριτ. *l.*2. *c.*20. having set down this very species of Eagles, these γύπες, to denote those detestable enemies (which even now were mentioned as an explication of the βδέλυγμα *v.*15.) οἰκοῦντας οὐκ ἐν πόλει, which dwelt not in the city, he gives this reason of it, νεκροῖς γὰρ χαίρουσι σώμασι γύπες, they rejoyce in dead bodies. So * again mentioning the signification of the several Creatures, and among them the ἁρπάζοντα φανερῶς, the open raveners, (among which he reckons these) they signify, saith he, λῃστὰς καὶ ἅρπαγας thieves and plunderers. From whence it is that our countryman Mr. Fuller, in his Miscellanies hath conjectured λάβαγον or λάβαγρον (τὸ παρὰ Ρωμαίοις καλούμενον λάβαρον σημεῖον πολεμικὸν τῶν ἄλλων τιμιώτερον, in Sozomen, Eccl. Hist. l. 1. c. 4.) to come from λαβρὸς, which signifies devouring or rapacious. All which being put together, shews the reasonableness of this interpretation of the verse, and how perfectly agreeable it is to the context in this place, where the last thing that was said, was, that the judgment should fall upon the Jews almost at once, in the most distant places of that nation, and that is here proved by this resemblance, that as the vultures find out the carkass, whereso'ever it is, so shall the Roman armies find out the Jews, and prey, and make ſlaughter of them. And altho' in St. Luke, ch. 17.37. it be brought in by way of anſwer of Chriſt to the diſciples queſtion [where Lord?] that is, Where ſhall this viſible vengeance be wrought? yet that is very agreeable with this ſenſe alſo, and will hardly be capable of any other. For there ſhould not be any determinate place for the working of this vengeance, but whereſoever the Jews are, there ſhall they be found out and deſtroyed by theſe Roman Eagles. By all which it will become reaſonable enough to apply to this final deſtruction of the Jews by the Roman Eagles, that prophecy ſo long before delivered by Moſes, Deut. 28. 49. The Lord ſhall bring a nation againſt thee from far, from the end of the earth, as the Eagle flyeth (the words as ſwift are put in by our Engliſh, and are not in the original) a nation whoſe tongue thou ſhalt not underſtand. So Hoſ. 8.1. as an eagle againſt the houſe of the Lord, &c.

π. Δυνάμεις ὐρανῦ.

V.29. Powers of heaven] Δύναμις ordinarily ſignifieth an hoſt, or army, and δυνάμεις ὐρανῦ, anſwerable to צבאות השמים the powers of the hoſts of heaven, are the Sun, Moon, and Stars, that move and ſhine there. Theſe are uſed in prophetical, that is, figurative writings to denote the then Church of God, the people of the Jews (according as the Temple is called the Camp, and all things in it are expreſſed by that metaphor of a militia) ſo Dan. 8.10. it is ſaid of the little horn, It waxed great even againſt the hoſt of heaven, and it caſt down ſome of the hoſt, and of the ſtars to the ground, and ſtamped upon them. There is little doubt but the Jews are meant there by the hoſt of heaven, for otherwiſe it would not be very intelligible of the ſtars of heaven, how they ſhould be caſt down to the ground, and ſtamped on, ſave only in this ſenſe, as Jeruſalem is ſaid elſewhere, Luke 21. 24. to be trodden under foot by the Gentiles. According to this notion of this phraſe, all the reſt of this verſe will be interpretable, that the Sun, that is, the Temple, the Moon, that is Jeruſalem the chief city, and the Stars, that is, the reſt of the leſſer cities, and ſo altogether making up the hoſt of heaven, that is, the whole nation and Church of the Jews, ſhall be brought down from the flouriſhing condition which they had formerly enjoyed, many cities, Jeruſalem particularly, utterly deſtroyed, and the whole people ſhaken, endangered ſhrewdly, brought near (only a remnant eſcaping, according to the prophecies) to utter deſolation (ſee Iſa. 13.10. & 34. 4. Ezek. 32.7. Joel 2.31. & Rev. 6. 13,14. note g.) & Rev. 8. note g.) And ſo agreeable to this exactly will that voice of Jeſus the ſon of Ananias be, Euſeb. l. 3. c. ή. Αἰ αἰ τῇ πόλει καὶ τῷ λαῷ καὶ τῷ ναῷ, Wo wo to the city, and to the people, and to the Temple.

ο. Σημεῖον υἱῦ τῦ ἀνθρώπυ.

V.30. Sign] This σημεῖον may poſſibly ſignify ſome ſpecial prodigy, that ſhould fall about that time attending on that deſtruction. Joſephus mentions many, de Bell. Jud. l. 7. c. 12. eſpecially that of a Comet in form of a fiery ſword, which for a year together hung over the city. But this was but a preſage of the fatal deſtruction of that city, and ſo, tho' it were a viſible ſign of the ſon of mans coming, that is, of the vengeance which he meant to work upon this people, and that ἐν ὐρανῷ, being literally in heaven, yet it cannot belong to this place, which ſets down the conſequents which enſued μετὰ, after the diſtreſs, and ſtraights of thoſe days, that is, after the ſiege of Jeruſalem, v.29. And therefore this ſign of the ſon of man may rather ſignify here ſuch a manifeſtation of Chriſt's preſence in this puniſhment of the Jews, as ſhould convince them, that it was for their crucifying of him, that it was come upon them, and accordingly mourn (all the tribes of Iſrael, as it follows,) &c. α

CHAP. XXV.

Paraphraſe.

1. At that point of time laſt ſpoken of, the heavy viſitation on this people, the condition of Chriſtians will be fitly reſembled by this parable of ten virgins, which took hand-lamps, (then in uſe, and fit to carry abroad for night-lights) and went out to fetch a bridegroom, and the bride, and wait on them to the feaſt. See note on c. 9. e. and Rev. 18.23.

1. THEN ſhall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom.]

2. Prudent, provident, & the other five improvident.

2. And five of them were [wiſe, and five were fooliſh.]

3. Took with them their lamps, and oyl in them, ſufficient to maintain them at preſent, but had no proviſion, or ſtore for the future.

3. They that were fooliſh [took their lamps, and took no oyl with them.]

4. A proviſion of oyl in veſſels which they had for that purpoſe, to repleniſh their lamps, when the oyl which was in was ſpent.

4. But the wiſe took [oyl in their Veſſels, with their lamps.]

5. While the bridegroom tarried, they all ſlumbred and ſlept.

6. A great noiſe, hurry, and proclamation.

6. And at midnight there was [a cry] made, Behold the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

7. Went to trim their lamps, and fit them for their march, but when they went to do ſo, ſome of them had oyl, and others had ſpent it all.

7. Then all thoſe virgins aroſe, and [trimmed their lamps.]

8. For ours is all ſpent, and ſo our lamps are gone out.

8. And the fooliſh ſaid unto the wiſe, Give us of your oyl [for our lamps are gone out.]

9. And the wiſe anſwer'd them, that they had reaſon to fear, that if they ſhould be ſo kind, they ſhould deprive themſelves, and not have ſufficient for both.

9. But the wiſe anſwered, ſaying, Not ſo, leſt there be not enough for us and you] but go ye rather to them that ſell, and buy for your ſelves.

10. Place of nuptial entertainment.

10. And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came, and they that were ready went in with him to the [marriage] and the door was ſhut.

11. Afterwards came alſo the other Virgins, ſaying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

12. Here is now no entertainment for ſuch as you, who have by your ſloth and improvidence betrayed your ſelves.

12. But he anſwered and ſaid, Verily I ſay unto you [I know you not.]

See ch. 24.36.

13. Watch therefore, for ye know not neither the day nor the hour, * wherein the ſon of man cometh.

14. His domeſtick officers in their ſeveral places, ſtewards, husbandmen, &c.

14. For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called [his own ſervants] and delivered unto them his goods.

15. And

* Theſe words to the end of the verſe are omitted both in the Gr. and Lat. and in the Kings MS.

15. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, to every man [according to his ſeveral ability] and ſtreightway took his journey.

15. What was competent for that imployment, place, office, exigence of buſineſs entruſted to him under his Lord, and agreeable to his capacity.

16. Then he that had received the five Talents, went and traded with the ſame, and * made them other five talents.

17. And likewiſe he that had received two, he alſo gained other two.

18. But he that had received one, went and digged in the earth, and hid his Lord's money.

19. After a long time the Lord of thoſe ſervants cometh, and reckoneth with them.

20. And ſo he, that had received five talents, came and brought other five talents, ſaying, Lord, thou deliveredſt unto me five talents, behold I have gained beſides them five talents more.

21. His Lord ſaid unto him, Well done thou good and faithful ſervant, thou haſt been faithful [over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.]

21. In trafficking with theſe lower meaner things, ſee Luke 19. 17. and 16. 10.) thou ſhalt be highly dignified, Luke 19. 17. as one of them that thy Lord hath joy of, or that he delighteth to honour, Heſt. 6. 6.

22. He alſo that had received two talents, came, and ſaid, Lord, thou deliveredſt unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beſides them.

23. His Lord ſaid unto him, Well done good and faithful ſervant, thou haſt been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.

24. Then he which had received the one talent, came and ſaid, Lord, [I knew thee that thou art an auſtere man, reaping where thou haſt not ſown, and gathering where thou haſt not ſtrewed:

24, 25. I had had experience of thy ſeverity in requiring increaſe from thy ſervants far above that which thou entruſteſt to them, and I for fear of loſing

25. And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the ground, Lo, there thou haſt that is thine.

my talent, and provoking thy diſpleaſure thereby, thought it beſt to dig a hole in the earth, and there lay it up ſafe, and accordingly there is thy talent ſafe again, tho' without any increaſe of it.

26. His Lord anſwered and ſaid unto him, Thou wicked and ſlothful ſervant, [thou knewеſt that I reap where I ſowed not, and gather where I have not ſtrewed.]

26. Thy words acknowledge thee to have had actually in thy thoughts, that I that was one that dealt in merchandize, and making of gain, would expect profit of that which I committed to thee.

27. Thou oughteſt therefore to have put my money to the [exchangers, and then at my coming I ſhould have received mine own with uſury.]

27. Money-merchants (ſee note on c. 21. b.) and then at my coming home I ſhould have had mine own again, and ſome increaſe with it.

28. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

29. For unto every one that hath ſhall be given, and * he ſhall have abundance, but from him that hath not ſhall be taken away, even that which he hath.]

29. For to him that uſeth and improveth God's grace, ſhall by degrees be given ſo much, that at the laſt he ſhall have all abundance, but from him that doth not ſo, that which had formerly been given him, ſhall be withdrawn.

* given in all abundance, περισσευθήσεται.

30. And caſt ye the unprofitable ſervant into outer darkneſs, there ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.]

30. As for him that made no uſe of (nor brought in any increaſe to his Maſter from) the Talents entruſted to him, the idle diſobedient Servant, (ſee Note on Luke 17. a.) let him be caſt out into the dungeon, never to come out again, that emblem of eternal Hell, the place of all pains, and horrour.

31. When the ſon of man ſhall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then ſhall he ſit upon the throne of his glory.]

31. All this parable from ver. 13. to this place being put as in a parentheſis, Chriſt here proceeds. But when Chriſt comes to judgment, whether to execute vengeance on this people, or (of which that is an emblem) to doom every Man for his future eternal Being, then ſhall his appearance be glorious and full of majeſty.

32. And before him ſhall be gathered all nations] and he ſhall ſeparate them one from another, as a Shepherd divideth his ſheep from the goats.

32. And all the people of the Jews, believers and unbelievers, and all other men that have ever lived in this world, every one having had ſome talent to trade with, entruſted to him by God, ſhall by the Angels ſent out to that purpoſe, (ch. 13. 41.) be gathered before him.

33. And he ſhall ſet the Sheep on his right hand, but the Goats on the left.]

33. And all the meek obedient followers and diſciples of his he ſhall place in a ſtate of greateſt dignity and preferment, but all the unfaithful diſobedient ſhall be caſt into judgment.

34. Then ſhall the King ſay unto them on his right hand, Come ye Bleſſed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the Foundation of the World.]

34. And then as a king, or judge ſhall he diſtribute the joys and dignities of the kingdom of heaven, which before all eternity were deſigned to be the reward of all faithful ſervants of God.

35. For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat, I was thirſty, and ye gave me drink, I was a ſtranger, and ye took me in.]

35. According to every mans works of piety or charity performed in this life, expreſſed here by feeding and entertaining of Chriſt.

36. Naked, and ye cloathed me, I was ſick, and ye viſited me, I was in priſon, and ye came unto me.]

36. And again of cloathing his naked body, tending him when he was ſick, relieving, aſſiſting, providing for him, and viſiting him in reſtraint.

37. Then ſhall the righteous] anſwer him, ſaying, Lord, when ſaw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? when ſaw we thee thirſty, and gave thee drink?

37. Then ſhall thoſe humble faithful diſciples of his, as not being conſcious of any ſuch Acts of ſervice or charity ſhewed to Chriſt.

38. When ſaw we thee a ſtranger, and took thee in? or naked, and cloathed thee?

39. Or when ſaw we thee ſick, or in priſon, and came unto thee?

40. And the king ſhall anſwer and ſay unto them, Verily I ſay unto you, in as much as ye have done it [to one of the leaſt of theſe my brethren] ye have done it unto me.

40. To the meaneſt man alive, partaker of that humane nature, which I honoured by my aſſuming it.

41. Then ſhall he ſay alſo unto them on the left hand, [Depart from me ye curſed into everlaſting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.]

41. You are an accurſed number of men, adjudged to eternal hell, which was not originally created, or deſigned for you, or any of mankind, but for the Prince of Devils, and thoſe Angels that ſinn'd and fell with him, but now by your wilful defaults is become your portion alſo.

42. For

42. And this is a moſt juſt reward for your doings, your impiety and uncharitableneſs of all ſorts. For when I was ready to famiſh for hunger, you would ſpare nothing out of your plenty to relieve me.

42. For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat,] I was thirſty, and ye gave me no drink,

43. I was a ſtranger, and ye took me not in, naked, and ye cloathed me not, ſick and in priſon, and ye viſited me not.

44. And then they as if not conſcious of this impiety, ſhall begin to expoſtulate that they never dealt thus unkindly with Chriſt, never ſaw him in any diſtreſs without relieving him.

44. Then ſhall they alſo anſwer him, ſaying, Lord, when ſaw we thee an hungred or thirſty, or a ſtranger, or naked, or ſick, or in priſon, and did not miniſter unto thee?]

45. Then ſhall he anſwer them, ſaying, Verily I ſay unto you, in as much as ye did it not to one of the leaſt of theſe, ye did it not to me.

46. And theſe ſhall go away into everlaſting puniſhment; but the righteous into life eternal.

CHAP. XXVI.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND it came to paſs when Jeſus had finiſhed all theſe ſayings, he ſaid unto his diſciples,

2. Which being a time of executions among the Jews,

2. Ye know that after two days is the a Paſſover, [and the ſon of man is † betrayed to be crucified.]

† delivered up, παραδίδοται.

a. Chriſt ſhall at that time certainly be delivered up by the Jews to the Romans, to die after their manner, that is, to be faſtned on a croſs, &c.

5. And although it were cuſtomary to put malefactors to death at ſolemn times, Acts 12.4. that their puniſhment might be more exemplary, yet they had an exception to that, becauſe of the great opinion the people had of him, which might cauſe a ſedition among them, if 'twere done at any ſuch time, of reſort, and therefore they deliberated, and had ſome thoughts of putting it off, 'till after the feaſt. But it ſeems this counſel was laid aſide upon Judas's proffer, v. 15. only a fit ſeaſon was ſought by Judas, v. 16. perhaps only that of apprehending him in the night.

ſeeing that which ſhe hath now done is an act of charity or piety, very ſeaſonable at this time?

11. For you are ſure to have continual opportunities of giving alms to the poor,

11. For ye have the poor always with you, but me ye have not always.]

but ye are not likely to have ſo towards me.

12. And indeed this very act, which ſhe now hath done, is more then an act of charity,

12. For in that ſhe hath poured this Oyntment on my body, ſhe did it for my burial.]

'tis a preſage very ſignificant, that I ſhall dye, and be buried very ſhortly, for which this oyntment is proper by way of embalming.

And whilſt Judas was there, before any of them were riſen from the table, Jeſus in imitation of the Jews cuſtom after ſupper (of diſtributing bread and wine about the table as an argument of charity, and a means of preſerving brotherly love among them) inſtituted the Sacrament of the Euchariſt, as a conteſteration of charity among all Chriſtians, and to that end taking bread, and giving thanks, he brake, and gave it to the diſciples to take and eat, telling them that this taking and eating was now inſtituted by him as an holy rite and ceremony of annuntiating and commemorating his death, and a means of making all worthy receivers partakers of the benefits of his death. e.

27. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, ſaying, Drink ye all of this.

28. For this is my blood of the New Teſtament, which is ſhed for many, for the remiſſion of ſins.

28. For this is a federal rite between me and you, a Sacrament of that blood of mine, which I ſhall ſhortly pour out upon the Croſs; and by which I will ſeal to you a new Covenant, a promiſe of pardoning the ſins of all that ſhall return from their ſins, and obey me. (See Note on the Title of theſe Books.)

29. But I ſay unto you [I will f not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day, when I drink it new with you in my fathers kingdom.]

29. It is not long, that I ſhall abide with you, nor ſhall I again thus celebrate this, or any the like feaſt among you, 'till we meet in heaven, and partake together of thoſe joys, which are wont to be expreſt by new wine figuratively. f.

30. And when they had g ſung an hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives. g.

31. Then ſaith Jeſus unto them, All ye ſhall be offended becauſe of me this night, For it is written, I will ſmite the ſhepherd, and the ſheep of the flock ſhall be ſcattered abroad.]

31. Between ſupper and going abroad, Jeſus ſpake theſe words to his diſciples, Ye ſhall all fall off from me before morning, and fulfil the prediction Zach. 13.7. which foretold that Chriſt ſhould be apprehended, and thereupon the Apoſtles, the chief of his little flock of believers (for ſheep he had others which were not of this flock) ſee Mark 14. 27, 28. ſhould fly away and forſake him.

32. But after I am riſen, I will go before you into Galilee.]

32. But though I am taken from you, and ye fly from and forſake me, yet I will not leave you ſo, I ſhall riſe from the dead, and when I am riſen, I will go into Galilee, where you may meet me.

33. Peter anſwered and ſaid unto him, [Though all men ſhall be offended becauſe of thee, yet I will never be offended.]

33. Though all men fall off, and forſake thee, yet whatſoever befalls me, I will not.

34. Jeſus ſaid unto him, Verily I ſay unto thee, that this night [before the cock crow, thou ſhalt deny me thrice.]

34. Before the ſpace of time be ended which men eſpecially call the Cock-crowing, that is, before the morning watch come, thou ſhalt three times renounce being my diſciple.

35. Peter ſaid unto him, Though I ſhould die with thee, yet will I not deny thee. Likewiſe alſo ſaid all the diſciples.

36. Then cometh Jeſus with them unto a place called Gethſemane, and ſaith unto the diſciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder.

37. And he took with him [Peter and the two ſons of Zebedee, and began to be ſorrowful and very heavy.]

37. Peter and James and John, whom he moſt admitted to his ſecrets (ſee c. 17. 1.) and was in a very great agony of ſorrow.

38. Then ſaith he unto them, My ſoul is exceeding ſorrowful, even unto death; tarry ye here, and watch with me.

39. And he went a little farther, [and fell on his face and prayed, ſaying, O my Father, if it be poſſible, let this cup paſs from me, nevertheleſs not as I will, but as thou wilt.]

39. And he lay proſtrate (which in time of great anxiety is the uſual poſture, and a token of the greateſt humiliation, and renouncing of himſelf) and ſaid, My Father, if all that I came about, may be atchieved without it, let this bitter potion, that is now approaching, this contumelious and bloody death be removed from me. But if not, I more deſire the doing what thou haſt deſigned for me; then the eſcaping any kind of ſuffering.

40. And he cometh unto the diſciples, and findeth them aſleep, and ſaith unto Peter, *What could ye not watch with me one hour?

* Were you ſo unable to watch with me one ſmall while? οὕτως οὐκ ἰσχύσατε μίαν ὥραν &c.

41. Watch and pray [that ye enter not into temptation; the ſpirit indeed is willing, but the fleſh is weak.]

41. That ye be not encompaſt and overcome with temptations: For however your mind and reſolution be good, and at the time your profeſſions zealous (ſee Mark 14. 38.) yet it appears by this preſent ſleeping of yours, that the fleſh is weak, and if ye be not careful, ye may fall from your ſtouteſt reſolutions.

42. He went away again the ſecond time, and prayed, ſaying, O my father, [if this cup may not paſs away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done.]

42. Seeing I diſcern this to be thy purpoſe, and wiſe diſpoſal, that I ſhould ſuffer this bloody death, and that the effects thereof are ſo advantagious to the good of the world, I am perfectly content and willing to endure it.

43. And he came and found them aſleep again, for their eyes were [heavy.]

43. Overcome with heavineſs of ſleep.

44. And he left them,] and went away again, and prayed the third time, ſaying the ſame words.

44. So he left them without ſaying much to them, as before, their eyes being ſo oppreſt with ſleep, that they were not in fit caſe to conſider, or anſwer what was ſaid to them.

45. Then cometh he to his diſciples, and ſaith unto them, [Sleep on now and take your reſt, behold the hour is at hand, and the ſon of man is betrayed into the hands of ſinners.]

45. You may now enjoy your drowſy humor, I ſhall make no farther uſe of your vigilance, the minute is now come upon you, that your Maſter ſhall be apprehended, and taken from you, and carried before the Tribunal of the Gentiles, the Romans, (by whoſe Judicature he ſhall be put to death, ſee Luke 22. note f.)

46. Riſe, let us be going, behold he is at hand that [doth betray me.]

46. Delivers me up into their hands.

47. And while he yet ſpake, Lo, Judas one of the twelve came, and with him [a great multitude with ſwords and ſtaves from the chief prieſts and elders of the people.]

47. A Commander, and band of Soldiers (ſee Luke 22. f.) provided with arms for the apprehending him, ſent upon this ſervice by the Sanhedrim of the Jews.

48. Now he that betrayed him gave them a ſign, ſaying, Whomſoever I ſhall kiſs, that ſame is he, hold him faſt.]

48. Apprehend him.

49. And forthwith he came to Jeſus, and ſaid, Hail Maſter, and kiſſed him.

50. And

50. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they and laid hands on Jeſus, and took him.

51. The chief Officer, the fore-man of them that had the warrant to apprehend him.

51. And behold, one of them which were with Jeſus, ſtretched out his hand, and drew his ſword, and ſtroke [a ſervant of the high prieſts] and ſmote off his ear.

52. Do nothing contrary to law, for all that draw and uſe the ſword without authority from thoſe which bear the ſword, ſhall fall themſelves by it, incur the puniſhment of death.

52. Then ſaid Jeſus unto him, [Put up again thy ſword into his place; for all they that take the ſword, ſhall periſh with the ſword.]

53. If I would forcibly be reliev'd, I could have a full army, or hoſt of Angels, conſiſting as among the Romans, of twelve legions.

53. Thinkeſt thou, that I cannot now pray to my father, and he ſhall preſently give me more then twelve legions of Angels?

54. But how then ſhall the Scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it muſt be?]

54. Prophets have foretold I muſt ſuffer, and their predictions muſt be accompliſhed.

55. As againſt a malefactor, with a band of ſoldiers to apprehend me? ſee 47.

55. * In that ſame hour Jeſus ſaid to the multitudes, Are ye come out [as againſt a thief with ſwords and ſtaves for to take me?] I ſat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye laid no hold on me.

* At that time or inſtant, ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ

56. The next thing done was that upon Chriſt's ſpeaking to have the diſciples let go, they were permitted, John 18. 8. and all of them having that liberty, departed from him, and that with ſo much terror, that one in the company, being a young perſon, ran away perfectly naked, Mark 14.5.

56. But all this was done that the ſcriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. [Then all the diſciples forſook him and fled.]

57. The Sanhedrin was.

57. And they that had laid hold on Jeſus led him away to Caiaphas the high-prieſt, where [the Scribes and the elders were] aſſembled.

58. Into the outer room, where the ſervants uſed to remain, to ſee what the iſſue of the matter would be.

58. But Peter followed him afar off unto the high-prieſts palace, and went in, [and ſat with the ſervants to ſee the end.]

h. 59. Now the Sanhedrin uſed all diligence to get any falſe teſtimony againſt him, that were capital.

59. Now the chief prieſts and elders, and all the counſel ſought [h] falſe witneſs againſt Jeſus to put him to death,]

60. But none that came, was of any force, becauſe they were all but indeed ſingle witneſſes.

60. But found none; yea though many falſe witneſſes came, yet found they none.] At the laſt came two falſe witneſſes,

61. And miſ-reported a ſpeech of his related truly, John 2.19. ſaying,

61. And ſaid,] This fellow ſaid, I am able to deſtroy the temple of God, and to build it in three days.

62. Haſt thou no anſwer to make to theſe accuſations, thus teſtifyed by two witneſſes?

62. And the high-prieſt aroſe, and ſaid unto him, [Anſwereſt thou nothing? What is it, that theſe witneſs againſt thee?]

i. 63. Spake again unto him ſaying, I lay an oath upon thee, and by that which is moſt ſacred require thee to ſpeak, and ſay freely, whether thou art the Meſſias, whom we know to be the ſon of God.

63. But Jeſus held his peace. And the High-prieſt [anſwered and ſaid unto him, I i adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us, whether thou be the Chriſt, the ſon of God.]

k. 64. As low as I am, I am he. But I tell you, within a little while you ſhall diſcern this ſon of man, whom you are now ready to crucify as man, aſſumed into his throne, inſtalled in his heavenly kingdom. An effect of which ſhall be moſt viſible in his acting vengeance upon you, and that as diſcernably, as if he were coming with his Angels, who uſe to appear in bright clouds.

64. Jeſus ſaith unto him, [Thou haſt ſaid; nevertheleſs I ſay unto you, hereafter ſhall you ſee the ſon of man ſitting on the right hand of [k] power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.]

l. 65. Then the high prieſt [l] rent his clothes, ſaying, He hath ſpoken blaſphemy; What farther need have we of witneſſes? Behold now ye have heard his blaſphemy.

66. What is the vote, or ſentence of the Council concerning him? They anſwered, He is guilty of a fault, which is puniſhable with death.

66. What think ye? They anſwered and ſaid, he is guilty of death.]

m. 67. Then did ſome of the Officers of their court ſpit in his face, and buffet him, and blindfold him, Luke 22.64. and then gave him blows on the face.

67. Then did they ſpit in his face, and buffetted him, and others [m] * ſmote him with the palme of their hands.]

* cudgelled him.

68. Saying, Thou who by thy title of Chriſt, pretendeſt to unction prophetical, make uſe of it for thy ſelf, and by it tell us, who 'tis that ſmites thee.

68. Saying, Prophecy unto us, thou Chriſt, who is he that ſmote thee?

69. Wert a prime companion or diſciple of (ſee Mark 3.14.)

69. Now Peter ſat without in the palace, and a damoſel came unto him, ſaying, Thou alſo [waſt with] Jeſus of Galilee.

70. I am not guilty of what thou layeſt to my charge.

70. But he denied before them all, ſaying, [I know not what thou ſayeſt.]

71. And when he was gone out into the porch, another maid ſaw him, and ſaid unto them that were there, This fellow was alſo with Jeſus of Nazareth.

72. Saying, I have no relation to him.

72. And again he denied with an oath, [I do not know the man.]

73. Thy dialect or tone, peculiar to thoſe of Galilee from the reſt of the Jews, betrayeth thee to be a Galilæan and Follower of his.

73. And after a while came unto him they that ſtood by, and ſaid to Peter, Surely thou alſo art one of them, for [thy ſpeech bewrayeth thee.]

74. To lay imprecations on himſelf.

74. Then began he [to curſe] and to ſwear, ſaying, I know not the man. And immediately the cock crew.

75. Before the ſecond cock-crowing, which is in the middle watch, between midnight and morning. See note on Mark 13.35.

75. And Peter remembred the words of Jeſus, which ſaid unto him, [Before the cock crow] thou ſhalt deny me thrice. And he went out and wept bitterly.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XXVI.

a. Πάχα γίνεται καὶ ὁ μὲς ἀνθρωπος παραδίδοται.

V. 2. Paſſover] The connexion of the parts of this verſe depends on a tradition of the Jews, that when any were condemned to death, they were kept from execution till the ſolemn feaſt, of which there were three in the year חג המצות the feaſt of unleavened bread, or the Paſſover, חג השבעות the feaſt of weeks, and חג הסכות the feaſt of tabernacles, in which all the Jews came up to Jeruſalem to ſacrifice, and then did they put the Malefactors, eſpecially Rebels, and Impoſtors, to death, in the preſence and ſight of all the people, that all Iſrael might ſee and fear, Deut. 17.13. Hence it is that this feaſt of Paſſover was waited for by the Jews, and deſigned for this death of Chriſt, as of a Rebel, and Impoſtor both, one which they would fancy to be an enemy to Cæſar, and a falſe Prophet, and ſeducer of the people.

b. Ἀλαβάστρου.

V. 7. Alabaſter-box] What the Greek ἀλάβαστρον here ſignifies may be obſerved, and judged by the ſignification of it among the Grammarians, and in other Authors. In Heſychius and Phavorinus, tis λήκυθος μύρου, μύρε, a veſſel of oil, but that not any kind of veſſel, as λήκυθος ſignifies, but, as 'tis added, μὴ ἔχον λαβάς, λίσπνον, &c. a veſſel that hath no handles. (which is the clear derivation of the word from α privative, and λαβὴ a handle, ſaith Methodius) and made of ſtone ordinarily, yet not that it takes its name from the ſtone which we ordinarily call alabaſter, but that that ſtone ordinarily call'd * ὄνυξ, is from this ſurnamed (as it were) ἀλαβαστίτης λίθος, the ſtone of which the ἀλάβαστρα are ordinarily made. Hence hath Suidas defined it in plain words, ἄγγος μύρου ὃ μὴ ἔχον λαβάς, a veſſel of ointment that hath no handles, which is directly oppoſed to amphotis, ſo called becauſe it hath two ears or handles, which makes it clear not to be a box, as 'tis oft rendred, but βίκιον urceolus, as Epiphanius calls it, and that either of ſtone or any other materials. The particular form of it may be beſt diſcern'd by Pliny, Nat. Hiſt. l. 9. c. 35. where ſpeaking de Elenchis, he ſaith, they are faſtigiata longitudine, alabaſtrorum figura, in plenioremorbem deſinentes; long and ſlender toward the top, and more round and full toward the bottom, which is the figure of the alabaſters. In which reſpect it is, that the ſame Author reſolves unguentum optimè ſervari in alabaſtris, that any ointment is beſt kept in veſſels of this faſhion. The Greek Tranſlators of the Old Teſtament have rendred צלחית ἀλάβαστρον, 2 Kings 21. 13. which I ſuppoſe alludes to this figure of it, (not as of a diſh, but a narrow mouth'd veſſel) by that which follows of turning it upſide down, which is the only way of emptying or getting all the water or oil out of ſuch kind of veſſels. The ſame word little altered צלחורת, is 2 Kings 2. 20. rendred ὑδρία a water-pot or veſſel for thoſe like purpoſes. So much for the faſhion of this Veſſel. For the matter of it, 'tis certain that it was commonly made of Marble, and ſo by Nonnus 'tis paraphraſed μάρμαρον ἄγγος, a marble veſſel, and particularly of the onyx, which is acknowledg'd by Gorrhæus and others to be marmoris ſpecies, a ſort of marble, (which by the way, will reſilt the opinion that we ordinarily have in this matter of the woman's breaking the veſſel, the marble being not ſo fit for that purpoſe, and the manner of pouring out ointment being intimated by * Pollux in his λύε τὰ ἀλάβαστρα, ἄνοιγε σύ open them, take out the ſtopple or cork out of the mouth of them, and then uſe a little ſtick, or ſpathula or rudicula, putting it in, and taſting the oil, πρὶν καταχέειν, before it be poured out) but 'twas alſo made of Silver and Glaſs, or other Metals; ſo Theocritus makes mention χρυσέων ἀλαβάστρων of golden alabaſters, (and ſo the ſtile in Athenæus imports, περιενεγκόντων τῶν παίδων ἐν ἀλαβάστροις καὶ ἄλλοις χρυσοῦς σκεύεσι μύρα, the boys carrying about unguents in alabaſters and other golden veſſels) Epiphanius of βύκιον ὑάλινον (and the Etymologiſt calls it σκεῦός τι ἐξ ὑάλου, a veſſel made of glaſs, not (as a † learned man hath been willing to gueſs) after a leſs proper, but uſual manner, as when we ſay a box of gold, (the name box or buxus referring properly to that peculiar kind of Wood ſo called) but properly and naturally, the word alabaſter referring only to the form, not to the matter of it. Then for the uſe of theſe Veſſels, 'tis clear 'twas for Oil, Myrrh, Nard, or what elſe is uſual for anointing any. Thus * Plutarch reciting the anointing veſſels, names ὄλπια καὶ κρωσσοὺς, καὶ πύελους, καὶ ἀλαβάστρους, and ſo Julius Pollux l. 6. τοῦτο ἀγγεῖα τῶν μύρων λήκυθος μυρηρὰ, καὶ ἀλάβαστρον. So Athenæus out of Alexis, ὃ γὰρ ἠμυείζετ' ἐξ ἀλαβάστρου παράγμασι γινόμενον ἀεὶ χρονικόν. He was not anointed out of an alabaſter, as the cuſtom hath been for a long time. So in Herodotus, Cambyſes ſent to the King of Æthiopia, an alabaſter of ointment; So in Martial,

Quod Coſmi redolent alabaſtra;

ſon in the ‖ Digeſts we read Vaſa unguentaria & ſiqua ſimilia dici poſſunt ut labacioriſtus, where no queſtion there is a failing in the Copy, which muſt be repaired not by changing it into lavatioriſcus, or rica, as ſome would have it, but into alabaſtrum or alabaſtericus, which is not very far from the word alabacoriſtus, which Lazarus Baſius ſaith he hath met with in ſome books.

Ib. At meat] The uſe of this myrrh or ointment (at this time) which the woman poured upon him, was that which was uſual at feaſts; That thus it was uſual in the entertainments of the Jews, it is clear by many places; Pſal. 23. 5. where, after the preparing a table, follows, thou anointeſt my head with oil, &c. and ſo when wine is ſaid to make glad the heart of man, and oil to make him a chearful countenance, and bread to ſtrengthen there are the three parts of a feſtival entertainment, bread and wine taken in for the gladding, or refreſhing, or ſtrengthening the heart, and the oil for the outſide (exterior oleo irrigentur, ſaid Democritus) for the countenance, or the head rather, on which 'twas poured here, as a perfume, which was the complement of feſtivities. Hence it is, that amongſt the ſtewards expences Luk. 16. he reckons ἑκατὸν βάτους ἐλαίου an hundred meaſures of oil, provided eſpecially for ſuch feſtival uſes. So 1 Chron. 12. 40. the oil is mentioned among the feſtival proviſion; ſo Philo in Leg. ad Caium p. 797. D. ἀλείμματα and χρῖσις anointing, and food are a deſcription ὀθνείας διαίτης of a more delicate life: And ſo wine and oil, Prov. 21. 17. as ſigns of one, that had lived luxuriouſly and enjoyingly: The ſame, I conceive, to be the notion of the oil of gladneſs, Pſal. 45. 7. as referring to the oil uſed in Feaſts (which are called gladneſs, or joy, as 1 Chron. 12. 20. there was joy in Iſrael) and ſo conſequently it muſt be underſtood, Heb. 1. 9. that Chriſt was better dealt with by God, more royally treated, and more abundance of grace poured on him, then any other. By which alſo may appear what is the χείσμα ἀπὸ τοῦ ἁγίου, unction from the holy one, 1 John 2. 20. a moſt liberal effuſion or communication of Grace from the Spirit which had deſcended upon the Apoſtles. So among the Heathens * Jul. Pollux. ὅτι ἡ κὴ μύρον ἐν τοῖς συμποσίοις, ἐπιμνησέον, ſo Athen. l. 11. out of the Ancients,

Αὐτὰρ ἐπεὶ δόρποιο μελίφρονος ἐξ ἔρον ἕντο, when they had ſatisfied their hunger and thirſt,

Ὡραῖος παῖς ἦλθε φέρων μύρον,

A comely youth brings myrrh or ointment. So † Plutarch, ἐλαίου τε καὶ μύρου κρωσσοὺς νεανίσκοι κομίζοντες ἐλεύθεροι, the young men, not the ſervants, but others that were free, brought veſſels of oil and myrrh. So the Scholiaſt on Ariſtophanes, οἱ καλοῦντες ἐπὶ δεῖπνον, στεφάνους καὶ μύρα, &c. παρεσκεύασαν, they that invite to a meal, bring them forth crowns and ointments. Thus in Heſychius, on the word ἐξαλείψεσθαι, It is, ſaith he, σκεῦος ἀργυροῦν φιάλῃ ἐοικὸς ἁπλήσιον ἐξ οὗ ἐν τοῖς συμποσίοις ἠλείφοντο μύρον (not as 'tis corruptly read, ἤλειφον τὸ μύρον) a ſilver veſſel near in form to a vial, (the very ἀλάβαστρον in this verſe) out of which men were in feaſts anointed with ointment and myrrh. Whence is that luſory or ſcoffing E[illegible] of Martial, l. 3.

Unguentum fateor bonum dediſti
Convivis, here, ſed nihil ſcidiſti,
Res falſa eſt bene olere & eſurire,
Qui non cœnat & ungitur, Fabulle,
Hic verò mihi mortuus videtur.

And that this was poured particularly on the Head, and that for a perfume, 'tis diſcernible not only by Luke 7. 46. but by the ancient Heathens alſo. So in Athenæus out of Archeſtratus.

Ἀεὶ δ' στεφάνοισι κάρη πυκὰ δαῖτα πυκάζε,
Καὶ ταχέοιν μύρεσσι ἀμαδὴς χαίτη περιπάδε,

'Twere infinite to multiply teſtimonies of this nature, as that in Eccleſiaſtes, Let thy garments be white, and thy head want no ointment: Yet more particular of this action will be conſiderable, when we come to view this ſtory, as 'tis ſet down with a little variation in the other Goſpels.

d. ἀργύρια

V.15. Pieces of ſilver] That by ἀργύρια here are meant ſhekels, may be concluded not only by the reading the Gr. and Lat. MS. which hath στατῆρες inſtead of it, (ſtaters and ſhekels being all one, ſee note on c.17.e.) but alſo becauſe 2 *Sam.*18.12. the ten pieces of ſilver there are by the Targum rendred ten ſhekels of ſilver, or five of the double ſhekels, that is, twenty five ſhillings. In proportion to which the thirty ἀργύρια here will be three pounds and fifteen ſhillings, and ſo 'tis Maimonides obſervation (*More Nev.par.*3.*c.*40.) from *Exod.*21.32. that thirty ſhekels or pieces of ſilver was the price of ſervants, (a freeman being, ſaith he, generally valued at ſixty ſhekels.) And ſo when in Ariſteas the price of the redemption of every captive Jew in Ptolemy's time is ſaid to be 20 drachmæ, it appears by Joſephus that that is a miſtake for 120 which make thirty ſhekels, every ſhekel or σατὴς being τέτρα δραχμὸν four drachms, ſee c.16.27. and Note on c.17.e. So true is that of S. Paul, that Chriſt took on him the form of a ſervant, to which alſo the death of the Croſs peculiarly belong'd among the Romans.

e. Σῶμά μου

V.26. This is my body] What is the full importance of this phraſe, τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ Σῶμά μου, this is my body, is a difficulty which may perhaps be cleared by degrees, by premiſing theſe few obſervations: Firſt, from the Jewiſh phraſes and cuſtoms, that the lamb dreſt in the Paſchal-ſupper, and ſet upon the table, as a ſacrifical feaſt, or feſtival ſacrifice, was wont to be call'd גופו של צפח the body of the Paſſover, or גופו של כבש הפטח the body of the Paſchal Lamb. So in the Talmud, de Paſch. c.ult, R.M.Maim.in Hilchos Camets umatzah, c. 8. § 1. and § 7. So in Mekilta fol,4. *col.*1. To which phraſe or form of ſpeech among them Chriſt may probably allude, when he ſaith, This is my body, making himſelf that was now to be ſlain for them, anſwerable to that Paſchal Lamb (as by Paul he is call'd our Paſſover, that is ſacrificed for us) and ſo mentioning this crucifixion of his, in that form, by which the preſentation of the Lamb on the table in the Jewiſh feaſt, whereof they were to eat by God's appointment, was wont to be expreſs'd. This for the words Σῶμά μου my body. Secondly, for the τοῦτό ἐστι, that is, or the whole phraſe, τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ Σῶμά μου, this is my body; this ſeems to be by Chriſt ſubſtituted inſtead of the Paſchal form הא לחמא דעניא This is the bread of affliction, which our fathers eat in Egypt, or, This is the unleavened bread, &c. or, This is the Paſſover. Where it is evident that that is not the identical bread, which their Fathers in Egypt eat, but only the tranſcript of it, the commemoration of that Egyptian ſtate of ſlavery, from which they had been delivered, and the celebration of that annual feaſt, which in Egypt was firſt inſtituted. As when in ordinary ſpeech, on Chriſtmas, or Eaſter-day, we ſay, This day Chriſt was born, or aroſe, which example S. Auguſtine accommodates to this matter in his Epiſtles. Thirdly, it muſt here be obſerved, that the word τοῦτο this (τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ Σῶμά μου, this is my body) is not the relative to ἄρτος bread, but of the Neuter (whereas that is of the Maſculine) Gender, and conſequently it is not here ſaid that this bread is my body, (the body of Chriſt) but either indefinitely this, or λάβετε, φάγετε, take, eat, this is my body, this taking and eating is, or denotes my body, which is more fully expreſs'd Luke 22.19. This is my body which is given for you, do this in remembrance, or commemoration of me: and ſo 1 *Cor.*11.23. Take, eat, this (not τοῦτο this bread, but τοῦτο this taking and eating) is my body, which is broken for you, do this in remembrance of me. This is a little farther improved by S. Paul, 1 *Cor.*10.15,16. The cup of bleſſing, which we bleſs, that is, our bleſſing the cup in the Sacrament, and ἄρτον ὃν κλῶμεν, the bread which we break, that is, the breaking of the bread which is delivered to us to eat οὐχὶ κοινωνία τοῦ Σώματος τοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐστι; is it not the communication of the body of Chriſt? where what was before ſaid in Chriſt's words to be his body, is more manifeſtly ſaid to be the communication of his body, that is, the beſtowing it upon us, (as the communication of the Altar among the Jews or Gentiles, is their eating of the ſacrifice, their God's entertaining them at λάβετε, φάγετε.

Κοινωνία σώματος

that ſacrifical feaſt) which, I ſuppoſe, concludes this Sacrament to be, according to the nature of Sacraments, an holy rite, a ſolemn act or inſtrument, inſtituted by God to communicate to, or confer on us the body of Chriſt, that is, the efficacy and benefits of Chriſt's death. Hence it is that this whole action is by Damaſcen call'd μετάληψις participation, (which is all one with communication, only as one referreth to the giver, ſo the other to the receiver) δι' αὐτῆς τοῦ Ἰησοῦ θεότητος μεταλαμβάνομεν, ſaith he, for thereby we partake of the divinity of Jeſus, the divine graces that flow from him, and S. Chryſoſtom, δι' αὐτοῦ σῶμα Χριστοῦ the body of Chriſt is received, that is, as verily as God there treats us at, and feeds us from his table, ſo verily doth he communicate to, and beſtow on the worthy receiver the body of the crucified Saviour. And if it ſhall be ſaid that this is no ſtrange thing, for that God doth ſo on every act of ſincere Repentance, of Faith, of Prayer, or other part of his Divine Worſhip worthily perform'd, and not only in this Sacrament; I anſwer, that the leſs ſtrange it is, the more ought it to be believed, on the affirmation of the Apoſtle, and the more certain it is, that he that being a true penitent ſinner, had the benefits of the death of Chriſt beſtowed on him by God upon his firſt repentance, hath them now annunciated by God, and ſo ſolemnly and ſacramentally conferred and ſeal'd to him, on this prepared, and worthy approach to God's table, and this act of worſhip duly performed, which Chriſt at his parting from the world, thought fit ſo ſolemnly to inſtitute to be for ever obſerved in the Church. But if it be conceived that in this Sacrament theſe benefits are always firſt conferred, or ſo as they were not really conferred before, this is a miſtake, for he that had been baptized, is acknowledg'd (if he have not interpoſed the obſtacle) to have received them before, and he that hath frequently been a worthy receiver of this Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and not fallen off by any wilful ſin, cannot every time firſt or newly receive them; nay, he that is a true penitent, and hath performed frequent acts of other parts of God's worſhip, as alſo of mortification of Luſts and Paſſions, and of all manner of Good works, though not of this, hath, no doubt, that acceptance of thoſe others acts, and theſe benefits of Juſtification, &c. beſtowed on him by God, and not all God's favour (and theſe benefits) ſuſpended, till the firſt receiving of this Sacrament. Only in caſe of precedent lapſes, which have for ſome time caſt a man out of God's favour, when upon ſincere repentance and reformation he is reſtored to God's favour again, then God in this Sacrament doth ſeal anew, that is, ſolemnly exhibit theſe benefits to him. And otherwiſe, when no ſuch lapſes have intervened, and ſo there is no need of this new ſealing or exhibiting, God doth yet confirm and farther ratifie, what hath hath been before ſufficiently done. By this explication of the meaning of the words, may alſo be concluded what are the parts of this Sacrament, viz. (the ſame that of every fœderal rite,) two literally, and two ſpiritually, in each, one on God's part, the other on ours. On God's part literally, his entertaining and feeding us at his table, 1 *Cor.*10.21. (but that, as in Sacrifices of old, firſt furniſhed by the piety of the gueſts) and on our part literally, our partaking of that table, that Chriſtian feaſt, 1 *Cor.*10.17. Then ſpiritually (or veiled under this literal, viſible outſide of a feaſt) 1. God's ſolemn reaching out to us, as by a deed or inſtrument, what was by promiſe due to every penitent ſinner, every worthy receiver, the broken body of Chriſt, that is, the benefits of his death, which is the ſum of that fervent form of prayer uſed by the Prieſt and every receiver ſingly, at the minute of receiving the Elements in that Sacrament, and that prayer part of the ſolemnity of the form of the Court, by which it is beſtow'd. Secondly, on our part, annunciating 1 *Cor.*11.26. that Sacrifice of Chriſt's death, which (was then immediately to come, but) is now long ſince perform'd upon the Croſs. Thus the bitter herbs are זכר a memorial, or commemoration, of the bitter Egyptian Servitude, Exod. 12. 14. the red wine לזכר for a memorial that Pharaoh waſh'd himſelf in the blood of the children children of Israel. So that precept Exod. 13. 8. is given by Moses, that in the Passover they should annunciate, or tell of their deliverance, and thence they call the Paschal lesson הגדה καλαγγελίαν, annunciation. See Elias Levita in Thisbi. And this annunciation, or shewing forth, is not only in respect of our selves, in believing, and toward men in professing our faith in the crucified Saviour, and that with a kind of glorying, or rejoycing, but also toward God, pleading before him that sacrifice of his own son, and thro' that humbly, and with affiance requiring the benefits thereof, grace and pardon to be bestowed on us, and at the time making use of that, which is one special benefit of his passion, that free access to the Father, thro' him, interceding for all men, over all the world, especially for kings, &c. 1 Tim. 2. 2. which from that constitution of St. Paul to Timothy, Metropolitan of all Asia, was received into the most ancient Liturgies, and made a solemn part of the ἐντεύξεις and ἐυχαριστίαι intercessions and eucharistical Devotions of the Church. Both these parts of the Sacrament are intimated by those two phrases mention'd in the two first observations. For the presentation of the Lamb on the table, and so of the Christian Sacrifice, the crucified Saviour in the Christian feast, to be eaten of by us, notes Gods annunciating and attesting to us the benefits of Christ's death, and so the commemorative Paschal form notes our commemorating and annunciating that death of his to our selves and others. And both these are contained in those different phrases of St. Paul, both used in this matter in several places, the former, that the broken bread is the κοινωνία communication of his body, and so the latter, 1 Cor. 11. 26. As oft as you eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye annunciate the death of the Lord, what God there bestows on you, you annunciate to him, to your selves, and to others. From both which arises the aggravation of guilt of the unworthy receiver, that he is ἔνοχος σώματος, guilty of the body and blood of Christ, v. 27. that is, that Christ that died for him, and is there communicated to him sacramentally, that is, visibly exhibited in that Sacrament, and by him supposed to be annunciated to God, &c. is by his being unqualified, unprepared for the receiving the benefits of his death, utterly lost, frustrated in respect of him (as the impenitent is said to tread under foot the blood of Christ, the blood is as uneffectual to him, as what is by him thrown on the earth, and trampled on, is like to be to him) and yet farther he is said ἐαυτῷ κρῖμα ἐσθίειν καὶ πίνειν to eat and drink damnation to himself, v. 29. that is, where the worthy receiver hath the benefits of Christ's death communicated to him in this feast, and so eats and drinks salvation to himself, this unworthy intruder doth on the contrary bring, by that means punishments, and if he repents not by the admonition of those punishments, damnation on himself. As for the elements in this Sacrament, Bread and Wine, tho' by the προσφορὰ offering them to God, then by the Priests consecration, benediction, calling upon God over them, they become Gods, and so are called κυριακὸν δεῖπνον, the Lords Supper, in opposition to ἴδιον δεῖπνον, every mans own supper, 1 Cor. 11. 21. and so are changed from common Bread and Wine, yet not so as to depart from their own nature, or to be really converted into the Body and Blood of Christ save only in a spiritual sense, and sacramentally, according to that of Theodoret, Dial. 2. τὰ σύμβολα τοῦ σώματος τοῦ δεσποτικοῦ καὶ τοῦ αἵματος, μετὰ τὴν ὁπόκλησιν μεταβάλλεσθαι, καὶ ἕτερα γίνεσθαι ἀλλ' ὐκ οἰκείας ἐξίστασθαι φύσεως, μένει γὰρ ὅπερ ἦν καὶ σχήματος καὶ εἴδους, καὶ ὁρατὰ ἔστι καὶ ἁπτὰ, οἷα καὶ πρότερον ἦν. The symbols of our Lords body and blood, after the prayer of consecration, are changed and become other, but depart not from their own nature, for they remain in their former essence, and figure, and shape, and are visible, and sensible, such as before they were. And accordingly these so many words are found used by divers of the Ancients, μεταποίησις, μεταβολὴ, μεταρρύθμισις, μετάληψις, μετασοιχείωσις, each denoting change, but never μετουσίωσις, transubstantiation, or the like.

V. 29. Not drink] That Christ did after his resurrection, before his ascension, eat and drink with his Disciples, seems to be affirmed by many places of Scripture, and those such as are to that sense interpreted by the Ancients. Thus Acts 10. 41. St. Peter saith, the disciples eat and drink with him after his resurrection, and that is used by him, as a proof of the reality and certainty of his resurrection, which it would not have been if they only had eat and drank, and he had not. Thus when Acts 1. 4. it is said that Christ was συναλιζόμενος, &c. tho' perhaps that may be thought to signify no more then his having conversed with them, and not necessarily to infer his eating or drinking, yet both the origination of the word ἅλς salt, and the Syriack and Arabick interpretation, make it signify all one, as if it had been συνεσθίων, and * St. Chrysostome gives his judgment of it, that by it is meant that which the Apostles, Acts 10. 41. use as an argument of Christs resurrection, their eating and drinking with him. And so Theophylact and Oecumenius, συναλιζόμενος, τοῦτέστι κοινωνῶν ἁλῶν καὶ κοινωνῶν τραπέζης, it signifies partaking of the table with them, and on Acts 10. 41. the Scholion is, ἐντεῦθεν ἡ ἀνάστασιν τοῦ χριστοῦ διαβεβαιοῦ ἐν τῷ συμφαγεῖν αὐτῷ μετὰ τὴν ἀνάστασιν, he confirms the resurrection of Christ by their eating with him after it, οὐδὲ γὰρ ἀναστὰς ἐποίησέ τι σημεῖον· αὐτὴ γὰρ ἡ ἀνάστασις μέγα σημεῖον ἦν· ταύτης δὲ οὐδὲν σημεῖον ἦν ὡς τὸ φαγεῖν καὶ πιεῖν, for after he was risen he did not work any miracle, for the resurrection it self was a great miracle, and of that none so great an evidence as to eat and drink. So Leontius de sect. παρᾳξ. 1. p. 530. C. Εἰ γὰρ λέγει φαγεῖν τέλα τὴν ἀνάστασιν τοῦτο δὶ οἰκονομίαν ἐποίησεν, ὐκ ὡς πρὸ ὄντι πεινῶν, ἀλλ' ἵνα δείξῃ τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτῦ, ὅτι αὐτός ἐστιν ὁ ἀναστὰς ἐκ νεκρῶν, ὃν τρόπον καὶ τὰς τύπους ἦλων λέγεται ἐπιδεῖξαι αὐτοῖς, that he is said to eat after his resurrection, this he did by way of œconomy, not as being really hungry, but that he might shew his disciples, that he was risen from the dead, after the same manner, as he he is said to have shewed the disciples the prints of the nails. And so * Titus Bostrensis, among the arguments Christ used to assure his disciples of his resurrection, laying special weight on the ἐπιζητῆσαί τι βρώσιμον, καὶ φαγεῖν, his asking for meat, and eating before them; adding οὐδὲ γὰρ ὡς δεομένης ἐπὶ τροφῆς ἡ σαρκὸς αὐτῦ ἔφαγε μετὰ τὴν ἀνάστασιν, he eat after his resurrection, but not that his flesh wanted nourishment. So John 21. 13. 'tis said of Christ, he took bread, and in like manner a fish, and Luke 24. 30. he lay down at meat with them, and took bread, and not only gave to others, but v. 43. taking a fish and honey-comb, ἐνώπιον αὐτῶν ἔφαγεν, he eat before them all; and tho' there be not express mention there made of his drinking also, yet that affirmation of the disciples, Acts 10. 41. referring clearly to that part of the story, and extending it self to the συνεπίομεν we drank with him, also as well as the συνεφάγομεν, we eat with him, will be a proof and testimony of the one as well as the other. To this may be added the testimony of S. Ignatius in his Epistle to the Church of Smyrna, Μετὰ τὴν ἀνάστασιν συνέφαγεν αὐτοῖς καὶ συνέπιεν ὡς σαρκικὸς, καίπερ πνευματικῶς ἑνωθεὶς τῷ πατρὶ, after his resurrection he eat and drank with them, as being in the flesh, altho' spiritually he were united to the father. This being then on these grounds supposed, there is another possible way of interpreting this place of Christ, that he would drink no more of the fruit of the vine, till he drank it new in the kingdom of his father, viz. that the state of Christ after his resurrection is called the kingdom of his father, and that upon this ground; because at his resurrection Christ the son of God was instated in his kingly office, and all power (as he saith after that time, Mat. 28. 18.) was given unto him both in heaven and in earth, in which respect it is, that the Gospel is ordinarily called the kingdom of God, and so among the Jews, Saeculum Messiæ, the age of the Messias, and the μέλλων αἰὼν age to come, which certainly commenced at the resurrection of Christ, as at his death the former age of the Law and Prophets was consummate or ended (and that perhaps the meaning of the τετέλεσται, Joh. 19. 30. It is finished.) To this may those words of S. Chrysostome p.511. Soſtome be applied, when he ſaith of Chriſt, making mention of the kingdom, &c. περὶ ἀναστάσεως εἰσαγειν λόγον εἰς μέσον, τὸν ἀναστάσιμον ὕτω τὸν ἑαυτῦ καλέσαι, that he propoſes a diſcourſe of the reſurrection, and calls his own reſurrection thus. Yet becauſe 'tis poſſible, and probable enough, that S. Chryſoſtom by the phraſe περὶ ἀναστάσεως, means the ſtate and time of the general reſurrection, not only of Chriſts, but of the Diſciples alſo to whom he ſpeaks, and with them of all others (and then accordingly ἀνάστασις ἑαυτῦ ſhall not only ſignify the act of his riſing out of the grave, but alſo of the future ſtate of Chriſt with them together after the final judgment) and becauſe μεθ' ὑμῶν here added may ſeem to refer to that ſenſe, and again, becauſe drinking it new with them may beſt be taken in a figurative ſenſe to expreſs thoſe heavenly feſtivals there vouchſafed to the Saints, received into communion of thoſe joys with Chriſt, and becauſe the ſpace between Chriſts reſurrection and aſcenſion, is in no other place of the New Teſtament expreſs'd by this phraſe of the kingdom of Chriſts father, and laſtly, becauſe 'tis not here the kingdom of Chriſt (to which it was pretended that his reſurrection inſtated him, and yet would not be perfectly true, as that excludes, or is taken abſtracted from his aſcenſion) but the kingdom of his father, which belongs particularly to the time after the general reſurrection, 1 Cor. 15.24, & 28. (for then and not till then is the kingdom again delivered up to the father.) For theſe reaſons, I ſay, that interpretation being laid aſide, there is a ſecond that offers it ſelf, by obſerving the words or word ἀπ' ἄρτι or ἀπάρτι, and rendring that within a while, as ſeems to be moſt agreeable to the uſe of it, v.64. of this chap. and *c.*23.39. & John 1. 52. & *Rev.*14.13. as is ſhewed both by * Euthymius's Scholion, and by the vulgar Latines amodo in all the places, and ſo alſo by the context in thoſe places, (ſee note on *c.*23. m.) If this be accepted, then the meaning will be, that after a while, or within a ſhort time he means to part with them, and then that is after that ſhort time, he will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, 'till he meet them again in heaven, and drink of that new wine, that is, turn this bodily into a ſpiritual feſtival, expreſs'd by lying, as at meat, with Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven, Luke 14.15. As for this fruit of the vine, the corporal food, that he will then drink that with them in heaven, can no more be concluded from the ἕως τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης until that day, then that Mary ceaſed to be a Virgin, or had children after the birth of Chriſt, from the ἕως ὅ until that, *Mat.*1.25. but the truth is, there is yet a third way of interpreting this verſe, which by comparing it with the words in S. Luke ſeems much the moſt probable of all, that this γέννημα τῆς ἀμπέλου fruit of the vine, ſignifies the cup in the paſſover peculiarly, or the cup of charity in the poſt cœnium of the Paſſover, wherein the Sacrament of Chriſts blood was founded. For that Chriſt was now to dye, and neither before nor after his death and reſurrection, to eat any more Paſſovers with them, or any more to drink this cup of charity now deſigned to a Chriſtian uſe is ſufficiently evident. To this therefore is agreeable what he ſaith Luke 22. 15. with deſire have I deſired to eat this paſſover with you, before I ſuffer, meaning now to tranſmute this cup there into that Sacrament of Charity to be obſerved in the Chriſtian Church for ever after. And therefore 'tis obſervable in St. Luke, that the words are directly applyed, *c.*22.16. to the paſſover, I have deſired to eat this paſſover, for I will no more eat, ἐξ αὐτῦ thereof, or of that, that is, of the paſſover, &c. and by repeating of the words again, of the cup, *v.*18. it is all reaſon that that be rendred of the cup in the paſſover, or the Sacramental cup of Charity, as the former of the bread in that poſtcœnium. This appears to me an unqueſtionable rendring and clearing of all difficulties, viz. that Chriſt will no more uſe theſe typical adumbrations, being himſelf now really to perform what was adumbrated by them, to paſs ſuddenly from earth to heaven, thro' a Red ſea of blood, & there to compleat alſo the myſtery of the Sacrament, by uniting his diſciples one to another, and making them all partakers of his riches there. And that this is fit to be preferred before the ſecond interpretation by the rendring of ἀπάρτι amodo, within a while, will be judged by the parallel phraſes both in Mark and Luke, where 'tis οὐκέτι οὐ μὴ πίω, I will from henceforth by no means drink, &c. Mark 14.25. and ſo once in Luke alſo, *c.*22.16. and the ſecond time οὐ μὴ πίω, I will not drink.

V.30. Sung an hymn] It was the cuſtom of the Jews after ſupper to ſay Grace, & then to ſay or ſing זמירות verſes or ſongs, eſpecially over the Paſchal lamb, ſaith Paulus Burgenſis, at which time, ſaith he, they were wont to ſing from the 112. to the 119 Pſ. the matter of thoſe Pſalms agreeing perfectly with the paſchal lamb. This may have been the hymn, or rather hymns, or pſalms, which Chriſt ſang here with his diſciples; ſee P. Fagius in Annot. upon the Chaldee Paraphraſe, *Deut.*8. But 'tis alſo not improbable, that it was ſome other hymn accommodated to this particular inſtitution of Chriſts, & this ſung by them all, in the ſame manner, as we read of the Chriſtians hymn, Acts 4.24. g. Ὑμνήσαντες. ver. 15.

V.59. Falſe witneſs] The profeſs'd coming in and entertaining of falſe witneſſes againſt Chriſt will not ſeem ſtrange, if it be remembred that among the Jews in actions againſt ſeducers of the people, or falſe prophets, it was lawful to ſay any thing whether true or falſe, no man being permitted to ſay any thing in defence of them. In the condemning of other men they expected a day and a night, to ſee if any thing could be produced, which might profit the priſoner, but not in theſe caſes of falſe prophets, and ſeducers of the people to Idolatry; ſee P. Fagius in his notes on the Chald. Paraph. on *Deut.*13.8. and Maimonides in *Hilcoth. Sanhed. c.*11. So is it ſaid in the Story of Steven, they did ὑποβάλλειν ἄνδρας ſuborn men, & again ἔστησαν μάρτυρας ψευδεῖς, *v.*13. they ſubſtituted falſe witneſſes, &c. Beſides the Sanhedrim were ſo reſolved to take away his life, that they did profeſſedly ſeek falſe witneſs that ſhould come and ſwear any thing againſt him, *v.*59. And what was here done in their proceſs againſt him, is juſt the antitype, or farther impletion of that which was firſt performed on Jeremy, *c.*26. *v.*8, 9. h. Ψευδομαρτυρίαν ἐζήτων. Ὑποβάλλειν ἄνδρας. ver. 60.

V.63. Adjure thee] 'Twas a cuſtom among the Jews to adjure, which was by ſome form of execration laid upon the perſon, if he did not ſpeak and anſwer truly; this among them obliged the perſon adjured, as much as if he had taken an oath; and therefore Chriſt, tho' before he had held his peace, now being adjured, thinks himſelf bound to anſwer him. Many examples we have of this in the Old Teſtament, *Judg.*17.2. the ſilver which thou haſt loſt, and about which thou didſt uſe execration, that is, didſt adjure; ſo *Prov.*29. 24. of the partaker with the thief, that is ſo ſecret, he heareth curſing, and betrayeth it not, that is, will not reveal, tho' he be adjured, 1 Kings 8.31. If any man ſin againſt his brother ונשא בו אלא להאלחו and he impoſe on him an imprecation to adjure him, for ſo אלא ſignifies, *Pſ.*10.7. and is rendred by the Chaldee paraphraſe, לוטין maledictions, and ſo האלחו in hiphil is literally and critically to make ſwear, to adjure, and is expreſſed by St. Pauls ὁρκίζω, 1 *Theſ.*5. 27. I bind you under the curſe of God. The law concerning this we have, *Lev.*5.1. If a ſoul ſhall offend, and ſhall hear the voice of adjuration or execration, and ſo *Numb.*5. 21. where we have not ſimply, האלה execration, but שבועת האלה an oath of execration. i. Ἐξορκίζω.

V. 64. Power] The right hand of power is the right hand of God the Father, who is call'd power by the Hebrews; ſo Jarchi on *Numb.*7.10. Moſes received it not from their hands, till he was commanded from the mouth of power, and ſo the δεξιὰ μεγαλωσύνης, the right hand of greatneſs, *Heb.*8.1. ſo 1 *Pet.*4.14. the ſpirit of glory, is the ſpirit of God. k. Δεξιὰ δυνάμεως. Δεξιὰ μεγαλωσύνης. Πνεῦμα δόξης.

V.65. Rent his cloaths] That rending of cloaths was an expreſſion of indignation, holy zeal and piety among the Jews, expreſs'd on ſeveral occaſions, eſpecially of grief in humiliation, and of anger on the hearing of any blaſphemous ſpeech, is ordinarily known by all. Only the difficulty here is, how this could be fit or proper for the high prieſt to do, which is made unlawful for l. Διέῤῥηξεν ἱμάτια.

for the prieſts, *Levit.*10. 6.21. 10. Thus hath Baronius objected, Annal. t. 1. An. Ch. 34. but the anſwer is eaſy, that that prohibition in Levit. extends only to the not tearing of the Sacerdotal garments, that is, of thoſe which are uſed only in the prieſts office, Ex. 28.32. and 39.23. and agreeably the Jews have a rule, Qui dilaceraverit veſtes ſacerdotales, vapulabit, He that ſhall tear any of the prieſts garments ſhall be beaten. Beſides this, 'twas indeed alſo unlawful to enter into the court of the Iſraelites in the Temple with rent cloaths, but that was unlawful to any other, as well as to a prieſt, who differed not from others in this matter, ſave only in this one circumſtance, that the High prieſt tore his garment from the bottom to the top, the reſt of the Prieſts, and all others from the top to the bottom.

V.67. Smote him, &c.] Ῥαπὶς is by Heſychius rendred ῥάζδ☉, a rod or wand, ῥαπίσαι, ῥάζδῳ πλῆξαι, ἢ ἀλοῆσαι, to ſtrike with a rod or to threſh, to uſe ſuch a ſtick as was ordinary in threſhing out corn, a ſtaff or cudgel, and again ῥαπίζει, σκώπτει, ἀλοᾷ, παίζει μαστῖι, τύπτει, to ſtrike, and to mock, But then the old Greek and Latine Lexicon hath it otherwiſe, ῥαπίζω expalmo, alapo, to box, or ſtrike with the hand. And ſo * S. Auguſtine reads it, Si cùm expalmaretur voluit ſe vindicare? would he revenge himſelf, when he was box'd? ſo Nonnus on John,

CHAP. XXVII. Paraphraſe.

1. WHEN the morning was come, all the chief prieſts and elders of the people took counſel againſt Jeſus to put him to death.]

1. And having retired for a while, the whole Sanhedrim conſiſting of chief Prieſts and Rulers of the people, &c. met together in counſel, and there decreed, that he was to be put to death, and accordingly that they would preſs the Roman Procurator to do juſtice on him capitally.

2. And when they had bound him, they] led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the Governour.

2. And accordingly as one precondemn'd by them they bound him and

3. Then Judas that had betrayed him, when he ſaw that he was [condemned, repented himſelf] and brought again the thirty pieces of Silver to the chief prieſts and elders.

3. Caſt by the Jews Sanhedrim, wiſh'd that he had [not done it, and was exceedingly grieved and afflicted in mind.

4. Saying, [I have ſinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood.] And they ſaid, What is that to us? ſee thou to that.

4. I have committed a foul ſin, in delivering up into your hands a moſt innocent perſon to be put to death.

5. And he caſt down the pieces of ſilver in the temple, and * departed and went and a hanged himſelf.

* departing was ſtrangled, or fell into a fit of ſuffocation.

5. And when they would not receive the money, he would not carry it back again, but threw it down as a deteſtable thing, that he was reſolved to rid his hands of, and leaving it in the temple, departed to his home, and was there ſo affected with ſorrow, and horror, and deſpair, that in a fit of melancholy, or ſuffocation, he ſuddenly fell down upon his face, and burſt, and dyed, Acts 1. 18. a.

6. And the chief Prieſts took the ſilver pieces, and ſaid, It is not lawful to put them into the treaſury, becauſe it is the b price of blood.]

6. And they of the Sanhedrim, v.3. ſeeing the money thus left in the temple, had ſome thoughts of putting it into the treaſury of the Temple, but conſidering that it was money given for the delivering one up to death, they conceived it not holy enough to be put in there. b.

7. And they took counſel, and bought with him the potters field to bury c ſtrangers in.]

7. And upon conſultation they decreed and reſolved in counſel, that the money (which they in this hurry did not neglect the diſpoſing of) ſhould be laid out for a pious uſe, to buy a piece of ground, which had been the Potters, for ſtrangers to bury their dead in. c.

8. Wherefore that field was] called, The field of blood, until this day.

8. This field was by the people, for all the hypocriſy of the Sanhedrim.

9. (Then was fulfilled that which was ſpoken [by Jeremy the Prophet, ſaying, And * they took the thirty pieces of ſilver, the price of him that was valued, whom they of they children of Iſrael did value.

* I took, ἔλαβον.

9. Firſt by Jeremiah in ſome prophecy of his not now remaining, but by tradition famed to be delivered by him, and from thoſe which heard it, from Jeremy, received, and after repeated by Zachary, c. 11. 12. (as many other things of Jeremiah's are, which makes the Jews ſay that the ſpirit of Jeremy reſted on Zachary) which is the reaſon, that 'tis here cited as Jeremies, and not as Zacharies. (See note on Heb. 8. a.)

10. And gave them for the Potters field, as the Lord appointed me.)

11. And Jeſus ſtood before the governour, and the governour asked him, ſaying, Art thou the king of the Jews? And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Thou ſayeſt.]

11. And Jeſus was brought to the bar and examined, whether he were the Meſſias ſo long expected by that people, and he anſwered, Yes, I am.

12. And when he was accuſed of the chief Prieſts and Elders, he anſwered nothing.]

12. And to all the accuſations ſent in againſt him by the Sanhedrim, whether by a written Bill of theirs, or by ſome Attorney inſtructed by them (themſelves coming not in, John 18.28.) he made no kind of reply.

13. Then ſaith Pilate unto him, [Heareſt thou not how many things they witneſs againſt thee?]

13. Doſt thou not think fit to make apology for thy ſelf, hearing what charges are ſent in by the Sanhedrim, and thoſe ſufficiently teſtified againſt thee?

14. And he anſwered him to never a word, inſomuch that the governour marvelled greatly.]

14. All this would not move Chriſt to make any apology or plea for himſelf, at which Pilate extreamly wondred.

15. Now at that feaſt the governour was d wont to releaſe unto the people a priſoner, whom they would.]

15. Now this being the time of the yearly paſſover, a ſolemn feaſt of the Jews, 'twas cuſtomary with the Procurator to gratify the Jews, by pardoning ſome priſoner of that nation, and that it might be the greater obligation to them, to give them liberty to chooſe whom they pleaſed, by votes of the people. d.

16. And they had then a notable priſoner called Barabbas.

17. Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate ſaid unto them, Whom will ye that I releaſe unto you? Barabbas or Jeſus [which is called Chriſt?]

17. Which by many is taken to be the Meſſias.

18. For

18. That which moved him to make this propoſal, was, becauſe he knew, 'twas matter of malice in ſome great perſons among them, (wherein the multitude of the people were not concerned) that Chriſt was thus perſecuted, and ſo that the multitude might probably be pleaſed to have him releaſed.

18. For he knew that for envy they had delivered him.

19. And this he would have been very glad of, becauſe when he was on the bench, his wife ſent him a meſſage, how ſhe had been much troubled in a dream, and by thoſe terrors incited to ſtop him from giving ſentence of death againſt Jeſus.

19. When he was ſet down on the judgment ſeat, his wife ſent unto him, ſaying, Have thou nothing to do with that juſt man, for I have ſuffered many things this day in a dream becauſe of him.]

20. But they of the Sanhedrim prevailed with the multitude, that they ſhould make choice of Barabbas, and by cry and clamour require Jeſus to be put to death.

20. But the chief prieſts and elders perſwaded the multitude, that they ſhould ask Barabbas, and deſtroy Jeſus.]

21. Do you chooſe to have releaſed, or pardoned, according to that cuſtom, v. 15.

21. Then the Governour anſwered and ſaid unto them, Whether of the twain [will ye that I releaſe unto you?] they ſaid, Barabbas.

22. The whole multitude inſtigated by the Sanhedrim, cried out, v. 23.

22. Pilate ſaid unto them, What ſhall I do then with Jeſus, which is called Chriſt? [They all ſaid unto him] Let him be crucified.

23. But the more Pilate ſeemed to believe him guiltleſs, the more violent were they in their clamours that he ſhould be put to death.

23. And the Governour ſaid, Why, what evil hath he done? [But they cried out the more, ſaying, Let him be crucified.]

24. When Pilate diſcerned this, that his expreſſing his opinion of Chriſts innocence did not at all allay the peoples violence, but that contrariwiſe it made them ready to mutiny, put them into a rage and diſtemper, he ſolemnly called for water, and in the preſence of them all waſht his hands, deſirous thereby to free himſelf of all guilt in doing any thing in this matter, and ſaid, I will be guiltleſs, it ſhall (or let the whole matter) lye upon you.

24. When Pilate ſaw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and waſhed his hands before the multitude, ſaying, I am innocent of the blood of this juſt perſon: ſee ye to it.]

25. And the whole people cried out, let it be ſo, whatever guilt there is in putting him to death, let it lye upon us and our poſterity.

25. Then anſwered all the people and ſaid, His blood be on us, and on our children.]

26. Though he had intended to inflict no other puniſhment on Chriſt, but that of ſcourging, Luke 23. 16, 22. (and therefore it appears, John 19. 1. that Pilate ſcourged him long before he ſentenced him to crucifixion, v. 16. nay after the ſcourging he was very induſtrious to have ſaved his life, v. 4. 8. 12. and Mat. 23. 24. ſcourging is the puniſhment of ſome that were not killed) yet upon this importunity of the people, which he did not think fit to reſiſt, to that of ſcourging he ſuper-added the ſentence of death, crucifixion alſo, which was wont to have ſcourging preparative to it; ſee note on Luke 23. b.

26. Then releaſed he Barabbas unto them, and [when he had ſcourged Jeſus, he delivered him to be crucified.]

27. The whole band that guarded the Temple, came, and ſurrounded him, as a guard to a malefactor.

27. Then the ſoldiers of the governour took Jeſus into the common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of Soldiers.]

28. Robe of ſtate, ſuch as perſons of honour wear in publick aſſemblies.

28. And they ſtripped him, and put on him a ſcarlet [robe.]

29. And to make him ſomewhat which might look like a crown, they took thorns, and platted them into that form, and put it on his head, and inſtead of a ſcepter in his hand, they gave him a reed, and made him hold it in his right hand in a kind of ſtate.

29. And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand;] and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, ſaying, Hail king of the Jews.

30, 31. And having thus dealt with him as a Mock-king, and derided him long enough that way, they then took the reed out of his hand, and ſpit upon him, and ſmote him on the head, and took off the robe of ſtate, and put his own cloaths on him again, by this ceremony ſignifying the dethroning him from his pretended kingdom, and then carried him to the place of crucifixion.

30. And they ſpit upon him, and took the reed, and ſmote him on the head.
31. And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him.]

32. They lighted on Simon of Cyrene, whether as a favourer of Chriſt, or as one which caſually paſt by at that time (ſee Mark 15. 21.) and him (either without conſideration who it was, or elſe particularly as a favourer of Chriſt, and ſo by the Jews inſtigation) they preſt, as uſually they did men, to bear burthens (ſee note on c. 5. f.) forcing him to carry the croſs after him, Luke 23. 26. to the place of crucifying.

e. 32. And as they came out, [they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name, him they compelled to e bear his croſs.]

34. They gave him vinegar to drink mingled with [f gall,] and when he had taſted thereof he would not drink.

35. And they that faſtned him to the Croſs, the executioners, ſtripped him, and then divided his garments, all but the inner garment, into four parts, and took every man one, but the inner having no ſeam in it, they rent not aſunder, but caſt lots for it.

35. * And they crucified him, and parted his garments, caſting lots,] that it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the prophets, They patted my garments among them, and upon my veſture they did caſt lots.

45. Now from the ſixth hour there was darkneſs over all the land, until the ninth hour.]

45. Now from twelve of the clock till three there was an eliſe or obſcuration of the Sun, and conſequently darkneſs over all Palæſtine, and far beyond over other parts.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XXVII.

a. Ἀπήγξατο. V. V. Hanged himſelf]. What is here meant by ἀπήγξατο, or how 'tis reconcileable with what is related of Judas, Acts 1. 18. hath been a matter of ſome doubt and difficulty. That he hanged himſelf, is affirmed by many of the Ancients, Origen, and S. Chryſoſtom, and his followers, and Juvencus, and Leo, but eſpecially by the Epiſtle that bears the name of Ignatius to the Philippians, but ſure was not written by him. And ſome reverence is due to theſe Authorities; Otherwiſe that which the words moſt eaſily and promptly bear, and which they might poſſibly mean by thoſe words, which we interpret to hanging, is this, that he fell into a violent ſuffocating fit of ſadneſs or melancholy, and grieved ſo exceſſively, as to wiſh himſelf dead, and then ſuddenly fell flat upon his face, (for ſo Heſychius renders πρηνὴς ἐπὶ πρόσωπον πεπτωκώς, only falling on the face, not down any ſteep place) and then burſt, Acts 1. 18. And Phavorinus, Πρηνὴς εἰς τύμπεσθαι, ὁπὶ στόμα ἔχων, ὅπι πρόσωπον, it ſignifies falling forward on the mouth, on the face, and πρηνὴς κεῖσθαι λέγεται ὁ ἐπὶ στόμα κείμενος, ὁ ἢ ἀνάπαλιν ὕπτιος. He is ſaid to lye πρηνὴς who lyeth upon the face, and oppoſite thereto is lying on the back. This ſeems to be * Theophylact's underſtanding of it, who ſpeaking of the exceſſive ſorrow, that the inceſtuous Corinthian, if not timely abſolved, might probably fall into, expreſſeth it by εἰς ἀσχόνλω ἦξη ὡς Ἰούδας, coming to a ſuffocation, as Judas did. And this ſeems to have cauſed Oecumenius on the Acts, having reſolved that he died not by hanging, to fly to ſome fables of Papias, of his being ſwoln, that he could not paſs by a Chariot in the way, &c. In which fable I ſuppoſe there might probably be ſo much truth, that by this fit of extream melancholy; * In 1 Cor. 2.7.

lancholy he was ſo ſwoln, that, as the Text ſaith, he burſt aſunder, and his bowels guſhed out. So in Ælian, where 'tis ſaid of Poliagar, κωμωδούμενον ἀπάγξαι, being reproach'd he was ſuffocated, that is to be interpreted by the words immediately precedent, σκώμματα ὑ μόνον ἐλύπησε πολλάκις, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἀπέκτεινε, ſcoffs have not only grieved men often, but alſo killed them with grief. Thus in * Chryſoſtom τὸ Ζωσιμᾶν ἀπάγξασθαι, is to be ſuffocated through grief (ſtrangled as it were, or) miſerably affected with conſcience. And though it ſignifie not in this ſenſe to die, yet it doth note a violent diſeaſe, ſtifling and ſuffocating for want of vent, and affecting the Patient ſo, as to produce that death, which Judas ſoon came to after this, falling upon his face, and then (as upon a violent ſtopping all natural paſſages, which the violence of deſpair had wrought in him (burſting aſunder, his guts breaking out at his navel, Acts 1.18. That exceeding horrour and grief being the only thing here mention'd, (as that which immediately followed, and came in naturally at that point of the ſtory) the death it ſelf following (it is not certain how long) after, and ſo particularly mention'd by S. Luke in the Acts, on the occaſion of the election of a Succeſſor into his place. Thus the Hebrew חנק that is rendred in the Old Teſtament by ἀπάγξαι, ſignifies to be choaked, or ſuffocated, not only with an halter, but with an exceſſive grief, or trouble on the ſoul, and in the Arabick, among the Phyſicians, it ſignifies an angina, and the ſuffocating of the mother in Avicen; ſo alſo אחנק is that ſuffocation of the body in time of ſleep, which they call incubus, or the night-mare. And for the uſe of it in the Bible, 'twill be obſervable how 'tis uſed Tobit 3. 11. where the woman that had been ſo reproached for killing her ſeven husbands, hearing it, ἐλυπήθη σφόδρα, ὥστε ἀπάγξασθαι, grieved extreamly, ſo as (not to hang her ſelf ſure, for the ſtory ſhews ſhe did not ſo, but ſo as) to fall into a deep melancholy, a ſpice of this diſeaſe of ſuffocation, a conſequent of which was her wiſhing her ſelf dead, as ſhe expreſſes it *v.*13. εἶπον ἀπολῦσαί με ἀπὸ τῆς γῆς, I deſired that thou wouldſt take me away from the earth, and why ſhould I live any longer? v. 15. and εἰ μὴ δοκεῖ σοι ἀποκτεῖναί με, If thou do not think good to kill me, &c. And though one paſſage v. 10. ſeem to incline the other way, as when upon conſideration of the reproach, and ſadneſs that would come upon her father, ſhe repreſſeth her deſign, If I ſhall do this, it ſhall be a reproach, &c. yet this is not of much validity, becauſe this conſideration might be made uſe of to diſpel her melancholy, that grew ſo violently upon her, and to divert her to a more profitable courſe, commending of her ſtate to God in prayer, as ſhe did *v.*11. and this as fitly and as properly as from the intention of hanging her ſelf. Add to this, that ſhe was ſo pious a perſon, and prays ſo heartily, *v.*11,12. (and in that prayer confeſſes no ſuch guilt, but only, I have deſired thee to releaſe me from the earth, and in her prayer continues of that mind, why ſhould I live any longer?) cannot reaſonably without evidence be accuſed of ſo foul intentions of hanging or murthering of her ſelf. A parallel place and condition is that of Job 7.15. my ſoul chooſeth ſtrangling, there the Hebrew מחנק is by Aquila rendred ἀγχόνη, but by the Septuagint 'tis expreſs'd by ἁπαλλάξεις ἀπὸ πνεύματός μου ψυχῆ μου, a kind of ſuffocating and (depriving of breath) ſtrangling of the ſoul. The ſame word is by the Prophet Nahum uſed of the Lion killing his prey, מחנק Nah. 2. 12. and is rendred ἐπιπνίγειν ſuffocation. The Syriack and Arabick uſe it *Mat.*13.7. of the thorns choaking the corn, וחנקוה, καὶ συνέπνιξεν, and ſo Luke 8. and 2 *Cor.*4.8. נתחנק ſuffocated, inſtead of στενοχωρούμενοι, brought to thoſe great ſtreights or anguſtiæ, and ſo in the Syriack, Mark 5.13. ואתחנקו and they were ſuffocated (not hang'd, but drowned) in the water. And in this place the Syriack reads of Judas, that going away, חנק נפשו ſuffocavit animam ſuam, he ſuffocated his ſoul, which ſurely may be taken in that larger ſenſe of the word, and not neceſſarily in the ſtricter, for that of hanging himſelf, when the ſacred ſtory in another place mentions another death for him 'Tis true, that very phraſe which is here, is uſed of Achitophel, 2 Sam. 17. 23. who, as 'tis generally reſolv'd, hanged himſelf; but perhaps it might be probable enough that this ſtate aſſigned to Judas at this time, viz. a ſuffocation, and with a wiſhing to die, and a huge melancholy growing into a mortal diſeaſe, might be applied to Achitophel alſo, and the rather, becauſe 'tis added, after ἀπήγξατο he was ſuffocated, καὶ ἀπέθανε and he died, which may argue, that his death ſucceeded or followed the ἀπήγξατο, not that that it ſelf was the particular notation of the kind of his death. But however there will not be altogether the ſame reaſons of applying this obſervation to Achitophel, as to Judas, becauſe Achitophel's death is not in any other place deſcribed to be another kind of death, as Judas's is, viz. falling down flat on his face, and then burſting and letting out his bowels, which kind of death is that which men oppreſs'd with this diſeaſe of grief do moſt frequently fall under.

V. 6. Price of blood] 'Twas a cuſtom among the Jews, imitated by the firſt Chriſtians, that it ſhould not be lawful for Executioners to offer any thing, or for any Alms to be received from them (the ſame alſo of money, that came out of the Publicans, or Quæſtors Exchequer) ſo ſaith Clement in Conſtit. τῶν δημίων ἡ δεκτὴ εἰς χαριτοφορίαν, that the offerings of Executioners are not acceptable, or fit to be received, and ſo by analogy any money by which a life is bought, might not be put into the Treaſury, it was the price of blood, and the field bought with it call'd the field of blood. b. Τιμὴ αἵματος.

V. 7. Strangers] The ſtrangers here may be either 1. Men of other Nations, and then the thing from hence obſervable is, that they would not have commerce with them, even when they were dead, and therefore provided a ſeparate place for them. Or 2ly, (which is more likely) the Jews, which coming from far to Jeruſalem to ſacrifice, &c. died there, before their return, and ſo the Prieſts took this care to provide a burying place for them: Theſe perhaps are the οἱ ἐπιδημοῦντες Ῥωμαῖοι, Acts 2. 10. thoſe Jews that travelled from Rome thither. c. Ξένοι.

V. 15. Want to releaſe] This cuſtom was no cuſtom of the Jews while the power was in their hands, but ad faciendum populum, a piece of popularity, a grace or favour of the Procurator, brought in by Pilate, v. 15. And thus the ſucceeding Emperours, Valentinian, Theodoſius, Arcadius, by a general Law commanded the Judges, that on the firſt day of the Paſſover all the priſoners of the Jews, but thoſe which were committed for ſome certain Faults, ſhould be releaſed. Of the ſame nature is the peoples demanding him to be put to death, giving their ſuffrages, v.22. and Luke 23.23. Joh. 9.17. which is mentioned alſo by S. Paul, Acts 26. 10. and was a Roman cuſtom, Nè poſſent Conſules injuſſu populi in caput civis animadvertere, ſaith Pomponius. See Rewardus ad leg. 12. Tab. c. 24. And it ſeemeth, it was put into the twelve tables, De capite civis niſi per maximum comitatum nè ferunto, as Tully cites it, De leg. l. 3. All to this purpoſe, that the people had their voice in putting any freeman to death. d. Ἀπολύειν τινα δέσμιον τῷ ἔθνει.

V. 32. Bear his croſs] It was the cuſtom in that puniſhment of crucifixion, that he that was to be executed, ſhould himſelf carry the Croſs. So Plutarch de ſera Numin. vind. ἔτι δὲ τῶν κακούργων ἐνίοις τὸν αὐτὸν σταυρὸν. Hence came the name of Furcifer, grown proverbial ſince. So Artemidorus, Oneir. l. 2. c. 61. ὁ μέλλων σταυρῷ προσηλῶθαι, πρότερον αὐτὸν βαστάζει. So Nonius out of Plautus, Patibulum ferat per urbem, deinde affigatur cruci: let him carry it through the City, and then be faſtned to it. This it ſeems by John 19. 17. Chriſt carried himſelf, but it being ſo great a burthen (and perhaps not well ſupportable by all that were to ſuffer) they uſed ἀγγαρεύειν to preſs ſome body elſe, as a porter, or burthen-bearer, to carry it after, or near the perſon that was to ſuffer, that ſo he might have the ſolemn diſgrace, though not pain of it. e. Αἴρειν σταυρὸν. Ἀγγαρεύειν.

V. 34. Gall] χολὴ here ſignifies all kind of bitter poiſonous ſpices or mixtures, which S. Mark in ſetting down this ſtory, determines to be Myrrhe. The Hebrew ראש ſignifies two things, gall, and a moſt poiſonous herb, f. Χολή.

herb, and the Greek χολὴ signifying one of these, gall, is put (*Deut.*29.18.and 32.32.) for the other, the poisonous herb, ῥίζα φύουσα ἐν χολῇ, where the Hebrew is best rendred, a root sprouting out with that most poisonous herb, and so the word χολὴ, joyn'd with πικείας, is used by S. Peter of Simon Magus, (see note on Acts 8.d.) though Metaphorical. So again the Hebrew חמה signifies both anger and poison; and so from these usages in the Hebrew Language, it comes to pass very consequently, that the word χολὴ in Greek being (as it denotes choler or anger) all one with θυμὸς wrath, both these words χολὴ and θυμὸς are used promiscuously, and both in the Old Testament taken generally for poison, which being mix'd with wine, stupified and astonish'd the person that drank it, and was ordinarily given to them that were put to death. So in the last of the Proverbs, Give strong drink to them that are ready to die; Where the Hebrew Sichar, softned by the Greek into Σικέρα, signifies, saith S. Basil, πᾶν τὸ δυνάμενον μέθην ἐμποιῆσαι all that can cause drunkenness. So *Psal.*60.3. οἴνου κατανύξεως the wine of stupidity is by the Chaldee rendred the wine of malediction, such as is given to them that are to be executed, of which saith Rabbi Shelomo, that it obnubilates the heart, and strikes the brain, that is, disturbs and takes away the senses. And accordingly S. Paul useth πνεῦμα κατανύξεως, Rom. 11. for the spirit of stupidity, or slumber, having eyes and not seeing, &c. Thus οἶνος θυμῦ Apoc. 14. 10. is not the wine of God's wrath, but the wine mix'd with all these stupifying spices, that is, the stupifying and astonishing judgments of God. And the same is express'd in the Psalmist, *Psal.*75.9. by the phrase of οἴνου ἀκράτου πλήρης κεράσματος, wine pure (unmix'd from water, or any softning allaying mixture) and full of all these poisonous stupifying ingredients, and so, in like manner, by the οἶνος ἀκράτου κεκερασμένου in that place of *Rev.*14.10. the unmix'd wine, mix'd, which is there the periphrasis of οἶνος θυμῦ, or the οἶνος ἐσμυρνισμένος in S. Mark, the wine with myrrh in it. This, it seems, being useful to open the pores, and hasten death, Christ refused to take, meaning to make good his own words of Ego pono, I lay down my life, not for his will only, but the act also, and so though he gave way to natural things to work, yet he reserved all to his own power, and so when he had done all that he would, he saith, It is finish'd, Joh. 19. 30. and bowed the head, and gave up the ghost. And this was it, that the Centurion considering, was amazed at, Mark 15.39.

Πνεῦμα κατανύξεως.

Οἶνος θυμῦ.

Οἶνος ἀκράτου κεκερασμένος.

Οἶνος ἐσμυρνισμένος.

g. Θέλω.

V. 43. Will] The word θέλω is used by the Greek Translators of the Old Testament, and Writers of the New, sometimes in a notion which seldom belongs to it in other Authors, as when 1 Sam. 18. 22. θέλει ἐν σοὶ ὁ βασιλεύς, the king delighteth, or taketh pleasure in thee. So 2 Sam. 15. 26. and very frequently in other places, upon this ground, that the Hebrew חפץ which signifies to will, signifies also to delight in, and so is rendred εὐδοκέω, as well as θέλω, and when θέλω, it is taken in the same sense as if it were εὐδοκέω. And so 'tis here; for *Psal.*22.8. (from whence these words are taken, and from the Translators there θέλει retained for חפץ) we ordinarily render it, let him deliver him if he delighteth in him. In like manner as Tob. 13. 6. Τίς γινώσκει, εἰ θελήσει ὑμᾶς, who knows if he will accept, or be pleased with you? Thus in a fragment of Perictione the Pythagorean in * Stobeus, Ἐθελήσῃ ἀνδρὶ, She shall be kind to her husband. Thus, Col. 2. 18. θέλων ἐν ταπεινοφροσύνῃ καὶ θρη-

* p.481.

σκείᾳ τῶν ἀγγέλων is one that delighteth, or pleaseth himself in that kind of humility, and worship of Angels, that acquiesces in it. And so 1 Cor. 7. 36. θέλει signifies that which he hath a mind to.

h. Λῃσταὶ.

V. 44. Thieves] That which is here affirm'd of the robbers in the Plural Number seems to be understood in the Singular, only of one of them, Luke 23.39. the other praying unto him and believing on him: Several examples of the like forms of speech seem to be in this book, ch. 26. 8. when his disciples saw it they had indignation, whereas only Judas was displeased at it, saith S. John c.12.4. So c.21. Loose them (the ass and the foal) is Mark 11. 2. a colt tied, loose him. And this by an ordinary figure (which the Grecians call κοινότης or σύλληψις) frequently used in all languages. So when John 13. 28. 'tis said, that none of those that lay at meat with Christ knew to what purpose he spake to Judas, What thou dost, do quickly; 'tis not to be concluded, that John (who v. 25. asked, and was told v. 26. who 'twas that should betray him) was included in that number, of those that knew not. So Heb. 11. 37. ἐπρίσθησαν they were sawn asunder in the Plural, which yet is not found to belong to any, but to Isaias only. But it is also possible, that both these thieves might at first blaspheme and reproach him, and afterwards one of them confess him, and pray to him. Thus Prosper understands it, cont. Collat. c. 12. Cum aliquandiu blasphemasset in Iesum Christum, repentè est mutatus, &c. when for some time he had railed on Jesus, he was suddenly changed. And so Titus Bostrensis, p.833.B. ἐν ἀρχῇ μὲν οἱ δύο λῃσταὶ παῤῥησία τοῖς Ἰουδαίοις ἐφθέγγοντο ἴσως τινα παρ' αὐτῶν βοήθειαν ἐν τεύξειν προσδοκῶντες εἰς ἄφεσιν. At first the two thieves spake as the Jews did, perhaps by that means expecting some help from them toward getting their pardon, but that expectation being frustrated, and hearing him pray for his crucifiers, Luke 23. 34. one was thereby wrought on, v. 40. And if so, then the words here will refer to the former time, and in S. Luke to the latter.

Πῶλος δὲ. μᾶλλον.

i. Ἐσείσθη ἡ γῆ

V. 51. Earth did quake] This is conceived by some to be the Earthquake that Macrobius mentions as the greatest, saith he, which in the memory of mortal man was ever known, in the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, twelve Cities of Asia being destroyed by it, see Marcil. Ficinus de rel. p. 78. The same is mention'd by *Pliny Nat. Hist.*l.2.c.48. But it doth not by the Text here appear that this earthquake belong'd to any thing, but the Temple of Jerusalem, the parts which are mention'd, the veil, and the ground, and the stones of the building, and the tombs, &c. And it's not improbable that this prodigy was shewed particularly on this place, to foretell the destruction of the Temple and Service, upon their crucifying of Christ. So ch. 28.2. where there is mention'd μέγας σεισμὸς, a great shaking, it is not to be imagined that this was a shaking of the whole earth, but at the most of that part, where the grave was. Nay there being no mention of the earth in that place, it is not improbable that Σεισμὸς should there signifie that concussion of the air joyn'd with thunder, &c. with which Angels are wont to descend, when they appear, for so it immediately follows there, For the Angel of the Lord descended, &c.

k. Ἀρειμαθία.

V. 57. Arimathea] Arimathea is the place where Samuel was born and brought up, called by the Hebrews Ramathaim Sophim, in Greek Ἀρμαθαΐμ.

2. And when they came they found there had been a great concussion, probably of the air, a kind of thunder, with which the Angels are wont to appear, but withal about the earth, at the removal of the grave-stone.

6. He is not here in the grave, but according to his own predictions riſen from the dead, and all that ye can here diſcern is the place where he lay, and the napkins, and ſear-clothes folded up and laid by, John 20.5.

7. And go quickly and tell his diſciples that he is riſen from the dead, And behold he goeth before you into Galilee, there ſhall ye ſee him, Lo, I have told you.]

7. Go quickly and according to what I have told you, do ye tell the Diſciples, viz. that he hath perform'd his promiſe in riſing from the dead, and now will perform that other of going into Galilee, ch. 26.32. the appointed place of meeting, thither if ye go, ye ſhall be ſure to meet him, God hath ſent his Angel from heaven to tell you this.

8. And they departed quickly from the ſepulchre with fear and great joy, and did run to bring his diſciples word.]

8. And being affrighted with the appearance of the Angels, but extreamly joyed with the news of Chriſt's reſurrection, they made all haſte to carry his Diſciples word of this.

9. And as they went to tell his diſciples, behold Jeſus met them, ſaying, All hail, and they [came and held him by the feet] and worſhipt him.

9. Fell down, and caught him by the feet.

11. Now when they were going, behold ſome of the watch came into the city, and ſhewed unto the chief prieſts all the things that were done.

15. So they took the money, and did as they were taught. And this ſaying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

16. Then the eleven diſciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain [where Jeſus had appointed them.]

16. Which Jeſus before his paſſion had aſſign'd as a ſpecial randezvous, ch. 26. 32. By this means there were many there beſides the eleven, perhaps the 500 brethren mention'd 1 Cor. 15.7.

Annotations on St. Matthew, Chap. XXVIII.

a. Ὀψὲ Σαββάτων

V. 1. End] If ὀψὲ ſignifie a diſtinct part of time, and that ſtrictly the evening, then it muſt note that evening, as the firſt part of the firſt day of the week, at which time theſe women began their journey, bought their ſpices, went out of their City, ſtaid all night in the ſuburbs, and very early ὄρθρου βαθέος, Luke 24. 1. and σκοτίας ἔτι ὄσης, while it was yet dark, John 20.1. came to the ſepulchre, and ſo that will reconcile and connect the ὀψὲ Σαββάτων to the ἐπιφωσκούσῃ, &c. But ὀψὲ may be alſo taken in a wider ſenſe, ſee Note on ch. 14.d.

b. Ἔθνη

V. 19. All Nations] What is meant ſometimes by the word ἔθνη nations had been ſaid, (ſee Note on ch. 24. e.) to wit, the Tribes and Families of the Jews, the Regions and Cities of Paleſtine, and though it do not ſo here, excluſively to the other Nations of the World, yet neither doth it ſignifie the Nations of the heathen world, in oppoſition or excluſively to the Jews, as elſewhere it frequently doth; but primarily and in the firſt place, the ſeveral parts of Judea, and the Jews, whereſoever they are in their diſperſions abroad, and then ſecondarily the Gentiles mingled with the Jews, and finally the whole gentile world, when, upon the Jews rejecting the Goſpel, the Apoſtles depart from them, and go to the Gentiles. That this is the meaning of the place, I ſhall uſe two arguments to make moſt probable. Firſt, becauſe in other places, when the Commiſſion of preaching and gathering diſciples is given to the Apoſtles, 'tis with a command to go firſt to the Jews, and not at all to the Gentiles. So in their firſt Commiſſion, out of which the very Samaritans were excluded, Mat. 10.5. Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any City of the Samaritans enter ye not, but go rather to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael. And in their ſecond Commiſſion Acts 1. 8. although the Samaritans are taken in, and the utmoſt parts of the earth, yet ch. 3. & 13.46. 'tis ſtill πρῶτον ὑμῖν, firſt to the Jews, that they muſt preach. And accordingly we find that the Apoſtles, till the Jews reject them, and are ready to ſtone them, do not leave them off to go to the Gentiles. But then Acts 13.49. they foretel them, what they are to do, Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and ſaid, It was neceſſary that the word of God ſhould firſt have been ſpoken to you (which refers, I ſuppoſe to the precept of Chriſt, that made it neceſſary) but ſeeing ye have put it from you, &c. lo we turn to the Gentiles. And when *v.*47. they urge the Lords commandment for ſo doing, it is not this parting precept of Chriſt, but one out of the prophet Iſaiah, c. 49. 6. I have ſet thee to be a light to the Gentiles, &c. And the ſame I conceive before intimated, *v.*40,41. Beware leſt that come upon you (Jews) which is ſpoken of in the prophet, Behold ye deſpiſers, and wonder and periſh, for I work a work which you ſhall in no wiſe believe, &c. that is, upon the Jews deſpiſing and holding out obſtinately againſt the preaching of the Goſpel, v. 45. 'twas propheſied that they ſhould be deſtroyed, and about the ſame time the Goſpel ſhould be removed, and preach'd to the heathen world. An incredible thing which ſhould amaze the Jews, and be matter of great wonderment to them, (and ſo it is ſaid of them upon the like occaſion of the Chriſtian Jews, that they were aſtonied, c. 10.45.) What was thus foretold at Antioch by S. Paul is again repeated c. 18. 6. to the Jews at Corinth, where upon their reſiſting and blaſpheming, he ſhakes his garment (an emblem of their approaching ruin, like the ſhaking off the duſt from their feet;) and tells them, From henceforth I will go to the Gentiles, and preſently enters into the houſe of Juſtus a proſelyte, v.7. This is after moſt fully done to the the Jews at Rome, at the concluſion of the Acts c. 28. 28. Be it known therefore unto you, that the ſalvation of God is ſent to the Gentiles, but that again upon the obduration of the Jews, *v.*26,27. All this makes it appear that after Chriſt's death the Goſpel was by the Apoſtles to be firſt preached to the Jews, to convince them of their ſin of crucifying Chriſt (enlarged alſo to the Samaritans by Chriſt's command, Acts 1.8. who were, in their worſhipping at mount Gerizzim, ſchiſmaticks, and ſo ſeparated from the Jews, but otherwiſe were Jews in religion) and that was a doing, till about the time that that fatal deſtruction fell upon that nation, *ch.*10.23. But this not excluſively, but incluſively alſo to the preaching to all the nations and people of the world, as the phraſe is taken in the greateſt latitude (when the Jews ſhould firſt have expreſſed their obſtinacy ſufficiently.) For ſo the words, as they are repeated in St. Mark muſt neceſſarily ſignify, Go into all the world, and preach the Goſpel to every creature, to thoſe of the Synagogue firſt, and then to others alſo. Thus S. Luke hath ſet it down moſt diſtinctly, *ch.*24. 47. that repentance and remiſſion of ſins ſhould be preached to all nations, beginning at Jeruſalem, where Judea, in which Jeruſalem is, is one of the all nations, and they are to begin at Jeruſalem, and from thence firſt preach thro' all other parts of Judea, (and even in the heathen cities) firſt of the native and proſelyte Jews in their ſynagoues, and proſeuchæ, (before they went to the Gentiles) and ſo generally they continue to do, till the time of the deſtruction of that people. The ſecond argument for this rendring of the word ἔθνη, ſo as that it may primarily point to the Jews, is that of St. Paul, *Gal.*2. viz. that St. Peter was intruſted with the Goſpel of the circumciſion, that is, to preach the Goſpel particularly to the Jews, and ſo again it there appeareth of James and John, that they betook themſelves to the circumciſion, that is, to the Jews, *v.*9. And 'tis obſervable how far St. Peter was from underſtanding this precept in this place to oblige him at that time (not long after Chriſt's aſcenſion) to preach to the Gentiles, for in the buſineſs of Cornelius, Acts 10. 'tis clear, that he did not yet think it lawful for him to preach to that one Gentile, and for the commiſſion of Chriſt he repeats it thus, παρήγγειλεν ἡμῖν κηρύξαι τῷ λαῷ, *v.*42. he commanded us to preach to the people, that is, to the people of the Jews (as the rulers of the people, and rulers of Iſrael are all one, and as that nation is called ὁ λαὸς the people, and as πᾶς ὁ λαὸς, Acts 10.41. ſignifies all the Jews) and 'tis manifeſt that before he would venture to preach Chriſt to that one heathen, God ſaw it neceſſary to ſend him a viſion, and by that inſtructed him, that the Gentiles were not to be look'd on by him any longer as prophane (or not to be converſed with) but might be preach'd to as well as the Jews. And this God confirm'd by ſending down the Holy Ghoſt on theſe firſt fruits of the Gentiles, Cornelius and his company (as he had done on the Apoſtles the firſt fruits of the Jews) to teſtify this his pleaſure from heaven immediately. And accordingly, *v.*45. the believing Jews were aſtoniſhed when they heard of this, and *ch.*11.1. 'tis ſaid that the Apoſtles, &c. in Judea heard of this, and *v.*2. they call Peter in queſtion about it, and he is fain to give them an account of his viſion, and the deſcent of the holy Ghoſt upon them, as a teſtimony that ſo 'twas to be *v.*16. and by that they are convinced, *v.*18. and not till then.

V.20. End of the world] It hath formerly been ſaid (note on *Mat.*24. c.) that there was a double age famouſly ſpoken of among the Jews, the then preſent age, and the future age, or the ſtate of things under the Meſſias; from that time to the end of the world. According to this, the deſtruction of that ſtate, or end of the firſt age is taken notice of, as a famous period; and is ſet down in that very ſtile, Συντέλεια αἰῶνος, the conſummation, or concluſion of the age, Mat. 24.3. and *Mat.*13.40. where 'tis more diſtinctly, αἰῶνος τούτου, of this age, and ſo again, *Heb.*9.26. Συντέλεια τῶν αἰώνων, the concluſion of the ages, in the Plural, thoſe laſt times, Heb. 1.2. wherein Chriſt came into the world. But then other places there are, where it may be taken in another ſenſe, as *Mat.*13.43. where it may well ſignify the end of this other age, the concluſion of the world, and ſo here Chriſt's promiſe of his being with the Apoſtles unto the end of the world. For it is to be obſerved, that this age being the Chriſtian ſtate or kingdom of Chriſt, that doth moſt diſtinctly begin at his reſurrection, all power being then given to him, *v.*18. and this being the laſt age (no other ſtate to ſucceed this) it follows neceſſarily, that this age then beginning, ſhall not conclude till the end of the world, and conſequently Chriſt's promiſe hath no other period to determine it, but inſtates a power on the Apoſtles, and their ſucceſſors by this miſſion, and aſſiſting and backing them in the execution of their office, πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας, all the days, the whole term of this new age.

The Goſpel according to St. Mark.

CHAP. I.

Paraphraſe.

1. THE beginning of the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt the ſon of God.
2. As it is written in the prophets; Behold, I ſend my meſſenger before thy face, which ſhall prepare thy way before thee.
3. The voice of one crying in the wilderneſs; Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths ſtreight.]

1, 2, 3. The firſt thing conſiderable in the ſtory of Chriſt the Meſſias and eternal ſon of God, and in the preaching of the Goſpel which he brought with him into the world, was the preaching of John the Baptiſt, as of an Herald ſent before him, and ſo foretold of by the old prophets, under the ſtyle of the voice of a preacher in the deſert, that is, the proclamation of an eminent perſon that ſhould go into the wilderneſs, and cry, and give warning to the Jews, that by repentance and amendment of life they ſhould prepare themſelves for the coming of God, a terrible coming to viſit and puniſh the impenitents.

4 John did baptize in the wilderneſs, and preach the baptiſm of repentance for the remiſſion of ſins.]

4. According to this prediction of the prophets, John, went into the deſart part of Judea, and there proclaimed to all the Jews, the neceſſity of their inſtant change of life, promiſing them thereupon (and on no other terms) forgiveneſs of ſins, and all that came to him, and thus reformed upon his preaching, he took and waſh'd them in the River, after the manner of proſelytes among the Jews (ſee Mat. 23. note d. and John 3, a.) to ſignify to them the purification of their wicked lives, to which they were obliged, and on performance of which (and not otherwiſe) God would receive them into his favour, and look on them as his people. And this baptiſm, and this repentance, and the benefit of it, remiſſion of ſins, he proclaimed to all, every where as he went

5. And there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and they of Jeruſalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confeſſing their ſins.]

5. And the generality of people in all the country, and in the city of Jeruſalem, obeyed his preaching ſo far, as to go and receive Baptiſm from him (which was done in Jordan a river convenient convenient for that purpoſe, the ſame wherein Naamans leproſy had been cleanſed long ago by waſhing in it) and to confeſs the ſins that they had ſeverally been guilty of, and deſiring directions from him for new life, Luke 3.10.

6. See note on Mat.3.8.

6. And John was cloathed with camels hair, and with a girdle of a skin about his loyns, and he did eat [locuſts and wild honey.]

7. I am the fore-runner of one who is of infinitely more authority then I, whoſe diſciple I am not worthy to be, or, as ſuch, to be employed by him in the meaneſt office, ſuch as the taking off his ſhoes, ſee note on Mat. 3. h.

7. And preached, ſaying, [There cometh one mightier then I after me, the latchet of whoſe ſhoes I am not worthy to ſtoop down and unlooſe.]

8. I am not worthy to be conſidered by you in compariſon with him, all that I do is to receive you as proſelytes, (after the Jewiſh manner) as many as now come in, and repent, and make faithful promiſe of amendment, and new life; and ſo water is the only ſignal which I uſe. But he, when he comes, ſhall ſend down the holy Ghoſt from heaven in a viſible manner upon his diſciples, and by that great ſignal teſtify to you the truth of his doctrine, &c. ſee Mat.3.11. and note on Acts 1. a.

8. I indeed have baptized you with water, but he ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt.]

9. And it came to paſs in thoſe days, that Jeſus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan.]

10. And inſtantly after his baptiſm, as he came up from the river, he beheld a parting of the heavens, and opening of the clouds, and the ſpirit of God hovering over him as a dove doth, when it deſcends and lights upon any thing. (See note on Mat. 3. k.)

10. And ſtraightway coming out of the water he ſaw the heavens opened, and the Spirit * like a dove deſcending upon him.] *as it were ὡσεὶ.

11. And there came a voice from heaven through the clouds directed to Chriſt, in theſe words, Thou art, &c. ſee Mat.3.17.

11. And there came a voice from heaven, ſaying, Thou art my beloved ſon in whom I am well pleaſed.]

12. And immediately the ſpirit a †driveth him into the wilderneſs. †expoſeth him, or leadeth him,

13. And having faſted in the deſert forty days, Satan then ſet upon him to tempt him, Mat. 4. 2,3. And after he had done tempting him, he left him in the wilderneſs among none but wild beaſts, and there the Angels came, and brought him food, Mat. 4. 11.

13. And he was there in the wilderneſs forty days tempted of Satan, and was with the wild beaſts, and the angels miniſtred unto him.]

14. Soon after this, Herod having for ſome time received inſtructions from John, c. 6. 20. and at laſt being reproved by him about a woman, with whom he lived inceſtuouſly, c.6. 17. impriſoned him. And after this his impriſonment, Mat.14.3. Jeſus went from Nazareth into Galilee (ſee note on Mat. 4. e.) and there began to proclaim the doctrine of his father concerning this approaching reformation and change, that God as a King ſhould now work in the world, eſpecially among the Jews.

14. Now after that John was put in priſon, Jeſus came into Galilee, preaching the Goſpel of the kingdom of God,]

15. And the form of his proclamation was in theſe or the like words, The days of the coming of the Meſſias ſo long expected, and prophecied of, are now come, and Gods remarkable judgments upon the whole nation are approaching (ſee note on Mat. 3.c.) which there is no way to avert from any, but by believing the Goſpel now to be preach'd by Chriſt, and amending of their lives.

15. And ſaying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand, repent ye, and believe the Goſpel.]

16. Waſhing their Net, ſee Note on Luke 5. a.

16. Now as he walked by the ſea of Galilee, he ſaw Simon and Andrew his brother [caſting a net into the ſea] (for they were fiſhers.)

17. And having firſt ſhewed them a great miracle, convinced them of his divine power, he called them to be his diſciples, telling them that he would employ them in an office of greater importance, & ſo enable them for it, that they ſhould be able to win men to righteouſneſs, as now to get fiſhes into their nets.

17. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fiſhers of men.]

18. And upon this command of his immediately they left their employments, and as diſciples, attended conſtantly on him.

18. And ſtraightway they forſook their nets, and followed him.]

19. With their father Zebedee, Mat.4.21. & other labourers here mentioned, v.20. all together in a ſhip.

19. And when he had gone a little farther thence, he ſaw James the ſon of Zebedee and John his brother [*who alſo were in the ſhip] mending their nets. *and thoſe in the ſhip or boat, ἐν αὐτῇ τῷ πλοίῳ.

20. And ſtraightway he called them, and they left their father Zebedee in the ſhip, with the hired ſervants, and went after him.

21. A city of Galilee called Capernaum, Mat.4.13.

21. And they went into [Capernaum] and ſtraightway on the Sabbath-day he entred into the Synagogue and taught.

22. And they wondred extreamly at his way of inſtructing them, Mat. 7. 28. and tell them the traditions of their fathers the Jews, delivered his doctrine with great authority.

22. And they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine, for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the Scribes.]
For his manner of teaching was not like that of the doctors of their law, who only expound the law, but he as one that came with power from heaven to give new rules of life,

23. Poſſeſt with a devil, (Luke 4.33. ſee Mark 3.22, 30.) which caſt him into a fit of Epilepſy.

23. And there was in the Synagogue a man [† with an unclean ſpirit] and he cryed out, †in an unclean ſpirit, ſo c. 5. 2. ſee note on 2 Cor. 12. a.

24. Subdue, quell, undo us, caſt us out of our poſſeſſions.

24. Saying, Let us alone, What have we to do with thee, thou Jeſus of Nazareth? Art thou come [to deſtroy us?] I know thee who thou art, the holy one of God. * the unclean ſpirit having diſquieted him, (troubled him, wrought or boyled within him, ſee c. 9.c.) & having cried αναϰράξαν

25. And Jeſus rebuked him, ſaying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him,

26. And * when the unclean ſpirit had torn him, and cryed with a loud voice, he came out of him.

27. This is more then was ever heard of before, and therefore ſure his doctrine comes from heaven in an extraordinary manner, for it appears that he hath an authority over the devils themſelves, and they are ſubject to him.

27. And they were all amazed, inſomuch that they queſtioned among themſelves ſaying, [What thing is this? † what new doctrine is this? For with authority commandeth he even the unclean ſpirits, and they do obey him.] † what is this new doctrine? that τὶς ἡ διδαχὴ καινὴ αὕτη, ὅτι.

28. Thro' all Galilee a third partition of paleſtine, called the ambient or circumjacent region of the nations, which encompaſſed Judea, ſee note on Mat. 4. e.

28. And immediately his fame ſpread abroad [* throughout all the region round about Galilee.] * into the whole adjacent region of Galilee, ὅλην τὴν περίχωρον τῆς Γαλιλ.

29. And forthwith when they were come out of the Synagogue, they entred into the houſe with Simon and Andrew, with James and John.

30. But Simons wives mother lay ſick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her.

31. Took hold of her hand, and raiſed or lifted her up, and as ſoon as he did ſo, the diſeaſe forthwith left her, and ſhe was ſo well, that immediately ſhe attended and made proviſion for them.

31. And he came and [took her by the hand, and lift her up, and immediately the fever left her, and ſhe miniſtred unto them.]

32. And at even when the ſun did ſet, they brought unto him all that were diſeaſed, and them that were poſſeſſed with devils.

33. And †preſently εὐθέως.

33. And [all the city was] gathered together at the door.

33. Well nigh a'l the inhabitants of that place were

34. And he healed many that were ſick of divers diſeaſes, and caſt out many devils, and ſuffered not the devils to ſpeak, becauſe they knew him.

35. And in the morning riſing up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a ſolitary place, and there prayed.

36. And Simon and [they that were with him followed after him.]

36. The reſt of the diſciples, whom he had called, purſued and ſought after him.

37. And when they had found him, they ſaid unto him, [All men ſeek for thee.]

37. Sir, thou art extremely enquired for, and ſought after by all.

38. And he ſaid unto them, Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there alſo, [for therefore came I forth.]

38. For that was the appointment and employment for which I was ſent by my father.

39. And he preached in their ſynagogues throughout all Galilee, and caſt out devils.

40. And there came a leper to him, beſeeching him, and kneeling down to him, and ſaying unto him, [If thou wilt, thou canſt make me clean.]

40. If it be thy pleaſure to ſhew forth thy power, thou art moſt able to cure me of my leproſy.

41. And Jeſus moved with compaſſion put forth his hand, and touched him, and ſaith unto him, [I will, be thou clean.]

41. It is my pleaſure, be thou cured of thy leproſy.

42. And as ſoon as he had ſpoken, immediately the leproſy departed from him, and he was cleanſed.

43. And [he ſtraig hty charged him, and] forthwith ſent him away.

43. With threats commanding him not to ſpeak of it (See Mat. 8. 4. note b.) he

44. And ſaith unto him, See thou ſay nothing unto any man, but go thy way and [ſhew thy ſelf to the prieſt, and offer for thy cleanſing thoſe things which Moſes commanded for a teſtimony unto them.]

44. See Note on Mat. 8. c. d.

45. But he went out and began to publiſh it much, and to blaze abroad the matter, inſomuch that Jeſus could [no more openly enter into the city, but was without in deſert places, and they came to him from every quarter.]

45. No longer with ſafety come publickly into the city, but was fain to withdraw himſelf into places of ſolitude (ſee note on Mat. 8. b.) and yet even there the people found him out, and in great multitudes came to him from all parts.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. I.

a. Ἐκβάλλει

⌜ V. 12. Driveth] The word ἐκβάλλειν doth not in the New Teſtament, always ſignify according to the literal notation of it, to caſt out, but in a ſofter ſenſe to ſend out, Mat. 9. 25. and v. 38. and c. 12. 20. and 35. ſo c. 13. 52. (and beſides many other in the Goſpel) Jam. 2. 25. And ſo it may do here, and be all one with ἀνάγειν to lead away, which is the word uſed in the parallel part of the ſtory in St. Matthew, c. 4. 1. ἀνήχθη, he was led away, &c. but beſides rhis, the word doth in good authors peculiarly ſignify to expoſe, to leave in a deſtitute helpleſs condition, as when Ariſtotle ſaith of the Raven, ἐκβάλλει τὰς νεοττὰς ὁ κόραξ, that ſhe expoſes her young ones. And altho' Jeſus being already in the wilderneſs, at his baptiſm (for there did John preach and baptize, v. 4.) there is no peculiar need of any new act of driving or bringing him into the wilderneſs, for the buſineſs of his temptation following, but only to leave him, or expoſe him there, yet becauſe St. Matthew joins ἀνήχθη to this part of the ſtory, in order to his temptation, therefore the ſafeſt way is ſo to render ἐκβάλλειν as may be reconcileable with that, that is, to lead him up farther into the wilderneſs, and expoſe him there.

b. ἐχόμεναι

V. 38. Next] That ἐχόμεναι ſignifies here (joined with κωμοπόλεις) adjoining, is from the uſe of the word in the Septuagint of the Old Teſtament; for there the Hebrew אחר which ſignifies behind, or next after, and is oft rendred μέσῳ, and ὄπισθεν poſt, and ὀπίσθια the hinder parts is four times rendred ἐχόμενος, Gen. 41. 23. ἐφύοντο ἐχόμενοι αὐτῶν, ſprang up adjoining, or next to them, we read after them, 2 Sam. 21. 1. ἐνιαυτὸς ὁ ἐχόμενος ἐνιαυτῷ, year adjoining to year, we read year after year, Pſ. 68. 25. προέφθασαν ἄρχοντες ἐχόμενοι ψαλλόντων, the princes went before adjoining, or next to the ſingers, we read the ſingers after, Pſ. 94. 15. ἐχόμενοι αὐτῆς πάντες οἱ δίκαιοι, All that are true are near it, we read follow, or after it. So likewiſe the word מיד is oft by them rendred ἐχόμενος, in this ſenſe, following, contiguous, Num. 2. 17. and in eight places more, and accordingly I doubt not but 1 Sam. 19. 3. where the copies read σήσομαι ἐχόμενος τοῦ πατρός μου, it ſhould be read ἐχόμενος, the Hebrew לידי which we render beſides my father, being ſo often rendred ἐχόμενος, and ſo in like manner, Dan. 10. 3. ἐχόμενος τοῦ ποταμοῦ, ſure ἐχόμενος, the Hebrew having על יד and we render it, I was by the ſide of the great river. So in the New Teſtament, τῇ ἐχομένῃ ἡμέρᾳ, Acts 20. 15. and 21. 26. is the day adjoining, or next following, according to the notion of אחר the day after, and c. 20. 15. τῇ ἐχομένῃ, the day next following, ſo Luke 13. 33. See note on Acts 13. h.

CHAP. II. Paraphraſe.

1. AND again he entered into Capernaum, after ſome days,] and it was noiſed that he was in the houſe.

1. And after a while he came openly in the daytime into the city Capernaum, c. 1. 21, 45. ſee Mat. 9. 1. and went, as 'tis probable, into Simons and Andrews houſe, c. 1. 21

2. And ſtraightway many were gathered together, inſomuch that there was no room to receive them, no not ſo much as about the door, and he preached the word unto them.

3. And they came] unto him, bringing one ſick of the palſy, which was born of four.

3. And there was a company which came

4. And when they could not come nigh unto him for preſs, they uncovered the roof where he was, and when they had broken it up, they let down the bed, wherein the ſick of the palſey lay.

5. When Jeſus ſaw [their faith] he ſaid unto the ſick of the palſy, Son, Thy ſins be forgiven thee.

5. The great confidence which the ſick man and his friends had of Chriſts power to cure him.

6. But there were certain of the Scribes ſitting there, and reaſoning in their hearts,

7. Why doth this man thus ſpeak blaſphemies? Who can] forgive ſins, but God only?

7. This muſt needs be a wicked blaſphemous thing, to aſſume that to himſelf which belongs only to God, for ſure none can

8. And immediately when Jeſus [perceived in his ſpirit] that they ſo reaſoned within themſelves, he ſaid unto them, Why reaſon ye theſe things in your hearts?

8. Diſcern'd by his divine ſpirit, which alone is able to know the ſecrets of the heart (ſee note on Rom. 9. a.)

9. Whether

9. Whether is it eaſier to ſay to the ſick of the palſey, Thy ſins be forgiven thee, or to ſay, Ariſe, take up thy bed and walk?

10. See Mat. 9. 6.

10. But that ye may know that the ſon of man hath power [on earth] to forgive ſins (he ſaith to the ſick of the palſey,)

11. Receive health, or recover from this diſeaſe.

11. I ſay unto thee, [Ariſe,] and take up thy bed and go thy way into thine houſe.

12. And immediately he aroſe and took up the bed, and went forth before them all, inſomuch that they were all amazed, and glorified God, ſaying, We never ſaw it on this faſhion.

13. And he went forth again by the ſea-ſide, and all the multitude reſorted unto him, and he taught them.

14. And as he paſſed by, he ſaw Levi, the ſon of Alpheus ſitting at the receit of cuſtom, and ſaid unto him, Follow me. And he aroſe and followed him.

15. And it came to paſs that as Jeſus ſat at meat in his houſe, many publicans and ſinners * ſat alſo together with Jeſus and his diſciples, for there were many, and they followed him.

*or came, alſo & ſat (or lay) together; for the Kings MS. reads καὶ ἀνεκλίθησαν καὶ ἐλθόντες Συριακ.

16. If your Maſter be a pious and holy perſon, how comes it to paſs, that he obſerveth not that which all pious Jews (thoſe of the ſect of the Phariſees, ch. 7. 3, 4.) obſerve moſt carefully? viz. to abſtain from all pollutions, and ſo not to eat or converſe with any heathen perſon, or ſuch as frequently trade with ſuch.

16. And when the Scribes and Phariſees ſaw him eat with publicans and ſinners, they ſaid unto his diſciples, [How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and ſinners?]

17. My ſpecial buſineſs for which I am ſent, is to reduce wicked men to new life.

17. When Jeſus heard it, he ſaith unto them, They that are whole have no need of the Phyſician, but they that are ſick: [I came not to call the righteous, but ſinners to repentance.]

18. According to their cuſtom of frequent faſting, were now on a day of faſt.

18. And the diſciples of John and †of the Phariſees [* uſed to faſt] and they come and ſay unto him, Why do the diſciples of John, and of the Phariſees faſt, but thy diſciples faſt not?

† or, the Phariſees, for the Kings MS. (& divers others) read καὶ οἱ φαρισαῖοι, and in the end of the verſe, καὶ οἱ τῶν φαρισαίων is left out.

19. See Mat. 9. 15. e.

19. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, Can, [the children of the bride-chamber] faſt, while the bridegroom is with them? As long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot faſt.

20. But the days will come, when the bridegroom ſhall be taken from them, and then ſhall they faſt in thoſe days.

21. If he do not take care not to turn that error, that patch of new cloath (ſee Mat. 9. 16.)

21. No man alſo ſeweth a piece of new cloath on an old garment, [elſe the new piece that filled it up] taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worſe.

22. And no man putteth new wine into old bottles, elſe the new wine doth burſt the bottles, and the * wine is ſpilled, and the bottles will be marred. But new wine muſt be put into new bottles.

* faſting, νῆσεν νηστεύοντες.

* periſh, ἀπολεῖται.

23. See Mat. 12. 1.

23. And it came to paſs that he went through the corn-fields on the [ſabbath-day] and his diſciples a began as they went to pluck the ears of corn.

a.

24. And the Phariſees ſaid unto him, Behold, why do they on the ſabbath-day that which is not lawful?

25. And he ſaid unto them, Have ye never read what David did when he had need, and was an hungred, he and they that were with him?

26. In the time of Abimelech, juſt before Abiathar's coming to the high-prieſthood.

b.

26. How he went into the houſe of God [* in b the days of Abiathar the high-prieſt] and did eat the ſhew-bread, which is not lawful to eat, but for the prieſts, and gave alſo to them which were with him?

*about, or before Abiathars being high prieſt.

27. And he ſaid unto them, The ſabbath was made for man, and not man for the ſabbath.

28. See note on Mat. 12. a.

28. Therefore the ſon of man is lord alſo of the ſabbath.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. II.

a. Ἄρχομαι Παρέλκον

V. 23. Began] The phraſe here in the Greek is a little unuſual ἤρξαντο ὁδὸν ποιεῖν τίλλοντες literally thus, They began to journey, plucking, &c. But the truth is, the word ἤρξαντο began here is but a παρέλκον, or an unſignificant expletive, as in the parallel, Mat. 12. 1. and in very many places more, where generally ἤρξατο λέγειν he began to ſpeak, is no more then ἔλεγε he ſaid, and ſo particularly Luke 3. 8. bring forth fruits, &c. and begin not to ſay, that is, do not ſay within your ſelves, We have Abraham, &c. and ſo Acts 1. 1. ὧν ἤρξατο ποιεῖν, &c. which Jeſus began to do and teach, that is, which he did and taught. So ἀποκριθεὶς ἔλεγε, he anſwered and ſaid, a pure expletive, many times, when there had gone nothing before, to which an anſwer could be accommodated, as c. 11. 14. when to the fig-tree, ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτῇ, he anſwered and ſaid to it. So δοκεῖ ſeeming or thinking, is ſometimes taken, as Mat. 3. 9. μὴ δόξητε λέγειν, &c. think not, or ſeem not to ſay, is parallel to that of Luke 3. 8. μὴ ἄρξησθε λέγειν begin not to ſay, that is, ſay not within your ſelves, and ſo in many other places, as hath been formerly ſhewn, ſee Note on Mat. 3. 9. e. So πορευόμενοι going, Luke 8. 14. which hath no ſignification but what belongs to the συμπνιγονται choaked, following, πορευόμενοι συμπνίγονται they are choaked. So the word ἀνθρώπῳ, Mat. 18. 23. ἀνθρώπῳ βασιλεῖ a man king, that is, a king, and ſo εὑρέθησαν found Luke 1. 18. εὑρέθησαν ὑποστρέφασαι, they were found returning, that is, returned. And ſo here ἤρξαντο ὁδὸν ποιεῖν τίλλοντες, they began to go or travel, &c. is no more then ὁδὸν ἐποίησαν, they went plucking, or as they went they plucked.

b. Ἐπὶ

V. 26. In the, &c.] The notation of the Prepoſition ἐπὶ for the time not then preſent but ſoon after ſucceeding, is remarkable, Mat. 1. 11. where ἐπὶ τῆ μετοικεσίᾳ cannot be underſtood or rendred under the Babyloniſh deportation, for that will not be found true in the hiſtory, Jechoniah being not born under the captivity, but before; and being King, Jer. 24. 1. and ſo carried captive into Babylon; ἐπὶ therefore muſt there ſignify next before, as the Latine ſub doth often note, ſub finem libri, a little before the end of the book, and many the like, and ſo 'tis moſt true, Joſias begat Jechoniah, &c. next before, or near about, the Babyloniſh deportation. So in like manner here ἐπὶ τοῦ Ἀβιαθὰρ may not be rendred under Abiathar the high prieſt, for it was in Abimelech's time, who was Abiathar's father, 1 Sam. 21. and the ſtory is known that Abimelech and the reſt of the Prieſts, almoſt the whole family, were by Saul's appointment ſlain for ſuccouring David at this time, Abiathar (here named) peculiarly eſcaping out of this ſlaughter, 1 Sam. 22. 20. and ſucceeding in the high prieſthood upon this occaſion, and ſo continuing long under David's reign, famous for bringing him the Ephod, c. 36. 7. and he and Zadoc eſpecial aſſiſtants to his affairs, 2 Sam. 15. 35. It is therefore neceſſary that ἐπὶ τοῦ Ἀβιαθὰρ is therefore neceſſary that ἐπὶ τῦ Ἀβιαθὰρ ἀρχιερέως here muſt be ſo rendred as to denote the time immediately preceding Abiathar's being high Prieſt: And this uncertain ſignification of Prepoſitions in the New Teſtament, proceeds from the like of the Hebrew in the Old. For ſo לפני which is often rendred ἐπὶ under, is often ἐνώπιον before alſo, *Gen.*13.10. and 27.7,10. and 36.11. and 50.16. and in many other places, to note the time precedent. So in like manner for place, as well as time. For when *Mat.*21.19. 'tis ſaid that Chriſt ſaw a fig tree ἐπὶ τῆ ὁδῦ, it muſt not be rendred in, but at ſome diſtance from the way, for ſo in Mark we read, ἰδὼν συκῆν μακρόθεν, ſeeing a fig tree afar off.

2. And they watched him, whether he would heal him on the ſabbath day, that they might accuſe him.]

2. And the Phariſees v. 6. deſirous to have ſomewhat to lay to his charge, though they had now an opportunity, and therefore obſerved greedily what he would do to this lame man, whether he would heal him on the Sabbath day or no.

3. And he ſaith unto the man which had the withered hand, Stand forth.

4. And he ſaith unto them, [Is it lawful to do good on the ſabbath days, or to do evil? to ſave life, or to kill?] but they held their peace.

4. Which do you conceive to be moſt unlawful on the Sabbath day, to hurt by not helping, when I am able, to be guilty of killing one whom I can ſave? Or elſe to work a cure, to deliver one in diſtreſs or danger?

5. And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved [for the hardneſs of their hearts,] he ſaith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand, and he ſtretched it out, and his hand was reſtored whole as the other.

5. That their hearts were ſo hardned, as fleſh which hath a thick skin grown over it, keeping his words, or miracles from having impreſſion on them.

6. And the Phariſees went forth, and ſtraightway [took counſel with the Herodians] againſt him, how they might deſtroy him.

6. Entred a conſultation with the Herodians; ſee Note on Matt.22.b.

7. But Jeſus withdrew himſelf with his diſciples to the ſea, and a great multitude from Galilee followed him, and from Judea,

8. And from Jeruſalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond Jordan, and they about Tyre and Sidon, a great multitude, when they heard what great things he did, came unto him.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. III.

a. Ἐπιπίπτειν

V. 10. Preſſed upon him] The word ἐπιπίπτειν αὐτῷ ſeems to be miſtaken by Interpreters, when 'tis rendred either irruere, or incidere, to ruſh or preſs upon. It is all one with προσπίπτειν v. 11. to fall down at his feet, as they do that have any petition or requeſt to make, as theſe had here, ἵνα ἅψωνται, that they might touch him. Thus ch. 6. 52. in a like matter, it is, in another phraſe, to this ſenſe, παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν ἵνα κἂν κρασπέδου ἅψωνται, they beſought him that they might but touch the hem, &c.

b. Βοανεργὲς

V. 17. Boanarges] Βοανεργὲς is the corruption of the Hebrew בני רעש, ſons of Ζεισμὸς, earthquake, or any other the greateſt commotion, ſuch as here is ſtiled βροντὴ thunder. And the meaning of this title may ſeem to be, that thoſe two ſons of Zebedee were to be ſpecial eminent Miniſters of the Goſpel, which is call'd Hebr. 12. 26. φωνὴ τοῦ γοῦ Ζαλεύσει, a voice ſhaking the earth, taken from Hag. 2.7. which is directly the periphraſis of רעש which is here rendred βροντὴ thunder, in the notion, wherein φωνὴ voice, and βροντὴ thunder are promiſcuouſly uſed for the ſame thing, (ſee Note on Acts 9.b.) and wherein the laſt ſort of revelations, the voice from heaven, was wont to be call'd among the Jews, בת קול the daughter of voice, or thunder.

c. Ἔξιστη

V. 21. Beſide himſelf] The word ἐξίστη here uſed, doth in all places of the New Teſtament but this, and 2 Cor. 5. 13. ſignifie being amazed or aſtoniſhed, ſome ſudden perturbation of mind, which deprives the man of the exerciſe of his faculties. In that place to the Corinthians 'tis ſet oppoſite to Σωφρονεῖν, ſobriety, or temper, the ſpeaking magnificently of himſelf, commending his own office, or performances, exceeding a little in ſuch kind of ſpeeches of himſelf. For which he ſaith in another place, that he may be counted a fool by ſome. And thus in the Old Teſtament 'tis variouſly uſed for exceſſes, or vehemencies, or commotions of mind, Pſal. 31. 23. I ſaid in my haſte, the Hebrew hath בחפזי, the Greek, ἐν ἐκστάσει μου, and the Vulgar Latin, in exceſſu mentis meæ, in the exceſs, or vehemence of my mind. And the ſame Hebrew word Pſal. 48.5. is rendred ἐσαλεύθησαν commoti ſunt, they were troubled. Agreeably here, I ſuppoſe, it will be moſt fitly taken for a commotion, exceſs, vehemence, tranſportation of mind, acting or ſpeaking in zeal (above that which is called (ordinarily) temper, and ſobriety,) or in ſuch a manner, as they which are moved by ſome extraordinary ſpirit, are wont to do, as Prophets, &c. according to that of S. Chryſoſtom, τοῦτο μανίας ἴδιον τὸ ἐξεστάναι, &c. 'tis proper to Prophets to be thus tranſported. See Note on 2 Cor. 12. a. Which ſenſe of the word will be thus fitted to the place. In this chapter Chriſt began to ſhew himſelf in the full luſtre of his office, he cures on the Sabbath day, which the Phariſees conceived unlawful, v. 2. looks about him μετ' ὀργῆς, with ſome incitation of mind, v. 5. is followed by great multitudes, v. 7. heals the diſeaſed, and is flocked to for that purpoſe, v. 10. is called openly the ſon of God by the demoniacks, v. 11. makes 12 diſciples, and ſends them out to preach, and cure, v. 14. and upon this the Phariſees and Herodians take counſel againſt him, v. 6. thoſe of their faction ſay he acts by Beelzebub, v. 22. and is poſſeſs'd by him, that is, that he was acted by ſome principal evil ſpirit, and did all his miracles thus, and ſo was not to be followed, but abhorred by men. And they that ſaid not theſe high blaſphemies againſt him, yet ἔλεγον ὅτι ἐξέστη, ſaid that this making of diſciples, &c. was a kind of exceſs, an height, a tranſportation, and this was the conceit of his own kindred. They had a ſpecial prejudice againſt him, ch. 6.4. and did not believe on him, Joh. 7.5. And accordingly hearing this report of his doing theſe things, came out κρατῆσαι to get him into their hands, and have him home with them, ἔλεγον γάρ, for they ſaid that he was guilty of ſome exceſſes. As for that interpretation which renders it of fainting through hunger, though it be favoured by † learned men, yet it ſeems not to have any ground in the nature of the word, ἐξίστασθαι, nor in κρατῆσαι, (being here joyn'd not with a Genitive, but an Accuſative caſe) nor in any circumſtances of the Context, ſave only the caſual mention of their having no time to eat bread, v. 20. (which one thing hath ſeem'd to ſome to be of ſo much force, Act. 10. 10. as to cauſe them to render the ἔκστασις that fell on S. Peter, no more but a ſleep, that ſuch as faint, or are diſpirited through hunger, fall into, when the viſion that is added to it, ſhews that it was a trance, into which he was caſt by God,) but is made improbable by many other circumſtances. Of the word ἔκστασις, ſee Note on Acts 10.c.

a. Ἵνα βλέποντες

V. 12. That ſeeing, &c.] Theſe words ἵνα βλέποντες, that ſeeing, &c. note the obduration of the Iſraelites, which fell on them from God's deſertion, as a puniſhment of their not making uſe of the talents which he had given them, and ſo this verſe is anſwerable and parallel to * Mat. 13.15. or the end of that place in * Iſaiah, recited and ſet down at large in S. Matthew, but here, and ſo alſo Luke 8.10. and John 12.40. epitomized and ſum'd up, μήποτε ἴδωσι, leſt they ſhould ſee, &c. And therefore from the importance of the whole place in Iſaiah and Matthew, the ſenſe of it (here, where 'tis ſhortly recited) muſt be taken, viz. that upon their ſhutting their eyes, that is, voluntary obduration of heart againſt God, God withdraws his grace, which otherwiſe he would have afforded them, and doth afford others. To which 'tis conſequent, that they ſee not at all. Agreeably to that of Procopius on Iſaiah, p. 102. Βλέπειν παρῆν αὐτοῖς ἀπὸ τῆς ὀφθείσης χάριτος, τὸ μὴ ἰδεῖν συμβὰν ἔπηρε μυσάντων τὰς ὀφθαλμούς, The power of ſeeing was preſent to them from the grace of him that was ſeen; Their not ſeeing was an accident or conſequent of their ſhutting their eyes. And ſo here there not being able to ſee, for want of light (the obſcurity of thoſe Parables in which God ſpake to them,) was a puniſhment of their winking, and not being willing to ſee.

* c. 6. 9, 10.

b. Παραδῷ

V. 29. Brought forth] The word παραδῷ is here in an unuſual ſenſe, and ſignifies the ripeneſs of the fruit, that which Luke 8.14. is τελεσφορεῖν to bring to perfection, for ſo the Hebrew שלם which ſignifies to be entire, perfect, compleat, is by the Septuagint rendred, παραδίδωμι, Iſa. 38.13. becauſe when fruit is ripe, it doth, as it were, deliver it ſelf to the gatherer.

c. Λαίλαψ

V. 37. Storm of wind] Λαίλαψ is defined by Heſychius, ἀνέμου συγχυσμὸς μετ' ὑετοῦ, a tempeſt of wind with rain.

13. And forthwith Jeſus gave them leave,] And the unclean ſpirits went out, and entred into the ſwine, and the herd ran violently down a ſteep place into the ſea (they were about two thouſand) and were choaked in the ſea.

13. And although this was foreſeen by Chriſt to be the certain drowning of the ſwine, and though he ſeldom wrought any deſtructive miracle, yet that the people might ſee the virulency of theſe devils, if not reſtrained by him, and ſo the mercy done to thoſe that were poſſeſt, and likewiſe the mercy now approaching to their country by the coming of Chriſt, if they will accept of it, and withal to try whether their love to their ſwine was greater then that to their own ſouls, he permitted the devils to go into the ſwine, that is, forbad them not, did not violently reſtrain them.

14. And

14. And they that fed the ſwine fled, and told it in the city, and in the country. And [they] went out to ſee what it was that was done.

14. The inhabitants of the city and the whole country.

15. And they come to Jeſus, and ſee him that was poſſeſſed with the devil, and had the legion ſitting, and cloathed, and † in his right mind [and they were afraid.]

† ſober, or in temper, σωφρονοῦντα.

15. And that ſight wrought an awe and a reverence in them an acknowledgment of the power of Chriſt that had done it.

16. And they that ſaw it, told them how it befel to him that was poſſeſſed with the devil, and alſo concerning the ſwine.

16. And they that had been preſent all the time, gave them the whole relation, the mercy to the poor man, and the drowning of the ſwine.

17. And they began to pray him] to depart out of their coaſts.

17. And when they heard the one with the other, their love of the world prevailed ſo far above their care of that which was ſo much more precious, that they earneſtly beſought him.

18. And when he was come into the ſhip, he that had been poſſeſſed with the devil, prayed him, that he might be with him.

19. Howbeit Jeſus ſuffered him not, but ſaid unto him, Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compaſſion on thee.

20. And he departed, and began to publiſh in Decapolis, how great things Jeſus had done for him: and all men did marvel.

21. And when Jeſus was paſſed over again by ſhip unto the other ſide, much people gathered unto him, and he was nigh unto the ſea.

22. And behold there cometh c one of the rulers of the ſynagogue, Jairus by name, and when he ſaw him, he fell at his feet,

23. And beſought him greatly, ſaying, My little daughter lyeth at the point of death, I pray thee come and lay thine hands on her, that ſhe may be healed, [and ſhe ſhall live.]

23. And I am confident ſhe will recover.

24. And Jeſus went with him, and much people followed him, and thronged him.

25. And a certain woman which had an iſſue of blood twelve years,

26. And had ſuffered many things of many Phyſicians, and had ſpent all that ſhe had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worſe,

27. When ſhe had heard of Jeſus, came in the preſs behind, and touched his garment,

28. For ſhe ſaid, If I may touch but his cloathes I ſhall be whole.]

28. Being thus confidently perſwaded in her mind, that the leaſt touch of his cloaths would cure her.

29. And ſtraightway the d [fountain] of her blood was dryed up, and ſhe felt in her body that ſhe was healed of that * plague.

29. Flux. d.

* diſeaſe, μάστιγος.

30. And Jeſus immediately knowing in himſelf [that virtue had gone out of him] turned him about in the preſs, and ſaid, Who touched my cloaths?

30. Some cure had been wrought by touching him.

31. And his diſciples ſaid unto him, Thou ſeeſt the multitude thronging thee, and ſayeſt thou, Who touched me?

32. And he looked round about to ſee her that had done this thing.

33. But the woman [fearing and trembling, knowing what was done in her] came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth.

33. Being by what had been wrought in her, aſſured of his divine power, and ſo ſtrucken into a great awe and reverence toward him.

34. And he ſaid unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole, go in peace, and be whole † of thy plague.

† from thy diſeaſe, μάστιγός σου.

35. While he yet ſpake, there came from the ruler of the ſynagogues houſe, certain which ſaid, Thy daughter is dead; Why troubleſt thou the maſter any farther?

36. As ſoon as Jeſus heard the word that was ſpoken, he ſaith unto the ruler of the ſynagogue, Be not afraid, only believe.

37. And he ſuffered no man † to follow him] ſave Peter, and James, and John the brother of James.

† follow with him, συνακολουθῆσαι αὐτῷ.

37. And the father, and the mother, Luke 8. 51. leading him the way, he permitted none of his own company to go into the houſe along with him.

38. And he cometh to the houſe of the ruler of the Synagogue, and ſeeth [the tumult, * and them that wept and wailed greatly.]

* or, of them that; for the ancient Gr. and Lat. MS. reads κλαυθμὸν.

38. See Mat. 9. 23.

39. And when he was come in he ſaith unto them, Why make ye this ado, and weep? the damoſel is not dead but ſleepeth.

40. And they laughed him to ſcorn: but when he had put them all out, he taketh the father, and the mother of the damoſel, and [them that were with him] and entreth in where the damoſel was lying.

40. Peter, and James, and John, v. 37.

41. And he took the damoſel by the hand, and ſaid unto her, Talitha cumi, which is being interpreted, Damoſel (I ſay unto thee) ariſe.

42. And ſtraightway the damoſel aroſe and walked, for ſhe was of the age of twelve years, and they were aſtoniſhed with a great aſtoniſhment.

43. And he charged them ſtraightly that no man ſhould know it] and commanded that ſomething ſhould be given her to eat.

Annotations on Chap. V.

a. in Δύο δαιμονιζόμενοι.

V. 2. A man, &c.] What is here affirmed of a man in the Singular Number, is Matthew 8. 28. δύο δαιμονιζόμενοι, two Demoniacks: So in like manner, where c. 10. 46. there is mention but of one blind Man, Bartimæus, in Matthew Chap. 20. 30. there are δύο τυφλοὶ, two blind Men; which difference hath nothing of weight in it, becauſe Matthew which names two, ſaying the Truth, the other which names but one, yet not denying that there were more, muſt neceſſarily ſay true alſo, and it being not pretended, that each of the Evangeliſts doth relate all that was done by Chriſt, but poſitively affirmed by John, ch. 21. 35. that all that was done, was not by any of them related, there is conſequently nothing ſtrange in this of St. Mark, which in either place omits the mention of one of them. So when Matthew mentions the bringing the aſs and the colt, both ch. 21. 7. S. Mark only mentions the foal, ch. 11. 7. of the ſame pitch it is, (viz. matter of very light importance, far from a real exception againſt the authority of this Goſpel) that the order of things related it not always the ſame in him and St. Matthew. As when the cure of the Paralytick is mentioned by Mark in the ſecond ch. and the drowning of the ſwine not till the fifth, Matthew mentions this before the former. And whereas the cure of the withered hand is in Mark, c. 3. and not mentioned in Matthew till c. 12. in Matthew it falls out to be ſubſequent to many relations, to which Mark makes it antecedent. So the cure of Peters mother in law is by Mark ſet before that of the Leper, and by Matthew after, ſo the caſting the broakers out of the Temple is ſet down by Matthew, ch. 21. 12. before the curſing of the fig tree, v. 19. whereas St. Mark, c. 11. 13. ſets down the ſtory of the fig-tree, and the caſting out of the broakers, after, v. 15. And perhaps other examples of the like may be found by thoſe, which ſhall more diligently compare them; but all theſe, and (if there were) many more, nothing derogating from the fidelity of the writers, who undertaking to make ſome relations of what was done by Chriſt, do no where undertake or oblige themſelves to obſerve the order, wherein every thing ſucceeded, that being generally extrinſical, and of no importance to the relations.

V. 7. Torment me not] That Βασανίζειν among other ſignifications is taken for coercing or impriſoning, hath been ſaid, note on Mat. 8. e. and ſo Mat. 18. 34. Βασανισταῖς ſignifies jaylors. And ſo here, when the Devil deſires, and adjures Chriſt, that he ſhould not βασανίζειν, it ſignifies ſending him to his priſon, to his chains, Jude 6. and 2 Pet. 2. 4. for ſo in St. Lukes relation of it, Luke 8. 31. they beſought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep, that is, that he would not ſend them to hell, (ſee note on Luke 8. d.) their place of puniſhment and reſtraint, where they were (inſtead of going up and down, Job 1. 7.) to be kept cloſe and tormented alſo, τετηρημένους εἰς κρίσιν in S. Peter, 2 Pet. 2. 4. kept in cuſtody to be puniſhed. And accordingly St. Matthew reads, art thou come ὧδε καιρὸν βασανίσαι, Mat. 8. 28. to ſend us to priſon before the time of our going thither, ſignifying this to be a more tolerable ſtate that now they were in, leſs of reſtraint and miſery, then, when time ſhould come, they were to expect.

V. 22. One of the Rulers of the Synagogue] What is meant by ἀρχισυνάγωγος here, or ἄρχων συναγωγῆς Luke 8. 41. the chief or ruler of the Synagogue, will the better appear, if we firſt conſider what here we find, that there were more then one of them, and therefore Jairus is here called εἷς τῶν ἀρχισυναγώγων one of theſe chief or rulers, and that not only in divers, but in the ſame Synagogue, Acts 13. 15. For * συναγωγὴ here ſignifies the leſſer conſiſtory, or that of any particular city (as that is oppoſite to the great Sanhedrim at Jeruſalem) the judgment of twenty three, who were now able to puniſh offences not capital, to ſcourge, &c. which is therefore called ſcourging in their ſynagogues. And altho' among the rulers thereof there was generally one chief in learning, and proportionably in authority, who both here in the Goſpel, and in the life of Alexander Severus, and in the Conſtitutions of the Emperours is called ἀρχισυνάγωγος or princeps ſynagogæ, the head or chief, who impoſed hands on all thoſe which were elected or admitted into the conſiſtory, yet becauſe the reſt had power of Judicature there, with and under him, therefore not only he but the reſt alſo, are all contained under this common name of ἀρχισυνάγωγοι, rulers of the Synagogue, both here, and Acts 13. 15. A difference there is between the rulers of the Synagogues, and thoſe that are called the rulers of the people, but no more then this, the former are thoſe in particular cities, but the latter thoſe of the Sanhedrim in Jeruſalem. Both of them are in other places called ſimply ἄρχοντες rulers, Mat. 9. 18, 23. Luke 18. 18. ſpeaking of thoſe in particular cities, and in other places, when the context belongs to Jeruſalem, as Luke 23. 13, 35. John 7. 26, 48. 'tis clear that the rulers called ſo ſimply, muſt be thoſe of the great Sanhedrim. For the former of theſe it is to be obſerved, what Maimonides tells us, that there were two kinds of meetings in particular cities among the Jews, בתי הכנסיות domus congregationum, the houſes of aſſemblies, where they did meet to pray and hear the Law every Sabbath, as they did at the Temple in Jeruſalem, and בתי המדרש houſes of information, or expoſition of the Law. Theſe were either more private where any Doctor entertained Scholars, ſuch was the School of Tyrannus, Acts 19. 8. (and of this ſort 'tis ſaid there were above 400. in Jeruſalem, and many in Iſrael in all places) or elſe more publick, where their conſiſtories ſat to reſolve differences of the Law in particular cities. As for the Συνέδριον or great Sanhedrim which was in Jeruſalem, that is known to conſiſt of 72. and was made up of chief Prieſts, elders of the people, and Scribes. 1. Ἀρχιερεῖς the chief prieſts, perhaps the heads of the 24. Courſes, 1 Chron. 24. (ſee note on Acts 4. a.) 2ly, Πρεσβύτεροι, the elders or heads of the families, chief men among their tribes, who were farther choſen, and by impoſition of hands received into the Sanhedrim, and ſo made Judges there, and theſe are called the elders of the people, Mat. 21. 23. 26. 3, 47. and of Iſrael Acts 4. 8. Then 3ly, for the γραμματεῖς Scribes, thoſe were they that had been taught γράμματα, John 7. 15. the books or writings of the Law, ἱερὰ γράμματα, 2 Tim. 3. 15. the holy writings or Scriptures, and inſtructed in the meaning of them, thoſe that had been ſons of the Prophets, that is, brought up in their ſchools, but having not obtained the Spirit, or miſſion of Prophets at Gods hands, were ſometimes thought fit to be choſen into the Sanhedrim. Theſe I ſay, are called Scribes and wiſe men, and accordingly the Jews have an ancient ſaying, that After the age of the Prophets (that is, when the Spirit of prophecy was no more given) ſucceed the age of the Scribes. Tho' of theſe ſome did only keep ſchool, and teach the Law, and then are ſtyled ſimply γραμματεῖς Scribes, whereas the others that were taken into the great Sanhedrim, are called Scribes of the people, Mat. 2. 4. and ſo Jud. 5. 10. where the Hebrew hath, the Governours; the Chaldee Paraphraſe hath, the Scribes of Iſrael. By this appears the difference of theſe words ſo frequent in the Goſpels, Rulers, and Rulers of the people, and of the Synagogue, Elders, and Scribes, and Scribes of Iſrael, and of the people, which being here put together all in this place, may be uſeful for the illuſtrating many places of Scripture.

V. 29. Fountain] The Hebrew מקור ſignifies two things, properly a fountain or ſpring of water, and Metaphorically ῥύσις a profluvium or flux; for a fountain we have it, Zach. 13. 1. where the Septuagint, that render it τόπῳ a place, read, it ſeems, מקום place, inſtead of מקור fountain. For the Flux, ſuch as after child-birth, 'tis uſed Lev. 12. 7. where yet the Septuagint read πηγῇ a fountain, accordingly here St. Mark uſeth the ſame word πηγὴ, whereas St Luke reads ῥύσις a flowing of blood, a ſore diſeaſe, which ſhe had for twelve years ſpace. Agreeable hereunto it is, that artificial iſſues made in any part of the body are by Phyſicians called fountinels, or little fountains.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. VI.

1. Mat. 13. 54. 1. AND he went out from thence, and came into his own country,] and his diſciples followed him.

2. And when the ſabbath day was come, he began to teach in the ſynagogue, and many hearing him were aſtoniſhed, ſaying, From whence hath this man theſe things? and what wiſdom is this which is given unto him, that * even ſuch mighty works are wrought by his hands?

4. He went into their ſynagogues, and there expounded the Old Teſtament to them, to their great amazement, whereupon they queſtion'd among themſelves, how he ſhould be able to do this, who gave him this wiſdom, and withal this power of miracles, ſaying,

* alſo 4.

3. Is

3. Is not this the carpenter? the ſon of Mary, the brother of James and Joſes, and of Judah and Simon? and are not his ſiſters here with us? and they were offended at him.]

3. Is not this man the ſon of Joſeph the Carpenter, brought up in the ſame trade with him? is not Mary his Mother? and James, &c. his near kinſmen? and do not his near kinſmen live among us? and thus upon the conſideration of his mean, and known beginnings, they were diſcouraged from following, and ſo forſook him.

† deſpiſed any where but, ἀτιμάω.

4. And Jeſus ſaid unto them [a prophet is not † without honour, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own houſe.]

4. A prophet is not ſo ſubject to be deſpiſed and ſet at naught any where, as among them that are neareſt to him, that think they know his beginnings, &c.

5. And he could there do no mighty work, ſave that he laid his hands upon a few ſick folk and healed them.]

5. And accordingly there was ſuch a general unbelief, and undervaluing him there in his own country, that he had no fit opportunity there, to ſhew his power in working miracles, only a few ſick people, that had faith to be healed, came and beſought him, and thoſe by his bare laying his hands on them, were healed preſently, ſee Luke 4.23.

6. And he marvelled becauſe of their unbelief: and he went round about the villages teaching.

7. And he calleth unto him the twelve, and began to ſend them forth by two and two, and gave them power [over unclean ſpirits.]

7. To caſt the devils out of thoſe that were poſſeſt by them.

8. And he commanded them that they ſhould take nothing for their journey, ſave a ſtaff only, no ſcrip, no bread, no money in their purſe,]

8. See note on Mar. 10. e.

9. But be ſhod with ſandals, and put on two coats.

* where, ὅτι.

10. And he ſaid unto them, [* In what place ſoever ye enter into an houſe, there abide till ye depart from that place.]

10. Whenſoever ye come into a town, or city, the firſt houſe ye enter into, let it be the place of your abode, while you ſtay in that city.

† depart thence and ſhake, ἐκπορεύεσθαι ἐκεῖθεν, ἐκτινάξατε.

11. And whoſoever ſhall not receive you, nor hear you, † when you depart thence, ſhake off the duſt under your feet [for a teſtimony againſt them:] Verily I ſay unto you, it ſhall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, then for that city.

11. As a ſignificative ceremony what a crying ſin this is, and what a puniſhment will attend it, (Mat. 10.14.) and that they may know that a prophet hath been among them, Ezek. 33.33. that 'tis the meſſage of God which they have rejected.

12. And they went out and [preached that men ſhould repent.]

12. Preach or proclaimed, in the ſame words, that John Baptiſt, and Chriſt had done before them, ſaying, Repent, for the kingdom of God is at hand, Mat. 10. 7.

13. And they caſt out many devils, and anointed with oyl many that were ſick, and healed them.]

13. And they caſt devils out of many that were poſſeſt by them, and uſing no other means, but only that of unction (and laying on their hands, ch. 16. 18.) they cured many ſick perſons.

14. And king Herod heard of him, (for his name was ſpread abroad) and he ſaid that John Baptiſt was riſen from the dead, and [therefore mighty works do ſhew forth themſelves in him.]

14. Now he is riſen, the ſame power that raiſeth him, worketh alſo miraculouſly in him.

15. Others ſaid that it is Elias, and others ſaid that it is [a prophet, or as one of the prophets.]

15. One of the old prophets raiſed from the dead, or elſe ſuch an one as they were of old, now newly raiſed up.

16. But when Herod heard thereof [he ſaid] It is John whom I beheaded, he is riſen from the dead.

16. The conſcience of what he had done to John Baptiſt, made him fear, and ſay,

* For that Herod, αὐτὸς γὰρ ὁ Ἡρῴδης.

17. * For Herod himſelf had ſent forth, and laid hold upon John, and bound him in priſon [for Herodias ſake his brother Philips wife, for he had married her.]

17. On occaſion of Herodias, whom Herod had married, though ſhe were his own brothers wife.

18. For John had ſaid unto Herod, It is not lawful for thee to have thy brothers wife.]

18. Whereupon John dealt freely & plainly with him, and told him that it was utterly unlawful for him to live with her.

* was angry with him.

19. Therefore Herodias * a had a quarrel againſt him, and would have killed him, but ſhe could not.]

19. Herodias therefore being touch'd with this, a. deſigned him a miſchief, and would have removed him out of the way by ſome death or other, but could not any way compaſs it.

*kept him, or looked to him.

20. For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a juſt man, and an holy, b and * obſerved him, and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly.]

20. For Herod becauſe of his authority with the people, on whom John had wrought very much (ſaith Joſephus) was afraid to meddle with him, Mat. 14.5. and beſides knew him to be a juſt and holy man, which extorted reſpect from him, and accordingly he had care to keep him ſafe, and moreover heard him oft, and in obedience to him did reform many things, and indeed took a delight to hear him, but this one particular of Herodias ſtuck ſo cloſe to him, that Johns reproofs could not prevail to make him part with her. b.

* feſtival-day came, when Herod on the anniverſary of his birth, γενεσίοις.

21. And when c a * convenient day was come, that Herod on his birth-day made a ſupper to his lords, high captains, and † chief eſtates of Galilee. c.

22. And when the daughter of the ſaid Herodias came in, and danced, and pleaſed Herod, and them that * ſat with him, the king ſaid [unto the damoſel] Aſk of me whatſoever thou wilt, and I will give it thee.

22. To Herodias's daughter.

23. And he ſware unto her, Whatſoever thou ſhalt aſk of me, I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom.

† principal men, ſee note on John 1. c.

24. And ſhe went forth and ſaid unto her mother, What ſhall I aſk? and ſhe ſaid, The head of John the Baptiſt.

* were at meat with him, Συνανακειμένοις.

25. And ſhe came in ſtraightway with haſt unto the king, and asked, ſaying, * I will that thou give me by and by the head of John the Baptiſt in a charger.

* I deſire, θέλω, ſee note on Col. 2. g.

26. And the king was exceeding ſorry, yet for his oaths ſake, and for their ſakes which ſat with him, he would not reject her.]

26. And Herod the king was exceeding ſorrowful & much troubled, not only that he ſhould be obliged to ſhed blood upon his birth-day, (ſee note on Mat. 14. b.) but eſpecially as having a reverence and kindneſs to John, v. 20. and alſo fearing the inconvenience that might come of it by reaſon of the authority which John had with the people, Mat. 14. and yet becauſe he had ſworn ſo publickly before thoſe that were at the feaſt with him, that they might not diſcern either imprudence, or inconſtancy in him, imprudence in promiſing, or inconſtancy in not performing, he granted her requeſt.

* a ſoldier of his guard.

27. And immediately the king ſent * an d executioner, and commanded his head to be brought, and he went and beheaded him in the priſon. d.

28. And brought his head in a charger, and gave it to the damoſel, and the damoſel gave it to her mother.

29. And when [his diſciples] heard of it, they came and took up his corps, and laid it in a tomb.

29. Johns diſciples.

30. And

30. Gave him an account of their preaching and miracles, and of the ſucceſs of both of them.

30. And the Apoſtles gathered themſelves together unto Jeſus, and [told him all things both what they had done, and what they had taught.]

31. Alone, and no body elſe.

31. And he ſaid unto them, Come ye [your ſelves apart] into a deſert place, and reſt a while, For there were many coming and going, and they had no leiſure ſo much as to eat.

32. And they departed into a deſert place by ſhip privately.

33. The diſciples.

33. And the people ſaw them departing, and many knew him, and ran afoot thither out of all cities, and outwent [them] and came together unto him.

34. See Mat. 9. 36.

34. And Jeſus when he came out, ſaw much people, and was moved with compaſſion toward them, becauſe they were as ſheep not having a Shepherd, and he began to teach them many things.

35. And when it began to be late toward the evening. See note Mat. 14. d.

35. † And when the day was now far ſpent] the diſciples came unto him, ſaying, This is a deſert place, and * now the time is far paſſed.

†& much time being now paſt, Καὶ ἤδη ὥρας πολλῆς γενομένης.

36. Send them away, that they may go into the country round about, and into the villages, and buy themſelves bread, for they have nothing to eat.

37. He anſwered and ſaid unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they ſay unto him, Shall we go and buy two hundred pennyworth of bread, and give them to eat?

38. He ſaith unto them, How many loaves have ye? go and ſee: and when they knew, they ſay five, and two fiſhes.

* 'tis already a long while, ἤδη ὥρα πολλή.

c. 39. And he commanded them to make all ſit down e by companies upon the green graſs.

40. And they lay down in ſeveral companies or diviſions on the ground, after the manner that they uſed on beds whereon they were wont to eat. See Note on Mat. 8. g.

40. And they * ſat down in ranks] by hundreds and by fifties.

*lay down bed by bed ἀνάπεσον πρασιαὶ πρασιαί.

41. And when he had taken the five loaves and two fiſhes, he looked up to heaven and bleſſed, and brake the loaves, and gave them to his diſciples to ſet before them and the two fiſhes divided he among them all.

42. And they did all eat, and were filled.

43. Of the broken pieces of bread, and of the remainder of the fiſhes.

43. And they took up twelve baskets full [of the fragments and of the fiſhes.]

44. And they that were entertained and ſupped on theſe few loaves and fiſhes.

44. And they that did eat of the loaves] were about five thouſand men.

45. And ſtraightway he conſtrained his diſciples to get into the ſhip, and to go to the other ſide before unto Bethſaida, while he ſent away the people.

46. And when he had ſent them away, he departed into a mountain to pray.

47. In the night, ſee note on Mat. 14. d.

47. And [when the even was come] the ſhip was in the midſt of the ſea, and he alone on the land.

48. Toward morning he came walking on the ſea, and appeared to deſign not to come to them, but to paſs by them farther that way.

48. And he ſaw them toyling in rowing, (for the wind was contrary unto them) and [about the fourth watch of the night he cometh unto them walking upon the ſea, and would have paſſed by them.]

49. But when they ſaw him walking upon the ſea, they ſuppoſed it had been * a ſpirit, and cryed out.

* an apparition, or phantaſm, φάντασμα.

50. (For they all ſaw him and were troubled) and immediately he talked with them and ſaid unto them, Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid.

51. And he went up unto them into the ſhip, and the wind ceaſed, and they were ſore amazed in themſelves, beyond meaſure, and wondred.

52. They had not ſo laid to heart the miracle of the loaves, as to believe him able to do ſuch a miracle as this (that of multiplying the loaves, &c. being as truly an act of divine power, as this of walking upon the ſea) which was a great ſtupidity and dulneſs in them.

52. For [they conſidered not the miracle of the loaves, for their heart was hardned.]

53. And when they had paſſed over, they came into the land of Geneſareth, and drew to the ſhore.]

54. Thoſe of the country took knowledge of him.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. VI.

a. Ἐνέιχεν. V. 19. Had a quarrel] Ἐνεῖχεν αὐτῷ which here (as alſo Luke 11. 53.) is to be rendred, was angry with him, will be beſt underſtood by the notion of the Hebrew שָׂטַם, which is rendred by it in the Old Teſtament, that ſignifies to hate, to hinder, or to ſet ones ſelf againſt another, to be an adverſary, and is rendred by ἐγκοτέω, being angry, as of Eſau againſt Jacob, Gen. 27. 41. and Pſ. 54. 4. by μνησικακέω bearing injuries in mind, deſigning revenge, Gen. 50. 15. and ſo by ἐνέχω in the ſame ſenſe, Gen. 49. 23. Accordingly Heſychius ἐνεῖχον, ἐχόλων (it ſhould be ἐχολῶντο) ἐμάχοντο, they were wroth or angry, and both he, and Phavorinus, ἐνέχει, μνησικακεῖ, ὀργιεῖ) (or perhaps ἐγκοτεῖ) he bears the injury in mind, ſets him againſt, or is angry: So Euſtathius, ἐνέχειν, is τὸ κακόν τινος ἔχειν, to have ſomewhat againſt any one.

b. Συνετήρει. V. 20. Obſerved him] What συνετήρει here ſignifies is a matter of ſome queſtion. That which ſeems moſt probable is, that it ſignifies, as the literal notation imports, and as the vulgars cuſtodiebat expreſſeth, kept him guarded, and ſo ſecured and preſerved him. For tho' he were impriſoned by him before, yet it is clear, that he ſuffered him not to be hurt by any; and accordingly Herodias, tho' ſhe bare him a grudge, and would have killed him, yet ſhe could not, v. 19. and the reaſon is rendred in this verſe, for he bare ſuch a reverence to him for his juſtice and piety, that he preſerved, and guarded and kept him ſafe from her malice.

c. Εὐκαίρῳ ἡμέρᾳ. V. 21. A convenient day] Ἡμέρα εὐκαίρος, is a feſtival day, a day of vacancy, יום טוב, in Hebrew, a good day, that is, a ſolemn feſtival, a day of reſt from labour, ſet apart for feſtivity, from whence hath the Gloſſary εὐκαίρος, σχολάζουσα, 'tis a day of vacancy, and εὐκαιρῶ vaco, as 'tis here uſed, v. 31. οὐδὲ φαγεῖν εὐκαίρουν, they they had not leiſure to eat, and Phavorinus ἐυκαιρεῖν, δὲ χολῆς ἔχειν, (perhaps it ſhould be read, ἐυχολεῖν, χολὼ ἔχειν, or ἄγειν,) to be vacant, and ſuch, it is clear, was this, Herod's birth-day, whereon he made a ſupper for his Lords, &c. and whereon there was a dancing, ver. 22.

d. Σπικυλάτωρ

V. 27. Executioner] Spiculator in the ſtories of the Roman Emperors ſignifies a ſoldier of the guard, and agreeably, when we read (in the ſtories of Pharaoh and Nebuchadnezzar) the captain of the guard, the interpreter of the Chaldee Paraphraſe generally reads princeps ſpiculatorum. So the captains of fifties, 1 Kings 9.11,13. where Captains of the King's Guards, which being (by the cuſtom of the Jews, Egyptians, Chaldeans, and Romans) executioners of thoſe whom the King condemned to death, it is here therefore appointed to one of theſe to go, and behead the Baptiſt, which accordingly is done.

e. Πρασιαὶ

V. 39. By companies] Of the manner of accubitus, or lying at meat, we have formerly ſpoken, and ſo of the cuſtom of eating in gardens, and lying on beds, or areolæ, or πρασιαὶ in them (ſee note on Mat. 8.g.) All that will be needful here to add, is the obſerving of the phraſes of πρασιαὶ πρασιαὶ, Συμπόσια Συμπόσια, ἀνὰ ἀνὰ, the two former clearly taken from the Hebrews, who want phraſes of diſtribution, and uſe doubling of words in their ſtead. So δύο δύο v. 7. two two, (like איש איש, אדם אדם man man) that is, man by man, one by one (in imitation of which is εἷς καθεὶς, Joh. 8.9.) And for the ἀνὰ ἀνὰ it is the very form uſed by Phyſicians in their Recipe's, to note the ſeveral proportions of each ingredient, as here the number of the gueſts, which were ranked or marſhall'd together by Chriſt the ἀρχιτρίκλινος, who, as the ἐπιστάτης Συμποσίου, Maſter of the feaſt John 2. or the ἑλεαρχοὶ in Athenæus, (for which we read corruptly ἑλεαρχοὶ in Heſychius) hath the care of preparing and ordering the feaſt and gueſts, and ſo ranks them here, an hundred in one rank, fifty in another. Another phraſe like unto this we have Luke 9.14. καλακλίνατε κλισίας ἀνὰ πεντήκοντα, make them lye down fifty in a bed.

f. Ἀγρὸς

V. 46. Country] Ἀγρὸς which literally and primarily ſignifies a field, ſignifieth alſo the region or country about, all beſide the City, Ἀγρὸς ὁ ἔξω τῆς πόλεως χώρος, the region without the city, ſaith Phavorinus, and ſo the Latin, ager, is uſually taken.

Paraphraſe.

1. THen came together unto him the Phariſees, and certain of the Scribes, which came from Jeruſalem.

4. And when they come from the market or hall of judgment, or any the like mixt aſſemblies, they waſh their hands ſolemnly, (for fear they may have been defiled there) before they eat. And in their matter of waſhing, many other ordinances there are, which they think themſelves bound to obſerve, as laws divine, as the waſhing of cups to drink in, of pots containing ſomewhat above a pint, of brazen veſſels (when earthen veſſels, if defiled, were to be broken) and alſo of beds, on which they did eat them, as now on tables. b. c.

15. There is nothing from without a man that entring into him can defile him, but things which come out of him thoſe are they which defile a man.]

15. As for your queſtion v. 5. about waſhing, know this, that the true and real pollutions, which God would have all men to avoid, are not thoſe which come from the meats and drinks, and ſuch external things, but thoſe of wicked thoughts and words and actions, thoſe are the great defilements principally aimed at in the legal prohibitions, and forbidden by them.

16. If any man hath ears to hear, let him hear.]

16. Take notice of what I ſay, though it be contrary to the rules of purity, as they are underſtood and practiſed by you, for this is a Reformation, that I am ſent to work in your law.

19. Becauſe it entreth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, purging all meats.]

20. But as in the law of Moſes it is obſervable that the excrements and whatſoever (almoſt) comes out of a man, polluted all it touched, Deut. 23.13.

20. And he ſaid, That which cometh out of the man, that defileth a man.]

21, 22. So thereby is ſignified, that all defilements of the man are thoſe that come from within him, having their beginning from mens wicked will and choice, ſuch are evil machinations, or conſpiracies, (ſee Note on Mat.15.e.) adulteries, fornications, homicides, thefts, inordinate luſts, (ſee Note on Rom.1.h.) villanies, cheating, effeminacy, envy, and covetouſneſs, calumniatings, haughtineſs, or deſpiſing of others, fooliſh vain-glorious boaſting.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. VII.

a. Κοινὸς

V. 2. Defiled] The word κοινὸς ſignifies two things, polluted and common, and is no more to be rendred common, when the ſenſe is for unclean, then it ſhould be rendred unclean when the ſenſe is for common. From this firſt notion of the word polluted, is the Latine word cœnum, a ſink or mire, and the verb κοινῶ is turned into the old Latin, quino, from whence inquino to pollute is now in uſe, which notes this notion of it for polluted to be an ancient and primitive, not any Metaphorical ſecondary notion of it: In this notion it is uſed for any thing that is forbidden by the Ceremonial Laws of the Jewiſh worſhip, as being oppoſite to clean or lawful; Thus meat which is by that law forbidden, is call'd κοινὸς polluted, 1 Mac. 1.50. ὕεια καὶ χοίρια κοινὰ, ſwines fleſh, and forbidden, polluted or unclean cattel, and ſo v. 65. Thus Acts 10. 14. and 11. 8. and Rom. 14. 14. Hebr. 10. 29. and from thence κοινῶν to defile, Mat. 15. 11. and in ſeveral other places. So ſay the Grammarians, κοινὸν ſignifies βδελυκτὸν, ἀκάθαρτον, abominable, or unclean, that is, ſuch as in the reputation, and by the prohibition of the Law, are made ſuch. Thus when not by ſtrict law of Moſes, but (which among the Phariſees was all one) by the tradition of their Elders, or injunctions of the Rabbins among them, they were to waſh, whenſoever they eat any meat, hands unwaſh'd at ſuch a time, are κοιναὶ χεῖρες, polluted hands, that is, guilty of the breach of thoſe laws, which in their opinion required this conſtant waſhing before meat. So Maimonides on * Miſnaioth. Dicimus non licere homini panem edere, antequam manus laverit: We ſay a man muſt not eat bread before he waſh his hands. And Lib. Tad. * Tract. Berachoth, Quicunque comederit panem, ſuper quem dicitur benedictio Hammotſi, Benedictus qui producit panem, opus eſt ut lavet manus antè & poſt, Whoſoever eats the bread, over which they recite the benediction Hammotſi, Bleſſed be he that produceth bread, he muſt waſh his hands before and after. By this is noted, not all kind of eating, for ſay the Rabbins, Super illud quod non vocatur proprie panis, over that which is not properly called bread, as cakes made of honey and ſugar and almonds, &c.) they recite not the benediction Hammotſi. And therefore 'tis not ſimply eating here, but eating bread, v.2, and 5. To this cuſtom refers that of John 2. 6. where the veſſels of water, which were there at the feaſt, are ſaid to be κατὰ τὸν καθαρισμὸν Ἰουδαίων, according to the Jews cuſtom of waſhing always before meat, that is, ſtood there for that uſe, or purpoſe. Now for the manner of waſhing, what it was, is here deſcrib'd described v.3. πυγμῇ νίψωνται τὰς χεῖρας, they wash their hands to the wrist: The word πυγμὴ is the hand up to the wrist, and is indeed but a part of the χεὶρ in the critical notion of it. For χεὶρ is taken in Homer and Hippocrates and other Authors for the whole arm, (of which πῆχυς which the Anatomists use out of Hesiod and ἀκρόχειρ, the extream part of it, in Hippocrates, is the hand peculiarly) and so it seems to be taken, 1 Mac. 15.30. ἐπὶ χεῖρα σὺν τῷ ὤμῳ φέρειν εἰς τὴν πόλιν, to carry the arm, (not hand) with the shoulder to the city, just as in Homer he that stroke one on the shoulder* with his sword, is said to have cut off his χεὶρ, that is, his arm doubtless. Agreeably to this notion the word ἀκροχειριάζειν in the Agonies signifies to cuff at the arms end, as we call it, and is all one with πυκτεύειν, one of the five exercises in the Olympick games. Which makes it clear, that by πύγμη is meant the hand with the wrist (which Theophylact with less exactness renders μέχρι ἀγκῶνος up to the elbow) for so 'tis the manner of the Jews to wash with their hands held up, that the water may come down so far, to such a part of the wrist, which they call the elevation of their hands, and so here πυγμῇ νίψασθαι χεῖρας is clearly to wash with this elevation, this rite or ceremony usual in their washings, and to wash thus far. So Maimonides, Tract. Berachoth, where he asks the question, Quousque pertingat manuum lotio, how far the washing of the hands reacheth, and answers עד הפרק usque ad Perek, by Perek understanding that joynt, which sets on the arm to the hand. So Joseph Ben Levi, and R. Alphes, that to wash the hands according to the rite of the Sanctuary, it must be ad eam compaginem, quæ ad finem manus est, to that joynt which is at the end of the hand, that is, to the wrist. So R. Solomo Bar Nathan, before eating bread properly so called, requires washing of the hands up to the wrists. See Mr. Po. Miscell. p. 367, &c. Of this use of the word πυγμὴ we have a clear example in Palladius Lausiac. Hist. κεφ. ϙμγ. where Salvia seeing Jubinus νιπτῆρα λαβόντα νίψασθαι τὰς χεῖρας καὶ τοὺς πόδας πυγμῇ, take a laver and wash his hands and his feet πυγμῇ) tells him, that she was now sixty years old, and that ἐκτὸς τῶν ἄκρων χειρῶν, καὶ αὐτὸ διὰ κοινωνίαν, οὐκ ἄψις ἦλθε ὕδατος, ὁ πῶς, οὐδὲ ἄλλο τι τῶν μερῶν, except her ἄκρων χειρῶν, and that for the receiving the Communion, neither her face, nor feet, nor any other part had ever touched water, where though the interpreter Gentianus Hervetus render πυγμῇ palmis, and ἄκρων χειρῶν extremis manibus, yet the matter is clear, that πυγμὴ signifies the hands and wrists together, and, applied to the feet also, the feet and ancles, and ἄκρων χειρῶν the hands only, which, as was said, are called ἀκρὸ χειρες, the extreme parts of the χεῖρες, as that signifies arms.

* vid. Septal. in Arist. problem, p. 127.

* c. 8. § 4.

b. Ἀγορᾶ

V. 4. Market] Ἀγορὰ signifies any promiscuous or popular assembly. These (setting aside the sacred assemblies, which are otherwise express'd) are principally of two sorts, either 1. to buy and sell, or 2ly, to resort for justice, and the word here used commonly signifies both, or either of these, 1. a fair or market, 2ly, a place of judicature, an hall or court of judgment. From the first is ἀγοράζω to buy, most ordinarily used in that sense, and rendred ἀνεῖσθαι by Hesychius, but yet withal signifies to that other sense, and is by him rendred not only in common to both, ἐν ἀγορᾷ διατρίβειν, to spend ones time in foro, but in particular, respecting these courts of justice, ἢ ἐν τῷ δικαστηρίῳ διατρίβειν. And ἀγορεύεσθαι saith he, is διαλέγεσθαι, where that of consulting and debating or pleading, belongs to the Courts, not Markets: From this latter notion of the word, comes ἀγορεία, for δικαιολογία, a given of justice, and Ἀγορεία, δίκαι in Hesychius, and ἡ ἀγορὰ for a court day, (see Note on Acts 19. 1.) And so 'tis probable that Acts 17. 5. ἀγοραῖοι are the officers of their courts, serjeants, &c. and the Jews taking to them some of the wickedest of those, and so raising a tumult, will be parallel to our calling a Constable, and raising the town, which by malicious men, by the help of wicked officers, may be against Apostles, or any the best of men, as there it was against S. Paul. Thus the word ἀγορὰ clearly signifies, Acts 16. 19. where at Philippi the owners or masters of the Pythoness, conceiving themselves injured by S. Paul, apprehended him, and drew him εἰς τὴν ἀγορὰν, to the hall, ἐπὶ τοὺς ἀρχοντας, to the Roman magistrates there. The question now being, [in which of these senses the word ἀγορὰ should be taken in this place] cannot be decided from the nature of the word, which bears both indifferently, but from the business in hand which is the tradition of washing among the Jews. That, we know, was upon any legal uncleanness, or suspicion of having contracted any such. And to that all promiscuous assemblies were liable, where Heathens were usually intermix'd, or possibly Jews under some legal uncleanness. But at this time when the Jews were under the Roman Procurators, their Courts of Judicature were most eminently so, the Procurator or his Band or Guard of Soldiers being always there. On this ground it is distinctly said, Joh. 28.28. that the Jews would not go in thither, ἵνα μὴ μιανθῶσιν, that they might not be defiled; which testimony makes it clear, that going in to the ἀγορὰ in this sense, into the judgment hall, was by the Jews resolved to be matter of defilement. And there being not any so clear testimony in the Scripture for the other, as it signifies a market, or place of buying and selling, it may be thought remarkable to prefer this interpretation of the word in this place, for a court hall, from whence all Jews that came were oblig'd to wash themselves, as from a legal pollution; But I now rather adhere to that, which * Mr. Pocock hath conceived, in reference to ἀγορὰ, as it signifies a Market, interpreting the place from a rule of the Rabbines set down by Maimonides in these words, Tr. Berachoth, c. 6. בוטל אדם ידיו שחרית ומתנחיל הם כל היום ואינו צריך ליטול ידיו לכל אכולת ואכילה &c. A man shall wash his hands in the morning so that it shall suffice him for the whole day, and he shall not need to wash his hands as oft as he eats; which holds in case he do not avert his mind any other way, (that is, go abroad, or meddle with business, go to the Market, &c.) but if he do so, he is bound to wash his hands as oft as there is need of washing; that is, before he eat or pray: And so that may well be the meaning of the place, that the Pharisees eat no meat, before they have wash'd their hands, and in case after the morning washing they go to the market, or fall to any worldly business, wherein there may be very easily some legal pollution, they must wash their hands again before they dine.

* Not. Miscell. c. 9.

Ib. Wash] The word here used βαπτίζεσθαι (as it differs from νίπτεσθαι v. 3.) signifies not only the washing of the whole body, (as when 'tis said of Eupolis (which wrote the Tragedy call'd Baptæ against Alcibiades) that being taken and thrown into the sea, ἐβαπτίζετο, he was immers'd all over, and so the baptisms of cups, &c. in the end of this verse, is putting into water all over, rincing them) but washing any part, as the hands here, by way of immersion in water, as that is opposed to affusion, or pouring water on them. For that is all the difference, saith learned Mr. Pocock, observable in Hebrew betwixt טבל and רחץ, and that the former notes immersion, the other affusion of water, both indifferently used of any part, and both sometimes for any kind of washing that part. And so βαπτίζεσθαι Luke 11.38. is plainly used for the washing of hands before meat. What is here affirm'd of the Pharisees washings is observed by Epiphanius of the Essens, who yet seem to have had it, as they had much more, from the Pythagorean Philosophers, whose doctrine it is ἡ ἁγνεία εἶναι διὰ καθαρσίων καὶ λουτρῶν καὶ περιῤῥαντηρίων, that purity was to be obtained by purgations, and irrigations and washings.

V. 22. Foolishness] Of the several notions that the word ἀφροσύνη imprudence, or folly may be capable of, that which seems most proper to this place, is that of boasting, which is the most unseemly thing, and so the most contrary to prudence, or wisdom of conversation. In this sense the word is used 2 Cor. 11. 1, 19. (and μανία madness, v. 23.) and ch. 12. 6, 11. where he foresees that his speeches for the justifying of his Apostleship against the Seducers will by them be accounted boasting, and being so, he knows it must go for folly. In this notion it will accord, and associate very well with βλασφημία calumny, and ὑπερηφανία pride, which immediately precede, the calumniating, faſtuous (inſolent) and vain-glorious behaviour, going ordinarily together.

e. Μογιλαλος

V. 32. Impediment, &c.] The word μογιλάλ☉ ſignifies one of an impedite, ſtammering ſpeech, one that was tongue-tied, and to that the next verſe ſeems to agree, where we read ἐλύθη ὁ δεσμὸς, the ſtring that tied his tongue, was looſed; and ſo 'tis interpreted here by the Syriack. But it may ſeem here more agreeable, to take it as all one with ἀλαλ☉ ſpeechleſs; for, 1. ſo 'tis recited in the end of the Chapter, v. 37. he makes the deaf to hear, and the dumb to ſpeak, which is evidently their obſervation upon this particular miracle. 2. The Hebrew word אלם, which ſignifies dumb, and is rendred ordinarily ἀλαλ☉, κωφὸς, ἄφων☉, ἲνε☉, all words to expreſs perfect dumbneſs, is twice rendred μογιλάλ☉, Exod. 14. 11. and Iſaiah 35.6. where yet in both places, the ſenſe bears, totally dumb, and not only of a ſtammering ſpeech. In the firſt place, Who makes the dumb, or deaf, the ſeeing, or blind? In the ſecond, The lame ſhall leap as an hart, and the Tongue of the dumb ſhall ſing.

CHAP. VIII.

1. IN thoſe days the multitude being very great, and having nothing to eat, Jeſus called his diſciples unto him, and ſaith unto them,

2. I have compaſſion on the multitude, becauſe they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat.

3. And if I ſend them away faſting to their own houſes, [they will faint by the way,] for divers of them came from far.

3. Either they will faint for want of refreſhment, or elſe to get victuals they will be ſcattered and diſperſed from one another, See note on Mat. 9. m.

4. And his diſciples anſwered him, From whence can a man ſatisfie theſe men with bread here in the wilderneſs?

5. And he asked them, How many loaves have ye? and they ſaid, Seven.

6. And he commanded the people to † ſit down on the ground, and he took the ſeven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his diſciples to ſet before them, and they [did ſet them before the people.]

† lie down ἀναπεσεῖν

6 Diſtributed them, gave every one of the multitude a portion.

7. And they had a few ſmall fiſhes, and he bleſſed, and [commanded to ſet them alſo before them.]

7. Appointed them to give every one a piece of fiſh.

8. So they did eat and were filled, and they took up of the broken meat that was left, ſeven baskets.

9. And they that had eaten were about four thouſand, and he ſent them away.

10. And ſtraightway he entred into a ſhip with his diſciples, and came into [* the parts of Dalmanutha.]

* or, the borders of Magedon, for the old Gr. & Lat. MS. reads Ορια Μαδζαδᾶ.

11. And the Phariſees came forth and began to † queſtion with him, [ſeeking of him a ſign from heaven, tempting him.]

† diſpute with him, demanding σημεῖον αὐτῷ ζητοῦντες

11. Requiring him to ſhew them ſome miracle from heaven, by which they might know him to be a Prophet, but this they did not out of ſincerity of heart, to believe in him upon any ſuch miracle, (of which they had ſtore already) but only to enſnare him.

12. And he * ſighed deeply in his ſpirit, and ſaith, Why doth this generation ſeek after a ſign? Verily I ſay unto you, There ſhall no ſign be given unto this generation.]

* groaned ἀναστενάξας

12. Hereupon ſaith Chriſt in a great ſadneſs, This is an infidel perverſe ſort of people, miracles would be caſt away upon theſe, and therefore they ſhall not be afforded them upon asking, only that great miracle of my riſing from death, typified by that which befel Jonas, Mat. 16.4. that ſhall be afforded them.

13. And he left them, and entring into the ſhip again, departed to the other ſide.

14. Now the diſciples had forgotten to take bread, neither had they in their ſhip with them more then one loaf.

15. And he charged them, ſaying, * Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Phariſees, and of the leaven of [Herod.]

* See, take heed of, ὁρᾶτε, βλέπετε

15. See note on Mat. 16.a.

16. And they reaſoned among themſelves, ſaying, [It is becauſe we have no bread.] *do ye diſcourſe that ye have no bread? do ye not yet underſtand nor conſider? Τί διαλογίζεσθε ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἔχετε; οὔπω νοεῖτε οὐδὲ συνίετε;

16. This he ſaith to reproach us for our negligence in providing and bringing victuals with us.

17. And when Jeſus knew it, he ſaith unto them, [Why * reaſon ye becauſe ye have no bread? Perceive ye not yet, neither underſtand? Have ye your heart yet hardned?

17,18. Why ſhould you think that my ſpeech ſhould relate to your having no bread? as if I were not able to ſupply that want, will you never underſtand nor conſider what is done before you? will you always be thus ſenſleſs, thus unimprovable, that nothing can enter into you, making no uſe of eyes, or ears, or memory, after all this?

18. Having eyes, ſee ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and do ye not remember?

19. When I brake the five loaves among five thouſand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? They ſay unto him, Twelve.

20. And when the ſeven among four thouſand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? And they ſaid, Seven.

20. See not on Mat. 16.b.

21. And he ſaid unto them, [* How is it, that ye do not underſtand?]

21. How ſtupidly inconſiderate are you?

22. And he cometh to Bethſaida, and they bring a blind man unto him, and beſought him to touch him.

23. And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had ſpit * on his eyes and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he ſaw ought.

24. I ſee men, but cannot diſtinguiſh them from trees, but that they walk.

25. After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and [made him look up,] and he was reſtored and ſaw every man clearly.

* I ſee men, for as trees, I ſee them walking, or, I behold men, for I ſee as it were trees walking, ſo the Kings MS. and many printed Copies, βλέπω τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, ὅτι ὡς δένδρα ὁρῶ, περιπατοῦντας.

27. Mat. 16. note c.

28. And they anſwered, John the Bap[illegible], but ſome ſay Elias, and others, One of the prophets.

29. And he ſaith unto them, But whom ſay ye that I am? And Peter anſwereth and ſaith unto him, Thou art [the Chriſt.]

22. The long expected Meſſias of the world.

30. And

30. And he charged them that they ſhould [tell no man of him.] 30. Not proclaim him as yet to any that he was the Chriſt, ſee Mat. 16. 20.

31. And he began to teach them, that [the ſon of man muſt ſuffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, of the chief prieſts and ſcribes, and be killed, and after three days riſe again.] 31. The prophecies of the Meſſias could not be fulfilled unleſs he ſuffer, and be rejected, and at laſt put to death by the great conſiſtory or Sanhedrim of Jeruſalem (ſee note on c. 5. c.) and riſe again the third day.

32. And he ſpake that ſaying [openly.] And Peter took him, and began to rebuke him. 32. In the hearing of the people, (ſee note on John 7. a.) or without any figure or parable to involve it, which formerly he had often uſed, John 2. 19 and 3. 14. Mat. 16. 4.

33. But when he had turned about, and looked on his diſciples, he rebuked Peter, [ſaying, Get thee behind me Satan: for thou ſavoureſt not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men.] 33. Telling him, that his propoſal was contrary to the will of God, the prophecies, the end of his coming, the ſalvation of men, and ſuch only as was fit for the adverſary of all theſe to propoſe to him.

34. And when he had called the people unto him, with his diſciples alſo, he ſaid unto them, Whoſoever [will come after me, let him deny himſelf, and take up his croſs and follow me.] 34. Will undertake to be my diſciple, muſt reſolve not to care what becomes of his own ſecular advantages, or of even life it ſelf, but prepare himſelf for the ſame death, that I ſhall die before him, and to follow me as a diſciple both in life and death.

35. For whoſoever will ſave his life, ſhall loſe it; but whoſoever ſhall loſe his life for my ſake and the Goſpels, the ſame ſhall ſave it.

36. For what ſhall it profit a man if he ſhall gain the whole world and loſe his own ſoul?] 35, 36. And let me tell him, that the great care of preſerving himſelf, if it make him to deny or forſake me, in the purſuit of it, ſhall not be a probable courſe of ſtanding him in any ſtead in this world, it ſhall be the very means to deſtroy many, who, if they continued firm to their profeſſion, might probably eſcape (ſee Mat. 16. 25.) and however the advantages to the conſtant, and loſſes to the cowardly, in another life, are infinitely above all other conſiderations.

37. Or what ſhall a man give in exchange for his ſoul?] 37. The loſing of life here, if it happen by an unchriſtian deſire to ſave it, or however, everlaſting death, is ſo great a loſs, that nothing elſe is worth having, that is ſo purchaſed.

38. Whoſoever therefore ſhall be aſhamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and ſinful generation, of him alſo ſhall the ſon of man be aſhamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father, with his holy Angels. 38. See note on Mat. 18. m. n.

Annotations on Chap. VIII.

a. Ἀναβλέπω. V. 24. Looked up] The word ἀναβλέπω joined with εἰς ὐρανὸν, to heaven, ſignifies to look up, or lift up the eyes that way. So Mat. 14. 19. Mark 6. 41. and 7. 34. Luke 9. 16. and thus it is uſed of perſons that did ſee, nay being ſpoken of them, it is ſometimes uſed in that ſenſe, without εἰς added to it, as Luke 19. 5. Chriſt's looking up is his looking up to the tree, the mention of Zacheus's climbing up to the tree, intimating it as clearly, as if it had been expreſs'd. And Luke 21. 1. it is ſimply to ſee or behold, being ſpoken of Chriſt, who ſitting over againſt the treaſury, Mark 12. 41. ἀνέβλεψε look'd upon them that caſt in, &c. But the word is generally uſed of blind perſons, and then ſignifies recovering of ſight, See Mat. 11. 5. 20. 34. Mark 10. 51, 52. Luke 7. 22. 18, 41, 42, 43. John 9. 11. 15. 18. Acts 9. 12, 18. & 22. 13. So ἀνάβλεψις is recovering of ſight, Luke 4. 18. And therefore in all reaſon it muſt in theſe two places alſo be ſo interpreted.

CHAP. IX.

1. AND he ſaid, Verily I ſay unto you [There be ſome of them that ſtand here, which ſhall not taſte of death till they have ſeen the kingdom of God come with power.] 1. In this generation, Mat. 24. 34. before the death of ſome that are here, particularly of John, John 21. 22. ſhall be that famous coming of Chriſt as a king for that act of revenge upon his crucifyers, and deſtroying the Jewiſh ſtate, ſee note on Mat. 3. c. and on Mat. 17. a. and 24. b.

2. And after ſix days Jeſus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up into an high mountain apart by themſelves, and he was [transfigured] before them. 2. Changed into another form or manner of appearance.

3. And his rayment became ſhining, exceeding white as ſnow, ſo as no [a] fuller on earth can white them.

4. And there appeared unto them Elias with Moſes, and they were talking with Jeſus.

5. And Peter [anſwered and ſaid unto Jeſus, Maſter, it is good for us to be here. Let us make three tabernacles, one for thee, one for Moſes, and one for Elias. 5, 6. Said to Jeſus, Lord, what a bleſſing is this to us to be made partakers of this

And not knowing what to ſpeak, being together with his tranſportation of joy, in a great fright alſo (as the reſt of them were, ſo that they fell on their faces, Mat. 17. 6.) he ſpake he knew not what, ſaying, We will make three tents or tabernacles, one for thee and us, &c.

7. And there was a cloud that over-ſhadowed them, and a voice came out of the cloud, ſaying, [This is my beloved ſon, hear him.] 7. This is he whom I have appointed to reveal my whole will unto you, whatſoever he tells you is perfectly my will and pleaſure, and he himſelf the only eternal ſon of God, whom therefore you and all the world are obliged to hearken to and obey.

8. And ſuddenly when they had looked round about, [they ſaw no man any more] ſave Jeſus only and themſelves. 8. Elias and Moſes were vaniſhed out of ſight, and none left.

9. And as they came down from the mountain, he charged them that they ſhould tell no man what things they had ſeen, till the ſon of man were riſen from the dead.

10. And they * kept that ſaying within themſelves, queſtioning one with another, What the riſing of the dead ſhould mean.

11. And they asked him ſaying, [† Why ſay the Scribes that Elias muſt firſt come? 11. And upon occaſion of what they ſaw and heard in the Mount (ſee note on Mat. 17. a.) they asked Chriſt, ſaying, Is it not reſolved by all that are skill'd in the prophecies of Scripture, that Elias muſt come, before that great day, that Moſes and Elias talked of with thee?

12. And he anſwered and told them, Elias verily cometh firſt and reſtoreth all things and how is it written of the ſon of man, that he muſt ſuffer many things, and be ſet at naught. 12, 13. And he anſwered them, ſaying, It is no doubt propheſied of Elias, Mal. 4, 5. that he ſhould come before the great and terrible day of the Lord, that is, the deſtruction of the Jews, on purpoſe to convert, and deliver them from it, v. 6. But let me tell you, John Baptiſt is this Elias, and he, ye know is come already as well as I, and they have uſed him, as Ahab uſed Elias, when he was here on earth, ſtood out obdurate againſt

13. But I ſay unto you that Elias is * indeed come, and they have done unto him whatſoever they liſted, as it is written of him.]

See Mat. 17. 11, 12.

14. And when he came to his diſciples, he ſaw a great multitude about them, and the Scribes queſtioning with them.

15. And ſtreightway all the people, when they beheld him, were greatly amazed, and running to him, ſaluted him.

16. About what do you queſtion the diſciples? v. 14.

16. And he asked the Scribes [*What queſtion ye with them?]

*What do ye diſpute among your ſelves? according to ſome copies which read αὐτὰς, not αὐτὰς.

17. A diſeaſe which when it is upon him takes away his ſpeech (an Epilepſy, Luke 9. 39.) and hearing, v. 25.

17. And one of the multitude anſwered and ſaid, Maſter, I have brought unto thee my ſon which hath [a dumb ſpirit.]

18. And whereſoever it taketh him, † he b teareth him, and he foameth, and gnaſheth with his teeth, and pineth away, and I ſpake to thy diſciples, that they ſhould caſt him out, and they could not.

20. Put him into a fit.

20. And they brought him unto him, and when he ſaw him, ſtreightway the ſpirit [* tare c him] and he fell on the ground, and wallowed foaming.

c.

21. And he asked his father, How long is it ago ſince this came unto him; And he ſaid of a child?

22. And oft-times it hath caſt him into the fire, and into the waters [to deſtroy him] but if thou canſt do any thing, have compaſſion on us, and help us.

22. So as to endanger his life.

23. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [If thou canſt believe] all things are poſſible to him that believeth.

23. If thou canſt believe me to be able to do it, thou mayeſt then be capable of this Miracle; For

24. And ſtraightway the father of the child cryed out, and ſaid with tears, Lord, I believe, [help thou mine unbelief.]

24. And whatever degree of faith is wanting in me, I beſeech thee to pardon, and repair it in me.

25. When Jeſus ſaw that the people came running together, he [rebuked the foul ſpirit, ſaying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf ſpirit] I charge thee come out of him, and enter no more into him.

25. Commanded the devil that inflicted that diſeaſe, ſaying, Thou evil ſpirit which afflicteſt this perſon ſo ſorely, that he can neither ſpeak nor hear.

28. And when he was come into the houſe [his diſciples asked him privately, d Why could not we caſt him out?]

29. And he ſaid unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing but by prayer, and faſting.]

29. And he told them that to the curing of this diſeaſe they ought to have faſted and prayed, and their not uſing that means (which they ought to have uſed) was it that made them not able to do it, and that was the culpable omiſſion, which he reprehended in them, v. 19. See Mat. 17. 21.

30, 31. And Chriſt now determined to be more private, ſeeing and telling his diſciples how little good was now likely to be done by his farther miracles, it being certain that the chief of the Jews would, inſtead of believing on him, put him to death, but as this ſhould be, ſo within three days he ſhould riſe again, and that would be a proper means to convince ſome. See note on Mat. 8. b.

30. And they departed thence and paſſed through Galilee [and he would not that any man ſhould know it.

31. For he taught his diſciples and ſaid unto them, The ſon of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they ſhall kill him, and after he is killed, that he ſhall riſe the third day.]

32. But they underſtood not that ſaying, and were afraid to ask him.

33. And he came to Capernaum, and being in the houſe he asked them, What was it that ye diſputed among your ſelves by the way?

34. They had, as they went along, fallen into a contention which of them was to be preferred before, to take place of the reſt.

34. But they held their peace: for [by the way they had diſputed among themſelves ‖ who ſhould be the greateſt.]

a. ὀπὶ τῆς γῆς.

V.3. Fuller on earth] 'Tis poſſible there may be a meaning in the phraſe ὀπὶ τῆς γῆς, which is not ordinarily taken notice of, yet becauſe 'tis but a conjecture, I have neither put it into the margent nor Paraphraſe, but only left it to be mentioned here. The Fuller, whoſe work it is to cleanſe, and dreſs cloath, doth for theſe purpoſes uſe a kind of earth, which is therefore ordinarily known by the name of fuller's earth, which hath a ſpecial cleanſing whitening faculty in it, beyond all other things. This 'tis poſſible may be here look'd on, in the deſcription of the whiteneſs of the appearance of Chriſt's garments, that 'twas ſo pure a degree of white, that no fuller by, or with earth could be able to whiten any thing ſo. And tho' the prepoſition ὀπὶ do not favour this interpretation, yet the promiſcuous uncertain uſe of Prepoſitions among ſacred writers is ſo obſervable, that it may take off much of that one objection. For thus is ὀπὶ uſed, Acts 3. 16. in the ſenſe of διὰ, ὀπὶ τῇ πίστει by faith, as by a means. And if it be ſo rendred here, it will bear this ſenſe, No fuller by, or by means of earth can ſo whiten any thing. So 1 Cor. 8.10. ὀπὶ τῇ σῇ γνώσει, by thy knowledge. Otherwiſe it is uſed for with, Phil. 1.3. ὀπὶ πάσῃ τῇ μνείᾳ ὑμῶν, cum omni memoria veſtri ſaith R. Stephanus, with every remembrance of you. And that rendring will agree to this ſenſe alſo. But the truth is, neither of theſe three examples come perfectly home to it, they being in the Dative, this in the Genitive caſe, and ſo I leave it as a conjecture, and only add that in Theophraſtus's character of a niggardly perſon, πολλὴ γῆ ſignifies much of this fuller's earth. πρὸς τὰς γναφέας διαλεινόμενος, ὅπως τὸ ἱμάτιον αὐτοῖς ἔξει πολλὴν γῆν, ἵνα μὴ ῥυπαίνοιτο ταχύ, He earneſtly entreats the Fullers that his garment may have a great deal of earth, that it may not be ſullyed quickly.

b. Ῥήσσω.

V.18. Teareth him] Ῥήσσω, which ſignifies to break or rend, Mat. 7.6. and 9.17. Mark. 2.22. Luke 5.37. (and to break out, Gal. 4.27. that is, to ſpeak, ἐκρῆξαι φωνὴν, ῥῆσαι λόγον, ſaith Heſychius, and ῥηξάτω, πραξάτω) ſignifies alſo to beat, or throw down, upon, or againſt the ground, and is by Tertullian according to that latitude of the word rendred evertere, to throw down, Mat. 7.6. (tho' the context in that place ſeems not to own it, the treading under foot going before, not following it) thus is προσέρρηξεν ὁ ποταμὸς, the river, being ſwelled into a torrent, beat upon the houſe, Luke 6.49. and upon it follows in the next words, εὐθέως ἔπεσε, preſently it fell. Inſtead of it, St. Matthew in the parallel place, Mat. 7. 25, 27. reads προσέπεσον and προσέκοψαν, fell upon. And ſo in the end of the verſe in St. Luke ὧν ἡ πτῶσις αὐτῆς μεγάλη, the fall of it was great. Thus doth Heſychius render the word ῥῆξαι, not only διελεῖν to divide, or break in pieces, but καταβαλεῖν alſo, to throw down, (as here, v.22. 'tis expreſſed by ἔβαλεν) and again Ῥῆξε, διέῤῥηξε, κατέβαλεν, ἀπέλυσεν (perhaps it ſhould be ἀπέχυσε, for ſo נטש which is rendred ῥήγνυμι, is alſo ἐκχύω, Hoſ. 12. 14. (and ſo Luke 5.37.) and διαχύω, 1 Sam. 30.16. to pour on the ground) and διέκοψεν. Thus in this place the Syriack and the old Latine took it, and ſo the Hebrew הרס that is by the Septuagint rendred ῥήγνυμι is καταβάλλειν alſo, Job 12.14. Ezek. 26. 4, 12. and καθαιρέφω and καταστρέφω to ſubvert and caſt down, and ſo נטש καταβάλλω, Ezek. 29. 5. and 31.12. and ἐδαφίζω, to lay on the ground, or daſh againſt the ground, Ezek. 31. 12. and σφάλλω ὀπὶ γῆς, to throw on the ground, Amos 5. 6. is ῥήγνυμι, Iſa. 33. 2, 3. and ῥάσσω, Jer. 23.33. and 39. and Mat. 17. 15. where this diſeaſe is deſcribed, as alſo here, v. 22. 'tis ſaid that he falls into the fire, and into the water, as here ὅπου ἂν, where ever it takes him, if by the fire-ſide, it throws him into the fire, if by the water into that. To this the whole ſtory of this Mans diſeaſe perfectly agrees, being directly the Falling-ſickneſs.

* ad uxor. 2.

V. 20. Tare him] What is the full notion of ἐσπάραξεν may be ſeen by the ancient Grammarians. Σπάραγμα, ζεσμὸς ταραχή. Σπαραττόμεθα, ζεόμεθα, ταραττόμεθα, ſaith Phavorinus out of Heſychius. The word ſignifies ſuch a ſtir or tumult within one, as in a pot or cauldron is joined with boyling or ſeething, and produceth a froth or foam at the top, and ſo is a clear deſcription of an Epilepſy, which doth ſo boyl within, as to cauſe a foaming at the mouth both here and Luke 9. 39. Some Manuſcript copies read ἐτάραξεν for it, troubled, diſquieted, put him in a commotion. c. Σπαράσσω. i i V.28. Why] Ὅτι here muſt ſignify διὰ τί; wherefore; ſee note on Luke 7. c. and ſo the Kings MS reads it, Ὅτι. διὰ τί ἡμεῖς, and the ancient Greek and Latin MS. and others in like manner. d.

V.47.

e. Ἁλίζομαι

V. 47. Salted] The word ἁλίζομαι is made answerable to the Hebrew מלח and is, Isa. 51. 6. set by Symmachus to signify consumed, in like manner as the ὁλοκαύτωμα, the whole burnt offering is consumed, burnt all of it with fire; which is answerable to the πῦρ ἄσβεστον, unquenchable fire going before, and so the meaning of this expression will be here, that that first sort of men, the Apostates, or wicked carnal Christians, the subject of the former verses (to which therefore the universal particle πᾶς every one, is to be restrained, as in Scripture 'tis frequent to restrain it) shall be used as the burnt offerings are, they shall have fire instead of salt, but the pious minded Christian, like the Minchah, shall have the * salt, the grace of God and Christian doctrine, and by Gods help make use of it to eat up all his corruptions, and degrees of putrefaction left in him, and also to be a principle of union and peaceable mindedness in him, v 50. as among other uses of salt it is said to be ἰνωτικὸς unitive also, (see note f.) and is accordingly used in covenants and confederations, and thence, Lev. 2. is the salt of the Covenant of God. But it is not unlikely that in this place and that of Isaiah) ἁλισθήσεται may be put for ἁλωθήσεται (or ἀναλωθήσεται) which signifies first to be caught, then to be consumed, so ἅλωσις, 2 Pet. 2. 12. is preying upon, and joyned with φθορὰ destroying or consuming. So Isa. 66. (whence the former words, their worm never eyeth, and their fire, &c. v. 24. are taken) after the mention of Gods pleading by fire, v. 16. is added, v. 17. ἅμα τε αὐτὸ ἀναλωθήσονται, they shall be consumed together. The agreeableness of this interpretation both to the words, and to the context, shews how unnecessarily that conjecture was taken up by * Jos. Scaliger, of the text being corrupted πᾶς πυρὶ, for πᾶσα πυρία, taking πυρία for אשה Lev. 2. when neither any one copy gives countenance to the emendation, nor the Septuagint, or any other ancient author have ever used this word πυρία for אשה. And then it is strange to conceive, what should suggest those inordinate expressions, which there follow in that Epistle, especially this, Mea est vera hujus loci interpretatio, quem fœdissima menda ab incunabilis usque ipsius Christianismi invasit. Sunt & alia passim in textum Evangelicum ab ultima vetustate vitia admissa, quæ nemo præter me indicaverit. Et hoc quod jam aperuimus præcipuum est ex omnibus. Qui aliquo sensu communi præditus est, non poterit non laudare sententiam nostram. Nihil enim verius esse potest.

* So Plin. Nat. Hist. l. 31. c. 7. of Salt, Maxime in sacris intelligitur ejus auctoritas, quando nulla conficiantur sine mola salsa: and Plato, that it is, θεῖον εἶλον σῶμα, a body grateful to God.

V. 50. Salt] That salt is σύμβολον φιλίας καὶ εἰρήνης, a symbol significative of friendship and peace, is ordinarily said; in reference to which is that of Eschines de ement it. Legat. τὰς ἁλὰς τῆς πόλεως ἅλας, the salt of the city, meaning thereby the publick peace and prosperity, and from hence saith * Eustathius τοῖς ἀπεζευγμένοις παρατίθεντο ἅλες πρὸ τῶν ἄλλων βρωμάτων, salt before all other meats was set before the guests. The only difficulty is, from whence this custom sprang, or wherein this symbolical nature of salt consists, and that is answered by the same Eustathius, ὡς δὲ ἐξ ὑδάτων πολλῶν καὶ χυλῶν παγεὶς, ἓν τι στερεὸν γέγονε σῶμα, οὕτω καὶ οἱ συνελθόντες εἰς φιλίαν ἐκ διεστώτων εἰς ἕν, τῷ τε τόπῳ καὶ τῇ φιλικῇ διαθέσει ξυνήχθησαν, for as salt being compacted of many drops of water, every one in it self fluid and unsteady, becomes one solid body; so they that from distant places conjoyn into a league of friendship, meet together both in place and friendly disposition.

CHAP. X.

1. Departed from Galilee, Mat. 19. 1.

1. AND he [rose from thence] and cometh into the coasts of Judea by the farther side of Jordan. And the people resort unto him again, and as he was wont, he taught them again.

2. Is it lawful for a man, upon a dislike of his wife, for other causes besides fornication, to put her away? This they asked out of an intention to ensnare him, knowing his doctrine in this matter, Mat. 5. 32. contradicted that liberty which they had by Moses.

2. And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, [Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? tempting him.]

3. And he answered and said unto them, What did Moses command you?

4. Moses gave us liberty to do so, Deut. 24. 1.

4. And they said, [Moses suffered to write a Bill of divorcement, and to put her away.]

5. This law wherein that was permitted by Moses, was written to provide by that means against the inflexibleness, and persuasibleness of the Jews hearts, which, if this were forbidden them, would be apt to commit some greater villany.

5. And Jesus answered and said unto them, [For the hardness of your hearts he wrote you this precept.]

6, 7, 8, 9. But the prime law of the creation was quite otherwise, making the union between husband & wife a sacred thing, that must not be violated by any. See note on 2 Pet. 1. 6.

6. But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female.

7. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife.

8. And they twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain but one flesh.

9. What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder.]

10. And in the house his disciples asked him again of the same matter.

11. By living as an husband with her, whom he marries, when he is the husband of another, and causeth his own wife, from whom he thus unreconcilably parteth, to commmit adultery, Mat. 5. 32. that is, giveth her great occasion, and temptation, and danger to do so.

11. And he saith unto them, Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery [against her.]

a. 12. Part with her husband, do her part in absolving the husband from his band to her, and make use of it, to marry her self again to another.

12. And if a woman shall a [put away her husband and be married to another, she committeth adultery.]

13. And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them, and his disciples rebuked those that brought them.

14. They are of that temper of innocence and simplicity (and being impotent themselves, resign themselves up to be aided and sustained by others) that they are of all others the fittest emblems of those, of whom the Christian Church is made up here, and heaven hereafter.

14. But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for [of such is the kingdom of God.]

15. And he that shall not come to Christianity as a little child, with that very humility, and self-denyal and resignation, and sole dependence on Christ, as is observable in one of this age, shall never be received or entertained by Christ.

15. Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.

16. And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them.

17. A young man, Mat. 19. 20. a ruler, Luke 18. 18.

17. And when he was gone forth into the way, * there came [one] running and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good master, what shall I do, that I may inherit everlasting life?

18. The attribute of good belongs truly to none but God, is that thy meaning to acknowledge me such when thou calleſt me by that title?

18. And Jesus said unto him, [Why calleſt thou me good? There is * no man good but one, that is God.]

* or, behold a certain rich man; so the K's MS. reads; ἰδού τις πλούσιος. * none ἰδεὶς.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. X.

a. Ἀπολύειν ἀνδρα

V. 12. Put away her husband] That which is here ſaid convertibly of Divorces, the wife putting away the husband, as the husband the wife, muſt not ſo be underſtood, that the wife hath (or ever had) in any caſe power to put away the husband, though not to marry again, as, in caſe of fornication, the husband may put away the wife; For there is that difference between the Husband and the Wife, that renders one lawful, and not the other, viz. the dominion of the Husband over the Wife, which the Wife, whoſe part is obedience, Gen. 3. 16. 1 Pet. 3.6. hath not back again over the Husband; and accordingly in the Law, though there be a liberty given to the man of putting away the wife, in more caſes then Chriſt allows of, yet there is none given the Wife to put away the Husband in any caſe, and Chriſt, that reſtrained that liberty of the man to the one caſe of Fornication, cannot be thought (and no where appears) to have enlarged, or extended that liberty to the Wife. As for the ſame kind of reſemblance of it here in this text, it will ceaſe to be ſo, by obſerving either of theſe two things; Firſt, that the only thing here in hand in theſe two verſes, is to ſet down the unlawful and adulterous divorces, viz. thoſe that are attended with marrying ſome other, for ſuch are all they equally, whether committed by the man, or woman, and ſo there is no occaſion here to ſtate that other queſtion of lawful divorces, which had been made by the Phariſees, v. 2. and anſwered negatively v. 3. &c. And conſequently all that is here ſaid, is that the Wife, however ſeparated from the Husband, may not marry again, not that ſhe may in any caſe lawfully ſeparate. Many things of this nature there are in the Scripture which are ſpoken only to prepare for ſomewhat elſe, and have themſelves no farther importance, all the weight of the ſpeech lying on that other part to which they prepare. See Note on Mat. 9. d. Secondly, The nature of the word that is here, and in other places of the New Teſtament, uſed for divorcing, falls out to be a word, which ſignifies not putting away, as that notes any act of authority, but abſolving, or releaſing from a debt, or a band, and ſo it may truly be ſaid ἀπολύειν ἄνδρα, that it is only releaſing, abſolving, not putting away, the husband, that is, doing what is in her power to do, but not pretending to more. The Grecians were wont to ſpeak more accurately, calling it on the mans part πέμπειν, to ſend, or ſhut out the wife, but on the wives part, λείπειν, to leave or forſake the Husband, which though practiſed among the heathen ſometimes, yet being but an act of deſertion, it pretends not to any authority over him that is forſaken.

b. Ἀποστερῇς

V. 19. Defraud not] That our Saviour reckons up here the ſix laſt precepts of the Decalogue, containing our duty toward our brethren, that is, toward other men under the Law, is preſently clear to him that conſiders the words, either here, or Mat. 19. From thence it is clear again, that μὴ ἀποστερήσῃς, is S. Mark's rendring of the tenth commandment. And it is obſervable how many ways this commandment is rendred in the Bible, in Exod. 20. and Deut. 5. the Septuagint expreſs it by οὐκ ἐπιθυμήσεις, thou ſhalt not covet, S. Paul Rom. 7. 7. hath the ſame, but S. Mark here μὴ ἀποστερήσῃς, thou ſhalt not defraud, and St. Matthew, ch. 19. Ἀγαπήσεις, &c. Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelf. From which 'tis farther obſervable what is the meaning of that commandment, That undoubtedly, which will be the joynt united importance of theſe three phraſes, and not that which might be thought ſufficient to expreſs the meaning of ſome one of them, that is, ſo to reſt ſatisfied every man with his own lot, which God hath afforded him, and ſo to deſire the good of others as well as of himſelf, as not to deſire, or endeavour to gain any thing to himſelf by the loſs or diminution of any other, to think the neighbour as fit to enjoy any thing that belongs to him, as himſelf to enjoy his own, and ſo joyn together theſe two Precepts of the Heathens, the Quod ſis eſſe velis, nihilque malis, in Martial, the perfect complacency with our preſent condition, and the Δειμαίνειν ὑπὲρ μοῖραν ἀλλοτρίας κτεάνων in Meander, the not covering ſo much as a needle or pin of anothers.

c. Δυσκόλως εἰσπορεύονται, &c.

V. 23. Hardly] The thorny ground appears by the parable of the ſower to be very contrary to the good, fruitful, the emblem of the honeſt heart, wherein Chriſtianity was to be planted; By that was meant the mind choak'd with riches and the cares of this world, which bears and eat out many good hopeful ſeeds of grace, which would otherwiſe lift up the ſoul to the purſuit of the one neceſſary. And this is the interpretation of the δυσκόλως εἰσπορεύονται, great difficulty of the rich mans being a diſciple of Chriſt, and attaining to his kingdom. This Julian, in his Epiſtle to Iccebolius, ſpeaks of it ſo ſtrangly, and ſuch that he took away from the Chriſtians all that they had, μὴ τοσοῦτον ἐλαττοῦν ἡμᾶς βαρύνοντα, that they may not be deprived of that heavenly kingdom which they hope for.

d. Πρῶτοι

V. 31. Many] They who were call'd and choſen firſt to be diſciples, who conſequently ought to have expreſt a more zealous fidelity, and taken more pains in the Apoſtolical office, are here call'd the firſt, in reſpect of their being firſt called into the vineyard, and ſuch was Peter and John, and the reſt of his preſent diſciples. The laſt are thoſe which were call'd later, as S. Paul, who ſaith truly of himſelf, that as he was born out of due time, ſuddenly (not regularly as the diſciples in Chriſt's life time had been diſciples a long ſpace, before they had their commiſſion of Apoſtleſhip) ſo he was in labours more abundant, &c. 1 Cor. 15. 10. and 2 Cor. 11. 23. And they that have written the Itineraries of the Apoſtles have obſerved the truth of it, S. Paul having travell'd much farther then either S. Peter or S. John, as they have deſcribed the circuit.

CHAP. XI.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND when they came nigh to Jeruſalem, unto Bethphage and Bethany at the Mount of Olives, he ſendeth forth two of his diſciples,

1 Mat. 21. 1.

2. And ſaith unto them, Go your way into the village over againſt you, and as ſoon as ye be entred into it, ye ſhall find a [colt] tied, whereon never man ſate, looſe him and bring him.

2. Foal of an Aſs.

3. And if any man ſay unto you, Why do you this? ſay ye that the Lord hath need of him, and ſtraightway he will ſend him hither.

4. And they went their way, and found the colt tied by the door without, in a place where two ways met, and they looſe him.

5. And certain of them that ſtood there ſaid unto them, What do ye looſing the colt?

6. And they ſaid unto them, even as Jeſus had commanded, and they let them go.

7. And they brought [the colt] to Jeſus, and caſt their garments on him, and he ſate upon him.

7. See Note on cap. 5. 2.

8. And many ſpread their garments in the ways, and others cut down branches of trees, and ſtrewed them in the way.

9. And they that went before and they that followed cried, ſaying, Hoſanna, * bleſſed is [he that cometh] in the name of the Lord.

9. The Meſſias whoſe coming is prophecied of, and ſo long expected. See note on Mat. 12. a. and Mat. 21. 9.

* Bleſſed in the name of the Lord be he that cometh.

10. ‖ Bleſſed be [the kingdom of our father David that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hoſanna in the higheſt.]

10. That kingdom of David our father (or of Chriſt typified by him) which hath been prophecied of, and expected as future, and is now ready to begin, we acknowledge thee, O Lord, who in the higheſt heavens. See Note on Mat. 21. a.

11. And Jeſus entred into Jeruſalem and into the Temple, and [when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the even tide was come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve.]

11. Having cured the lame &c. Mat. 21. 14. &c. at even he retired to Bethany to lodge there with his diſciples.

12. And on the morrow † when they were come from Bethany, he was hungry.

13. And ſeeing a fig-tree afar off having leaves, he came, * if haply he might find any thing thereon, and when he came to it he found nothing but leaves, for * the time of figs was a not yet.

13, 14. And being ſo, he eſpied afar off a fig-tree full of leaves, and went to ſee if there were any fruit on it, and when he came he found no one fig, nor any thing, but leaves on it, the year being, it ſeems, unſeaſonable for that fruit, and therefore being willing to ſhew a miracle on a fruitleſs tree, (which had nothing but leaves to be deſtroyed by his curſe) he ſaid unto it, This tree ſhall never bear more fruit, but ſhall wither and dry up preſently. Which ſentence of Chriſt if it be applied as an emblem to men that bear no fruit, it will then ſignifie that they which profeſs piety (which is anſwerable to bearing of leaves) muſt never be found without fruit; if they be, Chriſt will viſit them, and ſubtraction of grace and deſtruction will be their portion, the one following upon the other, at the inſtant withering here upon the word of Chriſt. But the moſt pregnant meaning of it is, that the Jews, which were thus like that leafie tree, without any kind of degree of fruit on it at this time, when Chriſt came from heaven to call for it, ſhould ſuddenly be deſtroyed.

* it was not a ſeaſon of figs.

15. And they come to Jeruſalem, and Jeſus went into the temple, and began to caſt out them that ſold and bought [in the temple, and overthrew the tables] of the money-changers, and the ſeats of them that ſold doves;

† the houſe of prayer to all nations, οἶκος προσευχῆς πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσι

18. And the Scribes and the chief Prieſts heard it, and ſought how they might deſtroy him, [for they * feared him, becauſe all the people was aſtoniſhed at his doctrine.]

18. For reſolving not to be inſtructed or reformed by him, not to receive the reformation brought from heaven, they were yet afraid that ſomething would come of it, derogatory to their authority, for the whole multitude of men that heard him, look'd on him with admiration.

* or, feared, becauſe; for the King's MS. leaves out ἐφοβοῦντο γάρ.

21. And Peter calling to remembrance, ſaith unto him, Maſter, behold, the fig-tree which thou curſedſt, is withered away.

22. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaith [unto them, Have faith in God.]

22. To the Diſciples, Believe in God.

23. For verily I ſay unto you, what whoſoever ſhall ſay unto this mountain, Be removed, and be thou caſt into the ſea, and ſhall not doubt in his heart, but ſhall believe that thoſe things which he ſaith ſhall come to paſs, he ſhall have whatſoever he ſaith.]

23. For I have given that power to you, that if any of you in the fear of God, with full confidence of faith, without all mixture of doubting, ſhall ſet upon any the greateſt difficulty, though as great as the removing of a mountain, and aſſuredly believe, that through the ſtrength and power of God in Chriſt, it ſhall be done, he ſhall do whatſoever he will.

24. Therefore I ſay unto you, What things ſoever ye deſire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye ſhall have them.]

24. This is to be undertaken by you, not upon confidence of your own ſtrength, but by humble prayer to God, and whatſoever you ſhall thus pray for, believing that I will according to my promiſe grant it to you, that ye ſhall be ſure to receive from me.

25. And when ye ſtand praying, forgive if ye have ought againſt any, that your father alſo which is in heaven may forgive you your treſpaſſes.]

25. But for the obtaining this certain return to your prayers, the other conditions which have formerly been required, (ſee Mat. 6. 14.) to make mens prayers effectual, muſt be obſerved by you, namely, that whenſoever you pray for any thing to be granted you by God, you put all malice from you, and be filled with all charity even to your enemies, that God may in like manner deal with you.

26. But if you do not forgive, neither will your father which is in heaven forgive your treſpaſſes.

26. And if you do not ſo, there is no expectation that any prayer of yours, whether for pardon of ſin, or any thing elſe, ſhall be heard and granted by God.

27. The Sanhedrim of the Jews, to whom Prophets were wont to approve their miſſion.

27. And they come again to Jeruſalem, and as he was walking in the temple, there come to him [the chief Prieſts, and the Scribes, and the Elders,]

28. And ſay unto him, By what authority doeſt thou theſe things? and who gave thee this authority to do theſe things?

29. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, I will alſo ask of you one queſtion, and anſwer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do theſe things.

30. Was John that received Proſelytes by Baptiſm, ſent with commiſſion from God, or no?

30. The baptiſm of John, Was it from heaven, or of men?] Anſwer me.

31. And they reaſoned with themſelves, ſaying, If we ſhall ſay, From heaven, he will ſay, Why then did ye not believe him?

32. A Prophet ſent with commiſſion from God.

32. But if we ſhall ſay, Of men, they feared the people: for all men counted John, that he was [a prophet indeed.]

33. And they anſwered and ſaid unto Jeſus, We cannot tell. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaith unto them, Neither do I tell you by what authority I do theſe things.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. XI.

2. Καιρὸς οὐκων

V. 13. Not yet] That the words are thus literally to be rendred οὐ γὰρ ἦν καιρὸς σύκων, for it was not a time, or ſeaſon of figs, there is no doubt; what the meaning of the word time or ſeaſon here is, will be the only difficulty. If the time or ſeaſon of the year, wherein figs are ripe, ſo that it be here ſaid it was not that time of ripe figs, then many inconveniencies will follow; As firſt that will not be (as this paſſage is deſigned) a reaſonable account, why there was nothing but leaves on the tree, for green figs there might be, and ſo ſomewhat beſide leaves, though the time of ripe figs were not come. 2ly, It is not to be imagined that Chriſt being hungry, v. 12. and thereupon going out of his way to a fig tree, εἰ ἄρα εὑρήσει τι ἐν αὐτῇ in all account to find ſome food there, ſhould do ſo at a time when he knew fruit was not ripe, green figs before they are ripe, being as unfit for food as could be imagined. 3. If we conſider the time which is there ſpecified, we ſhall have reaſon to doubt whether thus interpreting καιρὸς, there were indeed any truth in the ſpeech, being great probability, that at this time of the year figs in Judæa were wont to be ripe. For it was immediately before the Paſſover, (preſently after the Hoſanna's) both here, and in Matthew. And that is about the time of putting the ſickle into the corn, Deut. 16. 9. and their offering their firſt fruits, (ſeven weeks before Pentecoſt, Lev. 23. 16.) by which it is evident that fruits were then ripe in that Country. This may be farther confirmed by a paſſage in Ariſtophanes in Ορνιαι,

Κηὐθὺς μὲν κόκκυ ἐπὶ κόκκυ, πᾶς δ' οἱ φοίνικες ἀπῄσσε
Τῆς ποίης ἐν ᾗ πᾶς κεῖτ' ἂν ἐν τοῖς πεδίοις ἐθέλοι.
Τῶν δὲ τρόπον τὸν τοῦτον ἀληθῶς, κόκκυ φωλοὶ πολλοὶ ἦσαν.

At the time that the Cuckow ſounds out his note (that we know is the beginning of our Spring) then all the Phœnicians (that is, the inhabitants of Canaan, Mat. 16. Note f.) reap'd their wheat and their barley in their fields, and that was the meaning of the Proverb, κόκκυ φωλοὶ πολλοί, that is, ſaith the Scholiaſt, κόκκυ γὰρ κράζοντος θερίζομεν, when the Cuckow cries, we reap, by which noting the φωλοὶ, that is, the circumciſed, as appears by that Scholiaſt in theſe words, ἐπὶ τῶν Αἰγυπτίων ἦσαν φωλοὶ πολλοὶ, among the Ægyptians there were many circumciſed, (ſo Herodotus in Euterpe ſaith of them.) And then that the fruits of trees were gathered alſo at the ſame time with the corn, appears among many other evidences, by the expreſs words of Philo, Leg. ad Caium p. 795. E. where Petronius in his letter to Caius about the ſetting up the image of Jupiter in the Temple, tells him his fear, that the provoked Jews would ſet on fire all the fruits of the ground; τὸ ἀκμὴν γὰρ ἤδη τῶν σίτου καρπῶν ἦν, for the fruit was now ripe, (where by the way, ἀκμὴ, not καιρὸς, is the proper word for the time of fruits being ripe) and therefore care muſt now be taken for the συγκομιδὴ καρπῶν, the taking in of the fruits, οὐ μόνον τῶν σπερμάτων, ἀλλὰ καὶ τῶν ἐκ δένδρων, not only the corn of the field, but the fruit of the trees, from which circumſtance it is that Baronius duly concludes that this of the deſigned dedication of that image, was at the Paſſover, and ſo a puniſhment that might mind the Jews of their ſin of crucifying Chriſt at that time of the year. As for that objection which is apt to deceive many, and ſo impoſed upon S. Chryſoſtom, becauſe this time of Eaſter is not the time of harveſt in other places, whereupon that Father Tom. 4. p. 629. l. 20. ſpeaking of Pentecoſt, ſaith, it was the time ὅτε τὸ δρέπανον ἐπιβάλλειν δεῖ τῷ ἀμήτῳ, ὅτε τοὺς καρποὺς συνάγειν ἔχομεν, when the ſickle was to be put into the harveſt and the fruits to be gathered in, 'tis eaſily anſwered, that the difference of the Climate betwixt Judæa and Greece, and much more betwixt Judæa and us, being ſo great, and the forwardneſs of fruit depending ſo immediately on that, there can be no ſtrangeneſs in it: For theſe and other reaſons it ſeems improbable that this ſhould be the meaning of the words. Another notion, I conceive, there is of the καιρὸς, time, or ſeaſon, which will be ſubject to none of theſe, nor any other inconveniences. For the word literally ſignifying a ſeaſonable time, and time being of a great latitude, belonging to any part of time, an age, a year, and not only a part of a year, though the firſt of an age cannot, yet the ſecond of a year may be appliable to this place, and then the meaning will be, that that was not a ſeaſon of figs, that is, a good fig year, a year that brought forth any ſtore of figs in that Country. And in this interpretation of the phraſe, the whole paſſage will be very perſpicuous; Chriſt was hungry v. 12. and ſeeing a fig tree afar off, having leaves, that is, looking very promiſingly, he went out of his way to it, if ſo be he might find any thing, that is, any one, or more figs upon it; And when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves, not one fig of any kind, ripe or other, of which this reaſon is rendred, ἦν γὰρ οὐ καιρὸς σύκων, for it was not a kindly ſeaſonable year of figs. Whereupon Chriſt immediately curſeth the tree, for having ſuch promiſing verdure of leaves, but no kind of fruit on it, and ſo ſymbolically foretels the fate of that people of the Jews, who were at this time very barren of good works, 'twas a very ill ſeaſon of fruit with them (and when Chriſt comes ſhortly after to viſit, ſhall he find faith on the earth? any fruit of the Chriſtian faith in that land of Judæa?) though they made very promiſing fair profeſſions. Having ſaid thus much, it will not be neceſſary to take notice of the emendation, which the learned Dan. Heinſius hath here propoſed, converting it, from ἦν γὰρ οὐ καιρὸς σύκων, for it was not a ſeaſon of figs, into ἦν γὰρ οὗ, καιρὸς σύκων, for where he was, (that is, in that place) the ſeaſon of figs, that is, it was the ſeaſon of ripe figs. The exceptions which offer themſelves againſt this conjecture are many: 1. The great change that is made by this means even from a Negative to an Affirmative, from one member of a contradiction to another, which if it were allowed upon no greater grounds, then of a conjecture, the conſequence would be very dangerous. 2. In caſe this conjecture were admitted, the words ſo read would be of a ſtile diſcernibly different from all the reſt of the Book. For of either of thoſe forms of ſpeaking οὗ, where he was, for in that region, or place, in oppoſition to other remote climates, or of καιρὸς σύκων, ſeaſon of figs ſo conciſely, for it was the ſeaſon of figs, 'twould be hard to find any example in the New Teſtament: and then, though to reduce a perplex'd intricate, unuſual form of ſpeaking, to a perſpicuous ordinary dinary phraſe, it might be reaſonable to propoſe a conjecture, yet to force it by this means from an uſual to a ſtrange form (for which there is no example) will not be very reaſonable. Laſtly, there is no need, or uſe of any change, as already appears; but on the contrary, if the change were admitted, the verſe would be leſs intelligible then now it is, for the words are a reaſon, as the particle γὰρ for aſſures us: Now that which is next before, and to which this is affix'd as a reaſon, being this, that coming to the fig-tree he found nothing but leaves, the words in that new reading, for where he was it was the ſeaſon of figs, cannot be thought a reaſon of that (the ſeaſon for fruit cannot be the reaſon that there was no fruit) but would be of the contrary, whereas the words in the old reading are a clear reaſon of it, there were no figs, but only leaves to be found, for it was not a ſeaſon of figs. The only thing poſſible to be replyed is, that the words ſo alter'd ſhall be a reaſon of Chriſt's going to the tree to ſee if there were any fruit on it, and not of his finding no fruit, which if it be ſaid, then I anſwer, that this is moſt unreaſonable, when the words as they lie, are regularly a reaſon of what went next before, to change them, upon conjecture as phantaſy, into the direct contrary, and then affix them as a reaſon of what is farther off, and with which they do not connect, but might with as much reaſon be farther ſevered and connected with any other (yet remoter) paſſage, to which a freſh conjecture ſhould accommodate them.

V. 17. All nations] There were three atria, or courts, or iles in the Temple, the firſt, the court of the Prieſts, the ſecond of the other Jews, together with the perfect compleat proſelytes, they that were circumciſed and undertook the whole Law, and differed nothing from Jews, but that they were born of Gentile parents, the proſelytes of juſtice, or of the covenant, (ſee note on Mat. 23. d. and c. 3. a.) and the third was the court of the Gentiles, that is, of thoſe Gentiles, which were received as Proſelytes of the gates, the Gentile worſhippers, or pious heathens, that had undertaken the ſeven precepts of the ſons of Noah (renounced the doctrine, &c.) tho' not the whole Jewiſh law; this court of the Gentiles was indeed diſcriminated by a ſept or little low wall from the court of the Jews, and was therefore by them thought leſs holy then their court, and becauſe the Jews did not worſhip in it, they therefore conceiv'd that it might be lawfully put to common or prophane uſes, and ſo 'twas here uſed by the Jews, but Chriſt ſaith, it was a houſe of prayer to the Gentiles, and therefore had a promiſe of God's peculiar preſence there, and conſequently a relative ſanctity, and was not to be thus uſed to common prophane uſes. οἶκος προσευχῆς τοῖς ἔθνεσι.

CHAP. XII.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND he began to ſpeak unto them by parables, A certain man [planted a Vineyard], and ſet an hedge about it, and digged a place for the winefat, and built a Tower, and let it out to Husbandmen, and went into a far country.

1. And Chriſt ſpake many Parables unto them, all pertinent to the rebuking of them for their unbelief, as firſt that mention'd Mat. 21. 28. and then ſecondly, this here, Mat. 21. 33. of a man that

2. And at the ſeaſon he ſent to the husbandmen a ſervant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruit of the vineyard.

3. And they caught him, and beat him, and ſent him away empty.

4. And again he ſent unto them another ſervant, and at him they caſt ſtones, and wounded him in the head, and ſent him away ſhamefully handled.

5. And again he ſent another, and him they killed, and many other, beating ſome, and killing ſome.

6. Having yet therefore one ſon, his well-belov'd, he ſent him alſo laſt unto them, ſaying, They will reverence my ſon.

7. But thoſe husbandmen ſaid among themſelves, This is the heir, come let us kill him, and the inheritance ſhall be ours.

8. And they took him and killed him, and caſt him out of the vineyard.

9. What ſhall therefore the Lord of the Vineyard do? He will come and deſtroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard unto others.

10. And have ye not read this Scripture, The ſtone which the builders rejected, is become the head of the corner?

11. This was the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.

12. And they ſought to lay hold on him, but feared the people: for they knew that he had ſpoken this parable againſt them, and they left him and went their way.]

12. And they were willing to find ſome juſtifiable occaſion to apprehend him, being ſomewhat reſtrained by fear of the people, and yet being much incenſed againſt him (for they knew that he had deſigned theſe parables particularly to pourtray them) but in fine they let him alone at preſent and departed.

13. And they ſend unto him certain of the Phariſees, and of the Herodians, to catch him in his words.]

13. Soon after, being willing to get ſome accuſation againſt him, they ſent ſome of the Phariſees, and ſome of the Herodians together to him, the Phariſees that thought not Cæſar to have right over Judea, but look'd on him as an uſurper; and the Herodians (ſee note on Mat. 22. b.) which aſſerted his right, that between them they might bring him to ſay ſomewhat either againſt the liberty of the people of God, aſſerted by the Phariſees, or againſt the power of the Roman Emperour, aſſerted by the others; perhaps alſo ſuſpecting by his frequent being in Galilee (and his Apoſtles moſt of them being born there) that he was of the ſect and doctrine of the Galileans, that no acknowledgment or tribute was to be paid to the Emperour.

14. And when they were come, they ſay unto him, Maſter, we know [that thou art right, and careſt for no man, for thou regardeſt not the perſon of men, but teacheſt the way of God in truth] Is it lawful to give a tribute to Cæſar, or not?

14. That thou will freely ſpeak thy mind what danger ſoever come of it, and not ſuffer the fear of Cæſar to reſtrain thee from telling us the will of God.

15. Shall we give, or ſhall we not give? But he knowing [their hypocriſy] ſaid unto them, Why tempt ye me? Bring me a penny that I may ſee it.

15. The treacherouſneſs of their deſign under thoſe fair words.

16. And they brought it. And he ſaid unto them, Whoſe is this image and ſuperſcription? And they ſaid unto him Cæſars.

16. See note on Mat. 22. c.

17. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Render to Cæſar the things that are Cæſars, and to God the things that are Gods, and they marvelled at him.

18. Then come unto him the Sadducees, which ſay there is [no reſurrection] and asked him, ſaying,

18. Mat. 22, 23. no future ſtate after this life.

19. Maſter, Moſes wrote unto us, if a mans brother die, and leave his wife behind him, and leave no children, that his brother ſhould take his wife, and raiſe up ſeed unto his brother.

20. Now there were ſeven brethren, and the firſt took a wife, and dying, left no ſeed;

21. And the ſecond took her, and dyed, and left no ſeed, and the third likewiſe;

22. And the ſeven had her, and left no ſeed, laſt of all the woman dyed alſo.

23. In the reſurrection therefore, when they ſhall riſe, whoſe wife ſhall ſhe be of them, for the ſeven had her to wife?

24. The doctrine of the Scriptures concerning the reſurrection, and the power of God in bringing it to paſs?

24. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Do ye not therefore err, becauſe ye know not [the Scriptures, neither the power of God?]

25. For when they ſhall riſe from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the Angels of God which are in heaven.

[26. See note on Mat. 22. d.

26. And as touching the dead that they riſe, have ye not read in the book of Moſes, How in the buſh God ſpake unto him, ſaying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob?

27. Thoſe therefore were then alive, when God ſaid this of them, which was long after their death.

27. He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living.] Ye therefore do greatly err.

28. And one of the Scribes came, and having heard them reaſoning together, and perceiving that he had anſwered them well, asked him, Which is the firſt commandment of all.

29. And Jeſus anſwered him, The firſt of all the commandments is, Hear O Iſrael, the Lord our God is one Lord.

30. Underſtanding, v. 33.

30. And thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy ſoul, and with all thy [mind] and with all thy ſtrength, this is the firſt commandment

31. And the ſecond is like, namely this, Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelf: there is none other commandment greater than theſe.

32. And the Scribe ſaid unto him, Well maſter, thou haſt ſaid the truth, for there is one God, and there is none other but he.

33. And the real ſubſtantial performance of all duties, both towards God & Man, is to be preferred before all thoſe ritual performances that Religion is generally placed in.

33. And to love him with all the heart, and with all the underſtanding, and with all the ſoul, and with all the ſtrength, and to love his neighbour as himſelf, is more then all whole burnt-offerings and ſacrifices.]

34. This account of thine argues that thou art not far from being a Chriſtian, the doctrine of the Goſpel containing little more in it beyond this.

34. And when Jeſus ſaw that he had anſwered diſcreetly, he ſaid unto him, [Thou art not far from the kingdom of God.] And no man after that durſt ask him any queſtion.

35. How comes it to be generally reſolved by the doctors of the Law out of the Scripture.

35. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, while he taught in the temple, [How ſay the Scribes, that Chriſt is the ſon of David?]

36. For David himſelf ſaid by the Holy Ghoſt, The Lord ſaid to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy foot-ſtool.

37. David therefore himſelf calleth him Lord, whence is he then his ſon? and the common people heard him gladly.

38. And he ſaid unto them in his doctrine, beware of the Scribes which love to go in long cloathing, and love ſalutations in the market places.

39. And the chief ſeats in the ſynagogues, and the uppermoſt rooms at feaſts.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. XII.

V. 14. Tribute,] Judas of Galilee, (called indifferently Gaulonita and Galilæus) was, ſaith Joſephus, head of a fourth ſect among the Jews, (ſee Antiq. l. 18. c. 2.) and having Saddok a Phariſee joined to him, he ſollicited the people to defection, telling them that God was to be their only maſter and Prince, and no mortal to be acknowledged ſuch; that the requiring a tax from them, if it were paid by them, was a manifeſt profeſſion of ſervitude, and that 'twas their duty to vindicate their liberty, by which means he raiſed a great ſedition among the Jews, and was the cauſe under pretence of defending the publick liberty, of innumerable miſchiefs to the nation. Of this ſect 'tis poſſible they ſuſpected Chriſt might be a favourer, and the rather for his being counted a Galilean, and that therefore they now come and ask him this queſtion. And tho' he anſwer moſt punctually in favour of the Roman Emperour, and ſo much more for the paying then for the refuſing to pay tribute, yet becauſe there was ſo much caution in his ſpeech, as that the Phariſees were not able to take any advantage againſt him, it is therefore improved into an accuſation againſt him, that he forbad to give tribute to Ceſar, Luke 23. 20. ſee note on Mat. 22. b. CHAP. XIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND as he went out of the Temple one of his diſciples ſaith unto him, Maſter, ſee what manner of ſtones, and what buildings are here.

2. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto him, Seeſt thou theſe great buildings? there ſhall not be left one ſtone upon another that ſhall not be *thrown down.

2. See note on Mat. 24. a.

*pluckt aſunder, κατὰ λυθῇ.

3. And as he ſate upon the mount of Olives, over againſt the Temple, Peter and James and Andrew asked him privately,

4. Tell us [when ſhall theſe things be? and what ſhall be the ſign when all theſe things ſhall be fulfilled.]

4. When ſhall this utter deſtruction of the Temple ſhall be, and conſequently of the Jewiſh nation, and what prognoſticks or fore-runners of it ſhall be obſervable, (ſee Note on Matth. 24. b. c.)

5. And Jeſus anſwering them began to ſay, Take heed leſt any man deceive you.]

5. And Jeſus anſwered them, the fore-runners that you are moſt concern'd to know, are the great dangers that ye ſhall be in, if ye be not very wary of being ſeduced and drawn off from the truth.

6. For many ſhall come in my name, ſaying, I am Chriſt, and ſhall deceive many.]

6. For before that time, many falſe prophets and falſe Chriſts pretending to deliver the nation from the Roman ſubjection, ſhall appear among you, and draw many followers after them.

7. And when ye ſhall hear of wars and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled, for ſuch things muſt needs be, but the end ſhall not be yet.

8. For nation ſhall riſe againſt nation, and kingdom againſt kingdom, and there ſhall be earthquakes in divers places, and there ſhall be famines and troubles, theſe are the beginnings of * ſorrows.]

*the pangs of travail, ὠδίνων.

8. For there ſhall be civil wars among you, (ſee note on Mat. 24. e.) and earthquakes in ſeveral parts of your country, and famines and tumults, theſe are as the firſt grudging of thoſe great pangs of travail which ſhall after ſome time come ſuddenly upon your nation.

9. But take heed to your ſelves, for they ſhall deliver you up [to † councels, and in the Synagogues ye ſhall be beaten, and ye ſhall be brought before rulers and kings for my ſake, for a teſtimony *againſt them.]

†the councels & conſiſtories, ye ſhall εἰς συνέδρια καὶ εἰς συναγωγὰς, δαρήσεσθε. *to them αὐτοῖς.

9. To the great conſiſtory in Jeruſalem, and the leſſer in other cities where you ſhall be ſcourged, and delivered to the Roman powers, that they may put you to death (becauſe the Jews cannot) and this ſhall be a means of making known to them the Chriſtian religion (as it was in St. Peter and Paul.)

10. And the Goſpel muſt firſt be publiſhed among all Nations.]

10. But before this deſtruction come on the Jews, the diſciples ſhall have preacht through all the cities of Jewry, and from them depart to the Gentiles.

11. But when they ſhall [lead you, and deliver you up, take no thought before-hand what ye ſhall ſpeak, neither do ye premeditate, but whatſoever ſhall be given you in that hour, that ſpeak ye, for it is not ye that ſpeak, but the Holy Ghoſt.]

11. Carry you before thoſe tribunals, be not ſolicitous before-hand, (ſee Mat. 10. 19.) what anſwers or pleas to make, for at that time ye ſhall be by the ſpirit of God extraordinarily inſtructed what apologies or anſwers to make, and what ſhall then come into your hearts, remember 'tis an effect of this ſpecial promiſe of mine, and ſo to be lookt on by you, as the dictates of Gods Spirit, and not as any invention of your own, and ſo without fear or diffidence to be delivered by you.

12. Now the brother ſhall betray the brother to death, and the father the ſon, and children ſhall riſe up againſt their parents, and ſhall cauſe them to be put to death.]

12. And theſe proſecutions, and bringing you before tribunals you muſt look for from thoſe that are neareſt to you, from Jews of your cloſeſt alliances.

13. And ye ſhall be hated of all men for my name ſake, but he that ſhall endure to the end, the ſame ſhall be ſaved.]

13. And indeed from all ſorts of men, the true Chriſtian Profeſſors muſt look for very ſharp oppoſition, all which muſt not be matter of diſcouragement to you, for it will be ſo ordered by the Providence of God, that the adhering conſtantly to Chriſt will be of all other things the moſt probable way to deliver you from the preſent dangers that ſhall over-whelm the unbelievers and apoſtates, and the only ſure way of making you eternally happy (ſee Mat. 10.22. note h.) whatſoever your ſufferings be.

14. But when ye ſhall ſee [the abomination of deſolation, ſpoken of by Daniel the Prophet, ſtanding where it ought not (let him that readeth underſtand) then let them which be in Judea flee to the mountains,]

14. The Roman army, (ſee note on Mat. 24. f.) like that which Daniel ſpak of, beſieging Jeruſalem, that holy city, towards which the Gentiles ought not to be ſuffered to approach, &c. (what ye read in Daniel of other times, have here a farther completion) then be ſure ye get you out of Judea, ſee Mat. 24. g.

15. And let him that is on the houſe-top, not go down into the houſe, neither enter therein, to take any thing out of the houſe,

16. And let him that is in the field [not turn back again to take up his garment.]

16. Get away with as much ſpeed as poſſibly he can, and not venture the hazard of his life, to ſave any thing that he hath.

17. But wo to them that are with child, and to them that give ſuck in thoſe days.

18. And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter.]

17, 18. And the haſte will be ſo great, which will be neceſſary in this conjuncture of time, that they that have encumbrances about them to ſtop that haſte, as for example, women with child, or that give ſuck, or any elſe, in caſe it happen to be in the winter, will be much endangered by it.

19. For in thoſe days ſhall be affliction ſuch as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created, unto this time, neither ſhall be.]

19. For they ſhall be days of moſt heavy affliction & preſſure, ſuch as never were, and never ſhall be paralleld in any time.

20. And

20. And except that the Lord had ſhortned thoſe days, [no fleſh ſhould *be ſaved, but for the elects ſake whom he hath choſen, he hath ſhortned the days.]

*escape, Gr. ſave.

20. Such fury of the zealots, ſuch inteſtine tumults and horrid cruelties, and ſuch foreign cloſe ſieges from the Romans, and from thence miſerable famines and plagues, that it will be impoſſible in an especial act of Gods over-ruling providence, if there be one Jew left undeſtroyed. But 'tis foretold by the Prophets that a few ſhall eſcape, and that all the Jews ſhould not be utterly cut off, (ſee Mat.24.22. and note k.) and for the fulfilling that Prophecy, care ſhall be taken for the preſerving of ſome, thoſe eſpecially who ſhall adhere conſtantly to the obedience and faith of Chriſt.

21. And then if any man ſhall ſay to you, Lo, here is Chriſt, or, Lo he is there, believe him not.]

21. And ſo ye are nearly concerned to be careful, that you run not out after any deceivers.

22. For falſe Chriſts and falſe prophets ſhall riſe, and ſhall ſhew ſigns and wonders, [to] ſeduce if it were poſſible, even the very elect.

22. That they may, or ſuch as may.

23. But take ye heed, [behold I have foretold you all things.]

23. Remember I have forwarned you.

24. But in thoſe days, after that tribulation, the ſun ſhall be darkned, and the moon ſhall not give her light.

29. The like judgment may ye make by theſe ſigns and prognoſticks to diſcern when this vengeance comes near.

30. Verily I ſay unto you, That this generation ſhall not paſs, till all theſe things be done.]

30. To which I farther add, that it ſhall be within the life-time of ſome now living, and here preſent, within thirty or forty years, this is ſufficient warning for you, and anſwer to your queſtion, v. 4.

31. Heaven and earth ſhall paſs away, but my words ſhall not paſs away.

31. (And do not ye doubt of the truth of it, for it is irreverſibly ſet.)

32. But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no not the Angels which are in heaven, neither [b] the ſon, but the father.]

32. But of the point of time when this ſhall be, no created underſtanding knows, no not Chriſt himſelf, according to his humane nature. b.

33. Take ye heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is.

33. And this on purpoſe thus concealed, to lay the greater obligation on all to be perpetually watchful, and diligent to behave themſelves like Chriſtians.

34. For the ſon of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his houſe, and gave authority to his ſervants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch.

35. Watch ye therefore, for ye know know not, when the maſter of the houſe cometh [at even, or at midnight, or at the [c] cock-crowing, or in the morning.] c.

36. Leſt he come at a time, when ye leaſt expect him, and find you in a poſture uncapable of mercy from him, unqualified to receive benefit by his coming.

37. And what I ſay unto you, I ſay unto all, Watch.

Annotations on Chap. XIII.

a. Ταῦτα πάντα.

V. 4. All theſe] That the ταῦτα, and the ταῦτα πάντα here, theſe things, and all theſe things ſignify that which had been by this Evangeliſt mention'd in the words immediately precedent, there is no queſtion, and conſequently that thereby is ſignified the deſtruction of the Temple, and what was imployed and contained in that, the city, and nation of the Jews, their whole government, Civil and Eccleſiaſtical. Which being the words in which S. Mark expreſſes that, which S. Matthew expreſſes in other words, (here, what ſhall be the ſign when all theſe things ſhall be fulfilled? there τί τὸ σημεῖον τῆς σῆς παρουσίας καὶ συντελείας τοῦ αἰῶνος; what is the ſign of thy coming, and of the conſummation of the age? it irrefragably follows from hence (what hath been inſiſted on at large in the Annotations on Mat. 24. b. c.) that the coming of Chriſt, and conſummation of the age ſignifies the deſtruction of the Jewiſh Temple, and nation; of which only, and not of the day of laſt Judgment, the ſigns are here demanded by the diſciples, and given by Chriſt; which I here add ex abundanti, for the removing all ſcruple in this matter. To the ſame purpoſe 'tis obſervable, that tho' here, at the beginning, S. Mark do not at all uſe the phraſe of Chriſt's coming in this manner, yet v. 26. inſtead of that which is in another phraſe in S. Matthew, c. 24. 30. then ſhall appear, or be ſeen, the ſign of the ſon of man in heaven, this ſignal puniſhment and revenge on the crucifyers from Chriſt now reigning in heaven, he hath theſe plain words, Then ſhall they ſee the ſon of man coming in the clouds, with great power and glory.

b. Οὐδὲ ὁ υἱὸς ὅς.

V. 32. The ſon] That this whole diſcourſe belongs to the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, there can be no doubt to him that compares it with Mat. 24. & Luke 21. and what hath been ſaid in the Annotations for the evincing of it. Which having been the matter of Daniel's predictions, and afterwards of ſome of John's viſions in the Revelation, and here of Chriſt's, it is moſt certain, that the time of it was revealed by God to this ſon of man, and other his ſervants, and therefore of that, and of the particular circumſtances connecting to the laſt point of that, it cannot be underſtood, that of that knoweth no man, &c. that day and hour therefore, of which the words are to be underſtood, muſt be more nicely interpreted, to ſignify not the time more looſely, but more ſtrictly that very point of time, wherein this fatal blow was to be ſtruck; and of this, to preclude the curioſity of men, and to ingage their vigilance, Chriſt is pleaſed to tell them, that no diſpenſation of Gods, either by man, viz. Daniel, or any other prophet, or by Angel, or (which is higheſt) by the ſon of man, had ordered us to know the times, or the ſeaſons, this being no part of the Prophetick office of any man, or within the commiſſion of Chriſt himſelf, to reveal this ſecret to them. What the Agnotæ taught in this matter, and wherein their ſuppoſed miſtake conſiſted, is not obvious to define. They were thus call'd, ſaith * Leontius, becauſe they defined from this Text, that ὡς ἀνθρώπου ἠγνόει τὸ πρακτ. 1 χριστὸς, that Christ as man was ignorant of ſome things, ὅσων καὶ πονεῖσθαι λέγομεν αὐτόν, in the ſame manner as we ſay he ſuffered grief, &c. For this, ſaith he, Theodoſius Biſhop

Bishop of Alexandria wrote against them, but his authority is not great, being himself tainted, and deemed as an Heretick, as there appears, and so accounted by * Baronius, and his followers Theodosiani or Jacobitæ. But Eulogius Bishop of Alexandria also wrote against them, and the Epitome of his arguments and answers we have in * Photius, and the sum of them is, that what is here said of Christ, was said, κατ' ἀναφορὰν, secundum respectum, ὡς οὐκ ἐκ τῆς ἀγνοίας ὄντος αὐτῷ τοῦ σώματος, ἥτις ἡ ἀνθρωπίνης ἐστὶν οὐσίας, ἧς ἔδει αὐτὸς ἦν κεφαλὴ, * in that his body, viz. the humane nature, of which he was the head, was not without ignorance, as, saith he, he is said to be made sin and a curse for us, because the head, appropriating to it self the things of the body, he thus took upon him the things of the body, viz. of us sinful men. Yet * after this, though he much dislike, that either according to his Divinity or Humanity, ignorance should be attributed to him, he cannot but * acknowledge with Gregory Nazianzen, γινώσκει μὲν ὡς θεὸς, ἀγνοεῖ δὲ ὡς ἄνθρωπος, that he knows indeed as God, but is ignorant as man, only adding, that the Fathers that acknowledged, or admitted ignorance in our Saviour, in respect of his humanity, οὐκ ὡς δόγμα τοῦτο πεποιήκασιν, did not produce this, as a doctrine, but to repress the Arians, made use of it. Now of this discourse of Eulogius * Pope Gregory gives his opinion in his Epistles, that he admires much in it, but dislikes nothing, that he had written a great deal to Anatolius the Deacon to the same sense, that what he said of Christ's words, that they were to be referred to him juxta corpus ejus, nos quod sumus, in respect of his body, which we are, is most true, and that S. Augustine had oft expressed himself to the same sense, adding also another interpretation of the words, not that the son of man was ignorant of that day, Sed quia hunc sciri minime permittat, but that he would by no means permit it to be known. * After this, another subtilty, as he stiles it, he proposeth, that the only son being incarnate, and made for us perfect man, in natura quidem humanitatis novit diem——— Sed hunc non ex natura humanitatis novit, knew the day in his humane nature, but not from his humane nature, because being made God-man, he knew it only per Deitatis suæ potentiam, by the power of his deity. This certainly hath truth in it, but will not easily be discerned how it opposeth them, who acknowledging Christ God-man to know all things in this hypostatical union, do yet affirm him, in respect of his Humanity, to be ignorant of some things: For 'tis not necessary they should mean any more in thus affirming, then that he hath not this knowledge of all things from his Humanity, but from his Divinity only. In that Epistle of Gregory's, one thing is resolved, which may possibly give some light to this whole matter, viz. * that he that is no Nestorian, cannot be an Agnoeta. If this be true, then we have a competent cause of the Agnoetæ being reckoned up for Hereticks, for such the Nestorians doubtless were, denying the union of the Divine and Human Nature in Christ. But the History rather inclines us to believe, that the Agnoetæ were Eutychians than Nestorians, for Theodosius was one of the διαφυσίτας, that opposed the Councel of Calcedon, and those that brake off from him (about this point of Christ's being ignorant of some things, in respect of his Humanity) had been, till then, of his communion, and so opposers of that Councel, see Leontius, p. 514. A. These Eutychians heresie consisted in this, that they affirmed so close an union betwixt the word and the human nature, that they became but one nature, and this was refuted in that Councel of Calcedon, and the Agnoetæ being opposers of that Councel, must be supposed to adhere to this Heresie, and then indeed it must be acknowledged they were Hereticks, and their Heresie, so much worse than bare Eutychianism, as 'tis a blasphemy to impute nescience or ignorance to God. For supposing, as an Eutychian supposeth, that the Divinity and Humanity were by union * become one and the same nature, 'twere prodigious to believe, that this Nature were ignorant of any thing. This therefore I suppose to be the ground of defining these Agnoetæ to be Hereticks; for such they were, if they thus taught. But for the doctrine of those, which hold firmly the decrees of all the four first General Councels, and so condemn all the Heresies there condemned, particularly that of Nestorius, dividing the Persons, and of Eutychius confounding the Natures in Christ, and only affirm, that though as God, he knew all, yet as Man, he was ignorant of some things, just in the same manner, as he was passible and subject to all Human Infirmities, which had not sin in them, and that this is his own express affirmation, that the son of man knew not that day and hour, this sure is so far from Heresie, that, as the same Leontius elsewhere tells us, πολὺ ἰσχὺον ὅτι οἱ πολλοὶ τῶν πατέρων καὶ ὧν ἅπαντες φαίνονται λέγοντες αὐτὸν ἀγνοεῖν. p. 531. B. it is the unanimous assertion of all the Fathers, to which neither the Councel of Calcedon, nor any other hath taught any thing contrary. For so in his tenth πρᾶξις, resuming this business of the Agnoetæ, and recounting the answer that some gave, that those words [οὐδὲ ὁ υἱὸς, neither the son] were spoken by Christ, κατ' οἰκονομίαν, ἵνα ἀποτρέψῃ τοὺς μαθητὰς——— by way of prudential œconomy, to avert the Disciples from their inquiry——— he adds, as * his own affirmation, that it is not fit to speak over subtily in this matter, and that therefore the Synod did not make any decree in it.

V. 35. Cock-crowing] The gallicinium or cock-crowing is here set to note the middle time betwixt midnight and morning. For there were two cock-crowings in the night, as appears c. 14.30. and the second is here spoken of, and called simply ἀλεκτοροφωνία, as also Mat. 26. 75. and Luke 22. 34. and John 13. 39. there is only φωνὴσ ἀλέκτωρ, the cock shall crow, where yet the meaning is clearly this, ὡς φωνῆσαι the second crowing, as appears by this Evangelist, chap. 14.30. CHAP. XIV.

Paraphrase.

1. AFter two days was the feast of the Passover and of unleavened bread: and the chief Priests and Scribes sought how they might take him by craft] and put him to death.

1. When the Passover which is the preparation to the seven days feast of unleavened bread (or in the evening in which began the abstinence from all leavened bread) was now but two days off, that is, About wednesday in the Passion-week, the Sanhedrim took counsel how they might apprehend him secretly without any great noise, Luke 22. 6.

2. But they said, * Not on the feast-day, least there be an uproar of the people.] 2. And they resolved on it in counsel, (see Mat. 26. 5.) that it were best to defer it till after the Passover, lest the multitudes being then there, they should rescue him tumultuously.

3. And being in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman, having an * alabaster box of ointment of † spicknard very precious, and she † b brake the box, and poured it on his head.

4. And there were some that had indignation among themselves,] and said, Why was this waste of the oyntment made?

4. Judas was very angry at it, (Mat. 26. 8.)

5. For it might have been sold for more then three hundred pence, and have been given to the poor: and they murmured against her.

6. And Jesus said let her alone, Why trouble ye her? she hath wrought [a good work on me.]

21. I am to go out of this world to be put to death, according to prophecies; God hath determined that I ſhould come, and like the good ſhepherd, incur any hazard, lay down my life for the ſheep, and foreſeeing the malice of the Jews, and their bloody deſigns, and the falſeneſs of Judas, &c. hath determin'd to permit me to be ſlain by them, and accordingly hath foretold it by the Prophets, that I ſhould be led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter, &c. But that will contribute little to his advantage, that is the actor in it. It is a moſt unhappy thing to have any hand in putting the Meſſias, or any other perſon to death, though their dying may be determined by God to moſt glorious ends, which the wicked actor or contriver knows nothing of, nor at all deſigns, but directly the contrary. And therefore any ſuch is a moſt wretched creature.

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. XIV.

a. V. 3. Spikenard] What is meant by Ἀλάβαστρον hath been explained Mat. 26. b. Beſides that, there are ſome other difficulties in that paſſage of the ſtory, as it is ſet down with ſome variation in this Goſpel. As, Νάρδου 1. For that ſort of ointment 'tis here ſaid to be nard, which was not any ſuch διάπασμα or dry ointment, as ſhould make it needful to be put in a box, or that box to be broken for the taking it out, but fit to be poured in and out of a cruiſe, being moiſt and fluid, whence * Nonnus calls it ἐέρσῳ a dew or watery ſubſtance. This nard is reckoned among the καῦλα, the ointments that do diſtil out of reeds, either of their own accord, or when they are cut and bruiſed, and with which nothing is wont to be mix'd, that ſo it may remain a pure, ſimple, liquid and noble juyce. Hence it is called ſpicata nardus, Spikenard, becauſe it thus diſtils ex ſpicis vel ariſtis, out of canes or reeds; and it is very poſſible that that may be the importance of the word πιστικὴ here, lightly varied from the Latin ſpicata. Some have thought it to come from the name of a place Biſt or Piſt, whether that be the Metropolis, of Carimania, or of the region of Cabul in India. Others that πιστὸς like πιστὸς may ſignifie ſincere, unmix'd, as the Latin ſincerus, ſincere, is ſaid to be made of ſine cera, without mixture of wax (contrary to the Ceroma oyl and wax together, uſed by the athletæ) and ſo 'tis generally called pure nard

i * βεβυσμένον ἄγγος ἐέρσης

Πιστικὴ

Pura diſtillant tempora nardo, in Tibullus, pure nard diſtilling on his temples, and is commonly the more chargeable, ἢ καλοῖσι μύροις ἀλαβάστρου, in Archeſtratus) as this here is πολυτελὴς and πολύτιμος in S. John, coſtly or precious; thus Marcellus in his Book de Medicament. and Theophyl. calls it ἄδολον καὶ μετὰ πίστεως κεκαπηδευμένον, unmix'd, faithfully prepar'd. And the Old Gloſſes, Balſamum ſine impoſtura, that is, mixtura, without any deceit. So ſaith * Vadianus, Epit. de Liſulis Mar. Mediterr. Dignum cognitu, quod Plinius tradit. l. 13. ſcilicet novem herbarum ſpecies eſſe, quæ nardum imitentur, & adulterent; unde intelligimus in tanta fraudis materia uſum loquendi obtinuiſſe ut piſtica nardus diceretur quæ ſincera & abſque vitio eſt, & plane ἄδολος, germana, & nullâ arte vitiata. It is worth knowing what Pliny affirms, that there are nine ſpecies of herbs, which imitate and adulterate nard, whence it is, that, in ſo great matter of deceit, that nard is called πιστικὴ, which is ſincere, and without fault, deceitleſs, and not vitiated by any art. But that which ſeems to me the moſt probable is, that as there are in the New Teſtament Writers many Latin words, and thoſe a little diſguiſed by turning into Greek, as λίτρα for libra, &c. ſo here ſpicata may be turned into πιστικὴ. which is as it were, the Anagram of it, the miſplacing, but yet retaining all the conſonants in it. This is, I find, Eraſmus's opinion of it, whoſe judgment I ſhall ſuppoſe fit to recommend it to the Reader.

Ib. Brake] This part of this paſſage expreſs'd by συντρίψαν ἀλάβαστρον κατέχεεν remains ſtill (after all that hath been ſaid on S. Matthew and here) to be explained. That it cannot be interpreted of her breaking the veſſel, I am perſwaded, not only firſt, becauſe a veſſel of that kind of Marble is not eaſily broken (and Nonnus renders it μάρμαρον ἄγγος a marble veſſel, and if it had been of gold or ſilver, or other metal, 'twere as hard to be imagined;) and 2. becauſe there was no need of breaking it; and 3. becauſe Suidas mentions this very veſſel or cruiſe, βίκιον μύρε ᾧ δ' ἀλείφατο ὁ Χριστὸς (together with many other σημειοφορικὰ notable relicks, as laid up by Conſtantine the Great, but taken away, ἀφανισθέντα by Theodoſius the Great) which ſure if it had been broken in pieces by the woman, could not well have been laid up by Conſtantine, nor would Suidas have ſaid it was, if he had ſo underſtood this word συντρίψαι in the Goſpel, at leaſt would not have called it βίκιον the cruiſe, but only ſome pieces of it. And although perhaps that relation in Suidas be not of infallible authority, that it was kept till Conſtantine's time, (which yet the durable matter, of which 'twas made, was able to authorize) yet thus far may an argument be drawn from thence, that they that affirmed it to be ſo kept, did not believe it broken by the woman, and that Suidas which was a very good Grammarian, and thought it not broken, did infallibly underſtand ſomewhat elſe (and not breaking) by συντρίψαι. But beſides theſe, I have yet this farther argument, in that 'tis here ſaid κατέχεεν ſhe poured out of it, which was moſt proper for the buſineſs in hand, it being the manner to pour out ſuch ointment out of the mouth of the veſſel. So Euphemus in Pollux, λύε τὰ ἀλάβαστρα δᾶττον σὺ open the cruiſe preſently, and the manner of pouring out the ointment is there expreſs'd, by uſing a ſpathula or rudicula, an inſtrument to put into it firſt, to taſte the ointment, πρὶν κατα χέαι (the word here) before it be poured out, and alſo to ſtir up the thicker parts of it from the bottom, and from the ſides, that they may come out together. To this purpoſe hath the Syriack interpreted it ſhe opened it, and the Æthiopick, ſhe opened, and poured out. And for the Greek συντρίψαι in the Active, that doth not naturally ſignifie to break, but either contundere, conquaſſare, to knock, to beat or ſhake together, σωδεῖν ſaith Heſychius; So in * Lucian, ὑλοις συντρίβειν is fuſtibus contundere, not to break (though in the Paſſive that which is contuſum or contritum is oft that which by ſuch contuſion is broken to pieces) A. Gellius ſpeaking of a boy that was to pour out oil from the cruiſe into a ſallet of herbs, the oil not coming at firſt, concuſſum vehementius, ſaith he, iterum in ollam vertit, he ſhook, or knock'd it very vehemently, and then turned the mouth of it over the diſh. Or elſe conterere, to rub, or ſcrape, &c. Thus the ſimple word τρίβω vulgarly ſignifies terere, to rub, and προστρίβω to rub upon, as in * Palladius προσεῖλας καταλλὼ τῷ θηρίῳ τοῖς μορίοις, rubbing the head of the viper on the parts, on purpoſe that it might bite him; and then by Analogy, συντρίβω muſt be, to rub together. If it ſignifie contundere, or conquaſſare, to knock, or ſhake, then the meaning will be, that ſhe ſhook the veſſel, or knock'd it againſt the ground, that it might run the more fluently, and the more corpulent parts might riſe from the bottom, and then ſhe poured it on his head. But if it ſignifie conterere, then it refers to the τρίβη in Pollux, the inſtrument ordinary among Apothecaries, to rub, or ſcrape the inſide of the veſſel, that the ointment

In one of theſe two notions I doubt not but 'tis taken, and the Hebrew נפץ which is rendred ſometimes συντρίζω, is alſo by the Septuagint ἐκκένωσις excutio, and ἐδαφίζω, to ſtrike againſt the ground, and διαχέω and ἐκχέω, to pour out, Prov. 5. 16. and διανοίγω to open; and that very agreeable to the moiſtneſs or thinneſs of the Nard, which before was mentioned.

V.12. First day of unleavened bread] Some difficulty there is in the old Teſtament about the beginning of the feaſt of unleavened bread, ariſing from the comparing of Ex. 12.6.8. & *Lev.*23.5. *Numb.*28.16. In Exodus, on the fourteenth day of the month Niſan at even the Paſſover is to be killed, v. 6. and the fleſh eat that night, v. 8. & v.17,18. their eating of unleavened bread is to begin at the fourteenth day of that month at even, and to laſt till the 21 day of that month at even, whereas in Leviticus and in Numbers 'tis diſtinctly ſaid, In the fourteenth day of the firſt month at even is the Lords Paſſover, and on the fifteenth day of the ſame month is the feaſt of unleavened bread, and agreeably Joſephus, Antiq. l.3. πέμπτῃ καὶ δεκάτῃ διαδέχεται ἡ τῶν Πάσχα ἡ τῶν ἀζύμων ἑορτὴ ἑπτὰ ἡμέρας ἄγουσα, on the fifteenth day of the feaſt of unleavened bread follows the Paſſover, and laſt ſeven days. eth. Theſe will ſoon be reconciled, if firſt we ſuppoſe that the Jews fourteenth day begin at the ſun-ſet of the thirteenth, according to the firſt calculation, *Gen.*1. The evening and the morning were the firſt day, and the importance of the word νυχθήμερον night and day, for the natural day; and then, 2*dly*. that betwixt that time and the next evening, being the full time that belonged to the fourteenth day, all that belonged to the Paſſover was to be done, the place of eating it prepared, the lamb killed, and dreſſed, and eaten about the concluſion of that 24 hours, according to that of Moſes, *Ex.*12.8. They ſhall eat the fleſh in that night, (not the night with which the fourteenth day began, but the night or evening concluding, or ſhutting up the fourteenth day) that is, not defer the eating it any longer then that night, leave none of it 'till the morning, *v.*10. And then 3*dly*, that this day of the Paſſover being the Eave or Preparation of the ſeven days feaſt of unleavened bread, they were that day before Sun-ſet, (that is, before the fifteenth day began) to purge out or remove all remainders of leavened bread out of their houſes, and to eat the Paſſover with unleavened, (which ſeems to be referred to by S. Paul, 1 *Cor.*5.) and then the feaſt of unleavened bread was to begin, and laſt ſeven days, that is, from the evening that concluded the fourteenth, and began the fifteenth day, *Lev.*23.5. *Numb.*21.16. to the evening, the concluſion of the 21, *Ex.*12.18. and beginning of the 22 day. Agreeable to this is that of Joſephus, Ant. l.2. ſpeaking of this feaſt, ἑορτὴν ἄγομεν ἐφ' ἡμέρας ὀκτὼ, we keep that feaſt eight days, beginning from the fourteenth day of the month, wherein at even they were to eat unleavened bread, *Ex.*12.18. and then to keep the feaſt of unleavened bread ſeven days after. From this explication of thoſe Texts of the Old Teſtament, the controverſy about the time of Chriſts and the Jews keeping this Paſſover, here in the New, may be decided. And firſt the preciſe time of this πρώτη ἄζύμων, the firſt day of unleavened bread, be defined. On the Thurſday evening then, wherein the thirteenth day of the month was concluded, and the fourteenth day, (or νυχθήμερον night and day, and evening & morning) began, expreſs'd here by two characters, 1. πρώτῃ ἡμέρᾳ τῶν ἀζύμων, the firſt day of unleavened bread (not the firſt day of the feaſt of unleavened bread, or the firſt of the ſeven days, but) the preparation to that feaſt wherein the leaven was put out of their houſes, 2. ὅτε τὸ Πάσχα ἔθυον, when they killed the Paſſover, that is, on the evening which began that Paſchal day (at the end of which, the Paſcal lamb was wont to be kill'd and eaten) The diſciples ſay unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare that thou eat the Paſſover? For, according to the uſual cuſtom, that night and the next morning, the Jews were wont to prepare, and make ready, cleanſe the houſe, remove all leavened bread out of it, and at length lay the cloath, dreſs the meat, and eat the Paſſover about the evening or night after. But the truth was, Jeſus our Paſſover was to be ſacrificed; (that is, crucified himſelf) before the next evening at night, wherein the Paſchal lamb uſed to be eaten, and therefore he reſolved to keep it ſooner, viz. in the former part of that Paſchal νυχθήμερον; this ſaith the learned Grotius, is the importance of, My time is at hand, Mat. 26.18. and of ποιῶ I keep the Paſſover, that is, in reſpect of the ſuddenneſs of my death approaching, I will keep it preſently, and Luke 22. 15. I have earneſtly deſired to eat this Paſſover with you before I ſuffer; but this not by eating the Lamb; that was to be ſlain by the Levites, 2 Chr. 35.6. and ſacrificed in the Temple, *Dut.*16. 2,6. (and that ſo it continued at this time and after, appears by the ſtory of Ceſtius, learning by this means from the Prieſts the number of the Lambs that were ſacrificed, and the people that were preſent at a Paſſover) and that on the fourteenth day at even only, that is, at the concluſion of that day, but another Paſſover, which was not ſacrificed (and accordingly of that which Chriſt took, it is no where ſaid in the Goſpels, that it was ſacrificed, not θύω, but only ποιῶ, I keep or celebrate, and φάγω I eat it) but eaten, as a memorial of the afflictions and deliverance out of Egypt, viz. unleavened bread, and bitter herbs, and nothing elſe. To this purpoſe it may be obſerved, that as John 13.1. the time there ſpecified for the Supper, *v.*2. is πρὸ τῆς ἑορτῆς τοῦ Πάσχα, before the feaſt of the Paſſover, upon which it is added, that Jeſus knew that his hour was come, that he ſhould paſs out of this world unto the father, that is, that he, our Paſſover ſhould be ſacrificed; and ſo himſelf paſs before the Paſſover, intimating that what he now doth at this ſupper, was upon this conſideration, that he knew he ſhould not live to eat the Lamb with them. So at the time of the eating of this ſupper in John, which is here, *v.*12. call'd this (commemorative) Paſſover, the ſolemn Paſchal feaſt (by the mention of thoſe things that they have need of, εἰς τὴν ἑορτὴν for or againſt the feaſt, *v.*29.) appears to be yet to come, the Diſciples it ſeems, conceiving that it would follow in its due time, as it would, had it not been prevented by Chriſt's death. This commemorative Paſſover they that could not come up to Jeruſalem to ſacrifice were wont to obſerve at home, in remembrance of the deliverance, and accordingly Chriſt by his approaching death being hindred from the more ſolemn celebration of it by killing, and ſacrificing of the Lamb, yet would needs keep this commemoration of it on the ſame day, or νυχθήμερον, tho' many hours before the ordinary eating of the Lamb, viz. in the night before, expreſſed by ὀψίας γενομένης, *v.*17. which that it ſignifies not only the evening, but in ſome places neceſſarily the night, ſee note on *Mat.*14: c. This ſetting of the paſſage will perſpicuouſly reconcile all difficulty, and ſeeming contrarieties in the relations of this matter among the Evangeliſts.

V.41. It is enough] What the word ἀπέχει here ſignifies may beſt be learn'd from Heſychius, tho' in the place, which orderly belongs to it, the word be not to be found in the printed copies. After the word ἀπέχαστον, ἀπέχει follows, Ἀπήχει, ἀπέχου, ἐξαρκεῖ, and after again, ἀπέχει ἐξαρκεῖ, by which it appears to be an impersonal, and to ſignify, ſufficit, actum eſt, and here to import, ['Tis to no purpoſe to ſpeak any more of not ſleeping, 'tis now too late] and this preparative to what follows, the hour is come, &c. Thus is ἔχει uſed alſo, as *Numb.*16,3. Ἐχέτω ὑμῖν let it ſuffice you, where Symmachus and Theodotion out of the Hebrew literally read πολὺ ὑμῖν it is much for you, ſo in Anacreon, ἀπέχει βλέπειν γάρ αὐτὴν, It is ſufficient for I ſee her. In order to this interpretation of the word, it is obſervable, that ἀπέχω, Phil. 4.18. ſeems to have a peculiar forenſick notion, for ſatis habeo giving a diſcharge, ſubſcribing of an acquittance, (which is therefore call'd ἄπαξ) πάντα ἀπέχω, I give you my acquittance (ὡς ὅταν ἀφειλῆς, as upon receiving of a debt, ſaith Theophylact) for all that which now ye ſent me, having as it follows, received by Epaphroditus, &c. Now this notion of it being Impersonally applyed to this place, signifies Christs giving them an ἀποχὴ or acquittance, a requiring no farther attendance from them, (they may sleep on now) and so, according to our vulgar phrase, giving them a quietus est. So *Mat.*6.2. and 6. ἀπέχουσι τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν, they receive all that is due to them, by the receiving the praise of men they acquit God of any farther payment. So *Gen.*43. 23. τὸ ἀργύριον ὑμῶν τὸ εὐδοκιμοῦν ἀπέχω, I received your money, good and lawful money, and acquit you of it, and accordingly Suidas interprets ἀπέχω in the present tense, by ἀπέλαβον in the Aorist, I received, and so doth Theophylact, Ἐπαινούμενοι γὰρ τὰ πᾶν ἀπέλαβον παρὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, they that are praised have received all from men, that is have acquitted God. Another way hath been thought of to interpret this place, by adhering to the nature of the verb ἀπέχω, as that notes distance or absence, but that not for removed, approach or drawing nigh. So the Syriack seems to have understood it here; for in the printed copy of that, instead of ἀπέχει, they read מטוריז זרתא appropinquavit finis, the end approacheth, and in Manuscript copies, קרב שול מא appropinquavit consummatio, the consummation approacheth, where מטא and קרב have the same importance, both signifying, to draw nigh. According to this way, ἀπέχει must be taken personally, and having no Substantive annex'd to it, the word ὥρα, hour, which follows, must belong to that, as well as to ἦλθεν is come; thus ἀπέχει ἦλθεν ὥρα, the hour (the point of time) draws nigh, yea it is come, the Son of man is delivered into the hands of sinners, and so it will agree with what follows immediately, Behold he is at hand that doth it. But the former I conceive the fittest to be adhered to, tho' the latter having the authority of the Syriack, is not unworthy to be mention'd also.

e. Νεανίσκοι.

V.51. Young men] Νεανίσκοι young men, is a title here of the Roman soldiers, as in Polybius νεανίσκων κατάλογος, the mustring of soldiers, so *Jos.*6.22. the Septuagint have δύο νεανίσκοι κατάσκοποι, two soldiers went to spie, and *Jos.*2.1. and *Isa.*13.18. τοξεύματα νεανίσκων, the bows of the young men, or souldiers. See Casaubon against Baron. p. 113. So Juvenes in Latin do usually signify. See Lipsius Epist. quest. l. 1. Ep. 1.

i

f. Φῶς.

V.54. Fire] The word φῶς light is here, and Luke 22. 56. clearly taken for a fire, for to that θερμαινόμενον, warming himself refers. And it is observable, how it comes to do so. The Writer of this book, and all of the New Testament, and so the Greek translators of the Old were Jews by nation, and had learn'd Greek. Hence it is, that tho' they write in Greek, yet they not only retain the Hebrew idiom in phrases, and forms of speeches, but farther in many other things imitate the Hebrew manner especially in two things, 1. In the Conjugations of Verbs, they having in the Hebrew more then there are in Greek, do yet express the sense of all their Conjugations by Greek words of other Conjugations, being not able to do otherwise, as when Hiphil one of their Conjugations is to make do a thing, they finding no Conjugation in Greek answerable to this, make use of the active for it. Thus have we θριαμβεύειν, 2 Cor. 2.14. to make triumph, ἀναστέλλειν, *Mat.*5.45. to make arise, ταχύνειν, 2 *Pet.*3.12. to make to hasten, καθίζειν, 1 Cor. 6.4. to make to sit, and ἀποστοματίζειν, to make recite, Luke 11. 53. and περισσεύειν to make abound, 2 *Cor.*9.8. Thus when we read, Mat. 5. 25. ἴσθι εὐνοῶν, that is literally, think thou well, or be friends with thine adversary, it clearly signifies, make or get him to be friends with thee, see note on Mat. 5. 24. m. The other thing is, that when an Hebrew word (according to the paucity of Themes in that language) signifies several things, and those severals expressed in Greek by several words of several significations, one of these Greek is often by them (according as it was the usual dialect, or manner of speaking among them) taken for the other. This might be observed in other writings of translators, which have turn'd books out of their own native language, into a language which they have learn'd by study, as when a Grecian rendred the Novels out of Greek into Latin,

α

meeting with these * words, τῆς ὀρθῆς ἀποπλανώμενοι δόξης, they erred from the right opinion, δόξα in Greek signifying gloria, as well as opinio, he renders it à vera aberrarunt gloria. So the Translator of Irenæus, who, in a discourse how all things were created by God himself, and not by the Angels, hath these words. Ea omnia non per Angelos, neque per vertutes aliquas ablatas, ab ejus sententia, All these were created not by Angels nor by any virtues pulled off from his sentence, where the Greek being questionless ἀπὸ δόξης αὐτοῦ should have been rendred ab ejus gloria, from his glory, according to the opinion of those who supposing the Angels to be made of beams and rays of Gods glory (ἀπαυγάσματα and ἀποτελέσματα) taught that the world was created by them. Something of this kind might be observed among the Greek authors themselves, as when the Greek κόρη signifies both a maid and the apple of the eye, the word γλαυκὼν signifying only the latter of these, is yet used sometimes for a maid, κόρης καλὴ γλαυκῶν, and hence perhaps it is that when ὀργὴ signifies both χολὴ and θυμὸν, anger, and generally the disposition of the mind, whatever it is, χολὴ which imports one of these (signifying choler or anger) is taken sometimes for the other, as when in Zenobius we read δίχολοι γνῶμαι, and find that rendred by the Scholiast, ἰδιόγνωμοι: I make little doubt but the place in Zenobius is corrupt, and should be read ἰδιόχολοι, and then that being all one with ἰδιόγνωμοι, argues χολὴ and θυμὸς to be so too. Thus hath * Phavorinus observed of Pindar, that τιμὴ signifying two things, reward in a good sense, and ποινὴ punishment in a bad, from πρὸ τιμωρῶ, he useth ποινὴν punishment often for ἐπὶ ἀγαθῷ καλῷ ἀμοιβὴν, retribution in a good sense. In the Septuagint, (or whosoever did it) the Greek translation of the Old Testament, there are infinite examples of this kind, I must not go about to throw them in here, they would make up a volume, only one I shall mention, as being a pitch above any, which we have yet observed, or which is ordinary in the other examples, it is this, that when כבד signifies both burthen and honour, they do not only render that word by one of these, when it signifies the other, but moreover there being another Hebrew word, to wit, סבל which signifies a burthen, that is, denotes one part of the signification of the word כבד and not the other, yet those Translators have rendred סבל sometimes by that other signification of the word כבד as *Isa.*14.25. where they render it κῦδος, glory, and *Ex.*6. 6. κατάδυναστεία, where yet the sense requires burthen in both places. Examples of the main observation in the New Testament we shall meet with many, and observe them briefly as they come. That which is here before us, and occasioned all this preparative discourse, is τὸ φῶς signifying light in Greek and nothing else, but is here used for fire, most clearly upon this ground and no other, because the Hebrew אור which signifies light, and the sun the fountain of light (from whence it is that the Greeks call the sun or Apollo Ἀπόλλων) doth also signify light fire, or flaming fire, (from whence perhaps is the Latine, uro, to burn) and so in vulgar use, both fire and light, and hereupon one of these is taken and used for the other, τὸ φῶς, when the sense require τὸ πῦρ.

g. Ἴσαι μαρτυρίαι.

V.56. Agreed not together] Ἴσαι μαρτυρίαι here belongs not to the agreement or disagreement of their testimonies, but to the weight of them, or sufficiency to the matter in hand, of putting him to death, either in respect to the number of the witnesses, but especially of the crimes charged on him. The testimonies that were look'd for, were εἰς τὸ θανατῶσαι, v. 35. such as would be sufficient to put him to death, and that must not be but under two or three witnesses, and for a crime which is by law capital. Now tho' there were many knights of the post brought in, to witness against him, *v.*56. yet 'tis probable that their witnesses were of several matters, not two or more of them to one matter, and so 'tis there said, that they were not ἴσαι, sufficient in the first sense, in respect of the number of the witnesses. Afterward, v. 57. the witnesses agree, more then one in the same testimony, and tho' tho' it be not in Matthew and Mark ſet down in the ſame words exactly, yet the difference is not real but verbal between them (as in many other narrations) and each of them affirm that the witneſſes ſaid the ſame thing. In that verſe therefore, the ἐκ ἴσου ſignifies that the teſtimonies were not of any capital crime, or of ſuch importance, as that allowing them to be true, a man ſhould be put to death for them. And therefore it is that the chief Prieſt was fain to examine him, and at laſt adjured him (which I formerly obſerved the force of, Note on Mat. 26. h.) that out of his own mouth he might draw ſomewhat to condemn him. (For ſo the faſhion of adjuring was deſigned, Num. 5. 13. when an accuſation is not ſufficiently proved, and there is no witneſs againſt him.) And when by Chriſts anſwer he concludes that he had ſpoken blaſphemy, then he riſes up and ſaith, What need have we of any farther Witneſſes, v. 63. and Mat. 26. 65.

h. Εὐλογητὸς. V. 61. The Bleſſed] The Jews when they name God, generally add bleſſed for ever, and thereupon ὁ εὐλογητὸς is here the title of God the father, ſee Note on Rom. 9. d.

i. Ἐπιβαλὼν V. 72. Thought thereon] Many conjectures there are about the importance of ἐπιβαλών, as that it might be for ἐνοῶν, thinking on it, or that ἐπιβαλὼν ἔκλαυσε were all one with ἐπέβαλε κλαίειν, and that to be rendred, he proceeded or added to weep, that is, he wept, as πρόσθεσις ὕπτε, Luke 19. 11. a kind of Expletive, or as ἐπιβάλλειν ſignifies περίσσευμα, and περίσσευσιν, abundance, ſay Grammarians, and then would be all one with his weeping bitterly in the other Evangeliſt, but the two latter will be leſs probable, if it be mark'd that there is a comma betwixt ἐπιβαλὼν and ἔκλαυσε, whereas either of thoſe ſenſes requires the connecting of theſe together, and the advantage that the laſt hath by agreeing with πικρῶς in St. Matthew, is again loſt by that which is obſerved of this Evangeliſt, that being St. Peter's Scribe, he doth as a true penitent would do, ſet out his ſin of denying Chriſt with more aggravations then any of the Evangeliſts, and only mentions the repentance, but more ſlightly then the reſt. As for the firſt, that ἐπιβάλλειν ſhould ſignify ἐνοεῖν, it is but affirmed by Caſaubon, but not proved by any Grammarian or Gloſſary, and therefore tho' proper enough to the place, will be of leſs authority, and beſides, this thinking on it, ſeems to have been contained before in the ἀνεμνήσθη ὁ Πέτρος, Peter's remembring Chriſt's ſaying. Leſs probable then any of theſe I conceive that of Claudius Salmaſius to be, that it ſhould ſignify ἐγκαλυψάμενον, operto capite, putting on his hat, covering his head. To theſe I might add another conjecture, that the Hebrew כפל being ſometimes rendred ἐπιβάλλω, and that ordinarily ſignifying to fall down, to proſtrate himſelf, and that as an argument and expreſſion of ſorrow, ἐπιβαλὼν may poſſibly ſignify caſting himſelf down, proſtrating himſelf. But that which ſeems to me leſs forced, and moſt proper to the paſſages ſet down by the other Evangeliſts, and back'd by the judgment of learned ancient Grammarians, is this, that it ſhould ſignify looking on Chriſt, caſting his eyes upon him he wept. In St. Luke, ch. 22. 61. 'tis ſaid (in this point of time here ſet down by St. Mark) that Jeſus turned καὶ ἐνέβλεψε τῷ Πέτρῳ and look'd upon Peter, and his doing any thing upon that look of Chriſts (as it follows there, he remembred, &c.) is an infallible argument that St. Peter look'd upon him alſo, ſeeing him look; and that he did ſo, and thereupon wept, is the ſum of this interpretation; and for authority to confirm it, 'tis Phavorinus's gloſs ἐπιβάλλω, τὸ ἐπιβλέπω τὸν δὲ ἢ τῷδε. It ſignifies to look upon any man.

CHAP. XV.

1. AND ſtraightway in the morning, [the chief-prieſts held a conſultation with the Elders and Scribes, and the whole council, and] bound Jeſus, and carried him away, and delivered him to Pilate.

Paraphraſe.

1. The chief-prieſts, elders and ſcribes, that is the whole Sanhedrim, having ſat in conſultation, and reſolved that he was to be put to death, (Mat. 27. 1.)

2. And Pilate asked him, Art thou King of the Jews? and he anſwering ſaid unto him, [Thou ſayeſt it.]

2. I am.

3. And the chief-prieſt accuſed him of many things, but he anſwered nothing.

4. And Pilate asked him again, ſaying, Anſwereſt thou nothing? Behold how many things they witneſs againſt thee.

5. But Jeſus yet anſwered nothing, ſo that Pilate marvelled.

6. Now at the feaſt [he releaſed unto them one priſoner, whomſoever they deſired.]

6. It was the cuſtom for him to looſe to the Jews, by way of gratification, ſome one priſoner, whomſoever the multitude of them ſhould demand, v. 8.

7. And there was one named Barabbas, [which lay bound with them that had made inſurrection with him, who had] committed murther in the inſurrection.

7. That together with his complices was in priſon for having made an inſurrection, and this man had alſo.

8. And the multitude crying aloud, began to deſire him [to do as he had ever done unto them.]

8. To releaſe them a priſoner according to cuſtom.

9. But Pilate anſwered them, ſaying, Will ye that I releaſe unto you the king of the Jews.

10. For he knew that the chief-prieſts had delivered him for envy.

11. But the chief prieſts moved the people that he ſhould releaſe Barabbas unto them.

12. And Pilate anſwered and ſaid again unto them; What will ye then that I ſhall do unto him whom ye call the king of the Jews?

13. And they cryed out again, Crucify him.

14. Then Pilate ſaid unto them, Why, what evil hath he done? and they cryed out the more exceedingly, Crucify him.

15. And ſo Pilate [willing to content the people, releaſed Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jeſus, * when he had ſcourged him, to be crucified.]

* having ſcourged him, φραγελλώσας.

15. In compliance to the importunity and clamours of the Jews, though he thought him abſolutely innocent (and therefore ſent for water to waſh his hands of it, Mat. 27. 24.) and though he had inflicted ſcourging as a lower puniſhment, to releaſe him from this higher, ſee note on Luke 23. 16. releaſed Barabbas, and gave them their deſire, delivered Jeſus to be crucified.

16. And the ſoldiers [led him away into the hall † called Prætorium, and they call together the whole band.]

† which is the Prætors hall, ἤτοι πραιτώριον.

16. Took him aſide into an inner hall from that where Pilate ſate, (the hall where the Prætor ſat in Judicature) as a retiring-room, and there they firſt ſet the whole band of ſoldiers, to guard him to his execution.

17. And they [clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns and put it about his head.

18. And began to ſalute him, Hail king of the Jews.

19. And they ſmote him on the head with a reed, and did ſpit upon him, and bowing their knees worſhipped him.

17, 18, 19. Then they attired him, and ſet him out like a mock king (implying that to be the crime for which he was puniſht, v. 2.) putting on him a purple garment, and faſtning a crown of platted thorns upon his head, and in a ſcoffing manner bowing themſelves to him as to a king, but withal ſtriking him with a cane, and ſpitting on him.

20. And

20. And when they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put his own cloaths on him, and led him out to crucify him.

21. And they [compelled] one Simon a Cyrenian, who paſſed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his croſs.

21. See note on Mat. 5. f.

24. And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, caſting lots upon them, what every one ſhould take.

25. And it was the third hour, and they crucified him.]

25. And ſbetwixt the third and the ſixth hour, John 19. 14. that is betwixt nine and twelve of the clock, he was condemn'd by Pilate, and ſoon hurried away by the ſoldiers, and faſten'd to the Croſs.

Annotations on Chap. XV.

a. Περφύρεον ἐνδύσαντες.

V. 17. Cloathed him with purple] Many particulars mention'd in their dealing with Chriſt were not from the Jewiſh but the Roman cuſtoms. Some were mention'd in the note on Mat. 27. 15. d. and ſuch was here the putting the purple or ſcarlet robe upon him, which the text here ſaith was done by the Soldiers, and Luke, by Herods ſervants, or elſe the Roman guards, Luke 23. 11. And ſo ſaith * Lazarus Bayfius, this purple or ſcarlet gown, or robe was the Roman faſhion, call'd toga picta, and accordingly by St. Luke ἐσθῆτα λαμπρὰν, chap. 23. 11. and was by way of ſcoff brought to Chriſt by the Soldiers, as if it had been ſent by the Senate and People of Rome to him, which, as the Jews ſaid, pretended to be their King. See farther, Luke 23. b.

* De re veſt.

b. Ἐπιγραφὴ τῆς αἰτίας.

V. 26. Superſcription of, &c.] That it was the Romans Cuſtom to write the crime, for which any man ſuffered death, in a table, and carry it before him to execution, appears by Euſebius Eccl. hiſt. l. 5. c. a. where of Atalus the Chriſtian Martyr it is ſaid, that he was led about the amphitheatre, πίνακα αὐτῷ προάγοντος, ἐν ᾧ ἐγέγραπτο, &c. with a table carried before him, in which was written in Latin, This is Attalus the Chriſtian. So in Suetonius, Domit. c. 10. Detractum in arenam canibus objecit, cum hoc titulo, Impiè locutus, &c. He brought him out, and caſt him to the dogs, with this title, or inſcription, He ſpake impiouſly. This elſewhere he calleth elogium, a way of publiſhing the fault, in Calig. and ſo Tertullian in his Apologie, c. 11. And as of other kinds of death, ſo particularly of thoſe that are crucified. This is mention'd by Dio of a ſervant, that he was carried to the croſs, μετὰ γεγραμμένων τὰς αἰτίας τῆς ἀναιρέσεως δηλούντων with a writing, or words, declaring the cauſe of his being put to death. From theſe records of the Romans, appears the propriety of all theſe expreſſions in the ſevetal Evangeliſts, ἐπιγραφὴ τῆς αἰτίας, the ſuperſcription of the cauſe, or of his crime here in Mark; ἡ αἰτία ἐπάνω τῆς κεφαλῆς γεγραμμένη, the charge, or cauſe, written over his head, Mat. 27. 37. and ſimply, ἐπιγραφὴ inſcription, Luke 23. 38. and τίτλος (the Latin word Titulus) title, John 19. 19. all to the ſame purpoſe, noting this Roman cuſtom obſerved in the dealing with him more Romano, after the manner of the Romans.

c. Μικρὸς

V. 40. James the leſs] That the poſitive μικρὸς is here taken for the Comparative, the leſs, or the younger, doth not appear by any circumſtance of this text or Analogy of other places. And there were three James's ſo known, two Apoſtles, and the third the brother of the Lord, that this title of the leſs in the Comparative, could be no character of the third of theſe, to diſtinguiſh him from the other two. That which is moſt probable is, that being a kind of cognomen here, it is an Abbreviate of μικρὸς τῇ ἡλικίᾳ, little in ſtature, the phraſe uſed of Zachæus Luke 19. 3. and ſo notes this James to have been about Zachæus's ſize or pitch, and ſo diſtinguiſh him from the others of that name, who, it ſhould ſeem, were not ſo.

d. Βουλευτὴς

V. 43. Counſeller] What is meant by βουλευτὴς Counſeller here, is matter of ſome queſtion. Moſt probable it is, that it imports one of the Decuriones placed by the Romans in their Colonies or Provinces: So ſaith Fornerius, Decuriones βουλαὶ dicebantur quod conſilij gratiâ allegerentur, The Decuriones were called Counſellers, becauſe they were choſen to give counſel. So the old Greek and Latin Lexicon, βουλευτὴς, Decurio, Curialis. So the old Gloſſary, Decurio βουλευτὴς, δεκαδάρχης. Now what the Decurio is, we find in the Digeſts, Lib. 50. Tit. 16. de verbor. ſignif. leg. 239. § 5. Decuriones dictos aiunt ex eo, quod initiò, cum coloniæ deducerentur, decima pars eorum qui ducerentur conſilij publici gratiâ conſcribi ſolita ſit. They were ſo called, becauſe at the firſt when Colonies were ſent out, the tenth part of them were appointed to ſit as a ſtanding Councel, to manage affairs. And ſuch an one at this time was Joſeph, and he ἐπίσημος, a perſon of great eminence.

CHAP. XVI.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND when the ſabbath was paſt, Mary Magdalen and Mary the mother of James and Salome, had bought ſweet ſpices, that they might come and [anoint him.]

1. Embalm.

2. And very early in the morning the firſt day of the week, they came unto the ſepulchre a [at the riſing of the ſun,]

a.

2. When the Sun was appearing in their Horizon.

3. And they ſaid among themſelves, Who ſhall roll us away the ſtone, from the door of the ſepulchre?

4. (And when they looked, they ſaw that the ſtone was rolled away) for it was very great.]

3,4. And queſtioning one with another who ſhould roll away the ſtone from the door of the tomb, it being a very great ſtone, they looked up and diſcerned that it was already removed.

5. And entring into the ſepulchre, they ſaw [young man] ſitting on the right ſide, clothed with a long white garment, and they were affrighted.

5. An Angel in the appearance of a young man.

6. And he ſaith unto them, Be not affrighted; ye ſeek Jeſus of Nazareth, which was crucified; he is riſen, he is not here, behold the place where they laid him.

7. But go your way, tell his diſciples, and Peter, that he goeth before you into Galilee, there ſhall ye ſee him, as he ſaid unto you.

7 But ſtay not here ſeeking the living in a tomb, but go tell his diſciples, and particularly Peter, that according to his own words before his death, c. 14. 28. he is riſen from the dead, and that, &c.

8. And they went out quickly, and * fled from the ſepulchre; for they trembled, and were amazed, [neither ſaid they any thing to any man, for they were afraid.

8,9. And being very much amaz'd and frighted, they did not declare this to any whom they met by the way, but going to tell the Apoſtles what they had heard of the Angel, Mat. 28. 9. before they came to them, Jeſus himſelf appeared to them, and firſt

* ran to, &c.

9. Now when Jeſus was riſen early the firſt day of the week, he appeared firſt] to Mary Magdalen, out of whom he had caſt ſeven devils,

10. And ſhe went and told [them that had been with him,] as they mourned and wept.

10. Thoſe that belonged to him, that is, his diſciples,

11. And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been ſeen of her, believed not.

12. After that, he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went [into the country.]

12. To a village called Emmaus, Luke 24. 13.

13. And they went and told it unto the reſidue, neither believed they them.

14. Afterward he appeared unto the eleven, as they ſate at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief, and hardneſs of heart, becauſe they believed not them which had ſeen him after he was riſen,

15. And he ſaid unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the Goſpel to 15. All the Gentiles.

b. [b every creature.]

16. He that believeth, and is baptized, ſhall be ſaved; but he that believeth not, ſhall be damned.]

16. And he that receiveth the Goſpel preached by you and thereupon becomes a proſelyte, or diſciple of Chriſt, and deſires and receives Baptiſm, the ſeal of the new Covenant, ſhall for all his former ſins, ſincerely repented of and forſaken, receive plenary pardon, and upon perſeverance in new life, eternal bliſs; but he that ſtands out obſtinately and impenitently, ſhall be damned.

17. And * theſe ſigns ſhall follow them that believe; In my name ſhall they caſt out devils, they ſhall ſpeak with new tongues,]

17. And moreover for the propagating the Goſpel as far as may be, the Spirit ſhall be pour'd out upon you, and from you communicated to others, and thereby ye ſhall be enabled to do miracles, caſt out devils, ſpeak ſtrange languages (Acts 2.) &c.

* ſigns ſhall attend thoſe that believe thoſe things,

c. 18. c They ſhall take up ſerpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it ſhall not hurt them, they ſhall lay hands on the ſick, and they ſhall recover.

Συμβαίνει τοῖς πιστεύσασι τοῦτα τὰ σημεῖα.

19. So then after the Lord had ſpoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and ſate on the right hand of God.

20. And they went forth and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with ſigns following. Amen.

Annotations

Annotations on St. Mark, Chap. XVI.

2. Ἀνατείλαντος τοῦ ἡλίου.

V. 2. At the riſing] The various readings in this place, may deſerve to be taken notice of. 1. Gregory Nyſſen Serm. de Reſur. ſaith, Ἐν ταῖς ἀκριβεστέραις τῶν ἀντιγράφων ἐκδόσεσι. The moſt exact Copies put in ἤδη now. And ſo Euſebius Demonſtr. Evang. l. 10. in the end, reads ἤδη ἀνατείλαντος τοῦ ἡλίου, the ſun being now riſen, and ſo Lucas Brugenſis cites it out of ſome Manuſcripts. 2ly, The ancient Greek and Latin MSS. read ἀνατέλλοντος in the preſent tenſe, and if the ἤδη now, be joyned with that, the plain ſenſe will be, the ſun now riſing, or as our Engliſh, at the riſing of the ſun, and ſo it will agree exactly with S. Matthew's τῇ ἐπιφωσκούσῃ, the day beginning to appear, or ſhine, ἐπιφωσκούσης κυριακῆς, the Lord's day beginning to ſhine, ſaith Ignatius ad Trall.

b. Πάσῃ κτίσει

V. 15. Every creature] What πάσα κτίσις here ſignifies is clear by comparing this paſſage with the ſame, as 'tis ſet down in the other Goſpels. In S. Matthew (with whom S. Mark throughout moſt exactly agrees) it is thus, πορευθέντες εἰς μαθητεύσατε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, Go and gather diſciples over all nations, and immediately follows (as here) baptizing them, &c. In S. Luke thus c. 24. 47. ἤδει κηρυχθῆναι, &c. ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, repentance and remiſſion of ſins muſt be preach'd to all nations. From whence not only appear that πᾶσα κτίσις in this place is all the Gentiles, but a very fit occaſion is offered of interpreting the ſame phraſe again in a very hard place, Rom. 8. 22. and 1 Pet. 2. 13. which we ſhall refer to be explain'd more at large on thoſe Chapters. Some ground of the uſe of the phraſe in this ſenſe, ſeems to be taken from the Hebrew, which uſes ברוּת (which ſignifies creatures properly) for men, as being the moſt excellent creatures. And ſo the Arabick alſo, as appears by one of their Geographers, who ſpeaking of Cities, often ſaith, that there are in it many בראי, that is, literally κτίσεις creatures, but clearly ſignifies men, and ſo πᾶσα κτίσις every creature, is all men, in oppoſition to the Jews, that is, not only they, but all other Nations of men beſide.

c. Ὄφεις ἀροῦσι

V. 18. They ſhall take up ſerpents] This ſeems to be prophecied of by that Sibyll, out of which Virgil had learnt the ſubſtance of that verſe of his,

Occidet & ſerpens, & fallax herba veneni &c. 4. v. 24.
Occidet——

The ſerpent ſhall die, and the deceitful poiſonous herb, that is, ſhall loſe their efficacy.

He hath now perform'd his promise to Abraham and to his seed, hath exhibited to them (the Jews, and all the believing world) that great promised mercy, and so made a provision for them, which shall never fail, sent the Messias, the Saviour of the world so long expected, a mercy that shall never be taken away from us.

54. He hath holpen his servant Israel, in remembrance of his mercy.

55. As he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.]

56. And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house.

57. Now Elizabeths full time came that she should be delivered, and she brought forth a son.

58. God had shewn a miracle of mercy to her, in giving her child thus in her old age, and when she had been barren so long.

58. And her neighbours and her cousins heard how [the Lord had shewn great mercy upon her,] and they rejoiced with her.

59. On the eighth day whereon it was the custom to circumcise children, and to give them names, the kindred and neighbours met to that purpose, and they intended to call him by his fathers name, Zachary.

59. And it came to pass that [on the eight day they came to circumcise the child, and they called him Zacharias after the name of his father.]

60. And Elizabeth being also inspired by God v. 41. and having by that means received knowledge of the name appointed by God, and not from her husband, who was now dumb, and so had been ever since the Angel spake to him, v. 22. (see Titus Bostrensis p. 771. B.)

60. And his mother] answered and said, Not so, but he shall be called John,

61. And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.

62. And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called.

63. And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John: and they marvelled all.

64. And his tongue restored to him as before.

64. And his mouth was opened immediately, [and his tongue loosed,] and he spake and praised God.

65. And great astonishment and reverence.

65. And fear] came on all that dwelt round about them, and all these sayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill-country of Judæa.]

66. Certainly this child will prove some notable person: And God in a special manner was present to him, to assist and prosper him.

66. And all they that heard them, laid them up in their hearts, saying [What manner of child shall this be? and the hand of the Lord was with him.]

Annotations on Chap. I.

a. Πληροφορεῖσθαι.

V. 1. Moſt ſurely believed] This word πληροφορεῖσθαι hath ſeveral notions in the New Teſtament; 1. It is no more then πληροῦσθαι, to be fulfilled, performed, done. So 2 Tim. 4. 5. τὴν διακονίαν σου πληροφόρησον, fulfil or perform thy miniſtry. So ſaith Phavorinus, πληροφόρησον, πλήρωσον, fulfil, adding, ὡς ὁ Ἀπόστολος, τὴν διακονίαν σου πληροφόρησον, as the Apoſtle ſaith, fulfil or perform thy miniſtry. So in * Nilus πληροφορεῖν ἐπιθυμίαν, to fulfil deſire, is to do what is deſired, ſo 2 Tim. 4. 17. ἵνα τὸ κήρυγμα πληροφορηθῇ, that the preaching may be fulfilled, i. e. gone thro' with, and that the Gentiles may hear, i.e. that it may be preached to the Gentiles alſo. So in Heſychius Presbyter, Cent. 2. 10. παλαιὰ ὅτε ἦν ἐτελείου, ὅτε ἐπληροφόρει τὸν ἄνθρωπον εἰς εὐσέβειαν, the Old Teſtament did not perfect or compleat the inward man to piety, or in that reſpect, τελεῖν, and πληροφορεῖν in the ſame ſenſe. And ſo 'tis in this place πράγματα πεπληροφορημένα ἐν ἡμῖν, things which have been done, performed, acted among us, of which the διήγησις, or narration enſuing doth conſiſt. And this is perfectly agreeable to the notion of the Hebrew מלא (that in the Old Teſtament is once rendred by it) which ſignifies to fulfil, and perform, as well as to fill. So the Hebrews have a proverb, איש ומלא את לבו let a man fulfil his heart, i.e. do what he liſts; and in the Pſalmiſt [to fill, or fulfil all thy mind] is [to grant all thy petitions.] Secondly, then it ſignifies to fill; and ſo πληροφορία is fulneſs or plenty, Col. 2. 2. πλοῦτος πληροφορίας τῆς συνέσεως, the riches of the fulneſs of underſtanding, and becauſe the Hebrew מלא ſignifies Metaphorical, as well as real filling, infuſing, imbuing, &c. πληροφορεῖν and πληροῦν do ſo too. And according to the matter or ſubject, to which it is applied, the ſignification is yet farther varied. For ſo being applied to the Heart, the principle of action, it ſignifies [to incite to any action, to embolden to do any thing] and when there is any thing of difficulty in it, or of danger, then it is particularly to give courage or confidence, to embolden. So Acts 5. 3. διὰ τί ἐπλήρωσεν ὁ Σατανᾶς τὴν καρδίαν σου ψεύσασθαι σε; why hath Satan filled thy heart, that thou ſhouldſt lye or deceive the Holy Ghoſt? i.e. why? or how did Satan incline or embolden thee to do this villany? and ſo Eccl. 8. 11. ἐπληροφορήθη ἡ καρδία υἱῶν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, the heart of the ſons of men is filled to do evil, i.e. men are by impunity incited and emboldned to do ſo. So Heſt. 7. 5. who hath filled his heart to do this? or whoſe heart hath filled him to do this? where the Greek reads diſtinctly τίς ἐστος δὲ ἐτόλμησε; who is it that hath dared? to denote the danger that he incurred that had done it, and ſo the boldneſs of the adventurer. And thus πληροφορεῖσθαι comes ordinarily to ſignify boldneſs, confidence, πληροφορία ἐλπίδος, Heb. 6. 11. confidence of hope, the ſame with παῤῥησία elſewhere, πληροφορία πίστεως, confidence of Faith, Heb. 10. 22. the effect of being waſh'd from an evil conſcience in the end of the verſe, and the inſtrument of the προσερχόμεθα, coming cheerfully to God, in the beginning. So πληροφορηθεὶς, Rom. 4. 21. being confident that God was able, and ſo boldly depending on it. So 1 Theſ. 1. 5. Our Goſpel hath been towards you (preached to you) not only in word, but in power, and in the holy Ghoſt, καὶ ἐν πληροφορίᾳ πολλῇ, and in, or with much confidence, for ſo the next words [as ye know what manner of men we were among you] are interpreted, c. 2. 2. we were confident in our Lord to ſpeak the Goſpel of God to you in much contention. And ſo Rom. 14. 5. ἕκαστος ἐν τῷ ἰδίῳ νοὶ πληροφορείσθω, Let every man have aſſurance (ſuch as on which his actions are to depend) in his own (not any other mans) underſtanding. The King's MS. leaves out ἐν, and then the meaning is, Let a man be moved to do any thing by his own, not by another mans conſcience, for ſo the Context enforceth, being in oppoſition to one mans judging another for doing what he thinks he ought to do, v. 4. according to that of 1 Cor. 10. 29. why is my liberty judged of another mans conſcience? Theſe are the places where the word is uſed in theſe books, which are therefore put together here in the firſt place.

* Nilus ἐπιθυμίαν, p. 27. & 51.

Πληρῶν καρδίαν.

V. 2. Miniſters] Two poſſible acceptions there are of the phraſe, ὑπηρέται τῷ λόγῳ here, firſt ὁ λόγος the word may ſignify, as it doth in ſome other places, the matter, the thing ſpoken of, for ſo it doth, v. 4. περὶ ὧν κατηχήθης λόγων, the words, i.e. the things wherein thou haſt been inſtructed. So ῥῆμα γεγονὸς, the word, i.e. thing done, c. 2. 15. (ſee note on Mat. 2. h.) and in this notion ὑπηρέται λόγου] will be the Apoſtles, as thoſe that were Chriſt's inſtruments and officers not only ſaw, but acted themſelves the things, the paſſages that are here related. And this is the plaineſt and cleareſt meaning of the phraſe. 2*ly*, It is the opinion of other learned men, and among them of * Budæus, that ὁ λόγος, ſignifies here, as generally it doth throughout St. John's Goſpel, the word, i.e. Chriſt incarnate. That the uſe of this phraſe or title of Chriſt ſhould not be apptopriated to St. John only, may appear probable, becauſe this ſtyle ſeems to have been known among the Jews, before Chriſt's time, and is oft uſed by the Chaldee paraphraſt, מימר דיי the word of the Lord. As when Gen. 3. 22. we read, The Lord ſaid, Behold the man, &c. the Targum hath it [And the word of the Lord God ſaid, Behold Adam whom I have created alone in my age, as I am alone in the higheſt heavens, ſee the learned Paul Fagius on the Chaldee paraphraſe of that place. So Gen. 26. 1 the word of the Lord created Adam. So Iſa. 1. 17. inſtead of my ſoul, the Targum hath מימרי my word hateth, and ch. 45. 17. Iſrael is delivered, or ſaved by the Lord, they read, במימר דיי by the word of the Lord, ſo Jer. 1. 8. becauſe I am with thee, they read becauſe my word is with thee, and ſo Pſal. 110. 1. The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, they again, The Lord ſaid, למימרה to his word. And to Abraham, Gen. 15. 1. I am thy ſhield, my word is thy ſhield. So is Chriſt called the word in the Alcoran, and therefore the paraphraſt of it, Ben Achmet expounds his word by the ſon of Mary. And it ſeems this word in this ſenſe was gotten among the heathens very anciently, which cauſed Amelius when he read the beginning of St. John's Goſpel, to cry out, Per Jovem barbarus iſte cum noſtro platone, ſentit, verbum Dei in ordine principii eſſe, This Barbarian is of our Plato's opinion, that the word of God is in the order of principles. Thus Julian the Apoſtate hath 'in-σῶν, θεὸν, λόγον, Jesus, God, Word, Ep. 51. p. 210. Of the full importance and cause of this name, see Sol. Glassius in τρομάδολ. Messiæ, p. 270.

c. Θεόφιλ☉ V. 3. Excellent Theophilus] 'Tis not certain that Theophilus here was the proper name of a particular man, but perhaps a feigned title to signify every Christian, every one that loved God, to whom he addresses his discourse. Thus saith Epiphanius, Hær. 51. p. 429. εἴτ' ἐν τινὶ Θεοφίλῳ τότε γράφων ἔλεγεν, ἢ πασὶ ἀνθρώπῳ θεὸν ἀγαπῶσι, whether he wrote to one Theophilus, when he said this, or whether to every man that loved God; leaving it uncertain which it was. Thus Salvian in his Epistle to Salonius, prefix'd before his books, Ad Eccles. Cathol. giving him an account, why he inscribed those books not by his own name, but by that other of Timothy, saith he followed this Evangelists example, Qui in utroque divini operis exordio Theophili nomen inscribens, cùm ad hominem scripsisse videatur, ad amorem Dei scripsit, who in the beginning both of his Gospel, and of the Acts inscribing the name Theophilus, seeming to have written to a man, he wrote to, or for, the love of God. Thus in Athanasius, l. de incarn. κράτιστ☉. μακάριο☉, and φιλόχριστ☉ are used promiscuously for Christians. And then κράτιστ☉ will be no title of honour, nor any more then Optimus in Latin, a form of civility only.

d. V. 5. Of the course of Abiah] Tho' the word ἐφημερία do literally denote the service of no more then a day, yet it is not so to be taken here, but in a greater latitude, for the space of a week. So saith Titus Bostrensis p. 753. E. ἐφημερίαν δὲ χρὴ νοεῖν ὃ τὸ ἐφ' ἡμέρας παραμένειν καὶ λειτουργεῖν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, ἀλλὰ τὸ ἐφ' ἑβδομάδας, you must not understand the word of daily continuance and serving in the Temple, but of weekly.

e. Ὥρα θυμιάμα☉ Σιγὴ ἐν οὐρανῷ. V. 10. Time of incense] At the time when the Priest offered incense within in the Sanctuary or Tabernacle, the people were left alone without, in the atrium Judeorum, the court of the Jews, praying for the pardon of sins, every man apart for himself, till the Priest came back again, and pronounced the benediction. This is it that seems to be referred to by the half hour's silence in heaven, Rev. 8. 1. which seems there to be set in relation to that time of the Priests being gone in to offer incense; This is set down punctually, Eccl. 50. where v. 15. there is mention of the high priest Simon the son of Onias, offering τὸ ὀσμὴν εὐωδίας, the odour of sweet smell, or of incense unto God. Then, saith he, the sons of Aaron cryed out and sounded with trumpets, v. 18. (as in that, Rev. 8. 2. it follows immediately, the seven trumpets were given to the Angels, &c.) and then follows, πᾶς ὁ λαὸς κοινῇ κατέσπευσε, καὶ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ πρόσωπον ἐπὶ τὸ ἔδαφος, v. 19. then all the people together made haste, and fell on their face to the ground, and v. 21. ἐδεήθη ὁ λαὸς κυρίου ὑψίστου ἐν προσευχῇ κατέναντι ἐλεήμονος☉, ἕως συνετελέσθη κόσμ☉ κυρίου καὶ τὴν λειτουργίαν αὐτοῦ ἐτελείωσαν, The people besought the Lord most high in prayer, before the merciful, until the ministry of the Lord (the incense, noted by κόσμ☉ there) were done, and they had accomplished his service, all which is a distinct description of this manner of the peoples praying without, whilst the Priest offers within, as the two other parts, 1. of giving praises to God, and 2. the Priests pronouncing the εὐλογία or benediction, are set down there also, one v. 20. καὶ ἔψαλλον οἱ ψαλμῳδοὶ ἐν φωναῖς αὐτῶν, the singers sang praises with their voices, &c. the other, v. 22. τότε καταβὰς ἐπῆρε χεῖρας αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ πᾶσαν ἐκκλησίαν υἱῶν Ἰσραὴλ, δοῦναι εὐλογίαν κυρίῳ, or κυρίου ἐν χείλεσιν αὐτοῦ, &c. Then descending he lift up his hands over all the congregation of the children of Israel, to give blessing to the Lord, or the Lord's blessing out of his lips, &c.

a. V. 17. To the wisdom] The difficulties of understanding this verse, will be best avoided, and the obvious sense of it most clearly arise, if it be first observed, that there be in the Hebrew language but few Prepositions, in comparison with the Greek. By which means it comes to pass, that as our English translators do oft mistake, and disturb the sense of Scriptures by not observing this (as for instance, Job 2. 4. where we render, skin for skin, it should be skin after skin, i. e. one thing, that is nearest to us, after another, yea all that a man hath, will he give for his life) so in the writings of those, that being Jews by birth, write in Greek, i. e. in the Greek translation of the Old Testament, and writings of the New, the Greek prepositions are used in the latitude that belongs to the Hebrew, & not according to the strict propriety of the Greek idiom in Attick writers, but far more loosly and promiscuously. This hath been already observed an occasion of [ἐπὶ] with a Genitive case, Mat. 1. 11. which cannot there signify under, but before, and so in other places, see note on Mark 2. b. And the same is often observed of ἐν, that it signifies (beside the vulgar notation of it) sometimes εἰς῾ within, sometimes εἰς into and for, and this upon that known ground, because the Hebrew ב is used in that latitude. This being thus premised, it is next observable, that this expression of the office of John Baptist, and the answerableness of it to that of Elias, is here taken from Malac. 4. 6. There his preaching of repentance is expressed by his turning the heart of the fathers with the children, (for so ב is there to be rendred with not to) and the heart of the children with the fathers, that is, converting fathers and children together, working upon them (or, according to his office, endeavouring, by preaching in the wilderness, to work upon them) and perswading them to repent and amend their lives, Mat. 3. 2. This place of Malachi, is both by Matthew, c. 17. 11. and by Mark 9. 12. repeated out of the Septuagint, (which hath ἀποκαταστήσει καρδίαν, &c.) ἀποκαταστήσει, and ἀποκαθιστᾷ πάντα, he shall, or he doth, * restore, or return all, i. e. all men, (the Neutral πάντα, all being oft taken for the Masculine, see Mat. 18. 11. & 18.) where there is nothing set instead of the heart of the fathers with the children, &c. but only πάντα, all, noting that, and no more, to be the meaning of the phrase in Malachi [he shall convert the heart of the fathers with the children, and of the children with the fathers (of old and young, young and old) i. e. he shall preach repentance to the whole Jewish nation, noted by [the land] in the end of that verse of Malachi, which God there threatens to come and destroy with a curse, i. e. finally and universally, if this preaching of the Baptist, and of Christ, and of the Apostles, do not bring them to repentance. Now what is by those two Evangelists so briefly expressed by, he shall restore, or return all, is here more largely repeated out of the words of Malachi, ἐπιστρέψαι καρδίας πατέρων ἐπὶ τέκνα, to convert the hearts of the fathers, &c. Whence 'tis apparent, that the Preposition ἐπὶ must here be taken in that notion of ב, which belongs to that place of Malachi, and so is to be rendred not to but with the children, to this clear sense, John Baptist shall go before Christ, as his herald to prepare his way in, (or admission to) mens hearts, by preaching repentance, or return, or new life, the interpretation of the Hebrew השיב conversion, which is used in Malachi. This first part of the period being thus explained, the second, which is not taken from Malachi, but is a kind of gloss or paraphrase to explain that obscurer prophetick expression, will more easily be interpreted, if first we observe the signification of the word φρονῶν in the New Testament, which generally notes to mind, to desire, to like, to look after with an appetite, from the nown φρένες which is used for affections, appetite, 1 Cor. 14. 20. παιδία ταῖς φρεσὶν, children in appetites or designs, or inclinations, as they are that set their minds on that that profits least; and τέλειοι φρεσὶν, those that have more perfect, mature, manly appetites: so τὰ ἄνω φρονεῖν, to mind, desire, look after the things above, Col. 3. 2. ἑτερόδοξα φρονεῖν, Phil. 3. 19. τὰ τῆς σαρκὸς φρονεῖν, Rom. 8. 5. to mind earthly, carnal things: and so agreeably φρόνημα σαρκὸς, Rom. 8. 6, 7. and φρόνημα πνεύματ☉, v. 27. the minding of the flesh, and of the spirit, that is those appetites which the flesh on one side, and the spirit on the other do encline men to; or, as Theophylact most fully, the desire and pursuit either of carnal or spiritual things. And if in this sense the word φρόνησις be here taken, 'tis then the minding of just things, and being applied to that which went before, turning the hearts of the fathers unto the children, it will perfectly agree with it, he shall bring men to repentance, and the most disobedient (viz. Publicans, &c. Luk. 3. 12.) to the minding of justice and righteousness, Luke 3. 13.

* See note on Mat. 17. 6. Πάντα.

that is of all good things. But 'tis ſtill poſſible that φρόνησις be here taken for that practical vertue of prudence (as 'tis at large defined by the Moraliſt) the practical knowledge of thoſe things which are truly eligible, the knowledge that will bring men to the true juſtice, the judging of what is or is not to be done according to the rules of juſtice; and 'tis poſſible again, that the word δικαίων of the juſt ſhould be the Maſculine gender, and ſo the phraſe be rendred, the prudence or practical wiſdom of juſt men; and then alſo 'twill be anſwerable to the text in Malachi, thus; that he ſhall convert the Jews, even the moſt vicious of them that practice of all moral rules which denominates men juſt, that is, that this ſhould be the deſign of John's preaching, to make them ſuch, to work ſuch a general reformation among the Jews. As for the Prepoſition ἐν, that (as was ſaid) is ordinarily uſed for εἰς, or ὅτι to, or otherwiſe 'twill be hard to find out any ſenſe of theſe words.

g. V. 20. Dumb] The Hebrew חרש as the Greek κωφὸς ſignifies both a dumb man and a deaf, and is wont to be rendred either by ἀποστατῶν, or by ἀποκωφῶν *Mich.*7.16. that is, growing or becoming deaf, for there the context refers it to the ears. In this place one of the ſignifications of the Hebrew ſeems to be put for the other σιωπῶν ſilent or dumb, (if we believe Theophylact and the ancients) for ſurdus deaf, and ſo that which is added καὶ δυνάμενος λαλῆσαι and not able to ſpeak will be no Pleonaſm, but ſignify him dumb alſo. For that he was not only dumb but deaf, appears by his friends, who do not ſpeak but nod and make ſigns to him, *v.*62. and it is not probable that of the two things that befel him, one ſhould be twice, and the other not once foretold by the Angel.

h. Ὀπτασία. V. 22. Viſion] By ὀπτασία viſion is here meant the ἐπιφάνεια or appearance of God by an Angel to the Prieſt, revealing his will unto him, and theſe were wont to be at the time of offering of incenſe, ſee Joſ. Ant. l.13.c.18. where when Hyrcanus was offering incenſe, God gave him the Oracle. From whence it was that the people ſeeing Zachary ſtay ſo much longer then ordinary, within, and come out ſpeechleſs and aſtoniſhed, concluded that he had ſeen a viſion, that an Angel had appeared unto him.

i. Λειτουργεῖν * Jul. Pollux and Phavorinus. V. 23. Miniſtration] The word λειτουργεῖν, which is here firſt met with, may deſerve to be look'd into. The Origination of it among * Grammarians from λεία and λεῖα ſpoyles, ſeems remote and alien. Another way may be better collected from Heſychius by changing the punctation of a few words in him thus, Λειτουργεῖν (λειτὸν γὰρ τὸ δημόσιον) λειτουργεῖν. Λειτουργεῖν ſignifies publick ſervice, officiating, & λειτεύειν is all one with that, for λειτὸν (from λαὸς populus) ſignifies publick or belonging to the people. Thus is the king called λειτουργὸς Θεοῦ, the officer of God for publick adminiſtrations, *Rom.*13.6. Hence then is the prime importance of the word for any publick ſervice. Of which ſort, becauſe among both Jews and Heathens, the Prieſtly office, the ſacrifices, &c. of the Temple, were the chief, the word comes to ſignify any ſacred office. Of this we have theſe footſteps in the Grammarians Λέτορες, ἱερεῖς, and Λείτεραι ἱέρειαι in Heſychius and Phavorinus, and again λειτουργικὰς, ἱερατικάς. Thus the word is uſed, in this place by St. Luke for the executing the prieſts office, and ſo *Phil.*2.17. θυσία and λειτουργία are joined, ſacrifice and ſacred office, or ſervice, and *Heb.*8.6. διαφορωτέρας τέτυχηκε λειτουργίας, he hath obtained a more excellent miniſtry, that is prieſtly ſervice, in oppoſition to the prieſts office on earth, v.4. ſo Heb. 9.21. σκεύη τῆς λειτουργίας, the utenſils of the prieſt, and Heb. 10.11. ἕστηκε καθ' ἡμέραν λειτουργῶν, he was daily attending, or waiting on the prieſts office. From hence it is brought down to the ſervice of the Chriſtian Church, any Chriſtian office, as Acts 13. 2. λειτουργούντων αὐτῶν τῷ Κυρίῳ, while they miniſtred to the Lord, that is, were about the daily offices, praying and faſting, &c. and ſo *Rom.*15.16. εἰς τὸ εἶναί με λειτουργὸν Ἰησοῦ, that I might be a miniſter of Jeſus, employed in ſacred offices. This word, tho' it comes from λεῖτος publick, doth not yet ſo belong to publick employments, but that it ſignifies * domeſtick alſo (and ſimply ſerving λειτουργεῖν, διακονεῖ, * Λειτουργία ſaith Phavorinus, and λειτουργεῖν, μοχθεῖν, δουλεύειν καὶ κυρίως in Heſychius) eſpecially that office of the ſteward, which is moſt publick of any in the family, having the adminiſtration of the whole domeſtick affair belonging to it. Hence λειτουργεῖν τὸ οἶκον in Pollux, to perform the ſteward's office over the houſe. Now becauſe, as Chriſt ſaith, it is the ſteward's office, to give every man his portion of food in his ſeaſon, and becauſe the diet in an houſe or family belongs to all, is every mans portion, only ſo, that the ſteward aſſigns it diverſly to every one, as he thinks fit to diſpenſe it (and thence in the Grammarians Λειτοδοχεῖα are οἱ καθηγεμόνες τῶν ἐδεσμάτων, they that are ſet over the diet) therefore in the Scripture ſtyle, λειτουργία is oft uſed for the buſineſs of the collecta or offertory, for the diſpenſing of the oblations, and out of them relieving the poor Chriſtians; thus 2*Cor.* 9.12. ἡ διακονία τῆς λειτουργίας ταύτης, the adminiſtration of this liberality, which was to ſupply the wants of the Saints, as it follows there, & all one with ἁπλότης κοινωνίας, liberality of communicating, *v.*13. And ſo *Phil.*2.30. τοῦ θεοῦ μὲ λειτουργίας was the relieving the Apoſtle, and ſo λειτουργὸς τῆς χρείας μου, *v.*25. the reliever of my want. So *Rom.*15.27. ἐν τοῖς σαρκικοῖς λειτουργῆσαι αὐτοῖς, miniſtring to them in carnal things, is interpreted by κοινωνία εἰς τὰς πτωχὰς τῶν ἁγίων, *v.*26. liberality to the poor Saints: and ſo perhaps when the Angels are call'd λειτουργοὶ ἅγιοι, Heb. 1.7. his miniſters, and λειτουργικὰ πνεύματα, *v.*14. miniſtring ſpirits, it may bear the ſenſe of ſerving, ſo as to feed, and relieve and provide for us. But becauſe the office of the ſteward is to govern the family, as well as thus to give meat in due ſeaſon, therefore agreeably to this, as the word is ſometimes uſed by Chriſtian writers peculiarly for the Lord's ſupper, in reference to the feaſt provided there in the ἀγάπαι anciently, and ſtill in the offertory, for the uſe of the poor (in the ſame manner as 'tis called κοινωνία. and κλάσις ἄρτου breaking of bread) ſo alſo ſometimes it is uſed to ſignify the whole ſervice of the Church, or exerciſe of the prieſts office, and ſometimes peculiarly the government of the Church, as in Euſebius generally when one Biſhop dies, another, ſaith he, ἐγχειρίζει * λειτουργίαν, undertakes the office, or adminiſtration, or government of it, as of Pius the Biſhop of Rome, *l.*4.*c.*11. and λειτουργίαν παραλαμβάνει, in the ſame Chap. of Celadion Biſhop of Alexandria.

V. 28. Highly favoured] For the finding out the full importance of this word κεχαριτωμένη in this place, 'twill be needful firſt to examine the ſeveral notions of χάρις the nown, from whence the verb χαριτόω comes. One eminent notion of it for the Goſpel of Chriſt is explained (as it ſignifies the matter of the Goſpel) note on *Heb.*13. d and (as it ſignifies the preaching or promulgating of it) note on Acts 18.e. Another notion, as it ſignifies charity, liberality, is explain'd note on Acts 2. f. and very near to that, for δωρεὰ a gift, note on 1*Pet.*3.e. Beſide theſe it ſignifies alſo a reward; either that of good words, of thanks, as we call it, or elſe farther, of ſome real return, ἀμοιβὴ καὶ ἀνταπόδοσις, ſaith Heſychius, a retribution for a good turn, and ſo 'tis oft uſed. Luke 17.9. Μὴ χάριν ἔχει; will he thank, or reward that ſervant? ſo Luke 6. 32,33,34. ποία ὑμῖν χάρις ἐστί; what thanks or reward is due to you? for which there is μισθὸς reward, *v.*35. So 1 *Pet.*2.19. τοῦτο γὰρ χάρις, this ſhall be, or ſhall yield a reward, all one with κλέος honour, the reward of an heroick action, *v.*20. Fourthly it ſignifies favour or mercy, in this chapter, to Mary εὗρες χάριν, thou haſt found favour with God, *v.*30. and in ſome other places, and in effect in all thoſe, where it ſignifies the Goſpel in oppoſition to the Law, that being ſo ſtyled, becauſe there is ſo much of Gods favour, and undeſerved mercy diſcernible in it, contrary to boaſting or debt. Laſtly, it is taken for vertue, goodneſs in the latitude, without reſtraint to any particular kind of it, and that both of the body (beauty) and of the mind, from whence is that gloſs of Heſychius, χαρίεν, καλὸν, ἀγαθὸν, ὡραῖον, ἁγνὸν, the word gracious ſignifies either good or handſom; for that univerſal goodneſs of the mind it ſeems to be taken, 2 *Pet.*3.18. grow in grace, that is, all kind of goodneſs, and in the knowledge k. κεχαριτωμένη. χάρις.

(that that is practical knowledge) of our Lord, &c. and ſo in divers other places mentioned, note on Eph. 5. c. Now from which of all theſe notions the word κεχαριτωμένη is to be taken, or (becauſe there are but two that can be competitors for it) whether as it ſignifies favour or goodneſs, is ſomewhat uncertain; if it be taken from χάρις favour, mercy, as it ſeems to be, Eph. 1. 6. then it will agree with the εὗρες χάριν, thou haſt found favour with God, v. 30. and ſo Theophylact expounds it, Ὅτε ἄνω εἶπε κεχαριτωμένη ὥσπερ ἐρμηνεύων φησίν, εὗρες γὰρ χάριν, &c. when he had firſt ſaid, thou that art favoured, he adds by way of interpretation, for thou haſt found favour, &c. But ſome arguments there are to prefer the other notion, 1. that Heſychius renders χαρίεντα, good or gracious by καλὰ, κεχαριτωμένα, diſtinctly pitching on that notion of it, and perhaps where we read κεχαριτωμένος, ἄριστος, φιλήσας, μετὰ χαρᾶς (I ſuppoſe χάριτος) πάντα τοιοῦν, an excellent, lovely perſon, that doth all things with a grace, it may be a falſe print, for κεχαριτωμένος, (as that book is very full of ſuch faults) 2ly. Pſ. 18. 26. where the Hebrew reads עם חסיד תתחסר and the Septuagint, μετὰ ὁσίου ὁσιωθήσῃ, with the merciful thou ſhalt be merciful; the Greek Scholiaſt reads μετὰ κεχαριτωμένου χαρίτωθήσῃ, with the gracious thou ſhalt deal graciouſly. 3ly. This word is uſed once in the Son of Syrach, c. 18. 17. and by us rendred rightly, a gracious man. 4ly, the word here is not only by the vulgar Latin rendred, gratiâ plena, full of grace or goodneſs, but in like manner by the Syriack alſo. And in this notion of χάρις we have γυνὴ εὐχάριτος, a gracious woman, Prov. 11. 16. (as perhaps on the contrary ἀχάριτος, ungracious, 2 Tim. 3. 2.) מלירת טיבותא full of grace or goodneſs; which phraſe in Syriack and Chaldee, ſignifies no more, then very good or gracious; ſo Acts 9. 33. πλήρης ἀγαθῶν ἔργων, ſignifies a very good woman, diligent, laborious, (that wrought many good things, v. 39. in a peculiar notion of the phraſe good works, for diligent in the calling, ſee note on Tit. 3. a.) as among the Hebrews מלאה חן full of beauty, ſignifies very handſome; ſo μεστοὶ ἀγαθωσύνης, Rom. 15. 14. full of goodneſs, is very good; and in * Philo, μεστὸς ἐγκρατείας ἀνὴρ (as πλήρης σοφίας, Acts 6. 3.) a man full of wiſdom, that is a very wiſe man, and πλήρης πίστεως, Acts 6. 5. an eminent Believer. And if the word be thus rendred, 'tis then a fit form of a ſalutation, ſuch as κράτιστε Θεόφιλε, O moſt excellent Theophilus, v. 3.

Αχάριστος.

Πλήρης ἀγαθῶν ἔργων.

* In leg. ad Cajum, p. 774. F.

l. Ὁ κύριος μετὰ σου.

Ib. Lord, &c.] This ſpeech of the Angels is by him delivered in form of a ſalutation, (ſee v. 29.) χαῖρε Hail, &c. and ſo theſe words that immediately follow, being part of the ἀσπασμὸς, ſalutation, ſeem moſt fitly rendred by way of prayer or benediction, The Lord be with thee, bleſſed art thou, &c. Thus κύριος μετ' ὑμῶν, is generally uſed; the Lord be with you, and χάρις μετ' ὑμῶν, grace be with you, and the like forms of Chriſtian ſalutation.

m. Ἐν ταύταις ταῖς ἡμέραις.

V. 39. In thoſe days.] The phraſe ἐν ταύταις ταῖς ἡμέραις, in theſe days, hath for the moſt part a peculiar ſignification, differing from ἐν ἡμέραις ἐκείναις, in thoſe days. The latter ſignifies an indefinite time, ſometimes a good way off, but the former generally denotes a certain time then preſent, inſtantly, then, at that time; ſo here that which is ſaid of Mary's going to Elizabeth, was ſure immediately after the departing of the Angel from her, and therefore 'tis ſaid, ſhe roſe up μετὰ σπουδῆς, very haſtily. So v. 24. μετὰ ταύτας τὰς ἡμέρας, that is immediately, Elizabeth conceived, ſo c. 6. 12. ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ταύταις, that is, then, at that point of time, he went out to the mountain. See c. 23. 7. c. 24. 18. Acts 1. 5. c. 11. 27. & 21. 15.

n. Προφητεῦσαι.

V. 67. Prophecyed] To Prophecy is a large word, and beſides the fore-telling of future events, which is the ordinary notion of it, it ſignifies ſecondly to work miracles, as when it is ſaid of Eliſha's body, that being dead, it prophecyed, Eccl. 48. 14. referring to the miracle that it wrought, in raiſing the dead body, that was put into Eliſha's grave, 2 Kings 13. 21. 3*dly*. To declare the will of God to any, by revelation or miſſion from him. Thus Sybilla, l. 1. προφητεύσω τε ἅπαντα, Ὅσσα μοι ἐν στήθεσσιν, ὑπερφιάλου τε μένοντος, I will prophecy all things that are paſt, preſent, and to come. Adding πρῶτον δὲ κέλεταί με λίσσειν Θεὸς, and firſt God commands me to ſay, —— profeſſing to do it from God. So the author of Synopſis Prophetiarum, Τῶν προγεγενημένων τὴν γνῶσιν ἐκ θεοῦ τις λαβὼν προφήτης λέγεται. Any that receives knowledge from God of things paſt, is called a prophet. So * Chryſoſtom, Ὁ προφήτης ἑρμηνεὺς τῆς ὄψεως, ἀλλὰ τοῦ θεοῦ, A Prophet is no more but an interpreter, but that of God. And Grammarians have obſerved that the word naturally ſignifies no more then this of ſpeaking from, or in the ſtead of another, that is of God; as a Proconſul is he that ſupplies the Conſuls place, προ in Compoſition being all one with ὑπὲρ. So the Poets were ſaid to be the Prophets of the Muſes, as in Pindar, μαλθάκιον μοῖσα προφατεύσω δ' ἐγώ, Let the Muſe inſpire, and I will prophecy. And in Theocritus,

Μουσάων ἱερὸν μάλιστα τέων ἱερὲς ὑποφήτας, the ſacred Prophets of the Muſes, that ſpeak under them, or as they are inſpired and directed by them. In which ſenſe as Chriſt's prophetick office conſiſted in revealing the will of God to the world, ſo all that have in any degree done the like are ſtyled Prophets; all that have taught men their duties towards God, and men; thus among the heathens, the Divines which told men what they ought to do, their Prieſts or religious perſons were called Vates, prophets. And even their Poets which ordinarily reprehended their vices, are by St. Paul called ἴδιοι προφῆται, their own prophets, Tit. 1. 12. For altho' of that Epimenides it be true, that he is ordinarily by the heathens called θεῖος ἀνὴρ, and προφήτης a divine man, and a prophet, and that his book is called χρησμοὶ Oracles or Prophecies, yet is this rather a confirmation of this uſe of the word Prophet, for thoſe which teach men their duty; for of this Epimenides ſaith Diodorus ſiculus, l. 5. that he was θεολόγος a Divine, and Plutarch in Solon, that he was θεοφιλὴς καὶ σοφὸς περὶ τὰ θεῖα, to the ſame purpoſe; and Ariſtotle Rhet. l. 3. c. 17. ſaith expreſly ὁ περὶ τῶν ἐσομένων ἐμαντεύσατο, he prophecied not of things to come. And thus Glaucus (among the ancient Mythical writers) that directed men the way in their navigation, ὡς δεῖ ποιεῖσθαι τὸν πλοῦν, how they were to order their voyage, was by them called θαλάσσιος μάντις, the ſea-prophet. Thus when Exod. 7. 1. God ſaid to Moſes, I have made thee a God to Pharaoh, and Aaron thy brother ſhall be thy Prophet, The meaning is, that what God had or ſhould command Moſes, Moſes ſhould, (as God to a Prophet, the Oracle to the προφήτης) deliver to Aaron, concerning Pharaoh and Aaron, ſhould go as a Prophet ſent from God and deliver it to Pharaoh; he ſhall be thy ſpokeſman, he ſhall be to thee inſtead of a mouth, Exod. 4. 16. Fourthly, it ſignifieth to expound or interpret Scripture, as 1 Cor. 14. 1. Deſire ſpiritual gifts, but ſpecially that ye may prophecy, and v. 3. he that prophecieth, ſpeaketh to edification, &c. So v. 4, 5, 6, 22, 24, 28, 31, 32. Fifthly, 'tis ſometimes ſet to ſignify wild, raving, mad behaviour, or ſpeaking ſuch as the ἔνθεοι or enthuſiaſts among the Heathen, men poſſeſſed with diabolical furies, were wont to uſe: ſo when the evil ſpirit came upon Saul, he prophecied in the midſt of the houſe, 1 Sam. 18. 10. and in the ſame rage or fury caſt the javelin at David, v. 11. The reaſon of this is clear, v. 12. becauſe Prophets did ordinarily both ſpeak and act in a manner far diſtant and remote from the ordinary practice of other men, uſed ſtrange language, ſtrange motions and agitations of the body, and accordingly were by many that looked on them thought to be mad. So the Prophet ſent by Eliſha to anoint Jehu, is called this mad fellow, 2 Kings 9. 11. Sixthly, it ſignifies ſinging and praiſing God, forming of divine hymns, and ſinging them to God. So 1 Sam. 10. 5. Thou ſhalt meet a company, a colledge or covent of prophets coming down from the high place with a Pſaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and a harp before them, and they ſhall prophecy, (where the Chaldee paraphraſe reads, ſhall ſing) and the ſpirit ſhall come on thee, and thou ſhalt prophecy, (where the Chaldee hath, and thou ſhalt praiſe with them.) So 1 Chron. 25. 1. David ſeparates the ſons of Aſaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, who ſhould prophecy with Harps

* Tom. 3. p. 485. l. 42.

and Psalteries and Cymbals. And so 'tis possible it may be, Numb. 11.25. where 'tis said of the seventy, that they prophecied and did not cease, for as 1 Sam. 10. 6. Saul's prophecying was to be an effect of the Spirit of God coming upon him, and was a sign of his being set apart by God for the Kingly office, and furnished with abilities for it which is call'd turning him
2 into another man; so Numb. 11. 15. God takes off the spirit that was upon Moses, that is, the Spirit of government, wherewith he was indued, and gave it unto the Seventy, and when the Spirit rested upon them, they prophecied; whereas the other circumstances agree, the giving them the Spirit, and fitting them for their office by that means, so the evidence of it, their prophecying may agree also, though wherein their prophecying consisted is no where defined in Scripture. This only is unquestioned, that it was some extraordinary act, a testimony that the Spirit of God in some extraordinary manner rested upon them, and as such, was discernible to all (in like manner as was Saul's stripping off his clothes and lying down naked, 1 Sam. 19. 24.) and so fit to authorize them in the eyes of others, as by a miracle, and to declare to all that they were assumed to this office. And to this notion of prophecying must this place be interpreted, Zacharias was filled with the holy Ghost and prophecied, was stirred up in an extraordinary manner by the Spirit of God, to compose this Divine hymn following, the Benedictus, saying, Blessed &c. And so 1 Cor. 11. 5. Every woman praying or prophecying, where speaking of the Church, wherein the woman is not permitted to speak, c. 14. 34. 'tis apparent that prophecying cannot be taken for interpreting of Scripture, and so it remains that it signifies this of singing hymns in the Church, which is fitly joyned with praying. What is here said of his being filled with the holy Ghost, (as before of Elizabeth also, v. 51.) is no more then being indued with the Spirit of God (see note k.) incited by somewhat higher than his own spirit, the Spirit of God enabling him to make this hymn. So when the Spirit descended with the gift of tongues, they were filled with the holy Ghost, Acts 2.4.

V. 69. Horn of Salvation] The word Horn hath divers notions in the Scripture; first it signifies power, or strength, because the horns being the weapons of beasts, their strength or ability of hurting others is said properly to consist in them. So Lam. 2. 3, 17. He hath cut off all the horn of Israel, and, set up the horn of thine adversaries. So Jer. 48.25. The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, the horn being the beast's best instrument of defence, as the arm is the mans. So Mich. 4. 13. I will make thy horn Iron, and thou shalt beat in pieces many people; that is, I will give thee great power. So Ezech. 29.21. I will cause the horn of the house of Israel to bud forth, they shall have some considerable strength again; so the horns of the wicked and the righteous, Psal. 75.10. are their power. Secondly, it signifies honour, glory, triumph, as when the horn is said to be lifted up, or exalted, Psal. 75. 4. 89. 24. 112.9. Thirdly from the union of both these, it signifies Regal power, the honour and power of a King; so Zach. 1.18. Dan. 7.7,8. and Rev. 13.1. the four, and the seven, and the ten horns are confessedly so many Kings. And this seems to be the importance of the word in this place, where the house of David being the regal family, and the word Saviour denoting him that is the Ruler, or Leader, or Prince of the People, (thou gavest them Saviour's, Neh. 9.27. i.e. Rulers, Judges; and, Saviour's shall come up, (Obad. 21.) and the kingdom shall be the Lords, the horn of salvation is the house of David, will denote the kingdom of Christ, that spiritual one which is not of this world, or rather Christ (in concreto) under the notion of a King. Thus Psal. 18.2. among the titles given to God (upon his delivering David from the hands of his enemies, as here for the redeeming us from the hands of all that hate us, v. 71.) this is one the horn of my salvation, that is, my King, and Saviour; and this is agreeable also to that other part of the period, ἤγειρε ἡμῖν, he hath raised up to, or for us, that of raising up belonging to persons advanced by God to any office of King, or Prophet, (see note on Acts 13.8.) particularly of Christ to his kingdom, Acts 2.30. God hath sworn that he would from the fruit of David's loyns according to the flesh, raise up Christ to the sit on his throne, which is distinctly parallel to this.

V. 70. The world] עולם signifies an age, and in the New Testament most commonly is used in a general sense, not for the age of a man, nor again for an hundred years, but for an age of the world, or some eminent part in the division of that. Now the World is divided two ways, either into the age before the Messias, and the age of the Messias, or into the age of this world, & of the world to come after the day of doom. Accordingly the word עולם is used sometimes for the first part of the first division, for the first estate, beginning at the beginning of the world, and reaching to the end of the Jewish Commonwealth. Thus is the phrase מן העולם à seculo, ordinarily used, and accordingly ἀπ' αἰῶνος here, to note that general age from the beginning of the world, of which the Jewish state was an eminent part, under which prophecies had been allowed by God to this people. And it being resolved by the Jews that there was to be another age (beside that first,) which they call the age of the Messias (see Note on Mat. 24. c.) or the age to come, they are wont to use the phrase לעולם ועד עולם (or sometimes for brevity sake לעולם ועד which the Septuagint render εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα καὶ ἔτι, and sometimes εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα καὶ ἐπέκεινα, to age and yet farther, or to age and afterward,) in seculum & seculum, to age and to age, meaning thereby both these ages, the then present, and that other then to come, the age of the Messias. Thus have we interpreted the word αἰὼν age, Mat. 24. 3. in a divers sense from that which belongs to it, Mat. 28. 20. In the former to signifie the Jewish state, in the latter the state of the World under the Messias. And in that notion I suppose it is, that the Gospel of Christ is called εὐαγγέλιον αἰώνιον, Rev. 14. 6. the Gospel of that age of the Messias, the Christian Faith, which was to endure to the end of the world, Mat. 12.32. note l. Sometimes again the word αἰὼν signifies the first number of the second division, this world, from the creation till the day of doom, as Luke 20. 34. οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, the children of this age, the men of this world (opposed to καταξιωθέντες τοῦ αἰῶνος ἐκείνου, those that are vouchsafed participation of that other,) do marry, &c. and so in many other places. And so likewise for the second part of the second division, the state after this life, that of another world, ordinarily call'd αἰὼν ἐκεῖνος, and αἰὼν μέλλων, the world to come, and that world or age, it is oft call'd αἰὼν simply also, as John 6.51,58. he shall live εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, which we render for ever, or to that age to come, which is eternal. And from this notion of the word [αἰὼν] it is peculiarly that the word αἰώνιος commonly signifies eternal, including both this world and that other. This eternal future state was, it seems, denied by the Sadduces, and thereupon it is the observation of the Jews, that after Ezra's time it was appointed, that at the end of Benedictions in the Temple, the phrase לעולם in seculum, should be changed into מן העולם ועד העולם from age to age, i. e. from this age to the next. So we find it in c. 9. of Cod. Beraboth, &c. בכל חותמי ברכותיו In all the conclusions of benedictions they were wont to say מן העולם ועד העולם from age to age; But when the Sadduces perverted this form of speech, and said that there was but one age, they appointed that the form should be from age and to age. And though perhaps this latter form be before Ezra's time to be met with in the Hebrew writings, yet, it seems, 'twas not in their forms of benedictions in the Publick Service, and there it was probable inserted on that occasion. And an abbreviate of that form it is which the Christians have delivered to them by Christ, Mat. 6.13. thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας to both ages; the present and the future; which we according to sense rendred for ever and ever, i. e. for this world (which is one for ever,) and for the next (which is another for ever.) This is more largely set by the Apostle;

Apoſtle, Gal.1.4. εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας τῶν αἰώνων, to the ages of ages, but yet more amply in the ancient Church, which added that ſecond verſicle to the doxology, [As it was in the beginning (i.e. מִן הָעוֹלָם from the age, from the beginning of the world, at ἀπ' αἰῶνος here ſignifies) is now, and ever ſhall be, world without end,] i.e. now, in this world, and לְעוֹלָם to that world, which ſhall never end.

q. Δῦναι λατρεύειν.

V. 74. Grant] The word δῦναι with an Infinitive mood after it (as here δῦναι λατρεύειν) is, according to the ſenſe of it, to be rendred, as if the word power, or ſomething elſe like it, were to be underſtood; ſo often in the Revelation, as c.2.7. and 17. δώσω φαγεῖν, I will give to eat, or drink, i.e. power to do ſo, c.3.21. δώσω καθίσαι, I will give the priviledge or favour to ſit. So the Paſſive ἐδόθη, in like manner, c.6.4. ἐδόθη λαβεῖν, c.13.7. ἐδόθη ποιῆσαι, and v.15. ἐδόθη δῦναι, it was given to receive, to do, to give, and ſo c.16.8. and 19.8. where the word ἐξουσία, power, or the like, is clearly underſtood, which in many other places is expreſſed, c.9.3. c. 6. 8. c.15.5,7.&c. and ſo the former part of the 74. ver. being read, as it were, in a parentheſis, the ſenſe will be perſpicuous, The oath which he ſware to Abraham our father, that he will give us power to ſerve him in holineſs, &c. And ſo, beſide the explication of that oath made to Abraham (which hath from this paſſage been explained in * another place) here will be obſervable alſo the alluſion of this whole paſſage to the names of the Baptiſt and his parents: For the meaning of Zachary is the remembrance of God, and to that refers his μνησθῆναι διαθήκης, God's remembring his covenant, v.72. Elizabeth ſignifies the oath of God, and to that refers ὅρκον ὃν ὤμοσε, the oath which he ſware. And John ſignifies the free gift, or grace of God, and to that refers the δῦναι, the giving deliverance and grace to ſerve him in ſincere holineſs, &c. the grace of juſtification, ſanctification, and Perſeverance.

Μνησθῆναι διαθήκης. Ὅρκον ὃν ὤμοσε.

* Pratt. Cat. l. 1. ſect. 1.

Ib. Without fear] That the word [ἀφόβως without fear] refers to our enemies, in whoſe power before we were, appears by the diſtinct mention of them in the next words, and therefore it cannot with any ſenſe be applied to the excluding that fear of our danger, which is founded only in our ſelves, our own negligences, or miſcarriages. And that it is to be joined with ῥυσθέντας being delivered, and not with λατρεύειν ſerving, is not only apparent by many ancient copies, which ſo joyn it without any comma betwixt ἀφόβως and αὐτῷ, and by Irenæus, l.3.c.11. reading it, Nobis ſine timore ereptis, ſervire in ſanctitate, us being delivered without fear, to ſerve him in holineſs, and * Titus Boſtrenſis ἐπειδή τινες πολλάκις φόνῳ ——— μετὰ φόβου ἦ, διὰ τοῦτο φησὶ τὸ δῦναι ἡμῖν ἀφόβως ——— ῥυσθῆναι, becauſe ſome oft-times are delivered from the hands of enemies, but with fear, therefore he ſaith, that he gives us to be delivered without fear, adding, ᾧ γὰρ ἡ χριστοῦ ἐπιδημία πεποίηκεν ἡμᾶς ἀφόβως ——— ῥυσθῆναι, for Chriſt's coming cauſed us to be without fear delivered, ὃ γὰρ ἴσμεν τὴν ἐπιβουλὴν ἐχθρῶν, for we felt not, had no apprehenſion of the treachery of our enemies, ἀλλ' αἰφνίδιον ἥρπασε ἡμᾶς, &c. but he preſently ſnatched us out, and transferred us from them into his own lot and portion, δὲ &c. which lays the obligation on us (as on thoſe that are now become his) to ſerve him in holineſs and righteouſneſs, &c. but alſo by the nature of the word [ἀφόβως without fear] in the tranſlators of the Old Teſtament, in that only place, where 'tis uſed Prov. 1. 33. ἀναπαύσεται ἀφόβως ἀπὸ παντὸς κακοῦ, he ſhall reſt without fear from all evil, which is an explication of the dwelling ſafely, that immedietely preceded, and this according to the notion of φόβος fear, among the ſacred writers, not for the paſſion it ſelf, but for the object of it, as 1 *Pet.*3.14. τὸν φόβον αὐτῶν μὴ φοβηθῆτε, fear not their fear, where the word φόβος ſignifies whatſoever formidable object, which the κακοῦργοι, v.13. malicious perſons can bring upon them. So alſo in humane writers, in * Lucian, τίς ἰατρὸς τῷ φόβῳ; where as ἰατρὸς is fear, ſo φόβος is of danger. And ſo in Alex. Aphrodiſ. φόβος ἀπειλοῦντος ἀπὸ τυράννου, the terror or terrible things threatned by the tyrant. So in * Menander —— καὶ γὰρ ξυνὴ λέγουσα χρὴ δ' ὑφεστάναι φόβον.

ῥυσθῆναι. p. 722.

* in tyrannicid. p. 400.

* ap. Stob. p.433.

A fair-ſpoken woman is exceeding great fear, i.e. is very much to be feared, a great danger. So Iſa. 8. 12. whence that place of St. Peter is taken; where the Greek hath φόβος αὐτῶν, his fear or terror, the Hebrew hath מוראו which notes the formidable object, not יראתו which ſignifies the paſſion, and preſently it follows, Κύριος ἔσται σου φόβος, the Lord ſhall be thy fear, i.e. the object of it, and ſo he is called the fear of Iſaac. Thus is πεποίθησις] alſo the thing that is feared, *Prov.*3.25. as appears by the ὁρμαὶ ἀσεβῶν, the incitations of wicked men, that follow to explain πεποίθησις. So perhaps εὐλάβεια, Heb. 5.7. may ſignify the thing againſt which he prayed, and from which he was delivered. And thus ἀφόβως will be directly all one with ἀκινδύνως without danger, as *Wiſd.*17.4. ἀφόβως διαφυλάσσειν, to preſerve ſafe, and ſo 1 *Cor.*16.10. where the Apoſtle ſpeaking of Timothy, bids them ſee, ἵνα ἀφόβως γένηται πρὸς ὑμᾶς, that he may be ſafely with them, or ἐν εἰρήνῃ, v. 11. peaceably. The ſame thing is expreſſed by the tranſlators of the Old Teſtament, by ἐπ' ἐλπίδι *Pſal.*4.8. Prov. 1.33. not as ἐλπὶς notes hope or expectation of future good, but as 'tis oppoſite to our preſent notion of φόβος, and imports ſafety. And this obſervation might be extended to many other words in the Scripture, which ſeems to denote actions, affections, or faculties, but are uſed for the objects of them, as θέλημα θεοῦ, the will of God, 1 *Theſ.*4. 3. the things which God wills, ἐλπὶς, hope, *Rom.*8. 24. the things hoped for, πίστις faith, *Rom.*4. 14. and in many other places, where it ſignifies the doctrine of the Goſpel, the thing to be believed. So λύπη ſorrow, for calamity, 1 Pet. 2.19. (and therefore, ſaith Heſychius, λύπη ſorrow, is βλάβη and ἀπώλεια, hurt and deſtruction, and πένθος mourning, is, ſaith he, ζημία calamity) and from thence λυπεῖσθαι to be wounded. Rom. 14. 15. and πενθεῖν not to mourn, but to uſe ſuch aſperity as will cauſe mourning, 2 Cor. 12.22. But this by the way. I ſhall only add that by analogy of Scripture, it no way appeareth that fear is to be excluded from our ſerving of God, but rather that it is a good powerful motive to it, and ſo is called the beginning of wiſdom, and a wholſome companion of it, and therefore we are commanded to work out our ſalvation with it.

V.78. Day ſpring from on high] That ἀνατολὴ, is here the title of Chriſt, there is no queſtion, whether it be literally to be rendred the Eaſt, or the riſing of the ſun, that ſun of righteouſneſs, *Mal.*4.2. And this title ſeems formerly to have been beſtow'd on him, *Zach.*3.8. and 6.12. ἰδοὺ ἀνήρ, ἀνατολὴ ὄνομα αὐτῷ, Behold the man whoſe name is the East, or riſing of the ſun, as Juſtin Martyr cites it, dial. cum Tryph. For which we ordinarily have, whoſe name is the branch. The Hebrew צמח ſignifies oriri to riſe or ſpring, and that may be applied to a branch that ſprouts out of the tree, but ſo alſo it belongs to the riſing ſun, and accordingly ſignifies alſo lucere, to ſhine, and Hab. 1.12. the brightneſs is in the Syriack Tſemach of his glory. And if ἀνατολὴ in Zachary be not a quite diſtant thing from the ſame word here in this other Zachary, it muſt then needs be in this other ſenſe, for that here it is ſo, appears by that which follows, both of viſiting, and giving light to them that ſit in darkneſs. And ſo it may well be read out of that Prophet too, c.6.12. not he ſhall grow, or branch up, (referring to the word Branch, but) he ſhall riſe up, ἀνατελεῖ, or, as צמח ſignifies, ſhine out from under him. Hence is it that where ἀνατολὴ the East, is uſed in other places of Scripture, ſome of the Greek Scholiaſts have ſtill applied it to Chriſt. As *Bar.*4.36. περίβλεψον πρὸς ἀνατολὰς, look toward the East, i.e. ſaith Olympiodorus, πρὸς τὸν τῆς δικαιοσύνης ἥλιον τὸν Κύριον ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν, to the ſun of righteouſneſs, our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. And *Jer.*23.5. I will raiſe up unto David, צמח צדיק ἀνατολὴν δικαίαν in the Septuagint, the righteous East; Severus renders it ὁ Χριστὸς ὁ τῆς δικαιοσύνης ἥλιος, Chriſt the ſun of righteouſneſs. And from hence perhaps it is that Tacitus, *hiſt.l.*5. at the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, ſaith that ſome on that occaſion remembred antiquas Sacerdotum literas, the antient writings of the Prieſts, which foretold eo ipſo tempore fore ut valeſce- ceret Oriens, that at that very time it should come to pass, that the East should prevail, i. e. Christ, cujus nomen est oriens, whose name is the East, meaning all this while by the East, that Orient or rising sun, and not the point, from whence he riseth. To which purpose also may be applied that of Philo, ὡσὶ συγχυσ. διαλ. Τὸν πρεσβύτατον υἱὸν ὁ τῶν ὅλων πατὴρ ἀνέτειλε, the father of all things sent him forth (in the word from whence the original ἀνατολὴ comes) his most ancient son, or first-born.

V. 79. Shadow of death] What is the meaning of this figurative speech, the shadow of death, will be best conjectured by comparing it with, Ps. 23. 4. tho' I walk thorow the valley of the shadow of death, &c. There making God his shepheard, v. 1. he compares himself to a sheep, which feeds sometimes upon an hill, sometimes in a valley, and again may be supposed to be in danger of Wolves, or else free from that danger. The hills being the highest, have all the light and warmth of the sun upon them, and the valleys contrariwise that are shaded by the hills, have much less of that warmth or light, and being also more subject to incursion of wolves then the hills were (where their coming would be more discernible) this is there the meaning of [the valley of the shadow of death] a gloomy vale of danger of the utmost evil. Proportionably here (in a spiritual sense) the shadow of death is a state of sin, and ignorance, want of light, or knowledge, and want of warmth or grace, the description of the state under the law, which afforded neither of these in any proportion to what is now done by Christ, and so left men in a dangerous condition, 'till Christ was thus pleased to shine upon them, and thereby to rescue them out of it.

CHAP. II.

Paraphrase.

1. AND it came to pass in those days that there went out a decree from [Cæsar
a. Augustus that a all the world should be
b. * taxed.]

1. Augustus the Roman Emperor, that all persons in the Roman Empire should have their names and conditions of life and estate set down in court-rolls, &c. according to their families.

* enrolled

2. (And * this taxing was first made when Cyrenius [was governour of Syria)]

2. Was sent Procurator into Syria (under which province Palestine was) to enrol that part of the Empire, note b.

* this first enroling was

3. And all went to be taxed every one [into his own city.]

3. To the city where their Ancestors were born, and so these to the city where David was born, from whence they came, v. 4.

4. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth into Judea,] unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and linage of David.)

4. And so tho' Joseph dwelt in Galilee in the city Nazareth, he was forced to go into Judea.

5. To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

6. And so it was, that while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

7. And she brought forth her first born son, and wrapped him in swadling-cloaths, and laid him in * a c manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

* the stable.

c. 8. And there were in the same country shepheards abiding in the field * keeping d
d. watch [over their flock by night.]

8. By turns over their flock, some one watch of the night, some another.

* watching the watches of the night over their flock.

9. And lo, the Angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them] and they were sore afraid.

9. And an Angel of God appeared to them in a shining cloud, signifying God's especial signal presence there, (see note on Mat. 3. k.)

10. And the Angel said unto them, Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

11. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.]

11. For the Messias or God incarnate is this day born in Bethlehem David's city.

12. And this shall be a sign unto you,] Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swadling-cloaths, lying in * a manger.

12. And by this you shall distinguish this child from all others.

* a stable, see note c.

13. And suddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of [the heavenly host, praysing God, and saying,]

13. Angels, so far from envying this dignity of mans nature, that they congratulated it, and thereupon sang this hymn,

e. 14. Glory to God in the highest, and on earth * e peace, good-will towards men.]

14. God be glorified by them which are in the highest heavens, the Angels, &c. because of that peace which this birth of Christ hath brought on the earth, and because of that favour, mercy, reconciliation of God toward men, which is wrought thereby, or because of that reconciliation of God toward those that are found sincere before him.

* or peace toward men of good will, or of his good liking. for the K's. MS. & the ancinet Gr. and Lat. reads, ἐυδοκίας consolationis, and so many of the ancient fathers.

15. And it came to pass, as the Angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepheards said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16. And they came with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a * manger.

* stable.

17. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the [saying which] was told them concerning this child.

17. Whole story of all that.

18. And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepheards.

19. But Mary kept all these things [and pondered them in her heart.]

19. Comparing them one with another in her private meditation, without speaking of them to any.

20. And the shepheards returned glorifying and praising God, [for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told them.]

20. For the real completion of all those things which were first told them by an Angel, and then heard and seen by themselves.

21. And when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called Jesus, which was so] named of the Angel before he was conceived in the womb.

21. And when the eighth day was come, wherein 'twas the law and custom for children to be circumcised and named, he was circumcised, and his name imposed on him, which was Jesus, according as he had been.

22. And when the days of her purification according to the law of Moses were accomplished [they brought him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord,]

22. They brought him, as their first-born, to present him to the Priest, and then to redeem him, as Numb. 18. 15. is appointed.

23. (As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord.)]

t 23. (According to that law given to the Jews, that as the first-born male of other creatures, so the first-born son (in remembrance of Gods slaying all the first-born of the Egyptians, to deliver them) should be consecrated to God, Exod. 13. 3. and since the Levites were by God taken instead of the first-born, it is to be redeemed, Num. 3. 12. & 46.

24. And to offer a ſacrifice according to that which is ſaid in the Law of the Lord, a pair of turtle doves, or two young pidgeons.]

24. And then for her own purification after childbirth, Lev. 12.6. to offer her pair of turtles, being not able to offer a lamb (which is an argument that the Magi had not yet brought their preſents, Mat. 2. 11.) according to the commandment of God, that he which is not able to bring a lamb, ſhall bring a pair of turtles, &c. Lev. 12.8.

25. And behold there was a man in Jeruſalem, whoſe name was Simeon, and the ſame man was [juſt and devout, waiting for the conſolation of Iſrael: and the holy Ghoſt was upon him,]

25. An upright and godly man, looking for, and expecting the coming of the Meſſias, ſee v. 38. whether in a ſpiritual only, or (as moſt expected) in a temporal kingdom, to reſtore their liberty to the Jews.

26. And it was revealed unto him by the holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould not ſee death before he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt.]

26. And he had receiv'd revelation from the Holy Ghoſt, that before he died, the Meſſias ſhould come, and he ſhould ſee him.

27. And he came by the ſpirit into the Temple, and the Parents brought in the child Jeſus, to do for him after the cuſtom of the Law.]

27. And at this very time he came by the guidance and dictate of the Spirit into the Temple, and when Joſeph and Mary brought in Jeſus, to perform thoſe things which were according to the law uſual to be done.

28. Then took he him up in his arms, and [bleſſed God, and ſaid,]

28. Recited this hymn,

29. Lord now letteſt thou thy ſervant depart in peace, according to thy word,]

29. Lord now thou haſt fulfilled thy promiſe revealed to me v. 26. I am heartily content to die.

30. For mine eyes have ſeen thy ſalvation,]

30. For I have with theſe fleſhly eyes of mine beheld the Meſſias.

31. Which thou haſt prepared before the face of all people,]

31. Whom thou haſt ſo long promiſed, and at laſt exhibited in the ſight of all the congregation.

32. A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Iſrael.]

32. A light afforded to the Gentile world, Iſa. 49.6. to reveal to them Gods righteouſneſs (or the way of living which will be acceptable to God) Pſ. 116. 18. and (after he hath reformed the religion of the Jews, taught them the ſubſtantial inſtead of the ceremonial obſervances) to bring the Gentiles to the receiving of that religion, and ſo to bring much glory and honour to that nation, to thoſe at leaſt that do receive him, or in caſe they will do ſo.

33. And Joſeph and his mother marvelled at thoſe things which were ſpoken of him.

34. And Simeon bleſſed them, and ſaid unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child [is ſet for the fall and riſing again of many in Iſrael, and for a ſign which ſhall be ſpoken againſt.]

34. Is appointed by God to be a means of bringing puniſhment and ruine upon all obdurate impenitents, and on the other ſide to redeem, reſtore, recover thoſe that will be wrought on by him, throughout all this people; and he ſhall be vehemently oppoſed, ſo holy and ſevere in his precepts and practice, that he ſhall be a but or ſign, ſuch as are mentioned Iſa. 8. 18. a mark for all obdurate ſinners to ſet themſelves againſt.

35. (Yea a f ſword ſhall pierce through thy own ſoul alſo) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.]

f 35. f And that oppoſition ſhall bring upon thee either death it ſelf, or ſome ſore affliction) that the machinations and deſigns of men (ſee note on Mat. 15. e.) which are now kept ſecret may come forth, and be diſcovered by their dealings with him, by the judgments which they paſs upon him, ſome receiving him as the Meſſias, others not. See note on Rom. 8. f.

36. And there was one Anna a propheteſs, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aſer, ſhe was [of a great age, and had lived with an husband ſeven years from her virginity.]

36. Very old, and had lived in the matrimonial eſtate but ſeven years, unto which ſhe came a pure virgin.

37. And ſhe was a widow of about fourſcore and four years, which departed not from the Temple, but g ſerved God with faſtings and prayers, night and day.]

37. And being now a widow of about 84 years old, ſhe conſtantly frequented

g. the Temple (ſee note on Acts 1. d.) and performed all acts of piety, praying and faſting conſtantly, at the preſcribed and accuſtomed ſeaſons of performing thoſe duties, faſting twice a week (ſee c. 18. 12.) and obſerving the daily hours of prayer.

38. And ſhe coming in at that inſtant [gave thanks likewiſe unto the Lord, and ſpake of him to all them, that looked for redemption in Jeruſalem.]

38. Sang an hymn to him, and expreſly affirm'd him to be the Meſſias, and this ſhe did to all thoſe in Jeruſalem, which expected the coming of the Meſſias. See v. 25.

39. And when they had performed all things according to the Law of the Lord, [they returned into Galilee to their own city Nazareth.]

39. They returned to Bethlehem, and there continued till they were warned to remove out of Egypt, Mat. 2. 14. from whence returning, they came to their own dwelling at Nazareth in Galilee, Mat. 2. 23.

40. And the child grew and waxed ſtrong in ſpirit, filled with wiſdom, and the grace of God was upon him.]

40. And Jeſus grew in ſtature of body, and faculties of mind (his divine ſpirit aſſiſting and ſtrengthning his natural faculties) and was endued with great wiſdom thro' the Grace and power of God's ſpirit upon him.

41. Now his parents went up to Jeruſalem every year at the feaſt of the Paſſover.

42. And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jeruſalem after the cuſtom of the feaſt.

43. And when they [had fulfilled the days] as they returned, the child Jeſus tarryed behind in Jeruſalem, and Joſeph and his mother knew not of it,

43. Had continued there all the feaſt days, and then came home.

44. But ſuppoſing him to have been in the company, [went a days journey, and they ſought him] amongſt their kinsfolk and acquaintance.

44. After they were come a days journey they miſſed him and made ſtrict enquiry after him.

45. And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jeruſalem, ſeeking him.

46. And it came to paſs, that after three days they found him [in the Temple, ſitting in the midſt of the doctors] both hearing them, and asking them queſtions.

46. In the court of the Temple or porch, and many of the maſters of Iſrael, the Scribes, or learned men, about him.

47. And all that heard him were aſtoniſhed at his underſtanding and anſwers.

48. And when they ſaw him they were amazed, and his mother ſaid unto him, Son, why haſt thou thus dealt with us? Behold, thy father and I have ſought thee ſorrowing.

49. And he ſaid unto them, How is it that ye ſought me? [Wiſt ye not that I muſt be * about h my fathers buſineſs?]

49. The houſe of God is my proper home, my fathers houſe, and ſo a place fit for me to be in, but this ye were ignorant of.

* in my fathers houſe.

50. And they underſtood not the ſaying, which he ſpake unto them.

51. And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was ſubject unto them] but his mother kept all theſe ſayings in her heart.

51. And tho' in that of ſtaying in the Temple (an introduction or eſſay preparatory unto his office, to which he was ſent by God, to whom obedience is due before Parents) he did ſomewhat without his parents leave (ſee John 2. 4.) yet in all other things he lived in perfect obedience to them.

52. And

52. And Jesus encreased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man.]

52. And Jesus in respect of his humane nature, consisting of body and soul, did grow or improve, his soul improved in wisdom, his body in stature, as others of his age are wont, and withal became daily a more eminent illustrious person in the eyes of all.

Annotations on Chap. II.

a. Οἰκουμένη.

V. 1. All the world] That οἰκουμένη doth not always signify the whole world, may be concluded by Acts 11. 28. where the prophecy of the famine thro' the whole world, seems to belong to the same, which was foretold by Christ, Mat. 24. 7. and so to refer only to Judea, (see note on Mat. 24. e. and Eusebius Eccl. Hist. l. 2. c. 11.) Thus Luke 21. 26. ἐπὶ τῇ οἰκουμένῃ, the things that come upon the world, seems to belong only to those things that were a coming on Judea. And thus it is ordinarily said, that Jerusalem is situate in medio telluris, in the middle of the earth; that is, of Judea; as Delphi is said to be Orbis umbilicus, the navel of the world, that is, of Greece, and as Minos calls Crete, over which he was King, his Orbis in Ovid,

Certè ego non patiar Jovis incunabula Creten,
Qui meus est orbis, tantum contingere monstrum.

So Pliny in his Nat. Hist. l. 12. c. 12. uses the word Orbis for a region. In nostro orbe proximè laudatur Syriacum. But here the word belongs to the Roman Empire, which is often called by that title,

Orbem jam totum victor Romanus habebat and in Hegesippus, l. 2. Antiq. c. 9. Orbis terrarum qui Romano Imperio clauditur & definitur; and so in Spartianus, Lampridius, Marcellinus, and in Optatus, l. 3. and Ἐγὼ τὸ κόσμου κύριός, saith Antoninus in his rescript to Eudæmon Nicomedienses, I am Lord of the world, and in Ulpian, who from a constitution of Antoninus, Qui in orbe Romano sunt, cives Romanos effectos esse; and Bartolus pronounces that he were an Heretick, which would not say that the Emperour is Dominus & Monarchia totius orbis, the Lord and Monarch of the whole world. See Hieron. Magius Miscell. l. 4. c. 15: And so Suidas in the word Ἀπογραφὴ, saith, ὅτι πᾶσαν τὴν γῆν ὑπηκόων ἐξέπεμψε δι' ὧν ἀπογραφὰς ἐποιήσατο, Augustus sent out unto all the regions of those that were subject to him, officers by whom he made the enrollings, and in the word Αὔγουστος Καῖσαρ, he saith, he decreed to number καθ' ἑκάστου πάντας τοὺς οἰκήτορας Ῥωμαίων, all the Inhabitants of the Romans, and reciting the number, his style is, εὑρίσκοντο οἱ τὴν Ῥωμαίων οἰκοῦντες, there were found so many myriads inhabiting the dominions of the Romans.

b. Ἀπογραφὴ.

Ib. Taxed] The ἀπογραφὴ, is here literally descriptio, and that is, (not an exacting of tribute, or taxation, but) a setting down or enrolling every person, according to their families and estates. So in Hesychius, ἀπογραφὴ, ἀρίθμησις, ἢ ἡ γινομένη μήνυσις, it signifies the numbring of the people or declaring how many and what kind of people they are: and Phavorinus, that ἀπογράφω ποιεῖσθαι, is when each man is sent for to make known, ὅσα ἔχει, ᾗ ὅθεν τὰ χρήματα ᾗ πόσα ταῦτα ἐστί, what and how much he hath, and whence his estate came to him. This is it that the Greek and Latin gloss in H. Stephanus hath expressed by ἀπογραφὴ census, professus, professio, the word professio being the proper Latin word for this matter, and therefore the vulgar very fitly hath it, v. 3. of this ch. Ibant profiteri, they went to tell what they were worth, &c. Suidas indeed in the word Ἀπογραφὴ, mentioning this of Augustus, saith it was to the other end, of bringing into his treasury αὐτάρκη τινὰ μοῖραν, a sufficient proportion, and that it was therefore called, Ἀπογραφὴ πρώτη, the first of this kind, by way of equal and moderate distribution, because they that were in power before him, were wont to take away what they would. But tho' Suidas be an excellent Grammarian, yet in matter of history his authority is not great, and 'tis sure enough the Roman subjects paid their vectigalia, certain taxes before this, and the publicans were the gatherers of them. And Cassiodore's words which somewhat look toward that of taxing, yet refer it not to the cause assigned by Suidas, but because by the civil wars, mens dominions or possessions were uncertain and confounded, and therefore this Census was appointed together with a survey and division, ut possessio sua nulli haberetur incerta, quam pro tributorum susceperat ratione solvenda, that every man might have his possession certain, and proportionably his tax be certain also. Cassio. Var. l. 3. Ep. 52. It is therefore by learned men affirmed, particularly by Is. Casaubon, in Bar. p. 105. (and is most probable) that this decree of enrolling, was an effect of Augustus's curiosity (and neither of his desire to inrich his treasury, nor to reform the excesses of those before him) and this over-ruled by God's special providence, saith * S. Chrysost. that this Emperour might συνεργῆσαι τῷ ἐν Βηθλεὲμ τόκῳ, serve or be instrumental to the conserving the record of the birth of Christ, whose name, and his mother's, as well as Joseph's, were now enrolled. And that is a farther evidence of the nature of this ἀπογραφὴ, that it was not a tax, for that would not have belonged to women, and infants, but, as Cassiodore said, to the possessors only. And thus Suidas himself understands it in Augusto, that he decreed to number by head all the inhabitants of the Romans, being willing to know πόσον δή ποτε πλῆθος, how great the multitude was, which must take off all authority of his to the contrary. This enrolling is most amply defin'd by Florus, ut omnia patrimonii, dignitatis, ætatis, artium, officiorumque discrimina in tabulas referantur, that all the differences of patrimony, dignity, age, craft, office, might be recorded. Now concerning this particular enrolling or census here mentioned, 'tis observable what Sepulveda and Gerundensis have related, that 27 years before the birth of Christ, Augustus appointed that there should be an enrolling of the whole Empire, and proclaim'd it in Tarracon a city in Spain, after the Cantabri (and others that in Spain had broke off from him) and been conquered and reduced by him. For then he conceived that all the parts of his Empire were quiet and settled, and so that it was a fit time to take this view of his people. Velleius Paterculus seems to agree in this relation, making mention of a notable peace, that is, quiet and rest from war about the twentieth year of Augustus, which being by him said about the 20*th* year, if it be resolv'd to have been punctually the 17*th*, it will fall directly on this time of this 27 years before our Saviours birth, that being in the 44th year of his reign. But upon or soon after this proclamation, Augustus found a breaking out of some stirs in other parts, and thereupon deferred his resolution to some other quiet time, which was this very point of time wherein Christ was born. Hence it is that the ancient Spaniards observed an æra, (which is the word made up of the first letters of Annus erat regni Augusti, the year of Augustus's reign) different from all other Christians, to wit, 27 years before them, reckoning from this first proclamation in Tarracon, and counting the ἀπογραφὴ, or enrolling here in St. Luke to have been at that time. By this passage of story considered there will arise to us matter of most excellent observation, concerning God's wise disposal of all things, particularly in this of the birth of Christ, which, if Augustus's first decree and proclamation in the 17th of his reign, had stood in all probability could not have been in Bethlehem, as the Prophets foretold it should. For if that had gone on in the 17th, there had been no use of this in the 44th year of his reign. Had not this been in the 44th, Joseph and Mary would have had no occasion at that time to come up to Bethlehem from Nazareth, where they dwelt, had they not done so, Christ had not been born there: whence appears God's providence in changing Augustus's resolution by the breaking out of new troubles, and transferring this time of full peace (and so of enrolling) to this very point of time, wherein Mary being so near her time, and going up to Bethlehem to be enrolled, should there fall in travail, and bring forth, that so the seed of David, and branch of Jesse (as Christ is call'd) that was conceiv'd in Nazareth zareth, ſhould be born in Bethlehem, where Jeſſe lived, and David was born. Now whereas 'tis added that this was ἀπογραφὴ πρώτη, the firſt enrolling, that is to diſtinguiſh it from another, Acts 5. 37. the ſame which Joſephus and Euſebius ſpeak of, and place under Cyrenius alſo, but differing from this here. As for Cyrenius having rule over Syria at this time, that is to be taken in a looſer not ſtricter ſenſe; not that Cyrenius was there now the ſtanding Governour under the Romans, but ſent by the Emperor particularly on this occaſion, to take an inventory of this part of his Empire. For ſo ſaith Suidas upon the word ἀπογραφὴ out of ſome ancient Author, that Cæſar Auguſtus deſiring to know the ſtrength and ſtate of his dominions, ſent twenty choſen men into all his dominions, one into one part, another into another, to take this account, and P. Sulpitius Quirinius had Syria for his province, not to have any ſettled dominion there, but to perform this work, for which he was ſent extraordinarily. Sentius Saturninus being then Preſident of Syria, *Tertull. cont. c. Φάτνη. V. 7. Manger] φάτνη ſignifies βυτίον, or ἱπποσκάριον, ſaith Iſ. Caſaubon ad Baron. i. e. a ſtable where cattle ſtand, and not only the place where their meat is put, the manger. So in Latine Præſepe, Virgil. Æneid. 7.

and to this the ſtory beſt agrees, which gives the reaſon of their laying him in the φάτνη, becauſe there was no room, (not in the ſtable, but) in the Inn.

d. V. 8. Keeping watch] 'Tis ſufficiently known that the night was diſtinguiſht into ſeveral watches, the ὀψὲ and μεσονύκτιον, and ἀλεκτοροφωνία, and πρωΐ, Mar. 13. 35. the evening, and midnight, and cock-crowing, and morning, the firſt ending at nine in the Evening, the ſecond at twelve, the third at three, the fourth at ſix in the morning, as the day is divided into the third, and ſixth, and ninth, and twelfth hours. Now theſe the ſhepheards in thoſe countries (which lay chiefly upon feeding cattel) i. e. the inhabitants of the countries did ſo diſtribute among them, that ſuch a number of them might continue in the field and watch abroad ſo many hours in the night, and when that watch ended, ſo many other freſh men might come and ſucceed to that care, and this the form of ſpeech in Greek doth import, φυλάσσοντες φυλακὰς τῆς νυκτὸς ἐπὶ τὸ ποίμνιον αὐτῶν, i. e. literally rendred, watching the watches of the night over their flock, and ſo the vulgar readeth it, cuſtodientes vigiliat noctis ſuper gregem.

e. V. 14. On earth peace, good will to——] The concurrence of ſo many ancient copies and readings for this of εὐδοκίας, not εὐδοκία, makes it fit to give an account of that phraſe, if ſo it be read. God's favour or acceptance, (an argument, and evidence of the ſincerity of the Chriſtians heart which is ſo approved, or accepted by him) is literally the notion of εὐδοκία, good liking, i. e. Gods good liking, or well-pleaſedneſs. So when, in the higheſt degree, 'tis ſaid of Chriſt, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα, in whom I am well pleaſed. So when of Noah, 'tis ſaid, that he found grace in the eyes of the Lord, Gen. 6. 8. according-ly ἄνθρωποι εὐδοκίας, are ſuch as theſe, whoſe uprightneſs of heart, and ſincerity (tho' mix'd with much frailty, and ſome ſin, for which there is no way of pardon but in Chriſt) hath approved them to God, and to theſe and none but theſe, this εἰρήνη ἐπὶ γῆς, peace on earth belongs. And ſo this reconciliation of God to all penitent ſinners, all ſincere, faithful, new creatures (thoſe whom God ſees, and owns as ſuch) as it is the full importance of εἰρήνη ἐπὶ γῆς ἐν ἀνθρώποις εὐδοκίας, peace upon earth toward men of his good-liking] ſo is it, next the glory of God, mention'd in the former words, the principal deſign of Chriſt's coming into the world.

Εὐδοκία.

Ἄνθρωποι εὐδοκίας.

V. 35. A ſword ſhall pierce] That Mary the mother of Chriſt was put to death is the affirmation of Epiphanius, l. 3. hær. 78. contra Dicomarianitas, and this place of Scripture ſaid to be fulfilled by it, ἤτοι ἀνῃρέθη, καθὼς γέγραπται, καὶ ἡ ψυχὴν αὐτῆς διελεύσεται ῥομφαία, ſhe was put to death according as it is written, a ſword ſhall paſs through thy ſoul alſo, and ſo he goes on, ἐνμάρτυσιν αὐτῆς τὸ κλέος, her glory is among the martyrs. If ſhe were not actually put to death, ſome great ſenſitive affliction, the ſharpneſs of which is here compared to a ſword, and ſaid to paſs through her, ψυχὴ, her animal or ſenſitive ſoul, is here certainly meant by it.

f. Ῥομφαία ψυχὴν διελεύσεται.

V. 37. Served God with faſtings] Of this Hanna 'tis the teſtimony of Cyril of Jeruſalem, Cat. 10. that ſhe was ἐγκρατὴς, ἐυλαβεστάτη, καὶ ἀσκήτρια. The firſt title refers to her continence and widow-chaſtity for ſo many years (having lived with an husband but ſeven years after marriage, he, in all probability dying at that time.) The ſecond to her devotion and ſtrict obſervance of piety. The third not to a ſolitary monial life (as the Latine interpreter there falſly renders it) but to ſuch a ſtrict obſervance of all that συναγωγία, or auſterity, in faſting ſo often every week, and attending of publick (and private) prayers ſo often every day (and all this for the whole ſpace of her enſuing life) as was antiently obſervable among the ἀσκηταὶ or devout perſons. Thus did ſhe take her ſelf up from the cares and affairs of the world that ſhe might have the full vacancy for the ſervice of God, and daily frequented the Temple at the hours of prayer, not that ſhe did neither eat nor ſleep, or that in any reſpect ſhe could be ſaid to dwell there always, but that ſerving God there at all the ſet times of prayer, and to prayer adding the weekly obſervances of faſting alſo, ſhe returned from thoſe performances to her own houſe, and there properly inhabited; and this is enough to own that expreſſion here, that ſhe departed not from the Temple, i. e. forſook it not, kept cloſe to it at the ſet times, (tho' ſhe was at her own houſe alſo at other times) as the Apoſtles, c. 24. 53. are ſaid to have been, διὰ παντὸς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, continually in the Temple, and Acts 1. 13. διαμένοντες continuing there, which yet doth not note that they were never out of it, but, as it follows, ἦσαν προσκαρτεροῦντες ὁμοθυμαδὸν τῇ προσευχῇ καὶ δεήσει, they continued unanimouſly conſtant in prayer and ſupplication, not again that they did never intermit praying, but that they were conſtant in the frequent daily performances of that duty, at the hours appointed for it.

V. 49. My father's buſineſs] Ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός ſeems to refer to the place where they found him, i. e. in the Temple, and ſo τὰ ἴδια in the Neuter, his own, Jo. 19. 27. ἴδιος ſignifies his own houſe, as Eſther 5. 10. and 6. 12. בֵּית houſe, is rendred τὰ ἴδια, his own. Thus the Syriack reads it, and thus Theophylact, ἐν τῷ ναῷ αὐτοῦ, in his Temple. So Chryſoſtom, Hom. 52. in Gen. ſpeaking of Abimelech driving Iſaac out of his country, asks, ποῦ ἀπελαύνεις τὸν δίκαιον; whither driveſt thou the righteous man? οὐκ οἶδα ὅτι ὅπου ἂν αὐτὸν ἀπελθεῖν συμβαίνῃ, ἐν τοῖς τοῦ ἑαυτοῦ τοῦ ἑαυτοῦ δεῖ αὐτὸν ἀνάγκη, doſt thou not know that whitherſoever he ſhall happen to depart, 'tis neceſſary he ſhould be in his fathers houſe, i. e. within his providence. And * Dionyſius Alexandr. ἐν τῷ οἴκῳ μοῦ εὗρόσάν με, ἀλλ' ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός μου δεῖ με εἶναι, They found me in my houſe, ſaith he by the prophet, but in the Goſpel, I muſt be in thoſe of my father, i. e. in his houſe likewiſe. So * Titus Boſtrenſis, Εἰς τὸν ναὸν ὄντα τοῦ θεοῦ, φησὶν, οὐκ οἴδατε ὅτι ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός μου δεῖ εἶναι με; Being in the Temple of God he ſaid, knew ye not that I muſt be in my Father's (houſe?) See the Learned Fullers Miſcell. p. 585.

CHAP. III.

Paraphrase.

1. NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being a [Governour of Judea, and Herod being Tetrarch of Galilee] and his brother Philip Tetrarch of b Iturea, and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias the Tetrarch of Abilene.

1. Procurator of Judea, and Herod Governour of that fourth division of the kingdom called Galilee. a. b.

2. Annas and Caiphas being the c High priests] the word of God came unto John the son of Zacharias in the wilderness.

2. Annas a chief priest being a man of principal authority among the Jews, and Caiaphas placed by the Procurator in the Pontificate. c.

3. And he came [into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance, for the remission of sins.]

3. To several parts of the coasts that were nigh Jordan, Bethabara, John 1.28. Ænon, John 3. 23. and by that means all the region about Jordan came to hear him, and he warned all the people to repent, and be baptized of him, to come in as proselytes of his, that so their sins might be forgiven, which would otherwise bring certain destruction on them.

4. As it is written in the book of the words of Esaias the prophet, saying, [The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths streight.

5. Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low, and the crooked shall be made streight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth.]

4, 5. There shall come a cryer, or herauld, or harbinger of the Messias in the wilderness, to fit men by repentance for the receiving of Christ, and part of his proclamation shall be in these words, Every valley, &c. which may figuratively import the peculiar quality of the Gospel of Christ, which was to work upon the poor in spirit, and exalt them to a participation of the greatest priviledges, which none of the higher loftier spirits were capable of, till they were humbled, and brought down from their heights; but literally they may seem to foretel the terrible destruction, which should shortly come upon this people for their impenitence, the plaining of the land for the coming of the Roman Army, (see note on Mat. 3. c.) and the visible discrimination, which should then be made betwixt the obdurate impenitent unbelievers on one side, and those that are penitent, and receive Christ, on the other.

6. And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.]

6. And all men shall discern the deliverance which is wrought for the penitent believers, when all impenitents are destroyed.

7. Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the [wrath to come?]

7. Destruction approaching?

8. Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance, and [begin not to say within your selves, We have Abraham to our Father;] for I say unto you that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

8. Do not think 'twill serve your turn, that you are able to say, (see note on Mark 2.a.) we are of the seed of Abraham, who have right to the promises made to him, whatsoever our actions are, see Mat. 3.9. a

9. And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees, every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down and cast into the fire.

9. Mat. 3. 10.

10. And the people asked him saying, What shall we do then?

10. And the common sort of people asked him, What was their task, or part of duty, to prevent or avert this ruine.

11. He answereth and saith unto them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none, and he that hath meat let him do likewise.]

11. And he prescribed to them an extensive liberality, charity, mercifulness to all that wanted what they had to spare.

12. Then came also [Publicans] to be baptized, and said unto him, Master, what shall we do?

12. The tole or tribute gatherers. l

13. And he said unto them [Exact no more then is appointed you.]

13. Receive all the taxes which the Emperour requires to be gathered, but beside that, do not you either by cunning or force, take any more for your selves.

14. And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? and he said unto them, Do violence to no man, * neither d accuse any falsly, but be content with your wages.]

14. And to the military men of the Jews (employ'd by their Procurators, or the Romans) he prescribed these rules, Neither fright, nor plunder any man, but be content with that allowance, which is assigned for your maintenance. d.

* Not wrong any.

15. And as the people were in expectation, and all men mused in their hearts of John, whether he were the Christ or not,]

15. And as the people were amuzed concerning him, looking for some further declaration or manifestation from him, and having some disputes within them, whether he were not the Messias himself. were was

16. John answered saying unto them all, I indeed baptize you with water, but one mightier then I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose, he shall baptize you with the holy Ghost and with fire.]

16. John gave a clear answer to their doubts, telling every one that came to him in plain words, that he was not the Christ, saying, My whole office is, thus to receive you as proselytes, to believe on the Messias, who shall suddenly reveal himself; I am but a disciple of that great master, sent before him, as disciples of prophets are wont to be, to take up room for him (see Luke 10.1. and Mat. 26. 20.) to serve him, to take off, and lay away his shoes (see note on Mat. 3. h.) and truly I am unworthy of this office, to be the disciple of so divine a person. But he, when he cometh, shall be another manner of person, and do other kind of things; over and above the receiving of proselytes with water in baptism, he shall send down the spirit on his disciples, in an appearance as of fire, Acts 2. and thereby enable them to speak with tongues maliciously, and so fit them for their office, (see Acts 1. a.) miraculously

17. Whose [fan] is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner, but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.

17. Winnowing instrument, see note on Mat. 3. 12.

18. And many other things in his exhortation preached he unto the people.]

18. And John Baptist said, the many such things as these, and more different from these, by way of exhortation and proclamation to the people, concerning the Gospel of Christ.

19. But Herod the Tetrarch being reproved by him for Herodias his brother Philips wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done,]

19. And Herod calling him to the court, and hearing him often, and that with great respect to him at first (Mark 6. 20.) at last being reproved by him for marrying his brothers wife, and for all other sins, that John saw him to be guilty of.

20. Added yet this above all, that he shut up John in prison.

21. Now when all the people were baptized, it came to pass that Jesus also being baptized and praying, the heaven was opened,

22. And the Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove upon him,] and a voice came from heaven, which said, Thou art my beloved son, in thee I am well pleased.

22. And the holy eternal Spirit of God appeared visibly to come down, and to descend upon him, as a dove uses to descend, and light on any thing (see note on Mat. 3. k.)

23. And Jesus himself began to be about thirty years of age, being (as it was supposed) the son of Joseph, which was the son of e Heli.]

23. And at this time of his being baptized, Jesus was about thirty years old, the age before which the Levites were not to be admitted to sacred functions, Num. 4. 3. and 43. 1 Chron. 33. 2. And being born of a pure virgin he had truly no father on earth, but yet Joseph the son of Heli being betrothed to Mary his mother, he was his reputed father. e.

Annotations on Chap. III.

a. Ηγεμονεύοντος. * Obſerv. l.9. c. 13.

V.1. Governour] Some queſtion may be, what is here meant by Ηγεμονεύοντος. But * Jac. Cujacius the learned Lawyer hath cleared it; Rectius Vetus interpres, Luc.1. Procurante Pilato. quàm alii, præſide. Præſes enim Syriæ tum fuit Vitellius vir Conſularis, Procurator Pilatus, Eques Romanus. Cujus rei authores habeo Tertullianum, Tacitum, Joſephum. The ancient interpreter, Luc.1. renders it more truly, Pilate being procurator, then others, Pilate being Preſident, or Governour: for Vitellius was then Governour of Syria, one that had been Conſul, but Pilate a knight of Rome was Procurator: So I learn from Tertullian, Tacitus, and Joſephus.

b. Φίλιππος Τετραρχης.

Ib. Tetrarch of Iturea] That which is here ſaid of Herod's brother Philip being Tetrarch of Iturea and Trachonitis, is thus far confirmed by Joſephus, Ant. l. 18. c.7. that this Philip died in the twentieth year of of Tiberius, having for the ſpace of thirty ſeven years been Præfect of Trachonitis, and Gaulanitis, and Batanea, where inſtead of Gaulanitis, the truer reading is, Auranitis, of which we have mention in the ſame Joſephus, Ant. l. 15. c.13. as a part of Zenodorus his province, Trachonitis and Batanea being there named as the other parts of it, the latter of which (or elſe that, and Auranitis together) is ſure the Iturea here. As for the word τετραρχης Tetrarch, it denotes a principality of a fourth part, and when Herod who is called ſo, is elſewhere call'd King Herod, the word King is to be taken in that latitude, as to ſignify no more then what Tetrarch here doth, one placed by the Romans over this Region of Galilee, with Regal power and for life, and thereby differing from the ἡγεμὼν, a Governour, (ſuch as Pilate here, and *Mat.*27.2.) with commiſſion for ſo many years, πεμπτὸς ὑπὸ, 1 *Pet.*2.14. a Deputy of the ſupreme, and as a Steward in a family, diſpenſing it under him, Επίτροπος and Procurator.

c. Ἄννα καὶ Καϊάφας.

V.2. High prieſts] Concerning the two ἀρχιερεῖς or high prieſts in this place, (and the reconciling it with the Old Teſtament, where there was to be but one at a time, one of the ſons of Aaron, *Ex.*29. 30. Lev. 16.32. and he to continue not for a year only, but for his life, whereas here it ſeems to be otherwiſe) many things have diverſly been ſaid by learned men. Without ſurveying of their ſeveral conjectures, I ſhall firſt think it worth obſerving, that in the books of Samuel (when ſure there was but one High-prieſt) Abimelech the ſon of Abitub being ſlain, and Abiathar ſucceeding him in the High-prieſt's office, 1 Sam. 22. there is yet, after that, frequent mention of Zadok and Abiathar together, 2 *Sam.*15.35. Zadok and Abiathar the prieſts, and c.17.15. & c.19.11. & 20.25. and 1 Chron. 15.11. every where Zadok and Abiathar prieſt, and Zadok placed before Abiathar conſtantly (as Annas before Caiaphas here.) The reaſon of which is probably this, becauſe tho' Zadok was not actually High-prieſt in David's time, yet being the ſon of Abitub, 2 *Sam.*8.17. (not that Abitub, the father of Abimelech, 1 *Sam.*22.11. who was of Ithamar's line, 1 Chron. 24.2. but another, 1 Chron. 6.8. & 53. the lineal ſucceſſor of Eleazar, v. 4. & 50.) to him the High-prieſthood regularly belonged, and ſo after the expulſion of Abiathar, the laſt of Eli's, and ſo of Ithamar's line (to which, it ſeems it was changed from Eleazar's, and continued in that line for ſome time) Zadok being a principal perſon in Authority with David, a Prieſt, and regularly heir to the High-prieſthood, is conſtantly joined with (and ſet before) Abiathar the High-prieſt. Agreeable to this example it is, that Annas father-in-law to (the high-prieſt of that year) Caiaphas, a moſt eminent perſon himſelf, & one that had been high-prieſt alſo, and, I ſuppoſe, the chief of the race of Aaron's ſons then alive, as Zadok was, is here ſet before, and joined with Caiphas, and call'd ἀρχιερεὺς, high prieſt, tho' punctually he executed not the office of the High-prieſt. This being ſaid by way of preparation, the main of the difficulty may perhaps be remov'd by obſerving of three things: Firſt, that at this time, the land being under the Roman Emperour, (whoſe name and the year of his reign is ſet down at the beginning of the verſe, as alſo his Procurator of Judea, Pontius Pilate, and the Tetrarchs of other places) the ſucceſſion of the High-prieſts was now changed, the one lineal deſcendant in the family of Aaron, which was to continue for life, being not permitted to ſucceed (λέγω δὲ μὴ διὰ βίου, καὶ ἐκ πατέρων διαδοχήν, ſaith Euſebius, l. 1. c.18.) but ſome other, whom he pleaſed, named to that office by the Procurator every year, or renewed, as often as he pleaſed. To which purpoſe is that of Theophylact, Οἱ τότε ἀρχιερεῖς τῶν Ιουδαίων ἐτετύφωντο τῇ τιμῇ, ὠνησάν αὐτὴν κλαύμοις, καὶ τὸν νόμον διαφθείραντες, They who were at that time high-prieſts of the Jews, invaded that dignity, bought it, and ſo deſtroyed the Law, which preſcribed a ſucceſſion in the family of Aaron. Secondly, that there was at this time, after the Roman

Con-

Conqueſt, and before the deſtruction of the Temple (whenſoever they made no king of (but only ſent a Procurator into) Judea) the place and title of נשיא ἄρχων τῆς λαοῦ, Ruler of the people, (and with it ſome part of the ſovereign power, allowed unto the Jews, or at leaſt ſomewhat proportionable to it.) This Naſi was he which had at any time the chief power of that people within themſelves, that is, what degree of power ſoever remained in the Jews at any time by the indulgence of their Conquerours it was principally in him: whilſt they were not ſubject to ſtrangers, an abſolute and ſupreme power (and therefore in the Law, and in Ezekiel, the Naſi or the Ruler ſignifies the King) but when they were ſubject to other nations, a power ſubordinate, ſuch as was allowed them by thoſe that had dominion over them, but yet that ſupreme among themſelves, for the deciding of all controverſies ariſing from, and determinable by their law, tho' generally without power of life and death, to enforce the ſentences of their judicatures. Such are the ראשי הגלות or ἀρχιμαλωτάρχαι, the chief of the captives that returned from Babylon, Zorobabel the ſon of Salathiel, Hag. 2. and *Zach.*4. being of the tribe of Judah, *Mat.*1.12. Luke 3.27. (at the ſame time when Joſuah the ſon of Joſedech is high-prieſt, *Zach.*3. and therefore they two together are call'd the anointed ones, c.4. 14. and named in the front of the captives, *Ezr.*2.2.) and after him his poſterity, till about the time of the Maccabees. According to that of St. Baſil in his Epiſtles, p.1170. Ἐπανελθόντες ὁ οἱ περὶ τὸν Σαλαθιὴλ, καὶ Ζοροβάβελ δημοτικώτερον καθηγήσαντο τοῦ λαοῦ, τῆς ἀρχῆς λοιπὸν ὅση τῷ ἱερωσύνῃ μεταπεσούσης. The ſucceſſors of Salathiel and Zorobabel ruled the people ſomewhat after a popular manner, and after their time forward the principality fell to the prieſthood, to wit, in the time of the Maccabees. (As for Nehemiah and the governors mentioned by him, c.5.14. it ſeems by his commiſſion, and the Babyloniſh name פחת that he had his power from the king of Perſia, not from the Jewiſh nation, or from the right yet remaining in them under their Conquerours, of living according to their own laws.) After the manner of what was thus done in Paleſtine, the like was generally put in practice in the ſeveral countries whether the Jews were diſperſed, that is, not only in Babylonia, but alſo at Alexandria, (ſaith Philo in Leg. ad Caium) to the Naſi, whereof all the multitude of the Jews in Ægypt were ſubject, a million ſaith Philo in his time; and therefore ſaith Joſephus, *Ant.*l.20. *c.*4. that the Ἐθνάρχαι of the Jews being dead, the Emperour Claudius μὴ κεκώλυκε ἐθνάρχας γίνεσθαι, did not forbid them to ſet Rulers of the nation over them, but conſented ὑπὸθεσθαι ἑκάστους, that all ſhould be ſubject to them, according to their own cuſtoms, and not be forced παραβαίνειν τὸ πάτριον θρήσκευμα, to tranſgreſs the religion of their fathers. The like is reported of Auguſtus by Philo ad Flaccum, calling theſe rulers ἐθνάρχας, as Joſephus did Ἐθνάρχας, and others of the heathen writers Patriarchas, ſee vopiſcus in vita Saturnini. 3*ly*, This office of the Naſi generally fell on ſome perſon of the greateſt authority among them, for skill and knowledge in their Law. And 'twill not be improbable that that ſhould be ſome Prieſt (ſuch being moſt carefully brought up in that knowledge) and then, tho' it be not neceſſary to ſuppoſe that that were the lineally deſcended high-prieſt (there being no ſuch perhaps left in the land) yet 'twill be eaſy to conceive, that a Prieſt, the chief of one of the ranks, eſpecially of the firſt rank of the Prieſts, and he poſſeſs'd with ſo great authority, as that of the Naſi (the greateſt now left among them, ſhould be ſtyled ἀρχιερεύς, chief or high-prieſt. And ſo, I conceive, it was at this time, ſomewhat after the manner of what the Maccabees had formerly been, which were in a manner kings and prieſts both, that is, being prieſts, were alſo one after another, leaders and rulers of the Jews (proportionable to the Naſi, of which I now ſpeak) the only rulers which then they had with any image of regality on them. That this may be more diſcernible, 'twill not be amiſs in brief to ſet down the beginning and progreſs of them. Upon the profanation committed by Antiochus upon the law and worſhip of God among the Jews, aroſe Mattathias the ſon of John, the ſon of Simeon, a prieſt in Modin, of the ſons of Joarib (that is, of that family which had the firſt courſe of the four and twenty aſſigned to them by lot, 1 Chron. 24.) and ſo of a family next to the family of the high-prieſt, Aaron's ſucceſſor. This Mattathias not pretending any right to the high-prieſthood (it being not affirmed that he was chief of that family of Joarib, but a branch of one of the ſons, that is, one of that courſe, and beſides Onias, the laſt of the high-prieſts of the ſucceſſion of Aaron, was not, that appeareth, as yet gone into Egypt) but meerly as a Zelot began to kill the profaners, then went out into the mountains, with as many after him as he could get, & at laſt when he had gathered an army, he left Judas as the mightieſt of his ſons (tho' not by ſucceſſion again as the eldeſt of them) to be general of it, 1 *Mac.*1. 66. And he under the name of Judas Maccabeus (or the Zelot) did lead them, was as it were their king (the only one they had) their ruler at that time, and fought their battels illuſtriouſly, cleans'd their ſanctuary, built a new Altar, and being at laſt ſlain, 1 Mac. 9.18. it follows, *v.*29. that Judas's friends (that is, thoſe that had continued with him in all his actions) came to chooſe Jonathan a brother of Judas to be their prince or captain in his ſtead, to fight their battels, and ſo he took the government on him, *v.*31. And upon a treaty of league betwixt Alexander the ſon of Antiochus Epiphanes and him, Alexander ordains him to be the high-prieſt of his nation, 1 *Mac.*10.20. and accordingly after that he is ſo call'd, *v.*69. Thus the Dukedom and the high-prieſthood continued to his ſucceſſors, his brother Simon, and Hircanus Simon's ſon, and ſo on, till the race of the Aſſamonæi or Maccabees were extinct alſo, by the killing of Ariſtobulus, and depoſing of Hircanus. After which the Prieſthood went among the Prieſts, at the will of the Governours appointed by the Romans, as Jonathan, and the Aſſamonæi had been by the kings, that then had power over them; but yet more uncertainly, not by ſucceſſions, as among the Aſſamonæi they did. Now ſome ſucceſſors as it were to that office of the Aſſamonæi, as far as they were rulers of the people (not as by the king appointed to be the high-prieſts) that is, ſome one of the Jews, by themſelves ſet up to be chief among them, I ſuppoſe to have been continued at this time, after Herod the Great. And this not the lineal ſucceſſor of Aaron (for after the flight of the laſt Onias into Egypt, where he built a Temple in imitation of that in Jeruſalem, that Aaronical line vaniſhed, or was interrupted in Judea) but, like Mattathias, ſome other Prieſt of great reputation and authority among the people; and ſuch was Annas or Ananias, at this time, a man of greateſt value and authority among them, ſaith Joſephus, who, tho' he differed from the high-prieſt, put in by the Procurator, as Moſes did from Aaron, yet being a prieſt and Naſi at this time, 'twill be eaſy to believe, that he ſhould be called ἀρχιερεὺς high-prieſt or chief-prieſt (being ἄρχων and ἱερεύς, a prieſt and ruler of the people) both here, and Acts 4.6. and as I ſuppoſe, Acts 23. 5. where by what is ſaid of him by St. Paul, it is acknowledged that he was ἄρχων τοῦ λαοῦ, prince or ruler of the people. Accordingly the ſtory of the Goſpel, John 18.13. mentions the carrying of Chriſt to Annas firſt, as to an officer of principal authority among them, who ſent him bound to Caiphas, that was the Pontifex maximus that year, of the Romans putting in, and ſo continued all the time of Pilates Procuratorſhip. If this which hath been ſaid of the Naſi be ſufficient to ſhew that Annas might paſs for one of the ἀρχιερεῖς here (and ἀρχιερεὺς he is call'd, that's clear, and as clear, by what is ſaid of him in Joſephus, and the Goſpels, the greateſt man at that time among the Jews, to whom the malefactors were firſt brought, John 18.14. which proves him to be Naſi alſo) then the other part of the difficulty, as to Caiaphas, will be ſoon cleared: For 'tis manifeſt that at this time the Roman Præfect did ad libitum, when he would, and that ſometimes once a year, put in whom he pleaſed into the Pontificate, to officiate in Aaron's office, office, instead of the lineal descendent from him. And that is it of which Josephus so frequently makes mention. After the race of the Assamonæi it seems Jesus the son of Phebes was put in, then he being put out, Simon is put in his stead, this Simon put out, and Matthias in his stead, Ant. l. 17. c. 6. then Matthias put out by Herod about the time of Christs birth, and Joazar put in his stead, Ant. l. 17. c. 8. then Joazar put out out by Archelaus and Eleazar put in, c. 15. and he again put out, and Jesus the son of Sia put in. Then in the first of Quirinus there is mention again of Joazar son of Boethius, l. 18. c. 1. who, it seems, was put in, and so turned out again by Quirinus the same year, and Ananus the son of Seth put in his stead, who was the Ananus here mentioned by St. Luke. Then Gratus at the beginning of Tiberius's reign put out Ananus, and put in Ismael, and in his stead Eleazar, Ananus's son, then in his stead Simon, and after his year, Caiaphas here, who continued from that all his and Pilate's time, till Vitellius displaced him, and put Jonathan another son of Ananus in his stead, and in his, a year or two after Theophilus another son of Annas, whom Agrippa again displaced, Ant. l. 19. c. 5. and put in Simon, and turning him out the same year, put in Matthias a fourth son of Annas in the beginning of Claudius' his reign, some nine years after the death of Christ, and soon removing him, put in Elioneus, c. 7. Then it seems, Cantharas was put in, for in his place Herod put in Joseph, l. 20. 1. and in his stead about fifteen years after the death of Christ, Ananias son of Nebedeus c. 3. After him we find Jonathan, then Ismael, then Joseph, then Annas another son of Annas, then Jesus son of Damneus, then Jesus son of Gamaliel, then Matthias in whose time the Jewish war began. These which I have thus named make up the number of 28. which, saith Josephus, l. 20. c. 8. held the Pontificate from the time of Herod to Titus's burning of the Temple, that is, were the men which were put into it by the Roman Presidents, and Caiaphas is one of them, and so he is mentioned Mat. 26. 3. and 57. and John 11. 49. Caiaphas high priest of that year, and John 18. 13. 14. 24. referring to the yearly change of this office at that time, tho', as appears by Josephus, it were continued in Caiaphas for some space. But now (to return to Annas again) it is observable from Josephus, that beside this series of the chief-priests, Ananias is set down as ἀρχιερεὺς in the very same time, when Jesus Damnei is said to have been put into that other line, l. 20. c. 8. and this appears to be the Annas here, for having spoken of him in the beginning of the chapter, and affirmed him to be the happiest of all men, as having five sons advanced to the dignity of high-priest, (viz. Eleazar, Jonathon, Theophilus, Mattathias and Annas) after himself had enjoyed it to satiety, he now adds, that Ananias became daily more famous, beloved, and for his liberality honoured of all, obliging daily with gifts Albinus the Procurator, and the Summus Pontifex, and presently he mentions Eleazar, as son of this Ananias, whom before we have set down son of this Annas. This being thus evident, it will be more then a probable conjecture, that by Annas's or Annanias's Pontificate, now spoken of, is meant his being the Nasi or ruler of the people at Jerusalem (as before I said) he being a person of so much authority among the Jews. And so these two, the Nasi and the summus sacerdos, being the two chief men among the Jews, (it being affirmed by Josephus in the end of 8 chap. of l. 20. Ant. that the Pontifices were placed in the top of the Commonwealth, after the reign of Herod and Archelaus, the πολιτεία being brought to an optimacy) may very well be resolved on, to be these two here named, as the ἀρχιερεῖς at that time, tho' it fell out that they continued to be some years together. All which being put together, will perhaps be able to answer any objection which can be brought against this conjecture. This Annas is after, Acts 4. 6. call'd Ἅννας ἀρχιερεύς, Annas the high-priest or chief-priest, and without doubt is the ἀρχιερεὺς Ἀνανίας, Acts 23. 5. and Acts 24. 1. being by Josephus so call'd, as even now appeared. Of him St. Paul, Acts 23. saith, οὐκ ᾔδειν ὅτι ἐστὶν ἀρχιερεύς, I knew not that he is high-priest. 'Tis rightly wondred how Paul should be able truly to say that he did not know him to be the high-priest, being so well acquainted with the Jewish Nation, and the customs of their judicature: but if we take notice of the words of the by standers, v. 4. revilest thou God's high-priest? it is first certain that Ananias was not ἀρχιερεὺς Θεοῦ, the high-priest of God, nor indeed any man else at that time among them, the lineal succession having been a long while interrupted. And to that in those words St. Paul answers, that he did not know that he was; meaning thereby, I suppose, the lineal descendent from Aaron. Secondly, there being at this time, another high priest to whom that name more properly belong'd, then to Ananias it could, viz. the summus Pontifex, or he that was put into the place of the Aaronical priest-hood by the Roman Prefect, this might truly be said by him again, I knew not that he was high-priest. How soever knowing him to be at that time the Nasi, he retracted his hasty and sharp speech, as having said somewhat against the Ruler of the people, who was not by Gods law to be evil spoken of. That which is ordinarily said of these two high priests, is, that one was the high-priest, and the other his סגן or vicarius, such as Zephaniah called the second Priest, Jer. 52. 24. Of this Sagan it is clear that, tho' he were chief or principal of the ordinary priests which ministred to the high-priest, and, in the day of Expiation, supplied his place in officiating, if any thing fell out which hindred him from being able to do it himself, and thereupon be called ראש הכהנים the chief of the ordinary priests, and כהן השנר the secondary priest, and כהן אחר the other priest, and μέτοχος ἀρχιερωσύνης in Josephus partaker of his office, viz. when he officiates for him, or in that he is appointed his vicarius, yet he is never כהן גדול the high-priest. What he was you may plainly see, Cod. Joma, c. 1. sect. 1. where having spoken of the high-priest, כהן גדול that is to officiate on the day of expiation, it follows ומתקנין לו כהן אחר they appoint unto him another priest, under him שמא יארעבו פסול, if by chance any pollution, or profanation (which hinders the high-priest from officiating himself) do befal him, as in Josephus Ant. l. 17. c. 8. when Matthias the high-priest was unclean, Joseph the son of Ellem was his proxy or vicar to officiate for him, but this only for the space of one day, as he there saith (the great day of Expiation, as the Glos on Joma clears it) by which it appears that he was under the high-priest, as his substitute once a year for a day (not for a year, or any long time) but never his colleague or equal to him. 2*ly*, 'Tis evident, that this of the Sagan cannot be applied to this matter. For I shall demand, to which of these two did the office of Sagan belong at this time, to Annas, or Caiaphas? To Annas it could not, because if it did, he must be acknowledged inferiour to the high-priest, whereas Annas in all passages of Scripture, where he is named with Caiaphas, hath the priority, and never appears to be inferiour to Caiaphas, and therefore it must belong to Caiaphas, or to neither of them. And to Caiaphas it cannot, because 'tis manifest both that Annas was not the Pontifex Maximus at this time, and that Caiaphas was, by the series of them, even now set down from Josephus. 3*ly*, The office of Sagan, as vicarius to the high-priest, extended no farther then to the officiating in the Temple (for from that only was the high-priest excluded by pollution, so as to need a substitute to officiate for him.) Or if it could be conceived that the Sagan were to supply the high-priest's place, in judicature, when he were detained by sickness, &c. yet of Annas here that cannot be affirmed, for 'tis apparent, that his authority continued to him, John 18. 13. when Caiaphas was in health, and acted as high-priest, v. 28. and so also Acts 4. 6. they both met in counsel together. For these reasons, I say, that ordinary way of reconciling this difficulty, by that of the Sagan, may not fitly be allowed, being not appliable to either of these, who are both named here as persons of authority among the Jews, next to the Emperour and his Procurator, and appear at the apprehending hending of Chriſt to be Magiſtrates, and perſons of civil juriſdiction, which the Naſi and high-prieſt were, but the Sagan, as ſuch, cannot be pretended to have been. Another account, I acknowledge, is given of this matter, by Euſebius, l.1c..9. to wit, that Chriſt is here ſaid to have begun & accompliſh'd his whole time of preaching under Annas and Caiaphas high prieſts, which, ſaith he, notes the compaſs of four years, and that he began his preaching, when Annas, and ended it when Caiaphas was high-prieſt. For about this time, ſaith he, the Roman Prefects having changed the Moſaical courſe, they that were by them made high-prieſts continued not above a year in it. And he brings a ſucceſſion out of Joſephus thus, Valerius Gratus putting Annas out of the high-prieſthood, made Iſmael in his ſtead, then after a while removing him, he put Eleazar Annas's ſon in his, and at the years end he gives it to Simon, and at the end of that year, Joſeph called Caiaphas alſo ſucceeded him, and all theſe within leſs than four years, and ſo, ſaith he, Caiaphas was high-prieſt at the time of our Saviours paſſion. This might ſound at firſt hearing as a probable conjecture, but if examin'd, will ceaſe to be ſuch. For 1. the thing in hand, *Luk.*3. 1. is not to ſet down the ſpace of the continuance of Chriſt's preaching, but the year of the beginning of John's preaching, punctually naming that 15*th* year of Tiberius. And 2*ly*, that which Joſephus ſaith, Ant. l. 18.c.3. is this, that at the beginning (not 15*th* year) of the reign of Tiberius, Valerius Gratus was ſent Preſident into Judea, that he continued ſo eleven years, that in that time, probably in the three firſt years of his Government, he chang'd the high-prieſt yearly, that Caiaphas was the laſt of them, who continued the reſt of Gratus's time, and all Pilates ten years, and was not removed till the time of Vitellius, who ſucceeded Pilate, and put Jonathan, Annas's ſon in his ſtead, l.18. c.9. By which 'tis clear that Euſebius was miſtaken in applying that, which Gratus did in the beginning of Tiberius's reign, to the four years of Chriſt's preaching and crucifixion, which was certainly under Pilate, all whoſe time Caiaphas was continued in the high-prieſthood. And ſo that cannot be the way of ſalving this difficulty. There is only a third way, that I have met with, that Annas having been high-prieſt long ſince, was now a kind of conſulary man, and as ſuch, being alſo father-in-law to Caiaphas the high-prieſt of the year, is ſtyled ἀρχιερεὺς, high-prieſt alſo. But to this the anſwer is clear, that there were many other ſuch Pontifical men alive, that is, ſuch as had been Pontifices in their times, and therefore there was nothing in that peculiar to Annas, or which could put him in the Pontifical Faſti, as the ἀρχιερεὺς of that year, without ſome other addition of dignity, peculiar to him from thoſe others, ſuch as I ſuppoſe that of the Naſi, and cannot imagine that of being father in-law to Caiaphas, or any ſuch extrinſical relation to be.

V.14. Accuſe any falſly] Συκοφαντῆσαν tho' it have a proverbial ſignification to accuſe, and by that means to flatter thoſe, to whom that accuſation is whiſperingly convey'd, and had its original from a paſſage about figs, as Phavorinus, and the Grammarians ordinarily expreſs it, yet it is uſed in a greater latitude for wronging, taking away any thing by force from any, according to the latitude of the ſignification of the Hebrew עשק which ſignifies both to calumniate, and to uſe violence, and accordingly is rendred in the old Teſtament ſometimes by ἀδικέω, ὑποτρέω, καταδυναστεύω, (in the notion of oppreſſing by force) ἐκπιέζω, θλίβω, ἁρπάζω, ſometimes by ζυκοφαντέω, but that in many places, when the ſenſe would rather have required ἀδικέω, or the like; ſo in Job 35.9. *Pſal.*119.21. and other places. From this Old Teſtament-uſe of the word muſt the ſenſe of it be fetch'd in the New. So when Zaccheus, c. 19. 8. ſaith of himſelf εἴ τινός ἐσυκοφάντησα (which is the only other place where the word is uſed) it belongs clearly to wrong dealing, violence, injuſtice, taking by force from others, (which was ordinary for the Publicans to do,

Πάντες τελῶναι, πάντες εἰσὶν ἅρπαγες,

All Publicans are rapacious, ſaith Zeno the Comædian, and ſuch was Zaccheus here) and therefore his penitent heart in that caſe vows the ſatisfaction, which the Law requires for theft, reſtitution four-fold. The word belongs to any kind of injuſtice or extortion, and ſo here to that which is ordinary among ſoldiers, rapine, plundering, συκοφάνῃ, ἁπτεσθαίζοντες, ſaith Heſychius, that is, βιαίζοντες forcible invaders, and that is here farther expreſſed by that which follows, and be content with your ὀψωνίοις, that is, thoſe ſtipends, that are publickly appointed the ſoldiers, that are kept together in bands for publick uſe, as in Vopiſcus, Annonâ ſuâ contentus ſit, non de lacrymis provincialium vivat, that is, Let them not oppreſs thoſe country men, where they are quartered, but reſt ſatisfied with the allowance of victuals, &c. that is allowed them. d. Συκοφαντῆσαν.

V.23. Son of Heli] The ſettling of the Genealogy of Chriſt, and reconciling the differences between St. Luke and St. Matthew, is a matter of ſome uncertainty, ariſing from the cuſtom of the Jews in reckoning their Genealogies, among whom it is ordinary to find different pedigrees, which ſeem to contradict one another, when they do not. And the matter requiring ſome length, I rather refer the Reader to the labours of the learned H. Grotius on this place, and in the particular of Cainan, *v.*36. to the learned Sam. Bochartus in his Phaleg. l.11. c.13. e.

12. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto him, It is ſaid, thou ſhalt not tempt the Lord thy God. See Mat. 4. 7.

13. Left him for a time, meaning to wait an opportunity to aſſault him again.

13. And when the devil had ended all the temptation, he [departed from him * for a ſeaſon.] * until, ἄχρι.

See Mat. 4. 11.

14. Being by the powerful incitation of the Spirit of God now ſtirred up to ſet upon this prophetick office, returned.

14. And Jeſus [returned in the power of the ſpirit] into Galilee, and there went out a fame of him thro' all the region round about,

15. Exceedingly admired.

15. And he taught in their ſynagogues being (glorified] of all.

16. And he made ſhew to undertake to expound ſome part of ſacred writ, as their doctors are wont to do.

16. And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up, and, as his cuſtom was, he went into the ſynagogue on the ſabbath-day, [and ſtood up for to read.]

17. And the officer of the ſynagogue, (ſee v. 20.) brought him.

17. And there was delivered to him] the book of the prophet Iſaias, and when he had a opened the book, he found the place where it was written,

18. Thoſe that long impriſonment and ſhekels have bruiſed.

18. The ſpirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath anointed me to preach the Goſpel to the poor, he hath ſent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of ſight to the blind, to ſet at liberty [them that are bruiſed,]

21. And he began to ſay unto them, This day is this ſcripture fulfilled in your ears.

22. And all that heard him did with acclamations expreſs that they were amazed at the power and wiſdom with which he ſpake, (ſee Pſal. 45. 2.) wondring whence he had ſuch excellencies, Mat. 13. 54. but becauſe they knew he was Joſephs reputed ſon, one brought up in an ordinary condition, they did not believe on him.

22. And all bare him witneſs, and wondred at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they ſaid, Is not this Joſephs ſon?]

23. Whereupon he ſpake unto them, ſaying, that which among the Jews is by way of gibe vulgarly uſed to a Phyſician, who is himſelf fallen into any diſeaſe, or infirmity, Phyſician, &c. (which ſignifies a man that pretends to do cures abroad, but is able to do none at home) is become appliable to me, who being believed on by ſtrangers, and by that means having opportunities to do miracles or healing among them, am deſpiſed and rejected among my, own countrymen, very few of whom having that belief of my power, as to come to me for cure, Mar. 6. 5. I cannot conſequently do many ſuch miracles here, Mat. 13. 58. which in Capernaum and other places I have done.

23. And he ſaid unto them, Ye will ſurely ſay unto me this proverb, Phyſician heal thy ſelf: Whatſoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do alſo do in thy country.]

24. And ſo generally it hath been, when prophets have been ſent to work miracles of mercy, very few among their country-men, to whom they were familiarly known, have been found fit to receive them.

24. And he ſaid, Verily I ſay unto you, No prophet is accepted in his own country.]

25, 26. As in Elias's time of the many men and women, particularly of widows that were in that time of famine, thro' all Iſrael, there was none qualified to receive that miracle from Elias,

25. But I tell you of a truth, many widows were in Iſrael in the days of Elias, when the heaven was ſhut up three years and ſix months, when great famine was throughout all the land.

26. But nnto none of them was Elias ſent, ſave unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.]

but one only, the widow of Sarepta, or Zarephath a city of Zidon, 1 Kings 17. 9.

27. And tho there were many leprous perſons among the Iſraelites in Eliſha's time, yet they being his country-men, the obſervation was there as here, that no one of them had faith to ſeek and qualify himſelf for a cure of his Leproſy, only Naaman which was not that country-man, but a Syrian, was by Eliſha converted to the true religion, and heal'd of his leproſy.

27. And many lepers were in Iſrael, in the time of Eliſeus the prophet, and none of them was cleanſed, ſaving Naaman the Syrian.]

28. And all they in the ſynagogue, when they heard theſe things, were filled with wrath,

29. And roſe up, and thruſt him out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the hill (whereon their city was built) that they might caſt him down headlong.

30. Without being hurt by any of them.

30. But he [paſſing thro' the midſt of them] went his way.

31. And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the ſabbath days.

32. He ſpake with authority, Mat. 7. 29. and added miracles alſo to confirm the truth of what he ſaid.

32. And they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine, for [his word was with power.]

33. Was poſſeſſed by the devil, & tormented with a ſore diſeaſe conſequent to it.

33. And in the Synagogue there was a man, which [had a ſpirit of an unclean devil] and cryed out with a loud voice,

34. Saying, Let us alone, what have we to do with thee, thou Jeſus of Nazareth? Art thou come to deſtroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God.

35. Caſt him into a fit of apoplexy, before or in the preſence of them all, the devil, and the diſeaſe departed from him, and he was very well immediately.

35. And Jeſus rebuked him, ſaying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had [thrown him in the midſt, he came out of him, and hurt him not.]

36. This is very wonderful beyond all that was ever ſeen before.

36. And they were all amazed, and ſpake among themſelves ſaying [What a word is this?] for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean ſpirits, and they come out.

37. And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about.

38. Went

38. And he [aroſe] out of the Synagogue, and entred into Simons houſe, and Simons wives mother was taken with a great fever, and they beſought him for her.

39. Commanded the fever to depart from her, & ſo it did.

39. And he ſtood over her and [rebuked the fever, and it left her] and immediately ſhe aroſe, and miniſtred to them.

40. By prayer & impoſition of hands, without the uſe of any thing elſe, cur'd them.

40. Now when the ſun was ſetting, all they that had any ſick of divers diſeaſes brought them unto him, and [laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.]

41. And devils alſo came out of many, crying out, and ſaying, thou art the Chriſt the ſon of God. And he rebuked them, ſuffered them not to ſpeak: for they knew that he was Chriſt.

42. And when it was day he departed, and went into a desart place, and the people sought him, and came unto him and [stayed him] that he should not depart from thence.

42. Used all means to prevail with him.

43. And he said [I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also; for therefore am I sent.]

43. My business is to preach the Gospel (and the cures which I work are but subservient to that) and this I must preach to the rest of the villages and towns, and not continue still in one place.

44. And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee.

a. Ἀναπτύσσω.

V. 17. Opened the book] The word ἀναπτύσσω refers to the manner of writing among the Jews, which was not in parchments or papers sowed together, as we now use, but in one continued page or long roll, and that folded up to save it from dust or other harm. So the Hebrew מגרת ספר signifies no more, then chartæ volubilis, a paper or parchment folded up, according to that of Isa. 3.4. וגללו, and the heavens shall be folded up, כספר as a book, referring to the custom of folding books and writings; and so Apoc. 6.14. the heavens passed away, ὡς βιβλίον ἑλισσόμενον, as a folded book, that is מגלת כפר which is by the Greek sometimes called βιβλίον, and by us rightly rendred a bill, Deut. 24. 1. and sometimes κεφαλὶς, from the round form, when 'tis folded up, as in Architecture some round parts are called κεφαλίδες, Exod. 26. 32. 27. 17. 36. 34. 38. 28. 27. and so saith Suidas, κεφαλὶς βιβλίου, ὅ περ πινὲς ἕλιγμά φασιν, the volume or round form of a book, which some call the folding, thus it is used, Heb. 10. 7. out of the Psalmist, for a roll or instrument, or indenture, wherein Christ undertakes in writing, under his hand as it were, to do God's will, or that which God requires of him, by way of office. And * Theophylact who explains it by εἰλητάριον, a roll. After the manner of these rolls or bills, were their books and other writings rolled up, when they would shut them, ספרי תורה שנגללין the books of the law folded up, saith R. Eliezer, in Gemar Sanhed. c. 7. and opened by way of ἀνάπτυξις, unfolding or unrolling, and then again, πλυσόμενα rolled up, as here πλύξας rolling it up, v. 20. which the Hebrews ordinarily express by גלל ספר, and he folded up the book or roll, that is, shut it up, Joma. c. 7. sect. 1.

Paraphrase.

* came, or flock'd about him, ἐπικεῖσθαι, αὐτῷ.

1. AND it came to pass that as the people * pressed upon him to hear the word of God, he stood by [the lake of Gennesareth,]

1. The sea of Galilee, Mat. 4. 18. or lake of Tiberias. See note on ch. 8. c. and on Mat. 14. e.

2. And saw two ships standing by the lake, but the fishermen * were a gone out of them, and were washing their nets,]

2. And saw two boats belonging to Andrew and Simon, Mat. 4 18. 'tother to Zebedee, and his sons, James and John, and the fishermen having made an end of fishing for that time, had carried out their nets, and cleansed them, meaning not to let them down or use them any more.

* having gone out of them had wash'd their nets.

3. And he went into one of the ships, which was Simons, and pray'd him that he would thrust out a little from the land, and he sat down, and taught the people out of the ship.

4. Now when he had left speaking, he said unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets * for a draught.

* to catch, εἰς ἄγραν.

5. And Simon, answering, said unto him, Master we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing, nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net.

6. And when they had this done, they enclosed a great multitude of fishes, and their net brake.

7. And they beckned unto their partners which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them. And they came and filled both the ships, so that [they began to sink.]

7. Both the boats with the weight of the fish sunk into the water discernibly, and were in danger to be lost.

9. This he spake, not out of a desire to be rid of his company, but out of a great sense of his own unworthiness, and a great dread and amazement wrought in him by the miracle.

10. And so was also James and John the sons of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon, and Jesus said unto Simon, fear not, [from hence forth thou shalt catch men.]

10. Thou shalt be a fisherman no longer, thy trade shall be changed into a more honourable, that of catching, so as to keep alive, and not (as in hunting and fishing, &c. it is ordinary) to kill what is caught by thee; thou shalt catch men, and by so doing, preserve them to all eternity.

11. And when they had brought their ship to land, [they] forsook all and followed him.

17. And it came to pass [on a certain day, * as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem, and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.]

17. On one of those days, besides his customary going out to some privacy for prayer, he spent some time in teaching, or expounding the Scriptures to them; and there were present many Pharisees and doctors of their law, and divers others coming from the parts of Galilee, &c. and he exercised his divine power in healing those that thus came unto him from all parts to that purpose.

36. And he ſpake alſo a parable unto them, [No man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old, if otherwiſe] then both the new maketh a rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new agreeth not with the old.

36. No prudent man putteth a patch of new cloath into an old garment, (ſee Mat. 9.16.) or if he do not obſerve that rule of prudence,

37. And no man putteth new wine into old bottles, elſe the new wine will burſt the bottles and be ſpilled, and the bottles will periſh.

38. But new wine muſt be put into new bottles, and both are preſerved.

39. No man alſo having drunk old wine, ſtreightway deſireth new, for he ſaith, The old is better.

39. It is not beſt immediately to bring men to an auſtere courſe of life, but by degrees, leaſt they fall off upon the ungrateſulneſs of it: for they that have taſted old wine which is the ſmoother, will not willingly leave that for new, which is more harſh (ſee Eccl. 9.10.) the old being ſweeter, more grateful and delightful and agreeable to the ſtomach; and thus it is fit to condeſcend to the weakneſs of men, and not preſently to require of my diſciples the auſterities of faſtings, &c. eſpecially while I am with them, which is rather a time of feſtivity to them, but there will ſoon be a ſeaſon for faſting alſo, ver. 35 &c.

Annotations on Chap. V.

a. Ἀποδάντες. ἀπέπλυναν.

V.2. Gone out of them] Some differences ſeem to be between the ſtory of Chriſt's coming to theſe two boats, &c. here ſet down, from what it had been in S. Matthew. There Peter and Andrew were caſting nets into the ſea or lake, *Mat.*4.18. and James and John were in the ſhip mending their nets, v. 21. but here 'tis ſaid indifferently of them, ἀποβάντες ἀπ' αὐτῶν, having departed from their boats, ἀπέπλυναν τὰ δίκτυα, they waſhed, or had waſhed their nets. So again 'tis ſaid, that Chriſt called Andrew and Peter, and they followed him, *Mat.*4.20. καὶ προελθὼν ἐκεῖθεν, and departing thence he ſaw the other two, and called them, v. 22. whereas here when Peter is called, James and John are with him, *v.*10. and unleſs they were called at the ſame time with Peter, there would be found no other mention of their call, or their following of him. In anſwer to theſe, it muſt firſt be obſerved in general, that Matthew and Mark making a brief ſummary relation, and leaving out a main particular of this ſtory, which Luke takes in, that of the miracle of the fiſhes, and ſetting down no more but his ſeeing and coming to their boats, and his calling them, and their following him, do upon occaſion of his coming firſt to one boat, then to the other, ſet down all that belongs to the one, before they proceed to the other, which is very ordinary in all ſtories, when yet many of the paſſages are intermix'd. This being ſaid, it muſt next (for the reconciling of the firſt ſeeming difference) be obſerved, that what is here ſaid, ἀπέπλυναν in the Aoriſt, muſt be underſtood of the time paſt indefinitely, and be beſt rendred, they had waſhed their nets, & ſo for the ἀποβάντες too, they had gone out and waſhed (that is, they had given over fiſhing at that time) and having done ſo, they were returned to their boats again before this time, when 'tis ſaid of Chriſt, that he ſaw their ſhips ſtanding by the lake, that is, at the point ſpecified here, v. 1. when ſtanding by the lake the people preſs'd upon, upon, or flocked unto him to hear the word. And as this is intimated by St. Luke, *v.*3. (when 'tis said that Christ entred into one of the ships, and desired Simon, the owner of it, to thrust out a little, which notes that he was come back to the boat again) and as this is all that is affirmed by S. Luke in that matter, so it agrees very well with that which is said by St. Matthew; for before this it is, at Christs first coming to the lake, that St. Matthew describes them in another posture, Jesus walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brothers, Simon and Andrew, βάλλοντας, &c. casting a net into the sea, which as it may possibly signify fishing, so it may otherwise be interpreted, not to denote their being actually a fishing at that time (for that is expressed Luke 5.4. by a very different phrase, χαλάσατε τὰ δίκτυα εἰς τὰς ἄγρας, letting down their nets to catch, and that by lanching out, εἰς τὸ βάθος into the deep or midst of the lake) but more probably their washing their nets in the sea, as they were sitting on the shore (and then that will be directly all one with the ἀποπλύνειν washing or scouring of them, which, as now past, is here mentioned by St. Luke) and departing thence, saith S. Matthew, he saw other two brothers, the sons of Zebedee in the ship mending their nets; where, as their mending their nets, was subsequent to the washing of them (and supposes it past, as ἀπέπλυναν they had washed here doth) so it agrees with St. Luke's affirmation, *v.*7. where they are supposed to be ἐν πλοίῳ in the boat. The design of St. Luke in setting down this circumstance of their having gone out of their boats, and washed their nets, was doubtless to intimate, what is after affirmed, *v.*5. that at the time of Christs coming thither, they had despaired of catching any fish, and so had given over for that time, and had set to washing, and after that they in one boat, saith St. Matthew, to mending their nets; which as it is a farther evidence of their resolution to fish no more at that time, so it is an enhancement of the miracle following, of the great draught of fish, which St. Luke sets down at large, but Matthew & Mark did not meddle with. Which order being thus supposed in the first part, the second will follow very agreeably, and all be capable of an exact harmony, by compounding of Matthew and Luke together thus, Jesus walking by the sea of Galilee, at his first coming thither, saw two brothers, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting their net into the sea, Mat. 4.18. that is, washing of it, Luke 5.2. When he had staid a while with them, he went on to another boat, and there he found other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a boat with Zebedee their father, who having newly washed, were now mending their nets, *v.*21. both these precedent to, and so reconcilable with the subsequent passages mention'd Luke 5.2. He saw two ships standing, or abiding, παρὰ τὴν λίμνην, by the lake, that is, at the shore, and the fishermen having gone out of them had washed their nets. And then (upon the peoples pressing about him to hear, Luke 5.1.) follows that passage (not at all related by S. Mat. or St. Mark) that he went into one of the ships or boats, that of Peter *v.*3. and having, contrary to Peter's intention, perswaded him to lanch out and let down the net, εἰς ἄγρας, to try what he could catch, he there wrought that miracle which had like to have drowned the boat, and occasioned the calling in of James and John to their relief, and gave them all an astonishing evidence of his power. Hereupon to remove their fears, Christ saith to Simon here in the end of *v.*10. Fear not, henceforth thou shalt catch men. At which time, I suppose, he called not him only, but all the other three, that had their parts in this miracle; this Matthew sets down first of Peter and Andrew, *v.*19. to whom he saith, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men, and immediately they followed him, v. 2. and then of the other two, v. 22. who also left their nets, and boat, and father, and followed him; which act of their ready following him, S. Luke sets down agreeably, tho' more distinctly, *v.*11. when they had brought their boats to land, they left all & follow'd him, i.e. when the two pair of fishermen, with their two boats, so laden that they were afraid they would sink, had brought them safe to shore, and had this farther evidence of Christs power in delivering them from that danger, being all called, they all obey'd his call, left their trade and goods, and attended him as his disciples ever after. And whereas of his calling the sons of Zebedee, S. Mark interposes, εὐθέως, he saw them mending their nets, and straightway he called them, *Mar.*1.19,20. which seems to place no space or interval betwixt his coming to their boat, and his calling them, that may easily be answered by observing, First, that the word εὐθέως presently is not always taken in that nice sense, to signify immediately, but often is taken in a latitude, and includes a greater interval, then here is supposed to have been; and 2*ly*, that it is not unlikely, that here should be an ὑστέρον in the Period, which will thus be cleared in construction, he straightway called them, and they left their father, that is, as soon as he called them, they immediately left; for so 'tis read in S. Matthew, He call'd them, and they immediately left the boat, &c.

V.30. Their Scribes] Αὐτῶν their or of them, cannot relate to those which went next before, the Publicans, and other guests at the feasts; for if γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν their Scribes, where some of them, they must murmur against themselves. Another way there is to render these words, by joining αὐτῶν to ἐγόγγυζον murmured, thus, the Scribes murmured at them, that is, at Christ, & those that were with him. In this way of interpreting it there will be two difficulties, first, that γογγύζειν, murmuring should be joined with a Genitive case; but that may be salved, by saying that κατὰ is understood, as when *Mat.*10.1. δύναμις πνευμάτων, power of spirits, is power against, or over spirits, and Luke 6. 7. κατηγορίαν αὐτοῦ, an accusation of, that is, against him. The second is, that πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς, ordinarily rendred against his disciples, is immediately joined with ἐγόγγυζον, murmured, which if it stand so, αὐτῶν against them, cannot be joined with it also. The only way to salve that is by altering the ordinary punctation, and reading πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς, to his disciples, joining it to λέγοντες saying, thus, ἐγόγγυζον οἱ γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς λέγοντες, the Scribes and Pharisees murmured at them, saying to his disciples. But there doth not appear any necessity of this, there being yet a third interpretation, which is express'd with no inconvenience, viz. by rendring γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν, the Scribes of them, that is, the Lawyers, &c. of, or among the Jews, inhabitants of that place, which were then present, and so the Pharisees also, as many of that sect as were there present at that time.

CHAP. VI.

Paraphrase.

a. 1. AND it came to pass on the * a second sabbath after the first, that he went thro' the corn fields, and his disciples plucked the ears of corn and did eat, rubbing them in their hands.]

* second prime sabbath.

1. In the morning of the day of Pentecost falling on a sabbath-day, by which conjunction that day became an high sabbath, Christ passed thro' the corn fields which were now full ripe, (this feast of Pentecost being called the feast of harvest, Exod. 23.16.) and his disciples (see Mat. 12. a.) pluckt the ears of corn and eat of it.

2. And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath-days?]

2. And the Pharisees question'd them, saying, Why do you eat before the publick service, which is not to be done on sabbath-days, especially on such days as this, the feast of Pentecost? See note on Mat. 12. a.

3. And

3,4. And Jeſus anſwered for the diſciples, by putting them in mind, what David did in the like caſe, that of hunger, tranſgreſſing the law of holy things, which is in like manner appliable to ſuch tranſgreſſions as theſe on the ſabbath days. See Mat. 12. a.

3. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Have ye not read ſo much as this, what David did when himſelf was an hungred, and they which were with him?
4. How he went into the houſe of God, and did take and eat the ſhew-bread, and gave alſo to them that were with him, which is not lawful to eat but for the prieſts alone.]

5. And he ſaid unto them, that, The ſon of man is Lord alſo of the ſabbath.

6. And it came to paſs alſo on another ſabbath, that he entred into the Synagogue, and taught, and there was a man whoſe right hand was withered.

7. Obſerved him inſidiouſly, and at laſt asked him whether the working a cure on the ſabbath-day were lawful no ? Mat. 12. 10.

7. And the Scribes and Phariſees [watched him, whether he would heal on the ſabbath day] that they might find an accuſation againſt him.

8. Their deſigns of treachery (ſee note on Mat. 15. e.) and yet made no ſcruple to run the hazard, rather then omit the working of that mercy.

8. But he knew their [* thoughts, and ſaid] to the man which had the withered hand, Riſe up and ſtand forth in the midſt: and he aroſe and ſtood forth.

* machinations, διαλογισμους.

9. And therefore ſaid, He that doth not an act of charity when there is need of it, and he can do it, doth commit ſin, and he that then doth not cure deſtroys; I ſhall therefore ask you this queſtion, Which of theſe is the fitteſt employment for a ſabbath day to cure, or kill?

9. Then ſaid Jeſus unto them, I will ask you one thing, Is it lawful on the ſabbath days to do good, or to do evil; to ſave life, or to deſtroy it?

10. And looking round about upon them all, he ſaid unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand; and he did ſo, and his hand was reſtored whole as the other.

11. Senſleſs anger or rage, and conſulted together.

11. And they were filled with [madneſs, and communed one with another] what they might do to Jeſus.

12. At that time, or then, he betook himſelf (ſee note on c. 1. m.) to a mountain to pray, and continued all night in an houſe of prayer, or oratory, uſed to that purpoſe for the ſervice of God, to which men reſorted to pray.

b. 12. And it came to paſs [in thoſe days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night * in b prayer to God.]

* In an Oratory of God.

13. His followers that received the faith, and attended his preaching, and of them he choſe twelve to be conſtant attendants (and theſe were the men to whom after he left his power at his parting from the world, John 20. 21. and gave them commiſſion to plant and rule the Church, and then named them Apoſtles, as Governours ſent by commiſſion by him.)

c. 13. And when it was day he called unto him [his diſciples, and of them he choſe twelve, whom alſo he named c Apoſtles.]

14. Cephas, which in Syriack ſignifies a ſtone.)

14. Simon (whom he alſo named [Peter]) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew,

15. Matthew and Thomas, James the ſon of Alpheus, and Simon called * Zelotes,

* the zelot, ζηλωτὴν.

16. And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iſcariot, which alſo was the traitor.

17. And he came down with them, and ſtood in the plain and the company of his diſciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judea and Jeruſalem, and from the ſea-coaſt of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diſeaſes.

18. That being poſſeſs'd by the devils were brought into any diſeaſe by them.

18. And they [that were vexed with unclean ſpirits] and they were healed.

19. Becauſe by vertue of any bare touch of his, cures were conveyed to all that needed them.

19. And the whole multitude ſought to touch him, [for there went vertue out of him, and healed them all.]

d. 20. Ye lowly humble minded men, and ſuch as can be content to be poor when call'd to it, for you are the men to whom the Goſpel peculiarly belongs.

20. And he lifted up his eyes on his diſciples, and ſaid d Bleſſed are [ye poor, for yours is the kingdom of God.]

21. That in this life have an earneſt deſire after the righteouſneſs which is not attained to perfectly till another: for the time ſhall come wherein ye ſhall be ſatisfied abundantly.

21. Bleſſed are ye [that hunger now, for ye ſhall be filled.] Bleſſed are ye that weep now, for ye ſhall laugh.

e. 22. Excommunicate and anathematize you as notorious offenders. Mat. 5. 11.

22. Bleſſed are ye when men ſhall hate you, and when they ſhall e [ſeparate you from their company, and ſhall reproach you, and caſt out your name as evil] for the ſon of mans ſake.

23. Rejoyce ye in that day, and leap for joy, for behold your reward is great in heaven: for in the like manner did their fathers unto the prophets.

24. The wealth & great proſperities of this world are a ſad preſage to thoſe which do not uſe them Chriſtianly: For all the good things, or matters of comfort that belong to them, they receive in this life.

24. But [wo unto you that are rich, for you have received your conſolation.]

25. All the worldlings preſent plenty will end in famine and miſery, all their jollity in weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.

25. Wo unto you that are full, for ye ſhall hunger. Wo unto you that laugh now, for ye ſhall mourn and weep.]

26. Even a good reputation when it is popular, and general, the univerſal applauſe of the men of this world, is a very ill ſign, and that which hath been generally the falſe, not the true, prophets portion.

26. Wo unto you when all men ſhall ſpeak well of you, for ſo did their fathers to the falſe prophets.]

27. But I ſay unto you which hear, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you.

28. Bleſs them that curſe you, and pray for them which deſpightfully uſe you.

29. And from him that taketh away thy [A upper garment, withhold not thy ſhirt, or inner garment alſo. See Mat. 5. note r.

29. And unto him that ſmiteth thee on the one cheek, offer alſo the other [and him that taketh away thy cloak, forbid not to take thy coat alſo.]

30. Every man that truly wanteth (ſuch is not he that maketh begging his trade, and refuſeth to make uſe of his labour to ſuſtain or reſcue him from want) is the proper object of every mans charity, and therefore no man that is thus qualified to receive, and by asking offers thee an opportunity, is to be rejected by thee; and liberality conſiſting of two branches, giving, and lending freely without intereſt, do thou exerciſe both parts of it towards the poor, give to all diſtreſſed perſons that ask from thee, and from him that wanteth and receiveth any loan from thee, exact no uſe.

f. 30. Give to every man that asketh of thee, and of him that taketh * away thy goods, f ask them not again.]

* taketh thy goods, exact not.

31. And as ye would that men ſhould do to you, do ye alſo to them likewiſe.]

31. If you would think an act of duty or charity from others to you, if you were in their condition and they in yours, be ye careful to do the ſame for them.

32. For

32. For if ye love them which love you [what thank have ye? for ſinners alſo love thoſe that love them.]

32. What thanks or reward can you expect? See 1 Pet. 2. 19. for the very heathens (as publicans, Mat. 5. 46.) are willing to pay kindneſſes to them who have ſhewed them ſome firſt.

33. And if ye do good to them which do good to you, what thank have ye? for [ſinners alſo do even the ſame.

* borrow, δανεισειν †that they may borrow as much, ἵνα λαβωσι τὰ ἴσα. * diſtruſting nothing, and

34. And if ye lend to them, of whom ye hope to * receive, what thank have ye? for [ſinners alſo lend to ſinners, † to receive as much again.]

34. The heathens lend to heathens that at another time they may borrow as great a ſum.

35. But love ye your enemies, and do good, and [lend g * hoping] for nothing again, and your reward ſhall be great, and ye ſhall be the children of the higheſt, for he is kind to the unthankful, and to the evil.]

35. Lend to them to whom your loan may be a ſeaſonable mercy, tho' they be ſo poor, that ye cannot in any probability ever borrow of them at any other time, and never think that this improvident bounty will ever bring any want on you, and this ſhall be a means to make God your pay-maſter, who will do it moſt abundantly, and beſide that, ye ſhall herein imitate God himſelf, who is bountiful to thoſe that make him no returns, yea that provoke him by their ſins. g.

36. Be ye therefore merciful, as your father alſo is merciful.

37. Judge not, and ye ſhall not be judged; condemn not, and ye ſhall not be condemned; for give, and ye ſhall be forgiven.]

37. Mat. 7. 1. Do not accuſe (ſee note on John 12. d.) or interpret other mens words or actions uncharitably, lay not unfavourable cenſures on them, but deal with that candor toward others, as you expect or deſire God ſhould do to you.

38. Give, and it ſhall be given to you, good meaſure, preſſed down, and ſhaken together, and h running over, men ſhall give into your boſom; for with the ſame meaſure that ye meet withal, it ſhall be meaſured to you again.]

38. All your works of mercy and liberality ſhall be moſt abundantly repaid. h.

39. And he ſpake a parable to them] Can the blind lead the blind? ſhall they not both fall into the * ditch?

39. Another parable there was which Chriſt at ſome time uſed, though it ſeem not to have been ſpoken at the time when the former paſſages were delivered. See Mat. 15. 14.

† pit? βόθυνον; ‖ ſhall be perfected, as καταρτισμένος δὲ ἔσται ὡς * ſhiver, ſee Mat. 7. a.

40. The diſciple is not above his maſter, but [every one ‖ that is i perfect ſhall be as his Maſter]

40. Every right true follower of Chriſt will be content to ſuffer what his maſter ſuffers before him, Mat. 10. 25. and that portion he muſt look for.

41. And why beholdeſt thou [the * mote] that is in thy brothers eye, but perceiveſt not the beam that is in thine own eye?

41. Small thin ſhiver of wood.

42. Either how canſt thou ſay to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou thy ſelf beholdeſt not the beam which is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, caſt out firſt the beam that is in thine own eye, and then ſhalt thou ſee clearly to pull out the mote that is in thy brothers eye.

Mat. 7. 4.

43. For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit, neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.]

43. For 'tis not thy ſupercilious finding fault, or judging of others, that will ever denominate thee good, unleſs thine own heart, and practiſes be accordingly.

44. For every tree is known by his own fruit] for of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble-buſh gather they grapes.

44. For every tree is diſcern'd to be good by bringing forth that fruit which is proper to it, good of the kind.

45. A good man out of the good treaſure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good:] and an evil man out of the evil treaſure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is evil. For of the abundance of the heart his mouth ſpeaketh.

45. Every man hath a treaſury or repoſitory within him, from whence all his actions are ſent forth, he that hath an honeſt heart, a repoſitory of good purpoſes and reſolutions, on all occaſions brings forth from thence good actions.

46. And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I ſay?]

46. 'Tis to little purpoſe for you to profeſs Chriſtianity, to expect any good by that profeſſion, unleſs your actions are ſuitable to my commands.

47. Whoſoever cometh to me, and hears my ſayings, and doth them, I will ſhew you to whom he is like.

48. He is like a man which built an houſe and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock, and when the flood aroſe, the ſtream beat vehemently upon that houſe, and could not ſhake it, for it was founded upon a rock.]

47, 48. Every diſciple of mine that obeys my doctrine is compared to a builder, which in laying his foundation, digged till he came to a firm rock, or hard ſtone, & laid his foundation upon that, and he had the benefit of it, no violence of wind, or flood (parallel to which are the moſt boyſterous temptations of the world) could ſhake his building, Mat. 7. 26.

49. But he which heareth and doth not] is like a man that without a foundation built an houſe upon the earth, againſt which the ſtream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell, and the ruine of the houſe was great.

49. But he that finketh down my precepts into his heart.

Annotations on Chap. VI.

a. Δευτεροπρῶτον σάββατον Σαββάτου.

V. 1. Second Sabbath after the firſt] This phraſe δευτεροπρῶτον σάββατον hath been matter of trouble to Interpreters. The moſt probable conjecture concerning it is that of the learned H. Grotius, which I ſhall thus explain and confirm. When any of the ſolemn yearly feaſts fell on the ſabbath-day, that Sabbath had a ſpecial extraordinary reſpect attributed to it, and was called ſometimes μέγα σάββατον, a great Sabbath, and μεγάλη ἡμέρα τῆ σαββάτε, a great day of Sabbath, John 19. 31. Now three of theſe feaſts there were, the Paſſover, Pentecoſt, and the feaſt of Tabernacles. Of theſe feaſts ſome days there were days of holy aſſemblies, קרא מקרא wherein the aſſemblies were called together, as the firſt day of unleavened bread, Lev. 23. 7. and the ſeventh day of it, v. 8. the day of Pentecoſt, Lev. 23. 21. the firſt of the feaſt of Tabernacles, Lev. 23. 35. and the eighth, v. 36. And theſe being days of reſt (as 'tis appointed in every of thoſe places) were a kind of Sabbaths, and diſtinguiſh'd from the other days of the feaſt, and therefore called ἡμέρα μεγάλη, the great day, Iſa. 1. 13. And ἡμέρα μεγάλη τῆ ἑορτῆς, the great day of the feaſt, John 7. 37. And accordingly Tertullian cont. Marcion. l. 5. ſpeaking of the obſervation of days, mentions jejunia & dies magnos, Faſts, and great days. But when any of theſe great days fell on the Sabbath too, then that was not only a great day, but a great Sabbath. Now this great Sabbath was called alſo δευτεροπρῶτον σάββατον, a prime, or firſt Sabbath, (as πρῶτον and μέγα are all one) and conſequently three of theſe prime or great, or firſt Sabbaths there were, 1. when the Paſſover, that is either of the great days of that feaſt, but eſpecially the firſt fell on a Sabbath, and 2*ly*, when the day of Pentecoſt, and 3*ly*, when the great day of the feaſt of Tabernacles fell on a Sabbath day, and theſe prime or great Sabbaths were thus diſtinguiſh'd one from another, the firſt of them called δευτεροπρῶτον σάββατον, the firſt prime Sabbath, i. e. when the firſt day of the feaſt of Paſſover fell upon a Sabbath day. The ſecond, of of them δευτεροπρωτον σαββατον, the ſecond prime ſabbath, that is, the day of Pentecoſt falling on a Sabbath. The third of them πρωτοπρωτον σαββατον, the third prime Sabbath, that is, the great day of the feaſt of Tabernacles falling on a ſabbath, of which Joſephus ſaith, that 'tis then μαλιστα σεμνυνομενον σαββατον, a ſabbath moſt adored or reverenced. By all this appears, that by this phraſe εν σαββατῳ δευτεροπρωτῳ is meant on the day of Pentecoſt falling on a Sabbath at that time. That δευτεροπρωτον ſhould be all one as if it had been δευτερον πρωτον, appears to be according to analogy, by the like uſe of δευτεροδεκατη uſed frequently by Joſephus (not, as 'tis conceived, for the tith of tiths paid by the Levites to the Prieſts, but the ſecond tithing which was ſold, and the price carried up to Jeruſalem, and ſpent in feſtivity there, Tob. 1. 7.) which in Tobit is called δευτερα δεκατη, in two words the ſecond tithing,

b. Προσευχη. V. 12. Prayer] Προσευχη ſignifies an oratory, a place where men are wont to pray, and ſo ſeems to be uſed in ſome places of the Scripture, eſpecially in St. Lukes writings. So Acts 16. 13. ου ενομιζετο προσευχη ειναι, the Syriack read, ubi conſpiciebatur, בית צלותא where a houſe of prayer was ſeen, a praying place by a river ſide, as here on a mountain, ſuch an one there was in Miſpah, 1 Mac. 3. 46. where upon occaſion of the victory gotten by Joſhua in that place, Joſ. 11. 3, 8. they were wont to meet to pray, and to deliberate on any great affair, and there was an altar built by Joſhua, and בית תחצלה an houſe of prayer, or בירת מקורש לתפלרת an houſe conſecrate for prayers, which prayers and conſecration, being both made unto God, it is very agreeable, that thoſe places ſo conſecrated to him, ſhould be called, as here, προσευχαι Θεου, Oratories, or praying houſes of God. Of theſe προσευχαι we find frequent mention in Joſephus, in his own life, the people convened in a προσευχη, as they call it, a houſe of prayer, ample and capacious of great multitudes; and ſpeaking of Tiberias, I found the people convened in a προσευχη, and Epiph. t. 2. l. 3. c. 80. There were ancient places of prayer both among the Jews without the city, and among the Samaritans, as we find, ſaith he, in the Acts of the Apoſtles. Such a place there is in Sichem, which is now called Neapolis, without the city in a plain region. And ſome ſuch place it may ſeem to be wherein Jeſus continued all night in this verſe.

c. Απόστολοι. V. 13. Apoſtles] The title Απόστολοι Apoſtles, which is here by Chriſt ſaid to be given to the Twelve, is a name of power, and dignity, and authority in the Church and how it will ſignify ſo, will deſerve to be explain'd. That the Government of the Church of God was now ſettled on the ſon of man upon earth, that is, upon Chriſt incarnate, had been foretold, Iſa. 9. 6. the government ſhall be upon his ſhoulders, and Iſ. 61. 1. the ſpirit of the Lord God is upon me, becauſe the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings, &c. he hath ſent me to bind up, &c. to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, &c. (ſee Luke 4. 18. 21.) In which place as the anointing, and the Spirit of the Lord being upon him, ſo the ſending is the ſettling the Government upon him. And the ſending is a ſolemn word, noting a Diploma, or Commiſſion, ſealed to him (as it were, by God in heaven) by the Spirits deſcending on him, Mat. 3. 17. and that ſupplied the place of the ſolemn unction (the ceremony of advancing to any office, which is therefore paraphraſed by the Chaldee by רבא exaltation) which was now out of faſhion under the ſecond Temple, and was to be ſupplied by God's teſtimony from Heaven, as to Chriſt it was, and is accordingly ſtiled Gods anointing him with the holy Ghoſt, Acts 10. 38. and ſimply God's anointing, Acts 4. 27. Hence it is, that Chriſt is ſaid to be ſent by his father, John 20. 21. to have power on earth to forgive ſins, Mat. 9. 6. to have all power in heaven and earth delivered to him, Mat. 28. 18. to be the teacher, and Lord of his Church, or Diſciples, John 13. 1. and as the High-prieſt of our Profeſſion, ſo Αποστολος, the Apoſtle, Heb. 3. 1. in the ſame ſenſe as the great Paſtor of his ſheep, Heb. 13. 20. and the only (as Paſtor, ſo) Biſhop of our ſouls, 1 Pet. 2. 25. from whence ſaith Origen on Mat. 24. Propriè Epiſcopus Dominus Jeſus eſt, the Lord Jeſus is properly a Biſhop. Now what was thus conferred on Chriſt, was alſo perſonally exerciſed by him upon earth, whilſt he remained here, he preached the Goſpel, inſtituted rites in his Church to continue for ever, called diſciples, gave them commands, uſed their miniſtry, deſigned ſome to certain offices, ſent out ſeventy, Luke 10. 1. as Heralds, before his face, gave them power to cure diſeaſes, v. 9. and ſo committed to them ſome, tho' but a temparary office, or miſſion, which ceaſed at their return to him, v. 17. On others he reſolved to inſtate a larger and more durable power, to ſend them, as his father had ſent him, to make them his ſucceſſors on earth, but this he did not at this time. He ſent them indeed (the twelve peculiarly) Mat. 10. 5. and that with no ſmall power; power to caſt out unclean ſpirits, v. 1. and to preach, v. 7. and that was the ſum of this miſſion, v. 8. Preach, cure, cleanſe, raiſe, caſt out devils, freely ye have received, freely give, diſpenſe the powers liberally to the advantage of others, which are ſo freely beſtowed on you. Proportionably to this, and that other of the ſeventy, Luke 10. it is to be remembred, that among the Jews, all ſorts of meſſengers are call'd שלוחים Απόστολοι. So Ahiiah, 1 Kings 14. 6. is called σκληρὸς Αποστολος, that is שלח an harſh Apoſtle or meſſenger, of ill news, ſo the twelve ſpies, Num. 13. were ſaid αποστελλεσθαι, to be ſent, to explore the land (and were as it were a ſampler of the twelve that here Chriſt ſends out on the like account) and in the old Teſtament the word is no otherwiſe uſed; among the Talmudiſts 'tis uſed of them that were by the Rulers of the Synagogues ſent out to receive the tenths, and dues that belonged to the Synagogues, ſuch as Philo calls ιερὸπομποι των χρημάτων, ſent for the monies of the Temple, leg. ad Caium, and by the Emperour * Auguſtus, απόδοχεῖς receivers, (and in like manner the meſſengers of the Church that carryed their liberality, or letters congratulatory from one to another, are by Ignatius called θεόδρομοι and θεοπρεσβύται, the divine carriers or embaſſadors) and ſo in the Theodoſian Codex, tit. de Judeis, Apoſtoli, are thoſe that were ſent by the Patriarch at a ſet time to require the gold and ſilver due to them. Of theſe it is obſervable, that when they were thus employ'd, tho' not on any very high employments, and but for a ſhort time, they yet were furniſh'd with letters of Proxy or Attorney, that what they did might be done in the names and perſons of thoſe, from whom they were ſent, and from thence the Axiom is known among the Jews, that every mans Apoſtle is as himſelf, to which Chriſt ſeems to refer, Mat. 10. 14. he that receiveth you, receiveth me, &c. So when Saul was ſent by the Jewiſh Sanhedrim to Damaſcus, Acts 9. he had the letters of the High-prieſt with him, v. 2. And hitherto there is nothing diſcernible in this word Apoſtle that hath any denotation of dignity or government: that muſt be fetch'd from John 20. 21. where Chriſt ſends his diſciples as his father had ſent him, ſends them ſolemnly, and with commiſſion, in that notion of ſending, wherein the Procurator or Proconſul, is ſent to his Province, or wherein Moſes is ſent to the Iſraelites, in Egypt, (ſend by whom thou wilt ſend, ſaith Moſes) or wherein Kings, and Judges, and Saviours are every where in the Old Teſtament ſaid to be ſent, when they are by God advanced to any Government. Thus muſt Chriſt mean of himſelf, that he was ſent by his father, (ſee Mat. 10. 40. & 15. 24. & John 3. 24. & 5. 38. & 6. 57. & 17. 3.) & conſequently thus muſt it be underſtood that they are ſent by Chriſt, and ſo Joh. 17. 11. As thou haſt ſent me into the world, I alſo have ſent them (without referring to the ordinary שלוחים of the Jews the meſſengers of the Patriarchs) and ſo as in the earthly kingdom, the ηγεμονες Rulers, or Procurators (ſuch was Pilate in Judea) which are next the regal authority, are ſaid to be πεμπτοὶ, ſent, 1 Pet. 2. 14. ſo the Apoſtles of Chriſt are ſent alſo in Chriſts ſpiritual kingdom, ſent not before his face, as Miniſters, Diſciples, the Seventy, Luke 10. 1. and generally meſſengers are ſaid to be ſent, but ſent as his ſucceſſors and heirs on earth, endued with that power by commiſſion from him which he here executed. And this is the meaning ing of the word here, which ſeems not as yet to be beſtowed on them by Chriſt, but being after really inſtated on them,'tis here, and *c.*17.5.& 22.14. occaſionally mentioned, and ſo *Mat.*10.2. by way of προλήψις,or anticipation, (as the name Peter is,*Mat.*4.18.) the title that belonged to them at the writing of this. Thus when we read,that the father gave judgment to the ſon, John 5. 22. we read alſo in effect that the Son gives judgment to the Apoſtles,*Mat.*19.28. Luke 22.30. 2*Cor.* 10.6. when the Father gives the Son power to forgive ſins upon earth, *Mat.*10.6. the Son gives power to the Apoſtles to remit ſin on earth alſo, John 20. 23. As the Father gave the keys to the ſon,*Iſa.*22.22. *Rev.*3. 7. ſo the Son gave the keys to the Apoſtles,*Mat.*16.19. as the Father gave the Son to ſit on his Throne,ſo the ſon gave the Apoſtles to ſit with him on thrones,*Mat.*19.28. *Luk.*22.30. As the Father gave the Son to be the foundation or corner-ſtone of the Church,Mat. 21.42. ſo the Son gave the Apoſtles to be foundations upon a foundation, *Eph.*2.20. the foundation of Apoſtles, Chriſt being the chief corner ſtone: And ſo as the Father ſent the Son, John 5.24. & 17.18. ſo the Son ſent the Apoſtles, John 20. 21. And from the dignity of this office it is,that the very Angel,*Rev.*19.20. (whoſe name hath no more in it then Απόστολ⊙ hath, both ſignifying meſſengers or legates) profeſſes himſelf to be but a fellow-ſervant of John and his Brethren, that have the teſtimony of Jeſus; that is, of Apoſtles and Apoſtolick-men. The teſtification of the reſurrection of Chriſt and the Chriſtian faith, to which the Apoſtles were ſent by Chriſt being, as 'tis there ſaid, the ſpirit of prophecy, the moſt honourable office that any mortal can be deſigned to by Chriſt, and there put in compariſon with that joyful news brought them by that Angel, of the Emperors giving up their names unto Chriſt. See more of this word, note on *Jo.*20. b. *Ro.*16. b. & 2 *Cor.*5. c.

d. V.20. Bleſſed are ye] That the Beatitudes here repeated are the ſame which are mentioned *Mat.*5. there is little cauſe of doubting, tho' whether they were but once delivered only in the Sermon in the mount, or whether again repeated in ſome other Sermon to other auditors,it is uncertain. That there is ſome variety in the words, as alſo in ſome other places ſome light differences between this and the other Goſpels, ſeems to be cauſed by St. Luke's writing his Goſpel by ſhort notes,which he had received from thoſe that were preſent, being not an eye-witneſs or ear-witneſs himſelf, (ſee c.1.3. and note on the title of St.Matthews Goſpel.) From whence it follows that theſe words in St. Luke are to be interpreted according to the importance of thoſe in St.Matthew, who ſets them down more fully. And accordingly by the poor here, muſt be underſtood the poor in ſprit there,by the hungry here, thoſe that hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs there,as the words of an Epitome are to be interpreted according to the ſenſe of the entire copy,before it was thus contracted.

Πτωχοὶ Πεινῶντες.

e. V.22. Separate] That the word ἀφορίζειν to ſeparate denotes the firſt ſort of Excommunication among the Jews,there is no doubt,That they are called נדוי Remotion or ſeparation to the diſtance of four paces,for thirty days,and that (tho' not totally yet) in that degree, from civil, and domeſtick,and ſacred commerce, there being a gate into the Temple,call'd, the gate of mourners,by which theſe were to enter,to diſcriminate them from other men. And that Hebrew word cannot be more literally rendred in Greek, then by ἀφορισμός. This did lay a reproach on him that was under it, and therefore that which is here added of ὀνειδίσωσι reproach you,may perhaps be but an appendix, or conſequent of that,but then the ἐκβάλλειν τὸ ὄνομα ὑμῶν ὡς πονηρόν, to caſt out your name as evil ſeems to refer to an higher degree,that of חרם or anathema. For there is an Hebraiſm in that phraſe, the word ὄνομα name ſignifies no more then perſon (ſo many ὀνόματα names, Acts 1.15. is ſo many men) ὄνομα ὑμῶν your perſons,you,& πονηρὸν is ſcandalous, offenſive, as רע is by the Septuagint ſometimes rendred αἰσχύνομαι being aſhamed, ſometimes βδελύσσω to abominate, ſometimes πονηρός εἰμι, to be evil or wicked, *Gen.*34.24. *Eſdr.*4.12. and ſo to caſt out your names as evil,will ſignify to caſt out as wicked, ſhameful, abominable perſons, a denotation of the חרם which was the total caſting out, and that with reproaches, curſes, and execrations added to it,ſuch as in Moſes are denounced againſt the greater malefactors. See more of this matter, note John 9. b.

Ἐκβάλλειν ὄνομα ὡς πονηρόν.

f. V.30. Aſk] What the word ἀπαιτεῖν here ſignifies, will be worth the enquiry, for if it ſignify to require or demand, or aſk again, the Prohibition will be ſomewhat ſtrange, and not ſo agreeable either to the Context,or to the duty of liberality here preſcribed, that any thing but neceſſity ſhould encline us to pitch on that interpretation. For if the ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴροντος τὰ σὰ from him that taketh thy goods, be ſo interpreted,as to underſtand his forcible,or involuntary depriving thee, it will then be a means to offer up the Chriſtian to the violence of every unjuſt perſon, and oblige him never to make uſe of Chriſtian judicatures, or arbitrations (which appear not to be forbidden the Chriſtian,1 Cor. 6.4.7.) to gain his own again, nay not ſo much as to challenge,or make claim to it, when he finds it in anothers hands. Which beſides that it is not agreeable to any other precept of the Goſpel, is not at all pertinent to the buſineſs of Liberality, that uſhers in, and of Charity that immediately attends theſe words. Or if the αἴροντι τὰ σά, he that taketh thy goods be (as no doubt it ought)interpreted of borrowing,or receiving by way of loan,then the not-demanding,or asking them again, makes that loan all one with a gift, and ſo the ſame that had before been ſaid, only an addition of a fraud in him that borroweth,and payeth not again. The ſuter way then of underſtanding theſe words aright which are a double rule for our charity, regulating both our gifts and our loans(both ſpecial charities,and diſtinctly mentioned in the Scripture, *Pſ.*112.5. the good man is merciful,and lendeth,&*Pſ.*37.26. the righteous is ever merciful and lendeth, and Eccl. 29. 1. he that is merciful will lend to his neighbour) will be to obſerve the force of the ἀπαιτῶν among the Greek Tranſlators of the Old Teſtament, particularly in the book of Nehemiah where it frequently occurs for exacting of uſury, and where the Hebrew משא נשאים uſuram exigentes, is rendred ſimply by ἀπαιτῶν to exact, without any Subſtantive added to it, and ſo the Greek noun ἀπαίτησις exacting, ſignifies there the requiring of uſe. So Mat. 4.27. that which is rendred required it moſt probably ſignifies the receiving uſe, the period being beſt rendred thus, As for the money,&c. he put it not into any good courſe, but Soſtratus took the uſe of it, for unto him belonged the managing of the monies. According to which notion the tranſlation here will be very agreeable, and the ſenſe commodious. Ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴροντ⊙, from him that receiveth (not ἁρπαγοῦντ⊙ taketh by force,but as αἴρειν is all one with λαμβάνειν to take or receive) by way of loan, τὰ σὰ, thy goods,μὴ ἀπαίτει, require no uſury of him,lend freely to the poor borrower, without taking, or requiring uſe of him,which being here a precept of charity and mercy from the rich to the poor, may not ſo be interpreted as to bind the poor to do the ſame to the rich, or any to any but the poor, as indeed the every one that asketh,to whom we are commanded to give, is not to be extended to the covetous, craving rich, but to the diſtreſſed deſtitute poor man, and obligeth him that is able, not who is not able to give.

Ἀπαίτει τὰ σά.

g. V. 35. Hoping for nothing again] The ἀπελπίζειν compared with δανίζειν going before, v. 34. may ſeem to ſignify proportionably to that, hoping for a return of kindneſs from him to whom kindneſs hath been ſhewed, and ſo as ἀπέχειν,*v.*24. ſignifies no more then ἔχειν ἀπὸ, to receive. So by Analogy might ἀπελπίζειν be ἐλπίζειν ἀπὸ, to hope from. But the truth is there is not in the Bible any ſuch notion of the word ἀπελπίζω, but the word conſtantly ſignifies to diſtruſt or deſpair; ſo *Eſth.*14.19. Judith 9. 12. Iſa. 29. 19. ἀπηλπισμένοι forlorn perſons, in a deſperate condition. So alſo Eccl. 22.22. μὴ ἀπελπίσῃς, fear not, and ch. 27. 21. ἀπήλπισεν is without hope, and 2 Mac. 9. 18. ἀπηλπίσας deſpairing,and in all the Bible in no other ſenſe but that of diſtruſt or deſpair. And this will very well agree with the context alſo; thus, The heathens give and lend to other men, knowing, that they may want themſelves, and ſo deſigning their preſent act of charity with reflection on themſelves, that they to whom they lend or give may do as much for them at another time, but the Chriſtian is to do his acts of charity without any ſuch purpoſe or deſign of receiving any retribution from man, and yet need not diſtruſt or doubt, or be diſcouraged in his work. For though he loſe that preſent advantage, yet God who is the great rewarder, ἀνταποδότης, the God of recompence, or retributions, (to which the next words refer, your reward ſhall be plentiful, and ſo v. 38. δοθήσεται, it ſhall be given unto you) will not ſee him a loſer by it he may be as confident (thro' the bleſſing of God which is promiſed to an Alms-giver) that he ſhall be never the worſe for any thing he thus gives or lends, as if he had in his view a preſent retribution from him to whom he hath given or lent. To this ſenſe perfectly agreeable is that Apoſtolical ſaying of Barnabas in his Epiſtle, p. 251. μὴ διστάσῃς δοῦναι, οὐδὲ διδοὺς γογγύσεις, πυὶ αἰτοῦντί σε δίδε, doubt not to give, neither murmur when thou giveſt, give to every one that asketh thee, where the before giving, and the γογγύζειν διστάζειν after doubting, and murmuring, make up the full notion of ἀπλατίζειν, diſtruſting, or deſpairing here, and ſeem to be ſet by him, as his way of rendring this ſpeech of Chriſt. In the ſame ſenſe δυσκληρία is uſed in Teles his Commentary of riches and poverty, where ſpeaking of Covetouſneſs, that it permits not men to uſe or communicate their wealth, he adds, Ἐνίων ἡ ἀνελευθερία καὶ δυσκληρία τὰ ὑπάρχοντα πυρεσφράγισται, ſome mens illiberality and diffidence hath ſealed up their poſſeſſions.

* Ap. Stobæ, p. 523.

V. 38. Running over] It being acknowledged that ἐκχύνομαι ſignifies being poured out, 'twill follow that ὑπερεκχύνομαι muſt, by Analogy with other words, ſignify abundantly poured out. So we may meaſure it by ὑπερνικᾶν, and ὑπερπερισσεύω, and ὑπεραυξάνω, and many more in the New Teſtament, and generally the word ὑπὲρ in compoſition is an αὐξητικὸν, to encreaſe and augment the ſignification, and ſo muſt be underſtood in this place, To pour out being a note of plenty, and this, of being more then poured out, of very great abundance. h. Περισσεύομαι.

V. 40. Perfect] What is the full meaning and Grammatical conſtruction of κατηρτισμένος ἔσται ὡς — hath been intimated, note on 2 Cor. 13. c. To it I here add the conſentient judgment of * Epiphanius. A Diſciple, ſaith he, is not above his maſter, ἵνα ὁ καταρτισμένος καλὰ πάντα ὡς ὁ μαθητὴς, ὁ δὲ ἀσκαλος ἀπῶν, τοῦτ' ἔστιν ἕτοιμος εἰς διωγμὸν καὶ κακολογίαν, but let him be made perfect as his own Maſter was (of whom the Apoſtle tells us, Heb. 11. 10. that he was to be made perfect by ſufferings) that is, ready for perſecution, and evil ſpeaking. Κατηρτισμένος ἔσται ὡς — * hær. 10 v. 30. cont. Ebion. verſus finem.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. VII.

1. NOW when he had ended all his ſayings in the audience of the people, he entred into Capernaum.

2. And a certain Centurions ſervant who was dear unto him, was ſick and ready to die.

3. Some of the principal men among, a. 3. And when he heard of Jeſus, he ſent unto him [the Elders of] the Jews, beſeeching him that he would come and heal his ſervant.

4. And when they came to Jeſus, they beſought him inſtantly, ſaying, that he was worthy for whom he ſhould do this.

5. For, ſaid they, he is, though a Roman commander, a great lover of the nation and religion of the Jews, and hath expreſs'd that by an act of ſpecial piety and favour to us. 5. For he loveth our nation, and] he hath built us a ſynagogue.

6. Then Jeſus went with them, and when he was now not far from the houſe, the Centurion ſent friends to him, ſaying unto him, Lord, trouble not thy ſelf, for I am not worthy that thou ſhouldeſt enter under my roof,

7. But inſtead of thy trouble of coming, give but thy command by word of mouth, and I make no doubt but that will cure my ſervant. 7. Wherefore neither thought I my ſelf worthy to come unto thee, [but * ſay in a word, and my ſervant ſhall be healed.] * Speak thou by word, εἰπὲ λόγῳ.

8. Tho' I am but a ſubordinate commander, yet my commands are obey'd by all under me, though given by word of mouth, without my own preſence to ſee them executed. 8. For [I alſo am a man ſet under authority, having under me ſoldiers, and I ſay unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my ſervant Do this, and he doth it.]

9. This heathen officer hath exercis'd a greater act of belief, or faith in my power, then any Jew yet hath done. 9. When Jeſus heard theſe things he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and ſaid unto the people that followed him, I ſay unto you, [I have not found ſo great faith, no not in Iſrael.]

10. And they that were ſent returning to the houſe, found the ſervant whole, that had been ſick.

11. And it came to paſs the day after, that he went into a city called Naim, and many of his diſciples went with him, and much people.

12. And ſhe being a widdow, & by this loſs of her only ſon left deſolate, all the neighbourhood were come to her, to lament and mourn with her, and to attend the funeral. 12. Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only ſon of his mother [and ſhe was a widow, and much people of the city was with her.]

13. And when the Lord ſaw her, he had compaſſion on her, and ſaid unto her, Weep not.

14. And he came and touched the biere (and they that bare him ſtood ſtill) and he ſaid, Young man, I ſay unto thee, Ariſe.

15. Spake, and ſo evidenced himſelf to be reviv'd. 15. And he that was dead ſate up, and [began to ſpeak] and he delivered him to his mother.

16. And they were all aſtoniſhed at this ſight of a wonderful work of God, and as it ſtruck them with awe and dread at his preſence, ſo did they acknowledge with thankſgiving to God. 16. And there came a fear on all, and they glorified God, ſaying,] That a great prophet is riſen up among us, and that God had viſited his people.

11. All Galilee (ſee note on Mat. 4. c.

17. And this rumour of him went forth through all Judea, and throughout [all the * region round about.

* circumambient region, τὴν περίχωρον.

18. And the diſciples of John ſhewed him of all theſe things.

19. The Meſſias expected, (ſee note on Mat. 11. a.) 19. And John calling unto him two of his diſciples ſent them to Jeſus, ſaying, Art thou [he that ſhould come] or look we for another?

20. When the men were come unto him, they ſaid, John Baptiſt hath ſent us unto thee, ſaying, Art thou he that ſhould come, or look we for another?

21. And

21. And in that ſame hour he cured many of their infirmities, and plagues, and of evil ſpirits, and unto many that were blind he gave ſight.

22. Then Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto them, Go your way and tell John what things ye have ſeen and heard, how that the blind ſee, the lame walk, the lepers are cleanſed, the deaf hear, to the poor [the Goſpel is preached.] See Mat. 11. b.

23. And bleſſed is he whoſoever ſhall not be * offended in me. See Mat. 11. c.

* ſcandalized about, or, offended at me, Σκανδαλισθῇ ἐν ἐμοί. 24. And when the meſſengers of John were departed, he began to ſpeak unto the people concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderneſs for to ſee? a reed ſhaken with the wind? Mat. 11. 7.

25. But what went ye out for to ſee? A man cloathed in ſoft rayment? Behold, they which are gorgeouſly apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings courts.

26. But what went ye out for to ſee? a prophet? yea, I ſay unto you, and much more then a prophet.

27. This is he of whom it is written, Behold I ſend my meſſenger before thy face, which ſhall prepare thy way before thee. Mal. 3. 1.

28. For I ſay unto you, among thoſe that are born of women, there is not a greater prophet then John the Baptiſt, but [he that is leaſt in the kingdom of God is greater then he.] 28. Any diſciple of mine, the meaneſt or leaſt of 'em, Mat. 11. 11. is deſigned to a more honourable office then he.

29. And all the people that heard him, and the Publicans, juſtified God, being baptized with the baptiſm of John.] 29. And when this John preached, none but the meaner people, and publicans and the like received Gods meſſage by him, or expreſt their thankfulneſs to God (for this mercy, proclaim'd by him as a fore-runner of Chriſt, viz. pardon upon repentance) and they came in cheerfully to his baptiſm, ſee Mat. 11. 12.

* towards, εἰς. 30. But the phariſees and lawyers rejected the counſel of God * againſt themſelves, being not baptized of him.] 30. But the Phariſees & Doctors of the law, the great and the learned men, they would not repent or make themſelves capable of that mercy, but rejected him (and now reject me) and that proffer of mercy tendred to them.

31. And the Lord ſaid, Whereunto then ſhall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?] 31. Whereupon Chriſt delivered this parable unto them, thereby to expreſs moſt lively the Jews of that age.

32. They are like unto children ſitting in the market-place, and calling one to another, and ſaying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, and ye have not * wept. Mat. 11. 16.

* wailed, ἐκλαύσατε. 33. For John the Baptiſt came [neither eating bread, nor drinking wine, and ye ſay, He hath a devil.] 33. In a ſtrict auſtere courſe of abſtinence, & your cenſure of him is, that he is an hypochondriack, frantick fellow.

34. The ſon of man is come eating and drinking, and ye ſay] Behold a gluttonous man, and a wine bibber, a friend of publicans and ſinners. 34. And I on the other ſide obſerve no ſuch abſtinences, eat meats indifferently, and converſe with men indifferently, and ye cenſure me as ſharply, ſaying,

35. But wiſdom is juſtified of all her children.] 35. See Mat. 11. note h.

36. And one of the Phariſees deſired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Phariſees houſe, and ſat down to meat.

37. And behold, a woman in the city which was [b a ſinner] when ſhe knew that Jeſus ſat at meat in the Phariſees houſe brought * an alabaſter box of oyntment. 37. An heathen, or one that had lived in a ſinful courſe. b.

* a cruiſe, ſee note on Mat. 26. b. 38. And ſtood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to waſh his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kiſſed his feet, and anointed them with the oyntment.] 38. And as he lay along, his feet being behind him that lay next to him, ſhe ſtanding behind him, let fall drops of tears upon his feet, effects of ſorrow and love, and ſtooping down wiped his feet (after that new kind of waſhing them) with no other towel, then that of her own hair, then fell down, and kiſſed his feet, and poured the oyntment upon them (a feſtival ceremony, and an expreſſion in her of great kindneſs.)

39. Now when the Phariſee which had bidden him ſaw it, he ſpake within himſelf, ſaying, This man if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him, for ſhe is a ſinner.

40. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto him, Simon I have ſomewhat to ſay unto thee,] and he ſaith, Maſter, ſay on. 40. And Jeſus knowing the thoughts of his heart, reſolved [to take notice of them, and addreſſing his ſpeech either to the Phariſee whoſe name perhaps was Simon (ſee note b.) or elſe to Simon Peter, ſaid, I will anſwer that objection of the Phariſee by a Parable which will render the reaſon of this womans extraordinary expreſſion of love, and an account why I ſhould be far from rejecting of her.

41. There was a certain creditor, which had two debtors [the one ought him five hundred pence, the other fifty.] 41. The one of a very great, the other of a much leſs (but the tithe of the former) ſum.

*Or, which therefore of them will love him more intirely; for the K's. MS. reads, τίς οὖν αὐτῶν ἐπὶ πλεῖον, &c. 42. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. * Tell me therefore, which of them will love him moſt?

43. Simon anſwered and ſaid, I ſuppoſe that he to whom he forgave moſt. And he ſaid unto him, Thou haſt rightly judged.

44. And he turned unto the woman, and ſaid unto Simon, Seeſt thou this woman? I entred into thy houſe [thou gaveſt me no c water for my feet] but ſhe hath waſhed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the haits of her head. 44. Thou beſtowedſt no feſtival expreſſion of the ordinarieſt ſort upon me. c.

45. Thou gaveſt me no kiſs,] but this woman ſince the time I came in, hath not ceaſed to kiſs my feet. 45. Thou didſt not entertain me at my firſt entring into thy houſe with a kiſs, which is the ordinary ſalutation and expreſſion of kindneſs. me

46. My head with oyl thou didſt not [anoint] but this woman hath anointed my feet with oyntment. 46. See note on Mat. 26. c.

*therefore 47. Wherefore I ſay unto thee, [Her ſins which are many are forgiven, d * for ſhe loved much] but to whom little is forgiven, the ſame loveth little. 47. The greatneſs of the mercy ſhewn to her hath proportionably a far greater expreſſion of gratitude from her. d.

48. And he ſaid unto her, Thy ſins are forgiven.

49. And they that ſat at meat with him began to ſay within themſelves, Who is this that forgiveth ſins alſo? I

50. And he ſaid to the woman [Thy faith hath ſaved thee, go in peace.] 50. This great expreſſion, and theſe affectionate extraordinary acts of thy faith are rewarded with a free pardon of all thy ſins paſt, Go and live as thou oughteſt to do for the reſt of thy life, and Gods favour, and all happineſs go along with thee.

Annotations on Chap. VII.

a. V.3. Sent unto him] A ſeeming difference there is in the ſetting down this relation of the Centurion here from what we find *Mat.*8.5. There the Centurion is ſaid to come unto him, beſeeching him, and ſaying, v.6. and anſwering, v.8. Here he ſent unto him the Elders of the Jews, and they beſought him, and when Jeſus was not far from his houſe, v.6. he ſent friends to him, ſaying, and part of his ſpeech is unreconcileable with his having come unto him himſelf, wherefore neither thought I my ſelf worthy to come unto thee, v.7. rendring a reaſon, why he had not come in perſon to him. This ſeeming difficulty may be anſwered by proportion with that known ſaying of Ariſtotle, ἃ διὰ τῶν φίλων δυνατὰ ἡμῖν δυνατά ἐστι, thoſe things that are poſſible by our friends, are poſſible to us, which ſuppoſes, that thoſe things which we do by others, we are our ſelves thought to do, and ſo what the Centurion did and ſpake here by the Elders of the Jews ſent on purpoſe by him, v.3. and διὰ φίλων, by his friends, ſent again by him, v.6. he may be truly ſaid by St. Matthew to have done, and ſpoken himſelf, eſpecially when (the matter of the ſtory being directly all one in both relations) the Jews have a ſaying, that removes all difficulty, Apoſtolas cujuſque eſt ut quiſque, every man's proxy, or ſolemn meſſenger, is as himſelf, in which notion Chriſt ſpake when he ſaid, *He that receiveth me, receiveth him that ſent me, Mat.*10. 40. and conſequently what is done by a proxy, is done by, himſelf. Thus is Chriſt ſaid to have preached peace to the Epheſians, Eph. 2. 17. which perſonally he did not, but by the Apoſtles, and repentance to the old world, 1 *Pet.*3.19. which he did by Noah; ſo James and John are ſaid to come unto Chriſt, and petition him Mark 10. 35. which Mat. 20.20. their mother is ſaid to do for them. Which notwithſtanding St. Luke willing to add one evidence more of the Centurions humility, from the reaſon of his not going perſonally to Chriſt, chooſes rather to ſet it down exactly, as it was in each circumſtance, then only in brief, yet without all diminution of the matter, as St. Matthew had done.

b. V.37. A ſinner] ἥτις ἦν ἁμαρτωλὸς, which was a ſinner, here apply'd to the woman, may be taken in the notion wherein we find ἁμαρτωλοὶ ἐξ ἐθνῶν, *Gal.*2.15. ſinners of the Gentiles, and to ſignify no more then a Gentile woman. Thus the word ſeemed to ſignify, c.6. 32, & 34. where it is ſaid that ſinners love thoſe that love them, that is, aliens from the law of God or Chriſt (Amicos diligere omnium eſt, ſaith Tertullian, 'tis common to all men to love friends) for which St. Matthew ſets Publicans, c.5.46. who we know are oft joined with ſinners, and for their converſation with the Heathen (from the neceſſity of their office) are look'd upon as a kind of heathens, whether they were ſuch or no, and were moſt of them Gentiles, as 'tis probable, their office being an employment under the Romans, to bring in taxes to them. But 'tis alſo true that Publicans and harlots are put together, *Mat.*21.31. and that ſeems to refer to the baſeneſs and unworthineſs of thoſe two * infamous callings, and then ἁμαρτωλὸς, ſinner, as it is of affinity of ſignification with theſe, may perhaps ſignify one that had been a whore, and that is very reconcileable with the former conjecture, that vice or trade of proſtitute whores being among the Gentiles ſo ordinary; and ſo this woman, if ſhe were a whore, was either a Gentile alſo, or becauſe guilty of that gentile ſin, call'd by this common name of Gentiles, ἁμαρτωλὸς a ſinner. That this woman, whoſoever ſhe was, was not Mary Magdalen, is probable firſt by the no argument on that ſide, but only the mention of the name of Mary in St. John, c.12.3. which preſently ſhall appear to be Martha's and Lazarus's Siſter, and that another ſtory. Secondly, by the words in the chapter here following, c.8.2. where when it is ſaid, that Mary Magdalen was with Chriſt, ſhe is deſcribed by another character, taken from that remarkable mercy wrought on her by Chriſt, that ſhe had 7 devils caſt out of her, the very mark which is again given her, *Mar.*16.9. when 'tis ſaid that Chriſt firſt appeared to her, and no other mention is made of her in any of the Goſpels, but only of her watching where Chriſt was laid after his crucifixion, and her going to the Sepulchre, &c. Chriſt's firſt appearing to her, and her witneſſing his reſurrection. Beſides Mary Magdalen, 'tis evident there was another Mary, the ſiſter of Martha, and Lazarus, *Joh.*12. and ſhe brought a pound of ſpikenard and anointed the feet of Jeſus, and wiped his feet with her hair, as is evident by comparing that paſſage, John 12.3. with John 11.2. where 'tis ſet down of her punctually by way of anticipation, It was Mary which anointed the Lord with oyntment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whoſe brother Lazarus was ſick. And this Mary was not ſhe in this chapter of St. Luke neither. For that ſiſter of Lazarus ſo belov'd of Chriſt will be much injured in her ſtory, if ſhe be made an ἁμαρτωλὸς, whether a whore or Gentile. The ſtory of Mary in St. John is indeed all one with that in Mat. 26.6. and Mar. 14.3. in the houſe of Simon the leper, as appears, 1. by the mention of Bethany, where it was, in all three Goſpels, and that the town of that Mary and Lazarus, who are therefore both of them ſaid to be at the feaſt, Mary as a waiter, Lazarus lying at meat with them, John 12.2. And ſo 2*ly*, by the mention of thoſe two ſpeeches of Chriſt on that occaſion, firſt, that what was done by her was for his embalming, and 2*ly*, that wherever the Goſpel was preached, this fact of that woman ſhould be preached alſo, the former mentioned in all 3 (and ſo likewiſe Judas's murmuring) the latter in two of the Goſpels. But none of all theſe circumſtances belong here to this ſtory in St. Luke. But on the contrary it was in one of the Phariſees houſes, not in Simon the lepers, nor at all, that we have any reaſon to gueſs, in Bethany. And the Phariſee objected againſt Chriſt for this, not Judas, or one of the diſciples, and the objection was not at the unneceſſary expence, as there, but that Chriſt would let a ſinner be ſo kind to him if he knew it, or if he did not, that he was no Prophet. And then the diſcourſe between Chriſt and Simon, occaſioned by this fact of the ſinner woman in Luke (about the creditor and his debtors, and the application of it to the exceſs of this womans love above his, cauſed by the mercy of having many ſins forgiven, which ſhe had received) is far diſtant from that in the other Goſpels of anointing him for his burial, by way of embalming, as it were, which alſo contains another circumſtance in it, that of Maries was immediately before his death, Judas going out immediately upon it to betray him, *Mar.*14.10. *Mat.*16.14. and ſo likewiſe in St. John his death follows ſoon after, but this paſſage in St. Luke hath nothing to do with his death, and is ſet down on another occaſion here by Luke (whenſoever it was acted, as Luke indeed obſerves not the order of ſtory in all his relations) viz. to ſhew that which Chriſt was upon in the former paſſage, that thoſe which had not lived the beſt lives formerly, were more ready to receive the mercies offered by Chriſt then the Phariſees, &c. that had a better opinion of themſelves. All the affinity between theſe ſtories is that of the Alabaſter or cruiſe of oyntment powred upon him, but when that is known to be the ordinary name of a veſſel, that was uſed to that purpoſe (ſee note on *Mat.*26.b.) and that it was very ordinary at Feaſts to uſe oyntment to pour on them, and perfume them (ſee note on Mat. 26. c.) this will be but a poor evidence to prove theſe ſtories to be all one, becauſe many ſeveral feaſts there might be, and were, and this civility uſed in all or many of theſe. And altho' in one particular wherein the ſtory in John differs from the ſame in Matthew and Mark, this in Luke agrees with that in John (which may perſwade ſome that 'tis the ſame ſtory at leaſt, which Luke and John ſet down) as that John mentions not the pouring out the oyntment on the head (as Matthew and Mark do) but only on the feet, which they do not (in both which Luke agrees with him) yet will not this be of

of any force againſt the former arguments, eſpecially when 'tis remembred (what is peculiarly obſerved of St. John's Goſpel, written after, and as a ſupplement of the others) that John finding the mention of the anointing Chriſts head by Mary in the two Goſpels, did not need mention it again, but thought it neceſſary to add all the reſt, which they had not mentioned, of anointing his feet, and wiping them with the hairs of her head, which as it is certain that it was done by Mary, becauſe St. John affirms it, ſo might it alſo at another time be done by another woman, and no wonder at all be in it, nor matter of objection againſt what we have ſaid of theſe being divers ſtories. Nay one obſervable difference there is in this very thing, wherein theſe two Evangeliſts thus ſeem to agree. For St. John ſaith clearly that Mary anointed his feet with the ſpikenard, John 12.3. mentioning no tears, nor any thing but the oyntment, the odour of which ſo filled the houſe: but this ſinner woman in Luke, tho' ſhe brought into the houſe with her her veſſel of oyntment, yet in another kind of addreſs (and that which more became her that remembred her former heathen, or ſinful courſe) ſhe firſt ſtood by his feet behind him weeping, and began to bedew his feet with tears, then wiped off the tears with the hairs of her head, and yet farther kiſſed his feet (all which we find not in St. John) and then anointed his feet with the oyntment, which is the only circumſtance wherein they agree, and ſo it cannot be thought argumentative againſt ſo much to the contrary. And if it be farther granted that this Phariſees name was Simon alſo, but yet was another perſon from Simon the leper (as 'tis ſure enough Simon was a very ordinary name at that time) I cannot foreſee any the leaſt probability againſt the truth of what hath been here obſerved.

c. V.44. Water for my feet] That it was the faſhion of τδως ἐπὶ τὰς πόδας those countries in their entertainments to waſh their gueſts feet before meals, is frequently mentioned in the Old Teſtament. And the ſame was of cuſtom alſo among the Grecians in their more ſplendid extraordinary feaſts, as we find in Atheneus, l. 14. συνελθόντων, εἰς τὸ δεῖπνον, &c. when they come together to dinner, τοῖς εἰσιοῦσι προσφέρουσι ποδάνιπτρα ὕσατι δὲ ἀρωμάτων, They bring out to the gueſts baths for their feet of wine and ſpices.

V.47. For] That ὅτι ſignifies therefore and not for in this place is apparent, not only by the clear impor- d. Om. tance of the parable precedent, where he that had the greater debt forgiven, is ſuppoſed to have greater love and kindneſs to the Creditor, and not therefore forgiven, becauſe he had that love and kindneſs, but alſo by the ſignification of the Hebrew כי which is promiſ- See Pſ. 116. cuouſly taken for ὅτι or διότι for, or therefore, and ſo 10. 2 Cor. 4. (by an obſervation before mentioned, note on Mark 13. Eccl. 14. f.) according to the practice of theſe writers, one 8. 6. of theſe Greek words may be taken for the other, ὅτι, for uſed when the ſame ſenſe bears διότι therefore. And ſo Mar. 9.28. the ſame ὅτι clearly ſignifies διὰ τί for what cauſe or why? Interrogatively. And ſo, I conceive, on the other ſide Rom. 5.12. διὰ τοῦτο is ſet when the ſenſe carries it ὅτι, not therefore but for, that verſe being the proof of the former, not proved by it; and ſo Heb. 11. 23. διότι therefore is uſed for ὅτι for, or becauſe; Διότι. Moſes was hidden by his parents, διότι becauſe he was a comely child; ſo Jam. 4. 3. διότι κακῶς αἰτεῖσθε, becauſe ye ask amiſs; ſo the Hebrew לכן alſo ſignifies both quia and ideo, and Eccl. 31.15. is rendred διὰ τοῦτο wherefore when it ſhould be ὅτι for, and 1 Pet. 1.24. διότι wherefore is put for ὅτι for. But as a more direct example of ὅτι wherefore, I ſuppoſe one place in St. John to be worth obſerving, John 14.17. where Chriſt having upon condition of their loving and obeying him, promiſed the Comforter or Paraclete to the diſciples, v. 15. 16 that he might abide with them for ever, he ſaith of him, that worldly men cannot receive him, becauſe they neither ſee nor know him, but, ſaith he, ye know him, ὅτι παρ' ὑμῖν μένει, καὶ ἐν ὑμῖν ἔσται, which in all reaſon is to be ſo rendred, that it may be the effect or conſequent, not as the cauſe or antecedent of the former, as the coming and abiding of the Paraclete was before mentioned as the conſequent and reward of their loving and obeying, and not as the cauſe of that. And then the ὅτι muſt beat the ſame ſenſe exactly, which here we affix to it, therefore, or for this cauſe (as if it were διότι or διὰ τοῦτο) he remaineth with you, and ſhall be in, or among you.

CHAP. VIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND it came to paſs afterward, that he went throughout every city and village preaching and ſhewing the glad tidings of [the kingdom of God] and the twelve were with him.

1. The doctrine of Chriſtianity, and the reformation which God now expected and required to be wrought among this people, or elſe he would ſend Judgments on them.

2. And certain women which had been healed of evil ſpirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom [went ſeven devils,]

2. Seven devils had been caſt out.

3. And Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herods ſteward, and Suſanna, and many others, which [a miniſtred unto him of their ſubſtance.]

3. Had ſupplied him with neceſſaries out of their own poſſeſſions.

4. And when much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city, he ſpake by a parable.

See Mat. 13. 3.

5. A ſower went out to ſow his ſeed, and as he ſowed ſome fell by the way-ſide, and it was trodden down, and the fouls of the air devoured it.

6. And ſome fell upon a rock, and as ſoon as it was ſprang up, it withered away, becauſe it lacked moiſture.

7. And ſome fell among thorns, and the thorns ſprang up with it, and choaked it.

8. And ſome fell on good ground, and ſprang up and bare fruit an hundred fold. And when he ſaid theſe things, he cried, He that hath ears to hear let him hear.

9. And his diſciples aſked him, ſaying, [What might this parable be?]

9. What is the meaning of this parable?

10. And he ſaid, Unto you it is given to know the myſteries of [the kingdom of God, but to others in parables, that ſeeing they might not ſee, and hearing they might not underſtand.

10. Chriſtian doctrine, but to others I ſpake in parables, that that prophecy of Iſaias might be fulfilled on them, which ſaid, Hearing ye ſhall hear and not underſtand, and ſeeing ye ſhall ſee and not perceive, God denying them thoſe more clear means, and allowing them none but parables, as a puniſhment of their former obduration againſt his Means. See Mat. 13. 14.

11. Now the parable is this, The ſeed is the word of God.

12. Thoſe by the way-ſide are they that hear: then cometh the devil and taketh away the word out of their hearts, leſt they ſhould believe and be ſaved.]

12. They that receive the word, parallel to the ſeed ſown by the path or way, are thoſe hearers which receive it ſo little way into their hearts, that the devils comes preſently and picks it up, as birds do corn, and ſo they are never the better for it.

13. They on the rock are they which when they hear, receive the word with joy, and theſe have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.

See Mat. 13. 20.

14. And

14. And that which fell among thorns, are they which when they have heard, go forth, and [are choaked with cares and riches, and pleaſures of this life, and bring no b fruit to perfection.]

14. Are choaked by the deceitfulneſs of riches, and pleaſures, and the cares of this world, and do not perſevere till time of bringing forth ripe fruit, that is, 'till harveſt fall off after ſome few Chriſtian performances.

b. the but-ish

15. But that on the good ground are they which in an honeſt and good heart, having heard the word keep it, and [bring forth fruit with * patience.]

15. Continue in all chriſtian practice, and never fall off again.

ish

16. No man when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a veſſel, or putteth it under a bed, but ſetteth it on a candleſtick, that they which enter in may ſee the light.

* perſeverance, ὑπομονῆς.

17. For nothing is ſecret that ſhall not be made manifeſt, neither any thing hid, that ſhall not be known and come abroad.]

17. For 'tis not Gods will that any talent ſhould be laid up uſeleſs and unprofitable. Mat. 10. 26. Mar. 4. 22.

18. Take heed therefore, how ye hear, for whoſoever hath, to him ſhall be given, and whoſoever hath not, from him ſhall be taken even that which he ſeemeth to have.]

18. See therefore that you receive profit by what you hear: for to him that employs his preſent ſtock, ſhall more be given, But from him which doth not ſo, even that which hath formerly been given him, ſhall be taken away again, Mat. 13. 12.

19. Then came to him his mother and his [brethren] and could not come at him for the preſs.

19. Kindred hear unto him, Mat. 12. 46.

20. And it was told him by certain which ſaid, Thy mother and thy brethren ſtand without, deſiring to [ſee thee.]

20. Speak with thee.

21. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, My mother and my brethren are theſe which hear the word of God and do it.

Mat. 12. 50.

22. Now it came to paſs on a certain day, that he went into a ſhip with his diſciples, and he ſaid unto them, Let us go over unto the other ſide of the lake, and they launched forth.

Mat. 8. 23.

23. But as they ſailed he fell aſleep, and there came down a ſtorm of wind on the c lake, and [they were filled with water] and were in jeopardy.

23. Their boat was filled with water

c.

24. And they came to him and awoke him, ſaying, Maſter, Maſter, we periſh. Then he aroſe and [rebuked the wind and the raging of the water, and] they ceaſed, and there was a calm.

24. Commanded the wind to ceaſe, & the waves of the ſea not to move ſo turbulently, and accordingly

25. And he ſaid unto them, Where is your faith? and they being afraid wondered, ſaying one to another, What manner of man is this? for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

26. And they arrived at the countrey of the Gadarens, which is over againſt Galilee.

See Mat. 8. 28.

27. And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time, and ware no cloaths, neither abode in any houſe but in the tombs.

28. When he ſaw Jeſus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice ſaid, What have I to do with thee, Jeſus thou ſon of God moſt high? I beſeech thee [torment me not.]

28. Let me alone to continue where I am, and do not before my time caſt me into the place of torments, the pit of hell, v. 31. See Mar. 5. note b.

29. (For he had commanded the unclean ſpirit to come out of the man; for oftentimes [it had caught him, and] he was kept bound with chains and with fetters, and he brake the bands, and he was driven of the devil into the wilderneſs.)

29. The devil poſſeſt him & put him into a kind of raving fit, which made him very unruly, and thereupon Mat. 5. 9.

30. And Jeſus asked him, ſaying, What is thy name? and he ſaid, Legion, becauſe many devils were entred into him.

31. And they beſought him that he would not [command them to go out into the d deep.]

31. Caſt them into the pit of hell.

d.

32. And there was there a herd of many ſwine feeding on the mountains, and they beſought him that he would ſuffer them to enter into them: [and he ſuffered them.]

32. And to ſhew the people the deſtructive power of this Legion of devils, if not reſtrained by his omnipotent goodneſs, and ſo to let them ſee the great benefits that were now come to them, if they would receive and believe in Chriſt, he did permit (or not reſtrain) them to do what they ſo much deſired, to enter into the ſwine. See Mat. 5. 13.

α

33. Then went the devils out of the man, and entred into the ſwine, and the herd ran violently down a ſteep place into the lake, and were choaked.

34. When they that fed them ſaw what was done, they fled, and went and told it in the city, and in the [country.]

34. Villages in the country.

35. Then they went out to ſee what was done, and came to Jeſus, and found the man out of whom the devils were departed ſitting at the feet of Jeſus, cloathed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36. They alſo which ſaw it told him by what means he that was poſſeſſed of the devils was healed.

37. Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarens round about beſought him to depart from them; for they were taken with great fear; and he went up into the ſhip, and returned back again.

38. Now the man, out of whom the devils were departed, beſought him that he might [be with him] but Jeſus ſent him away, ſaying,

38. Be one of his conſtant attendants or diſciples.

39. Return to thine own houſe, and ſhew how great things God hath done for thee. And he went his way, and publiſhed throughout the whole city, how great things Jeſus had done unto him.

40. And it came to paſs that when Jeſus was returned, [the people gladly received him] for they were all waiting for him.

40. The people of the place were very much joy'd at his coming,

See note on Mat. 5. c.

41. And behold there came a man named Jairus, and he was [a ruler of the ſynagogue] and he fell down at Jeſus feet, and beſought him that he would come into his houſe.

42. For he had one only daughter about twelve years of age, and [ſhe * lay a dying] But as he went, the people thronged him.

42. She was by him left ready to die, but by this time that he came to Chriſt, actually dead, Mat. 9. 18. (tho' that was not certainly known by him, till v. 49.)

* was dead, ἀπέθνησκεν,

43. And

† a flux, see Mar. 5. note d.

43. And a woman having † an iſſue of blood twelve years, which had ſpent all her living upon Phyſicians, neither could be healed of any,

44. Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment, and immediately her iſſue of blood ſtanched.

45. And Jeſus ſaid who touched me? When all denied, Peter and they that were with him, ſaid, Maſter, the multitude throng thee and preſs thee, and ſayeſt thou, Who touched me?

46. And Jeſus ſaid, Some body hath touched me: for I [perceive that vertue is gone out of me.]

46. Know ſome cure hath been wrought by the touching of me.

47. And when the woman ſaw that ſhe was not hid, ſhe came trembling and falling down before him, ſhe declared unto him before all the people, for what cauſe ſhe had touched him, and how ſhe was healed immediately.

48. And he ſaid unto her, Daughter be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole, go in peace.

49. While he yet ſpake, there cometh one [from the ruler of the ſynagogues houſe, ſaying to him, Thy daughter is dead, trouble not the maſter.]

49. From the houſe of Jairus (v. 41.) which brought him word that his daughter ſhe was already dead.

was dead, and therefore he ſhould not put Chriſt to the trouble to come down to work a cure; when

50. But when Jeſus heard it, he anſwered him, ſaying, Fear not, believe only, and ſhe ſhall be made whole.

51. And when he came into the houſe, he ſuffered no man to go in, ſave Peter, and James and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

52. And all wept and bewailed her: but he ſaid] Weep not, ſhe is not dead, but ſleepeth.

41, 52. And coming into the houſe where there was already a great company of neighbours gather'd together, weeping & bewailing the deceaſed, he ſuffered none of thoſe that came with him to go in, ſave Peter, &c. And ſeeing the company within lamenting her death, he comforted them, ſaying,

53. And they laughed him to ſcorn, knowing that ſhe was dead.

54. And he put [them all] out, and took her by the hand, and called, ſaying, Maid, ariſe.

54. All thoſe that were there lamenting,

55. And her ſpirit came again, and ſhe aroſe ſtraightway, and [he commanded to give her meat.]

55. That they might perceive that ſhe was really revived and not only in appearance, and withal to refreſh her, he commanded them that were in the houſe to ſet ſome food before her.

56. And her parents were aſtoniſhed, but he charged them that they ſhould tell no man what was done.

Annotations on Chap. VIII.

3. Διακονεῖν.

V. 3. Miniſtred] The true notion of the word διακονεῖν ſo often uſed in the Scripture will be worth conſidering a while, for the right underſtanding of all places where 'tis uſed. And 1. It is ſufficiently known to belong unto, and to be frequently taken in general for any kind of ſervice or miniſtry. Such was that of diſciples, who waited, attended on the Prophets, did their ſervile offices (ſee Mat. 3. h.) and accordingly διάκονος is taken for ſuch a diſciple, John 12. 26. compared with Luke 6. 40. Mat. 10. 25. But omitting this ordinary notion, the beſt riſe will be by conſidering the word διάκονοι and διακονεῖν, as it refers to that one particular office of ſervants, that of waiting at feaſts. Thus Lucian in his Cronoſol. among the leges convivales mentions this, Οἱ διάκονοι πρὸς χάριν μηδενὶ μηδέν, Let the waiters do nothing out of favour, or partiality, to any: where διάκονοι are thoſe that in feaſts diſtribute the μοιρὰς, or portions, to each gueſt, as it follows there, μηδὲ τῷ μετὰ ὀ μηρὸς, τῷ δὲ ἡ γνάθος συὸς, ἀλλ' ἰσότης ἅπασιν, not to one a larger or better, to another a meaner or leſſer piece, but equality in all. For this we find among thoſe rites or cuſtoms of feaſts, that the διάκονοι diſtributed the portions, firſt to the maſter of the feaſt, and then to the gueſts, each of them in order, either according to the direction of the ἀρχιτρίκλινος, or the orderer of the feaſt, or as they pleaſed themſelves, when he did not direct, only according to that rule of equality, that they ſhould not τῷ μὲν μεγάλα, τῷ δὲ κομιδῇ μικρὰ παρεμβιβάζεσθαι, give one a great, another a very little portion. This we find in Lucian, both in his Cronoſol, and Epiſt. Saturn. and ſpeaking of unjuſt officers, he ſaith, ἐσχομισθένηος συὸς οἰκέτης διανέμων τῷ μὲν δεσπότῃ παρεμβιβάσει τὸ ἡμίτομον ὅλον σὺν τῇ κεφαλῇ, τοῖς δὲ ἄλλοις ὀστᾶ φέρει ἐγκεκλυμμένα, in the diviſion of a ſwine the ſervant gives his maſter half of it with the head, and to the reſt a few bones. Agreeable to this cuſtom of the διάκονοι giving to every man his portion, is that of our Saviour, Luke 12. 37. ſpeaking of a maſter that entertains his ſervants, περιζώσεται καὶ ἀνακλινεῖ αὐτοὺς, καὶ παρελθὼν διακονήσει, he ſhall gird himſelf like a ſervant, and make them lie down, and paſſing from one to another ſhall diſtribute to every man his portion; a parallel to which we have in * Lucian ὅταν τὸς οἰκέτας ὁ πλούσιος ἐυωχῇ διακονῶν, καὶ οἱ φίλοι λοιὸς αὐτῷ, when a rich man entertains his ſervants, and miniſters to them, he and his friends with him. This, as was now intimated, belonged primarily to the ἀρχιτρίκλινος, or οἰκονόμος τρυφῶν, the governour, or orderer of the feaſt, and thus we read of Chriſt, when he entertained the multitudes, he acted the part of the ἀρχιτρίκλινος, and εὐχαριστήσας ἔδωκε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ τοῖς ὄχλοις, when he had given thanks, he gave to his diſciples, as the œconomus to the waiters, and they to the multitudes, to every man ſingle his portion. So that ſtill the office of the διάκονος is to diſtribute the νομαὶ or μερίδες, though the œconomus break or divide them, ſo that that ſaying of Chriſt, Mat. 20. 28. and, in the ſame words almoſt, Mar. 10. 45. may juſtly be underſtood of this cuſtom, and this uſe of the word διακονεῖν, Ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἦλθε διακονηθῆναι, ἀλλὰ διακονῆσαι, The ſon of man came not that others might miniſter to him, or diſtribute favours, or ſhew kindneſs to him, but he to diſtribute to them, and as it follows, δοῦναι τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ λύτρον ἀντὶ πολλῶν, to diſtribute that great gift among his diſciples and all mankind, his life for the redemption of the world. Neither is this interpretation reſiſted or made leſs probable by that which went before, οὐχ οὕτως ἔσται ἐν ὑμῖν, &c. but it ſhall not be ſo among you, but he that will become great among you, let him be your miniſter, and he that will be firſt, let him be your ſervant; as if the words belonged only to the humility required by Chriſt of Chriſtian Governours: for there be two things there ſpoken of by Chriſt, concerning the heathen Rulers (to which the Chriſtian are oppoſed) one that they do κατακυριεύειν, uſe their ſervants as Lords, and owners of them, as of a poſſeſſion, (as ſervants were reckoned by them among their κτήματα, their wealth or riches) and ſo reap fruit and profit by their labours, which * Xenophon calls ὠφελεῖσθαι ὑπ' αὐτῶν, to be profited by them; the 2d, that they do κατεξουσιάζειν, exerciſe diſpotical power over them. To which two Chriſt here oppoſes theſe two other duties of a Chriſtian governour in his Church; 1. that he ſhall be beneficial or profitable to thoſe that are under him; 2ly, that he ſhall be humble toward them; and the firſt first of these is here meant by διάκονον ᾖδειν, being a minister, as the second by δοῦλον ᾖδειν, being a servant, and therefore Christ returns and speaks farther to that, The son of man came not διακονηθῆναι to be ministred unto, but διακονῆσαι to minister, and what that is he farther expresses, καὶ δοῦναι, and to give his life, &c. From this festival custom set down in all the parts, John 2. 9. (where there is beside the νυμφίος or master of the feast, ἀρχιτρίκλινος the divider of the meats and wine, and again the διάκονοι, v. 5. which distribute and carry it, being divided to each guest) we may clearly fetch the office of the first deacons in the church, who were to distribute to the poor, as every one had need under the Apostles, as the œconomi or chief dispensers, and to take off that toyl from them, and so in like manner at the administration of the Eucharist to be ministerial to the πρεσβύτερος the Bishop, or Prefect, and distribute that wine and bread which he had consecrated. See * Justin Martyr, Apol. 2. But to the former of these, that of distributing to the poor, the word διακονία, ministring, in Scripture peculiarly belongs, and so still makes good that notion which we now take it in. So Acts 11. 29. εἰς διακονίαν πέμψαι, to send some relief to be distributed to them that want, and Acts 12. 25. and 2 Cor. 8. 4. κοινωνία ἡ διακονίας εἰς τοὺς ἁγίους, the liberality of distribution to the saints. So 1 Pet. 4. 10. where speaking of hospitality, he bids them διακονεῖν dispense or distribute, that is, give, and again, v. 12. εἴ τις διακονεῖ, if any man exercise liberality to the poor; so the διακονία καθημερινὴ, Acts 6. the daily distribution to the poor widows, or, as the fixteenth Canon of the Council in Trullo interprets the place, ἡ ἐν ταῖς χήραις τραπεζῶν ἱερουργία, the dispensing of necessaries at their tables, and therefore Zonaras on that Canon explains it by οἰκονόμοι τροφῶν, dispensers of meat, (meaning, I suppose, under the chief œconomus or steward) rather the distributors of it. Thus in * Julian, speaking of the Galileans, as he stiles the Christians, you shall find, saith he, ἡ λεγομένη παρ' αὐτοῖς ἀγάπη, καὶ ξενοδοχία, καὶ διακονίαν τραπεζῶν, their feasts of love and entertainments, and distribution at tables, by which, saith he, they allured many to their religion. So in Procopius's scholia on 1 Sam. 9. there is mention ἀποστόλων διακονουμένων, which sure is ill rendred Apostolorum ministrantium, of the Apostles that ministred, and should be rendred in the passive sense, administratione or liberalitate aliorum utentium, they that were ministred to, for so he adds out of St. Paul, δὶς εἰς τὴν χρείαν μοι ἐπέμψατε, you sent twice to my wants. I shall need to add no more to this, but only that what some did διακονεῖν distribute or dispense, only as instruments, or officers, or ministers of others liberality, that also some did out of their own estates, and so here these women did, ἐκ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων αὐταῖς, out of their own goods. So I suppose Onesiphorus, 2 Tim. 1. 18. So Phœbe, Rom. 16. 1. διάκονον ἐκκλησίας τῆς ἐν Κεγχρεαῖς, the minister of the Church in Cenchrea, who is therefore called προστάτις (or προστάτης) πολλῶν, that is, πρόξενος (ξενίας ἐπιμελούμενος, ἤγουν τοὺς ξένους ὑποδεχόμενος, saith Hesychius) an entertainer, and succourer of many, and of Paul himself. It is a military word of soldiers relieving, and defending and rescuing one another, which is προΐστασθαι, and a work of mercy. And he that exerciseth it, is called indifferently προστάτης, ὑπερασπιστὴς, παραστάτης (see Rom. 16. 2.) So in * Demosthenes, Τὸν περιεστάμενον ἐπ' ἀποστερήσει τῶν ἐμῶν Ἀφόβου, who help'd Aphobus to defraud me. And in Strabo. ψευδεῖς περίστασις δόγματος, be maintained, defended a false opinion, and many the like. And this Phœbe thus called, and such as she, were the ἀδελφαὶ sisters, or Christian women, that accompanied the Apostles in their travels, and provided for them, that they might preach, and not be put to earn their livings with their hands, 1 Cor. 9. 5. Of the word διάκονος, see note on Phil. 1. c.

V. 14. Bring no fruit to perfection] The word τελεσφορεῖν here, is best explained by Hesychius, καθ' ὥραν τὸς καρπὸς, ἢ τελείως αὐτὸς φέρειν, to bring forth fruits in the season, or perfect fruits. Phavorinus εἰλικρινῶς ἄγειν, to bring forth perfectly. Josephus uses it of women that go their full time, that do not miscarry or bring forth abortives; and so it here belongs to that corn that prospers, and thrives, and comes on well, and continues till harvest, and miscarries not by any defect of the soyl, or other ill accident.

V. 23. The lake] That which is here truly called λίμνη (for so it was, the lake (and not the sea) of Genesareth, c. 5. 1.) is called θάλασσα, the sea, Mat. 8. 24. and θάλασσα Γαλιλαίας, the sea of Galilee, Mat. 4. 18. and John 6. 1. θάλασσα τῆς Γαλιλαίας τῆς Τιβεριάδος, and c. 21. 1. θάλασσα τῆς Τιβεριάδος, the sea of Tiberias. And all this, not because it was a sea, but because of the ambiguity of the Hebrew ים which, as it signifies the sea, so also any lake or confluence of waters, and is used for that great vessel in the Temple, 1 Kings 7. 23. which being of such a largeness (30 cubits round, and 5 cubits high, and containing 2000 baths) was a kind of lake, and is there so called, a molten lake, the Hebrew ים being there used, and by us rendred sea, but would be more properly lake. And so likewise the word θάλασσα in the other Gospels would be better, according to the sense, rendred lake also, the lake of Galilee, and Tiberias. See Lyra on Gen. 1. 10.

V. 31. The deep] That ἄβυσσος should here signify the pit of hell, the place created for the devil and his angels, wheresoever it is situate, may be guess'd by the nature of the word, which signifies bottomless, and from the use of it in some other places of the New Testament, as Rev. 9. 1, 2. and 11. 7. and 17. 8. and 20. 1, 3. where there is mention of chains, as there is of tartarum, 2 Pet. 2. 4. And so also the context here inclines it, for the first request of the devil to Christ was, v. 28. I beseech thee torment me not, and in the other Gospel, Mat. 8. 29. Art thou come to torment me before my time? expressing the devils fear, that by this coming of Christ he should presently be cast into his chains of hell (see note on Mark 5. b.) and confined to those torments, which he thought belong'd not to him till the day of judgment, and the next was in plain words, not to send him into hell, or the pit.

CHAP. IX.

1. And to qualify them for their office, he gave them power to cast out devils out of those that were possess'd with them.

1. THen he called his twelve disciples together, [and gave them power and authority over all devils] and to cure diseases.

2. And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick.

3. Make no provision for your journey, nor take with you so much as a staff to guard you by the way, see Mat. 10. c.

3. And he said unto them, [Take nothing for your journey, neither staves] nor scrip, neither bread, neither money, neither have two coats apiece.

4. As long as you remain in that city, Mat. 10. 11.

4. and whatsoever house ye enter into [there abide] and thence depart.

5. By that means to testify to them and others, that ye have been with them, and have not been received, but unworthily rejected by them, and accordingly to express to them, what is likely to befal them. Mat. 10. 14.

5. And whosoever will not receive you, when ye go out from that city, shake off the very dust from your feet [for a testimony against them.]

6. And they departed, and went through the towns preaching the Gospel, and healing every where.

7. Now

7. Now Herod the Tetrarch heard of all that was done by [him, and he was perplexed, becauſe that it was ſaid of ſome, that John was riſen from the dead.
ſome ſaid, that it was John Baptiſt riſen from the dead, who having been killed by him, he feared he would now work ſome eminent revenge on him for it.

7. Chriſt, and he did not know what to think, becauſe

8. And of ſome, that Elias had [a] appeared] and of others, that one of the old Prophets was riſen again.

9. And Herod ſaid, John have I beheaded, but who is this of whom I hear ſuch things? and he deſired to ſee him.

10. And the Apoſtles when they were returned, told him all that they had done, and he took them, and went aſide privately into a deſart place [belonging to the city called Bethſaida.]

10. Within the territory of Bethſaida.

11. And the people when they knew it followed him: and he received them, and [ſpake unto them of the kingdom of God] and healed them that had need of healing.

11. Preach'd the Goſpel to them.

12. And when the day began to wear away, then came the twelve and ſaid unto him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the country and towns round about, and [† [b] lodge] and get victuals, for we are here in a deſart place.

14. See note on Mar. 6. e. and Mat. 8. g.

15. And they did ſo, and made them all ſit down.

16. Then he took the five loaves and the two fiſhes, and looking up to heaven, he bleſſed them, and brake, and gave to the diſciples [to ſet before the multitude:]

Of all which and the ſeveral branches and conſequents of it Jeruſalem was ſhortly to be the ſcene, and firſt of his crucifixion there.

32. But Peter and they that were with him were heavy with ſleep, and when they were awake they ſaw his glory, and the two men which ſtood with him.

33. And it came to paſs, as they departed from him] Peter ſaid unto Jeſus, Maſter, it is good for us to be here, and let us make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moſes, and one for Elias, not knowing what he ſaid.

33. And as Moſes and Elias were parting from Chriſt, Mat. 17. 14.

34. And they were amazed with fear, as the cloud came ſo near to him.

35. And there came a voice out of the cloud, ſaying, This is my beloved ſon, hear him,

† And as the voice was, or was heard, Καὶ ἐν τῷ γενέσθαι τὴν φωνὴν.

36. † And when the voice was paſt [Jeſus was found alone: and they kept it cloſe, and told no man in thoſe days any of thoſe things which they had ſeen.]
Chriſt commanded them to tell no man what they ſaw, till after his riſing from the dead, Mat. 17. 9. and they obeyed his command, and did accordingly.

36. Moſes and Elias were departed from Jeſus. And

37. And it came to paſs, that on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met him.

37. Mat. 17. 15.

38. And behold, a man of the company cryed out, ſaying, Maſter, I beſeech thee, look upon my ſon, for he is my only child.

39. And lo [a ſpirit taketh him, and he ſuddenly cryeth out, and * it teareth him that he foameth again, and bruiſing him hardly departeth from him.]

39. A ſore affection ſeizeth upon him at certain times of the moon, and makes him cry out, and it cauſeth ſuch a boiling and agitation within (ſee note on Mar. 9. c.) that he foams at mouth, and it never departeth from him without great pain and agony: this coming to himſelf again (tho' when it firſt takes him, it makes him ſenſeleſs, Mar. 9. 25. able neither to ſpeak nor hear) is joyned with an horrible torment, and many grievous bruiſes remain afterward. See note on Mat. 17. c.

40. And I beſought thy diſciples to caſt him out, and they could not.]

40. And I earneſtly intreated thy diſciples, that went about doing miracles, v. 6. to cure him of this Epilepſy, and they were not able.

41. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid, O faithleſs and perverſe generation, how long ſhall I be with you and ſuffer you?] Bring thy ſon hither.

41. And Jeſus ſaid to his diſciples, what In act of perverſe infidelity, not of weakneſs, is this in you? will my preſence ſo long, and the power given you by me, v. 1. work no better effects upon you? you will make your ſelves unworthy of ſuch favours by your not making uſe of them, ſee Mat. 17. 21. and Mar. 9. 28. Having thus reprehended his diſciples, he ſaid to the man,

42. And as he was yet a coming [the devil threw him down and tare him: and Jeſus rebuked the unclean ſpirit, and healed the child] and delivered him again to his father.

42. He fell into a fit of that diſeaſe, which by the power of the devil was brought upon him, and fell down, and after his manner it made an horrible agitation or tumult within him, and Jeſus caſt out the devil, and freed the man from the diſeaſe.

43. And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God, but while they wondred every one at all things which Jeſus did, he ſaid unto his diſciples,

44. Let theſe ſayings ſink down into your ears, for the ſon of man ſhall be delivered into the hands of men.

44. Mark what I ſay unto you, it is this, I ſhall ſhortly be put to death by the Jews and Romans, and ſhall ſuddenly riſe again, Mat. 17. 23, 24.

45. But they underſtood not [this ſaying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not, and they feared to ask him that ſaying.]

45. What he meant by thoſe words, and tho' they thought much upon it, yet could not they imagine what it meant, and yet they durſt not ask him the meaning.

46. Then there aroſe a reaſoning among them, which of them ſhould be greateſt.]

46. But by occaſion of them, thinking Chriſts kingdom ſhould ſhortly begin, they fell into a diſpute among themſelves, who of them ſhould have the higheſt dignity at this revelation of Chriſt's Kingdom.

47. And Jeſus perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and ſet him by him,]

47. And Chriſt either being asked by ſome of them, Mat. 18. 1. or elſe of his own accord, diſcerning by his divine knowledge the debate they were engaged in (tho' now they were aſhamed that he ſhould know it, Mar. 9. 33, 34.) and being willing to cure this vain ambition in them, took a little child, and ſet him in the next place to himſelf.

48. And ſaith unto them, Whoſoever ſhall receive this child in my name receiveth me, and whoſoever ſhall receive me, receiveth him that ſent me, for he that is leaſt among you all, the ſame ſhall be great.]

48. And ſaid unto them, The dignity that from me or in my kingdom accrueth unto any, belongs to ſuch as theſe, the humbleſt and meekeſt, the dignity which from my father is communicated to me, and from me to others, is the portion of the meekeſt. See Mat. 18. 4.

49. And John anſwered and ſaid, Maſter, we ſaw one caſting out devils in thy name, and we forbad him, becauſe he followeth not with us.

50. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Forbid him not, [for he that is not againſt us, is for us.]

50. For tho' he keep not company with us, yet if he do it in my name, he is one that believes in me, and not to be forbidden. See Mar. 9. 39. and Mat. 12. 30.

51. And it came to paſs [when the time was come that he ſhould be received up he ſtedfaſtly ſet his face to go to Jeruſalem.]

51. When the time was come (ſee Acts 2. a.) when he was to be crucified, not being terrified with that danger, he reſolved firmly to go up to Jeruſalem.

52. And ſent [meſſengers before his face] and they went and entred into a village of the Samaritans to make ready for him.

52. Some of his diſciples before, as harbingers (which was part of the diſciples office.)

53. And they did not receive him, becauſe his face was as tho' he would go to Jeruſalem.]

53. And the Samaritans would not give him reception, becauſe he appeared to them to be a going to Jeruſalem, and they never do ſo, but worſhip in mount Gerizim, John 4. 20. and ſo ſeparate from all thoſe that think Jeruſalem the only place of worſhip.

54. And when his diſciples James and John ſaw this, they ſaid, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven and conſume them, even as Elias did?

55. But he turned and rebuked them, and ſaid, [Ye know not what manner of ſpirit ye are of.]

55. The Chriſtians ſpirit, the œconomy, or courſe preſcribed them, differs much from that of a Prophet in the Old Teſtament, moved by zeal againſt the enemies of God: the courſe which you muſt take with ſuch is that of ſweetneſs and perſwaſiveneſs, and this propoſal of yours is very contrary to that.

56. For the ſon of man is not come to deſtroy mens lives, but to ſave them. And they went to another village.]

56. For I came not to kill any, but to preſerve & reſcue from death, and from all that is ill: And all the revenge that Chriſt thought fit to act upon them was to leave them, and go to another village.

57. And it came to paſs, that as they went in the way, a certain man ſaid unto him, Lord, I will follow thee whitherſoever thou goeſt.

58. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [The Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have neſts, but the ſon of man hath not where to lay his head.]

58. You had beſt to conſider what you do, for doing ſo will be far from advancing any temporal intereſt of yours, Mat. 8. 20.

59. And he ſaid unto another, Follow me. But he ſaid, Lord, ſuffer me firſt to go and bury my father.]

59. And there was another diſciple of his, who had already, undertaken his ſervice, and attended on him, Mat. 18. 21. who came unto him, and ſaid, Sir, before I betake my ſelf wholly to attendance on thee, ſpare me ſo long, till I have buried my father, either now newly dead (of which the news is now come to me) or very old, whom I would attend while he lives, and give him that civility of burial and then come and follow thee. (Theophylact.)

60. Jeſus ſaid unto him, Let the dead bury their dead, but go thou, and preach the kingdom of God.]

60. But Jeſus replied unto him, The Nazarite, Num. 6. 7. being conſecrated to God, was not to pollute himſelf with his dead father, but leave that work of burying him to others, and ſo the Prieſt alſo; and therefore thou that haſt, by the tender of thine attendance, conſecrated thy ſelf to me, muſt refer that office of burying thy father to others that have not undertaken that attendance, and ſet preſently about thy task of preaching the Goſpel. See note on Mat. 8. 22.

61. And

* ſhakes, tumultuates, boyls within him with foaming, and hardly, or with difficulty departeth from him, bruiſing him, συσπαράσσει αὐτὸν μετὰ ἀφροῦ· καὶ μόγις ἀποχωρεῖ ἀπ' αὐτοῦ συντρίβον αὐτόν.

61. And another alſo ſaid, Lord, I will follow thee, but let me firſt go bid them farewell that are at home at my houſe.

62. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [No man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.]

62. He that holds the plough muſt follow it cloſe; and not make errands home, or betake himſelf to any other buſineſs, till his days work be done; if he do, he will not be fit for that employment: ſo thou if thou wilt undertake my ſervice, muſt not * defer or procraſtinate, but preſently ſet to it, without any delay, and then follow it with the ſame diligence: and if thou art not thus ready to ſet out with me, if thou either pretendeſt, or really haſt ſuch kindneſs to thy former courſe and what thou haſt left at home, as to take thee off one day from my ſervice, thou art not worthy of the dignity and advantages of a Chriſtian life, art no competent judge of them, nor conſequently fit for a diſciple of mine.

Annotations on Chap. IX.

V.8. Appeared] the word ἐφάνη appeared, ſeems here to be taken for ἦλθε, was come. So 'tis evidently in 2 Mac. 7. 22. οὐκ οἶδ' ὅπως εἰς ὑμῶν ἐφάνητε κοιλίαν, I know not how ye came into my womb. So the Scholiaſt of Theocritus, φανεὶς, ἐλθών, appearing, ſignifies coming. So Plato in the beginning of his Protagoras, πόθεν ἥκεις Σωκράτης φάνη, that is, whence comeſt thou Socrates? So Chryſoſtom, οὐδὲ σὺ εἰς τὸ ἄνω φανῆναι δύνῃ πόλιν, thou canſt not come to the city which is above.

V.12. Lodge] Καταλῦσαι ſignifies among Mariners καταίρειν ἀπὸ πελάγους εἰς ὅρμον λιμένα, to come back, and retire from the Sea to the haven, and from thence 'tis applied to travellers that betake themſelves to their inn, which is therefore called κατάλυμα, becauſe the man and the beaſt there laid down his lading, and ſo 'tis generally to refreſh ones ſelf, ἀπολαῦσαι διαγωγῆς, ſaith Phavorinus out of Heſychius.

b. Καταλῦσαι.

V.31. Deceaſe] That Chriſt ἔξοδος here ſignifies his death and going out of this world, will be acknowledged, 1. by the uſe of a parallel phraſe to this ſenſe, Joh. 13.1. where his death is called μετάβασις ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου τούτου a paſſing out of this world, typifyed there by the Paſch in the beginning of the verſe, and that we know was inſtituted as a commemoration of the Exodus or going out of Egypt. 2*ly*, by St. Peter's uſing it of himſelf, 2 Pet. 1.15. to ſignify his departure, before expreſſed by the laying down his tabernacle, v.13. But that it is here alſo, in a more ſolemn ſenſe, of ſomewhat a greater latitude, may appear by this, that the ἔξοδος of Chriſt is here ſaid to be the ſubject of the diſcourſe betwixt Elias, and Moſes, and Chriſt, upon mount Tabor. And what the matter of that diſcourſe was, hath been ſet down at large, from ſufficient evidences, note on Mat. 17. a. viz. the coming of the great and terrible day of the Lord, Malac. 4, 5. before which Elias was firſt to come. Which being there ſufficiently manifeſt, and explained to denote the approaching deſtruction of the obſtinate unbelieving Jews, may farther be cleared by another place, wherein 'tis mention'd what the ſubject of this diſcourſe was, that of St. Peter, that was preſent at this viſion, 2 Pet. 1.16. where he affirms, that at his being on the mount Tabor with Chriſt, he had a revelation concerning (that which was the matter of that whole Epiſtle of his) the power and coming of Jeſus Chriſt (which what it ſignifies in divers places of the New Teſtament, viz. a middle ſecond coming of Chriſt upon the Jews, hath been ſhewn at large, note on Mat. 24. b.) And ſo again, 1 Pet. 5.1. when he ſaith he was a witneſs of Chriſt's ſufferings, and a partaker of the glory which ſhould be revealed, that latter ſeems to refer to his preſence at the tranſfiguration, where this glory that was to follow Chriſt's ſufferings, was repreſented to him and two other diſciples. To which purpoſe 'tis alſo obſervable in what ſenſe we find the word ἔξοδος uſed Heb. 11.22. and in the title of the ſecond book of Moſes, to denote the departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt to Canaan. And accordingly in St. Judes Epiſtle (which is but the Epitome of, and parallel to that 2*d* of St. Peter) where St. Peter ſaith, 2 Pet. 1.15,16. I will endeavour to put you in mind of theſe things, that is, of this power and coming of our Lord which he had made known to them, he hath theſe words, v. 5. I would put you in mind, that the Lord having delivered the people of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt, deſtroyed thoſe that did not believe, which referring to that ἔξοδος, Moſes's bringing the Iſraelites out of Egypt, ſuppoſes that to be an image or reſemblance of that coming of Chriſt, that is, of what Chriſt ſhould now do within a while, viz. that being gone out of the world, and by that means of his death having brought his people out of their captivity, he ſhould not only overwhelm his enemies the Jews, like Pharaoh and the Egyptians, but withal deſtroy the wicked, impure gnoſtick Chriſtians, like the diſobedient Iſraelites in the wilderneſs. And that this (as it may properly be contain'd under the word ἔξοδος, ſo) was the thing that St. Luke meant here by it, may probably appear, 1. by the agreeableneſs of it, and by the Evangeliſts referring it (it came to paſs, ſaith he, after theſe words about eight days, that Jeſus took Peter and John, &c. v.28.) to the diſcourſe immediately precedent (for the expreſſing of which, as by an Emblem, the transfiguration ſeems to have been deſigned) which is all to that purpoſe of preſerving the believers that take up Chriſt's croſs, and deſtroying all ſuch, who (as the Gnoſticks afterward, and thoſe that were corrupted by them) ſhould be moſt careful to preſerve their lives; 2*ly*, by the mention of Jeruſalem, where all this was to be fulfilled, firſt Chriſt to die there, then all theſe glorious works of God to be ſhewn upon that people, in deſtroying the unbelievers, and the ἀπειθήσαντες, the diſobedient provokers, Heb. 3. 12, 16, 18. among them, and preſerving the ſincere, pure, perſevering, faithful Chriſtians in the midſt of that deſtruction. Theſe arguments do not pretend to demonſtrate, but have been added, ex abundanti, to that one ground laid, Mat. 17. (Note a.) only as probabilities concurring with that which is there evidenced. To this may be added an obſervation of * St. Chryſoſtome's, ὁ μετὰ χάριτος —— ἢ παρουσίαν αὐτῆς ἢ ἔνσαρκον ἔξοδον καλεῖ, Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt calls his coming in the fleſh by this title of ἔξοδος or going out, citing Mat. 13.3. of the Sower going out, and John 16. 28. of his having come out from the father; and the ſame * again ὁ μετὰ χάριτος ἔξοδον ἢ ἑαυτῆς παρουσίαν εἰκότως καλεῖ, Chriſt fitly calls his coming, ἔξοδος; which obſervation, if it have any force in it, then may this other middle coming of Chriſt to the deſtrucion of the Jews, ſo often ſtyled παρουσία, the coming of the Lord, and of Chriſt, be as fitly here expreſſed by ἔξοδος, not the going away, or departure from this earth, but his coming in power and vengeance from heaven, a conſequent of his Aſcenſion thither. On * this place of S. Chryſoſtom, the learned Andrew Downs obſerves, that the Hebrew expreſs οἰκονομία and διοίκησις any adminiſtration or diſcharge of any office, by going in and going out. Which if it be appliable to the latter of 'em, taken alone (as it is both here and in that place of S. Chryſoſtom) then 'tis a farther account of the propriety of this ſenſe which I have affix'd to it, this coming of Chriſt to the deſtruction of his crucifiers, being an eminent act of adminiſtration of his regal office (& thence oft call'd the kingdom of God) in the executing judgment on ſuch traiters oppoſers of his kingdom.

V.51. Received up] Ἀνάλημψις here applied to Chriſt may poſſibly belong to his aſſumption up to heaven out of this world, which then might be ſaid to draw near: but 'tis ſomewhat more probable that it ſhould ſignify his crucifixion, which was to be at Jeruſalem, toward which place he is here ſaid to go, becauſe his time was come. And to this the expreſſion agrees, which is uſed by Chriſt, John 12. 32. ἐὰν ὑψωθῶ, If I be lifted up, which the text ſaith was a teſtification of the kind of his death, that is, of his crucifixion: and indeed the Syriack word for the Croſs, being ܨܠܝܒܐ from ܨܠܝ to to erect or lift up, (noting the tignum or palus which was in ſublime erectus) to be crucified, in the Syriack expreſſion will be to be exalted or lifted up.

e. Πνεῦμα. V.55. Spirit] The word πνεῦμα Spirit is very diverſly taken in the New Teſtament, 1. ſometimes (with the addition of Θεοῦ or Χριστοῦ God or Chriſt, or ἁγιον holy, and ſometimes without it) for the eternal Spirit of God, the holy Ghoſt, the third perſon in the ſacred Trinity, Mat. 28.19. into which we are baptized. And from thence, 2*ly*, for the graces and gifts of that Spirit, whether thoſe that are of uſe to all ſorts of men, as the Spirit of ſupplication, Zach. 12. 10. that is, zealous, ardent prayer, and accordingly we read of praying, ἐν πνεύματι, *Eph.*6.18. in, or with, the Spirit, and Jude 20. with the addition of ἁγίῳ in, or with, the holy Spirit, praying, as thoſe do that are by the Spirit of God enabled or raiſed to perform this duty with ſome ardency. So *Eph.*5.19. being filled with the Spirit (in oppoſition to being drunk with wine) is expreſſed by ſpeaking in Pſalms and hymns, and ſpiritual ſongs, in, or with, the heart, zealouſly and cordially, or whether thoſe which long not to all, but only to thoſe which are thus to be qualified for any office, whether Regal, or Prophetick, or Evangelical. So the Spirit of prophecy, Acts 2. 18. and the double portion of Elias's Spirit, that is, the right (as of primogeniture) of ſucceeding him in his prophetick office. So 1 *Cor.*14.12. ζηλωταὶ πνευμάτων, zealous of ſpirits, that is, of thoſe gifts of tongues, &c. that were given the Apoſtles for the planting of the Goſpel, ſo v. 2. he that ſpeaks with tongues, πνεύματι λαλεῖ μυστήρια, ſpeaks in an hidden, unintelligible manner by that gift of tongues (ſee v.19. & 23.) for no man hears, that is, underſtands him, and in the ſame ſenſe, v. 14. my ſpirit, that is, my gift of tongues prayeth, I make uſe of that gift, which no body but my ſelf underſtands, &c. 3*ly*, 'Tis taken for an Angel, whether good or bad; good, *Rev.*1.4. bad, Mark 1.23. 5.2. and unclean, that is, diabolical, or evil ſpirit, as appeareth, v. 9. From the ambiguity of which it is that πνευματικοὶ, 1 *Cor.*12.1. is taken in the latitude both for thoſe that are acted with an evil, and which are inſpired with a good ſpirit, the ſpirit of God, which is looked on as a fountain of all ſupernatural revelations, 1 *Cor.*2.12. and oppoſed there to the ſpirit of the world, that which the world knows or can reveal to us (ſee note on *Rom.*9. a.) To this, I ſuppoſe, muſt be reduced another notion not far diſtant, wherein the word Spirits ſignifies teachers, pretenders to inſpiration from God, whether truly or falſly, ſo 1 John 4.1. Believe not every ſpirit, but try the ſpirits whether they be of God, give not heed to every teacher, but examine all ſuch pretenders, whether they be truly of God, or no; for, as it follows, many falſe prophets have gone out into the world, where thoſe falſe prophets are one ſect of thoſe ſpirits which muſt be examined. So *v.*2. by this ye know the ſpirit of God, that is, a truly inſpired teacher ſent by God, Every ſpirit which confeſſes Jeſus Chriſt which is come in the fleſh, is from God, and v.3. Every ſpirit which confeſſeth not, &c. (the ſpirit again is the teacher, for to him only it belongeth to confeſs or not confeſs.) And this is that of Antichriſt (the Antichriſtian teachers) which cometh and now is in the world, which cannot be affirmed again but of a perſon; which is yet more manifeſt, v. 5. They are from the world, (αὐτοὶ in the Maſculine) therefore they ſpeak from the world, and the world heareth them, You are from God, he that knoweth God, heareth you; where the ſpirits before, are now deſcribed as teachers, worldly or divine, and again expreſſed in the end of *v.*6. by the ſpirit of truth, and the ſpirit of error, either orthodox, or erroneous, ſeducing teachers, the latter of which are diſtinctly called πλάνοι deceivers or impoſtors, John 2.7. and thoſe with the ſame character affix'd to them that belonged to the ſpirits which were not of God, 1 John 4.3. From whence it will be moſt reaſonable to interpret the πνεύματα πλάνα, ſeducing ſpirits, 1 Tim.4.1. of perſons alſo, tho' the doctrines of devils that are joined with them, would incline to interpret them of doctrines taught by ſuch. 4*ly*, 'Tis taken ſometimes for an apparition, the ſhape or ſeeming of a body, without any real corporeity in it. So Luke 24. 37,39. ἐδόκουν πνεῦμα θεωρεῖν, they thought they ſaw a ſpirit, for which *Mat.*14.26. & Mark 6. 49. φάντασμα, a phantaſm is uſed. 5*ly*, it is taken for the ſpirit of man, the ſupreme diviner faculty, oppoſed to the body of fleſh, *Gal.*5.17. 1 Theſ. 5. 23. and ſet higher then ψυχὴ, the ſoul, common to man with other ſenſitive creatures. So 1 Cor. 2.11. the ſpirit of a man that is in him, to which it belongeth to ſearch to the ſecrets and bottom of him. So 1 Pet. 3.19. πνεύμασι ἐν φυλακῇ, are the ſpirits and ſouls of men, (of the meaning of which place ſee note on 1 *Pet.*3. f.) So John 6.3. the ſpirit that enliveneth is the ſoul that animates the body (as *Jam.*2. 26.) and from thence in the end of that verſe (where he ſaith that the words which he ſpake unto them were ſpirit and life,) the meaning muſt be, that Chriſt ſpake not of a carnal, groſs, but an immaterial, ſpiritual eating, that is, receiving and laying up his doctrine in their hearts and ſouls, and amending their lives by it, (which is alſo the true, durable, profitable eating, far beyond the corporeal, external, as Chriſt and his doctrine are the true manna, v.55.) ſo John 4.23. the true worſhippers ſhall worſhip the father in ſpirit, that is, the ſervice and worſhip of God now under the Goſpel, ſhall not conſiſt in the external legal performances, but extend to the heart and ſoul, thoſe duties of real purity and piety, which were typified by thoſe legal ſhadows; ſo when the Spirit ſignifies the Goſpel, as that is oppoſed to the Law under the title of the fleſh, Gal. 3. 3. and in many other places, this is taken by analogy from that acception of the ſpirit for the ſoul, as that is the principle of life, and that an inward principle. Theſe are the more obvious acceptions of the word, which belong to moſt of the places where the word is uſed, and in moſt of them the context will readily determine to which. In ſome few other places it is uſed in a different ſenſe, and notes 6*thly*, a way of diſpenſation or œconomy, a diſpoſition or courſe of things, as when the Law is called the ſpirit of bondage, *Rom.*8. 15. that is, the way of dealing with men as with ſervants (as it was with the Jews) and on the other ſide the ſpirit of adoption, the more ingenuous way of dealing, as with ſons, now under the Goſpel. And ſo here when they would, as Elias had done, have called for fire on the Samaritans, Chriſt tells them, they knew not of what ſpirit they are, that is, they conſidered not under what diſpenſation they were, Chriſt came to ſave, &c. the courſe or way of proceedings which the Goſpel brought in, or was meant to teach men, was very diſtant from that which had been obſervable in Elias under the Old Teſtament, and conſequently they muſt not do as Elias had done. Chriſt came to infuſe and teach by his example and ſermons an higher charity, (even to enemies and rejecters of Chriſt himſelf) then was thought neceſſary before. They that rejected, and ſcoffed at a Prophet then, the Prophet had commiſſion to deſtroy them, and accordingly without farther admonitions calls for fire from heaven to devour them preſently: But they that refuſe and crucify Chriſt, are by him prayed for, and are by his command yet farther to be preached to, and, if poſſible, brought to repentance; and according to this example, ſo are all Chriſtians to conform themſelves, and if they do, then are they ſaid to be of Chriſt, and not of Elias's kind of ſpirit, of the Evangelical diſpenſation or œconomy. So 1 *Pet.*4.14. If ye be reproached for the name of Chriſt, &c. the ſpirit of God, that is, the ſame way of œconomy which was uſed toward Chriſt incarnate, reſteth on you, is uſed among you. 7*thly*, It ſignifies affection, temper, diſpoſition of any (which is a ſenſe lightly varied from the former) ſo Luke 1. 17. the ſpirit of Elias is that temper, affection, zeal that was obſervable in Elias. So 1 John 3.24. By this we know that God abideth in us, by the ſpirit that he hath given us, that is, by our having the ſame temper, the ſame affection, which is ſo obſervable in God, that is, that of charity to our brethren, *v.*23. That this is the meaning, appears by comparing it with c. 4.12,13. If we love one another, God abideth in us, &c. by this we know Πνεύματα ἐν φυλακῇ.

Πνεῦμα ζωοποιοῦν.

Προσκυνεῖν ἐν πνεύματι.

Οὐκ οἴδατε οὗ πνεύματός ἐστε.

Πνεῦμα Ἠλίου.

know that we abide in him, and he in us; becauſe he hath given us of his ſpirit. So Rom. 8. 9. Ye are not in the fleſh, but in the ſpirit, that is (in the former notion of the ſpirit for that inward purity and obedience required under the Goſpel) ye muſt live pure, ſpiritual lives (without which there is no pleaſing God, v. 8.) if ſo be the ſpirit of God dwelleth in you, that is, if the ſacred Evangelical temper of which we have the precepts and pattern in Chriſt, continue among you, but if any man have not the ſpirit of Chriſt, that is, if that temper ſo obſervable in Chriſt be not at all diſcernible in you, ye are none of his, ye cannot pretend to be Chriſtians, or expect to enjoy the priviledges of ſuch, and v. 11. If the ſpirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus dwell in you, that is, if that divine God-like temper be conſtantly in you, he that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, that is, God, will alſo quicken your mortal bodies, give even theſe mortal bodies of yours a joyful reſurrection, by his ſpirit dwelling in you, that is, by the power of that ſame ſpirit that raiſed Chriſt, if ye be now animated and quickned by that, if that divine temper of his continue in you. So v. 14. being led by the Spirit, is living according to the pattern ſet before us by Chriſt. And ſo the ſpirit of fear, and of power, and love, &c. 2 Tim. 1. 7. are thoſe affections of fear on one ſide, cowardiſe and timidity, and of courage and conſtancy and adherence to Chriſt (ſuch as was exemplified to us in Chriſt, in declaring and aſſerting his Fathers will) on the other ſide. In the Old Teſtament 'tis farther uſed, ſometimes for skill and abilities, Exod. 28. 3. the Spirit of wiſdom to make Aaron garments, and Exod. 31. 2. Bezaleel is filled with the ſpirit of God in wiſdom, and in underſtanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanſhip. Sometimes for zeal, as 1 Sam. 11. 6. where the ſpirit of God came upon Saul, and his anger was kindled greatly. Sometimes for a Commiſſion to an office or employment, as Judg. 3. 10. the Spirit of God came upon Othniel, that is, he received miſſion from God, and he judged Iſrael. So upon Gedeon, c. 6. 34. and on Jeptha, c. 11. 29. and on Samſon, c. 13. 25. but this ſtill joined with extraordinary abilities for the diſcharge of the office, and with particular incitations to ſome extraordinary things, which might teſtify to men this their commiſſion from God, or to themſelves, that they are thus deſigned and qualified for it. As appears by Samſon, c. 14. 6. where the Spirit of the Lord coming mightily upon him, denotes the ſtrength which God gave him to kill the Lion, and that an eſſay of what he ſhould be able to do to the Philiſtines, v. 19. Thus Num. 11. 17. when God takes of the ſpirit which is upon Moſes, and puts it upon the Seventy, 'tis apparent that the Spirit there ſignifies the Commiſſion or authority that Moſes had to govern the people, together with abilities to diſcharge it, (ſee Deut. 34. 9.) which is there communicated by God to the Seventy, as it follows, and they ſhall bear the burthen of the people with thee, that is, take part of the burthen of ruling them. So v. 25. The Lord took of the Spirit that was upon him, and gave it unto the Seventy, and when the ſpirit reſted upon them they prophecyed, &c. that is, ſome gifts extraordinary attended this commiſſion, partly to ſignify that they were thus ſet apart and endowed with authority by God, and partly to fit them for the diſcharge of their office conferred on them. So v. 26. the Spirits reſting on Eldad and Medad was Gods conferring this authority on them, to which were joined alſo thoſe gifts of the Spirit, and they prophecied alſo, and ſo v. 29. Would God all the Lords people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his Spirit upon them, that is, communicate that power to them which he had given to Moſes, and qualify them with extraordinary gifts accordingly. So at the making of Saul King, the ſpirit of the Lord ſhall come upon thee, 1 Sam. 10. 6. ſome extraordinary change wrought on him, by which his commiſſion was evidenced to himſelf and others, and ſo v. 10. and proportionably in the New Teſtament, Chriſt's prophetick commiſſion was thus conferred on him. The ſpirit of God deſcending like a dove, and lighting, or reſting, on him, and (above what had before been done to any,) a voice from heaven proclaiming this commiſſion to be given to him from his Father, and this from Iſa. 61. 1. is called the ſpirit of the Lord being upon him, and that explained by his being anointed to preach Luke 4. 18. and by the Spirit of wiſdom, &c. Iſa. 11. 2, 3. which ſignifies a commiſſion and all other extraordinary gifts and powers conferred upon him, and is called his being anointed with the holy ghoſt and with power. And ſo of his Apoſtles, Acts 2. 4. their being filled with the holy Ghoſt, is their being endowed with commiſſion from heaven for that ſacred function, and accordingly they ſpake with tongues (as the Seventy and Saul, after the Spirits coming on them, prophecyed) as the ſpirit gave them utterance, and this as the completion of that promiſe of Chriſt that they ſhould be endued with power from on high, Luke 24. 49. or receive δύναμιν πνεύματος ἁγίου, the power of the holy Ghoſt coming upon them. And ſo ever after, the ordaining of a Biſhop in the Church was expreſſed by his receiving the holy Ghoſt. Other uſes there are of the word Spirit, which will be diſcernible by the Context, and be reducible to one or more of theſe, but are too long to be more particularly ſet down here.

CHAP. X.

Paraphraſe.

* the antient Gr. & Lat. MS. read &c. LXXII. ſeventy two, and ſo, v. 17.

1. AFter theſe things the Lord [appointed other * ſeventy alſo, and ſent them two and two before his face, into every city and place, whether he himſelf would come.]

1. Beſide the twelve Apoſtles, choſe ſeventy others to be to him as diſciples were wont to be to Prophets, that is, to go on his errands, as he ſhould appoint them, which they did by turns, two at once, as harbingers proclaiming his approach in every city, whither he meant to come.

2. Therefore ſaid he unto them, [The harveſt truly is great, but the labourers are few, pray ye therefore the Lord of the harveſt, that he would ſend forth labourers into his harveſt.

2. The province is large, and there be many that are ready to receive the Goſpel, when it ſhall be preached to them, it is needful therefore to pray to God to incline mens hearts to undertake this office of going and revealing it to them, for as yet there are very few for ſo great a task.

3. Go your ways [behold, I ſend you forth as lambs among wolves.]

3. But when ye go, ye muſt expect to meet with dangers and ill receptions.

4. Carry neither purſe, nor ſcrip, nor ſhooes, and ſalute no man by the way.]

4. Yet let not that deter you, or put you upon making proviſions before-hand for your journey, and as you go ſpend no time in civilities with any, intend and mind that one buſineſs you go about.

5. And into whatſoever houſe ye enter, firſt ſay, Peace be to this houſe.

6. And if [the ſon of peace be there] your peace ſhall reſt upon it, if not, it ſhall turn to you again.

6. Any to whom peace properly belongs, any pious perſon, called by an Hebraiſm the ſon of peace (as the wicked Apoſtate traytor is the ſon of perdition, John 17. 12.) any pliable perſon, capable of the bleſſing of the Goſpel, dwell there.

7. And in the ſame houſe remain eating and drinking ſuch things as they give, for the labourer is worthy of his hire. [Go not from houſe to houſe.]

7. Remove not out of one houſe to go to another in the ſame city.

8. And

8. Receive without any ſcruple the entertainment which they offer you.

8. And into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you, [eat ſuch things as are ſet before you.]

9. See Mat. 3. note c.

9. And heal the ſick that are therein, and ſay unto them [the kingdom of God is come nigh † unto you.]

10. But into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out † ιρ. upon, into the ſtreets of the ſame, and ſay,

11. Even the very duſt of your city which cleaveth on us we do wipe off [againſt you: * notwithſtanding be ye ſure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh † unto you.] * furthermore, πλὴν † ιρ. upon,

11. As a teſtimony of your obſtinacy, and uſage of us (Mat. 10. 14. & Luke 9. 5.) and as a token to aſſure you that your deſtruction is very near falling on you.

12. When that judgment comes, v. 14.

12. But I ſay unto you, that it ſhall be more tolerable [in that day] for Sodom then for that city.

13. Wo unto you, ye cities of Jewry, among whom ſo many miracles have been ſhewn to work faith in you, and ſo to bring you to repentance, and all in vain: Had the like been done in heathen cities near you, they in all likelihood would have been wrought on by them.

13. Wo unto thee, Chorazin, Wo unto thee, Bethſaida; for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon, which have been done in you, they had a great while ago repented, ſitting in ſack cloath and aſhes.]

14. And accordingly their portion in the vegeance approaching ſhall be more ſupportable then yours.

14. But it ſhall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment then for you.]

15. Deſtruction and deſolation, ſee Mat. 11. 23.

15. And thou Capernaum which art exalted to heaven, ſhall be thruſt down to * [hell.] * Hades, ᾅδου.

16. Annotations on Chap. X.

a. Συγκυρία

V. 31. By chance] The word Συγκυρία signifies literally concurrence, when two things fall out together, Συγκυρεῖ (it should be Συγκυρία) Ϛωΐυχία saith Hesychius, and Συγκύρημα, Ϛωΐύχημα (not with any respect to τύχη fortuna, but from τυγχάνω sum, the word signifying being and no more.) So places that lie together are called Συγκυροῦντα, Num. 21. 25. and 35. 3. and Deut. 2. 37. according to the notion of the Simple Κυρῶ, τυγχάνω, saith Hesychius, and Κυρεῖ, ὑπάρχει, and Κυρία, ἡ κατὰ φύσιν ὑπάρχουσα δύναμις. And then the rendring will be most exactly thus, And the same time it fell out that a certain priest came down that way; according to * Calcidius's definition of fortune, that it is concursus simul cadentium causarum duum, originem ex proposito trahentium, ex quo concursu provenit aliquid præter spem cum admiratione, a concurrence of two causes falling together, having their beginning from counsel, from which concurrence something proceeds besides hope with admiration. But in Hippocrates it is used frequently to signify any occasion of doing any thing, l. de med. vet. δι' ἡδονὴν ἢ δι' ἄλλο τινὰ Συγκυρίλν, for pleasure, or for any other occasion, or concurrent thing, that being at the same time is the occasion of any thing. And then it may be rendred upon occasion, that is, having some business that occasioned his going by at that time.

b. Ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι.

V. 40. Help] The word ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι, especially with a Genitive of the person joyn'd with it, signifies to succour or relieve any in distress, so Luke 1. 54. ἀντελάβετο Ἰσραὴλ, he hath relieved Israel, a work of ἔλεος, mercy, as it follows, and a filling them with good things, when they were hungry, v. 43. So ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι ἀσθενούντων, Acts 20. 35. to relieve the poor, and, as it there follows, to give to them. So ἀντιλήψεις, 1 Cor. 12. 28. the office of relieving the poor; see note e. on that chap. From hence 'tis discernible, what is the full importance of ἵνα Ϛωαντιλάβηταί μοι here; Christ was received and entertain'd in the house of Martha and Mary, Martha made provision for him, and all that were with him, this is called πολλὴ διακονία, a great deal of work in providing for them all, at the beginning of the verse; hereupon she complains to Christ, that Mary by hearkning to him left her διακονεῖν μόνλν, to minister to them, or provide for them alone, without any body else, and thereupon desires him to bid her bear her company, in making provision for them, the ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι, as διακονεῖν, noting the making this provision, and the σὺν added to it, the joyning with her, or bearing her company, contrary to the μόνλν, her doing it alone, precedent. Thus Rom. 8. 26. Ϛωαντιλαμβάνεται ἀσθενείαις ἡμῶν, is to joyn in relieving our necessities. We have no means but prayer to God to relieve our selves in any distress. But then again, we know not what is absolutely best for us, nor consequently to pray as we ought; therefore when we want and pray for ought, the Spirit of Christ joineth with us in relieving us, that is, in interceding for us, that what is absolutely best may be granted us, joins with us in prayer, and so in relieving us by prayer silently for us, and asking those things, which Christ knows us to stand most in need of, when we do not.

But if by the power (and ſpirit, Mat. 12. 28.) of God it be, that I caſt out devils, then, as the miracles of Moſes, confeſt by the Magicians to be done by the finger of God, Exod. 8. 19. were a certain teſtimony that he was ſent by God to redeem the people out of their bondage, ſo is this a certain argument, that I am now ſent by God, to redeem you, if you will believe on me.

28. But he ſaid, Yea rather, bleſſed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.]

29. And

29. And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to ſay] This is an evil generation: they ſeek a ſign, and there ſhall no ſign be given it, but the ſign of Jonas the prophet.

29 As for the ſecond queſtion propoſed, v. 16. he now in the preſence of a great multitude gave anſwer alſo to that, (ſee Mat.12.39.)

30. For as Jonas was a ſign to the Ninevites, ſo ſhall alſo the ſon of man be to this generation.]

30. For as Jonas preaching in the ſtreets of Nineveh, being accompanied with the miracle of having been three days in the whales belly, and then being caſt upon the ſhore alive, was an aſſurance to them, that without repentance they ſhould ſpeedily be deſtroyed. So ſhall the preaching of Chriſt to the men of this age, accompanied with his death and reſurrection after three days, be a certain fore-runner of deſtruction to them that believe not.

31. The queen of the ſouth ſhall riſe up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and ſhall condemn them: for ſhe came from the uttermoſt parts of the earth to hear the wiſdom of Solomon, and behold, [* a greater then Solomon is here.]

31. Here is more of wiſdom, heavenly divine doctrine, then ever was in all Solomons words, or writings, Mat.12. 42.

32. The men of Nineveh ſhall riſe up in the judgment with this generation, and ſhall condemn it, for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, [* a greater then Jonas is here.]

33. No man] when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a ſecret place, neither under a buſhel, but on a candleſtick, that they which come in may ſee the light.

33. To that purpoſe of v. 28. that they only are bleſs'd which not only hear but obſerve God's commands, belongs that known ſpeech of Chriſt, delivered at another time alſo, Mat. 5. 15. and Luke 8. 16. No man, &c.

34. The light of the body is the eye, therefore when thine eye is ſingle, thy whole body alſo is full of light, but when thine eye is evil, thy whole body alſo is full of darkneſs.]

34. And to the ſame purpoſe may be applied that other, uſed alſo by Chriſt in the ſame ſermon on the mount (ſee note on Mat. 6. 22. l.) that the heart being once truly warmed with Chriſtian virtues will fill the whole body with charitable and Chriſtian actions.

35. Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkneſs.]

35. Take care therefore that the Chriſtian precepts and graces afforded thee, be not accompanied with an unchriſtian life.

36. If thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole ſhall be full of light, as when * the bright ſhining of a candle doth give thee light.]

* a candle, by bright ſhining, lightneth thee, ὁ λύχνος τῇ ἀστραπῇ φωτίζῃ σε.

36. If therefore the Chriſtian doctrine have taken full poſſeſſion of thee, and no faculty or affection be left out from being wrought upon by it, then ſure the actions will be moſt illuſtriouſly ſo, and the whole life of ſuch an one will be as a room with a blazing torch or candle in it, enlightned in every corner, without any intermiſſions or mixture of unchriſtian actions.

37. And as he ſpake, a certain Phariſee beſought him to dine with him, and he went in, and ſat down to meat.

39. Ye hypocritical Phariſees, waſh your ſelves, as if a man ſhould waſh his veſſels, the out-ſide of them only, leaving the inſides of them full of all filthineſs; for thus do ye waſh your bodies, leaving your ſouls full of uncleanneſs.

40. Ye fools, did he not he that which is without, make that which is within alſo?]

40. This is an extream folly, for if your outward waſhings were in obedience to God, you would cleanſe the inſides, your hearts and ſouls alſo as well as your bodies.

41. But rather * c give alms of ſuch things as you have, and behold, all things are d clean unto you.

45. Then anſwered one of the [Lawyers, and ſaid unto him, Maſter, thus ſaying thou reproacheſt us alſo.]

45. Doctors of the Law, members of the Sanhedrin, or Conſiſtories, and ſaith unto him, This ſpeech of thine ſeems to reflect on us, and the gravity that belongs to our places and perſons, and is a reproach to us.

46. And he ſaid, [Wo unto you alſo, ye lawyers: for ye lade men with burthens grievous to be born, and ye your ſelves touch not the burthens with one of your fingers.]

46. And ye certainly are not free, Ye are they which lay heavy tasks on others, and think not your ſelves obliged to perform or undergo any part of them.

47. Wo unto you, * for ye e build the ſepulchers of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.

* that, ὅτι.

47, 48. Wo be to you for that hypocriſy of yours, in appearing to bear ſuch reſpect, as to rebuild the tombs of thoſe prophets, whom your fathers killed; you your ſelves having as bloody thoughts againſt thoſe that are now ſent to you, and being ready to fill up their meaſure of blood-guiltineſs, Mat. 23. 32. by your adorning their ſepulchres, ye bear witneſs that your fathers killed the prophets, and at the ſame time ye are well pleaſed with their works, that is, delighted in, and meditate the like; and though ye ſay Mat.23.30. that if you had lived in their days, ye would not have put the prophets to death, yet by your preſent actions of perſecuting me, and thirſting after my blood, ye ſhew that ſuch pretenſions are but hypocriſy in you.

48. † Truly ye bear witneſs that ye allow the deeds of your fathers, * for they indeed killed them, and ye build ye build their ſepulchers.]

† thus ye bear witneſs, and conſent, or are well-pleaſed with the deeds, * that, ὅτι.

49. And ſo clearly you are the people of whom God hath prophecyed, that they will kill and perſecute thoſe whom he ſends to them, for this was begun by your fathers, and continued in you, and is like to be perfected by you.

50. And this is likely to be the effect of it, the Jews of this age ſhall undergo the ſevereſt vengeance that all the murthering of Gods prophets can bring on a rebellious people.

51. See Mat. 23. g.

51. From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which periſhed betwixt the Altar and the Temple, Verily I ſay unto you, it ſhall be required of this generation.

52. Have robb'd the people of that underſtanding of Scripture which might make them embrace the Goſpel now preach'd to them: ye will not receive the faith your ſelves, and thoſe which are inclinable to receive it, ye hinder as much as you can.

53,54. To expreſs great anger (ſee Mar. 6. a.) and indignation againſt him, and to propoſe many things to him by way of queſtion, that they might get ſomewhat from him, which being teſtified againſt him, might be matter of accuſation.

53. And as he ſaid theſe theſe things unto them, the Scribes and Phariſees began to [* urge him vehemently, and to * † provoke him to ſpeak of many things, *be ſharply angry with him. * poſe him concerning many things.

Annotations on Chap. XI.

a. Ὀφείλειν.

V. 4. Indebted] The word ὀφείλειν to owe, is here to be taken in a notion peculiar to the Syriack language, (wherein Chriſt certainly ſpake) which neither the Greek, nor Latine, nor Hebrew had made uſe of; For he that ſins, or offends, either againſt God or man, is in Syriack ſaid חיב a debter, and ſo חובא debitum, a debt, that is, peccatum, a ſin. So Exod. 32. This people, חטא חטטה have ſinned a ſin, the Targum read, חב חובתא hath ought a debt. So Lev. 4. If a prieſt, &c. יחטא ſhall ſin, the Targum reads, יחוב ſhall owe, So Luke 13.4. of thoſe on whom the tower fell, do you think, ſaith Chriſt, that theſe were, ὀφειλέται παρὰ πάντας, debtors, that is, offenders, beyond all? and proportionably to this, to pardon is by them expreſs'd by מבק to remit, and is here rendred ἀφίεμεν, to releaſe or abſolve.

b. ἡ θύρα κέκλεισται.

V. 7. The door is ſhut] The Romans were wont to expreſs the firſt part of the night, the cloſe of the evening, by primâ face, candle-lighting. A later part other nations expreſs'd by ſhutting up the doors, called in Greek κλαυσίθυρον, which time was wont by a kind of bell-man, to be cryed about the ſtreets. Thus Joſ. 25. about the time of ſhutting the gate, where the Greek reads, ὡς δὲ ἡ πύλη ἐκλείετο, when the gate was ſhut. Thus in this place, the door is ſhut, is meant as an expreſſion of the lateneſs of the time of night, and is expreſs'd, v. 5. by μεσονυκτίου at midnight.

c. τὰ ἐνόντα.

V. 41. Such things as you have] The phraſe τὰ ἐνόντα ſignifies according to ability. So when Epictetus appoints to abſtain from oaths, ἐκ τῶν ἐνόντων, as far as we are able, and in Gemiſthus Pletho, περὶ εἰρεσ. p. 57. Ζὺν εὐτελείᾳ ἐκ τῶν ἐνόντων φιλοκαλῶν, ſpeaking of him, who of that which he hath, exerciſes liberality without any great expence. This is expreſs'd in Tob. by ἐκ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων σοὶ ποίει ἐλεημοσύνην, give alms of what thou haſt, and ſo Luke 8.3. & 12.33. and ſo ſaith Heſychius, Ἐνδὺ, ἐνυπάρχον ἢ δυνατόν ὄν, that which a man hath in his power, and Phavorinus to the ſame purpoſe, δυνατὸν, ἐνδεχόμενον, ἐνυπάρχον, and 'tis anſwerable to that of Deut. 16.10. which we read, according as the Lord thy God hath bleſſed thee. But becauſe the precept is here given to the hypocritical Phariſees, who may have been guilty of great ſins of injuſtice, and 'tis not impoſſible ἅρπαγὴ may ſignify that, v. 39. (tho' I conceive it may fitly be taken in another ſenſe, noted 1 Cor. 5. note h.) and becauſe this ſin of oppreſſion, and rapine, and cheating, and wronging others, is ſo ordinary in the world, that it may be reaſonable for our Saviour's ſpeech to reſpect that among other ſins, and ſo to propoſe here the way, on the ſinners part, required for the cleanſing of that. Therefore it is not amiſs yet farther to obſerve, that the place here τὰ ἐνόντα δότε ἐλεημοσύνην, and not ἐκ τῶν ἐνόντων, may in conſtruction be ſo rendred, as that the two Accuſative Caſes ſhall be ſet by way of oppoſition, and both follow the Verb δότε, and then the meaning will be, give what you have, or as far as you are able, as far as all that you have will reach. This we know the injurious is bound to, in caſe of rapine, to reſtore all that he hath taken away, before he can hope for pardon; but in caſe he be not able to reſtore all, yet certainly he muſt go as far as he can, and that is the leaſt that will be accepted, (nay Zaccheus's example when he repented, may be fit in that caſe to be conſidered, who made a fourfold reſtitution to the injured perſon, and gave half of his goods to the poor, over and above) And he that either reſtores to the utmoſt, or doth it as far as is now in his power, he doth reſtore τὰ ἐνόντα in this ſenſe. But becauſe many caſes there are, wherein there is not place for exact reſtitution to the perſon injured, he may be gone, and all that have right to what was his, and the like, and in that caſe giving to the poor, in works of mercy or pity, is the only way left of reſtitution: and the like holds in other ſins, wherein tho' no other man be wrong'd, yet there is pollution contracted, and that muſt be cleanſed by ſome effectual works of repentance, and mercy to the poor, is ſpecified as an eminent work of this kind, Dan. 4.27. therefore in all theſe, and the like reſpects, the precept is here given more generally, to make uſe of theſe works of alms, where the caſe requires, as reſtitution where the caſe requires that, and even then, after Zacheus's example, alms alſo; and ſo the full of the precept is, τὰ ἐνόντα δότε ἐλεημοσύνην, give what you have in alms, even all that you have, where all is ill-gotten, and the whole lump is by that means unclean; or as much as you have taken by rapine, & oppreſſion, what ever that is, (with advantage) if you have ſo much: if you have not τὰ ἐνόντα, what you have will by Gods mercy be accepted. And ſo in other ſins, wherein others have not been injured, or wherein no reſtitution is required, ſtill a very liberal alms-giving is required, not only ſo much, as were every mans duty, abſtracted from theſe pollutions thus contracted (as alms-giving, we know is ſimply under precept, and ſome degree of it is our righteouſneſs, in the ſacred ſtyle, we are unjuſt if we perform it not) but in ſome proportion to a treſpaſs-offering, ſo much more, as a fruit of repentance, and a revenge on our ſelves, and an evidence of our true contrition for our ſins. And this in reſpect of the quotum, ſet down indefinitely (not defining the juſt proportion, but leaving that to our choice) τὰ ἐνόντα, what we have, or able to give, and not only ſome ſmall mite, unproportionable, as it would perhaps be interpreted, if it were here ἐκ τῶν ἐνόντων in Gemiſthus's notion premiſſed, as that is no more than ἐκ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων in Tobit, out of what thou haſt.

d. πάντα καθαρὰ.

Ib. Clean] The Arabick word for alms, Zachat, hath a double notion, ſay they, either of encreaſing, or cleanſing; the firſt, quia erogatio ejus conciliat benedictionem opibus, becauſe the giving alms obtains a bleſſing on the wealth, and ſo encreaſeth it, the ſecond, quòd opes ab inquinamento & animum ab avaritiæ ſordibus purgat, becauſe it purgeth the riches from the pollution and filthineſs that adheres to them, and the mind from from the ſullages of covetouſneſs, according to that of Mat. 6. If the eye be ſingle, that is, where the virtue of liberality is in the heart, the whole body is full of light, that is, of all Chriſtian virtues, contrary to the vices pointed at by the darkneſs that follows. In reference to this notion of the word in the Syriack, and Arabick, this ſeems to be here ſpoken by our Saviour, Give Alms, which comes from a word that ſignifies to cleanſe, and all ſhall be clean to you, your wealth ſhall be purg'd and bleſs'd, and your mind cleanſed alſo.

e. Οὐαὶ ὅτι φῶ κοδομᾶτε.

V. 47. Build the Sepulchres] The meaning of this paſſage being thus rendred, Wo unto you! that ye build the ſepulchres of the Prophets, and your fathers killed them, will ſoon appear, if it be obſerved 1. that the woes here ſo oft denounced in this and other places againſt the Phariſees, were for ſeveral acts of Hypocriſy in them. Now hypocriſy or perſonation, being the outward appearance, the diſguiſe or ſpecious attire, of an action, that is here ſet down by it ſelf, the vice that was diſguiſed, and endeavoured to be concealed under it, being not here named, but by their preſent actions (perſecuting Chriſt) viſible and notorious, and withal intimated by St. Mat. c. 23. 32. as if he had ſaid, Your building, and adorning the ſepulchres of the old Prophets which your fathers kill'd, is in you a ſolemn perſonation or hypocriſy, acting the parts of very pious men, that bear much reverence to them (and ſuch is your ſpeech, Mat. 23. 30. that if ye had lived in your fathers days, ye would not have had any hand in the killing the prophets.) Secondly, by obſerving the καὶ and, between the μαρτυρεῖτε ye bear witneſs, and the συνδοκεῖτε ye have a complacency with the deeds of your fathers; for that and conjoins two different things affirm'd of them by our Saviour, which are ordinarily confounded, Firſt, ye bear witneſs to the works of your fathers, ye teſtify to all men that your fathers kill'd the prophets that were ſent to them; and Secondly, ye like well, approve of their deeds, (not that by their building their tombs they expreſs'd that approbation, but that otherwiſe that was evidently ſeen) and tho' to diſguiſe this, ye adorn their ſepulchres, yet ye do really the ſame things that ye profeſs to condemn, and ſo are hypocrites in ſo doing: which is more diſtinctly ſet down by Matthew, when he adds in a prophetick ſtyle πληρώσατε fill ye up the meaſure of your fathers, noting their fathers ſins, that they diſclaim, to be of the ſame kind, but of an inferior degree to thoſe which they are now ready to practice, and ſo to bring upon them thoſe woes, that utter exciſion, which had not befall'n their fathers. Thirdly, by taking in into this period, that which both here, and in St. Matthew, is at the cloſe of it, I will ſend them Prophets and Apoſtles, and ſome of them they will ſlay and perſecute, to evidence them the generation of thoſe Vipers, whoſe practiſes they profeſs'd to diſlike, but do really imitate, which is the thing wherein their hypocriſy conſiſted, & upon which the judgment of hell came upon them.

Μαρτυρεῖτε καὶ συνδοκεῖτε.

f. Ἀποστομαλίζειν.

V. 53. Provoke] Ἀποστομαλίζειν in ordinary Greek is to recite without book, as a ſcholar doth a leſſon, ἀπὸ μνήμης λέγειν, ſaith Suidas and Phavorinus. And accordingly the place in Heſychius muſt be corrected, inſtead of ἀποστομίζειν, ἀποστομαλίζειν. But here by an Hebraiſm of uſing the active voice in the ſenſe of the Hebrew, * Hiphil, it ſignifies to make recite, and belongs to the Maſter of him that hears the other ſay his leſſon. So ſaith Suidas, the word is uſed ὅταν διδάσκαλος παιδία λέγειν ἅπαξ ἀπὸ στόματος, when a maſter bids a boy ſay, or recite, and Heſychius ἀπὸ μνήμης ἐξεῦν λέγειν to require one to ſay by heart, as Julius Pollux of the Paſſive, Ἀποστομαλίζεσθαι, ἐρωτᾶσθαι τὰ μαθήματα, to be asked or required, an account of what he hath learnt. Agreeably to this did they here ask Chriſt queſtions, and poze him, to hear what he could or would ſay, as an angry ſchoolmaſter that ſeeks occaſion of ſeverity againſt a ſcholar. Theophylact expounds it by πυκνῶς ἐρωτάω, and ἄλλα καὶ ἄλλα ἐρωτῶ, and παγιδεύω, asking often one queſtion after another, enſnaring.

CHAP. XII. Paraphraſe.

1. IN the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, inſomuch that they trod one upon another, he began to ſay unto his diſciples [firſt of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Phariſees, which is hypocriſy.]

1. Of all other dangers take ſpecial heed of the Phariſees, ſee Mat. 10. 17. (and Sadduces, Mat. 16. 6.) whoſe doctrine, expreſt by leaven, Mat. 16. 12. is full of hypocriſy, puffs them up into a great opinion of their own ſanctity, and hath an influence, like leven, to the ſowring of all their actions, and accordingly theſe men, though they make a great ſhew of piety, and may be apt to deceive you, and make you expect good from them, yet will they of all others be readieſt to betray you, Mat. 10. 17. &c.

2. For there is nothing covered, that ſhall not be revealed, neither hid, that ſhall not be known.

3. Therefore whatſoever ye have ſpoken in darkneſs, ſhall be heard in the light: and that which ye have ſpoken in the ear in cloſets, ſhall be proclaimed upon the houſe-tops.]

2, 3. This I ſay not, that you ſhould ſo beware as to be afraid of them, or conceal any part of your meſſage, I only fore-tell you your danger, that you may prudently combate with it, proclaim publickly to your faces whatſoever you have been taught by me, and not only ſecretly and whiſperingly, but publickly and confidently beat down this hypocriſy, and falſe doctrines of theirs (that that is the meaning of v. 2, 3. appears by comparing them with Mat. 10. 27. and Mar. 4. 22.)

4. And I ſay unto you, my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do.

5. But I will forewarn you whom you ſhall fear, Fear him which after he hath killed, hath power to caſt into hell, yea, I ſay unto you, fear him.]

4, 5. And let me tell you, as one friend would do another, that which is moſt for his intereſt that theſe Phariſees at the utmoſt can but kill the body, and when that is done, there is an end of their malice, and therefore 'tis much wiſer to fear diſpleaſing of God, (as you will do, if for fear of men you omit to diſcharge your duty) who as he will caſt both body and ſoul into hell, upon diſobedience and diſloyalty to his commands, ſo can, if he pleaſe, and will, if he ſee it beſt for you, preſerve you in the midſt of the greateſt dangers.

6. Are not five Sparrows ſold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?]

6. This is a work of that providence of his, that attendeth and watcheth over the ſmalleſt things in the world, the vileſt Sparrow or bird of the air, in every motion of it, is within the reach of Gods care.

7. But even the very hairs of your heads are all numbred, fear not therefore, ye are of more value then many ſparrows.]

7. And agreeably to that particular providence of his which extendeth to every event, you may reſolve of your ſelves, that God hath a moſt particular Providence over all that belongs to his ſervants. This will fortify you againſt all fear, whatſoever your dangers are, for ſure there is more value ſet on you, and care taken for your preſervation, then there is over all the Sparrows that are in the world.

8. But I ſay unto you, Whoſoever ſhall confeſs me before men, him alſo ſhall the ſon of man confeſs before the Angels of God.]

8. And this encouragement you have, that your fearleſs Confeſſion of Chriſt and his truth ſhall be rewarded with his owning you in the day of judgment (which ſure is more to your advantage then any thing you can acquire by compliance with the world.)

9. But he that denieth me before men, ſhall be denied before the Angels of God.]

9. Whereas the contrary fear, or cowardiſe, or falling off from your duty, ſhall cauſe Chriſt to diſclaim you, when you have moſt need of him.

10. Here are added by St. Luke words ſpoken by Chriſt on another occaſion, 12.38. and ſeem to be applied by him to the aggravation of the ſin of the Phariſees, on occaſion of whom this whole Paſſage from v. 1. was delivered. That they that by the meanneſs of Chriſts humane appearance are tempted to deny him to be the Meſſias, and do accordingly oppoſe him, may have ſome place for pardon, and be in ſome degree excuſable, but they that attribute his works of power (his miracles done viſibly by the finger of God) to the working of the devil in him, there is no place of excuſe and mercy for them, if they do not, upon the reſurrection of Chriſt, and the Apoſtles preaching it to them, return and repent, and effectually receive Chriſt.

10. And whoſoever ſhall ſpeak a word againſt the ſon of man, it ſhall be forgiven him: but unto him that blaſphemeth againſt the holy Ghoſt it ſhall not be forgiven.]

11. This being ſaid of them, as in a parentheſis, he returns to other paſſages of that ſpeech of Chriſts, Mat. 10.9. when they bring you before Conſiſtories, (ſee note Mat. 6. d. Jam. 2. b.)

11. And when they bring you unto the ſynagogues] and unto magiſtrates and powers, take ye no thought how or what things ye ſhall anſwer, or what ye ſhall ſay.

12. See Mar. 13. 11.

12. For the holy Ghoſt ſhall teach you in the ſame hour what ye ought to ſay.]

13. Sir, there is a controverſy between my brother and me, about the dividing our patrimony, I deſire to avoid the delays of a ſuit at law, and to do as it is ordinary, refer it to arbitration, and who ſo fit as you our Maſter, to conclude it between us your diſciples and followers.

13. And one of the company ſaid unto him, [Maſter, ſpeak to my brother that he divide the inheritance with me.]

14. But he (knowing what had happened to Moſes when he would have made peace among the Jews, Exod. 2. 14. Who made thee a Prince or a Judge over us?) gave them an anſwer which the Evangeliſt ſets down in the ſame words, wherein the Greek rendred the Hebrew there, that is, I will not be liable to ſuch objections from men, as were then ungratefully made againſt Moſes, I will not meddle with your matters of intereſt, wherein he that is not awarded what he deſires, will think himſelf unjuſtly dealt with.

14. And he ſaid unto him, Man, who made me a judge or divider over you?]

15. All that I ſhall ſay to you, is, That the deſire of wealth, the labour to encreaſe your own by leſſening another Man's Poſſeſſions, the not being content with what you have, is a ſin of great danger, diligently to be avoided, and indeed that which doth no Man any good. For though poſſeſſions are uſeful to ſuſtain life, yet no Man is able to prolong his Life, or to make it any thing more happy or comfortable to him, by poſſeſſing more then he needs or uſes, that is, by any ſuperfluity of wealth. The only way to be the better for the wealth of the World, is to diſpoſe and diſtribute it to the ſervice of God, and benefit and comfort of others, ver. 21.

15. And he ſaid unto them, Take heed and beware of covetouſneſs, for * a mans life conſiſteth not in the abundance of the things which he poſſeſſeth.]

* 'tis not in any mans having ſuperfluous, that his life from his poſſeſſions conſiſts. Or, no mans life, if he have never ſo much abundance, depends on his poſſeſſions, οὐκ ἐν τῇ περισσείᾳ τινὸς ἡ ζωὴ αὐτῷ ἔστιν ἐκ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων αὐτῷ.

16. To which purpoſe Chriſt ſpake and applied the parable following.

16. And he ſpake a parable unto them, ſaying,] The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully.

17. And he contriv'd, and caſt within himſelf in his thoughts what he ſhould do with all that Plenty which was ſo much greater then his barns could hold.

17. And he thought within himſelf, ſaying, What ſhall I do, becauſe I have no room where to beſtow my fruits?]

18,19. And his reſolution was, that he would pull down his barns, & build bigger, and lay up all in them, (never thinking of giving others any of that which he knew not what to do with) and then he ſhould be an happy man, have wealth enough for many years plentiful, voluptuous, feſtival living, pleaſing himſelf, and entertaining others.

18. And he ſaid, This I will do, I will pull down my barns and build greater, and there will I beſtow all my fruits and my goods.

19. And I will ſay to my ſoul, Soul, thou haſt much goods laid up for many years, take thine eaſe, eat, drink, and † be merry.]

† feaſt, εὐφραίνου.

20. But God ſaid unto him, Thou fool, this night * thy ſoul ſhall be required of thee: then whoſe ſhall thoſe things be which thou haſt provided?

* do they require thy ſoul from thee. See note on c. 16 b.

21. This is directly the caſe of any man that makes no uſe of his encreaſe and plenty, ſave only to poſſeſs it, and provide for himſelf by it, never thinking of employing that which he hath to ſpare, to the relieving the poor, or otherwiſe to the ſervice of God.

21. So is he that layeth up treaſure for himſelf, and is not rich towards God.]

22. To which purpoſe of truſting Gods providence, in oppoſition to covetouſneſs, is that which is ſaid at another time, Mat. 6. 25.

22. And he ſaid unto his diſciples, Therefore I ſay unto you] take no thought for your life, what ye ſhall eat; neither for the body, what ye ſhall put on.

23. The life is more then meat, and the body is more then raiment:

24. Conſider the ravens, for they neither ſow nor reap, which neither have ſtorehouſe nor barn, and God feedeth them: how much more are ye better then the fowls?

25. And which of you with taking thought can add to his * ſtature one cubit?

* age. See Mat. 6. note m.

26. If ye then be not able to do that which is leaſt, why take ye thought for [the reſt?]

26. Other things, which are greater, and ſo in proportion harder then thoſe, and depend as little on your ſolicitude.

27. Conſider the lilies how they grow, they toyl not, they ſpin not: and yet I ſay unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of theſe.

28. The flowers, ſee note on Mat. 6. p.

28. If then God ſo cloath [the graſs] which is to day in the field, and to morrow is caſt into the oven, how much more will he cloath you, O ye of little faith?

29. And be not diſturb'd with thoughts and anxiety, Mat. 6. 31.

29. And ſeek not ye what ye ſhall eat, or what ye ſhall drink, [neither be ye a * of doubtful mind.]

* ſolicitous.

30. For all theſe things do the nations of the world ſeek after: and your Father knoweth that you have need of theſe things.

31. But rather ſeek ye the kingdom of God, and all theſe things ſhall be added unto you.

32. Entertain no ſolicitudes for ſuch things as theſe; for your Father which deſtin'd you to an everlaſting kingdom will not fail to allow you your portion here of thoſe things that are uſeful for you.

32. Fear not little flock, for it is your Fathers good pleaſure to give you the kingdom.]

33. Mat. 6. 19.

33. Sell that ye have and give alms, provide your ſelves bags that wax not old, a treaſure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth.

34. For where your treaſure is, there will your heart be alſo.

35. Be ye as ſervants attending their maſters buſineſs, ready whenſoever he commands them any thing, or hath any buſineſs for them.

35. Let your loyns be b girded about, and your lights burning,]

36. Like the attendants on a bridegroom (who, whenſoever he comes from the marriage Feaſt to the chamber, comes haſtily, and is not patient of any delays) always ready to anſwer at the firſt knock.

36. And ye your ſelves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when he will return from the wedding, that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.]

37. Bleſſed are thoſe ſervants, whom the Lord when he cometh ſhall find watching, Verily I ſay unto you, that he ſhall gird himſelf, and make them ſit down to meat, and will come forth and ſerve them.

37, 38. As in that caſe 'tis a great happineſs for a ſervant to be found ready, becauſe by that means he may attend his maſter, (whereas if at that minute

38. And if he ſhall come in the ſecond watch, or * come in the third watch, and find them ſo, bleſſed are thoſe ſervants.]

* or in the 3d watch, & when he comes, find; for the K's MS. τρίτη φυλακῇ, καὶ ἐλθὼν εὕρῃ.

he be out of the way, he utterly loſes him) and as a reward of that diligence, the bridegroom will entertain his ſervants, ſet them down, and wait upon them himſelf, ſo is it a bleſſed thing to be found employed as Chriſt would have us, whenſoever he comes to call on us, and in order to that to be always ready, not to fall off from him in the leaſt manner.

39. And this know, that if the good man of the houſe had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have ſuffered his houſe to be broken through.]

39. And as Chriſts coming will be to the rewarding of all faithful ſervants, perſevering believers, ſo will it be to deſtroy all lethargick ſtupid impenitents, who by their own negligence lie open to all that vengeance that thus lights on them.

40. Be ye therefore ready alſo, for the ſon of man cometh at an hour that ye think not.]

40. And therefore to avoid that danger alſo, it concerns all to be perpetually upon their guard, becauſe this coming of Chriſt to viſit and puniſh is like to be ſudden, but the time uncertain. See Mat. 24. 43.

41. Then Peter ſaid unto him, Lord, ſpeakeſt thou this parable [to us or even to all?]

41. Peculiarly to us thy conſtant attendants, or to all Chriſtians?

42. And the Lord ſaid, [Who then is that faithful and wiſe ſteward, whom his Lord ſhall make ruler over his houſhold, to give them their portion of meat in due ſeaſon?

42,43. The parable doth in ſeveral degrees belong to every Chriſtian, who hath ſome truſt committed to him by Chriſt, and muſt be very careful to diſcharge it, (ſee Mat. 24. 45.) to you as ſtewards here, to all Chriſtians as ſervants, v. 43. and no mans truſt is ſo mean, that diligence in it ſhall not be rewardable. But to them again with ſome difference, as they have received more or leſs of divine revelation, immediately, or mediately, v. 47.

43. Bleſſed is that ſervant whom his Lord when he cometh ſhall find ſo doing.]

44. Of a truth I ſay unto you, that he will make him ruler of all that he hath.]

44. And be he never ſo meanly employed God will reward his truſtineſs and diligence with committing to him the greateſt truſts, ſee Mat. 24. 47. the greateſt office of dignity in the Church.

45. But and if that ſervant ſay in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming [and ſhall begin to beat the men-ſervants and maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken.]

45. And upon that conſideration abuſe that truſt & power repoſed in him as a ſteward, deal injuriouſly with thoſe that are under his rule, and ſpend his maſters goods riotouſly, and luxuriouſly.

46. The Lord of that ſervant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not ware, and will cut him in ſunder, and appoint him his portion [with the unbelievers.]

46. With the untruſty falſe ſtewards, the unbelieving Jews, which have not reform'd upon all Chriſts preaching unto them.

47. And that ſervant which knew his Lords will, and prepared not himſelf, neither did according to his will, ſhall be beaten with many ſtripes.

49. It is to be expected as a conſequent of my coming into the world, that perſecution ſhould attend, Mat. 10. 34. and this will be a means of exploring and trying who are faithful, and who are not, and therefore I am ſo far from wiſhing this otherwiſe, that I rather deſire that it were already kindled or begun.

51. Suppoſe ye that I came to give peace on earth? I tell you nay, but rather diviſions.

51,52,53. Soon after my departing, great diviſions & feuds will break out concerning me, the whole land ſhall be divided into factions, and civil broyls, Mat. 10. 34. & 24. 7.

52. For from henceforth there ſhall be five in one houſe divided, three againſt two, and two againſt three.

53. The father ſhall be divided againſt the ſon, and the ſon againſt the father, and the mother againſt the daughter, and the daughter againſt the mother, the mother-in-law againſt the daughter-in-law, and the daughter-in-law againſt her mother-in-law.]

55. And when ye ſee the South wind blow, ye ſay, There will be heat; and it cometh to paſs.

56. Ye hypocrites, ye can diſcern the face of the ſky and of the earth: but how is it that ye do not diſcern this * time?]

* ſeaſon, καιρὸν.

56. Ye that can judge by ſight of the ſkyes, and the winds, what will befal, Why ſhould ye not have as great ſagacity to diſcern and preſage the judgments that are near approaching towards this nation, if they do not ſuddenly repent, and receive Chriſt:

57. Yea, and why even of your ſelves judge ye not what is † right?

† Fit, δίκαιον.

57,58. And why do you not (without need of looking upon the ſkyes for the preſage) by the ſame rational way of judging, in which you proceed in other matters, uſe the ſame prudence in divine matters of danger, which you do in humane worldly contentions? and ſo when you ſee an action coming againſt you, wherein you are ſure to be caſt, ſet preſently to reconcile the adverſary, to make your peace and eſcape the danger? (to which purpoſe was this which Chriſt ſaid at another time, Mat. 5. 25.)

58. When thou goeſt with thine adverſary to the Magiſtrate, while thou art in the way, give diligence that thou mayeſt be delivered from him; leſt he hale thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer caſt thee into priſon.]

59. I tell thee, thou ſhalt not depart thence till thou haſt paid the very laſt mite.

Annotations on Chap. XII.

a. Μετεωρίζεσθαι.

V.29. Of doubtful mind] Μετεωρίζεσθαι signifies primarily and literally to be carried up high into the air, as clouds or birds flying there; which because they have no firm foundation there, but are toſt and driven about uncertainly, hence it ſignifies, firſt, ῥέμβεσθαι vagari in Stephanus's Gloſſary, to think of this, and that without any conſiſtence of mind, μετεωρος ὁ μὴ σταθερὸς τὸν νοῦν, he that hath no fixedneſs of mind; and ſo intention of thoughts in prayer is ἀμετεωριστον ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ, on the other ſide in * St. Baſils Aſcetick rules, μετεωρισμὸς ἀκαιρος, importune wandring of thoughts in prayer, (proceeding from former company and unprofitable diſcourſe) ἀπειρημένος ἐστι, is forbidden, and ſo ἀκροασις ἀμετεώριστος, in Nyſſen, is attention of hearing. Chryſoſtom, εἰς τὸ ἱππικόν. Ἀμετεωρίστως ἀτενίζειν εἰς μαππάριον, to look earneſtly, without ever looking off, on him that holds up the mappa or white cloath in the races. Secondly, the word ſignifies to hang, as the clouds do in the air, in an impatient ſuſpenſe or anxiety, as in † Lucians Icaromenip. μετεωρος ὑπὸ τῶν λόγων is explained by ἐκ τῶν ὤτων ἀπηρτημένος, one that had his ears gaping, as it were impatient and very deſirous to hear an end of the ſtory. So in Philoleg. ad Caium, πᾶσα ἡ πόλις μετεωρος, ἀκοῆς δι' ὥραν βελτίονος, all the city was in an anxious ſuſpence, thirſting after ſome better news. So Ecclus. 26.12. μετεωρισμοὶ ὀφθαλμῶν ſeems to ſignify the ſuſpence, anxious, earneſt gazing of the eyes, ſuch as there is ſet as a Character of a libidinous perſon; and ſo it ſeems the phraſe is uſed among the Hebrews. For ſo in the Jeruſalem Targum on *Gen.*49.22. Oculos ſuſpendere, & unam earum intueri, to hang the eyes, &c. is ſet to ſignify an amorous or luſtful look upon a woman. From hence again 'tis clearly, to be in doubt, and uncertainty of reſolution, as in Agathias, l. 2. ſpeaking of the cities of Italy, they were, ſaith he, μετεωρα καὶ διάδηλα, doubtful and ambiguous, ἐφ' ὁπότερα χωρήσοιεν ἀμφιγνοοῦντα, not knowing to which part they ſhould betake themſelves, in the ſame manner, as αἴρειν ψυχὴν, to lift up the mind is to keep in ſuſpence, John 10.24. So in Dorotheus * διδασκαλ. 1. διαφορᾶν and μετεωρίζεσθαι are all one, when one is not intent on what he hath in hand, but is uncertain, and indifferent which to take to, all one with ἀσκόπως περιφέρεσθαι following, being carried about without any certain aim. Thus it ſeems to ſignify in this place, where, as a piece of ὀλιγοπιστία, littleneſs of faith, if not infidelity, is forbidden this doubtful anxiety, and ſolicitude concerning Gods Providence, this uncertainty of mind, betwixt hope and fear, μέριμνα ſolicitude, being put by St. Matthew inſtead of it in the place particularly parallel to this verſe, *c.*6.31. and ſo expreſſed in the former part of this chapter, v. 22. & 25. and ſo ſaith Theophylact, μεριμνᾶν, ἤτοι τὸ μετεωρισμὸν ἀπαγορεύει, he forbids ſolicitous care under that phraſe. Thus doth pendere, to hang, ordinarily ſignify in Latin, and ἄνω κρεμᾶσθαι to be above in Demoſthenes, De coron. the very paraphraſe of this word, μετεωρίζεσθαι, in the native ſignification of it.

b. Περιζώννυσθαι.

V.35. Girded about] Beſide the general uſe of girding for putting on cloaths, frequent in theſe books, as John 21.7. διεζώσατο ἱματιοδύτην, he girt on his upper garment, and v. 18. thou didſt gird thy ſelf, that is, dreſs or cloath thy ſelf at thine own will (and from hence, in a ſenſe ſomewhat varied, in the end of the ſame verſe, another ſhall gird thee, that is, bind thee as a priſoner or captive, as I conceive it alſo is Job 12.18. where girding is ſet oppoſite to looſing of bonds) three ſorts of men there are in theſe books which are proverbially ſaid to be girt, 1. The Jewiſh Prieſts, Lev. 16.4. who had a linnen girdle, and the high Prieſt one embroidered with gold, &c. *Exod.*39.5. after whoſe example the ſon of man is brought in, *Rev.*1. 13. ἐνδεδυμένον ποδήρη, καὶ περιεζωσμένον πρὸς τοῖς μαστοῖς ζώνην χρυσῆν, cloathed in a long garment, and girt about the breaſts with a golden girdle, and ſo the ſeven Angels, *Rev.*15. 6. Secondly, Soldiers whoſe military girdle was ſo ſpecial a part of their armour, that in Homer, ζώνη ſignifies the whole military ὁπλισμὸς armature, and ζώννυσθαι to be girt, is ὁπλίζεσθαι to be armed, ſaith Euſtathius in Iliad. β, and λ, and Suidas in like manner, that ζώννυσθαι to be girt, is καθοπλίζεσθαι, to be armed. Hence it is, that diſcincti, ungirt, ſignifies the unarmed, and 2 Kings 3. 21. where we read as many as were able to put on armour, the Greek literally from the Hebrew hath it, περιεζωσμένοι ζώνην, girt with a girdle. So 1 Kings 20.11. the girt and ungirt are the armed and unarmed (tho' I know not by what miſtake the Greek hath ψιλὸς and ὁπλὸς) and to this ſort of the military girdle or belt, belongs that place of *Epheſ.*6. 14. having your loyns girt, where the truth, that is, Orthodox profeſſion of the Goſpel, in oppoſition to Heretical doctrines and practices is deſigned to be this girdle, which keeps all their armour cloſe about them. Thirdly, ſervants or waiters, who ſerve at tables, who having their cloaths, after the Eaſtern manner, looſe and long, and flying about, found it neceſſary to gird themſelves, that they might do ſervice the more readily; ſo in race, ——Succinctus curſitat hoſpes,

Continuatque dapes, nec non vernaliter ipſis
Fungitur officiis—— of a maſter waiting at his table, as a ſervant. So in Propertius the officers at ſacred feaſts, ſuccincti popæ; ſo when Job 12.18. the Greek reads fitly out of the Hebrew περιέδησεν ζώνη ὀσφύας αὐτῶν, God bound their loyns about with a girdle, Olympiodorus expounds it: μεταβάλλων αὐτοὺς εἰς ὑπέτας, he turns them into ſervants. And ſo here in this place, let your loyns be girt, being here an expreſſion of thoſe that expect the commands of their maſter (as alſo that of their lamps burning, if you compare it with *Mat.*25.7.) and ſo v. 37. when he ſaith of the Maſter, that he will gird himſelf, and wait upon them. So Luke 17. 8. when the maſter ſaith to the ſervant, περιζωσάμενος διακόνει μοι, gird thy ſelf and miniſter to me. And ſo Joh. 13.4. Chriſt when he went to waſh the diſciples feet, that is to perform that ſervants office, λαβὼν λέντιον διέζωσεν ἑαυτὸν, he took a linnen cloath, and girded himſelf, that ſo he might ſhew that he came διακονηθῆναι ἀλλὰ διακονῆσαι, not to be miniſtred unto, but to miniſter, *Mat.*26.28. And that 'tis ſo in this place alſo, appears both by the mention of their Lord, whom they wait for *v.*36. and the μακάριοι οἱ δοῦλοι, happy are thoſe watching ſervants, *v.*37.

V.49. What will I] The particle εἰ which is ordinarily rendred if, is oft an Optative, or expreſſion of wiſh or deſire. So *c.*19.42. εἰ ἔγνως, if thou kneweſt, for O that thou kneweſt, ſo *c.*22.42. εἰ βούλει, if thou wilt, for, O that thou wouldeſt. So *Num.*22.29. *Joſ.*7.7. Job 16.14. and ſo in Moſes's ſpeech to God, Lord, if thou wilt forgive them. And this moſt clearly from the various uſe of the Hebrew לוּא or לוּ which ſignifies both ſi and utinam, if, and would to God. And thus may it be here, εἰ ἤδη ἀνήφθη, O that it were already kindled, and then the latter part will be an anſwer to the queſtion propoſed in the former, thus, τί θέλω; what do I deſire? Beyond all things that it were already kindled. Another of rendring the words will bear, what do I deſire if it were already kindled? that is, I deſire no more but this: Or again by rendring the τί as if it were πῶς how do I deſire that it were already kindled? But as all theſe come to the ſame ſenſe, ſo the former ſeems the more eaſy and natural; unleſs we prefer that other reading which we find in Marcus Eremita, * De baptiſ. καὶ ἤθελον εἰ ἤδη ἀνήφθη, and I would be pleaſed, or glad, if it were already kindled. As for the fire here, altho' that may ſignify only a purgative fire, and intimate Chriſt's deſire of purifying the world from the droſs of ſin, for which he came, Tit. 2. 14. and to refer to the coming of the Holy Ghoſt, who appeared in fire, Acts 2. yet it rather ſeems to be reſtrained by the Context to the fire of perſecution, all one with diviſion, v. 51. which though it cauſe ſome ſmart, yet it hath very uſeful qualities, as that of exploring ring or trying, in which reſpect 'tis ſaid, 1 Cor. 11.19. there muſt be diviſions among you, that they that are approved (tryed, and found right in this fire) may be made manifeſt among you. And that this ſhould be conſequent to Chriſts coming, ſee v.52. &c. & Luke 2. 35. that of trying, *Heb.*4.12. Luke 2.35. who are faithful adherents to him, who not. Which is the ſpecial work of fire, and the effect of perſecution for Chriſts ſake.

d. Ἐχω βαπτ. V.50. A baptiſm] The phraſe ἔχω βαπτισθῆναι is all one with μέλλω the note of the future. So 2 Eſd. 4. 45. habet venire is uſed for μέλλει ἔρχεσθαι, is to come. And in the Athanaſian Creed ἀναστήσονται they ſhall riſe, is rendred in Latin, habent reſurgere. So in * Chryſoſtom, ἔχει διακεῖσθαι for μέλλει, and again δεδάξαι ἔχει, that is ἔμελλε, and ſo † oft in Lactantius, quòd carne indui haberet in terra, that is, that he was to be incarnate; and again, quòd plurimæ ſectæ & hæreſes haberent exiſtere, that there ſhould be many ſects and hereſies.

CHAP. XIII. Paraphraſe.

1. THere were preſent at that ſeaſon ſome that told him of the [Galileans, whoſe blood Pilate had mingled with their ſacrifices.]

1. Galileans, a faction of Judas Gaulonita, which taught doctrines contrary to ſubjection to the Roman Empire, whom, it is thought, Pilate ſet upon, and killed when they were offering ſacrifice, and powred out their blood, as the blood of beaſts was poured out in the ſacrifices.

2. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto them, Suppoſe ye that theſe Galileans were ſinners above all the Galileans, becauſe they ſuffered ſuch things?

3. I tell ye, nay: but [except ye repent ye ſhall all likewiſe periſh.]

3. If you continue your preſent wicked practices, raiſing ſedition under pretence of piety, as frequently you are apt to do (ſee Titus Boſtrenſis, p.803. C.) then as they periſhed at the day of Paſcha at their ſacrifice, ſo ſhall a multitude of you on that very day, (ſee Joſephus of the Jewiſh war, l.6. c.11. and l. 7. c.17. and Euſeb. Eccl. Hiſt. l.3. c.5.) in the Temple be ſlaughtered like ſheep, and that for the ſame cauſe, a ſedition raiſed in the city.

4. Or thoſe eighteen on whom the tower in Siloe fell and ſlew them, think ye that they were ſinners above all men that dwelt in Jeruſalem?

5. I tell you nay, but except ye repent, ye ſhall all [likewiſe periſh.]

5. Periſh in the ruins of the whole city, as they of that tower.

6. He ſpake alſo this parable] a certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and ſought fruit thereon and found none.

6. And he ſpake a parable to them, of which this is the plain meaning, This people hath long been unprofitable, made no returns to all Gods husbandry beſtowed upon them, and yet God hath given them ſpace to repent, and ſent his Son to dreſs and manure them, and if this do not work upon them, there is nothing to be expected but deſtruction and exciſion. The parable was this, A certain man, &c.

7. Then ſaid he unto the dreſſer of his vineyard, Behold, theſe three years I come ſeeking fruit on this fig-tree, and find none: Cut it down, why cumbreth it the ground?

8. And he anſwering, ſaid unto him, Lord, let it alone this year alſo, till I ſhall dig about it, and dung it.

9. And if it bear fruit well:] and if not, then after that thou ſhalt cut it down.

9. And perhaps it will bear fruit, or, make this experiment, whether it will bear fruit or no.

10. And he was teaching in one of the ſynagogues on the Sabbath.

11. And behold, there was a woman which had [a ſpirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wiſe lift up her ſelf.]

11. Sore diſeaſe inflicted on her by the devil, v.16. for the ſpace of eighteen years, and ſhe did ſo extreamly ſtoop, that ſhe could hardly ſee the heavens.

12. And when Jeſus ſaw her, he called her unto him, and ſaid unto her, Woman thou art looſed from [thine infirmity.]

12. Thy diſeaſe.

13. And he laid his hands on her, and immediately ſhe was made ſtreight, and glorified God.

14. And [the ruler of the ſynagogue anſwered with indignation, becauſe that Jeſus had healed on the ſabbath-day, and ſaid unto the people, There are ſix days in which men are to work;] in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the ſabbath-day.

14. The head of the Conſiſtory being angry that Jeſus did cures on the ſabbath, gave command to the multitude, ſaying, There are ſix days, in the compaſs of which men ought to do all the work, which they do in the week.

15. The Lord then anſwered him and ſaid, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the ſabbath-day looſe his ox or his aſs from the * ſtall, and lead him away to watering?

* ſtable, ſee c.2. note c.

16. And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham [whom Satan hath bound, lo, theſe eighteen years, be looſed from this bond] on the ſabbath-day?

16. On whom ſatan hath inflicted a ſore diſeaſe of 18 years duration, be cured of this diſeaſe.

17. And when he had ſaid theſe things, all his adverſaries were aſhamed, and all the people rejoyced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18. Then ſaid he, Unto what is the kingdom of God like? and whereunto ſhall I reſemble it?

19. It is like a grain of muſtard-ſeed, which a man took and caſt into his garden, and it grew and waxed a a great tree, and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.

19. Mat. 13. 31. a.

20. And again he ſaid, Whereunto ſhall I liken the kingdom of God?

21. It is like leven, which a woman took and hid in three meaſures of meal, till the whole was leavened.]

21. Mat. 13. 33.

22. And he went through the cities and villages teaching, and journeying toward Jeruſalem.

23. Then ſaid one unto him, Lord,] are there few that * ſhall b be ſaved? And he ſaid unto them,]

* eſcape. b.

23. Is the doctrine of the Goſpel likely to be receiv'd by the generality of men, or only by a few diſciples of us? and the reply that Chriſt made to this queſtion, was to adviſe him and all others.

24. Strive to enter at the ſtraight gate: for many, I ſay unto you, will ſeek to enter in, and ſhall not be able.]

24. That they ſhould not be led away with the example of the many that neglected the preſent opportunity, and after would not find admiſſion, when they ſhould deſire it, either into the Church here, or the kingdom of God at the day of doom, That the Goſpel ſhould at length be removed from the obſtinate Jews, and conſequently heaven alſo.

25. When

25. When once the Maſter of the houſe is riſen up, and hath ſhut to the door, and ye begin to ſtand without, and to knock at the door, ſaying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and ye ſhall anſwer and ſay unto you, I know you not whence you are.

26. Then ſhall ye begin to ſay, We have eaten and drunk in thy preſence, and thou haſt taught in our ſtreets.

27. But he ſhall ſay, I tell you, I know you not whence you are; depart from me all ye workers of iniquity.]

25,26,27. That a great deal of timely care and induſtry and contention was required to get the end of our Chriſtian faith & hope, and that a little formal ſeeking of him, a deſiring the reward upon no farther pretences, then that the Goſpel hath been preached among them, that they have eat and drunk in Chriſts preſence, nay that they have by him been enabled to work miracles, Mat.7.22.&c. would not ſerve the turn, without a careful and due performance of all that Chriſt requires of us. As for others, be their pretences and confidences never ſo great, they ſhall at the day of Judgment be utterly rejected, and their wicked doings rewarded with everlaſting fire.

28. There ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth, when ye ſhall ſee Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and you your ſelves thruſt out.]

28. And then what a reſtleſs torment will it be to you, to ſee the fathers of the old world, that never ſaw or heard Chriſt preach among them, as you confeſs you have, received by God into his kingdom, and you rejected? Mat.8. 11,12.

29. And they ſhall come from the eaſt, and from the weſt, and from the north, and from the ſouth, and ſhall ſit down in the kingdom of God.]

29. And tho' but few Jews ſhould receive the faith, yet diſciples ſhall come in to Chriſt from all the quarters of the world, and by him in the Church be received and entertained, as at a feaſt (which is a farther anſwer to the queſtion, v.23.) and ſo conſequently bear the Patriarchs company in heaven.

30. And behold there are laſt which ſhall be firſt, and there are firſt which ſhall be laſt.]

30. And they that are now afar off, the Gentiles, ſhall be admitted to his favour, while the preſent Jews through their obduration ſhall be caſt out, v.28.

31. The ſame day there came certain of the Phariſees, ſaying unto him, Get thee out, and depart hence, for Herod will kill thee.

31. Upon his inſtructing the people and doing miracles in this manner, ſome of the Phariſees unwilling that they ſhould thus ſee his power, and hear his doctrine, were very deſirous to have him gone, and for a pretence ſuggeſted the danger that he was in from Herod, if he ſhould ſtay any longer, ſaying, Go out of Galilee, Herod's Juriſdiction; for if thou ſtay here, he will put thee to death.

32. And he ſaid unto them, Go ye, and tell * that fox, Behold, I caſt out devils, and I do cures to day and to morrow, and the third day I ſhall be perfected.]

32. And Chriſt (according to his prophetick office, which gave prophets authority to reprehend all, were they never ſo great in this world, and their commiſſion to the execution of that office made them ſuperiour to all to whom they were ſent, Jer. 1.8,9,10.) anſwered them, ſaying, Go tell that great Artificer, or ſubtile diſguiſed perſon, Herod (by the manner alſo of the expreſſion, * left dubious, intimating the ſubtilty of the Phariſees, diſguiſed by them, but by him diſcerned, who by the mention of Herods deſign to kill him, thought to drive him out of their coaſts) that I attend the decree of my Father, and in the mean time perform the office for which I was ſent, not fearing what he can do unto me. Behold, I caſt out devils, cure diſeaſes for a while at preſent; and after a while when my courſe is finiſhed, I am to ſuffer to death.

33. Nevertheleſs * I [c] muſt walk to day, and to morrow, and the day following, for it cannot be that a prophet periſh out of Jeruſalem.]

33. In the mean time I muſt do what I do, and then go and ſuffer at Jeruſalem, being deſigned by my father firſt to do theſe works, and then to die there, that being the place where all people have been wont to be put to death, at the councel of the great Sanhedrim, and where, tho' capital judgments are now taken from the Jews, yet the prophets are to be tried.

See Mat.23. 39.

34. O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem, which killeſt the prophets and ſtoneſt them that are ſent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, as * an hen doth gather her brood [d] under her wings, and ye would not.]

Annotations on St. Luke, Chap. XIII.

a. Κόκκου σινάπεως.

V. 19. A great tree] That a muſtard-ſeed grows into a tree, is affirmed, Mat. 13. 32. and thereupon it is there ſaid that it is μεῖζον λαχάνων, not the greateſt of herbs, or things that grow of ſeeds, but (as μεῖζον imports) greater then ſuch, and therefore it follows there, that it becometh a tree, and here that tree a great one, δένδρον μέγα. This is not to be meaſured by what we ſee of this ſeed among us, but by conſidering the Hebrew ſoyl and clime, of which this is ordinarily affirmed among their Authors. In the Babyloniſh Talmud. Ketub. fol. 3. there is mention of three boughs of חרדל or muſtard, one of which being broken off from the reſt, yielded nine kabs of ſeed, and the wood thereof was ſufficient to cover a little houſe. So in the Jeruſalem Talmud, Pcah, *c.*7. there is mention of a bough yielded three Kabs of that ſeed. And again in the ſame place, of a ſtem or bough of muſtard, which Simon the ſon of Chalaphta had in his garden, into which he could climb up as into a fig-tree. And therefore agreeably to this it is that our Saviour here ſpeaks ſo great things of it. And whereas it is ſaid, Mat. 13. 32. that it is the leaſt of all ſeeds, altho' among us, ſome other ſeeds may be found leſs then that, Rue and Poppy, yet it is not neceſſary it ſhould be ſo there. However it is apparent, that the ſmalneſs of it was Proverbial among them, and is therefore mentioned by Maimonides, More Neb. P.1. C.56. and ſet oppoſite to the Firmament, the one as an inſtance of the ſmalleſt, the other of the greateſt magnitude.

b. Σῴζεσθαι.

V. 23. Saved] What is the notion of σώζεσθαι in the New Teſtament hath already been touched on, Note on Mat. 10. n. ſee Mat. 19.6. And for a fuller declaring of it, it will not be amiſs firſt to obſerve it in the Old Teſtament, there the Hebrew reciprocal המלם and חונצל, ſaving, or delivering, himſelf, from מלט, and נצל are ordinarily rendred σῴζεσθαι, and ῥύεσθαι, to be ſaved, or delivered, and ordinarily ſignify elabi or evadere, to evade, or eſcape. So Gen. 19.9. οὐ δυνήσομαι ζωθῆναι εἰς τὸ ὄρος, I cannot eſcape to the mountain, in the ſame ſenſe, that φεύγειν εἰς τὰ ὄρη, flying to the mountains, *Mat.*24.16. So Gen. 19. 22. מהר המלט תמה, the Septuag. reads, σπεῦσον τοῦ ζωθῆναι ἐκεῖ, make haſte to eſcape thither, where to eſcape is to get out of the reach of Sodom, the place which was then to be deſtroyed, and flee as to a ſanctuary, to that other city. So 1 *Sam.*19. 12. ἀπῆλθε καὶ ἔφυγε καὶ σώζεται, he departed and fled and eſcaped. So Joel 2.32. whoſoever ſhall call upon the name of the Lord, ימלט, ſhall eſcape, or ζωθήσεται, ſhall be ſaved, in that ſenſe, *Rom.*10.13. So Iſa. 45.20. where Symmachus reads, οἱ διαπεφευγότες τῶν ἐθνῶν, they that eſcape of the nations, the Septuagint reads, οἱ ζωζόμενοι τῶν ἐθνῶν, the ſaved of the nations. So *Iſa.*49.6. the preſerved of Iſrael, and *Eccl.*39.9. ὁ ζωζόμενος, he that eſcapes, or is ſaved. So of the ſick man, John 11. 12. If he ſleep, σωθήσεται he will eſcape, and Acts 27. 20, 21. ζωθῆναι ἐλπὶς ἦν, ye cannot eſcape the ſhipwrack, ſo 'twas ſhew'd to ſignify, Mat. 24. 22. οὐκ ἂν ἐσώθη πᾶσα σὰρξ, the tribulation was ſo great, that if it had not been ſhortned by God, no Few had eſcaped, but but for the ſake of ἐκλεκτοὺς (which (as it was ſhew'd there) denotes the remnant which by Gods promiſe was to be preſerved, and which is all one with Σωζόμενοι) the days were promiſed to be ſhortned. So διασώζεσθαι is uſed, Acts 28.1. and is ordinarily rendred, eſcaped. This being premiſed of the prime importance of the word, the next thing obſervable will be, what hath formerly been mention'd, that in the Prophets there is frequent mention of a remnant, καταλειμμα, that ſhould by the mercy of God be reſcued out of the common calamity, the fatal παγκοπεδεία of the Jews, that was now at hand; theſe are ſometimes call'd, the eſcaping, (evaſio) of the houſe of Iſrael or Judah, or, the eſcaping that remaineth, or, the remnant that is eſcaped, Iſa. 37. 31, 32. In which place he that ſhall weigh it, or compare the tranſlation of the vulgar Latin, with Forerius's new one, out of the Hebrew, will find that the reliquiæ de Hieroſolymis, the remnant of Jeruſalem, & ſalvatio (that is, the Σωζόμενοι) de monte Sion, they that are ſaved, or, eſcape of mount Sion, are all one with evaſio quæ derelicta eſt, the eſcaping which is left, that is, they that eſcape, when others periſh; ſee Nehem. 1.2. and 3. where he asks, περὶ Σωζομένων οἱ καταλειφθησαν, of the ſaved that are left. So that Σωζόμενοι is equipollent to the Hebrew שריד reſiduus, remnant, which therefore is rendred by it, Jer. 4. 17. & 44. 14. and in other places (parallel to which we read, λείψανον σωζόμενον, a remainder that eſcapeth, in Julian, * Or. 1.) and once by πυρφόρῳ (not, as the printed copies read it πυροφόρῳ) Obad. 18. which ſignifies, ſaith Heſychius, ἢ μόνον διασωθέντα ἐν πολέμῳ, him that eſcapes alone in war, (the πυρφόρος being a † Vates, which before the firſt colours carries a firebrand, when the armies are to meet and fight, and hath the priviledge of a Legate or Herald not to be hurt or * violated.) From this acception of the word Σωζόμενοι, the ſaved, for that remnant which ſhould eſcape of the Jews out of the common deſtruction and ſlaughter that fell upon that people, call'd ἐκλεκτοὶ ſometimes (and therefore, ſaith Theophylact, ἐκλεκτοὶ and Σωζόμενοι are all one) ſometimes καταξιωθέντες ἐκφυγεῖν, Luke 21.36. they that have the honour or favour to eſcape: another acception there is of it for thoſe which ſhould believe in Chriſt, receive and embrace him at his coming, and, having done ſo, adhere and cleave faſt unto him. So when Iſa. 10.22. it is prophecied that the remnant of Iſrael ſhall return, the Apoſtle, Rom. 9.27. applies that place (literally ſpoken of the return from the Babyloniſh captivity) by way of accommodation to their receiving the faith of Chriſt, τὸ καταλειμμα Σωθήσεται, a remnant ſhall eſcape out of that Epidemical unbelief, and receive Chriſt. Thus Procopius underſtood that Σωθήσεται peculiarly of believing in Chriſt, in Iſ. p. 576. ἴσασιν τὸ καταλειμμα, ἢ ἀπαρχὴ τῷ Σωτῆρι οἱ μαθηταὶ, the firſt fruits of that remnant that eſcaped, was the diſciples of our Saviour. So Luke 19. 9. the Σωτηρία that was come to Zaccheus at that time, was repentance, converſion, the σῶσαι τὸ ἀπολωλὸς, the recovering the ſinner, or the publican, to repentance, v. 10. So 1 Cor. 7.16. the believing wife ſaving her husband, is converting him to the faith, and Rom. 11.14. provoking and ſaving the Jews, is by emulation bringing them to repent and receive the faith. And ſo the Σωζόμενοι here ſhall be thoſe, eſpecially the Jews, that believed in Chriſt, and adhered to him, according to the importance of that, Acts 11. 17. ὅπως ἐκζητήσωσιν οἱ καταλοιποι τῶν ἀνθρώπων τὸν Κύριον, that the remnant of men, (that is, of the Jews, oppoſed to the Gentiles after mentioned) might ſeek the Lord. To this purpoſe it is that Ignatius in his Epiſtle to Polycarp. bids him πάντας παρακαλεῖν ἵνα σώζωνται, exhort all that they eſcape, that is, repent and accept the faith, and that * Procopius makes δύο τάγματα σωζομένων, two ranks of theſe eſcapers, the Jews that expected the Meſſias, and the Church of the Gentiles, the latter of which having call'd τῶν ἐξ ἐθνῶν Σωζομένων πλῆθος, the multitude of them that eſcape of the Gentiles, he ſtreight interprets by ἐθνῶν Σωζομένων καλυμβῶν Χριστιανῶν, the running together of the nations called Chriſtians. And then the clear meaning of this uncertain mans queſtion will be this, Whether this doctrine or faith of Chriſt ſo contrary to the humour and paſſions of the world, ſhould be able to propagate it ſelf, and prove ſo ſucceſsful, as to be receiv'd by many, or whether it ſhould be contained and encloſed within a narrow pale, that ſo he might either reſiſt Chriſt with the many, or have the honour of being one of the few ſingular perſons that receiv'd him. And accordingly Chriſt's anſwer is to put him on that narrow path that leadeth to life, that the few were likely to find, the way of infidelity being ſo broad & beaten thro' it led to abſolute deſtruction. By this explication of this place will appear alſo what is meant by the ſame word, Acts 2.47. where 'tis ſaid, that the Lord προσετίθει τοὺς Σωζομένους καθ' ἡμέραν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ, that is, by the grace and power of God there came daily many new converts, penitent, reformed Chriſtians unto the Church. The riſe of that interpretation in that place will be beſt taken from the admonition of S. Peter, v. 40. of that chap. in theſe words, σώθητε ἀπὸ τῆς γενεᾶς σκολιᾶς ταύτης, be ye ſaved from this crooked generation, where the importance of the σώζεσθαι is clearly, getting out, eſcaping, flying from that great pertinacy, and obduration of that age againſt all the miracles of Chriſt and his Apoſtles, crucifying him, & reſiſting all the powerful methods of his workings, that is, not being ſaved eternally (for that would not be matter of exhortation, unleſs as that is a certain conſequent of repentance & belief in Chriſt) but retracting the vitious courſe that they and others went on in, the μετανοήσατε, v. 8. Repent. For when S. Peter had ſaid, repent, 'tis added, that in many other words he admoniſhed them, ſaying, σώθητε, be ſaved, or eſcape, &c. which is an affirmation, that to repent is the ſame thing, which in other and more words is to be ſaved or eſcape, from that perverſe generation, as in Simplicius, σωτηρίαν ἀρχὴν ἔχουσι, having the beginning of being ſaved, is ſet to expound a former phraſe, οἱ ἀρχόμενοι παιδεύεσθαι, they that begin to be inſtructed. And accordingly in Zeleucus in his proem to his Laws, where νῦν ἔχοντες and σωθησόμενοι are put together as phraſes of the ſame importance, wiſe men, and ſuch as meant to be ſafe. And therefore when it follows that they that willingly received the word, that is, that admonition of his, were baptized, and that there were 3000 that day added to the Church, that certainly is an explication of this phraſe προσετίθει τοὺς Σωζομένους, he added the ſaved or reformed Chriſtians. So that that which was done in ſuch a meaſure one day, v. 41. is ſaid farther to be done every day, v. 47. in ſome meaſure, and the ἀσμένως ἀποδεξάμενοι τὸν λόγον, they that willingly entertained the word there, is but a paraphraſe of Σωζόμενοι the ſaved here, which being in the preſent, and not fut. tenſe, muſt needs belong to the preſent condition of men, that is, ſuch penitent forſakers of the wicked perverſe age, σωζόμενοι ἀπὸ τῆς γενεᾶς σκολιᾶς there, ſaved out of the crooked generation, and in a parallel phraſe, ἀποφυγόντες τὰ μιάσματα τοῦ κόσμου, they that fled from the pollutions of the world, 2 Pet. 2. 20. by which Chriſtians are there expreſs'd. In this ſenſe we have the word uſed obſervably by Procopius, on Iſa. 26. σωζομένων δὲ τῶν ἐξ Ἰουδαίας πορισμῷ καλυμμένοι ζήλῳ πυρίκαυστοι φιλοδικαιότεροι μᾶλλον ἢ σωφρονέστεροι, ἢ ταῦτα βλέπειν σωζόμενα. When the Gentiles came in to Chriſt (not when they were ſaved or come to heaven, for the Jews could not ſee that, but) when they forſook their idolatry, & imbraced the Chriſtian faith, and ſo eſcaped out of that perverſe generation, the Jews were inflamed with envy, and would rather have endured any puniſhment then to ſee the Gentiles thus reform, and reproach to them their infidelity and impenitence. Thus alſo will the word be explained, 1 Cor. 1. 18. & 2 Cor. 2.15. where σωζομένοις the ſaved, are believers, they that embrace the Goſpel and are oppoſed to ἀπολλυμένοις, they that periſh, as to the contrary, thoſe that believ'd not, both there, and 2 Cor. 4.3. where he ſaith, his Goſpel is hid to them, that is to thoſe which heard, but believ'd it not, ἀπίστοις, unbelievers, v. 4. unleſs perhaps ἀπολλυμένοις may be thought a higher degree of the ſame thing, to wit, thoſe that for their unbelief are deſerted by God, and ſo blinded that they cannot ſee, and then proportionably to that, σωζόμενοι may be thoſe penitent believers,

believers, endued with a higher degree of grace from heaven. But that ἀπολλύμενοι signifies no more then the unbelieving Jews, that continued in their unbelief (and so, by proportion, σῳζόμενοι the contrary) may farther appear by an ancient place in * Clemens, where περὶ δὲ ἀπολλυμένων, praying for those that perish, (not for them that are already destroy'd) notes the prayers in the Easter week, which were offered to God by the Christian Church for the Jews, as appears by the beginning of the 14 chap. δεῖ πάντων ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν, &c. ὅτι οὐκ ἐπίστευσαν, We ought to mourn for them, because they have not believed. All that I shall add to this, is but the opinion of Joh. Cuterius, the translator of Procopius on Isaiah, who meeting oft in that Author with the word σῳζόμενοι, those that are saved, hath sometimes been forced to render it, quibus salutis cura est, they that have care of salvation, the matter not bearing any interpretation which had nearer reference to salvation, or decree of salvation then that expression of his would bear. Out of all that hath been said of this word, the notion of σῳζόμενοι will sufficiently be cleared in all the places of the New Testament; and for the notion of the verb σῴζεσθαι, we have said enough already to give direction for the understanding it, wherever 'tis to be met with, not always for eternal salvation, but oft for other kinds of escaping, and deliverances out of diseases every where almost in the Gospels, out of other dangers, ὡς διὰ πυρός, 1 Cor. 3.15. as one that escapes out of the fire (ζημιωθεὶς losing much in his passage, but himself escaping) ἀνεσώθησαν, 1 Pet. 3.20. either thro', or from the water, and μόλις σῳζόμενοι scarcely escape, 1 Pet. 4.18. and σῴζετε, Jude 23. rescue in fear, or in time of danger, snatching them out of the fire. All which we shall refer to their several places, see note on Rom. 10. a. and 13. c.

* διαλ. 3. c. 12.

V. 33. I must walk] That there is in this verse an ellipsis or defect, there is little doubt, and what it is will be best judg'd by comparing it with the former verse, or with John 5.17. In the former verse he tells Herod, that for a time he is about the business of his miracles, curing diseases, and casting out devils, and it shall not be in his power to hinder him; tho' he threaten, or design to kill him, v. 31. he should not be able to do it, but shortly indeed he should have made an end of his business, and then he should be put to death. The time of his doing miracles, &c. he there calls to day and to morrow, as the time of his being put to death, the third day; and so in this verse he gives him a reason why he should not fear his threats, nor go out of the way, which he was advised to, v. 31. because, saith he, δεῖ με σήμερον καὶ αὔριον: there is a necessity in respect of God's decree, that to day and to morrow, that is, for that space before-mentioned, I should cure, &c. or, as it is, John 5.17. ἐργάζεσθαι work (so Theophylact, Δεῖ με μόνον τινὰ ἐπιμεῖναι ἐν τοῖσδε θαυματουργοῦντα, I must stay here a while, and do miracles) and then indeed it is as necessary τῇ ἐχομένῃ the third day, or, the day immediately following or adjoining (see note on Mark 1. b.) or after my work is done πορεύεσθαι to go, either in that sense, wherein that word is taken, c. 22. 22. that is, to be put to death, (and so 'twill be all one with τελειοῦσθαι which is to be martyr'd, as we have τελείωσις ἁθλητῶν in Nyssen, and other Christian writers, or else πορεύεσθαι to go from thence (as he was advised to do, v. 31.) up to Jerusalem, that being the place where the judgment of the great Sanhedrim was, where (and no where else) the cases of Prophets, which were accused of any great crime, were to be tryed (see Cunæus de Repub. Heb. l. 1. c. 12.) whereupon it follows immediately, O Jerusalem, Jerusalem!

Πορεύεσθαι

V. 34. Under her wings] Ἐπισυνάγειν ὑπὸ τὰς πτέρυγας, to gather under the wings seems to be a proverbial phrase among the Jews for gathering and admitting of Proselytes: thus in Maimonides, tit. Isuri bia, c. 13. speaking of the three ways of receiving proselytes, circumcision, baptism, sacrifice, he adds, וכן לדורות, &c. And in like manner thro' all ages, as oft as a Gentile would enter into the Covenant and be gathered, תחת כנפי השכינה under the wings of the divine Majesty, and take upon him על תורה the yoke of the Law, &c. where the wings of the divine Majesty, referring to the manner whereby God signified his presence in the Ark, and in the holy of holies, by the Cherubims wings that covered the Propitiatory, the being gathered under his wings, is there set for his entering into the Covenant, and attended with undertaking the yoke of the Law, that is, obedience to his commands, and being his Proselytes; and so here Christs gathering as a bird under the wings, is the preaching of the New Covenant to them, and calling them all, as Proselytes, to receive it. See note 1 Cor. 10. a.

CHAP. XIV.

Paraphrase.

1. AND it came to pass as he went into the house of one of the a * chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, † that they watched him.

a. And being upon an invitation perswaded to go on a Sabbath day, and dine with one of the Pharisees of great quality, a Ruler, or member of one of their Consistories, they themselves that had thus invited him, did insidiously and treacherously watch and observe what he would do, on purpose to take advantage against him (a thing contrary to all Laws of hospitality.

* Rulers which were Pharisees.

† even they were watching him, οἱ αὐτοὶ ἦσαν παρατηρούμενοι αὐτόν.

2. And behold, there was a certain man before him, which had the dropsy.

3. And Jesus [answering, spake unto the Lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?]

Doctors of the law, and Pharisees that were present, saying, is the working of a cure on a sick man a thing forbidden, and so unlawful to be done upon a Sabbath-day?

4. And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go.

5. And he said unto them, 5. And he answered them, saying,] Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath-day?

6. And they could not answer him again to these things.

7. And he put forth a parable to those which were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms, saying unto them,

7, 8, 9, 10. And being at this feast he observ'd how desirous those persons of Dignity of the two and Pharisaical sect, &c. were, every one to take place, or have the precedence at the feast, and thereupon knowing their inclinations, he spake this parable to them, which imported how much more honourable it is for a man to set himself below, then above his place, and how certain a way it is to get him honour.

8. When thou art bidden of any man to * a wedding, sit not down in the highest room, lest a more honourable man then thou be bidden of him.

9. And he that bad thee and him, come and say to thee, Give this man place, and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room.

10. But when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest room, that when he that bad thee cometh, he may say unto thee, Friend, go up higher: then shalt thou have * worship in the presence of them that sit at meat with thee.]

* a marriage-feast, γάμους, see Mat. 9. e. & 22. d.

* honour, glory, δόξα.

11. For humility is the only thing that is valued, or commended, or thought fit to be rewarded either by God or man.

11. For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.]

12. Then

12. Then ſaid he alſo to him that bad him, [When thou makeſt a dinner or a ſupper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinſmen, nor thy rich neighbours, leſt they alſo bid thee again, and a recompence be made thee.]

12. Let not thy entertainments be of thoſe which can, or are likely to entertain thee again, or to whom thou haſt obligations of affinity, &c. for this is but a worthleſs way of hoſpitality, in which there is nothing commendable or thank-worthy.

13. But when thou makeſt a feaſt, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind,

14. And thou ſhalt be bleſſed, for they cannot recompence thee, for thou ſhalt be recompenced at the reſurrection of the juſt.]

13, 14. The only commendable way, and that which it will be reaſonable for God to reward is, the entertaining of thoſe that want, and who are not likely to make thee any return, for this God will be thy debtor, and pay thee at the day of judgment, and there can be no ſuch advantage to thee as that.

15. And when one of them that ſate at meat with him, heard theſe things, he ſaid unto him, Bleſſed is he that ſhall eat bread in the kingdom of God.

15. Upon this occaſion one repeated that known ſaying among the Rabbins, Bleſſed, &c. that is, 'tis certainly a much happier thing to be feaſted by God in his kingdom, then by any man on earth, and therefore that is moſt true which was ſaid, v. 14. that 'tis more advantagious to any man to entertain the poor, then any elſe.

16. Then ſaid he unto him, a certain man made a great ſupper, and bad many,

17. And ſent his ſervant at ſupper-time to ſay to them that were bidden, Come, for all things are now ready.

18. And they all * [b] with one conſent began to make excuſe. The firſt ſaid unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I muſt needs go and ſee it: I pray thee have me excuſed.

19. And another ſaid, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excuſed.

20. And another ſaid, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21. So that ſervant came and ſhewed his Lord theſe things. Then the Maſter of the houſe being angry, ſaid to his ſervants, Go out quickly into the ſtreets, and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22. And the ſervant ſaid, Lord, it is done, as thou haſt commanded, and yet there is room.

23. And the Lord ſaid unto the ſervant, Go out into the high-ways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my houſe may be filled.

24. For I ſay unto you, that none of thoſe men that were bidden ſhall taſte of my ſupper.]

16, 17, 18, &c. To this Chriſt replied by a parable, intimating the truth of what that perſon laſt had ſaid, but withal telling them, that this celeſtial feaſt, everlaſting reward was that, that they had oft been invited to, and the generality of the Jews neglected to make uſe of the invitation, preferring their own deſigns of worldly advantages before it, thereby provoking God extremely. And therefore the heathen, & ſinners, and mean perſons of the world were fain to be taken in, nay importunately woo'd to come to that feaſt, inſtead of them; and thoſe that were the principally deſigned gueſts to be utterly rejected.

* presently

25. And there went great multitudes with him, and he turned, and ſaid unto them,

26. If any man come to me and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and ſiſters, yea, and his own life alſo, he cannot be my diſciple.]

26. If any man offer to undertake my diſcipleſhip, and doth not prefer me before all others that are neareſt to him, yea, and before his own life too, Mat. 10.37. he is not for my turn; and my ſervice being ſo ſure to bring perſecutions along with it, will not be for his.

27. And whoſoever doth not bear his croſs and come after me, cannot be my diſciple.]

27. And whoſoever doth not come to me with a preparation of mind to ſuffer any thing rather then part with me, is not fit for the turn.

28. For which of you intending to build a tower, ſitteth not down firſt and counteth the coſt, whether he have ſufficient to finiſh it?

29. Leſt haply after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finiſh it all, that behold it begin to mock him,

30. Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finiſh.]

28, 29, 30. For as he that ſets on building, & hath not a ſtock to hold out, leaves his work imperfect, and becomes ridiculous;

31. Or what king going to make war againſt another king, ſitteth not down firſt, and conſulteth; whether he be able with ten thouſand to meet him that cometh againſt him with twenty thouſand?

32. Or elſe, while the other is yet a great way off, he ſendeth an embaſſage, and deſireth conditions of peace.]

31, 32. Or as he that deſigns a battle or a war, and is not provided with all neceſſaries to go thorough with it, had better never engage, or being engaged ſhould preſently think of treating and compounding the matter.

33. So likewiſe, whoſoever he be of you, that forſaketh not all that he hath, he cannot by my diſciple.]

33. So he that undertakes to be a Chriſtian, muſt reſolve to renounce all that is moſt precious to him in this world, or elſe he will not be able to hold out, and ſo had better never pretend to that profeſſion.

34. Salt is good, but if the ſalt have loſt his ſavour, wherewith ſhall it be ſeaſoned?]

34. A Chriſtian is the ſalt of the earth (Mat. 5.13.) of infinite uſe and benefit to all with whom he converſeth, being an example of purity and other virtues whereof Chriſtianity is made up; but if he ſhall fail in the exerciſe of theſe, prove earthy, heavy, and inſipid, without any active ſtirring quality, like to thoſe bodies, whoſe Salt is drawn from them, he is utterly deſtroyed, and periſhed.

35. It is neither fit for thee c * land, nor yet for the dunghil, but men caſt it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.]

* earth

35. The unhappy remainder is uſeleſs beyond the moſt noiſom excrement, or putrid carcaſs. It is not fit or uſeful (as ſome things are) to enrich the ground, no not to mix with other things, which being corrupted from their primary uſe, are yet good for that (and ſo are kept, though in a mean place, for that uſe) 'tis neither at preſent, nor for the future by long digeſtion, or farther putrefaction capable of being good manure or compoſt for the earth, but is utterly unprofitable, and generally dealt with as ſuch, caſt out without any reſpect into thoſe places where men would have nothing grow, apt only to convert a good ſoyl into a deſart. Let every diſciple, every Chriſtian, deſigned by Chriſt to be the ſalt of the earth, lay this to heart, for he is neerly concerned in it.

Annotations on St. Luke, Chap. XIV.

a. Ἀρχόντων τῶν φαρισαίων

V.1. Chief Phariſees] What is meant by Rulers ſimply, Rulers of the people, and Rulers of the ſynagogues, hath been formerly ſhewed, note on Mar. 5. c. and on *Mat.*9. g. viz. that the Rulers ſimply were the Judges in their leſſer Conſiſtories, in particular cities, or, when the Context belonging to Jeruſalem ſo enforceth it, thoſe of the great Sanhedrim at Jeruſalem. Now the Phariſees which are ſo oft mention'd in the Goſpel, were a particular ſect in their religion, αἵρεσις, ſaith St. Paul, who was one of them, and that an improvement of the חסדים or Haſidei, (as they were ἐκουσιαζόμενοι τῷ νόμῳ, 1 *Mac.*2.42. thoſe that voluntarily performed ſome things, which the Law required not, and were contrary to the Karei or Scripturarii, who were for that only which was commanded by law) forming thoſe things into doctrines and precepts, and obliging all to the performance of them, which the Haſidæi performed as free-will offerings, and ſo divided themſelves from the reſt of the prophane world (which did not as they did) nay from the Haſidæi themſelves, (who performed as much as they, but did not think themſelves or others obliged by Law to do ſo) and therefore were called פרושים Phariſees, ἀφωρισμένοι ſeparate or divided from other men, and by St. Paul, ἀκριβεστάτη αἵρεσις, a ſect, that required the moſt exact performances of any. By this it appears that theſe were not any order or ſort of men ſettled by law, which had ἄρχοντες or rulers over them, but only a ſect, of which ſome of all orders of men were, and indeed a prevailing ſect, taken up by moſt of the chief men of the nation, the Elders in the great councel or Sanhedrim in Jeruſalem, and the Rulers in the Conſiſtories in other cities, which therefore are called ἄρχοντες Φαρισαῖοι, Rulers, and thoſe Rulers Phariſees, one of whom is here ſpoken of and ſtyled, τὶς τῶν ἀρχόντων τῶν Φαρισαίων, one of the Rulers that were Phariſees.

Φαρισαῖοι

b. Ἀπὸ μιᾶς

V.18. With one conſent] Ἀπὸ μιᾶς is all one with the Syriack adverb מן מחרא anſwering the Greek ἀπὸ from, and חדא being of the feminine numeral which is μιᾶς one. And there is little queſtion but St. Luke ſo rendred that Syriack word. Now מחרא clearly ſignifies παραχρῆμα, εὐθέως, preſently, and ſo ἐξ αὐτῆς, (which is all one literally with this phraſe) and conſequently 'tis beſt rendred preſently. See our learned Mr. Fuller in his Miſcellanies.

c. εἰς γῆν.

V.35. Land] The meaning of εἰς γῆν here will be gueſs'd, firſt by that ſaying of Mat. 5. 13. You are the ſalt of the earth, that is, the perſons by whom the whole world of men muſt be ſeaſoned; and ſecondly, by the uſe of the word ἡ γῆ, the earth, or the land ordinarily for the men, the inhabitants of the earth, as 1 *Sam.*27.9. τύπτει τὴν γῆν, ſmiting the earth, and the like very often. From whence 'tis eaſy to conclude, that for the ſalt to be uſeful, or fit εἰς γῆν, for the earth, is to be proper for the uſe of men, and if by its ilneſs it ceaſe to be ſo, 'tis of all other things the moſt unprofitable, for whereas other things being not fit for men, may yet be fit for the dunghil, ſalt by its natural impropriety is debarr'd even from that moſt inferior degree of profitableneſs. But perhaps, and indeed moſt probably, γῆ here may, in the husbandmans notion, ſignify land, whether paſture, meadow, or tillage, all which are improved by manure. So is γῆ uſed Heb. 6. 7. Now two ſorts of manure there are; ſome things have a peculiar propriety to the enriching of ground, and are uſed alone, without mixture of any thing elſe with them, as to ſome ground, marle, lime, &c. Some things having not this propriety in any ſpecial manner, yet being in mixture with thoſe that have, are fit for this turn, and of ſuch generally our mixums or compoſts are made, wherein all kind of dung being one ſpecial ingredient, that mixum may well be the thing, that is here expreſs'd by κοπρία or dunghill, whether, as is here intimated, many other things are caſt as well as dung. Now ſalt, which is very good for domeſtick uſes, when that loſes its virtue, when 'tis corrupted, μωρανθῇ and ſo is no longer good for thoſe uſes, 'tis likewiſe good for nothing elſe. Other things, when they are corrupted, do but change their uſe; dung it ſelf, in the utmoſt degree of putrefaction, is good for enriching of land, but ſalt corrupted, quite unlike other putrid things, is not good ſingly by it ſelf to be laid on any ſort of land, no nor in mixture, or compoſt with any thing elſe, no not with dung, which is moſt uſeful. And this is the ſtate of a putrid diſciple, a corrupt Chriſtian, he doth hurt whereſoever he is, but no kind of good, and therefore as a wicked, and not only unprofitable ſervant (or as ἀχρεῖος unprofitable is the worſt character that can be) ἔξω βάλλεται, he is caſt out, as here the unſavory ſalt, as ἀδόκιμος rejectaneous or reprobate, whereas the good Chriſtian is elect, precious, a good and faithful ſervant, very profitable to his maſters uſe, and honour, and the advantage of other men. In this expreſſion of our Saviours, of ſalts loſing its ſavour, one thing farther may deſerve to be added from the Chymiſts doctrine of ſalt. For it is certain that ſalt, if we ſpeak ſtrictly, is not capable of being made inſipid, nothing in nature being able ſo to work upon that fix'd incorruptible principle. It is therefore neceſſary that in this place by ſalt loſing its ſavour, we underſtand a mix'd body, wherein ſalt abounds, (ſo in our vulgar dialects, eſpecially in Hebrew, מלח is the common name of ſalt and ſalt-bodies, and is indifferently rendred by ἅλυκος and ἅλας) and then 'tis moſt true, that ſalt may loſe it's ſavour, that is, that in ſuch a body the ſalt may be either removed, and drained forth, and then the body will be really inſipid, or buried in a maſs of other prevailing elements, & then to us it will appear inſipid, & be juſtly ſaid to have loſt it's ſavour. And on theſe terms our Saviour's parab. exactly correſponds with the proceſs of nature in all mix'd bodies; for when in their diſſolution, their ſpirit, phlegm and ſulphur are called forth, the remainder yet is, in ſeveral caſes, reducible into the antient form, and when it is not, yet it is uſeful to many and thoſe noble purpoſes, at leaſt it is helpful to the ground, to make it fertile. Thus corrupted fruits and plants, the excrements and carcaſſes of living creatures, thus lime, and aſhes, and burnt land are profitably uſed in tillage, ſome immediately applied, others after digeſtion and being putrified. But if at laſt the ſalt be drained out of theſe, or any other bodies, what is left is an uſeleſs elemental earth, in the Chymiſts language, a Caput mortuum, or terra damnata, and is not fit for the land to be immediately laid upon it, nor yet for the dunghil or mixum, there to be rotted a while, and then made uſe of, but poſſibly good for walks or allies, where we would have nothing grow, there to be trodden under foot of men, as it follows in the text. Accordingly in the primitive diſcipline the χειμαζόμενοι and ὑποπίπτοντες did caſt themſelves at the feet of the pious Chriſtians, as meriting to be trampled on by them, and calling to all that enter the Church to tread on them as unſavoury ſalt. If to this it be objected, that by this way of interpretation, ἅλας ſalt in the ſecond place ſhall be taken for the ſalt body, or that which hath ſalt in it, whereas in the firſt place it ſignifies ſalt it ſelf, the anſwer will be obvious, by reflecting on the parable of Salt, *Mat.*5. to which is immediately ſubjoined, Ye are the light of the world, and to that is added, not Do you ſhine, but let your light ſo ſhine, &c. Whereas Chriſtians are firſt named light it ſelf, and then luminous bodies, ſo both there and here Chriſtians are firſt reſembled to ſalt it ſelf, and then immediately to ſalt-bodies, or things which have ſalt in them, and ſo ſtill this is an agreeable interpretation.

Annotations on Chap. XV.

a. Μεταvοίας χρείαν ἐκ ἔχοντες.

V.7. Repentance] The difference of μετάνοια, change of mind, from λύπη grief, or ſorrow, for ſin, or diſlike of what a man hath done, is ſufficiently known, and as it hath place in many other paſſages, ſo eminently in this. For as he that lives a godly life, may and doth often fall into ſuch ſins as deſerve his ſorrow and diſpleaſure at himſelf, and ſo cannot be ſaid not to want that ſorrow, ſo it is certain, that that man continuing all his life ſo, without any eminent fall into wilful ſin, may be ſaid not to need that μετάνοια that change, which here is ſpoken of, and is required to the bringing home of a loſt ſheep, a prodigal to his fathers houſe. So he that was waſhed already had no need, ſaith Chriſt, ſave to waſh his feet, but is clean every whit, John 13. 10.

b. Κεράτια.

V.16. Huſks] The Κεράτια which are here ſet down as the food of ſwine, are the fruit of the Carobe or arbor Ceratonia, (which the Syriack tranſlation reads accordingly חריבא) mentioned by Dioſcorides, l. 1. and Galen, *l.*7. de Simpl. med. fac. who calls the tree it ſelf κεραλωνία, and that, ſaith Heſychius is an Egyptian fig, Κερατωνία, συκῆ Αἰγύπτε. This fruit Gorrhæus thus deſcribes, that 'tis of the length of a mans finger, forked, about the breadth of a thumb, very ſweet, but hard of concoction, and of an ill juice, which is agreeable to what is affirmed of it by Pliny, l.15. c.24. who adds, that the rind of it is the part that is eaten, and thereupon, c. 28. In ſiliquis quod manditur, quid niſi lignum eſt? that part of it which is eaten is the wood. Whence it is, that Siliqua the Latine word for that fruit, comes alſo to ſignify the huſk or rind of any kind of fruit, which is the reaſon, I ſuppoſe, why the word is ordinarily rendred huſks, though the Latin ſiliqua do not always ſignify ſo. Of this fruit Dioſcorides ſaith, that χλωρὰ λαμβανόμενα κακοσόμαχα τυγχάνει, καὶ κοιλίας διαλυτικά, If they be taken green, they are very ill for the ſtomach, and are apt to breed looſneſs, ξηρανθέντα δὲ ἴσχει κοιλίαν εὐστομαχώτερα ὄντα καὶ διυρητικά, being dried they are medicinal for a looſneſs and are diuretical. The uſe of them green was probably that which belongs to this place, where the Swine are ſaid to feed on them, as they were wont to be allowed to do on thoſe other fruits, which were good for nothing elſe. This fruit, ſaith Pliny, was ordinary among the Egyptians, agreeing therein with Heſychius, to which perhaps that part of the parable refers, v. 13. where the prodigal is ſaid ἀποδημῆσαι μακρὰν εἰς χώραν, to have travelled afar off to a region, though it be not named. For that it cannot refer to ſome country in Judea may ſeem, both becauſe there is no mention of that fruit in Judea, and becauſe feeding of ſwine was againſt the laws of the Jews (for as to that mention of heards of ſwine among the Gadarens, all that can be concluded thence is this, that Gentiles then inhabited there, and ſo Joſephus diſtinctly numbers Gadara among the ἑλληνίδες πόλεις which Pompey took away from the Jews) and thirdly becauſe 'tis ſaid that ἀπεδήμησε μακρὰν, he travelled a great way off. l. 13. c. 23. Μακρὰν εἰς χώραν.

c. Νεκρὸς.

V.24. Dead] The Scripture notion of the word Νεκρὸς dead may be learn'd from hence, to ſignify one that is deſperately engaged in a wicked courſe. Thus thoſe that were carried into captivity, and deſpair'd of return, are call'd dead bones, Ezek. 37. 3. and the reducing of them is ſaid to be the bringing them out of their graves, v. 12. So the ſtate of Abrahams body, and Sarah's womb, in reſpect of having hopes of a poſterity is call'd deadneſs, Rom. 3. 19. noting deſperation of children, and no more; ſo the ſtate of unchriſtian living is called death, 1 John 3. 14. And they that lived in a Gentile courſe are ſaid to be dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, Epheſ. 2. 1. (ſee Rom. 4. 17.) So 1 Tim. 5. 6. She that lives in pleaſure is dead, while ſhe lives. So the Jews have a ſaying, Ill men while they live are ſaid to be dead. And ſo the ancient Arabs, Not he that is at reſt is dead, but the living dead man he is truly dead: and all this no otherwiſe, then according to the ordinary notion of Pythagoras, who for any that had forſaken his ſchool, that is, refuſed to live according to his rules of Philoſophy, had a κενοτάφιον, an empty coffin ſet in his place, to ſignify him to be morally dead. Accordingly reformation or recovery to good life, is call'd a riſing from the dead, reviving, being quickned, paſſing to life, in theſe and other places, and ſignifies no more by all theſe expreſſions but only repentance from dead works, or renovation.

a. Ἀδικία.

V.8. Unjuſt ſteward] What is meant by ἀδικία unrighteouſneſs in v.8. may be conjectured by the uſe of the ſame word, *v.*9. and the meaning of both, I conceive it to be fetched from ſome obſervations in the Hebrew tongue, as firſt that δίκαιος juſt, and ἀληθὴς true, are taken in the ſame ſenſe by the ſacred writers (and therefore Heſychius explains ἀληθὴς true diſtinctly by δίκαιος juſt) that אמת is rendred by the Septuagint δικαιοσύνη, juſtice, *Gen.*24.49. and Iſa. 38.19. and conſequently that ἄδικος unjuſt and ἀληθὴς true, are directly oppoſite one to another. Thus they are ſet in this place v.11.(and John 7.18.) ἀληθὴς is expreſs'd by οὐκ ἔστιν ἀδικία ἐν αὐτῷ, there is no unrighteouſneſs, that is, falſeneſs in him) and therefore muſt be reſolved to ſignify (both of them) in a notion wherein they are thus contrary one to another. And ſo indeed ἄδικον, unjuſt, and δόλιον deceitful, appear to be all one, by comparing *Mal.*2.6. ἀδικία οὐκ ἐφέσθη iniquity was not found in his lips, with 1 *Pet.*2.22. οὐκ ἐφέσθη δόλος, guile was not found in his lips. In this notion δικαίως ſeems to be uſed, 1 *Cor.*15.34. ἐκνήψατε δικαίως, awake truly, or perfectly (in oppoſition to hypocritical unſincere reformation) explain'd by the not-ſinning that follows. Now what is meant by ἀληθινὸν μαμωνᾶ, *v.*11. is clear, that true, perfect, valuable, durable riches, which is infinitely to be preferred before all the riches of this world (as ἀληθὴς βρῶσις, truly food, John 6.55. is ſuch food as will make him immortal that feeds on it, in oppoſition to the manna, which they that fed on, dyed) that is, either the reward and bliſs in heaven only, or grace here (as preparative to that) together with that hereafter. Conſequently μαμωνᾶς ἄδικον oppoſite to that muſt ſignify this inferiour, vain, ſuperfluous (as Phavorinus took it, μαμωνᾶς, ὁ ἄδικος καὶ ὑπὸς χρείαν πλήθος) tranſitory, falſe wealth, ſo unvaluable in compariſon of that other, called by the Rabbins (juſt in that ſtyle) ממון שקר the vain, or falſe Mammon, which they joyn with הון לעולם the riches of this world, which is ſo ſcandalouſly vain, and falſe, and unfit to be truſted on, that הון the plenty or riches of this world (which is oft by the Targum rendred ממון mammon) is Prov. 10.2. by them rendred שקרא a lye. And then, the ſame, no doubt, is the meaning of that other phraſe, varied from this only in the form, by a moſt ordinary Hebraiſm, μαμωνᾶ ἀδικίας, mammon of injuſtice, or falſeneſs, and an example of it we have (from whence the phraſe ſeems to be tranſcribed) in the Targum alſo, *Iſa.*33.15. he ſeparates himſelf מממון דשקר from the mammon of iniquity, or the falſe riches, and ממון דשקר the mammon of falſeneſs, *Ezek.*22.27. Having found now the meaning of ἄδικον and ἀδικία *v.*11. & 9. it will not be hard to reſolve what is the meaning of the οἰκονόμος ἀδικίας, ſteward of falſeneſs alſo, either ſo as may be proportionable to this notion of it, maintained throughout this parable, for thoſe tranſitory falſe riches, called by the Targum (as was ſaid) שקרא falſeneſs, that is, ἀδικία, and then it will ſignify the diſpenſer of this inconſtant, tranſitory, falſe riches of this world. Or elſe as it muſt, by that ordinary Hebraiſm, ſignify οἰκονόμος ἄδικος, a falſe, unjuſt ſteward, as κριτὴς ἀδικίας, an unjuſt judge, c.18.6. but ſo, as not to commend his falſeneſs, but only his prudence, in making uſe of that wealth, which was put into his hands (be that called τὰ ὑπάρχοντα, v. 1. or ἀδικία here, or μαμωνᾶ ἀδικίας, *v.*9. or ἄδικον, *v.*11.) ſo, as might give him a ſubſiſtence after, when his office was taken from him, and ſo the οἰκονόμος ἀδικίας, the ſteward of falſeneſs, that is, the falſe ſteward, will be as perfectly all one with οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, the children of this world, i.e. worldly men, following in this verſe, as the ממון שקר or דשקר, the falſe riches, or the riches of falſeneſs, with the הון לעולם the wealth of this world, or worldly wealth, as even now was ſaid. As for the mention of ἄδικος unjuſt, in the ſecond part or application of the parable, *v.*10. which is there oppoſed to πιστὸς faithful, that doth not refer to the deceitfulneſs of the ſteward in the Parable in cheating his maſter, but to the rich man in the counter-part, his not making uſe of thoſe poſſeſſions entruſted to him, to that advantage of his own ſoul to which they might have been improved. In which reſpect, he that doth like the ſteward in the parable, make ſuch prudent proviſion for himſelf, is not ἄδικος falſe, but πιστὸς faithful, making a gainful uſe of that which was committed to his truſt, which is there called, being faithful in a little, and is the very Chriſtian virtue commended to us in that Parable, the making us friends with our riches; ſo that ἄδικος there alſo ſignifies falſe, viz. to that truſt put into their hands, in not making what advantage they might of it. And laſtly, for that paſſage *v.*12. εἰ ἐν ἀλλοτρίῳ πιστοὶ οὐκ ἐγένεσθε, if you have not been faithful in that which is anothers, it is not ſo to be taken, as if the rich mans gaining by the truſt committed to him, after the manner of the deceitful ſteward, were thereby accuſed; for on the other ſide the thing found fault with in the parable, in v. 12. is the not doing that which the falſe deceitful ſteward did, and was commended for, *v.*18. that is, the not making ſuch an uſe of that tranſitory wealth (that paſſes from one owner to another) at that time put into his hands, as might help him to reception and entertainment, when he was out of his ſervice. For (to conclude this matter) it muſt be obſerv'd, that every rich man is, in reſpect of God, as a ſteward to his maſter, appointed to be a diſpenſer of that wealth put into his hands by God, which may therefore be here called ἀλλότριον another's, not ſo much his who poſſeſſeth it, as Gods, whoſe ſteward he is, or theirs to whom it is to be diſpenſed. And then as in Ariſtotles Rhet. l.2. c.23. 'tis mentioned as a law of Theodectes, τοῖς κακῶς ἐπιμεληθεῖσι τῶν ἀλλοτρίων ἵππων ὁ πρεσβὺς ὄν τὰς οἰκείους, that to them that did not take good care of other mens horſes they did not deliver their own; ſo is it here, and only one difference there is between him, and a ſteward among men. He hath liberty to uſe the wealth put into his hands, ſo as may be moſt (not only for his maſters, but alſo) for his own advantage, viz. to his endleſs reward in heaven, which tho' it were an injuſtice and falſeneſs in a ſervant here on earth, who is altogether to conſider his maſters profit, not his own, and ſo was injuſtice in this ſteward here, in the firſt part of the parable, yet it is duty, and that which by the will and command of God we are obliged to in the execution of that ſtewards office which the rich man holds under God, and is the only thing commended to us in this parable; and is ſo far from denominating him that makes that advantage of the treaſure entruſted to him, an unjuſt or unrighteous ſteward in the application, that it denominates him πιστὸς faithful in the latter part of the parable and him only ἄδικος falſe, that doth it not.

V. 9. They may receive] The word δέξωνται here is taken Impersonally, as it were, not denoting the perſons that ſhould receive them, whether God, or Angels, or good works themſelves (tho' 'tis true that Chriſt who accounts what is done to our poor brethren, done unto him, will ſo receive & reward the merciful) but after the manner of the Scripture ſpeaking, to ſignify no more, then you ſhall be received, that is, that theſe works of charity, ſhall (thro' Gods acceptance & promiſe to reward them) prepare, as it were, a place in heaven for you, & ye ſhall, when your riches fail, be receiv'd into everlaſting habitations. This I ſuppoſe, is the meaning of that place in Eccl. 16.14. Πᾶσα ἐλεημοσύνη (not in the Dat. but the Nom. caſe) ποιήσει τόπον, every work of mercy ſhall make or prepare a place, to wit, in heaven for thee, and ſo the place will be intelligible, which otherwiſe will not, & the conſequents will be natural, ὅτι ἕκαστος κατὰ τὰ ἔργα αὐτοῦ εὑρήσει, every man ſhall find according to his works. Many examples of this phraſe, δέξωνται ὑμᾶς, for you ſhall be receiv'd, will be obvious to any in the reading of the Scriptures. So when we read 2 Sam.

So Luke 23.31. εἰ ἐν τῷ ὑγρῷ ξύλῳ ταῦτα ποιοῦσιν, if they do ſuch things, that is, if ſuch things be done, (that is, ſuch judgments fall) on the green tree. So Rev. 16. 15. καὶ βλέπωσι τὴν αἰσχημοσύνην αὐτοῦ, and they ſee his uncomlineſs, that is, his uncomlineſs be ſeen. So Luke 12. 20. this night, ἀπαιτοῦσι, they require thy ſoul, that is, thy ſoul is required from thee. So Mat. 19. 5. εἶπε is not he, that is, God, ſaid, but it was ſaid by Adam, or rather by the hiſtorian, as his concluſion from thence, Gen. 2. 24.

V.12. Another mans,] What is meant by ἐν ἀλλοτρίῳ was before touched (Note a.) I ſhall only add to the explication of it a paſſage of an antient writer, the author of the Eccleſiaſtical Hierarchy, c.3. making a difference and oppoſition between the τὰ ὄντως ὄντα, καὶ ἀθανάτως κτίσματα, καὶ αἰωνίως ἡδέα on the one ſide, the things that have a true being, are poſſeſs'd immorally, and are eternally ſweet; and on the other ſide, τὸ ἀβέβαιον ἐν τοῖς ἀλλοτρίοις ἐκ ἔσαν ἀλλὰ δοκοῦσαν εὐπάθειαν, the unſtable pleaſure which conſiſts in things that are other folks, and which is not really, but only in appearance. On which 'tis Maximus's Scholion, Ἀλλότρια, ſaith he, τὰ κατὰ κόσμον ὡς ὁ τυχὸς ἰδικῶς ἀλλὰ ἐξ ἄλλων εἰς ἄλλους μεταπίπτοντα. The things that are other men's ſignify the things of this world, which are not properly any particular man's propriety, but paſs from one man to another. And this truly ſeems the moſt proper notion of ἀλλότρια here, thoſe things that are not properly our own, in reſpect of the weak tenure we have in them, they paſſing from us, or we from them ſo ordinarily; and ſo the ἀλλότριον here will be more fully agreeable, and parallel to the ἄδικον μαμωνᾶ, falſe mammon, as we even now explained it, and to τὸ ὑμέτερον, that which is your's indeed, (your propriety, peculiar, that ſhall never be removed from you) will be all one with ἀληθινὸς πλοῦτος, the true riches.

V. 25. Received ſt thy good things] The phraſe of receiving thy good things, ſeems to be agreeable to the Hebrew ſtyle, which uſeth קבל עולמו receiving his world for an uninterrupted courſe of ſecular felicity, when all things ſucceed according to a mans will in this world, according to an ancient ſaying of theirs, כל שעברו עליו ארבעים יום בלא יסרין קבל עולמו, whoſoever ſhall paſs through forty days without chaſtiſements hath received his world, a full abundant reward for all the good he hath done here.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XVII.

1. THen ſaid he unto his diſciples, [It is impoſſible but that * offences will come:] but wo unto him through whom they come.

* ſcandals, σκάνδαλα

1. It is not to be imagined that God ſhould ſo think fit to interpoſe his power perpetually as to hinder or not permit falſe doctrines and ſchiſms, and other the like means of hindring or diſcouraging men in their Chriſtian courſe to come into the world (Mat. 18. 7.) to draw men from the Chriſtian doctrine of truth and charity.

2. It were better for him that a milſtone were hanged about his neck, and he caſt into the ſea, then that he ſhould [* offend one of theſe little ones;]

* ſcandalize, Σκανδαλίσῃ

2. Diſcourage, or drive off one Chriſtian to unchriſtian life.

3. Take heed to your ſelves, If thy brother treſpaſs againſt thee, rebuke him, and if he repent, forgive him.

4. And if he treſpaſs againſt thee ſeven times in a day, and ſeven times in a day, turn again to thee, ſaying, I repent, thou ſhalt forgive him.]

3,4. Be ye careful that ye be not guilty of any degree of this, but on the other ſide, after the example of Chriſt (mentioned in this matter, Mat. 18.11,12.) do the utmoſt in your power to reduce any Chriſtian that offendeth, tho' it be by injuring thee, in which caſe thou art to be ſo far from being angry with him, or deſigning revenge, that thou muſt, beſide pardoning him upon his reformation, how often ſoever he offend thee, uſe all probable means to bring him to repentance.

5. And the Apoſtles ſaid unto the Lord, encreaſe our faith.]

5. Upon another occaſion (moſt probably that Mat. 17. 20. where, in the diſcourſe between his diſciples and him, he taxeth their unbelief) he was intreated by ſome of the diſciples (who were not able to caſt out a devil, or cure the young man of the Epilepſy, Mat. 17,16.) that he would give them more of this gift of miracles, that they might be able to do all, to which they were by his deſignation ſent, but were not able to do them, for want of ſome higher degree of his miraculous faith then as yet they had attained to.

6. And the Lord ſaid, If ye had faith as a grain of muſtard-ſeed, ye might ſay unto this ſycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the ſea, and it ſhould obey you.]

6. And he ſaid unto them, If you had but the leaſt degree of true faith, you ſhould by my power be enabled to work any the greateſt miracle, remove mountains, Mat. 17. 20. make trees grow in the ſea, &c. But what I mean by this true faith I will expreſs to you by a parable, or ſimilitude.

7. But which of you having a ſervant ploughing or feeding Cattle, will ſay unto him by and by, and when he is come from the field; Go and ſit down to meat?

8. And will not rather ſay unto him, Make ready wherewith I may ſup, and gird thy ſelf and ſerve me, till I have eaten and drunken, and afterward thou ſhalt eat and drink?

9. Doth he thank that ſervant becauſe he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not.

10. So likewiſe ye, when ye have done all thoſe things which are commanded you, ſay, We are a unprofitable ſervants: we have done that which was our duty to do.]

7,8,9,10. As it is with an hired ſervant, 'tis not ſufficient for him to do that one buſineſs for which he was hired, but other common offices there are, which belong indifferently to all ſervants, as waiting at table, &c. and when he hath done his other works in the field, for which he was hired, as ploughing, &c. he muſt firſt ſet cheerfully to the other offices, before he think he have done his duty, or expect to receive his ordinary food, his daily wages; ſo muſt ye, (whoſe task it is to cure diſeaſes, caſt out devils) do all thoſe things with all fidelity which are means to that end, or never think you have performed your Duty. When confidence of my power, and uſing the mention of my name will not caſt out devils, then ſolemn prayer is your duty to be ſuper-added to that, and when that and prayer alone will not do, you muſt add faſting alſo, Mat. 17.21. and not think, that 'tis free for you to do, or not to do this (and that if you do it, 'tis eminent virtue in you) but you muſt look upon it as a neceſſary duty, which when you have done, you have done no more then was commanded you, and was ſtrictly required of you to do. This is the beſt anſwer which is likely to be given to your requeſt of having your faith encreaſed. Do not you neglect the means, and you ſhall be able to do what miracles you will;

a.

But as long as you think your partial obedience will ſerve the turn, and will not take the pains to faſt and pray, to caſt out a devil, and the like, this is an infidelity in you, Mat. 17. 17, 20. which will diſable you from doing thoſe Miracles, which otherwiſe you would eaſily be able to do.

theſe Phariſees, and other the like contemners of his preaching, that they that now deſpiſe this ſcepter of the kingdom, receive not the Goſpel, there ſhall come out againſt them that iron rod, deſtruction for this great ſin, and then 'twill be too late for them to wiſh for theſe days of mercy, which now they deſpiſe, and make no uſe of.

pretend that there is a Meſſia, in this or that place, but do not you follow nor heed any ſuch report, nor look for any ſuch deliverer, ſee Mat. 24. 25.

27. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noah entred into the ark, and the flood came, and devoured them all.]

preſignification of the particular time, Mat. 24. 36. (only Noah preaching repentance to them, and they not hearkning to him, and then his building an ark, and going into it with his family) no man expecting it, the flood came, and ſwept away all but thoſe in the ark, ſo ſhall it be, when Chriſt comes to work his revenge upon his crucifiers, when they expect it not at all, as ſoon as ever a courſe is taken for preſerving the faithful from the deſtruction (ſee note on Mat. 24. 9. and Rev. 7. 3.) the vengeance ſhall light upon the reſt, and deſtroy all that are left in Jeruſalem. And that is all the fore-knowledge of the time you ſhall have in anſwer to your queſtion, v. 20.

28, 29, 30. And as when the ſins of Sodom were fill'd up, & their cry was gone up to heaven, and God determined to deſtroy them, the people went on in their ordinary courſe, doing all things according to their wont, and then on that very day when Lot went out of Sodom, the fire and brimſtone fell on that city; ſo as ſoon as the faithful, penitent Chriſtians depart out of Jeruſalem, that fatal day ſhall come upon the reſt, that day, I ſay, wherein Chriſt ſhall reveal himſelf by his judgments on his enemies and crucifiers, (ſee note on Heb. 10. a.)

30. Even thus ſhall it be in the day when the ſon of man is revealed.]

31. When thus you ſee judgment break out, let every man then that is in Judea, make all poſſible ſpeed to get out of it, as Lot and his family did out of Sodom.

31. In that day, he that ſhall be upon the houſe-top, and his ſtuff in the houſe, let him not come down to take it away, and he that is in the field, let him likewiſe not return back.]

32. And the leaſt delay or ſtop in the courſe, all inclinations of kindneſs to the ſins or company of that place, may be as fatal to any, as 'twere to Lots wife, who looking back became a piller of ſalt, Gen. 19. 26.

34. I tell you, In that night there ſhall be two men in one bed, the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.]

but as in Sodom an Angel came and took Lot by the hand, and led him out, preſerved him, when many others were left behind, ſo ſhall it be now, thoſe whom God will thus pleaſe to ſeal, Rev. 7. 3. and preſerve, the believers and conſtant profeſſors, thoſe ſhall be delivered, and none elſe.

Annotations on Chap. XVII.

a. Ἀχρεῖος. V. 10. Unprofitable ſervants] What is meant by ἀχρεῖος δοῦλος, unprofitable ſervant, will be matter of ſome queſtion, becauſe of the ſomewhat diſtant character ſet upon it, Mat. 25. 30. There he is to be caſt into utter darkneſs, his unprofitableneſs is a damning ſin, expreſſed alſo by wickedneſs and ſlothfulneſs, but here they that have done all that is commanded (which ſure is not a ſtate of ſo much danger) muſt yet call themſelves unprofitable ſervants, becauſe they have done no more then ſo, have done nothing for which they ſhould be thanked or rewarded above ordinary, v.9. To this 'twere anſwer ſufficient to ſay, that the ſame word is often uſed in ſeveral notions, ſometimes in a ſtricter, (for barely not profitable) ſometimes in a larger ſenſe; thus ἠχρειώθησαν might ſeem to be uſed, Pſ. 14.3. and from thence, Rom. 3.12. (ſee note on Rom. 1. g.) for all kind of impiety (as ἄνομος is ſometimes, he that lives not exactly according to Law, ſometimes the moſt wicked, lawleſs perſon) but that word in that place muſt be underſtood according to the notion of the Hebrew there, which ſignifies putrid or ſtinking, which is therefore uſeleſs, good for nothing, as rotten, Eph. 4.29. is oppoſed to, good for uſe. Beſide this therefore, there may be yet a farther account given of the word in that of Mat. 25. thus, the phraſe ἀχρεῖος δοῦλος ſignifies a ſervant that brings in no profit to his Maſter. Now according as the office or employment of this ſervant is, ſo this will have more or leſs of guilt in it; he whoſe office or ſervice conſiſts in trafficking for his maſter, to whom 'tis under precept (as it was in that ſervant, Mat. 25. he had been commanded by his maſter to trade with his talent, Luke 19. 13. and from thence an obligation lay upon him, he ought to have put the money to the exchangers, Mat. 25. 27.) his not bringing in profit is downright diſobedience, and accordingly as he is called unprofitable in one place, *v.*30. ſo he is formerly by the ſame Evangeliſt ſtyled wicked and ſlothful, v. 27. which he could not have been, if he had done all that was required of him. And ſo tho' a bare unprofitableneſs founded in a performance of all that was commanded (as here it was) bring not utter darkneſs upon the ſervant, but only deprive him of thanks, or reward above wages, v. 9. yet when that unprofitableneſs is inſeparable from direct breach of precept, as there it appears to be, there it moſt juſtly brings that ſevere ſentence upon the unprofitable. This difference then (which is but Extrinſecal & Accidental to the nature of the word) being acknowledg'd, and ſo giving the account why the unprofitable in one place ſhould be under a greater guilt then in the other, in all other reſpects the notion will be the ſame in both places. There 'tis ſet to ſignify him who had brought in no profit to his Maſter, made not uſe of his abilities, *v.*15. to improve the talent committed to him. And agreeably ſo it muſt ſignify here. For two ſorts of ſervices are here taken notice of, one, that which is the particular task for which he is hired, as ploughing, feeding cattel, v.7. another, which tho' it be not named or ſpecified to him, or indented for at his entring into the ſervice, yet belongs to every one, what office ſoever he is in (as he is a ſervant) viz. bringing in meat, waiting upon his maſter at table, *v.*8. This Ariſtole in his Politicks names among the ἐγκύκλια διακονήματα, thoſe ſervices that belong to every ſervant, (as the ἐγκύκλια μαθήματα are Grammar, Muſick Exerciſes, which belong to all young men, whatſoever faculty they apply themſelves to.) Parallel to this, what ſervices are of this kind, tho' they be not ſpecified, or indented for by name, they are yet in all reaſon, & by obligation of obedience and ſervice to his maſter, to be perform'd by him; and he that neglects or refuſes to perform 'em, doth not perform the duty of a ſervant, and for ſuch neglect deſerves ſtripes, where the maſter hath that power over ſervants (as in Chriſt's ſpeeches he is ſuppos'd to have, he ſhall be beaten with many, or with few ſtripes, which may be the reaſon that among the Jews there is no law given for the obedience of ſervants to maſters, becauſe the maſters could by puniſhments enforce that themſelves.) But then when all this is performed, this is little for the commendation of a ſervant, neither thanks, nor reward extraordinary are due to him for this. It muſt be remembred what Seneca hath obſerved, that the ſervant is humilis amicus, a lower ſort of friend, that is, to tend and conſider his maſters good, & to contrive what may moſt tend to it, and perform it upon occaſions, Exiguum eſt ad legem bonum eſſe, It is a petty ſmall thing to do no more then he is commanded to do, that is the meaning of τὰ διαταχθέντα, and τὸ ὀφειλόμενον ποιεῖν here, doing what is commanded, nothing but ſtrict duty, what he is obliged to as a ſervant. The profitable or uſeful ſervant doth more then ſo, whatever he ſees will tend to his maſters advantage, he doth it of his own accord; & he that doth not, tho' he have broken no precept, is yet to acknowledge himſelf unprofitable. And this notion of the unprofitable ſervant, belongs fitly to this place, where, I ſuppoſe, Chriſt ſpeaketh of the unfaithfulneſs of the diſciples, who contented themſelves with calling the name of Jeſus over the Epileptick, & when that would not do, did not proceed to faſting and praying (which means would have enabled them to cure him) & now come and deſire Chriſt to encreaſe their faith, *v.*5. that is, their power of working miracles, when (as he tells them) if they would do their duty in all parts, as becomes ſervants to do, that is, faſt and pray when need required, uſe the proper & neceſſary means toward the end, they would be able to do what miracle they pleaſed. And this is but duty, ſaith Chriſt, the doing of it they muſt not look on as ſupererogating virtue, but as that to which they are ſtrictly obliged, and which, tho' it be not commanded to all, yet being a means neceſſary to an end, is, by interpretation, commanded to all them to whom that end is commanded, and ſo to them who were commanded to cure diſeaſes, &c. Mat. 10. 8. For 'tis ordinarily ſaid, that there are two ſorts of Neceſſaries, 1. thoſe things that are ſo neceſſitate præcepti, by neceſſity of precept, or becauſe they are commanded; 2. others neceſſitate medii, neceſſary as means, without which I cannot do that ſervice which is required of me; and ſo was this of faſting and praying to the caſting out of ſome devils (the Apoſtles task at that time, part of their office) & as they that do not this, fail much of their duty, & have no reaſon to expect that God will ſupply them, enable them farther to do that work, without uſe of that means, ſo they that do it have little reaſon to expect any thanks for it, which is the adequate importance of this place.

b. V. 33. Preſerve it] Ζωογονεῖν the word here uſed hath a ſpecial ſignificancy in * Greek authors, oppoſite to ὠιογονεῖν. As the latter belongs to thoſe creatures which bring forth eggs firſt, and then, after ſome time, living creatures, ſo the former belongs to all other creatures which bring forth alive at firſt. And this might have not only a commodious but elegant ſenſe in this place, thus, that they that die and loſe their lives for Chriſt's ſake, ſhall immediately, without any interval of the ψυχοπαννυχία ſleeping of the ſoul in death, bring forth a new life into all eternity. But perhaps it may be unfit to affix this critical notion of the word in humane writers to this of S. Luke, & if we judge by the uſe of the word in the Greek of the Old Teſtament, which hath a greater conſent and ſympathy with the writers of the New Teſtament then any other ſort of books, ζωογονεῖν will ſignify no more then σῴζειν to ſave or preſerve; for ſo it is uſed Exod. 1.17,18,22. and then the meaning of the verſe will be, that he that ſhall uſe any crafty means of policy at that time to ſave his life, it ſhall probably prove unſucceſsful to him, when he that intruſts himſelf and his life to Gods providence and direction, and ſo doth endanger the loſing of it, ſhall be more likely to ſave it then another.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. To be conſtant & diligent in the performance of the duty of prayer, not only in reſpect of God, to whom it is a duty, but in reſpect of themſelves, whoſe petitions are by aſſiduity moſt likely to be obtained.

1. AND he ſpake a parable unto them, to this end, that men ought [always to pray, and a not * to faint,] * be ſlothful,

2. An unjuſt and harſh judge, which neither was moved with conſcience of duty to God, nor with ſhame or remorſe, or compaſſion toward any man.

2. Saying, There was in a city [a judge, which feared not God, neither regarded man.]

3. Do me juſtice againſt

3. And there was a widow in that city, and ſhe came unto him ſaying, [Avenge me of] my adverſary.

4. Delayed to do it.

4. And he [would not for a while:] but afterward he ſaid within himſelf, Tho' I I fear not God, nor regard man,

5. Leſt her coming ſo continually for juſtice be a reproach to me, and a teſtimony before others of my injuſtice to her, and ſo be matter of ſhame to me, if I deny her; or, leſt at laſt ſhe fall a reproaching me, caſting contumelious words upon me.

5. Yet becauſe this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, [leſt by her continual coming * ſhe b weary me.] * ſhe reproach me.

6. And the Lord ſaid, Hear what the unjuſt judge ſaith.

7. Do juſtice for his elect whoſe conſtant prayers importune him to it, and ſhall he not do it ſpeedily?

7. And ſhall not God [avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto * him, c though he bear long with them?] *him? and is he ſlack toward them?

8. Yea certainly he will ſuddenly proceed againſt their perſecutors, and when he doth ſo, it will fall very heavy upon the Jews: For when Chriſt comes to do vengeance, there ſhall be very few Chriſtians to be found in Judea (ſee note on Mat. 24. b.) they that are converted of the Jews ſhall be gone out and diſperſed among the Gentiles, ſee note on Mat. 24. g.

8. I tell you that he will avenge them ſpeedily. Nevertheleſs when the ſon of man cometh, ſhall he find faith * upon the earth?] * on the land? ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς.

9. Which had a great opinion of their own perfections, and ſo lookt on all others with ſcorn.

9. And he ſpake this parable unto certain, which [truſted in themſelves that they were righteous, and deſpiſed others.]

10. In the Temple there are two courts, one for the Jews, the other for the Gentile-proſelytes that lived among them (ſee note on Epheſ. 2. a.) and to thoſe two went up, to the firſt a Phariſee, to the ſecond a Publican, to pray.

10. Two men went up into the Temple to pray, the one a Phariſee, and the other a Publican.]

11. And no perſon being preſent to either but God, to over-hear them, the Phariſees words were theſe,

11. The Phariſee ſtood and prayed thus with himſelf,] God, I thank thee that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjuſt, adulterers, or even as this Publican.

12. I faſt every monday and thurſday, the ſecond and fifth days of every week, on which we are wont to hear the Law read in our Synagogues, and I pay tiths of herbs and every thing which others make doubt (it being determined by Law) whether they are to be paid or no.

12. I faſt twice in the week, I give tiths of all that I poſſeſs.]

13. Being in the court of the Gentiles, was in a ſad humble penſive guiſe, and by his geſture and action expreſs'd a wonderful great contrition and indignation againſt himſelf for what he had done, and uſed this affectionate form of confeſſion and deprecation.

13. And the Publican [ſtanding afar off, would not lift up ſo much as his eyes to heaven, but ſmote upon his breaſt] ſaying, God be merciful to me a ſinner.

14. This mans mean and lowly opinion of himſelf, was more acceptable in the ſight of God, together with his confeſſion and contrition, then all the Phariſees good actions, his exact faſting, and paying of tiths being accompanied with that high and arrogant opinion of himſelf, For, &c. Mat. 23. 12.

14. I tell you, [This man went down to his houſe juſtified rather then the other: For] every one that exalteth himſelf ſhall be abaſed, and he that humbleth himſelf ſhall be exalted.

15. Thoſe that brought them, Mar. 10. 13.

15. And they brought unto him alſo infants, that he would touch them; but when the diſciples ſaw it, they rebuked [them.]

16. Theſe are of that temper of humility and meekneſs, which is ſo neceſſary an ingredient in a Chriſtian, Mark 10. 14.

16. But Jeſus called them unto him, and ſaid, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for [of ſuch is the kingdom of God.]

17. There is no admiſſion or reception to Chriſtianity for any but ſuch.

17. Verily I ſay unto you, [Whoſoever ſhall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, ſhall in no wiſe enter therein.]

18. Mat. 19. 20. Mark 10. 17.

18. And a certain ruler asked him, ſaying, Good maſter, what ſhall I do to inherit eternal Life?

19. Mar. 10. 18.

19. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Why calleſt thou me good? none is good ſave one that is, God.

20. Thou knoweſt the Commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not ſteal, Do not bear falſe witneſs, Honour thy father, and thy mother.

21. And he ſaid, All theſe have I kept from my youth up.

22. Mar. 10. 21.

22. Now when Jeſus heard theſe things, he ſaid unto him, Yet lackeſt thou one thing, ſell all that thou haſt, and diſtribute to the poor, and thou ſhalt have treaſure in heaven, and come, follow me.

23. And when he heard this, he was very ſorrowful, for he was very rich.

24. Follow me and become Chriſtians, and attain everlaſting felicity?

24. And when Jeſus ſaw that, he was very ſorrowful, he ſaid, How hardly ſhall they that have riches [enter into the kingdom of God?]

25. There is nothing of more difficulty imaginable.

25. For it is eaſier for a camel to go through a needles eye, then for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.]

26. And

26. And they that heard it, ſaid, [Who then can be ſaved?] 26. Who is able to receive this ſevere doctrine, to be a Chriſtian, and attain bliſs upon theſe terms, to enter on this ſtrict courſe, to be a ſubject of Chriſts, who requires ſuch tasks of his diſciples?

27. And he ſaid,] the things which are impoſſible with men, are poſſible with God. 27. But he ſaid, &c. See Mat. 19. 26.

28. Then Peter ſaid, Lo we have left all and followed thee.

29. And he ſaid unto them, There is no man that hath left houſe, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children for the kingdom of Gods ſake, 29. Mat. 19. 29.

30. Who ſhall not receive [manifold more in this preſent time] and in the world to come life everlaſting. 30. A moſt plentiful return of advantages (as rich as any the moſt fruitful ſeaſon produceth) in this world, abſtracted from thoſe which he ſhall receive hereafter in heaven.

31. Then he took unto him the twelve, and ſaid unto them, Behold, we go up to Jeruſalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the ſon of man ſhall be accompliſhed. 31. Mat. 20. 18.

32. For he ſhall be deliver'd unto the Gentiles, and ſhall be mocked, and ſpightfully intreated and ſpit on.

33. And they ſhall ſcourge him, and put him to death, and the third day he ſhall riſe again.

34. And they underſtood none of theſe things, and this ſaying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were ſpoken.] 34. And they did not in any manner underſtand what he meant by thoſe words.

35. And it came to paſs, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho [a certain blind man] ſat by the way-ſide, begging. 35. Two blind men, Mat. 20. 3.

36. And hearing the multitude paſs by, he asked, what it meant.

37. And they told him that Jeſus of Nazareth paſſeth by.

38. And he cryed, ſaying, [Jeſus thou ſon of David, have mercy on me.] 38. O thou omnipotent eternal ſon of God, of whom the Prophets have told us, that thou ſhouldeſt be born of a Virgin, of the off-ſpring of David, I beſeech thee to pardon my ſins, and ſhew thy divine power in healing me.

39. And they which went * before rebuked him, that he ſhould] hold his peace: but he cried ſo much the more, Thou ſon of David have mercy on me. 39. And the multitude that went along, or attended him, chid him, and bid him.

* or, by, the Kings MS. reads, παρήγοσις.

40. And Jeſus ſtood and commanded him to be brought unto him; and when he was come near, he asked him,

41. Saying, What wilt thou that I ſhall do unto thee? and he ſaid, Lord, that I may receive my ſight.

* made thee whole Σέσωκέ σε. 42. And Jeſus ſaid unto him [Receive thy ſight, thy faith hath * ſaved thee.] 42. Thy believing me to be the Meſſias, expreſs'd by thee, v. 38. and v. 41. is rewarded by this cure, thy ſight ſhall be reſtored to thee by this word of mine.

43. And immediately he received his ſight, and followed him, glorifying God, and all the people, when they ſaw it, gave praiſe unto God.

Annotations on St. Luke, Chap. XVIII.

a. Ἐκκακεῖν

V.1. Not to faint] Μὴ ἐκκακεῖν here is to be explained by Heſychius and Phavorinus, who have jointly, the one out of the other, theſe words, Ἐκκακῶμεν (not as the printed copies of both authors corruptly read it, ἀχμελῶμεν, ἀκηδιῶμεν, but, as 'tis clear it muſt be mended) ἀμελῶμεν, ἀκηδιῶμεν, by which 'tis clear, that the word ſignifies negligence or careleſneſs. The other rendrings of the word by non defatigari and non deficere, ſeem to be grounded on a conjecture that the reading ſhould be ἐκκάμνειν, whereas the Manuſcripts agree in this other reading, and the importance of the parable is very well ſatisfied with it, which is to ſtir us up to diligence and importunity in prayer, προσεύχεσθαι πάντοτε, to pray at all times, anſwerable to which ἐρχεσθαι εἰς τέλος in the Parable, v. 5. that is, coming perpetually, conſtantly (according to the importance of the Hebrew נצח: ſee note b.) and therefore the Syriack here reads, coming at all times, that is, never to omit the conſtant, frequent, ſet hours of performing this duty. So likewiſe 2 Cor. 4. 1. Having this miniſtry, this office intruſted to us, οὐκ ἐκκακοῦμεν, we are not ſlothful or negligent in it; ſo Gal. 6. 9. When we are a doing good μὴ ἐκκακῶμεν, let us not be ſlothful, but as men that have a ſure reward in their eye, &c. And in the ſame matter, 2 Theſ. 3. 13. μὴ ἐκκακήσητε καλοποιοῦντες, be ye not negligent in doing good; only it is to be obſerved, that as κακὸς in Greek ſignifies ſometimes an idle, ſluggiſh, baſe perſon, (and ſo ignavus, a ſlothful perſon, in Latin) is alſo a fearful, puſillanimous, cowardly perſon, ſo ἐκκακεῖν in ſome places being, by the context concerning afflictions, determined to it, ſignifies to be diſcouraged, to play the coward. So 2 Cor. 4. 16. when, upon the conſideration of the afflictions which attend the preaching of the Goſpel, he yet reſolves that the gain which they are to receive by it, is more then the loſs of life it ſelf to him, and thereupon, contrary to all diſcouragements, οὐκ ἐκκακοῦμεν, we are not afraid, or diſcouraged; for if our outward man be deſtroyed, if we ſhould ſuffer any affliction, even to death it ſelf, yet, &c. ſo Eph. 3. 13. Wherefore I beſeech you, μὴ ἐκκακεῖν ἐν ταῖς θλίψεσί μου ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν, not to be diſcouraged, or afraid, or diſheartned, in your Chriſtian courſe, on occaſion of my afflictions ſuffered for you, for this (that I ſuffer for you) is your glory, matter of incitement, not of diſcouragement to you. And theſe are all the places, where the word is uſed in the New Teſtament.

b. Ὑπωπιάζειν.

V. 5. Weary me] The word ὑπωπιάζειν is twice uſed in the New Teſtament, here, and 1 Cor. 9. 27. It is an Agoniſtical word in the firſt uſe of it, belonging to the πυγμὴ or cuffers, which was one of the Grecian exerciſes, or to the παγκράτιασται, which was a mix'd exerciſe, made up of cuffing and wreſtling together, and is the thing referr'd to in that place to the Corinthians, among whom the Iſthmii agones (one of the four ſorts of them in Greece) were celebrated. Now the word coming not from ἀπὸ and πύξ (as, againſt all Analogy ſome would have) but from ὑπωπίον, and that from ὑπὸ and ὤψ, a lividneſs, or blewneſs under the eyes, or, on the face, and that ſuch as is cauſed by blows, ſignifies diſtinctly to ſtrike in the face with the fiſt, or with ceſtus which they uſed in their hands to cuff with: and ſo as the word πάλαι γωγεῖν to get the adverſary under him, belongs there to wreſtling, ſo this ὑπωπιάζειν to cuffing, and both together make up the παγκράτιον (the exerciſe ſo called from πᾶν and κράτος as requiring all ſtrength to the uſing of it) which, ſaith * St. Chryſoſtom, the Apoſtle refers to there. From this Agoniſtical uſe of the word ὑπώπιον, and ὑπωπιάζειν, another is, which is gotten into common uſe for reproaching or putting any man to ſhame, the blewneſs under the eyes, or on the face being a viſible mark of being beaten. And thus as the Latin ſuggillatio, ſo this Greek word is uſed among the Latines, Conſulatus Auli, ſaith Cicero, non tam Conſulatus eſt, quàm Magni noſtri hypopion, his Conſulſhip is a meer contumely or reproach to Pompey, who made him Conſul. So in Nilus

* καὶ γὰρ δρόμος καὶ παγκράτιον, &c.

ἀνειδ. *Narr.*6. ſpeaking of the valiant expreſſions of a gallant woman, he ſaith ἐαυτ᾽ ὑπερηφανίαν δεξάμενον, that he received them as contumelies, and upbraidings of his own impatience. And thus the word is to be taken in this place, either, leſt her continual coming ſhame me, or, leſt ſhe coming ſo oft, at laſt let looſe her tongue to contumelies and railings at me. But the former is the moſt proper ſenſe, moſt agreeable to the acception of εἰς τέλος in the ſacred dialect (being the Greek of לנצח which *Pſ.*103.9. is rendred εἰς τὸ τέλος, and ſo 1 Theſ. 2.16. ſignifies long duration or continuance, and is ordinarily rendred for ever) and anſwerable exactly to the deſign of the Parable, ſet down v. 1. that we ought to pray, δεῖ, and that by doing ſo, we ſhould make God aſhamed (as it were) to deny or caſt off our importunity. Hence it is that the Fathers in their prayers and ſpeeches to God uſe the phraſe, ἐνοχλῶ σε. I put thee to ſhame, to wit, by continual importuning. Σὲ ἐνοχλῶ ὁ μόνος ἀγαθὸς in St. Baſils Liturgy, I put thee to ſhame, thou that art the only good. So in the Pſaltery of the Greeks, in which there are ſo many prayers mix'd, οἶδα γὰρ, Κύριε, εἰ μὴ ἐνοχληθῇς ἀπὸ τῆς ἰδίας ἀγαθότητος, οὐκ ἐάσεις, &c. Unleſs, O Lord, thy goodneſs put thee to ſhame, that is, extorted this from thee; which expreſſion of theirs, as it refers without all doubt to this of St. Luke, and is but another way of paraphraſing God's being wrought on by way of importunity; ſo it is a clear evidence of the truth of what hath been ſaid, of the notion and importance of this word ὑπωπιάζω in this place.

C. Μακροθυμεῖν ἐπ᾽ αὐτοῖς

V.7. Though he bear long] the meaning of μακροθυμῶν ἐπ᾽ αὐτοῖς here is beſt found by comparing the verſe with *Eccl.*35.19. where ſpeaking of God Ποιήσει κρίσιν, ſaith he, καὶ ὁ μὴ βραδύνῃ, καὶ μὴ μακροθυμήσῃ ἐπ᾽ αὐτοῖς ὁ κραταιὸς The mighty one will execute judgment, and will not delay, nor be ſlack toward them. So μακροθυμία patience or long-ſufferance, ſignifies ſlackneſs in puniſhment, or deferring of it. And ſo that verſe there, is but a paraphraſe of this. The difference is 1. that this is by way of interrogation, which, we know, ſerves only to increaſe the force of the affirmation, and 2ly that μακροθυμῶν in the cloſe is in the Participle, which tho' it be eaſily ſupplied with the Verb ἔχει, ordinarily underſtood, yet in antient copies, as that moſt ancient one in the King's Library, and ſo in that which St. Chryſoſtom, and * Antiochus, and the ancient Tranſlator, and alſo the Syriack and Arabick made uſe of, it is read μακροθυμεῖ; and ſo the ſenſe is complete —doth he delay? or, Is he ſlack toward them? or in doing juſtice to them? Certainly he ſhall not. See Theophylact. The occaſion of Chriſts ſaying this in this place may ſeem to be, to take off the great ſtumbl'block from the Diſciples, or converted Jews, who as yet ſaw nothing but afflictions toward themſelves and Chriſt, were perſecuted for Chriſtianity, whereas the Jews that held out againſt Chriſt continued proſperous in it. To theſe our Saviour both here, and ch. 21. 28. gives aſſurance, that an heavy vengeance ſhall light upon this nation, that it ſhall be utterly laid waſt, that the Jewiſh religion (which, as long as it laſted, ſeemed a great prejudice againſt the faith and doctrine of Chriſt) ſhall be deſtroyed, that the perſecuted believers ſhall be delivered, and this that ſhould ſuddenly come to paſs within the age of ſome that then lived, Mat. 16.28. Mat. 26. 64. & John 21.22. To the ſame purpoſe it is, that the Apoſtles in their Epiſtles, when they ſpeak to theſe converted Jews, ſcattered abroad upon the perſecution in Judea, do very frequently mention the ſuddenneſs and certainty of this vengeance on the Jews, and deſtruction of their Temple and Worſhip, as an argument of great force to keep thoſe converts in their faith, who as long as the Temple ſtood, and the ſacrifice continued, were oft tempted to doubt, which was the truer religion, the Chriſtian, or that of the Jews. So we find St. Paul preſſing it, *Rom.*13.11. knowing τὸν καιρὸν, this great ſeaſon, this famous time foretold of, wherein they were to be reſcued from their perſecutors, and ſo their σωτηρία, (the ſame that was mentioned Mat. 10. 22. ſee note h.) nearer then when they firſt believed, or were converted to the faith. And again, ἥδε ἡμέρα ἤγγικε this day was nigh at hand, and therefore they ſhould keep cloſe to all Chriſtian practice; ſo *Jam.*5 having denounced the woes then near approaching upon the Apoſtatizing Gnoſticks (who to preſerve their worldly tranquility complied with the Jews, and joined with them in perſecuting the Orthodox Chriſtians) *v.*1. &c. and the cries of the oppreſſed and perſecuted (that is, of the ἐκλεκτοὶ βοῶντες, the elect crying here) *v.*4. he then comforts the believers, *v.*7. by this argument, *v.*8. that this παρουσία τοῦ Κυρίου ἤγγικε, this coming of the Lord (the very ſame that is here, *v.*8.) was now cloſe at hand, and that explained by ὁ κριτὴς πρὸ τῶν θυρῶν ἕστηκεν, the judge ſtanding at the door, which ſhews that he will ἐκδικεῖν πρὸ τῶν θυρῶν, as it is in this verſe, avenge the ſufferers, the believers ſpeedily. The ſame argument is preſſed by St. Peter (who, as St. James, *c.*1. 1. wrote to thoſe of the diſperſion, that is, to the converted Jews ſcattered in other nations, upon their being perſecuted out of Judea) 1 *Pet.*4.7. The end of all things, (that is, of the Jewiſh ſacrifices, and all their legal ceremonies, & the Temple, and people) is at hand, tho' *Mat.*24.6. is was ſaid, that it is not yet. So 1 John 2.18. It is the laſt hour, and therefore it follows, that as you have heard, Mat. 24. 5. that many counterfeit Chriſts ſhould come (before that final deſtruction of Jeruſalem) ſo, ſaith he, 'tis now by which we know 'tis the laſt hour. So *Heb.*10. 25. when men were ſo ſcandalized at the prevailing of the unbelievers, and perſecuting of the Chriſtian faith, that they neglected their aſſembling together, gave off their publick meetings, he then rouzeth them to ſtir up one another to the careful performance of that neglected duty, by their ſeeing ἐγγίζουσαν τὴν ἡμέραν, that this day of vengeance (ſo called Luke 21.22.) upon that nation and people was now very near at hand. All which, if (when 'tis then ſaid to approach, and to be at the door) it belonged to the day of judgment, (now, after ſo many hundred years not yet come) what a μακροθυμία were this? what a delaying of his coming, and conſequently, what an objection againſt the truth of Chriſtian Religion? as Mahomet having promiſed after his death he would preſently return to life again, and having not perform'd his promiſe in a thouſand years, is by us juſtly condemned for an Impoſtor. See *Mat.*24.34.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XIX.

1. AND Jeſus entred, and paſſed through Jericho.

2. And behold there was a man named Zacheus, which was the chief among the Publicans, and he was rich.

3. And he ſought to ſee Jeſus who he was,] and could not for the preſs, becauſe he was little of ſtature.

3. And he was very deſirous to ſee the perſon of Jeſus, having no farther deſigns, or thoughts at the preſent, but that, v.14.

4. And he ran before, and climbed up into a ſycomore tree to ſee him; for he was to paſs that way.

5. And when Jeſus came to the place, he looked up, and ſaw him, and ſaid unto him, Zacheus, make haſte and come down; for to day [I muſt abide at thy houſe.]

5. I mean to be entertained by thee.

6. And

6. And he made haſte and came down, and * received him joyfully.

* entertain'd him rejoicing, ὑπεδέξατο αὐτὸν χαίρων.

7. And when they ſaw it, they all murmured, ſaying, That he was gone to be [a gueſt with a man that is a ſinner.]

7. Entertained in an heathens, or, publicans houſe.

8. And Zacheus ſtood and ſaid unto the Lord, Behold Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have * taken any thing from any man by falſe accuſation, I reſtore him four-fold.

* wronged any man,

8. And whilſt Chriſt was there, Zacheus made this ſpeech unto him, Sir, half my wealth I beſtow upon the poor, and whomſoever I have defrauded (ſee note on c.3. 3.) or, as a Publican, exacted more from them then was due, I will, according to the law for thieves, make a fourfold reſtitution.

9. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, This day is ſalvation come to this houſe, for ſo much as he alſo is the ſon of Abraham.

9. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, This day repentance, and ſo the Goſpel, and the mercies of the Goſpel are come to Zacheus, as being a believer, and ſo one (tho' a Publican) to whom the promiſes made to the ſeed of Abraham do belong.

10. For the ſon of man is come to ſeek and to ſave that which was loſt.]

10. His being an heathen, or Publican, or a ſinner in his former life, doth not render him uncapable of receiving benefit from me, but contrariwiſe gives him a capacity of it, upon his repentance. For this was the end of my coming to reduce ſinners to repentance, and to obtain mercy for ſuch, Mat. 18.12.

11. And as they heard theſe things, he added and ſpake a parable, becauſe he was nigh to Jeruſalem, and becauſe they thought that the kingdom of God ſhould immediately appear.

11,12. And at this time, or not long after, being now not far from Jeruſalem, the chief city of the Jews, and ſo the palace or royal city, and upon occaſion of their thinking that he would ſhortly take upon him a regal authority (ch. 17.20.) and that that would be at Jeruſalem, he ſpake this parable unto them, a certain man born heir to a kingdom, took a great journey to take poſſeſſion of it (hereby intimating of himſelf that he was to ſuffer, and riſe, and go to heaven, ſo to be inſtalled in his kingdom) and then to return again in an eminent manner to ſhew himſelf among his country-men where he was born, and over whom he was to reign.

12. He ſaid therefore, * a certain noble-man went into a far country to receive for himſelf a kingdom, and to return.]

* a certain man of high birth, ἄνθρωπός τις εὐγενὴς.

13. And he called his ten ſervants, and delivered them ten pounds, and ſaid unto them, Occupy until I come.]

13. And having ſeveral ſervants, he gave each of 'em a ſtock of money to traffick with in his abſence, commanding them to improve it to his beſt advantage, that he might receive the benefit of it when he returned (noting that the Apoſtles were after his departure to preach to the Jews, gain as many of them as they could, go thro' all their cities, before Chriſt ſhould thus come and ſhew himſelf in that regal illuſtrious manner upon them, and ſo likewiſe that all other inferior Chriſtians were, and are to employ their diligence and induſtry, and according to their talents to bring in ſome encreaſe unto God.)

14. But his citizens hated him, and ſent a meſſenger after him, ſaying, We will not have this man to reign over us.]

14. Now the reaſon of his journey to that far country, v. 12. was, becauſe thoſe his country-men, over whom he was to reign, and was now only gone to be inſtalled or inthron'd in his right, ſet themſelves contumaciouſly againſt him, and diſclaimed having him for their king (noting the Jews ſtanding out againſt the faith, as 'twas after his reſurrection preacht to them by the Apoſtles, ſee note on Mat. 24. b.)

15. And it came to paſs, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded theſe ſervants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.]

15. And when he came back again, after his inſtalment, to exerciſe his regal office among 'em, he firſt examined his ſervants, what increaſe they had made (noting the fruit that had come in, the harveſt or number of converts by the preaching of the Apoſtles over all Jewry)

16. Then came the firſt, ſaying, Lord, Thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17. And he ſaid unto him, Well done, thou good ſervant, becauſe thou haſt [been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.]

17. Improved theſe earthly commodities, (ſee Luke 16. 10.) thou ſhalt be more highly preferr'd (noting the reward of the Apoſtles labour in preaching the Goſpel, 1. Governing in the Churches which they had planted, then reigning with Chriſt, enjoying an higher degree of glory, as they had laboured more abundantly.

18. And the ſecond came, ſaying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19. And he ſaid likewiſe unto him, Be thou alſo over five cities.]

18,19. And the ſecond having employ'd his time well, but not ſo well, was alſo rewarded proportionably.

20. And another came, ſaying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin:

21. For I feared thee, becauſe thou art an auſtere man, thou takeſt up that thou laidſt not down, and reapeſt that thou didſt not ſow.]

20,21. But a third out of a pretence of extraordinary fear of diſpleaſing, inſtead of imploying, laid up his talent (made no kind of uſe of the abilities that God had given him, lay idle, without ever endeavouring to do any thing that might bring in any glory to God) and his ſloth, being the chief cauſe of his doing thus, made him (either really, or, to excuſe his ſloth, pretendedly) look upon it as a piece of auſterity and rigidneſs in the maſter (in Chriſt) to exact any fruit, any encreaſe of his talents,

22. And he ſaith unto him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked ſervant; thou kneweſt that I was an auſtere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping what I did not ſow.]

22. But this was far from an excuſe of his unprofitableneſs, 'twas rather an aggravation of it, and an acknowledgment that would bear witneſs againſt him, and condemn him, make his ſlothfulneſs and unprofitableneſs appear ro be a ſin againſt conſcience in him.

23. Wherefore then gaveſt thou not my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with uſury?]

23. For upon this acknowledgment, ſaith the maſter, what poſſible reaſon can be given, why thou ſhouldſt not put my money into a bank amongſt the merchants, that it might have yielded me ſome encreaſe at my return?

24. And he ſaid unto them that ſtood by, [Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.]

24. The more unprofitable this man hath been, the fitter 'twill be to encreaſe the reward of him that hath been diligent, and ſucceſsful.

25. And they ſaid unto him, Lord, he hath ten pounds.

26. For I ſay unto you, Unto every one that hath, ſhall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath ſhall be taken away from him.]

25,26. And tho' that was conceiv'd unequal by ſome, becauſe he had ſuch plenty already, yet the king adhered to his ſentence, upon this ground of his dealing with his ſervants by way of diſtributive juſtice, which conſiſts not in giving to all equal portions, but moſt to them that have done him moſt diligent, faithful ſervice, and mulcting and puniſhing the unfaithful, and idle perſon.

27. But thoſe mine enemies, that would not that I ſhould reign over them, bring hither, and ſlay them before me.]

27. But thoſe countrymen of his, (whoſe king by right he was) which, when he was gone to be inſtalled in the kingdom, ſent him that contumacious anſwer, v. 14. (noting the Jews that would not ſubmit to him upon the Apoſtles preaching the Goſpel after the reſurrection) being now inſtated in his throne, he preſently commanded to be put to the ſword, executed as ſo many rebels. (The fate that ſoon befel the Jews, after his inauguration in his kingdom, that is, his going to heaven.)

who

28. And when he had thus ſpoken, he went before, aſcending up to Jeruſalem.

29. And it came to paſs, when he was come nigh to bethphage, and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he ſent two diſciples,

29. Mat. 21. 1.

30. Saying,

30. An aſs tied, and a foal with her, which was not yet backt, take the foal

30. Saying, Go ye into the village over againſt you, in which at your entring ye ſhall find [a colt tied, whereon yet never man ſate, looſe him] and bring him hither.

31. And if any man ask you, Why do ye looſe him? Thus ye ſhall ſay unto him, Becauſe the Lord hath need of him.

32. And they that were ſent, went their way, and found even as he had ſaid unto them.

33. And as they were looſing the colt, the owners thereof ſaid unto them, Why looſe ye the colt?

34. And they ſaid, the Lord hath need of him.

35. Mat. 21. 9.

35. And they brought him to Jeſus: And they caſt their garments upon the colt, and ſet Jeſus thereon.

36. And as he went, they ſpread their cloaths in the way.

37. And when he was come nigh, even now at the deſcent of the mount of Olives, [the whole multitude of the diſciples] began to rejoyce and praiſe God with a loud voice, for all the mighty works that they had ſeen,

37. All his followers that believed and attended him.

38. Saying [* Bleſſed be the king that cometh in the name of the Lord, peace in heaven, and glory in the higheſt.]

38. Hoſanna, or Save now (Mat. 21. a.) we acknowlege thee to be our king ſo long expected, the Meſſias (ſee note on Mat. 11. a. and Mar. 11. 9.) God in heaven ſend all proſperity on this thy kingdom. And the loudeſt Hoſannas or acclamations, or confeſſions of his regality be made unto thee.

*Bleſſed in the name of the Lord be the king that cometh, Ευλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος βασιλεὺς ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου.

39. And ſome of the Phariſees from among the multitude ſaid unto him, Maſter, rebuke thy diſciples.

40. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, [I tell you, that if theſe ſhould hold their peace, the ſtones would immediately cry out.]

40. The thing is moſt true which they ſay, and if they ſhould join with you to ſmother it, it would by ſome other the unlikelieſt ways be proclaimed in deſpight of you.

41. And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it.

42. Saying, [If thou hadſt known, even thou at leaſt in this thy day, the things which belong to thy peace! but now they are hidden from thine eyes.]

42. O that thou alſo wouldſt (ſee c. 12. note c.) yet conſider and lay to heart, before it is too late, even in this critical time, what concerns thy future tranquility and proſperity ſo much, but thou doſt not at all conſider it.

43, 44. And now what remains? why, that within a while the Romans ſhould beſiege thee cloſe, and famiſh thee, and take the city, and deſtroy all that are in it, and demoliſh the Temple utterly (ſee note on Mat. 24. a.) and all this by way of puniſhment for thy not conſidering what Chriſt hath by way of meſſage from God revealed to thee, that is, for thy not repenting upon all his calls.

43. For the days ſhall come upon thee, that thine enemies ſhall [a] caſt a trench about thee, and compaſs thee round, and keep thee in on every ſide.

44. And ſhall * lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee, and and they ſhall not leave in thee one ſtone upon another, becauſe thou knoweſt not the time of thy viſitation.]

*daſh thee againſt the ground, ἐδαφιοῦσί σε.

Mat. 21. 12.

45. And he went into the Temple, and began to caſt out them that ſold therein, and them that bought,

46. Saying unto them, It is written, My houſe is the houſe of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves.

47. The Sanhedrim ſat in conſultation how they might put him to death.

47. And he taught daily in the Temple. But [the chief prieſts and ſcribes, and the * chief of the people ſought to deſtroy him.]

* rulers, note on Joh. 1. e.

48. And they could not reſolve on any ſafe courſe, becauſe the people were generally ſo affected to him.

48. And could not find what they might do: for all the people * were very attentive to hear him.]

* as they heard him took his part, ἐξεκρέμαλο αὐτῦ ἀκέων. See note on Matt. 22. f.

a. V. 43. Caſt a trench] That Titus might ſtarve the city the ſooner, he ſhut up all the avenues, building five works without the city, and when the Jews beat down them, he built a wall round about it, 39 furlongs long, and 13 caſtles or forts in it, whoſe compaſs was ten furlongs, and all this finiſh'd in three days, ſaith Joſephus De Bel. Jud. l. 6. c. 8. And when this was done, there was no poſſibility for any to come out, & the greateſt diſtreſs that ever was, followed, eating of girdles, and ſhoes, and the coverings of their ſhields, and at length dung and dirt, and hay, and mans fleſh, and a rich woman called Mary, fed on her own ſucking child, and many other ſad expreſſions of this σωοχή or diſtreſs are ſet down by Joſephus.

Paraphraſe. CHAP. XX.

1. He went into the Temple, and as he expounded the leſſon, and on occaſion of that made known the Goſpel to the people (ſee Mat. 9. note 1.) the Sanhedrim came to him,

Mat. 21. 23.

1. AND it came to paſs that on one of thoſe days [as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the Goſpel, the chief prieſts and the ſcribes came upon him with the elders,]

2. And ſpake unto him, ſaying, Tell us, By what authority doſt thou theſe things; or who is he that gave thee this authority?

3. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, I will alſo ask you one thing, and anſwer me.

See note on Mat. 21. e.

4. The Baptiſm of John, was it from heaven, or of men?

5. And they reaſoned with themſelves, ſaying, If we ſhall ſay, From heaven, he will ſay, Why then believed ye him not?

6. But and if we ſay, Of men, all the people will ſtone us: for they be perſwaded that John was a prophet.

7. And they anſwered, that they could not tell whence it was.

8. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, neither tell I you by what authority I do theſe things.

9. Then

9. Then began he to ſpeak to the people this parable, A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it forth to husbandmen, and went into a far country for a long time.]

9. And after a parable delivered by him, and ſet down, Mat. 21.21. he added this other, Mat. 21.28. A certain man that had a family, planted a vineyard, and did all that was neceſſary to that turn, fenced it with a good ſtrong mound, hewed a trough to preſs the grapes in, and built a lodge for the keeper of it, and then let it out to farmers at a rent, and himſelf travelled for a time (noting the care and proviſion God had made for the Church of the Jews, Iſa. 5. which made him a ſtrange return for all this, killed his prophets, (which called for fruits of good life from them) and at laſt his ſon Chriſt Jeſus himſelf.)

10. And at the ſeaſon he ſent a ſervant to the husbandmen, that they ſhould [give him of the fruit of the vineyard] but the husbandmen beat him, and ſent him away empty.

10. Pay him that rent, which his vineyard was to yield him.

11. And again he ſent another ſervant, and they beat him alſo, and entreated him ſhamefully, and ſent him away empty.

12. And again he ſent a third, and they wounded him alſo, and caſt him out.

13. Then ſaid the Lord of the vineyard, What ſhall I do? I will ſend my beloved ſon, it may be they will reverence him when they ſee him.

14. But when the husbandmen ſaw him, they reaſoned among themſelves, ſaying, This is the heir, come, let us kill him [that the inheritance may be ours.]

14. And ſeize on his inheritance, as our own, of which we have already the poſſeſſion, Mat. 21.38.

15. So they caſt him out of the Vineyard, and killed him. What therefore ſhall the Lord of the vineyard do unto them?

16. He ſhall come and deſtroy theſe husbandmen, and ſhall give the Vineyard to others. And when they heard it, they ſaid, God forbid.]

16. They of the Sanhedrim anſwered with joynt conſent, Mat. 21.41. He will (as 'tis in any reaſon to be expected) come and deſtroy thoſe husbandmen, and diſpoſe the vineyard into other hands. Which when Chriſt, from their own confeſſion had taken for a granted truth, and Mat. 21.43. brought home and applied to them, as a prediction of what was in any reaſon to befal them (ſee v. 19.) they then expreſt a great averſation or diſlike of it.

17. And he beheld them, and ſaid, What is this therefore that is written, The ſtone which the builders rejected, the ſame is become the head of the corner?

Mat. 21.42.

18. Whoſoever ſhall fall upon that ſtone ſhall be broken, but on whomſoever it ſhall fall, it will * grind him to powder.

* daſh him to pieces, λικμήσει αὐτὸν, Mat. 21.g.

19. And the chief prieſts and the ſcribes the ſame hour ſought to lay hands on him, and they feared the people: for they perceived that he had ſpoken this parable againſt them.

20. And they watched him, and ſent forth ſpies, which ſhould feign themſelves juſt men, that they might take hold of his words, that ſo they might deliver him unto the power, and authority of the governour.]

20. And the Phariſees ſent ſome of their diſciples, and ſome of thoſe that adher'd conſcientious men, that to Herod, Mat. 22. 16. to entrap and enſnare him, to which end they put on the diſguiſe of upright, earneſtly deſired to be inſtructed in a ſcruple of every days practice, about paying tribute, meaning by his anſwer to take advantage, and, if he ſaid any thing againſt Ceſar's right, as they ſuppoſed he would, then to accuſe and implead him before the Procurator of the Romans.

21. And they asked him, ſaying, Maſter, we know that thou ſayeſt and teacheſt rightly, neither acceppteſt thou the perſon of any, but teacheſt the way of God truly.

22. Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Ceſar, or no?

23. But he perceived their craftineſs, and ſaid unto them, [Why tempt ye me?

23. Why do ye deſire & endeavour to inſnare me?

24. Shew me a penny, whoſe image and ſuperſcription hath it? They anſwered and ſaid Ceſars.

24. See Mat. 22.20. and note c.

25. And he ſaid unto them, Render therefore unto Ceſar the things which be Ceſars, and unto God the things which be Gods.

26. And they could not take hold of his words before the people, and they marvelled at his anſwer, and [held their peace.]

26. Without any reply departed from him.

27. Then came to him certain of the Sadduces (which [a deny that there is any reſurrection]) and they asked him,

27. Affirm that there is no future ſtate of men after this life.

28. Saying, Maſter, Moſes wrote unto us, If [any mans brother] die having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother ſhould take his wife, and raiſe up ſeed unto his brother.

28. Any man that hath brethren, Mat. 22.24.

29. There were therefore ſeven brethren, and the firſt took a wife and died without children.

30. And the ſecond took her to wife, and he died childleſs.

31. And the third took her, and in like manner the ſeven alſo, and they left no children, and died.

32. Laſt of all the woman died alſo.

33. Therefore in the reſurrection, whoſe wife of them is ſhe? for ſeven had her to wife.

34. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage.

35. But they which ſhall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and [the reſurrection from the dead,] neither marry, nor are given in marriage.

35. That future ſtate.

36. Neither can they die any more, for they are equal unto the Angels, and are the children of God, [being the children of the reſurrection.]

36. Being made partakers of that future eternal eſtate.

37. Now that the dead are raiſed, even Moſes ſhewed at the buſh,] when he calleth the Lord, the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob.

37. But as for the main point diſputed between you Jews, that there is another life after this, your own Moſes will inſtruct you, in thoſe words which he delivered at the buſh, Exod. 3. 6. (ſee note on Matth. 22. d.)

38. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: [for all live unto him.]

38. For thoſe that are departed out of this world, have another life, the ſouls of the juſt are already in the hands of God, and their bodies ſure to be raiſed up, and united to them by the power of God.

39. Then certain of the Scribes anſwering ſaid, Maſter, thou haſt well ſaid.
40. And after that they durſt not ask him any queſtions at all.
41. And he ſaith unto them, How ſay they that Chriſt is David's ſon?

41. And after ſome few things, Mat.25.35. the Phariſees being come about him, he propoſed a queſtion to them, Mat.22. 41. what they thought of the Meſſias, whoſe ſon he was; and upon their anſwering, that he was David's, he again asked, how that could be?

42. When.

42. And] David himſelf ſaith in the book of Pſalms, The Lord ſaid to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand,
43. Till I make thine enemies thy footſtool.
44. David therefore calleth him Lord, how is he then his ſon?
45. Then in the audience of all the people, he ſaid unto his diſciples,
46. Beware of the Scribes, which deſire to walk in long robes, and love greet-

Annotations on Chap. XXI.

a. Δῶρα. V. 4. Offerings] The Hebrew קָרְבָּן ſignifies both a gift, and the treaſury into which the gifts were caſt; and ſo the Greek δῶρα gifts here is uſed for γαζοφυλάκιον, v. 1. and ſo Mark 12. 41.

b. Αἰχμαλωσίαν δυσὶ σωσαι εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη. V. 24. Captive into all nations] The number of thoſe that in the ſiege of Jeruſalem by Titus died by ſword and famine, is ſaid to be eleven millions, by Euſebius Hiſt. l. 3. c. ζ'. out of Joſephus. Then when the city was taken, the handſomeſt, ſaith he, were reſerved for triumph, the reſt, ſaith he, that were above ſeventeen years of age were ſent bound to Egypt, to be ſlaves there, others diſperſed in the Provinces to be torn aſunder with with wild beaſts, thoſe under 17 ſold to merchants of all countries. And of all theſe the number was 97000.

c. Καιροὶ ἐθνῶν. Ib. Until the times of the Gentiles] What is the meaning of ἄχρι πληρωθῶσι καιροὶ ἐθνῶν, till the ſeaſons or times, of the Gentiles be fulfilled, may be gueſs'd partly by the importance of the word καιροὶ ſeaſons, partly of the πληρωθῶσι fulfill'd, partly of the ἄχρι until. The word καιροὶ vulgarly ſignifies a ſeaſon, a time deſigned and appointed (according to the notion of the Hebrew word) or elſe expected, and looked for, and in both reſpects belongs fitly to the preaching the Goſpel to the Gentiles, that being a thing that God had ſo long determin'd, and ſo oft foretold, and which tho' the Gentiles foreſaw not, yet is ſaid to be expected by them (becauſe all they could deſire or expect was really ſumm'd up in this) not only in that prediction of Jacob, where Chriſt is ſtyled the expectation of the Gentiles, but in St. Paul's diſcourſe of it, Rom. 8. 19. where the earneſt expectation of the creature, that is, the Gentile world (ſee Rom. 8. note d.) is faſtned upon this. Then for the πληρωθῶσι joined to theſe καιροὶ ἐθνῶν Πληρωθῶσι καιροὶ ἐθνῶν.

ἐθνῶν, that ſure will bear ſome proportion with, if it be not parallel to, Rom. 11. 25. where the phraſe is very like this here, ἄχρις οὗ τὸ πλήρωμα τῶν ἐθνῶν εἰσέλθῃ, until the time that the fulneſs of the Gentiles enter. That is there explain'd to ſignify the multitude of Gentiles receiving the faith, coming into the Church, and ſo πλήρωμα fulneſs, v. 12. (See Rom. 11. note d.) and proportionably to that, their ſeaſons being fulfill'd will be the preaching that Goſpel to them, which they ſhall thus receive, and which was ſo deſigned, and expected for them. Now for the ἄχρι until, where it is ſaid, Jeruſalem ſhall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until theſe ſeaſons of the Gentiles be fulfilled, the explaining of that will be the farther clearing of the whole matter. The treading down of Jeruſalem by the Gentiles is not particularly their victory over it by Titus, but their conſequent poſſeſſing of it, even till Adrians rebuilding a part of it, and calling it by his own name Ælia, and inhabiting it with Gentiles, which ſeems to be deſcribed, Rev. 11. 2. by the outer court of the Temple being given to the Gentiles, and ſo caſt out of the meaſuring. Upon the doing of this it followed, that as all the Jews (remaining ſuch in oppoſition to the Chriſtians) were utterly baniſh'd the city, and a ſwines head ſet at the gates, to baniſh even their eyes from it, ſo the believing Chriſtian Jews returned thither again from their diſperſions, and inhabited it again, and joyn'd, and made one Congregation, one Church with the Gentiles, which had there by that time received the faith alſo, and till then continued a diſtinct Church from the Jews, ſee Rev. 11. note f. by which it appears how punctually this prediction, in our notion, was fulfill'd, that Jeruſalem ſhould be inhabited by the Gentiles, all the Jews in a manner excluded, till the time that the Goſpel had been freely preached unto the Gentiles, and by them, in ſome eminent manner, been receiv'd, and then it ſhould be re-inhabited with Jews again, viz. the Chriſtian Jews, who being wrought on by emulation of the Gentiles, were now many of them brought to receive the faith, ſee Rom. 11. 11, 13.

V. 25. Nations] The ἔθνη nations here are the ſeveral parts or tetrarchies of Paleſtine, ſo divided by the Romans, ſee Luke 3. 1. each of them called ἔθνος nation, and all together ἔθνη nations. See note on Ma. 24. e. and Rev. 11. g. For to the Jews ſure it is that there the diſtreſs and conſternation belongs, not to the Gentiles, ſee note on Rev. 6. f. d. Ἔθνη.

Ib. The ſea] That by the word θάλασσα ſea, may be meant Galilee, ſee note on Rev. 7. b. and of that people particularly Joſephus tells us, that Veſpaſian being ſent by Nero into Paleſtine, did ſubdue the Galileans, the moſt valiant, powerful and beſt fortified nation of all Paleſtine, killing above an hundred thouſand, and carrying captive above forty thouſand Jews in that expedition. Where we ſee that Galilee owns the name ἔθνος, and that there were divers ἔθνη nations in Paleſtine, of which Galilee is by Joſephus ſaid to be the moſt valiant. See Baronius An. Ch. 39. Neronis 13. But it is as probable, that as 'tis ordinary in theſe books to expreſs the whole by enumeration of the parts, and ſo the whole world by the mention of heaven, and earth, and ſea, (ſee note on 2 Pet. 3. e.) ſo here the univerſal deſtructions of the Jews may be deſcribed by all theſe. e. Θάλασσαν.

And upon his conſenting to this ſuggeſtion, the devil was permitted by God to have this power over him, to enter into him, Joh. 13. 2. and doing ſo, he incited him to make a bargain with the rulers of the Sanhedrim, and their miniſters or officers (ſee note g.) to deliver up Jeſus unto them (as after Chriſts talking with him, and telling him diſtinctly of it, and the ſin and danger attending it, Mar. 14. 21. and his not yet relenting, 'tis again ſaid, that with the ſop the devil entred into him, John 13. 27. hurrying him to the ſpeedy execution of it.

After that being in ſuch a commotion of mind, which ſignifies an apprehenſion of extream danger, without any trembling at it, or endeavour to avoid or eſcape it, he prayed more vehemently, and fell proſtrate upon his face, Mark 14.35. ſaying the ſame words, and more to the ſame purpoſe, and he ſwet (as men in agonies are wont) great glutinous drops like thoſe of blood when it drops on the ground.

44. And being in an agony he prayed more earneſtly: And his ſweat was as it were great f drops of blood falling down to the ground.]

45. Three diſciples, Peter, and James and John, Mat. 26. 37. he found them faſt aſleep, this ſleep being an effect of that great heavineſs, and diſpiritedneſs which their ſorrow had produced.

45. And when he roſe up from prayer, and was come to his [diſciples, he found them ſleeping for ſorrow.]

46. And he ſaid unto them, Why ſleep ye? Riſe and pray, leſt ye enter into temptation.

47. And while he yet ſpake, behold, a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jeſus to kiſs him.

48. Is a kiſs the token by which thou haſt promiſed to deliver me up to them? Mar. 14.44.

48. But Jeſus ſaid unto him, Judas [* betrayeſt thou the ſon of man with a kiſs?]

49. When they which were about him ſaw what would follow, they ſaid unto him, Lord, ſhall we ſmite with the ſword?]

49. When the diſciples ſaw what was toward, they offered to have fought for his reſcue.

50. And one of them ſmote the ſervant of the high-prieſt, and cut off his right ear.]

And St. Peter in the heat of zeal, without Chriſts permiſſion, and againſt the precepts which he had always taught them, drew a ſword, and cut off the right ear of Malchus, a ſervant of the high prieſts.

51. And Jeſus reproving Peter for ſo doing, Mat. 26. 52. ſpake to thoſe that came to apprehend him, to let him alone but ſo long as to reſtore the man his ear, and upon a touch he was cured.

51. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, Suffer ye thus far. And he touched his ear and healed him.]

52. Then Jeſus ſaid unto the chief prieſts and g captains of the Temple, and the elders which were come to him, Be ye come out as againſt a thief with ſwords and ſtaves?

53. This is the time wherein the devil & you are permitted to work your wills upon me.

53. When I was daily with you in the Temple, ye ſtretched forth no hands againſt me, but [this is your hour, and the power of darkneſs.]

54. Houſe of Caiaphas the high-prieſt of that year, where the Sanhedrim was aſſembled, Mat. 26. 57.

54. Then took they him and led him, and brought him into the [high-prieſts houſe] and Peter followed afar off.

55. And when they had kindled a fire in the midſt of the hall, and were ſet down together, Peter ſat down amongſt them.

56. But a certain maid beheld him as he ſate by the fire, and earneſtly looked upon him, and ſaid, This man was alſo with him.

57. And he denied ſaying, Woman, I know him not.

58. Another maiden, Mat. 26. 71. Mar. 14. 69. (ſee note on the title of St. Matthews Goſpel) ſeeing him ſaid, Thou art even one of them. But Peter denied and ſaid, Woman I am not.

58. And after a little while [another ſaw him and ſaid, Thou art * alſo of them. And Peter ſaid, Man, I am not.]

59. And ſome others that ſtood by (Mat. 26. 73. Mat. 14. 17.) affirmed confidently that he was certainly one of his company, for, ſaid they, his ſpeech diſcovers him to be a Galilean, Mat. 26. 73. &c.

59. And about the ſpace of one hour after [another confidently affirmed, ſaying, Of a truth this fellow alſo was with him; for he is a Galilean.]

60. But he ſaid (with addition of oaths, & imprecations, Mat. 26. 74.) I am not what thou affirmeſt me to be.

60. And Peter ſaid, Man, I know not what thou ſayeſt.] And immediately while he yet ſpake the cock crew.

61. And the Lord turned and looked upon Peter; and Peter remembred the word of the Lord, how he had ſaid unto him, Before the cock crow thou ſhalt deny me thrice.

62. And Peter went out and wept bitterly.

63. While Peter was in the hall of the high-prieſt, Mat. 26. 58. and 69. (before the latter part of the precedent ſtory of St. Peter) the Soldiers that were ſet to guard Jeſus, Mat. 26. 67. ſpit in his face.

63. And [the men that held Jeſus mocked him] and ſmote him.

64. Tell us, if thou art able to know and declare ſecrets.

64. And when they had h blindfolded him, they ſtroke him on the face, and asked him ſaying, [Prophecy] who is it that ſmote thee?

65. And many other things blaſphemouſly ſpake they againſt him.

66. The Sanhedrim met, & call'd for him to be brought.

66. And as ſoon as it was day [the Elders of the people, and the chief prieſts, and the Scribes came together, and led him] into their council ſaying,

67. Art thou the Chriſt? tell us. And he ſaid unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe.

68. And if I alſo ask you, ye will not anſwer me, nor let me go.]

68. And if I ſhall demonſtrate to you by never ſo convincing arguments that I am the Meſſias, you will neither ſatisfy nor anſwer my proofs, nor yet yield to the force of them, and releaſe me out of your hands.

69. Within a while ſhall I the Meſſias be exalted to the right hand of my father, and then ſhall you ſee me execute judgment and vengeance upon you, Mat. 26. 64.

69. Hereafter ſhall the ſon of man ſit on the right hand of the power of God.]

70. From hence they concluded that he made himſelf the ſon of God, and asked him, whether he were ſo or no? He anſwered that he was.

70. Then ſaid they all, Art thou then the ſon of God? and he ſaid unto them, Ye ſay that I am.]

Annotations on St. Luke, Chap. XXII.

a. Εξωμολόγησε. Covenant

V.6. Promiſed] What ἐξωμολόγησε ſignifies here, will be more eaſily determined, when 'tis reſolved that as among Grammarians, ſo in the reſt of the places in the New Teſtament, it clearly denotes one of theſe two things, either confeſſion of ſin, or giving of thanks, both being the importance of the Hebrew הודה in hiphil, from ידה. Thus ſaith Phavorinus, Ἐξομολόγησις ἡ τῶν ἐυ πεπονθότων καθ' ἐυχαριστίας τῶν ἐυεργετησάντων ἐπαίνησις, it is a thankful acknowledgment or enumeration of benefits, ἢ ἡ τῶν κακῶς πεπραγμένων παρὰ τῶν ὑπαιτίων ἐξαγόρευσις, and the guilty mans acknowledgment of what he hath done amiſs, which is vulgarly known by the title of ἐξομολόγησις, and again, Ἐξομολογοῦμαι, ἐυχαριστῶ, it ſignifies to give thanks. In the ſenſe of confeſſing of faults, 'tis to be found, Mat. 3.6. Mark 1.5. Acts 19. 18. James 5. 16. In that of praiſing, or giving thanks, Mat. 11. 25. (the very place cited by Phavorinus, ἐξομολογοῦμαί σοι πάτερ, I thank thee, O father) Luke 10. 21. Rom. 14. 11. 15. 9. Phil. 2. 11. Rev. 3. 5. And in no one place is it taken for promiſing (the meaning of ὁμολογεῖν in Greek Authors, and eſpecially in the Inſtitutions of Theophilus, ὁμωμόκεις, τοῦτ' ἔστιν, ὁμολογεῖς, ὁμολογῶ) or of any thing of that nature. And then the choice will be very eaſy, which of theſe two ſenſes we ſhall think fit to apply to this place, that of confeſſing being very alien and unfit for the turn, and the Arabick interpreter pointing us to this of giving thanks, which being an expreſſion of joy, is oft taken for joy it ſelf, and ſo is fit for this turn, the covetous purſe bearer being very well pleaſed with ſuch a bargain.

b. Ὀχλος.

Ib. Multitude] Ὀχλος here ſignifies a tumult, after the manner of the Hebrews, who uſe המון (literally a multitude) for a tumult, or noiſe alſo. See Forerius on Iſaiah, p.197.

c.

V. 25. Benefactors] The Hebrew word נדיב which they uſe for a Prince, and is by the Septuagint rendred βασιλεὺς, ἄρχων, τύραννος, doth primarily ſignify liberal, magnificent, benefactor, and ſo, as in the chooſing of Princes in Ariſtotle, Pol. l. 3. ἐπὶ δὲ ἀπὸ ἐυεργεσίας καθίσταν τὺς βασιλεῖς, they made them kings that had been their benefactors; ſo in the deduction of the word alſo, Princes are here called ἐυεργέται benefactors, and ſo Job 21.28. where the Hebrew reads נדיב munificus, beneficus, the Greek reads ἄρχων, and the Targum אדוניהון (the Greek ἄρχων got in amongſt them) a Prince, and ſo it ſignifies there. For this S. Matthew in his account of the ſame ſpeech of Chriſts, uſes οἱ μεγάλοι, the great ones, and καλοῦνται are called, being ordinarily ſet to ſignify no more then εἰσὶ, are, the words here ἐξουσιάζοντες αὐτῶν, they that have authority over them ἐυεργέται καλοῦνται are called benefactors, is directly to the ſame ſenſe, parallel with οἱ μεγάλοι ἐξουσιάζουσιν αὐτῶν, the great ones have authority over them, ſo as in the ſenſe, ἐυεργέται, benefactors, ſhall be the ſubject of the propoſition, and ἐξουσιάζοντες, they that exerciſe authority, the Predicate, thus, Their Princes called benefactors exerciſe authority over them.

d. Νεώτεροι

V.26. Younger] As they that were rulers among the Jews, or Judges in their Sanhedrim, were called Elders, ſo others, their officers eſpecially that attended them, are commonly ſtyled by way of diſtinction from them νεώτεροι the younger. And proportionably in the Church, as πρεσβύτεροι are they that preſide and govern in it, called here μείζονες greater, ſuperior to others, ſo they that under them, are here called νεώτεροι, (ſee Acts 5.6. and ſo 1 Tim. 5.1. Tit. 2. 6.) and in other places ἰδιῶται, 1 Cor. 14.23,24. and Acts 4. 13. and ἐν τάξει ἰδιωτῶν, or ἀναπληροῦντες τόπον τῶν ἰδιωτῶν, 1 Cor. 14.16. they that are in the place and condition of ordinary men or idiots.

Ἰδιῶται.

e. ἀπεστάθη.

V.41. Withdrawn] The uſe of the word ἀπεστάθη is obſervable among the Helleniſts, ſignifying no more then to depart. So 2 Mac. 12.10. ἐκεῖθεν δὲ ἀπαναβάντες ςαδίους ἐνέα, when they were departed thence nine ſtadia. So Acts 21.1. ἡμᾶς ἀποπλεύσαντας ἀπ' αὐτῶν, we were gone or departed from them. And ſo if that be the word in this place, it muſt certainly ſignify no more, but will be thus beſt rendred, he departed from them. But then the Kings MS. reading ἀπεςάλη, that is not capable of any other rendring.

V. 44. Drops of blood] That Chriſt ſweat drops of blood is not affirmed in this place, but only that he ſweat drops of ſweat, of a ſtrange thickneſs or viſcouſneſs, & conſequently as big as the drops wherein blood is wont to fall upon the ground. So ſaith Juſtin Martyr, Theophilact, and Euthymius; and 'tis * Ariſtotles obſervation of the ἀγωνιῶντες, men in an agony, ὅτι μάλιςα ἱδρῶσι, that they ſweat extreamly. But that the ſweat ſhould ſo far exceed the proportion of ſweat, as the drops wherein blood uſes to fall are above the drops wherein ſweat is wont, this was the ſtrange thing, and the expreſſion of the heavineſs of this agony, which is here mentioned. See Photius Epiſt. 138. Of the like uſe of ὡσεὶ as, or like as, ſee note on Mat. 3.1. ὡσεὶ

f. Ἱδρὼς ὡσεὶ θρόμβοι αἵματος. *Problem, ſect. 2. περὶ ἱδρῶτ.

V.52. Captains of the Temple] Στρατηγοὶ ἱερῦ, captains of the Temple here mentioned (and στρατηγοὶ, captains, v. 4. and in two other places of this Author, Acts 4.1. and Acts 5. 24. in the ſingular number, στρατηγὸς τοῦ ἱερῦ, ſignify no more then the captains of a band, or captains of more bands of Roman ſoldiers, ſet at the porches of the Temple to guard and keep peace, that there might be no ſedition raiſed in the city at the aſſembling of the Jews, at the Temple. Thus ſaith Joſephus, Ἀλώσ. l. 5. c. 15. was there a guard placed in the tower called Antonia, which was thence fetch'd out at feaſt days, to be a guard or φρούριον to the Temple, (and therefore Chryſoſtom renders it clearly, the captain of the ſoldiers of the Temple) for ſo ſaith the ſame Joſephus, Ἀρχαιολ. l. 8. c. 4. at that time when the people came to their feaſts, eſpecially at the Paſſover, there being danger of tumults, Cumanus ſet τῶν ςρατιωτῶν μίαν τάξιν, a band of ſoldiers, with their arms, to ſtand ὅπλα τοῦ ἱερῦ ςοῶν in the porches of the temple. Theſe ſoldiers are mentioned, Mat. 26.47. for thoſe that are there called a great multitude with ſwords and ſtaves, are the ὀμαδικοὶ foretold by Chriſt, v. 45. the ſinners, that is, Gentiles, and John 18. 3. ἡ σπεῖρα, a band of ſoldiers, and here στρατηγοὶ τοῦ ἱερῦ, that is, the Commanders with their τάξεις bands of ſoldiers with them; and accordingly χιλίαρχος τῆς σπείρης, the Colonel of this band, Acts 21.31. is ſure the στρατηγὸς commander or captain here, and that tower of Antonia the παρεμβολὴ, or caſtle, v. 34. whither he commanded Paul to be brought to ſafe Cuſtody. Such alſo (ſaith Nicephorus, l. 1. c. 32. and before him Chryſoſtom and Theophylact) was the νυκτοφύλακα, the watch or guard, Mat. 2. 65. which being ſet by the Romans to keep all quiet, was offered by Pilate to the Jews, to watch the grave of Jeſus, that none might ſteal him away, and make that matter of a new ſtir among them. For that theſe were not Jews, appears ſufficiently by their watching on the Sabbath day, which, eſpecially at the time of the Paſſover, the Jews durſt not to have done. This guard of the Romans, & care of theirs to prevent ſeditions among the Jews, ſeems to have taken its riſe from the former care and practice of the Jews, in defending themſelves from the Idumeans, 1 Mac. 4. 60, 61. for there Judas Maccabæus having built high walls and ſtrong towers about mount Sion, leſt the Gentiles ſhould tread it down, as they had done before, they ſet there a garriſon to keep it, and fortified Bethſura to preſerve it. And the commander of the garriſon was moſt probably he, whom Joſephus calls by this ſtyle of στρατηγὸς ναῦ, or ἱεροῦ then, the captain of the ſanctuary, or temple. But now the caſe being altered, and the Roman Conquerors taking the ſame care, and keeping the like guards againſt the uproars and tumults of the Jews, as the Jews did formerly againſt the Idumeans, 'tis to be ſuppoſed, that the στρατηγὸς τῦ ἱερῦ at this time was a Roman not Jewiſh Commander, tho' yet in Joſephus ſpeaking of thoſe times, we have Ananus and Eleazar called στρατηγοὶ, who were Prieſts, *l.*20.*c.*8. See Sigonius, l. 7. *de Rep. Heb.*c.23. where he takes notice of theſe Roman commanders among the Jews under the title of στρατάται, and στρατηγοὶ τῦ ἱερῦ, and alſo of their Lictors, ὑπηρέται, officers, Acts 5. 26. ῥαβδῦχοι Serjeants. Acts 16. 35. to apprehend diſturbers, and ῥαβδίζειν, Acts 16. 22. to beat them with rods, and then of bands of ſoldiers to quell commotions, as you may ſee Acts 16. 20. where bringing St. Paul and Silas to the στρατηγοὶ, ſuch like captains of bands at Philippi, their complaint is, that ἕτοι οἱ ἄνθρωποι ἐκταράσσουσιν ἡμῶν τὴν πόλιν Ιουδαῖοι ὑπάρχοντες, theſe men raiſe ſedition in our city being Jews, ſuppoſing that thoſe officers were there ſet among them in other cities, as well as at Jeruſalem, to quell ſuch commotions, which were feared, eſpecially from the Jews.

V.64. Blind-folded] This uſage of Chriſt here refers to that ſport ſo ordinary among children, called μυίνδα, in which it is the manner firſt to blindfold, which is, v.64. περικαλύπτειν, then to ſtrike him, βάλλειν v. 63. and τύπτειν, v.64. then to ask him who ſtroke him, which is ἐπερωτᾶν, v.64. and not to let him go, 'till he named the man aright, who had ſtroke him. And ſo was here uſed as a contumely or reproach toward him. h. Περικαλύπτειν. μυίνδα. ἔτυπτον.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND [the whole multitude of them] aroſe and led him to Pilate.

1. The whole company of the Sanhedrim, by the vote of the major part, not of all, v. 51.

2. And they began to accuſe him, ſaying, [We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Ceſar, ſaying, that he himſelf is Chriſt a King.]

2. We found him drawing away the nation from the religion of their anceſtors, and alſo forbidding to pay Ceſar the Roman Emperor his dues (ſee note on Mark 12. a.) and Mat. 22.b.) taking upon him to be our long expected Meſſias, and ſo conſequently our king.

3. And Pilate asked him, ſaying, Art thou the king of the Jews? And he anſwered him and ſaid, [Thou ſayeſt it.]

3. I am ſo.

4. Then ſaid Pilate to the chief prieſts, and to the people, I find no fault in this man.

5. And they were the more fierce, ſaying, He [ſtirreth up the people, teaching] throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place.

5. Teacheth ſeditious doctrine, and hath done ſo.

6. When Pilate heard [of Galilee] he asked whether the man were a Galilean.

7. And as ſoon as he knew that he belonged to Herods juriſdiction, he ſent him to Herod, who himſelf alſo was at Jeruſalem at that time.]

7. And diſcerning that his dwelling and abode was in Galilee which belonged to Herods government, and ſuppoſing Herod by his knowledge in the Jewiſh Religion, to be fitter for the cognizance of this caſe, he remitted the hearing of it to Herod, who was perſonally at Jeruſalem at that time, (ſee note on Luke 1.l.) on occaſion of the feaſt.

8. And when Herod ſaw Jeſus, he was exceeding glad: for he was deſirous to ſee him of along ſeaſon, becauſe he had heard many things of him; and he hoped to have ſeen ſome miracle done by him.

9. Then he queſtioned with him in many words, but he anſwered him nothing.

15. Nor is this my opinion only, but I ſent him, and referred the hearing of the buſineſs to Herod, v. 7. who being more acquainted with your religion then I am, may be deemed a more competent judge, and after he hath had cognizance of him, he hath no way expreſs'd his opinion that his crimes are capital.

See Mat. 27. note e.

27. And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which alſo bewailed and lamented him.

28. But Jeſus turning unto them, ſaid, Daughters of Jeruſalem, Weep not for me, but weep for [your ſelves, and for your children.]

28. The calamities which are ready to befal this whole nation, for this ſin of rejecting, and crucifying me, are likely to be far greater, and more worthy of your tears, then what now befals me.

(ſee 1 Pet. 4. 18.) And if my portion, who am the ſon of God, and innocent, be in your opinion ſo ſad and lamentable, under this Roman judge and ſoldiers, what will become of the profeſt enemies of God, who as a dry trunk of a tree, are as it were fitted and markt out for the fire, and ſhall fall into the hands of whole armies of the Romans? Or if in the diſtreſs that ſhall come upon you, the rich and the; noble ſhall be put to ſuch ſtreights, then what will the condition of the meaner ſort be?

Annotations on Chap. XXIII.

a Στρατιῶται.

V.11. Men of war] the Hebrew צבא ſignifies three things, 1. militare, to war, 2. concurrere, and congregari, to aſſemble, 3. miniſtrare, to miniſter. The firſt notion is very frequent, the ſecond, *Exod.*38.8. (where yet the Septuagint read ὑπεδικόσων, for צבא it ſeems reading צום jejunavit) and 1 *Sam.*2.21. and the third is ordinary alſo (and from thence Timothy called καλὸς στρατιώτης, a good ſoldier, that is miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt) Hence it is that among thoſe Greek writers, which follow the Hebrew idiom, the word στρατία, στρατιὰ and στράτευμα, is uſed for every one of theſe three; for the firſt ordinarily and primarily; for the ſecond, when we meet with στρατία οὐρανῦ πᾶσα, which we render, exercitus, and hoſt of heaven, but ſignifies univerſus cæli comitatus, the whole company of heaven, whether the many ſtars or many Angels there; and in the third ſenſe we have here στρατιώτας for officers, and ſervants, or attendants, and ſo the Syriack tranſlation renders it, and gives us authority to do the like, tho' otherwiſe it might be rendred more vulgarly, either his company, or his ſoldiers about him.

b. Παιδεύειν

V.16. Chaſtiſe] παιδεύειν ſignifies ordinarily to ſcourge or chaſtiſe, as παῖδες children or ſervants are wont to be uſed when they have offended, ſo Heb. 12. 6. παιδεία chaſtening, is expounded by μαστιγοῖ ſcourging. And inſtead of it here, the other Evangeliſts, *Mat.*27. 26. Mark 15. 15. have φραγελλώσας, from the Latin flagellum, a whip, and St. John, *c.*19.1. ἐμαστίγωσε ſcourging. Now to what the infliction of this ſort of puniſhment on Chriſt belonged, is matter of queſtion, that which is ordinarily ſaid is, that Flagellation was among the Romans a ſolemn preparative to crucifixion; ſo Livy of the ſervants, l. 34. Multi occiſi, multi capiti alii verberati crucibus affixi, they were ſcourged and crucified. And in Valerius Max. l.1. c.7. Servum verberibus multatum ſub furca ad ſupplicium egit, having ſcourged his ſervant under the croſs, he had him to puniſhment, that is, crucified him. So Antigonus the king of the Jews was firſt whipp'd, then beheaded with an ax, ſaith Dio. l 49. and ſo 'tis ſaid of Alexander in Qu. Curtius, l. 8. verberibus affectos ſub ipſis radicibus petræ crucibus juſſit affigi, he appointed them to be ſcourged and crucified; and Joſephus of the Jews, ἁλοὺς l. 5. c. 32. μαστιγώσαντες καὶ προσβασανίσαντες πρὸ παντὸς πάθους αἰσχίστου ἀνεσταύρωσε, they were ſcourged and reproachfully handled, and then crucified; and Philo ſpeaking of the Jews of Alexandria crucified by Flaccus, adds μετὰ τὸ αἰκίσασθαι ἐν τῷ θεάτρῳ, that this was done after they had been reproachfully handled, that is, ſcourged, in the theatre; and ſo this was part of the horrendum carmen, the ſolemn form of ſentence, verba intra aut extra pomœrium, Arbori infelici ſuſpendito, ſcourge him, and then hang him on the tree. But this is not the notion that here we muſt have of the ſcourging of Chriſt. For then it muſt be part of his ſentence of death, which by John 19. it appears it was not, for there 'tis ſaid, that Pilate took him and ſcourged him, v.1. whereas he was not as yet condemned to death, nay, v.6. Pilate refuſes to condemn him to death, profeſſing that he finds not any capital crime brought againſt him; then examines him farther, v.9. then ſeeks to releaſe him, v.12. and coming again to the judgment ſeat, v.13. at length he delivered him to be crucified. v.16. This is ſo evident by that Evangeliſt, that the learned H. Grotius applies this ſcourging to that other ordinary uſe of it for examination, ſuch as Act. 22. 24. is μάστιξιν ἐξετάζεσθαι, being examined with ſtripes, & Cicero, virgam in tormento eſſe magis quam ſupplicio, that the rod is for a torture rather then a puniſhment. But there is no ground for this conjecture from any circumſtance in any of the Goſpels, nor reaſon to adhere to it, without ſome teſtimony, upon a bare poſſibility of it, eſpecially when the mention of it in this fourth Goſpel ſuggeſts another notion of it, which will reconcile all the difficulty, and it ſelf be ſubject to none, viz. that Pilate willing to deliver Jeſus from capital ſentence, appointed this of ſcourging to be inflicted on him. For that Pilate did not believe Chriſt guilty of any capital crime it is evident, and conſequently not fit to be crucified, ſo likewiſe that beſides his own conſcience, his wife's dream did make him very unwilling to pronounce that ſentence of death on him, but very induſtrious to find ſome pretence of releaſing him, and that finally 'twas only the importunity of the Jews, to which he ſacrificed him; and here it is plain that he propoſes to the Jews the ſcourging of him, as a lighter puniſhment proportionable to his crimes, and then that he may releaſe him. So we find in the Epit. of Levy, *Dec.*5.*l.*6. of Matienus a ſervant, ſub furca diu virgis cæſus erat, & ſeſtertio veniit, he was ſcourged and then ſold; and ſo 'twas ordinary to bind to a pillar or poſt, and ſcourge men, κεκροδεδεὶς κίονι πολλὰς ἔλαβε πληγὰς in Artemidorus ὀνειροκρ. being bound to a pillar he received many ſtripes. From hence therefore 'tis evident, that the notion of this ſcourging was that of a lighter puniſhment, to releaſe him from a greater (and that, as John ſets it, inflicted on him before the ſentence of death was pronounced againſt him) tho' when that was done, he was fain to gratify them by delivering him up to their fury to be crucified alſo. And ſo the place in Matthew and Mark may well be rendred, *Mat.*27.26. τὸν δὲ Ἰησοῦν φραγελλώσας, παρέδωκεν ἵνα σταυρωθῇ, having ſcourged Jeſus, that is, formerly having done ſo, he proceeded farther, and delivered him to be crucified; and ſo Mark, *c.*15.15. παρέδωκε τὸν Ἰησοῦν φραγελλώσας, ἵνα σταυρωθῇ, He delivered Jeſus, having ſcourged him, (having done ſo before he thus delivered him) to be crucified. And this ſort of ſcourging was a puniſhment uſual among the Jews for offences not capital, ſee note on 2 *Cor.*11. b. a fourth ſort of ſcourging there was for capital crimes, whiping to death, with the head faſtned to the furca, which Suetonius in Nerone calls ſupplicium more majorum, the old Roman puniſhment. But this cannot belong to this place.

V.29. Bleſſed are the barren] This expreſſion of the days approaching, that they ſhall ſay μακάρια αἱ στεῖραι, bleſſed are the barren, &c. had certainly its completion in what befel Jeruſalem in the time of the ſiege. But more particularly it may refer to one paſſage: after that Titus had encompaſs'd the city with a wall, ſo that none could come out to forage, they were forced to feed on dung, ſaith Joſephus, on ſhoes and girdles, &c. and for want of ſuch proviſion as this, one Mary, a noble and rich woman, daughter of Eleazar, bereaved of all by the ſeditious, kill'd her ſucking child, and dreſs'd it, and eat part of it, and the Soldiers breaking in upon her, and finding a part left, went away in deteſtation, and preſently the news of it went over the whole city, and every one, ſaith * Joſephus, look'd upon it with horror, and with the ſame compaſſion, as if they had done it themſelves. Then was this ſpeech fit for them to take up, on hearing this horrible news, Bleſſed are the barren, and the womb that never bare, and the paps that never gave ſuck, in compariſon to thoſe that are forced to feed on the fruits of their wombs

e. Εἰ ἐν τῷ ὑγρῷ and

* l. 7. c.8.

Μάστιξιν ἐξετάζειν

and devour their own ſucking infants. And then that which follows, If they do theſe things on a green tree, what ſhall be done on a dry? may perhaps be beſt interpreted in relation to this particular fact alſo, of that noble and rich woman, Mary. If ſuch horrible things befal the wealthieſt among you, what a diſmal ſtate ſhall all others be involved in? This may poſſibly be the meaning of the phraſe. But if not, then in that other notion of the righteous and the wicked, it may have had its completion alſo.

d. κακοῦργοι σὺν αὐτῷ

V.32. Malefactors.] Theſe Malefactors crucified with Jeſus were thieves and murtherers, and authors of an uproar in the city, which is an evidence among others formerly mentioned, (ſee note on Mat. 27. d.) and on Mark 15. a.) of Chriſt's death being after the Roman not Jewiſh manner. For the Jewiſh cuſtom was never to put to death two malefactors on the ſame day, unleſs it were for the ſame crime; ſo ſaith Maimonides, Sanhed. c.14. They never condemn more then one in a day; but one to day, another to morrow, unleſs they be both guilty of the ſame tranſgreſſion, and deſerve one death. And that Chriſt was not pretended to be put to death for that crime of the other two, is clear by his Inſcription, which ſaith it was for pretending to be King.

e. Μέσον καταπέτασμα

V.45. Veil of the Temple] That which is here ſaid of the veil of the Temple, that ἐσχίσθη μέσον, muſt be ſo rendred, that μέσον may be taken adverbially for in the middle, ſo as to be anſwerable to εἰς τὰ δύο into two parts in Matthew and Mark. Now what veil of the Temple this was is the only thing that will need to be here determined; for of this it is certain, that there were two veils or high walls (intimated by the mention of the ſecond veil, v. 3.) the one that covered or encloſed the Sanctuary from the eyes and approach of the people, who were permitted to go no farther then the court of the Jews, and only the Prieſts admitted into the Sanctuary; For thus the manner was, the θυμιατήριον, or altar of incenſe was within the Sanctuary, and thither the Prieſts went daily and offered incenſe, the people mean while ſtaying without, and praying every one privately by himſelf (the thing noted by the ſilence in heaven for half an hour, *Rev.*8.1.) and thoſe prayers of the people for ſupply of their ſeveral wants were thus offered up by the Prieſt with that incenſe of his that went up to heaven (ſee c. 1. 10. d.) but the people themſelves ſtaid without, and might not enter or look in there, that veil, or wall, or ſcreen made a full ſeparation of one from the other. And as the ſanctuary was encloſed or ſeparated from the court, ſo was the Holy of Holies encloſed from the Sanctuary, and thither none entred but the High prieſt once a year, and ſo there was a ſecond veil. That this is here meant, is no way ſpecified, or deducible from any circumſtances of the ſtory in any of the Goſpels, yet may be thought moſt probable from one intimation of the author of the Hebrews, c. 10.20. where our way to heaven is ſaid to be conſecrated by Chriſt by the veil, that is, his fleſh. There as the veil is made a type of Chriſt's fleſh, and being ſo, the rending of the veil will be a fit ſolemnity of the piercing and crucifying Chriſts fleſh; ſo that veil is clearly the ſecond veil, entring into the ἅγια the holies, v.19. that is, the Holy of Holies, as appears by c.9.8. & 12. And if that were here meant, then the ſignificancy is not only the approaching deſtruction of all the Jewiſh rites, but alſo that that unapproachable place, a type of heaven, was now laid open to all true Chriſtians, and that in the mean time there is liberty to approach unto God in prayer allowed to them; and again that Chriſt not now once a year, as the High-prieſt, but once for ever, there to continue, entred into the Holy of Holies, that is, beyond the Sanctuary, the common place of all the Prieſts (and ſo the type of Heaven, where all the Angels and Saints are) even into the inmoſt adytum at the right hand of God, far above all Angels, &c. a place of pre-eminence peculiar to him.

CHAP. XXIV.

Paraphraſe.

1. NOW upon the firſt day of the week, very early in the morning, [they] came unto the ſepulchre, bringing the ſpices which they had prepared, and certain others with them. — 1. Mary Magdalen, &c. Mat. 27. 1. and here v.10.

2. And they found the ſtone rolled away from the ſepulchre.

3. And they entred in, and found not the body of the Lord Jeſus.

4. And it came to paſs, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold two men ſtood by them in ſhining garments.

5. And as they were afraid [and bowed down their faces to the earth, they ſaid unto them, Why ſeek ye the living among the dead?] — 5. And did obeyſance to them, then asked them, ſaying, Do you ſearch in a tomb or grave for one that is riſen from the dead?

6. He is not here, but is riſen: Remember how he ſpake unto you when he was yet in Galilee, — 6. Mat. 17.23.

7. Saying, The ſon of man muſt be [delivered into the hands of ſinful men] and be crucified, and the third day riſe again. — 7. Put to death by the heathens, Romans.

8. And they remembred his words.

9. And returned from the ſepulchre, and told all theſe things unto the eleven, and to all [the reſt.] — 9. The other diſciples of Chriſt, which were not of that number.

10. It was Mary Magdalen, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them, which told theſe things unto the Apoſtles.

11. And their words ſeemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not.

12. Then aroſe Peter, and ran unto the ſepulchre, and ſtooping down, he beheld the linnen cloaths laid by themſelves [and * departed, wondring in himſelf at that which was come to paſs.] — 12. And returned to the place from whence he came and where he abode, being much amazed to ſee the body gone out of the grave. See note on John 20, a.

34. And as ſoon as they came, told them, ſaying, ſee 1 Cor. 15. 5.

34. Saying, The Lord is riſen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

35. By his bleſſing and carving the meat, v. 30. they came to diſcern him to be Chriſt, not knowing it a long time.

35. And they told what things were done in the way, and how [he was known of them in breaking bread.]

36. And as they thus ſpake, Jeſus himſelf ſtood in the midſt of them, and ſaith unto them, Peace be unto you.

37. And they were in a terrible fright, thinking it had been a viſion of ſome ſpirit, without any real body joined unto it.

37. But they were terrified and affrighted, and ſuppoſed that they had ſeen a ſpirit.]

38. Ye doubt or ſuſpect me to be a ſpirit without a body?

38. And he ſaid unto them, Why are ye troubled, and why do [thoughts ariſe in your hearts?]

39. It is very I, body and ſoul together.

39. Behold my hands and my feet, that [it is I my ſelf:] handle me and ſee, for a ſpirit hath not fleſh and bones, as ye ſee me have.

40. Gave them leave to ſee and feel the prints of the nails in his hands and feet.

40. And when he had thus ſpoken, he [ſhewed them his hands and his feet.]

41. And the greater and more tranſporting their joy was, the leſs confident were they of the truth of it, and therefore to confirm them in the certain belief of it, he called for ſome meat.

41. And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondred, He ſaid unto them, Have ye here any meat?]

42. And they gave him a piece of broiled fiſh, and of an honey-comb.

43. And he took it, and did eat before them.

44. What you now ſee I did foretel when I was among you, before my crucifixion and is agreeable to all the ſeveral images and predictions of me in all the books of God, which were of neceſſity to be fulfilled.

44. And he ſaid unto them, [Theſe are the words which I ſaid unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things muſt be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moſes, and in the prophets, and in the Pſalms concerning me.]
